The Assembly bill authorizing sparring exhibitions with six-ounce gloves was reported adversely and the report was sustained.

Governor Voorhees sent to the Senate yesterday the names of G. D. W. Vroom and John Taylor for reappointment as members of the Board of Managers of the Asylum for the Insane at Trenton. Mr. Taylor being an ex-Senator, his nomination was immediately confirmed. Mr. Vroom's nomination was referred.

Roundsmen to the Rescue.

Dr. A. Willis Anderson, of East Second street, brought a large sized hunting dog up to the station yesterday morning, expecting to take him to New York on the 8:30 train. But the dog refused to climb aboard, when the train pulled in, but sat down, and despite all the coaxing, declined to move. It looked as though the dog would win the day when Roundsman Fredericksen picked him up bodily, and by dint of much scrambling and pushing, set him on the platform of the car just as the train pulled out.

Robbing Clothes Lines.

Clothes line thieves are at work in the Netherwood district of this city, the yards of Messrs. Schultz and Robert Dryden, 321 Hillside avenue, having been entered and robbed early in the evening of Monday last.

THE AMERICAN WASH-DAY.

Some Royal People of Europe Had but Two a Year, Some None.

Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher, writing to the New York World, says when housecleaning sometimes entertain friends with the discomforts and trials of washing day, one is tempted to suggest a return to the primitive customs of the ancients or to the days of the Tudors and Stuarts, and inquire if that would make life more enjoyable. As cotton or linen was known in those days, and wearing apparel was never washed. What happiness! What glorious lives they must have led!

The garments of the poor were made of harsh, coarse woolens, add were unwashed and uncleansed until they could hold together no longer. No underclothing was worn by rich or poor! How would our dainty matrons like being served by such unwashed attendants? The nobles and people of wealth were clothed in rich silks and velvets, or taffetas—a kind of thick silk with a wavy lustre—much like the watered silks of more modern times. Washable cotton garments was, of course, never attempted. If by long continual use they became unseemly they were colored. It was years after this before any linen undergarments were ever heard or thought of—and even then, if some royal personage occasionally received such a treasure, it would occasion as much curiosity and comment as could be given to anything before reporters or newspapers were abroad in the land.

Anne Boleyn and Queen Elizabeth were, I think, the first to introduce wearing nightgowns. But they were made of heavy silks and velvet, trimmed with lace, and often lined with fur. We have seen copies of Queen Bess's orders in some historical records for a certain number of cambs skins to line a purple velvet nightgown, and also the quantity of lace required. In such garments they passed out of her hands they were dyed, if her ladies in waiting chose, but never washed.

After many years a more cleanly order of things began to creep gradually in. With this approach to decency and comfort the necessity of washing such articles began to dawn upon the now partially cultivated community; but, like the housecleaning of the present day, it was only two or three times a year. As the product of the loom became more abundant, so the desire for a larger quantity of clothing grew with the increased supply, and as garments multiplied the pleasure and comfort in having them clean became more apparent.

Weekly family washings became a regular arrangement with us much earlier than in the old country. Some time after the Hungarian revolution, when Kossuth, with many of his brave compeers was in America, one of the noble ladies who was in our family some weeks was greatly astonished to learn that our washing was done every week, and in our own house. Until then she learned more than ever before how this work was managed throughout Europe generally.

Spring and autumn were the times usually appointed for the great washing carnival. The clothes from many families were brought in large hampers to the bank of some river, where, after being washed, they were spread out to bleach for several days, but need enough to have been used for a long process of bleaching to whiten clothes than had been soiled for six months.

The grounds were under the care of public authorities day and night, to prevent any disturbance while so many were assembled together; but when washing, bleaching, drying, mangling and ironing were all completed, those who had borne the burden and heat of the day finished as they do with us in hop-picking season, by a night of dancing and hilarity. That part of the performance may have been some compensation to the employes. But what promised sport after the work was done would seem any compensation for having their clothes lie six months dirty, growing yellow and rotten to escape the trouble of a weekly washing?

The Actor's Check.

There was once a comedian who out-financed Edward E. Rice. Startling as the statement may seem, it is nevertheless true that when this farceur retired from Mr. Rice's company he owed the manager $700. To Mr. Rice the condition was not alone unusual—it was also irksome. One morning when he was fretting under the load he labored, the actor had secured a first-rate engagement at a large salary. He sat down and wrote an urgent letter, finishing with a demand for an immediate remittance of "a check for seven hundred." In due course he received a communication by mail containing a heavy metallic disc. The letter read:

"Dear Ned—Yours received. Find enclosed, as requested, a check for seven hundred."

The metallic disc was a C. B. & Q. railway baggage check numbered 700.

The Proper Attitude.

"There's just one thing about this financial question," said the confident young man, "that I don't understand."

His father gazed at him and exclaimed:

"There's no use, my son, in your coming to me for information. If you've gotten that subject mastered to such a degree that there's only one thing about it that you don't understand, it isn't my place to say a word. The thing for me to do is to drag up a footstool, sit down on it, look up into your face, and drink wisdom."—Washington Star.

BOBBY'S FAMILY.

Mamma's got such pretty hands,
But when "precious baby" spanks
Go beyond what patience stands,
Hully gee! How mamma spanks.

Papa's voice is soft in prayer
In his church at meetin' night.
But you ought to hear him swear
When the meals ain't cooked just right.

Sister's very coy with Jack,
And her actions make you sick.
But when he has turned his back,
Gee! You orter see her kick!

Though when anything is done,
I'm the darlin' of 'em all,
'Pears as if I'm the only one
Ain't a bloomin' hypocrite!

—New York Recorder.

A FRONTIER EPISODE.

We sat in the little frontier hotel at Pine Ridge Agency that stormy December night in '90. There were a number of us—newspaper correspondents—and a few interpreters, officers and reservation employes. The days previous had been full of excitement, for the Brule and Ogallala Sioux were engaged in the Ghost Dance or messiah craze, and Pine Ridge Agency General Miles had grouped some 1,500 troops; beyond their white tents clustered the dingy tepees of the Indians, some 800 of them.

We greatly enjoyed these evenings in the hotel. They brought back to memory adventures of the old West—staging, buffalo hunting, Indian fighting. And what a fund of information the scouts, interpreters and "old timers" poured into our willing ears. Each one could have talked all night and yet not told the narration of his experiences unfinished then. We were especially interested in the singular career of B. He had left a home in Connecticut, and after varied experiences in Iowa and Nebraska joined a company of miners and with them entered the new mining camp of Deadwood. He was then but seventeen years old. That same winter he carried the first mail out of Deadwood to the Missouri River.

B. joined our circle while a scout was relating some encounters with stage robbers in the early seventies, and immediately entered into the conversation.

"So far as I know the smoothest trick, prompted by a desire to save money, ever played upon stage robbers occurred near Miles City in '79. A load of passengers were almost within sight of the town. They had been travelling all day and were worn out, for the roads were awful and in those days of mud and snow horses tired and swayed very much. Having come near their journey's end they were congratulating themselves. Hold-ups had been frequent. Two heavily armed messengers accompanied each coach, but they, like any one else, were on the lookout for trouble.

"Dear me!" said an elderly man near the door, 'I'm glad we are safe. I have about $500 and if I lost it I don't know where I could get more.'

"Just then a jolly, rough looking, but well dressed, young man, said a travelling salesman, 'but the loss of what I have would put me to much trouble out here among strangers.'

"Two miners and a prospector, each with large rolls, expressed their satisfaction at having their gold pokes safely. The next speaker was a little old woman, kind and motherly in her ways.

"'My boy has started a restaurant in town and is doing well. He wanted me to come and help him, so the Lord knows far enough away from dear old Ohio. I thought he would need his mother, for these mining towns are wild, I hear, and full of temptations. I have only $200,' said the guesses were all wrong.

"'Well, I have four $50 bills against the sole of my foot inside my left shoe!'

"'Capital!' said the elderly gentleman. 'No one would ever think of looking for money in your shoes.' In the far corner at the front sat a small slender, black-haired man. He kept between his feet a little black valise. No one spoke to him during the journey and he made no sound save occasionally by cough in a peculiar manner. Some of the passengers thought him to be a consumptive. Even when general good-fellowship prevailed he took no part in the conversation. Making bold, the old lady said:

"'And you, what would you do if you were held up?'

"A hollow cough and a shrug of the shoulders was all his reply.

"'What a mean fellow!' thought the old gentleman. At this instant the coach lurched violently to one side and a loud, rough voice, followed by reports of the guns! One messenger was shot, the other compelled to throw up his hands before time for resistance, and consternation and terror prevailed within the coach.

"'Lord, Lord!' prayed the elderly man.

"'Oh, dear, oh, dear!' cried the woman.

"'Hustle up there, git out,' and one of the robbers had the door open with his left hand while he covered the passengers with the revolver in his right. Of course they all filed out and were stood up in a row. There was much trembling on the part of the men and the poor old woman wept audibly. It only took a few moments to go through the pockets of the line and to investigate the messenger's small safe. Probably the road-agents would have taken to the hills at this moment had not one of the bandits beheld the frail figure within the coach.

"'Hold on, boys; here's one we forgot,' and he started in with an oath to drag forth the consumptive. As he entered a most plaintive, cough interrupted voice greeted him, and tough as he was, he paused.

"'Please don't make me get out. I am very sick. I will die, I know. If you will only let me be I will tell you where you can get $200 which you have overlooked. I have no money, but I know where the $200 is.' The robbers outside, having heard the shrill, penetrating voice, glanced at each other. The leader called out to his fellow within the coach: 'All right, Bill: find out where them two hundred is and let the poor devil alone. We got to be skipping out.'

"The piping voice took courage. 'Gentlemen, if you will ask that old lady to remove her left shoe you will find the money.'

"The men began to mutter and scowl. The consumptive even found courage enough to say it was a shame to rob a poor old woman of her last dollar, and no one but the most depraved sort of a road-agent would be guilty of such an act. The leader walked up to the driver, clapped his face and tickled the end of his nose with the muzzle of his six shooter. The drummer discreetly held his tongue until the thieves were gone.

"It was with sighs and sobs that the old lady seated herself on the ground, took the shoe from that fat foot, and handed up her last dollar. In a twinkling it was pocketed and the outlaws jumped for their horses and were gone.

"With a hubbub broke out when the people found themselves alone once more. With one accord they assailed the man within the coach.

"'Oh, you villain, you wretch, to tell them of my money!' cried the woman as she shook him by the shoulders. The drummer entered at this moment. He had been talking to the other men of the affair. Wild with wonder, they assailed the man within the coach.

"'Just step out, madam, we want to talk with him,' he said. She obeyed and several entered. It was noticed that the driver had his reins in his hands and one end or them looked suspiciously like a gun.

"'You d—d rascal,' said the driver, 'to have deliberately given this woman's money over to those outlaws! We'll make short shift of you,' and he threw the noose over the man's head. There was a desperate struggle for a moment, and then the noose fell down clean cut through. It was seen that the little man had a bowie in his hand. He spoke in a different voice this time.

"'For God's sake, don't bother me here. You can hang me at Miles City as well as here. It's only a little way; I shall not escape. When we get there I will have something to tell you which will explain my action. A man always has a right to have a fair hearing before he is hung, and I claim that privilege.'

"'Well, we can watch him that far,' said the drummer, 'we can hang him there as well as here.'

"Some one helped the driver with the body of the messenger, and the coach started for town. The drummer, the driver and several others watched the little man intently, but he made no movement nor did he speak until the coach lumbered up in front of the postoffice and hotel; then he said in a quiet voice:

"'I am Tom ——, one of the famous three of the Black Hills, and I have $40,000 in this grip. The only way to save it was by telling the robbers of the old woman's money. I am glad to return it to her and a stake extra for the worry I caused her. I am sorry I killed your man, I have nothing to do with your losses. We all ran the same risk. I wish you good evening,' and he stepped quickly from the seat to the door and into the street, dropping a roll of bills into the lady's lap as he passed."

And after lighting his pipe our story-teller passed out into the night and wended his way to his humble cabin.—New York Tribune.

Verdi's Strategem to Obtain Rest.

Verdi once went to the watering-place of Montecatini for a much-needed holiday. In one of the apartments assigned to the veteran musician stood a grand piano of splendid tone. Verdi removed the score of Il Trovatore, which had been laid on the rack *by way of compliment, locked the in-*strument, and called for the son of his host, to whom he said in solemn tones, "Lead me to the spot which overhangs the precipice." Then, on reaching the summit, the maestro, who was almost exhausted from fatigue, flung the key of the piano into the abyss, saying with energy, "Now I have done something to secure rest and quiet! On the day of my funeral you will send a locksmith to provide the piano with a new key, but while I am here let it remain as it is!"

Youngest Colonel in America.

The city of Louisville can boast of a thirteen-year-old colonel. His name is Harry Mulligan. He is the son of an hotel manager. He is at the present time attached to the staff of Governor Bradley, of Kentucky. He owes his promotion to a prophecy he made that Colonel Bradley would be elected Governor of Kentucky.

"My boy," said the Colonel, when he heard that the prophecy comes true, I will make you colonel of my staff."

When he was elected he issued a commission for the boy, and gave to Kentucky the youngest colonel in the American army.—Tid-Bits.

Feminine Fire Brigade.

The little town of Nassol, in Sweden, has a feminine department, 150 strong, in its fire brigade. The waterworks of the village consist simply of four great tubs, and it is the duty of the women firemen to keep these full in case of fire. They stand in two continuous lines from the tubs to the lake, about three streets away, one line passing the full buckets, and the other sending them back.—Tid-Bits.

OVERPRODUCTION.

There's an overproduction of cotton,
An overproduction of corn;
Too much of everything is grown
Too many people to mourn.
A surplus yield of wheat and bread,
Of potatoes, oats and rye,
Hog and hominy, ham and eggs,
And home-made pumpkin pie.

Too much too eat, too much to wear,
And cash is one too many hills;
Too many empty pocketbooks,
Too many countries, glooms and drills.
There's an overproduction of everything
Of every kind and kind;
Too many oaks and papers,
Too much in the world behind.

Too many men to do the work,
Too many women to weep;
More dead than the people need,
Too many sighs and sleep.
An overplus of wives;
Too many children and sons,
More beer than there are wives.

More sunshine and more shadow
Than is needed for the dell;
An overproduction of nonsense,
More millions than we tell;
An overproduction of ignorance,
A surplus of poverty;
Too many poor, too many rich,
Too many fools, too many fools.

THE GYPSY DANCER.

A gypsy band were in the West Riding of Yorkshire, England, and the beautiful dancer Miniti, with her handsome companion, were performing to the delighted villagers of the country. It did not escape the inquisitive eyes of the spectators that her companion, Fernando, watched with loving eye each motion of Miniti.

The little town in the environs of which the gypsy band were encamped was one day thrown into commotion by one of the inhabitants declaring that an article of considerable value had been stolen from his house. One of the inhabitants even remembered to have seen the gypsy scribe near the door of the house whence the jewel was missing, and was ready to make oath that it was none other than Miniti, the danseuse of the tribe.

This was quite sufficient, and upon such strong circumstantial evidence she beautiful girl was seized and rudely carried before the Justice of the county for examination. In vain was all the proof offered by the tribe as to her innocence; no court would heed a gypsy's evidence, and the Justice was forced, though compassion was in his heart, aye, and it beamed broadly from his countenance, too, to commit the girl.

Immediately after the Justice had pronounced the sentence, and the weeping girl was about to be borne away by the officers of the court, a young man stepped suddenly forward from the crowd and said, while he thrust aside the rough hands that were extended to seize Miniti:

"Stand back, if you would not have me take your lives. The girl is innocent—I stole the jewel. Why should you charge this upon that gentle being, innocent of pure, no, purer than the best of yet I is I who am guilty."

"Thou!" cried the gypsy girl, "impossible, Fernando!" for it was her companion of the dance. And the gentle girl, rejoicing to find one friend so near her, with fearful impetuosity threw her arms about his neck and wept upon his breast.

"Even so, dear Miniti," he replied, "but fear not for me, I shall soon be released again. Keep up a brave heart, dearest."

As he said these words, the Justice directed officers to release the girl and commit the young man to prison, glad of an opportunity to clear one whom he could not find in his heart to commit.

The Justice was Sir George Pasely, and that same night while he sat alone in his study, musing upon the examination of the gypsy and the singular circumstances thrown upon it, a servant announced that a stranger desired to see him. He was admitted and the tall, gaunt person of the gypsy leader was before him. Sir George motioned him to a seat.

"Judge," said the gypsy, "I am a man of a few words. I have come here on a matter of business, and with your permission will speak at once to the point."

"Go on, sir."

"Twelve years ago," continued the gypsy, "you lost a child."

The old man sprang like an infuriated animal upon the person of the gypsy, and seizing him by the throat, had nearly thrown him upon the floor before the gypsy sufficiently recovered himself to release his neck from Sir George's grasp.

"Stay," said the gypsy, casting off the Justice with an ease that showed at once his superior physical power, and with a degree of composure that proved him to be no stranger to scenes of personal conflict, "no power on earth can make me speak unless I choose. How deal with me like a man and I will do as I resort to force, and I am dumb forever."

"Speak then," said the old man, trembling in every limb, speak—what of my child?"

"As I said before, this is purely a matter of business on my part," continued the gypsy. "still you give me £50 if I will return your daughter to you?"

Without a word further, Sir George drew a check upon his bank for the amount specified, and, rising to the gypsy as he exhibited the draft, honestly drawn and filled up:

"Now, sir, speak, and if you give me faithful intelligence, upon my honor the draft and money shall be yours."

"Enough, I am satisfied. Now, Sir George, the girl that was tried before you today, charged with the theft, is thy daughter."

"My God!" exclaimed the agitated parent, scarcely able to contain him self, "bring her to me at once."

"Stay, sir," continued the gypsy, "first let me explain to you my own agency in the affair."

"No matter, no matter, I forgive you—bring me my child."

"But I ask no forgiveness; first let me explain. I learned this secret in a distant land, from a man who had been paid to destroy your child, but who, taking a fancy to her, preferred to save her life, and adopted her. When I learned this from him I swore on his dead body I promised him to bring her to you. I have done so, and now only demand payment for my expenses."

At the expiration of an hour, during which Sir George could hardly conquer his impatience, the lovely danseuse, entered St. George's apartment, and was at once clasped in his arms, with barely a word that told her all.

"Oh, heaven!" said the father, while he alternately pressed her to his heart, and held her from him, that he might see more clearly her womanly perfections, "I thank thee for at last returning her to me, so beautiful, so gentle, so lovely, aye, and so pure; there is no guile or deceit in that face," and Sir George was almost beside himself with joy and delight. "Louise," said he, the tears streaming from his eyes, "dear, dear Louise."

"Ah, my father," said she, musing, "it comes over me like a dream, long, long forgotten."

"Ah, my child," said Sir George, "nothing on earth shall again separate us from each other."

"But father, dear father," said Louise, bewildered and over happy, will you release Fernando?"

"Aye, at once. The brave fellow would have saved thee at the expense of his own liberty and shall be suitably rewarded."

He spoke he wrote an order for his immediate release, which was despatched forthwith by a servant, with directions to bring the gypsy to Sir George's apartment. In the meantime Louise's early history was crowded upon her astonished ears, almost in a single breath.

Fernando came at last, little dreaming of the document that was awaiting him. He was surprised to find Miniti in the company of Sir George and at once rightly conjectured that his release was owing to her intercession, but his astonishment was beyond description when the true position of the matter was explained to him. Suddenly he became pale, and a tear even trembled in his handsome eye, when the Justice asked:

"What grieves you, my friend?"

"To realize, sir, that Miniti's finding a father must be the cause of our separation."

"How so, sir?"

"Would one of your blood and standing in the world marry a child to one of the proscribed race?"

"Aye," said the Justice, "Louise should be return if you were the—the —I won't exactly say what, after the proofs of affection you have shown her."

Fernando pressed the tearful girl to his breast, saying:

"Miniti, Louise, blessed be the power that overrules us all."

"Dear Fernando, how happy we shall be now, with every opportunity for improvement and all the things you have taught me, to read, to write, and everything. I can improve them all."

"We will, indeed," replied Fernando. Then, turning to the Justice, said: "The trial is passed, and now I, too, will speak. One year since I made a vow on quitting my studies that I would seek a wife who should love me for myself alone. Being of noble birth—nay, start not, it is true—I assumed these rustic garments, and determined to wear them until I found a heart and proved it worthy of my love. I saw Louise and a gypsy. I loved her at once, and I determined to keep my oath. I tested her affection in every reasonable way, and learned to love her for her purity of mind, as well as her extraordinary beauty, and when the time had nearly arrived for me to take a gypsy wife to my bosom, lo, I find her of gentle birth like myself, while each has truly proved the other's love."

Fernando de Cortez was indeed born of the blood royal of Spain, and in this romantic way had he chosen himself a wife. We might make our tale more complete by adding to it, but still we could only show that happiness was the future lot of the gypsy danseuse.—Buffalo Times.

To Prevent Walls Becoming Damp.

The walls of a stone house and sometimes of a brick house are covered with dampness. This is due to the fact that every night a thick dew is deposited on grasses or moisture on the side of a glass or pitcher that is filled with ice water and brought into a warm room. The walls become cold, and as stone is a non-conductor of heat they remain cold for a long time. When the weather changes suddenly from cold to warm the air becomes filled with moisture, for the warmer the air is the more moisture it will absorb. When this warm air comes in contact with the cold walls, the moisture is deposited on it from the air, which is suddenly cooled by contact with them, and as the warm air is continually coming in contact with the cold walls, the dampness accumulates until it appears like dew upon them, and pours down in streams at times. It is easily prevented. No plaster should be put directly upon brick or stone, but furring strips should be nailed to the wall and the lath be put on these. Cellars are frequently made very damp in the same way by too much ventilation in warm weather.

"What extenuating circumstances can you give?" asked the judge.

"Please, your honor, I made the money to pay for my lodgings," replied the counterfeiter.

"Very good. It will pay for your board and lodgings for the next five years."

TOMMY ATKINS.

It was quite a romance in the beginning, rather funny in the middle, and in the end positively audacious.

Little Gertie Kingston, driving pony along a country lane that skirted a big field in which a battalion of soldiers were exercising, pulled up to watch them, when without the least warning, down went the front rank on their knees. An officer shouted "Fire!" and off went the pony as fast as he could lay his legs to the ground.

Remembering a very steep, unprotected declivity not more than a mile ahead, the frightened girl, she was only 13, set her feet against the splash-board and pulled desperately. She cut her gloves to ribbons, but Bobs galloped on with speed unabated, and, dashing round a corner, almost plunged into a company of soldiers.

The men sprang right and left—all but one. He made a leap at the runaway and caught hold of his bridle. Terrified anew, the pony dragged him some little distance, but, failing to shake him off, eventually gave up the struggle.

Of course, Gertie burst into tears when quite sure the danger was over. So the soldier got up beside her and drove her half a mile on her way.

"I've only a shilling," she said, offering the coin. "I wish it was a sovereign. I'll tell papa to pay you one. Uncle John will send you one. I thank you very much, and shall never forget that you saved my life."

The soldier took the shilling and eyed it comically. He was a well-set-up fellow, and he looked very handsome in his red coat. So, at least, Gertie thought.

"I can't take this, don't you know," he said, smilingly.

And he tossed the shilling into Gertie's lap.

"But won't you tell me your name?" she urged, thinking that the smallness of the reward was the reason of its non-acceptance.

The soldier laughed merrily.

"With pleasure. It's Tommy Atkins. Private Tommy Atkins. Now, don't you forget it."

And with another laugh off he ran, Gertie watching him, very sorry that the despised shilling was all she had. The soldier returned to his "Private Atkins" rejoined them, and, turning the corner at the double, passed out of the girl's sight.

Nine years passed. Gertie was now Miss Kingston of Balcomer. She had not exactly had many such strokes of fortune, but two male cousins had died, and a third had offended. Mr. Raynor, who, being able to dispose of his property as he saw fit, had bequeathed it to the thousands of offending nephew and the Balcomer estate to Gertie.

The girl, never to her knowledge, met this distant cousin Richard; nor, indeed was she aware that she had displaced him. That had been kept from her.

During all these years she had not forgotten Tommy Atkins, the name by which she persisted in speaking of the soldier who had stopped her pony. Although only a private, he was her typical hero, a veritable Paladin.

It was not surprising, therefore, that one of her first resolves, on realising what seemed to her unlimited wealth, should be to reward her hero in the proper manner.

Having ascertained that the Hertford Fusiliers were stationed at Pembury she visited a jeweller's shop and bought an elaborate gold watch and a massive chain of the same costly metal The watch she left to be suitably engraved.

"Presented to Tommy Atkins, of the 1st ——shire Hertfordshire Regiment, by Gertrude Kingston, as a mark of gratitude."

"I don't suppose that is the soldier's name," Miss Kingston explained, "but I want to put it on the watch. He saved my life, and that was the name he gave me."

Having purchased the most expensive purse the shop contained, she placed inside it five bank notes. When the watch had been delivered she set out for Pembury.

To and fro before the door which led to the officers' quarters at Pembury barracks Private Glossup was doing sentry-go.

Miss Kingston stopped in her path.

"Can you tell me," she asked, "if there is a soldier here named Tommy —Thomas Atkins?"

Private Glossup grounded his Lee-Metford.

"That is my name," he said, with a knowing wink; then bringing his rifle to the shoulder smartly, he marched to the sentry box, turned right about face, and marched back.

At this juncture Sergeant Smith appeared on the scene, smart in sash, gloves and sword, and swinging a natty cane. Miss Kingston addressed her question to him.

"Somebody's been having you on toast, Miss," he answered, interrupting the explanation which she had concluded was very necessary.

Stepping aside to make room, he saluted an officer who passed in—tall and handsome, with a face bronzed to copper color. The battalion had not long returned from India.

"That is her!" exclaimed Miss Kingston. "I should know him anywhere. Will you kindly tell him that a lady wishes to speak to him? Stay a moment," she went on, producing her card case. "Give him this card, and say I am the girl whose life he saved near Balcomer about nine years ago My pony ran away, and he stopped it. I dare say he will remember."

He conducted her to an orderly room, gave her a chair, and entered his commanding officer's quarters.

Lieut-Col. Graham, almost the youngest officer of that rank in the British army, had just taken off his gloves when the sergeant entered, and, saluting, gave him the card.

"Lady wants to see you," he said.

The colonel started. "Miss Kingston, Balcomer Hall!" he exclaimed, in tones of surprise. "What the dickens does she want with me. I won't see her. Tell her—I say, you don't tell her anything. It wasn't her fault—" This to himself. "Did she mention her business?"

"Not exactly, sir. I was to say that you saved her life about nine years ago. Stopped a runaway pony, sir. She asked for a soldier by the name of Tommy Atkins—begging your pardon, sir," added the sergeant with an ill-concealed grin.

Col. Graham pondered for a moment. "By Jove! I remember," he cried at length. "She must be the little girl in a short frock who wanted to give me a shilling, and begged me to tell her my name. You say she asked for Tommy Atkins?"

"Yes, sir. And she recognized you as him—begging your pardon, again, sir."

"Then she doesn't know me? I'll see her. What a coincidence? And she really thought I was a private? Did she have a good look at me when I passed?"

"Not more than a glimpse, I should say, sir."

"Ahem! Crockett!"

"I want you to change tunics with me," said the Colonel, "or lend me yours, anyway. You are about my size, I think."

When Miss Kingston entered Col. Graham was standing at attention, with his thumbs pressed tightly against the seams of his trousers, in the stiff, unnatural, recruit-at-the-bayonet attitude that he could assume. But his eyes said: "Awfully pretty girl," as plainly as eyes could speak.

"I'm so glad to meet you again," she said. "I've never forgotten you; and I've brought you a little gift, if you will accept it."

Col. Graham executed a half right turn and faced Private Crockett.

"Is it against the regulations to receive a reward for duty my duty, sir?" he asked.

"I—I—I don't think so," stammered Crockett, almost as red as the tunic that covered his manly breast.

Miss Kingston looked at him in surprise, then glanced inquiringly at her hero, who assumed the severest most wooden expression that he could summon up. Evidently she suspected something. But she produced the watch and chain and the purse and presented them with a few graceful words.

"I had the name you gave me engraved on the watch," she said; "but that is not correct, I think."

"No, Miss," answered the Colonel, glancing at the case. "That was a joke. But Tommy Atkins will do very well. I am very much obliged."

It was rather a singular coincidence that on the day following her return to Balcomer Miss Kingston should receive a letter from Raynor, a spinster sister of the late Squire, who had hitherto, for some reason or other, held aloof, and that this white-haired old lady should almost at once introduce the subject of her nephew Richard.

"You don't know him, I think, my dear," she said. "He is Lieutenant-Colonel of the army, and I must tell you that he was always led to expect that he would succeed to Balcomer. Unfortunately for him, he quarrelled with your uncle, and, in consequence, you are here."

"I never heard a word of it. Why did he quarrel?"

"My brother wished him to marry a certain lady, and Dick did not see his way."

"What a shame!" exclaimed the girl, deeply interested. "I am so sorry! I feel that I have no right to Balcomer. Can't something be done? Is it possible to divide the property?"

Miss Raynor smiled.

"Wouldn't that be rather quixotic, my dear?" she asked.

"I don't know," was the reply. "I think I ought to be, if—"

Miss Raynor soon afterward took her leave. But a week later she paid another visit to Balcomer.

"I have heard from Dick," she said, "and he'll call on you the first time he is in the neighborhood. I hope he doesn't resent your being here is the least, and he will be very pleased to know you."

Miss Raynor had scarcely been at Balcomer fifteen minutes—devoted to praises of her nephew—when she saw that gentleman arrived and sent up his card.

Lieut. Col. Richard Graham, 1st Battalion Hertfordshire Regiment!" exclaimed Miss Kingston, reading from the card. "Why I was at Pembury ten days ago and I saw—"

"Dick!" interrupted Miss Raynor, blandly.

"I don't know, I saw Private Tommy Atkins and, I think, his Colonel. It's very funny. The Colonel looked and spoke like a prince, and Tommy Atkins like a gentleman."

The footman retired. Next moment the Colonel came in. Miss Kingston stood face to face with her hero, across whose white waistcoat the massive chain she had given him was proudly displayed.

"Why—why—" she began, blushing almost as red as Private Crockett when seated in the officer's chair, "we are old acquaintances!"

"And cousins," added the Colonel, bowing.

"You saved my life!"

"It pleases you to say so. I have come to thank you for your offer to share the Balcomer with me."

"It would be a pity to divide Balcomer, my dear," interposed Miss Raynor, smoothing her white ringlets archly. "Isn't there a better way to put things straight?"

MILLIONS WASTED.

SUCH IS THE CLAIM OF THE AMERICAN ASSOCIATION.

They Are Now Trying to Get a Bill Through Congress to Do Away with Letters That Are Not Sounded—A Spelling Reform.

Spelling reform must come, says the American Philological association. And it says so emphatically. While the country is being asked to exercise itself and grow heated over the discussion of reforms in police departments, aldermanic boards, street car companies, trust legislation and the question of the eternal feminine, too little attention is being paid to the subject of spelling reform, in which not a small class of citizens, not a select few from a certain walk in life, not the members of an individual community, but every man, woman and child in the United States, is decidedly interested. The 74,500,000 persons in this Republic, says the officers of the association, are all directly affected by the proposition to reform the manner of spelling many of the words in daily use.

The association is trying to get a bill through congress which shall correct what it describes as an evil. The statement is made that the irregular spelling of the English language causes a loss of two years of the school time of each child and is mainly the cause of the alarming illiteracy of our people; that it involves an expense of hundreds of millions of dollars annually in time and for writing and printing superfluous letters, and that it is an obstacle in many ways to the progress of the education of those speaking the English language and to the spread of the language among other nations.

"The changes of preterits and past participles of our verbs suggest another and perhaps more interesting rule. In the early English the preterits of our regular verbs are two syllables longer than they are now. In the Wycliffe Bible 'axide' (asked), 'blessidde (blessed), 'kissidde' (kissed), 'hilde (filled), 'passide' (passed), and 'walkide' (walked), are familiar examples of preterits of two syllables now of one; 'answeride,' 'perischide,' 'apperide,' and 'worschipide' of four syllables formerly, but now of two. The unaccented, weak vowels in 'ide' were freely dropped. Some early verbs have 'ede,' some 'ode,' some 'ede' and in some the vowel before 'de' is absent — 'lufade — ode — ude — ede (loved); 'lyfode—ede,' 'lifde' (lived); 'demede,' 'demde' (deemed); 'de' was the significant element of the suffix and the late at least effort led to the weakening and dropping of the unaccented vowel before it.

"It is of no use to try to characterize with fitting epithets and adequate terms of objurgation the monstrous spelling of the English language. The time lost by it is a large part of the whole school time of the mass of men. Count the hours that each man wastes in learning to read at school, the hours which he wastes thru life from the hindrance to easy reading; the hours wasted at school in learning to spel; the hours spent thru life in keeping up and perfecting this knowledge of spelling, in consulting dictionaries—a work that never ends; the hours that he spends in writing silent letters, and multiply this time by the number of persons who speak English, and we shall have a total of millions of years wasted by each generation. The cost of printing the silent letters of the English language is to be counted by millions of dollars for each generation, and yet literary amateurs fall in joy with these squintings and lispings. They try to defend them by pleading their advantages in the study of etymology, but a changeless orthography destroys the material for etymological study, and writin records ar valuabl to the filologist just in proportion as they ar accurat records of speech as spoken from year to year."

Here is a sample bill, which, in one form or another, the association is trying to get through congress:—

"Resolved, That the public printer be and is hereby directed in all works for congress and for the departments begun after the passage of this resolution to adopt the following rules for amended spellings, except in educational and other works where a different orthography may be required:—

"First—Drop 'ue' at the end of words like 'dialogue,' 'catalogue,' etc., where the preceding vowel is short. Thus, spell 'demagog,' 'epilog,' 'synagog,' etc. Where the preceding vowel is long, as in 'prorogue,' 'rogue,' 'disembogue,' etc., retain final letters as at present.

"Second — drop final 'e' in such words as 'definite,' 'infinite,' 'favorite,' etc., when the preceding vowel is short. Thus, spell 'opposit,' 'requisit,' 'hypocrit,' 'worthi,' etc. When the preceding vowel is long, as in 'polite,' 'finite,' 'unite,' etc., retain present forms unchanged.

"Third—Drop final 'te' in words like 'quartette,' 'coquette,' 'cigarette,' etc. Thus, spell 'cigaret,' 'roset,' 'epaulet,' 'vedet,' 'gazet,' etc.

"Fourth—Drop final 'me' in words like 'programme.' Thus, spell 'program,' 'oriflam,' 'gram,' etc.

"Fifth—Change 'ph' to 'f' in words like 'phantom,' 'telegraph,' 'phase,' etc. Thus, spell 'alfabet,' 'paragraf,' 'fisofy,' 'fone,' 'fotograf,' etc.

Sixth—Substitute 'e' for the [illegible] things 'ae' and 'oe' [illegible] the sound [illegible] 'eolian,' 'esophagus,' 'esthetic,' 'anemone,' etc.

"N. B.—[illegible]

The me[illegible] ological s[illegible] of their wo[illegible]

HEATABLE SHOE FOR WINTER.

Cold Feet a Thing of the Past and Grumblers Must Find Some Other Subject.

Cold feet are a distinction common to the human race. Many plans have been tried to attract a shy and retiring blood circulation to the extremities, but none has afforded any but the merest temporary relief. The cold-feet brigade may take heart, however, for a benefactor has arisen in the person of Paul Wonneberger, of Gruna, near Dresden, who has invented what he calls "Heatable shoes."

Wonneberger has devised a heatable shoe, which is now being worn by cold-footed Europeans, and may soon be looked for on this side of the water.

This novel remedy for cold feet consists of a tiny boiler and furnace in the heel and sole of the shoe, which causes a continuous circulation of warm water around the extremities. Within the heel of the heatable shoe, which is hollowed out for the purpose, the inventor has placed a glowing substance similar in its nature to that used in the familiar Japanese hand warmers. The soles of the shoe are hollowed out for the reception of a rubber bag covered with asbestos, and containing the water that keeps the feet warm.

This water communicates with the receptacle in the heel of the shoe, and derives its heat from the heated substance located there. When the owner of a pair of heatable shoes wishes to go out into the cold and sloppy streets he opens the receptacle in the heel of the shoe, lights the punk-like substance, closes the perforated band that holds it in place, and then sallies forth to bid defiance to his old enemy, the chills.

Nothing keeps the water circulating, and at every step the grateful warmth is felt, the upper, as well as the lower, surface of the feet feeling its effects. There is no danger of the feet being uncomfortably warmed, for the water cannot be heated by the tiny furnace in the heel to a heat more than 70 degrees Fahrenheit. The inventor has provided against the bursting of the little boiler by the insertion in the soles of a small safety valve.

The shoes are a trifle heavier than the ordinary ones. The sole is but very little thicker than that of the wet-weather shoe sold by New York dealers. The inventor is at work on a new shoe that will be no heavier than the ordinary one.—New York World.

BLIND, BUT DON'T MIND IT.

Miss Fannie Crosby Devotes Her Life to the Writing of Hymns.

Brooklyn has been the home of many men and women whose names are known throughout the length and breadth of the land. Among all these celebrities few are better known by their works or more beloved by the masses of the people than Miss Fannie Crosby, whose hymns are sung in the churches and homes of every State in the Union.

No one would think, to see the cheerful face of the woman, that she was totally blind, had, in fact, been sightless since early childhood. Miss Crosby has borne her affliction without complaining, and even looks upon it as being for the best, as it has enabled her to concentrate all her abilities upon the composing of hymns.

When delivering an address a few years ago she spoke of the joy that should be hers and all blind friend's then present, when they should be called home, and for the first time view a face, that of their Saviour and their God.

Miss Crosby has devoted her energies almost exclusively to hymn writing, over four thousand hymns and poems bearing her signature. She composes more readily at night, and most of her work is done at that time. In the morning she will go over it in her mind until all the lines are smooth and rhythmical, and then dictate to an amanuensis.

She writes on an average eight hymns a week and has written many Easter services, Christmas carols and cantatas. She is peculiarly fitted for her work, as she knows the Scriptures almost by heart, and passages suitable to every phrase of religious experience come readily to her mind.

"Safe in the Arms of Jesus" was composed for Dr. W. H. Doane, who, whistling a tune in her presence, requested words for it. "You will have to hurry, Fanny," he said, "for I have just forty minutes before my train goes," but in fifteen minutes she had finished and repeated to him the famous words which have been translated into eight languages.

An Enterprising Barrister.

Lord Chelmsford relates that a friend of his at the bar was once engaged in a nautical case, in which it appeared that a vessel had been exposed to a very severe gale of wind and had been thrown upon her beam ends. The barrister, ignorant of nautical matters, asked a seaman who was in the witness box how it was they did not lower the topmast, upon which the witness said with a sneer: "If you knew as much of the sea as I do you would know that that is not a very easy matter." This incident led the counsel to turn his attention to the subject, and he invented an apparatus for lowering topmasts, for which he obtained a patent and realized thereby upward of $100,000 by this invention.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

What They Were.

"Pillbody has a good many revolutionary ideas in his head."

"Those are not ideas revolving in Pillbody's head. They are wheels."—Indianapolis Journal.

He (indignantly)—I beg your pardon, miss, but I always keep my word.

She (complacently)—I can easily believe that, for no one would take it.—Washington Times.

SERVANT PROBLEM SOLVED!

It May Be If the "School of Housekeeping" Proves Successful.

The Hub speaks on the servant question: "For a reform in domestic service a moral revolution is every where needed, bringing with it to every person an appreciation of his responsibility to all connected with the employment, whether employer or employee. Reforms begin at the top, revolutions at the bottom. It rests with the men and women of the so called upper classes, whether raised to their position by birth, wealth, intellect, education or opportunity, to work out in the best way a satisfactory solution of the vexed question of domestic service."

These words convey the best explanation, perhaps, of an experiment which has been tried and found successful by our neighbors in Boston in their endeavors to solve the vexing problem of the servant question, and the metropolis may learn from the Hub.

The Women's Educational and Industrial Union, of Boston, conceived the idea last year of starting a School of Housekeeping by taking two connecting houses, using one as a boarding house for ladies visiting Boston alone, or living alone; the other to be occupied by a certain number of girls, who were to be given board, lodging and instruction in all kinds of housework free, in return for which they gave their services and received their finishing touches by doing the work of the boarding house adjoining.

The school teaches the need of a scientific treatment of the domestic problem, and that housekeeping is a science and housework a trade.

Ten employes are received for training. They carry on the work of the house under the direction of a skilled housekeeper and cooking teacher, who is a graduate of the Boston Cooking school. A diploma from the school insures to the graduate a position through the office of the Domestic Reform League.

In addition to a series of lectures for employes, given by well known experts, and the opportunity for laboratory work which the house affords, a special course of training has been arranged, and a limited number of employes may, during a six weeks' residence in the school, learn to "keep house" by practice and observation.

That the graduates of the School of Housekeeping will make good servants is attested by the following list of requirements, in which they must be perfect before receiving a diploma:—

Every graduate must understand the care of the range or stove, of sinks and drains, of kitchen, cellar and ice chest; must know how to make bread, biscuit, muffins and grid dle cakes, soup stock; be expert in roasting, boiling and broiling meats, dressing and cooking poultry, eggs, fish and oysters, cooking vegetables, fresh and canned, and making tea and coffee and chocolate.

She must also understand washing and ironing, general care of bed and table linen and clothes, care of bed, toilet and bath rooms and hardwood floors, also the care of dining room, silver, glass and china, care of parlor and halls, answering doorbell, and all such services.

The girls are not received under sixteen or over thirty years old, and are required to remain as students at the school during a full term of instruction of not less than four months, and their apprenticeship must be served during the hours of the connecting boarding house. They thus not only receive theoretical instruction, but, what is far more valuable, practical experience in all classes of housework.

Not the least interesting of this experiment is the boarding house where the girls receive their finishing touches. As they are trained to be domestics who will receive the highest wages paid for such trained service, the house they care for and the "family" they serve are perfect in all their appointments.

A New York woman who had occasion to visit Boston was recommended to the house. Acting upon the advice, she engaged rooms, and after a sojourn of several weeks, returned to New York a most enthusiastic admirer of and believer in the methods employed by the Boston women for solving the perplexing servant question.

If the average American girl could be made to realize that domestic service was no more menial than tending shop, hundreds who are to-day standing behind counters in the only too crowded cities would seize the opportunity to learn the trade of a trained domestic. And if, on the other hand, the employers would only meet the employes half way, and learn in their turn to be trained housekeepers, the question so agitating at present in the world would solve itself. This is the belief of the women who manage the School of Housekeeping.—New York Herald.

A Useful Novelty.

A pin box is a novelty that appeals to every woman. It is a common failing of the sex never to be able to keep a supply of ordinary pins, safety pins, or hairpins on hand, and the pin box is designed to obviate this difficulty. It is nearly a foot long and about five inches wide, and is made of white metal or solid silver. Inside it is lined with velvet and divided into compartments for shell hairpins, ordinary hairpins, safety pins and, in short, pins of all sorts. The box is a beautiful ornament for the handsomest of dressing tables, and is a great time as well as temper save-

FOR BOYS AND GIRLS.

THE TOWN OF "USED-TO-BE."

Grandma lives in a funny place,
The town of "Used-to-Be."
Where streets are "turnpikes" and ponds are "lakes."
And a nice hot supper a "tea."

Where is the town of "Used-to-B-e?"
In grandma's memory bricks,
The way?" Upstairs to grandma's room
(The cosy room on the right).

"When can you go there?" Twilight's best,
And the dream glows the fairer
Lights the way to the town of "Used-to-Be,"
And nobody need go wast.

And girls! the sermons, two hours' long,
And three of them Sabbath-day,
In a "meeting place" so cold a d dreary
Where the "tight-store" held its sway.

But if grandma shows you a summer scene,
In a farmhouse and orchard fair,
With rows of cheese on dairy shelves,
And bees in the clover-sweet air.

And then, beyond, in the kitchen wide,
Grandma herself at the wheel,
Spinning, singing, a fair young bride,
Her "best girl" far off at the mill.

"What a dear, dear town of "Used-to-Be"
But grandma's voice drops low,
And she says with a half-sad, half-sweet smile,
"'Twas all so long ago."

—Boston Transcript.

Snake Swallowed a Lion Cub.

McKinley, a cub lion, was doing beside the stove in the winter quarters of Lemon Bros.' circus in Argentine one morning not long ago, and not far from the little sleeping fellow stood several large boxes of snakes.

There was not a human being in the room, for all were at breakfast.

Suddenly the head of a large South American boa constrictor appeared above one of the boxes. It rose slowly up into the air until about two feet of its body was in sight. Then its head dropped to the side of the box and it began moving across the floor. The snake moved up to within a few feet of the lion cub, when it paused. The cub's tail was closest to the snake. It glided closer yet, and then drew the tail into its mouth. The tail disappeared a wide spreading of its jaws took in the entire hindquarters of the cub. McKinley awoke, and began to cry in a plaintive voice. Swiftly its body disappeared, and louder grew its cries. The mother of the only lion cub born in captivity in the United States heard the wails of her offspring, and, looking between the bars of her cage, comprehended the situation at a glance. She reached her paws and let out a roar that brought every animal in every cage to its feet, and pandemonium broke loose. The mother of McKinley roared incessantly, while the lions joined in the chorus, and every bird, parrot, eagle and soon the elephants began to trumpet. The turmoil of the animals reached the circus attaches in another building, and they ran quickly to the scene. One of them ran to the elephants, which were tugging at their chains and trumpeting, and with an iron prod quieted them. Others tried to extricate McKinley. One man caught McKinley by the paws, and the other men held the snake, and they all pulled together. McKinley stayed where he was. Matters were approaching a crisis. It was either the life of the snake or the cub. A quick consultation was held, and it was decided to sacrifice the South American reptile. The cords were procured, and the snake was cut in two. The snake was handicapped by its meal. It did not ake long to sever the body, though, and then they tried to pull the cub through, but it stuck, and when it was necessary to split the snake's jaws and pry them apart before the cub could be released. Then McKinley was taken out. He was nearer dead than alive.

His Opportunity.

A story which is not new is well told by George Cary Eggleston. A large company had been invited to a banquet at the mansion of Signor Fallero, in France, and just before the hour, the confectioner, who had been making a large ornament for the table, sent word that he had spoiled the piece.

"If you will let me try, I think I can make something that will do," said a boy, who had been employed as a scullion.

"You!" exclaimed the head servant in astonishment. "And who are you?"

"I am Antonio Canova, the grandson of Pisano, the sculptor," replied the pale-faced little fellow.

"And pray what can you do?" asked the major domo.

"I can make you something that will do for the middle of the table, if you'll let me try."

The servant was at his wits' end, so he told Antonio to go ahead and see what he could do. Calling for some butter, the scullion quickly moulded a large, crouching lion.

Dinner was announced, and many of the most wealthy merchants, princes and noblemen of Venice were ushered into the dining-room. Among them were skilled critics of art work. When their eyes fell upon the butter lion, they recognized it as a work of genius. They examined it long and carefully, and asked Signor Fallero what great sculptor had been persuaded to waste his skill upon a work in such temporary material.

When the distinguished guests learned that the lion had been made in a short time by a scullion, the dinner was turned into a feast in his honor. The rich host declared that he would pay the boy's expenses under the best masters, and he kept his word, but Antonio was not spoiled by his good fortune. He remained at heart the same simple, earnest, faithful boy who had tried so hard to become a good sculptor in the shop of Pisano.

Some may not have heard how the boy Antonio took advantage of this first great opportunity, but all know of Canova, one of the greatest sculptors of all time.

A Novel Panel.

The panel in this case is intended for a dining or bedroom and will screen the heater from sight. With a pretty design in the center it will be an ornament to the room. Then to add to its usefulness a stand is built one side of which moves with the end-piece of the screen. This is intended for hardy plants, books or ornaments.

A NOVEL PANEL EFFECT.

Through the Chilkoot Pass.

Some idea of the hardships attending a journey over the Chilkoot Pass on the way to the Klondike can be gained from this picture. A man with a team of horses has earned as much as $100 a day transporting the outfits of miners and an Indian who owned seven dogs made $75 a day. The dogs were not attached to a sled but portions of the outfit were strapped on their backs. A good strong dog carries ten pounds and as the rate is 20 cents a pound and often-times more it can readily be seen that the Alaska canine has good earning power.

CROSSING CHILKOOT'S SUMMIT.

Fastest Warship Afloat.

England claims to have the fastest warship afloat in the new torpedo boat destroyer Whiting. She made 32.8 knots on her trial run and the accompanying picture was made from a photograph taken during the wonderful trip.

The Whiting carries a crew of 68 men and cost $250,000 to build. Her sea power will shortly be tested as she is to be sent on a long voyage to the British naval station in the China seas. She is of 300 tons displacement; length 210 feet; beam 21 feet 7 inches, draught 6 feet 8 inches and indicated horse power 6,000. She carries a 12 pounder and 5 six pounders and is fitted with two torpedo tubes.

The Lightning Cook Stove.

A bright Berlin inventor has designed a new lamp chimney to which a little alcohol stove is adjustable. It is said to work perfectly, allowing enough air to escape at the side, to prevent smoking or the diffusion of alcohol or oil odor. It will heat a quart of water in less than three minutes.

A LIGHTNING COOK STOVE.

Servant—Please, ma'am, there's a man at the door with wooden legs.

Housewife—Why, Tilly, what can we do with wooden legs? Tell him we don't want any to-day.—New York World.

FRANK JAMES'S NEW JOB.

Will Guard Bullion Cars Against Western Train Robbers.

It would be odd if Frank James, Jesse's brother, were to die at the hand of train robbers who followed in his early footsteps! It may come to pass, too.

For now that oft quoted bit of advice, "Set a thief to catch a thief," has been heeded by the express companies who carry fortunes through the Southwestern States in their strong boxes, and who lose them sometimes at the hands of desperadoes.

Frank James, whose career of crime is, perhaps, second only to that of his notorious brother Jesse, is to accept a position as special express messenger, his duty being no other than that of meeting train robbers at their own game.

Frank James is no longer young, but he can shoot with both hands, and shoot straight. But it is not on that account alone that his services are in demand. The men who have made him an offer have decided that the reputation which the man won as a desperado, when the band which he and his brother led was the dread ed scourge of several states, will prove a better safeguard for their bullion than even his ready revolver.

Indeed, it has been said, and with some foundation, that if Jesse James had heeded his brother's warning, he would never have been shot down by Ford, whom he trusted so fully that he removed his pistol belt and turned his back to him, only to receive his death wound. Frank James has said:

"Trust no one when the price on your head is enough to make a man rich."

He is willing to become a watchdog and guard bullion for a living provided the men who hire him to employ him will agree to his terms.

"I'll take the job," he told them, "and any one who gets the money from any car I'm riding on will get it over my dead body. But I've been supporting my family and little mone, and if I go under I want to be sure that they'll be provided for.

"Now, I'll tell you what I'll do. You sign an agreement by which they are to get $20,000 in case I'm killed, and I'm your man. If I have enough money saved to be sure that they can still shoot a little, even if the business isn't what it used to be."

So the man whose name was once feared throughout several states is now waiting to see if the expressmen will pay for putting his skill to use which is his life. It will be strange, indeed, if the former desperado, the brains of the most bloodthirsty set of outlaws this country has known, stands on the side of the law against men who regard him and his brother as patterns to be followed.

Saw for the First Time.

Blind people's first experience of sight is described by a man in Pembroke, Ontario, who was born blind, received his sight by the removal of a cataract. When the bandage was first removed, the patient stared around and cried out as if with fear, and for a while was quite nervous from the effects of the shock. For the first time in his life he looked upon the earth. The first thing he noticed was a flock of wild sparrows in the adjacent meadow. So much that he thought they were teacups although a few moments afterwards he readily distinguished a watch which was shown to him. It is supposed that this recognition is owing to the fact that he heard it ticking. The blaze from a lamp excited the most lively surprise in his mind. He had no idea what it was, and when it was brought near to him he tried to pick it up. When the night approached upon the day, when he closed his eyes, he was in a fright, fearing that he was losing the sight which he had so wonderfully found after sixty years of darkness.

Spontaneous Combustion Insurance Houses.

The Iowa Dairy Mutual Fire Insurance company has issued a circular containing the following on spontaneous combustion:

"Sawdust in hayloft is self-ignitable, caused by spontaneous combustion in hot weather. In order to avoid a fire from above, cause the sawdust should not be allowed to pile up over four or five inches on top of the ice. The sawdus should be removed and kept out of the ice house. Where the sawdust is allowed to accumulate on top of your ice it will consume the ice."

The Good Man's Compliments.

One Sunday, as a certain Scottish minister was returning homeward, he was accosted by an old woman, who said:

"Oh, sir, well do I like the day when you preach."

The minister was aware that he was not very popular, and answered: "My good woman, I am glad to hear it. There are few like you. And why do you like it when I preach?"

"Oh, sir," she replied, "when you preach I always get a good seat."

Had Papa's Traits.

Papa—"Are you sure that you and mamma thought of me while you were away?"

Little Grace—"Yes; we heard a man just scolding awful about his breakfast and mamma said, 'That's just like papa.'"

Weakness of a Rector.

"Well, Ben, how do you like the new rector?"

"Well, mine 'e ain't bad; but I don't know, somehow 'e don't seem to bamboozle and confound the judgment same as t' old rector used to."

LIFE IN THE CONGO.

ALL THE NEGROES ARE LAZY BUT THE WIVES DO THE WORK.

Peculiar Customs of the Natives Who Have Marriageable Daughters—A Prospective Bridegroom Has to Pay for the Girl of His Choice a Good Price.

Mrs. Martha Nehme, a missionary to Africa, now sojourning in this country for her health, relates the strange story of the customs of the people among whom she labors:

"In the French Congo the advent of a girl baby is hailed with joy. Already the heads of the family consider the possible addition to their treasury when this baby arrives at a suitable age to be married. The care of the little girl falls to its mother and aunts, and the infant life is free from care until the little girl is seven or eight years of age. Then the girl life of toil begins. She is made a beast of burden, always carrying as heavy a load as possible, helping with planting and harvesting, and assisting with the cooking. Her clothing consists of a strip of cloth tied around the waist with a string. This strip increases in size as the girl grows older, but it is worn only down to the knees until she gets married. Sometimes the cloth is plain, but often is dyed. But oftener it is trimmed with home-made fringe and borders of different colors, red, yellow, green and blue being preferred.

"In some cases the relatives promise the girl in infancy to some old man who has a dozen wives already, but oftener the girl has her freedom until twelve or fourteen years old. At this time her people cast about the neighborhood to see what young men of the neighborhood, or old men either, they put the girl on exhibition. It is lots of fun for the girl, and the nicest time of her life.

"A platform is erected at one end of a new hut, and the girl reclines upon it. Four to eight other young girls are called to attend to her every wish and to invite the men of the neighboring towns. This is done by means of a piece of red chalk. The girls visit the towns, and if they see a suitable man they approach him and put a red mark upon him. This puts him under obligation to visit the young woman's bride in a evening. If this fails to appear, the girls who invited him visit him again, and he must give a small present for the bride. A hunter, a fisherman and a jackwash are at the disposal of the bride. After food in the hut is prepared for her. She is carried about by her friends, and is not allowed to touch her feet to the ground. She is dressed in all her finery, with rings on her arms up to her elbows and beads around her ankles. Her face is painted with red and white chalk, and her whole body shines like a mirror from the generous application of palm oil. She is then bored by a number of rings together, and the grating noise seems not to affect her nerves in the least. At night there are dances to draw a crowd. This exhibition may be kept up for a month or even longer according to the wealth of the family. At last a big dance is given, and the bride-elect with her bridesmaids goes the rounds of all her friends, dancing before them and receiving gifts.

"The marriage ceremonies is the price will be settled upon. Two hundred yards of calico, six gallons of rum, one gun and a few small articles, such as knives, mirrors, spoons, beads, forks, plates, etc., are sufficient to buy the nicest kind of a wife. The bridegroom pays the rum, forty yards of cloth and some of the smaller things, and then the girl can go with him to his home. She cares for her, and soon pays the balance, but if they cannot get along it ends in a divorce. The man sends his wife back, and her family return the purchase money.

Polly Rebukes the Parson.

An American gentleman had a parrot named Kate. She had a splendid time of it, for she was allowed to have a cage. She was so tame that there was never any fear of her coming back to her owners, and she flew about wherever she liked. She could talk very well, and sometimes her remarks were quite uncannily clever and very amusing. Here is one of the stories her owner told me about Kate:

Kate used to sit on the mantel while the father of the family said grace, and he always used the same form of thanks, the parrot got so that he knew it by heart. One day the minister took tea at the house, and, of course, the father asked him to say grace. Kate was on the mantel, as usual, and before the preacher had finished his last sentence, she shouted,

"That ain't right!"

The parson went on, but Kate kept shouting, "That ain't right!" at him until he looked, and saw Kate on her own father's shoulder and said coaxingly,

"Pa, you say it!"

The father asked the blessing to please the parrot, and when he got through, Kate perched herself on the preacher's chair and muttered:

"That's the way to say it."

The parson was a very serious man, but the parrot's caper amused him greatly.

An Ill Omen.

The Newport home at which occurred the Vanderbilt-Whitney nuptials is called "The Breakers." It seems rather unfair to handicap the newly wedded couple with such a suggestive forecast of their matrimonial experiences in the near future.

A Difference.

"Madge, you've been married unhappily once; do you risk it again?"

"Well, you see, this is another man."

The Constitutionalist.

A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.

PUBLISHED AT

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Terms—$2.00 per year.

A. L. Force, Editor and Proprietor

Ban on Sunday Funerals.

The ministers at New Brunswick have taken a somewhat novel stand in reference to a very important part of their professional services. It is a determination not to officiate at funerals Sundays. The matter has been under discussion by the parsons for some time, and yesterday it culminated in a public notice, signed by fifteen ministers, declaring their intention of discouraging the holding of Sunday funerals. They refer to the fact that though their duties of an ordinary religious character are particularly arduous Sunday, without the additional demand on their strength and time, it is really another view that prompts them to take the action.

It is compassion on the rest of humanity — undertakers, gravediggers, liverymen, florists and the like, who are important beneficiaries of theFobsequies in case of death. Sunday funerals compel them to labor on the Holy Day the same as they would on a secular date. Such a condition is a deplorable one in the minds of the clergymen, because it prevents the undertakers, gravediggers, etc, from participating in the sacred privileges of the day, as well as deprives them of the enjoyment of the Scriptural commandment of six days shall thou labor and do all thy work.

In resolution the ministers announce that they will notify their congregations of their newly assumed position with respect to Sunday funerals and withhold their countenance of such services. Just what effect the edict of the clergymen will have remains to be seen, but to say the least it will be an interesting observation. The practice of holding Sunday funerals extends beyond memory, and so far as we know New Brunswick is the first place wherein an attempt is to be made to make it obsolete by open opposition of the clergy.

Codding's Chances.

The Trenton True American holds a poor opinion of Hon. Charles Codding's chances for an appointment as a member of the State Board of Taxation. The True American declares the Westfield gentleman to be "a professional lobbyist, in which he is accredited with being a success." According to Trenton advices time hangs heavily on the hands of the members of the "Third House" when the Legislature is not in session, and a place on the State Board of Taxation, with a $3,500 salary attached to it, would be welcomed as a means of furnishing variety to Mr. Codding's life, if nothing else. The True American concludes that "It is rather doubtful, however, if Governor Voorhees can be induced to give the "Third House" this recognition. There are so many Republicans who are considered big men in the party seeking office that a $2,500 job is a little above what an ordinary lobbyist can hope for."

Not satisfied with the glory accruing to it as being the capital of New Jersey, the Common Council of Trenton has adopted resolutions calling on the Senators and Representatives from New Jersey to use their influence with the Navy Department to have one of the new cruisers authorized this year named Trenton. During the civil war and up to the famous hurricane at Apia, in 1888, Trenton had a namesake in the navy. The ship which bore the name distinguished herself during her career. She was wrecked in the hurricane, and the conduct of her sailors on that occasion elicited warm praise, not only in this country, but in European naval circles. Now Trenton thinks it is time the name was revived in the naval list. New Jersey already has two representatives in the navy, the Newark and the Princeton.

Assemblyman Cooper, of Somerset county, seems to have struck an interesting subject in his measure providing for a reduction of the legal rate of interest to five per cent. In discussing the bill the Paterson Call says:

It is said that a determined effort will be made before the adjournment of the Legislature to get through the five per cent. interest bill, but subject to his remarks on the subject makes it very doubtful of the measure passing. As remarked before, if the rate of interest in the State of New York were similarly decreased it would make comparatively little difference, but with 8 per cent. in one State and 6 per cent. in the other, and the two States so intimately connected in business as they are, it would result in no end of confusion and annoyance.

A bill is pending in the Legislature of Illinois providing an increase of salary for Chicago aldermen to $5,000. If this sort of thing goes too far Congress will have no attractions for the statesmen of the Windy City.

As the villian says, the plot thickens in borough politics.

The Spirit Complied With.

Even the worst enemies of the Plainfield Street Railway Company cannot but admit that that corporation met the exigencies occasioned by our now departed blizzard in a very creditable manner. Particularly was this noticeable in the rapid removal of the snow from West Front street after the storm was over. Now the warmest advocates of the recently passed trolley ordinance, who were instrumental in its passage, point out with praise that the cleaning up of the streets in the business section was due entirely to the excellence of the provisions of the ordinance.

All the company was compelled to do by the letter of the law was to remove and cart away the snow that fell on its tracks. It was permitted to first scrape the snow to one side of the road and then cart it away. The company was not, however, at all responsible, under the rulings of the ordinance, for the huge banks of snow on the north side of Front street. The drifts were almost entirely on the north side of the street, partially covering the sidewalks. Then the latter were cleared and the snow was heaped way up just beyond the gutters.

When a prominent citizen was arguing that the ordinance deserved all the credit, that phase of the situation was suggested. Referring to the snow on the sidewalks he indefinitely remarked that it "didn't cut any ice." Had he tried to make his way along the north side of West Front street the day of the blizzard, he might have had a different opinion regarding it.

The blizzard was an expensive thing for the street railway, costing that corporation over $1 200 in all. It is but fair, therefore, to give a corporation its due as it obeyed the spirit of the law rather than the letter and cleaned the street along the line of the trolley, whether the snow happened to be thrown there from the trolley tracks or the sidewalks.

The District Courts.

The bill designed to saddle the expense of conducting the district court in Elizabeth on to Union county, was killed in the Assembly yesterday. The measure, which was introduced by Assemblyman Squire, was discussed in The Daily Press sometime ago, and at that time we expressed the opinion that the proposed change was not in keeping with equitable government. It is gratifying to known that the bill was killed through the motion of Assemblyman Murray, who moved to strike out the enacting clause.

Another bill was introduced in the Senate yesterday by Senator Francis which permits the establishment of district courts in cities of less than 30 000 population. If this bill passes it will permit Plainfield to organize a district court.

Assemblyman Murray has delved into ornithological subjects as a matter of legislation. He has introduced a bill which authorizes Fish and Game Commissioners to issue certificates to ornithologists and scientists to allow them to collect birds and their nests for scientific purposes. The bill ought to be killed. There is too much of such business prosecuted under the bifalutin excuse of science.

Owing to his position President Reed's name does not appear in the State Senate proceedings as the introducer of bills, but Monday night Senator Pitney introduced a Somerset county measure for the "Tall Sycamore" Incorporates and fixes the boundaries of Bernardsville as a borough.

A bill was passed in the Assembly yesterday which protects the police of Elizabeth and Bahway from removal from office for political purposes. Thus it is that other Union county towns take their cue from Plainfield, where the local government has already enacted such a condition.

In school matters New Jersey ranks as follows: In population, 18; in number of private schools, 23; in number of high schools, 24; in teachers employed, 26; in total expenditures, 12.

There are more public holidays in Honolulu than any other city in the world. Honolulu would make a favorable home for the man who believes in getting double pay on a holiday.

Several New England States have laws on their statute books forbidding kissing in the streets. It is a contemporaneous fact, however, that the law is as obsolete as it is old Policemen in Turkey get 12 to 24 cents a day. Even with that salary a Tammany man could get along very nicely in New York.

The women should remember that a secret ceases to become one just as soon as she tells it to her most confidential friend.

W. Warren Rowley is a prospective candidate for the borough clerkship next year.

Byron says that hatred is the madness of heart. A pretty way of putting it.

February was a month of weather contradictions that is hard to equal.

Soldiers' Pay a Poser.

Though the Legislature has had a comparatively peaceable time of it thus far in their wild career of meeting a couple of times each of the eight weeks they have been in session and doing nothing, storms are brewing which may gather and cause them to do a lot of skurrying to get in out of the rain. And no matter under consideration will serve to bring about such a condition more so than the question of how much the New Jersey volunteer troops are to receive as a gift from the State for their patriotic conduct. In discussing this matter the Trenton correspondent of the Philadelphia Record makes the following interesting observations:

There is no mistaking the fact that the Legislature is in a dilemma over the question relating to extra pay for the volunteer soldiers of the late war. The volunteers insist upon the passage of Kinsley's bill which would take out of the State Treasury over $600,000, provided there is a sufficient balance from which that amount can be drawn. It is at test that there is no such balance on hand, and, consequently, if Kinsley bill became a law, a special state tax should be imposed to meet its requirements. It is true that at the beginning of the present fiscal year there was a balance of over one million dollars. Since then there have been necessary disbursements which have reduced that balance to less than $600,000. In view of that situation then, the Legislature is very reluctant to pass any bill which would drain the State Treasury of every dollar it possesses. Senator Braun's bill provides for a disbursement of a trifle half a million of dollars. That, too, is deemed impracticable.

The consensus of opinion among the Legislators here is that Senator Ketcham's bill is the one that should be passed. Less than $200,000 will be required to satisfy its provisions. There seems to be a disposition on the part of the Legislature to do everything that is practicable, holding in view the welfare of the State, to reward the gallant volunteers for the invaluable service they have rendered in the hour of need. The first the Ketcham bill was throwed upon by quite an element in the Legislature. A compensation of $6 per month for married and $4 for single men was deemed parsimonious, and it looks so. It seems that the bold soldier boys deserve more recognition. But than how can it be given? The State has not the money to spare, and the imposition of a State tax for the purpose would raise a storm of opposition. The volunteers have already denounced the Ketcham bill—they do not want it at all. And, then, they are right. The Legislature, however, will pass it or some similar measure, and then look out for squalls. It will receive unlimited and unstinted criticism, and the Legislature will have to bear the brunt. It is suggested that the least the lawmakers can do in this matter is to pass a law which will compensate the soldiers no more than has been done by the Legislatures of other States in similar cases. Then, perhaps, all would be well.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

A charming fraternal association in the United States Senate will be severed on March 4th. It is that between Senator James Smith, of New Jersey, and Senator Edward Murphy, of New York. They have snowy heads, ruddy complexions, and are of the same height and physique. They were sworn in together before Vice-President Morton six years ago, and they will leave the Senate arm in arm at the close of this Congress. They occupy adjoining seats in the Senate chamber and adjoining cottages at Eberon, N. J., in the summer season. Rarely do they disagree on votes on public questions. They work in the political traces like a span of blooded horses, and are universally popular among their associates. It is a cheering sight to see them at lunch in the Senate restaurant. The fare is simple, but good humor and hearty conversation give zest to the appetite. They glide along the cool, sequested vale of Senatorial life in the enjoyment of each other's society, regardless of the chill blast of politics.

How's This?

We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.

F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O.

We, the undersigned, have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years, and believe him pefectly honorable in all business transactions, and financially able to carry out any obligation made by their firm.

WEST & TRUAX, Wholesale Druggist, Toledo, O.

WALDING, KINNAN & MARVIN, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, O.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Price 75c. per bottle. Sold by all Druggists. Testimonials free.

Hall's family Pills are the best.

Lewis O. Putnam, of East Second street, who is at the hospital under treatment for a fractured ankle, is greatly improving and hopes to go home at an early date.

Wm. A. Spencer, of the law offices of Reed & Coddington, successfuly passed his examination for entrance to the New Jersey Bar Monday, and is now an attorney-at-law. Mr. Spencer will remain with his preceptors for some time yet, but later will open an office of his own.

GRAIN-O BRINGS RELIEF

to the coffee drinker. Coffee drinking is a habit that is universally injurious to health and many really injurious, have you tried Grain-O? It is delicious like coffee but the effects are just the opposite. Coffee upsets the nerves, while Grain-O gives nerve strength to those who use it. Grain-O is not a medicine but the whole family may drink it with great benefit. Grain-O has that rich seal brown of Mocha or Java, and the most delicate stomach receives it without distress. It nourishes and strengthens the nerves. It is sold by grocers everywhere at 15 cents per package. Try it to-day. It will be 25 cents per package. Try it to-day. It will be the best cup you ever had. Sold by all grocers. 15 cts. and 25 cts. per package.

AMERICAN TITLES.

A NONSENSICAL HABIT THAT PROMISES TO CONTINUE FOREVER.

The Follies and Frailties of Our Names May Properly be Designated as "Flummery," and Give an Excellent Opportunity for National Reform.

Why do we write, "Esq." after a man's name or "Mr." before it in addressing a letter? Why do we write "Dear Sir" even in addressing the veriest stranger? Why do we subscribe ourselves to all correspondents as "Yours truly," or other words to that meaningless effect?

We do none of these things in telegrams, yet we do not feel that we are discourteous to John Jones when we address him by telegraph only as John Jones and sign our names at the end of the despatch without any flourish of words. Why should we not be as direct, simple and truthful in our letters as in our telegrams?

All these practices are survivals from an age of leisure, extravagance and servility of mind. They are now an absurdity and a costly one. More than three billion letters are written every year in the United States. Allowing half a minute as the time consumed in writing "Dear Sir" and "Yours truly" inside and "Mr." or "Esq." outside of each of these letters, and allowing 300 working days of ten hours each to the year, the people of the United States waste in this way 8,333 years of time every year. In other words we actually require the time in writing "Dear Sir," "Yours truly," "Mr." and "Esq." At the lowest calculation the time thus wasted each year is worth ten millions of dollars, or half a river and a harbor bill.

The sole purpose of these superscription or form of letter is to tell the postoffice people to whom and where to deliver it. All that is necessary for that purpose is to write the name and address. "J. Wintersmith, 34 John street, New York City," completely fills the requirements, and no time is wasted. There is no occasion to tell the postman that J. Wintersmith is a clergyman by writing "Rev." before his name, or that he is a woman and unmarried by writing "Miss" before it, or is married or has been, by writing "Mrs."

But we have worse habits than these. In addition to the meaningless "Mr." and the absurd "Esq." we are constantly addressing men as "Hon." of "Col." or "Rev." Why do we do it? An every little politician who gets himself elected an Alderman or a member of the Legislature is henceforth called "Hon," why should anybody think it a requirement of courtesy to address so justly distinguished ample, as "Hon. W. L. Wilson, for example, as "Hon. Joe. Wilson?" We do not speak of Hon. Thomas Jefferson of Hon. Daniel Webster.

Military titles are necessary in military life. In addressing a General or a Colonel in the field an indication of rank helps to add him, and perhaps it helps discipline too. But why should we go on calling men Colonel, General, Major and the like long after they have retired to civil life, merely because they held such rank in the volunteer forces of thirty odd years ago or because some Governor has appointed them to his staff? We do not speak or think of General George Washington or General Hannibal or General Julius Cæsar.

Still worse is the title gratuitously conferred, the "honorary" title of Colonel and the like. There are tens of thousands of "Colonels" in this country who never commanded a regiment, perhaps only easily be exchanged to suit the wish. Expert picture dealers can take a photograph and by various processes secure a composite containing several features desired that did not exist in the original. A photographer of note says that it is an easy matter to change photographs. Pictures can be made to show the body of one person with the head of another; or, it is possible to insert certain features desired in a photograph. The producers of art photographs often use the form of one subject and the head of another, in order to obtain the most symmetrical results, and thus form a sort of composite picture. The use of artic aid," he says, "any part of the silver print photograph, the one commonly used, can be erased. If the picture were a platinum print, which is unlikely, the same effect could be secured by the use of aquaregia, or a liquid composed of a mixture of nitric and muriatic acids, which acts as a solvent for gold or platinum prints." It was shown that original signatures could be erased and others pasted or copied therefrom, and then a photograph taken from which it would seem that the result was a perfect photograph of an original paper.

Dependent Upon Circumstances.

"Before I give my consent to my daughter's marriage to you, young man, I want to know what your prospects for the future are."

"I am trying to settle that question now, sir."—Philadelphia North American

ON BOARD OF A SHIP

A SACRIFICE MADE ON A BRITISH STEAMER.

The Very Extraordinary Rites of Malay ballore—A Heathen Diety is Worshiped Under the British Flag—The Decks Blood-Sprinkled.

On the deck of a British steamer—the City of Dublin—and beneath the shadow of the Union Jack which waved in the breeze from her mizzenmast there were enacted recently scenes of the most strange and weird ever witnessed in this port.

Had the crew been Americans, Englishmen or of any other civilized nationality the strange proceedings would have rendered the participants fit candidates for a lunatic asylum, but as the entire company, with the exception of four men, are full fledged Malays and Lascars from the Malayan archipelago, the performance excited only the most unbounded astonishment. not unmixed with fear on the part of those who witnessed it.

It is rather singular that there should be so many of that fierce oriental race represented on the City of Dublin. Vessels have reached this port before carrying six or sometimes a dozen who had been shipped in far off ports to fill up the ranks of the former crew depleted by sickness or death, but probably never before has a captain visited this port before the arrival of the vessel on the City of Dublin, who evidently preferred these yellow skinned individuals to his own countrymen.

He shipped the odd assortment on the voyage out from London to Pekalongean, of which the present voyage is the conclusion, at Port Said and Aden, Arabia. He intended getting rid of them at Colombo, Ceylon, but they proved themselves such good men that he engaged more until nearly all the original members of the crew were discharged.

The City of Dublin came up the river and dropped anchor in the stream off Spreckels' refinery. She was boarded by the inspector. Everything was all right about the manifests, and Captain Rae was told that he could tie up to pier 61, when he was ready.

"I won't be able to go into berth to-night," he replied. "There will be a high old time on board the vessel before she reaches the pier unless I am greatly mistaken."

The next morning there was quite a respectable crowd gathered on the quarterdeck of the City of Dublin.

"According to the dictates of their religion," said Captain Rae to a Times reporter, "they are about to celebrate their arrival in port by a ceremony which is probably the most remarkable you have ever heard of."

The crew assembled forward. A circle was formed, in the centre of which appeared a weird figure. It was the priest, a character whose absence has never yet been noticed from a gathering of these singular people.

"They brought him all the way over at their own expense," said Captain Rae, "and he has had an easy berth. Unless I am in error he will now play the part of a butcher."

A dramatic scene was then enacted. The bleating of a sheep was heard, and the worthy Malay came leaping into the circle, where stood the priest, dragging after them the terrified animal. At the same moment the crew *broke into a curious chant or recita*tive, while the priest threw the struggling animal to the deck, placing his foot firmly upon his head. The next instant he had buried the knife into the heart of the unfortunate beast, and with incredible swiftness tore the organ from the body.

The crew of devotees then prostrated themselves on the deck and were sprinkled with blood from the dripping morsels which were cut off by the priest. In conclusion he raised the heart three times above his head and hurled it into the water. The body of the sheep then followed suit.

About half an hour afterward, when the decks of the City of Dublin were cleared from all evidences of the sacrifice, the participants sat down to the first meal they had eaten since entering the capes forty-eight hours before.

The evening sunlight was streaming through a porthole when Captain Rae and a reporter entered the forecastle to observe the men at their meal. The shadow of the captain at that moment fell across the table. With a volley of Singalese oaths all that portion of food which had been touched by the shadow was flung into the sea, buried by the indignant hands of the Malays, who saw contamination even in that contact with a Christian.

Captain Rae has no fear of his strange crew, although he is almost alone on the vessel. "I have never had any trouble with them," he said, "and regard them as good, tractable sailors. I never interfere with their religion, and they apparently respect me for it."—Philadelphia Times.

Don't Put on Airs.

Another language saver has launched his boat. "Is 'has got' good English?" he writes: "should not 'got' be omitted?" For the 32d and last time we say that "has got" is sound, correct English, good historically, good in modern use, a perfectly healthy idiom. Anybody who has scruples about the "got" can cut it out. Anybody who has a taste for prunes, potatoes, quinces can learn to break himself of the habit of saying "has got" if he perseveres. We seek to put no constraint upon tender consciences. But abstainers from "has got" should be warned against being puffed up. Fresh English is always good, but persons who like it canned are welcome to take it that way. They mustn't put on airs, though.—New York Sun.

CLEARING SALE OF PIANOS

We are Closing

out a number of good second hand pianos at extremely low prices, and on easy terms of payment. Now is the time to get a bargain.

7	Octave Square	$ 40
7¼	"	70
7¼	" Upright	180
7¼	"	165
7¼	" Hallet & Davis	190
7¼	"	210

ON PAYMENTS $3 to $8 MONTHLY.

Lot of good second-hand Organs at $20 $25 and upward, $4 per month.

A large assortment of elegant new

Hallet & Davis

UPRIGHT PIANOS.

$200 and up, and 5 years' time if you want it Other makes—Cabinet Grands, all Improvements, $225—$7 per month.

Free music and Catalogue for the asking.

THE W. P. TWAY PIANO CO.,

94 Fifth Avenue, New York.

JAS. M. DUNN,

Dealer in

GROCERIES, PROVISIONS, VEGETABLES, FRUITS &c

GARDEN SEEDS

fresh and carefully selected.

224 PARK AVENUE,

OPPOSITE NORTH AVENUE.

Everything usually found in a first-class grocery.

Goods delivered free of charge.

Woolston & Buckle,

PAINTERS.

Wall Papers, Painters' Supplies

141-145 North avenue.

GEORGE W. DAY,

General Auctioneer.

Sales of Personal Property solicited P. O. Box 122, Dunellen, N. J., or address in care of Constitutionalist. Terms reasonable.

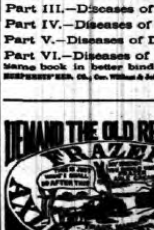
HUMPHREYS' VETERINARY SPECIFICS

800 PAGE BOOK MAILED FREE.

CONTENTS:

Part I.—Diseases of Horses.
Part II.—Diseases of Cattle.
Part III.—Diseases of Sheep.
Part IV.—Diseases of Hogs.
Part V.—Diseases of Dogs.
Part VI.—Diseases of Poultry.

Sleeve book in leather binding 50 cts. HUMPHREYS' MED. CO., Cor. William & John Sts., New York



Arrival and Departure of Mails

NEW YORK MAILS.

Arrive—7:30, 9:00, 11:00 a. m. 12:30, 2:00, 5:00, 8:00, 9:30 p. m.
Close—7:00, 9:15 a. m., 12:30, 2:00, 5:30, 7:30 p.m.

SOMERVILLE and EASTON.

Arrive—8:30 a. m., 3:00 and 6:15 p. m.
Close—7:30 a. m., 12:30 and 5:30 p. m.

PHILADELPHIA—Direct.

Arrive—8:30 and 11:30 a. m., 1:00 and 3:00 p. m.
Close—7:30, 9:15 a. m., 12:30 p. m.

Through fast mail for West and South, close 8:30 and 7:30 p. m.

WARRENVILLE.

Arrive—12:30 p. m. Close—9:15 a. m.

SUNDAY MAILS.

Office open from 8:30 to 10:30 a. m.
Mail closes at 9:15 p. m.

E. H. BIRD, P. M

Central R. R. of New Jersey

Anthracite Coal Used Exclusively. Insuring Cleanliness and Comfort.

Stations in New York, Foot of Liberty, and South Ferry Whitehall Stations.

TIME TABLE IN EFFECT NOV. 30th, 1890.

PLAINFIELD AND NEWARK.

Leave Plainfield at 5:47, 6:30, 7:00, 7:37, 7:55, 8:15, 8:40, 9:00, 9:30, 10:00, 10:30, 11:00, 11:30 a. m., 12:00, 12:30, 1:00, 1:30, 2:00, 2:30, 3:00, 3:30, 4:00, 4:30, 5:00, 5:30, 6:00, 6:30, 7:00, 7:30, 8:00, 8:30, 9:00, 9:30, 10:00, 11:00 p. m., 12:00 night. Sunday at 8:00, 8:30, 9:00, 9:30, 10:00, 10:30, 11:00, 11:30 a. m., 12:00, 12:30, 1:00, 1:30, 2:00, 2:30, 3:00, 3:30, 4:00, 4:30, 5:00, 5:30, 6:00, 6:30, 7:00, 7:30, 8:00, 9:00, 10:00 p. m.

Leave Newark at 6:15, 7:00, 7:30, 8:00, 8:30, 9:00, 9:30, 10:00, 10:30, 11:00, 11:30 a. m., 12:00, 12:30, 1:00, 1:30, 2:00, 2:30, 3:00, 3:30, 4:00, 4:30, 5:00, 5:30, 6:00, 6:30, 7:00, 7:30, 8:00, 8:30, 9:00, 9:30, 10:00, 10:30, 11:00, 11:30 p. m., 12:00 night. Sunday at 8:00, 8:30, 9:00, 9:30, 10:00, 10:30, 11:00, 11:30 a. m., 12:00, 12:30, 1:00, 1:30, 2:00, 2:30, 3:00, 3:30, 4:00, 4:30, 5:00, 5:30, 6:00, 6:30, 7:00, 7:30, 8:00, 9:00, 10:00 p. m.

Passengers for Newark please change cars at Dunellen.

PLAINFIELD AND SOMERVILLE.

Leave Plainfield at 6:45, 9:45 a. m., 2:45, 5:45 p. m. Sunday at 9:45 a. m., 5:45 p. m.

Leave Somerville at 6:00, 7:05, 9:15 a. m., 2:15, 5:15 p. m. Sunday at 7:15, 9:15 p. m.

PLAINFIELD AND BAY HEAD JUNCTION.

Leave Plainfield 7:23 a. m., 4:56 p. m.

WESTWARD CONNECTIONS.

6:28 a. m., Express for Pittsburg, Chicago, Cincinnati, Louisville, Indianapolis, Columbus, Toledo, Cleveland, Bradford, Kane, Buffalo, Jamestown, Meadville, Oil City, Corry, Dunkirk, Salamanca, Niagara Falls, Rochester, Canandaigua, Geneva, Penn Yan, Watkins, Elmira, Waverly, Binghamton, Scranton, Wilkesbarre, Hazleton, Pottsville, Harrisburg, Williamsport, Lock Haven, Renovo, Tyrone, Altoona, Pittsburg, Canton, Akron, Cleveland, Sandusky, Toledo, Fostoria, Findlay, Lima, Delphos, Van Wert, Fort Wayne, Chicago, Valparaiso, Michigan City, Hammond, Whiting, Indianapolis, Columbus, Springfield, Dayton, Richmond, Cincinnati, Louisville

ROYAL BAKING POWDER
ABSOLUTELY PURE
Makes the food more delicious and wholesome
ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

DEFENDED HERSELF WITH PAIL OF BEER

But Other Things She Did Made Trouble.

TALKED TOO MUCH IN COURT.

MRS. HOWARD CAME AS COMPLAINANT, BUT LEFT AS PRISONER.

Accused Eva Lee With Assaulting Her —Eva's Story Laid the Blame Elsewhere—Eva Also Told of Drunken Carousals in Which White and Colored Men Participated—Callers' Names.

There's been too much "fussing" up at "Pop" Freeman's on East Fourth street lately. Those are the sentiments of "Pop" himself. The last "fussing" was incidental to the celebration of the birthday of the "Father of Our Country." "Pop's" daughter, Mrs. Arabella Howard, brought the matter into the court Monday morning. She accused Miss Eva Lee with assault, whereat Eva turned state evidence and told things about Mrs. Howard that made a sensation in court and gave the latter a term in the county jail.

"Pop" Freeman, more properly called Jarvis Freeman, is an aged colored man living on East Fourth street near Church street. His daughter says that she has been home very little, but the police claim otherwise

Last Wednesday there were a number of visitors at Freeman's. Eva says that there were two white men among the number. Beer flowed freely and the "growler" made many trips. At last Mrs. Howard made some unkindly remarks about Eva, who is a boarder at the house. Eva pushed her into a corner, and Mrs. Howard says it was by a blow with the fist. Then Mrs. Howard threw the contents of the "growler" on the boarder and followed the beer up with the pail itself. The guests interfered and the combatants were compelled to content themselves with words.

Saturday afternoon Mrs. Howard swore out a warrant against Eva, who was arrested by Roundsman Frederickson. Monday as to the case came up before City Judge Runyon. It was painfully evident at the very start that the complainant had not a proper respect for the honor and dignity of the court.

She talked without cessation. The Judge suggested quiet. Still she talked uninterruptedly. The Judge demanded quiet. Mrs. Howard kept up the hub-bub until the Judge ordered one of the officers to lock her up. In a cell she subsided.

Then Eva Lee turned State evidence and told how the house was the scene of frequent carousals. Mrs. Howard, she said, entertained both white and black and all got drunk together. Then she told the names of the callers, which were carefully noted by the Judge.

Other witnesses, including Mail Messenger Frisbie, were sworn and told of these "black and white teas" that Mrs. Howard and her friends conducted. The Judge suspended sentence on Eva Lee and sent Mrs Howard to jail for forty days in default of $10 fine.

AMID SPRING FLOWERS.

A Charming Sociable Held at All Souls Church Friday Night.

In the Sunday-school room of All Souls church the ladies of the society held their February sociable Friday evening last. The room was beautifully decorated with daffodils, yellow tulips and roses and the entire arrangements for the evening were under the direction of Mrs. W. L. Brown, of Belvidere avenue.

Seven proverbs were acted and guessed by the lookers on. Songs were sung by Mrs. Brown and Louis Stackweather, and Stephen Hiff, the organist of the church, favored the company with two very beautiful piano solos. Two tables furnished entertainment, one holding objects representing thirty-nine flowers to be guessed, the other fifty very artistic mounted pictures, representing the titles of well-known books, also to be deciphered. After a most satisfactory evening of lively curiosity and friendly rivalry in mutual conjecture refreshments were served and the February sociable was pronounced a success.

GIVE THE CHILDREN A DRINK
called Grain-O. It is a delicious, appetizing, nourishing food drink to take the place of coffee. Sold by all grocers and liked by all who have used it because when properly prepared it tastes like the finest coffee but is free from all its injurious properties. Grain-O aids digestion and strengthens the nerves. It is not a stimulant but a health builder, and children, as well as adults, can drink it with great benefit. Costs about 1 as much as coffee 15 and 25c.

HIS AGE WAS A RIPE ONE

DENNIS MOFFETT THREE YEARS PAST FOUR SCORE POINT.

Died Sunday After an Illness of Three Weeks—Born at Mount Horeb and Always Engaged in Agricultural Pursuits.

The death of Dennis T. Moffett, aged 83 years, occurred yesterday morning after an illness lasting about three weeks. Death was due to general debility, and was not wholly unexpected by the immediate family.

Mr. Moffett was born August 8th, 1816, at Mt. Horeb, where he spent his boyhood. Later he engaged in the farming and stock raising business in Union and Middlesex counties, which he continued up to four years ago when he gave up business and took up his residence with his son at 1328 Watchung avenue. In early life he was engaged in politics to some extent and held several minor offices He was a staunch Democrat. He was a member of the Westfield M. E church, where he attended when able. In 1839 he was married to Charlotte Wilcox, of VanFeltville, and she died in 1890 There were ten children, seven of whom are now living. They are Mrs. Samuel P. Randolph, Harvey Moffett, Wilbur Moffett, Miss Carrie Moffett and Charles O. Moffett, of this city, and Rev. Edwin O. Moffett, of Pine Bush, N. Y.

The funeral services were held from the late home Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

DR. CUYLER PREACHED.

Occupied Pulpit in Crescent Avenue Church in Place of Dr. Richards.

Rev., Theodore L. Cuyler, former pastor of the Lafayette Avenue Presbyterian church, Brooklyn, occupied the pulpit of the Crescent Avenue church Sunday, both morning and evening. He had large congregations at both services, and preached two powerful sermons.

In the morning the preacher's theme was "Heaven," and he took for his text the first verse of the fifth chapter of Second Corinthians, where the Apostle speaks of the "House not built by hands, eternal in the Heavens." Rev. Mr. Cuyler is an elderly man with silvery-grey hair, but is still a powerful preacher.

A BOOM FOR WASHINGTONVILLE.

Spencer Farm to Be Developed Into Residential District.

P. Roebricht, a prominent New York real estate dealer, who has had large experience in the development of suburban property in the vicinity of New York, has recently purchased the Spencer farm at Washingtonville, with the view of subdividing this tract into building lots.

Civil Engineer F. A. Dunham, of this city, has charge of making the improvements, which will be pushed forward with all possible speed, so that the property can be placed on the market at an early date.

A word to the wise is sufficient.
Ely's Cream Balm has completely cured me of catarrh when everything else failed.—Alfred W. Stevens, Cald well, Ohio.
Ely's Cream Balm works like a charm; it has cured me of the most obstinate case of cold in the head; I would not be without it.—Fred'k Fries, 283 Hart St., Brooklyn, N. Y.
A 10c. trial size or the 50c. size of Ely's Cream Balm will be mailed Kept by druggists. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren St., N. Y.

Real Fox Hunt.
A real fox hunt will be held Saturday afternoon starting from Campbell's Clubhouse at Avon Park. Edward Campbell has received two red foxes from Ringoes which will be turned loose on that occasion. All the fox hounds in this neighborhood are to be gathered for the hunt and a number of the local sportsmen will follow them on horseback.

See a woman in another column picking grapes for Speer's wines. Read all about it. Excellent for weakly persons and the aged particularly for females.

N. Y. Board of Health on Wine.
Dr. Janes of the New York Board of Health says:
"I take pleasure in testifying to the superior qualities of the wine produced by Alfred Speer. I recommend it as a superior wine for the sick and debilitated." The Port and Burgundy have no equal.

A New Drug Clerk.
John Back, of Glasgow, Scotland, a graduate of the Edinburgh College of Pharmacy, has accepted a position as clerk in Armstrong's pharmacy, corner of Park and North avenues. He will begin his duties tomorrow morning. He is a bright young man of unusual abilities and comes here very highly recommended.

COLONEL HINE TELLS OF TROLLEY PLANS

New Lines to Gridiron Essex and Union Counties.

FRANCHISE IN WESTFIELD.

SCHEME HAD BEEN PENDING FOR NEARLY TWO YEARS.

Cross-country Line of the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company to Reach New Territory—Will Connect Borough of Mountainside and Clark Township—Westfield the Centre

Westfield, Feb. 28—At the meeting of the Township Committee, held Saturday night, after a conference with Col. E. W. Hine and A. A. Gaddis, of the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company, the franchise to operate a street railway from the Clark township line to Mountainside was passed upon its final reading. This finally disposes of street railway matters that have been before the Committee in some shape or other continuously for nearly two years. If the trolley schemes are carried out as they are now proposed Westfield will practically be the centre of the system in Union county.

It was after this address that the franchise was granted for the line it is proposed to run from Westfield to Springfield and Millburn and connect with the South Orange system, bringing into direct communication towns that have been practically isolated from each other, and between which there has practically been no business communication. The plan is to extend the line on to Rahway, where connection will be established with the line now in operation, affording communication with Woodbridge and the pleasure resorts on Staten Island Sound.

In his remarks before the committee Col. Hine stated that the next two years would see established in Essex and Union counties, and reaching out into the State, a system of street railways that would rival the systems around Boston. The line paralleling the Central Railroad would connect at Elizabeth with the Newark lines and with the Elizabeth lines, and at Netherwood connecting with the Plainfield system, would form a cheap and easy mode of access to New Brunswick and the central part of the State.

The rate of fare, as it has been fixed by the various ordinances, will make the rate from Westfield to Elizabeth seven cents; to Plainfield, seven cents; to Rahway, five cents, and to Springfield, five cents. Tickets for children going to or from school are to be sold at the rate of thirty-three for one dollar.

On the line along the Central Railroad only one franchise remains to be granted, that through the borough of Roselle, which will probably be agreed upon this week The franchise through Clark township to Rahway was granted last week, and it is only necessary to secure the franchise in the borough of Mountainside, Springfield and Millburn, to complete the rights of way.

SAID TO HAVE STOLE $100

PATRICK GUINEE, THE NIGHT TIME KEEPER AT POND'S, A RESTED.

John Trainor, Night Watchman, Caught Him in the Act of Filching a Safe Drawer—He Was Sent to the County Jail.

Charged with stealing about $100 at various times from The Pond Machine Tool Company, Patrick Guinee, night timekeeper in the factory, was sent to Elizabeth Tuesday morning by Justice Nash until he can procure bail for his release. Guinee is a young man, single, and has not been in the employ of the company long. The evidence, it is said, was procured by John Trainor, night watchman.

The money alleged to have been taken was placed in a compartment inside the large safe. At intervals recently the company claim that sums varying in size have been missed. Monday the night watchman claims to have seen Guinee go to the safe and help himself. He immediately notified his employers, who had Justice Nash issue a warrant for Guinee's arrest.

Roundsman Frederickson was given the warrant to serve as soon as he came on duty last Tuesday. Guinee was arrested and taken up to Chief Grant's office. Justice Nash gave him a hearing there. Guinee waived examination and was held without bail for the action of the Grand Jury.

Ice Houses at Work.

One of the houses used by the Plainfield Ice & Cold Storage Company in cutting ice on Crystal lake, near Washingtonville, Saturday afternoon, fell into the water and was only extricated after an hour's hard work. The ice was soft so that it would not bear the weight of the horse. It was necessary to keep the horse's head above water and saw a path through the ice to the bank where the horse was led ashore.

THE DEATH WATCH SET OVER ROESEL.

Slayer of Pitts is Under Shadow of the Gallows.

HE HOPES FOR CLEMENCY.

SHERIFF KIRK HAS ALL THINGS IN READINESS FOR EXECUTION.

Roesel Has Written to the Court of Pardons in His Own Behalf—He is in a Separate Cell and Three Keepers are Constantly Watching Him to See That He Does Not Try to End His Own Life.

Elizabeth, Feb. 28.—There is a possibility that Louis Roesel, who was sentenced Saturday to be hanged March 10th for the murder of James C. Pitts, of Summit, may escape death by hanging. His sentence may be commuted to imprisonment for life. This will depend entirely upon the court of pardons, to which court an appeal may be made by the prisoner's lawyers.

It was said this morning that Roesel had written to the court in his own behalf, petitioning for clemency. It was also said that in case the court should not convene before March 10th an appeal might be made to the governor, asking him to grant an extension of 90 days, during which time the court could be petitioned.

Sheriff Kirk, however, is not taking any chances of Roesel escaping death. Saturday, as soon as sentence of death was pronounced, he caused the death watch to be set. Roesel was moved from the cell he had been occupying to a larger and more roomy one at the end of the corridor. One of the watchers is with him in the cell by day and two at night. His every move is most closely watched, and every precaution is being taken against his making away with himself, should he be so disposed.

Now that sentence of death has been pronounced upon him, he is given the best in the land to eat. Anything that he may call for is provided for him, and already he is beginning to show the effect of the good food he is receiving. He is supplied with good smoking material, and his last days upon earth, should it finally be determined that he must hang, are being made as pleasant as possible for him.

Miss Giddis, of Mt. Horeb, who has been visiting in the borough, has returned home.

Dr. Humphreys'
Specifics act directly upon the disease, without exciting disorder in other parts of the system. They Cure the Sick.
No. Cures. Price.
1—Fevers, Congestion, Inflammations .25
2—Worms, Worm Fever, Worm Colic .25
3—Teething, Colic, Crying, Wakefulness .25
4—Diarrhea, of Children or Adults .25
5—Dysentery, Griping, Bilious Colic .25
6—Cholera, Cholera Morbus, Vomiting .25
7—Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis .25
8—Neuralgia, Toothache, Faceache .25
9—Headache, Sick Headache, Vertigo .25
10—Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Weak Stomach .25
11—Suppressed or Painful Periods .25
12—Whites, Too Profuse Periods .25
13—Croup, Laryngitis, Hoarseness .25
14—Salt Rheum, Eruptions, Erysipelas .25
15—Rheumatism, Rheumatic Pains .25
16—Malaria, Chills, Fever and Ague .50
17—Piles, External or Internal .50
18—Ophthalmia, Weak or Inflamed Eyes .50
19—Catarrh, Influenza, Cold in the Head .50
20—Whooping-Cough .25
21—Asthma, Difficult Breathing .25
22—Ear Discharges, Impaired Hearing .50
23—Scrofula, Swellings and Ulcers .50
24—General Debility, Weakness .50
25—Dropsy, Scanty Secretions .50
26—Sea-Sickness, Nausea, Vomiting .25
27—Kidney Diseases .50
28—Nervous Debility .1.00
29—Sore Mouth, or Canker .25
30—Urinary Weakness, Wetting Bed .25
31—Painful Menses, Frettful .25
32—Diseases of the Heart, Palpitation .1.00
33—Sufferers, St. Vitus' Dance .1.00
34—Sore Throat, Quinsy, Diphtheria .25
35—Chronic Congestions, Headaches .25
77—Grip, Hay Fever .25
Dr. Humphreys' Manual of all Diseases at your Druggists, or sent free.
Sold by druggists, or sent on receipt of price.
Humphreys' Med. Co., 111 & 113 William St., New York.

HUMPHREYS'
WITCH HAZEL OIL
"THE PILE OINTMENT."
For Piles—Internal or External, Blind or Bleeding; Fissure in Anus; Itching or Bleeding of the Rectum; Moisture; Chafing; Stricture; Ulceration; Fistula; Worms at Seat of Life; Pruritus or Itching of Private Parts, Whether Existing from Any Cause Whatever.
PRICE, 50 CTS. TRIAL SIZE, 25 CTS.
Sold by Druggists, or sent free upon receipt of price.
Humphreys' Med. Co., 111 & 113 William St., New York.

Ask your Druggist for a sample 10 CENT TRIAL SIZE.
Ely's Cream Balm
CATARRH
ELY'S CREAM BALM CATARRH REMEDY
ELY BROS.
contains no cocaine, mercury nor any other injurious drug. It is quickly absorbed. Gives Relief at once. It opens and cleanses the Nasal Passages. Allays Inflammation. Heals and Protects the Membrane. Restores the Senses of Taste and Smell. Price 50c. at Druggists or by mail. ELY BROTHERS, Owego, N. Y.
ELY BROTHERS 56 Warren Street, New York.
COLD IN HEAD

DIME
Savings Institution,
Of Plainfield, N. J.,
Is now receiving deposits payable on demand, with interest, allowed on all sums from $5 to $3,000.
J. Frank Hubbard, President,
Geo. W. Rockefellow, Vice-Pres.
J. C. Pope, Treasurer.
Money deposited on or before January tenth will draw interest from the first.

SEEDS ...FOR THE... Garden and Farm
Vegetable and Flower Seeds. All the newest and best varieties—quality unsurpassed. Illustrated Catalogue FREE.
WEBBER & DOIL, Seed Merchants and Growers,
114 Chambers St., New York City.

DIED.

CONNETT—In this city Wednesday, February 23d 1898, Molly VanDuyn, wife of Harry Ayers Connett.

LYNCH—In this city, February 23d, 1898, at her late residence, 332 Madison avenue, Mrs. Margaret Lynch, wife of Thos. Lynch, in her 71st year.

MOFFETT—In this city, on Sunday, February 28, 1898, Dennis T. Moffett in his 82nd year.

SHARP—In this city, Saturday, February 26, 1898, Esic, widow of Smith Sharp, in the 76th year of her age.

SWALM—In this city, Tuesday, February 21st, 1898, William Swalm, aged 80 years, 2 months, and 13 days.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE
PATENTS
TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &c.
Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.
A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.
MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

IN THE COURTS

JUSTICE MORRIS.

Summons issued—In the case of Johnson against Ludlow, on contract, returnable March 8th. In the case of Barlow against McCann, on contract, returnable March 8th.

JUSTICE MOFFETT.

Judgment rendered—In the case of Roegner against Dupont & Sons, Leather and Chamois factory, for $200.

Adjourned—Case of Griffin against Thompson, for one week.

All Women May Be Pretty

The April Ladies' Home Journal will contain the first article of a series telling "How to be Pretty Though Plain." The author, who has verified all her statements, insists that it is within easy possibility for the plainest woman to be pretty, and she thinks it not an unworthy ambition. Good common-sense forms the basis of the author's advice to all women who wish to be pretty.

College Settlement Work.

Mrs. Margaret E. Sangster, of New York, will speak in the Congregational church Monday evening, March 6th, on the work of the Christodora College Settlement, of New York, a settlement conducted on different principles from the usual settlement work.

CARNEY BROS.,
MADISON AVENUE,
Between Front and Second streets.
Tinners,
Plumbers
Gas Fitters,
Grates and bricks for all kinds of stoves can be found here at Jobbers' prices. Bring your tinware mending to us. The best tinners, the best plumbers, and the best gas-fitters in this section. We use none but the very best of materials, and our work always gives satisfaction. Keys of all kinds are made here. Tinware made to order. Ranges, brick and portable furnaces. Sanitary plumbing.

Sanitary Plumbing,
Brick and Portable Furnace
Gas Fitting, Tin Roofing,
Etc., Etc., Etc.
I am prepared to do any of the above branches in strictly first-class sanitary and workmanship manner.
Having associated myself with the Master Plumbers Association of New York City, I employ none but first class mechanics and non-union men. I believe in every man running his own business, at all times and in cases.
D. W. LITTELL,
No. 112 North Ave., Plainfield, N. J.

ALBERT HEDDEN
Livery & Boarding Stables
FOURTH ST.,
between Watchung and Park avenues.
First-class Livery. Horses boarded by week or month. Telephone call, No. 114.

A. WOLFF,
Manufacturer of
CIGARS.
And dealer in all kinds of Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and smokers' articles, has removed from 334 W. Front street, to 321 West Front street, one door east of Madison avenue and solicits the patronage of his friends and the public generally.

P. P. VanArsdale,
PIANO TUNER.
Instruments put in thorough order. Terms reasonable. Pianos and organs for sale and to let. Orders by postal, P. O. box 180, or left at Willett's shoe store, No. 107 Park avenue, will receive prompt attention. Residence 301 E. Front street, corner Elm street. 9jly1

NEW IN EVERY DETAIL!
My new barber shop at
143 NORTH AVE.
is now open ready for business. All the latest appointments in the tonsorial line.
EDWIN B. MAYNARD.

PATENTS
CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS
COPYRIGHTS.
CAN I OBTAIN A PATENT? For a prompt answer and an honest opinion, write to MUNN & CO., who have had nearly fifty years' experience in the patent business. Communications strictly confidential. A Hand-Book of information concerning Patents and how to obtain them sent free. Also a catalogue of mechanical and scientific books sent free. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice in the Scientific American, and thus are brought widely before the public without cost to the inventor. This splendid paper, issued weekly, elegantly illustrated, has by far the largest circulation of any scientific work in the world. $3 a year. Sample copy sent free. Building Edition, monthly, $2.50 a year. Single copies, 25 cents. Every number contains beautiful plates, in colors, and photographs of new houses, with plans, enabling builders to show the latest designs and secure contracts. Address MUNN & CO., NEW YORK, 361 BROADWAY.

Wm. A. Woodruff,
Fire and Life
INSURANCE AGENT,
OFFICE,
corner Front St. and Park Avenue,
Plainfield, N. J.
Real Estate for Sale and Exchange
Money to Loan on Approve Security

EDITORS IN A SNOWBANK.

Editor Runyon. Editor Lewis. Editor Morrison. Editor Force.

Though the winter season is fast ebbing with the closing days of February, and the weather is balmy, the above picture will refresh the memories of the blizzard which pervaded the country two weeks ago to day. It is scarcely necessary to label the above cut, depicting a scene on Front street during the blizzard, or rather in its wake, but for those who cannot recognize the faces therein the following article, published in the New Brunswick Home News, will act as a chart:

Plainfield has a camera club, composed of wide awake members. One of these, J. Hervey Doane, a Plainfield merchant, on Feb. 14th, hit upon the idea of making large views fairly illustrating the snow storm of Monday, Feb. 13th, 1899, which the Weather Bureau says was the greatest storm of which it has any record. One of these views, sent to us by a friend, is made especially interesting by the fact that Mr. Doane managed to get in it a group of four men, each of whom, in his way, has done much to spread the fair fame of Plainfield

These are Editors A. L. Force, A. H. Lewis, T. W. Morrison and F. W. Runyon. Mr. Morrison is a former New Brunswicker. In 1884 he started the Plainfield Evening News, which was Plainfield's first successful daily. Mr. Morrison is known to the publishers throughout the State as the first president of the State Publishers' Union, to which he was twice unanimously re-elected, during part of the time being also vice president of the New Jersey Editorial Association.

I was Mr. Force who, in 1887, started Plainfield's second successful daily, the Daily Press, the outgrowth of the Constitutionalist, which for many years he had made the most successful weekly in that section, if not in the entire State.

Mr. Runyon, in 1871, started the Courier, making it the third successful Plainfield daily. So much so that upon Mr. Morrison's retiring in 1891, Mr. Runyon was able to buy the News and by consolidation make the Courier News. The Runyons are notable in Plainfield and vicinity, many having achieved distinction. It was a cousin of Editor Runyon, a lawyer, who as General led the First Brigade of New Jersey troops to Washington to help put down the Rebellion, and so greatly distinguished himself that upon his return he was elected Chancellor, serving a few years ago as Minister to Germany.

Doctor Lewis may not be so well known to the publishers of the State, though he ought to be, as he is known throughout the United States as well as in Europe as the author of a two volume work entitled "The Influence of Christianity on the Roman Law," for which his fame shall endure long after he shall have passed away. But he is in the group because he is the editor of the Sabbath Record, published in Plainfield, and circulated through the United States as the official organ of the Seventh-day Baptists.

Plainfield seems a favorite place of residence with editors, for besides those in the view on our desk it has A. V. D. Honeyman, editor of the New Jersey Law Journal; Henry E. Carroll, for twenty years, editor of the New York Independent, and Mr. Larribee, editor of Appleton's publications, and all highly gifted gentlemen.

They seem to thrive there physically, at least. We doubt if any other city in the State, population considered, can show editors of equal physique.

We are led to these observations through seeing one of Mr. Doane's excellent views, with the editorial brethren in such hearty, loving fellowship. We congratulate Plainfield on having its fame in the hands of such capable men, and we also congratulate the editors on their good taste and judgment in the selection of such an abiding place. We would remind them, however, that New Brunswick has some editors and charms of its own, which we will be glad to have them come and see.

WALTER LONG IS NOW ALL-ROUND CHAMPION.

Won Open Pentathlon Contest at Y. M. C. A. Gym.

FIVE OTHER CONTESTANTS.

LONG OUTCLASSED THEM ALL IN GYMNASTIC WORK.

The Contest Included Free Work, Calisthenics, Gymnastic and Athletic Events—A Fair Test of the Work of the Gymnasium—Long Fairly Won It —Eric Moraller Was Second—Summaries.

By a manifestly superior performance the all-round championship of the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium was won by Walter L. Long at the open pentathlon contest, held in the gymnasium Saturday evening. It was a fair test in free work, calisthenics, gymnastic and athletic work, and Long stood 13 per cent. higher than the nearest competitor. Contrary to expectations there were only six competitors in the contest, but they furnished a lively race for second place.

The principal competitors in line were Walter L. Long, captain of the basket ball team; Eric Moraller, winner of this year's gymnastic contest, and F. O. Bristol, winner of the athletic contest two years ago. The others were Herbert Brokaw, Ivan Hardingham and Walter Sampson. The judges were William McKnight, of New York, and Robert A. Mosher, both experts. It was expected that George Proctor Smith and Raymond B. Carroll, winner of this year's athletic contest, would take part but both are somewhat weak in gymnastic work and felt that they had no show. Frank Marsley, a lively candidate, was detained by business. William Townsend and Hervey K. Doane were both present, but felt outclassed.

It was his general excellence in all lines that gave long the victory. In the gymnastic feats he far outshone his rivals for championship honors and stood well up in the athletic events. Even had all the other men expected taken part in the contest, there is no doubt but that Long would have stood first. At present he is undoubtedly the best all-around man in the association.

The free work, which consisted of marching and facing, under the direction of the physical director, C. E. A. Haywood, was a simple. Bristol and Long were practically equal. In the exercises with the dumb-bells Sampson did the best work. Then came the gymnastic work.

Three pieces of apparatus were used, there being three moves on each, which were as follows:

Parallel Bars—Swinging bip, travel, off end; shoulder stand, roll, retreat; left rear vault, half right turn.

Side Horse—Three quarter left circle, both legs, to straddle neck, right front vault; straddle vault to back rest, dismount with half right turn; right feint, half right circle, both legs to back.

High Horizontal Bar—Free-circle; swing, kip to position, snap off; swing, left leg between hands to position, turn, snap off to opposite direction.

Here Long had a particularly clever showing leaving the others far behind. On the horse he was best, scoring 27 points out of a possible 30. In this class of work Moraller stood next. Sampson and Bristol were both severely taxed to go through the moves. Haringham also fell down and lost all his chances.

When the athletic events were begun, it was expected that Bristol and Hardingham would make the best showing. Long, however, came up in unexpected form. He tied for first in one event and finished second in the others. In the high jump, Hardingham cleared five feet. Bristol gained a good lead in the standing broad jumps.

The potato race was run in three heats. Sampson and Brokaw were in the first trial. Brokaw led until the last lap when Sampson made an extra effort and won by a few feet. His time was 1 minute, 55 4-5 seconds, and Brokaw's a fifth of a second longer.

Hardingham and Moraller had a lively heat. It was nip and tuck from start to finish, Hardingham winning out by a foot. His time was 1 minute, 50 1-5 seconds. Moraller was a fifth of a second slower.

Bristol and Long were in the last heat, Bristol was a trifle in the lead at the start but Long began to gain. Then Bristol lost his nerve, and incidentally second place, for he slowed up, walked and came to a full stop. The spectators yelled and he started off again but Long had gained a lap and Bristol finished weakly. Long tied Hardingham for the best time, 1 minute, 50 1-5 seconds. But for Bristol's collapse, he might have won or possibly tied Moraller for second place.

The summaries in the events in the contest were as follows:

Free work—F. O. Bristol, first; Walter L. Long, second; Eric Moraller, third.

Calisthenics—Walter Sampson, first; F. O. Bristol and Herbert Brokaw, tied for second.

Parallel bars—Walter L. Long, first; Eric Moraller, second; Herbert Brokaw, third.

Side horse—Walter L. Long, first; Herbert Brokaw, second; Eric Moraller, third.

High horizontal bar — Walter L. Long, first; F. O. Bristol, second; Eric Moraller, third.

Running high jump — Ivan Hardingham, first; Walter L. Long, second; F. O. Bristol, third. Height, 5 feet.

Three standing broad jumps—F. O. Bristol, first; Ivan Hardingham and Walter L. Long, tied for second. Distance, 28 feet, 6 inches.

Potato race—Walter L. Long and Ivan Hardingham, tied for first; Eric Moraller, third. Time, 1 minute, 50 1-5 seconds.

The individual standing of the contestants, figured on a percentage basis was as follows: Walter L. Long, 79; Eric Moraller, 66; F. O. Bristol, 64; Ivan Hardingham, 63; Herbert Brokaw, 60; Walter Sampson, 51.

FOUGHT FIRE IN A ROOM.

OTTO ARENS AND HIS SON BADLY BURNED FRIDAY NIGHT.

Blaze Caught From Gas Burner and Threatened House With Destruction—Hand Extinguishers Did the Work.

A persistent little blaze routed out the household of Otto Arens, of Park avenue, shortly after 10:30 o'clock last Friday, and was only extinguished by the prompt efforts of Mr. and Mrs. Arens and their son, Seigfried. Father and son had their hands badly burned while the room and its furniture and hangings were damaged to the extent of $350.

The family were about to retire last evening while the maid was in the front bedchamber opening the bed. She lighted the Welsbach burner near the window and then turned toward the bed. When she turned the window hangings and curtains were all ablaze. The maid was paralyzed with fright.

Mrs. Arens saw the light and discovered the fire. Calling husband, she hurried downstairs for two hand fire extinguishers that were kept there. Mr. Ahrens fought the fire with pitchers of water until the arrival of his son who pulled down the burning hangings, badly burning his hands while doing so.

The extinguishers were then used and the flames all extinguished. The casing and wall had caught fire and the hard wood floor was somewhat burned. A bureau and desk were ruined by the flames.

Chief Doane, of the fire department, was notified by telephone after it was all over. He offered to send assistance but the fire was all gone then.

A NEW ENGLAND SUPPER TICKLED PALATES OF ALL.

LADIES AID SOCIETY WAS IN CHARGE.

Given in the Chapel of the First Presbyterian Church—Way Down East Dishes in Plenty.

A New England supper under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the First Presbyterian church, was given in the chapel Thursday from 6 o'clock on. Everything in the way of edibles was on the bill of fare, from Boston baked beans and brown bread to fried oysters, clam chowder, pie and cake.

The tables were presided over by a lady and a corps of assistants. With their bright flowers and pretty settings they made a handsome appearance. Mrs. J. A. Haynes was chairman of the committees and had charge of the supper. She was assisted by Miss Sarah Boss, Mrs. Engelheart, J. A. Haynes and Howard Pope.

Mrs. Waldorf, Mrs. George Wean, Mrs. Hill, Mrs. George, Mrs. Remsen, Mrs. Howard Pope and Mrs. Charles Hummer presided over the tables, and were assisted by the following waitresses: Miss Charlotte Cavy, Miss VanFleet, Miss Julia Williams, Miss Ida Tallamy, Miss Mamie Mead, Miss Annie Weigman, Miss Ethel Laing, Miss Clara Dunham, Miss Lillian Remsen, Miss Miner, Miss Ella Lounsbury, Miss Jean Dunham, Miss Evans, Miss Mildred Ulrick and Miss Jessie Pruden.

Candy was sold by Miss Nettie Remsen, Miss Abbott, Miss Wood and Miss Helen Bolce, and cake by Mrs. Currie, Miss Jessie McKillop and Miss Evelyn Searing.

The supper was patronized all through the evening and until late at night and was a success in every way.

Cellar of Church Flooded.

About fifty feet of the water pipe in the Park Avenue Baptist church bursted last week and flooded the cellar. The janitor, Edgar S. Brokaw, learned of the accident and shut off the water before any great damage had been done.

Judgment Against Bard Company.

Justice Nash has rendered judgment for Frank W. Runyon and Daly et al against the Bard Company, and executions were issued. The first judgment was for $143.52 and the other for $135 68.

SULPHUR BLAZED UP TO SET FIRE TO DRESS

Mrs. Andrew F. Marsh, of Vine Street, Terribly Burned.

WOOLEN DRESS SAVED LIFE

HER SCREAMS ATTRACTED QUICK ATTENTION OF DAUGHTER.

Mrs. Marsh Threw a Piece of Sulphur Into the Kitchen Stove, Which Made Flames That Communicated to Her Dress and Made a Living Torch of Her—Arms and Shoulders Badly Burned

A narrow escape from burning to death was experienced Friday forenoon by Mrs. Andrew F. Marsh, of Vine street, in the borough. She picked up a good-sized piece of sulphur which was found in the kitchen and thoughtlessly threw it in the stove. In an instant a large blaze leaped in the air and set fire to Mrs. Marsh's dress.

She gave several screams which attracted the attention of one of her daughters, who hastened to learn the trouble. When the daughter rushed into the kitchen she found her mother enveloped in flames. She secured a large apron and threw it around her mother's body and after a great deal of trouble succeeded in extinguishing the flames.

Mrs. Marsh was terribly burned. The front of her hair was ruined. Her arms and shoulders were severely burned, as well as other parts of her body. One thing that saved her from more serious injury was that she wore a woolen dress and the action of the flames was not as disastrous as they would have been with a dress of other material.

Mrs. Marsh retained her presence of mind during her terrible experience, but her condition was very weak afterward. The proper treatment was at once secured for her, and she is now doing as well as can be expected. She is obliged to remain in the house and will be detained for some time.

This is the second narrow escape that Mrs. Marsh has had. Not a great while ago a lamp exploded in her home, and she came near losing her life in that accident.

DUTIES OF CITIZENSHIP.

Rev. Josiah Strong Talked to a Large Audience Saturday.

Citizenship in a serious matter, viewed from the standpoint of the League for Social Service. The president of the League, Rev. Josiah Strong, of New York, spoke Saturday in the Seventh Day Baptist church, making a strong plea for the education of public opinion along the lines of good citizenship. Dr. Strong's subject was "The Greatest Peril of the Century," and that peril was shown to be the lack of intellectual and moral development in the nation in proportion to the material development. The speaker described the tremendous progress made in America during the present century—discoveries, inventions, wealth—and then spoke of the new problems raised by our modern life, and the crying need that the people understand their duties. Intelligence, guided by a strong, social conscience, can alone save the country from the fate which has overcome other nations where the material has outgrown the intellectual and the moral. The questions of city government, Mormonism, etc., will never be solved except by an intelligent people, and if the people are too indifferent to learn the duties of citizenship, Dr. Strong would have the knowledge taken to them. The League for Social Service would help to fill the need by the distribution of literature on the questions of the day, written by such men as Seth Low, Theodore Roosevelt and Grover Cleveland.

EXTENDED CREDIT TO A MINOR.

Resulted in Sudden Ending of a Suit in Justice Moffett's Court.

A suit brought by VanZandt & Voorhees, flour and feed merchants, against Blimm & Henry, doing business on West Fourth street, for a bill of $3, came to a sudden end this morning in Justice Moffett's court. The case came up for trial and all parties were in court when S. S. Swackhamer, of the firm of Codington & Swackhamer, who represents the defendants, asked for a dismissal of the suit on the ground that one member of the firm being sued, Mr. Henry, was a minor. There could be no opposition to this motion, as a minor cannot be held responsible for credit extended to him, so the case was dismissed.

Mrs. Grant's Tea.

Mrs. Gussie F. Grant, of Kensington avenue, celebrated the thirteenth anniversary of her marriage Friday afternoon last by giving a delightful tea to a number of her friends. The home was attractively decorated with roses, palms, etc., for the occasion. The afternoon was passed in sociability and about 5 o'clock the guests were served with a pleasing repast.

—This week seafood will be more plentiful and we will have all the varieties that are in market. Rogers.

BARD COMPANY'S FINISH

FIRST NATIONAL BANK TO FORECLOSE A CHATTEL MORTGAGE.

Liabilities of the Concern Said to be $6,000 and Assets Only $2000—President Has Gone to California For a Time.

The affairs of the Bard Company, the successors to the Bard Cycle Company, are at present in the hands of lawyers, with a prospect of an ultimate sale and dissolution of business. The firm of Murphy & Blatz are representing the company whose liabilities, it is said, are about $6,000, and their assets about $800 which are covered by a chattel mortgage held by the First National Bank, and already on record.

Several weeks ago G. W. V. Moy obtained a judgment against the Bard Cycle Company for Augustus Marsh, for about $75. Mr. Moy has had an execution issued and a levy made, but as the suit was brought against the "Bard Cycle Company" not against the "Bard Company" it is said that the execution may be worthless.

To tide them over other difficulties with the First National Bank, a chattle mortgage was given the institution. Mr. Colgate, president of the company, has left the city, and today the store is closed, and there is no one around. Woolston & Buckle own the store, and say they have not been paid their last month's rent.

The First National Bank has decided to foreclose on the mortgage on account of a distress warrant on behalf of Woolston & Buckle.

COLT HAD A WILD RUN.

EX-JUDGE CODDINGTON'S STEPPER WRECKED A COSTLY TRAP.

Left Untied on Somerset Street and Became Frightened—Ran to Babcock Building, Probably From Force of Habit.

The big bay colt belonging to Former Judge W. A. Coddington, of East Second street, ran away Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, and succeeded in completely wrecking the Judge's trap. Thomas McCorkle, the coachman, drove Mrs. Coddington over to call on Grove street during the afternoon. After leaving her he came up Somerset street and stopped at a store. While he was inside the horse became frightened and started forth on a wild career up Somerset street.

After the horse had run several blocks the trap struck against the curb and tipped over. It was dragged along on its side and was soon wrecked. The horse then reached Front street the trap had been broken into small pieces, which were strewn along in the path of the runaway.

The horse turned into West Front street and galloped up to the Judge's office in the Babcock building, where the wild pace slackened to a trot. Al Hoagland, the expressman, stepped out and caught the runaway.

There was nothing left of the trap, while the harness was broken in several places. The damage to the trap will amount to $300. Judge Coddington was in New York at the time.

While there were many narrow escapes in the run up Somerset street and on Front street, the runaway managed to thread her way through all the passing vehicles without collision.

WANT BETTER STREETS.

PROPERTY OWNERS WILL PETITION COUNCIL TO MACADAMIZE THEM.

West Sixth Street, Between Park and Plainfield Avenues, and Norwood Avenue Will be Called to Attention of Council.

There will be two more petitions presented to the Common Council at the meeting Monday evening when the residents of two streets will ask the Council to macadamize their streets. One will come from the residents on West Sixth street, between Park avenue and Plainfield avenue. The property owners along that thoroughfare agree to pay their proportion of the cost if the work is done. Sixth street has been in a deplorable condition and the improvement is greatly needed.

The other petition will come from the residents along Norwood avenue, from East Front street to the city line at Green brook. This has been another bad mud hole in stormy weather. It also is quite an important outlet into the eastern part of the borough.

[Prize Winners at the Fair.

The fair which was held last week under the auspices of Martha Washington Council, No. 23, D. of A., came to a close Saturday night after a successful week. The contests were decided, and Miss Pearl DeNise won the diamond ring; Mrs. John Hope the sewing machine, and Mrs. Andrew Mattis the set of dishes. The clock was carried off by H. L. VanCamp, of Elizabeth.

A Position in Cuba.

Walter N. Martin, of Grove street, has secured a good position with Swift & Co., and Saturday last he sailed for Cuba, where he will have charge of one of the firm's houses at that place.

ONLY TWO BIG FIRES REPORTED LAST YEAR

Substance of Report to National Board of Underwriters.

MADE BY T. O. DOANE.

INTERESTING FACTS PRESENTED BY CHIEF OF FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Hard Fire Was Largely Accountable For an Increase in Amount of Property Involved and the Loss—Fifteen Fires so Far This Year—The Result of the Cold and Blizzard.

So far this year, there have been fifteen fires in the city of Plainfield. Most of them, however, have amounted to very little. The number, however, is greater than that recorded in an equal length of time in previous years. It may be easily accounted for by the great cold wave and the following blizzard that necessitated plenty of heat from stoves and furnaces which sometimes got themselves into trouble through overheating.

Some interesting facts regarding the fires that took place in Plainfield during the last year, the number and damage done, are to be found in the report that Chief T. O. Doane, of the Plainfield Fire Department, recently sent to the National Board of Underwriters from which to prepare their statistics.

During the year of 1898 there were 61 alarms. Of these, 12 of the fires were in brick or stone buildings, 29 in wooden buildings and 20 were other than building fires. All but two of the fires were confined to the premises in which they originated. The other two, it will be remembered, were the Bard Company's fire and the blaze at the Climax Bottle Stopper Factory.

In comparison with these figures, the report for the year of 1897 show 43 alarms, of which 39 were in wooden buildings and 4 other than building fires. They were all confined to the place of origin.

The entire property involved by the fires of last year amounted to $253,970.70, as against $196,388 for the previous year. The loss for 1898 was $57,545.36, and for 1897, $10,995.12. The insurance was $181,850 and $165,800 for the two years respectively.

At first sight it looks as if there had been a great increase in fires during the past year. A little thought on the subject and an investigation of the records of the fire department show that the great fire of last year, commonly known as the Bard fire, was the cause of the great increase in the amount of property involved in the loss.

LANCING AND EUCHRE.

Saturday Evening Club Entertained by Mr. and Mrs. DeLong.

Mr. and Mrs. William A. DeLong, of Sandford avenue, entertained the Saturday Evening Euchre Club Saturday evening in a very delightful manner. In addition to the regular number of members there were several guests present who also enjoyed the genuine hospitality of the host and hostess. It was supposed that this would be the last meeting of the club for the season, but it was decided to hold one more meeting and that will be Saturday evening, March 11th, when Mr. and Mrs. Seymour G. Smith, of Putnam avenue, will entertain the club.

Only five games were played Saturday evening, after which dancing was enjoyed for the balance of the evening. During the playing of euchre a dancing music was furnished by a banjo and guitar. Another very pleasant diversion was a soprano solo by Miss Lambert, of New York. At a late hour the guests were served with refreshments and thus another happy event in the history of the club closed.

Among the guests present were the Misses Lambert, of New York; Miss Grace Taylor, of Brooklyn; Mr. and Mrs. Coons, Miss Coons, Mr. and Mrs. Ashley, Fred Smith, of this city.

The prize winners were: Gentlemen, first, C. M. Slocum; second, Peter Schuh's. Ladies, first, Mrs. C. M. Slocum; second, Mrs. R. L. Johnson.

General of Mrs. Connett.

The funeral services of the late Mrs. Harry A. Connett were held from the home on East Fifth street Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, officiated. The floral tributes were numerous and very beautiful. The remains were interred in the receiving vault at Hillside cemetery.. Those who served as pallbearers were Frank Putnam, Frazee Putnam, Charles Lister and William Beers.

Musicale in a Store.

The musicale given at Crosby & Hill's dry goods store Saturday evening from 7:30 to 9:30 o'clock was the means of attracting an unusually large number of people. The clerks were kept constantly busy in waiting on customers, and the rendition of excellent music was a feature that all enjoyed.

CAMERAS AT WORK.

RESULTS TO BE EXHIBITED AT CAMERA CLUB ROOMS.

Prize Exhibition Arranged for First Week in April—Awards to be Made in Nine Classes—Three Exhibits Awards Announced.

Much interest is manifested by the local amateur photographers in the approaching print exhibition which the Plainfield Camera Club will hold in its gallery during the first week in April. The exhibition will be open to all amateurs in this city and vicinity. To encourage as many exhibits as possible, it has been decided to make awards in various classes which have been selected as follows: Landscapes, interiors, portraiture, groups, hand camera work, mechanical, enlargements, animal study and beginner's work.

All the members of the Plainfield Camera Club are expected to make some exhibit and, for their encouragement, an award will be made for the best exhibit of any member of the club. There will also be two other awards, one for the best exhibit of any lady exhibitor out side of the club membership, and the other for the best exhibit by any gentleman exhibitor outside of the club.

Mounted prints of any size may be framed collectively, with or without glass, or arranged on fountain boards. If entering for competition all work must be done by the exhibitor.

Already there are a number outside of the ranks of the club who have expressed a determination to enter the contest for the awards, and place their pictures on exhibition. The exhibition last year was very successful but this year's promises to be an even greater success.

MR. SAUNDERS CALLED IT

DEMOCRATIC PRIMARY TO BE HELD THURSDAY NIGHT

There Had Been Some Adepate About the Right of Chairman of Last Primary to Make the Call—Wilson Favored.

As the chairman of the last Democratic primary held in North Plainfield, Former Mayor Saunder this morning called the primary for the nomination of officers to be chosen at the approaching municipal election. The date set is Thursday night at 8 o'clock in the basement of the public library building. There has been little dispute as to whether it was the duty of former Mayor Saunders, as the chairman of the last primary, or Elston M. French, as chairman of the executive committee, to call the primary. It was finally decided that it was the right of Mr. Saunders to make the call, and it is in accordance with that rule that he has set the primary for Thursday night.

It is expected that Mayor Wilson will be renominated by the primary, though there may be some opposition to the idea of holding the Democratic caucus before the Republican primary is to afford the Republicans, who are favorable to Mayor Wilson succeeding himself, a chance to either secure his endorsement by the G. O. P. or else to avoid putting up a candidate in opposition.

FADS OF LAST CENTURY DEPICTED AT TRINITY.

A COLONIAL SOCIABLE WAS HELD.

Affair Given by Christian Endeavor Society—Old-Fashioned Costumes Were Worn.

The Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church gave a colonial sociable Friday night. Everything about it was suggestive of the last century, the patriotic decorations and the old-fashioned costumes worn by the members of the social committee, who had the sociable in charge. There was not a large attendance for some reason, but those who were there played games and chatted and enjoyed themselves.

The social committee trimmed the Sunday-school room with flags and bunting, and made it look gay and cosy with rugs and lamps. The lady members of the committee were large scarfs or handkerchiefs around their necks and their hair was sprinkled with powder, giving them a real colonial look.

"Baiting the bear" and "going to Jerusalem" were played until 10 o'clock, then cake and chocolate were served. The gentlemen chose their partners for refreshments by the help of slips of paper with some prominent person's name written upon it. The paper was cut in two, and one piece given to a lady. A gentleman had the other, and he was expected to find her who had the missing half of the name, and set with her while the refreshments were eaten. There were several nice cakes left, and these were auctioned off at good prices by E. E. Anthony. Before the sociable was over, H. J. Martin sang a solo, accompanied on the piano by his son, H. J. Martin, Jr.

The committee in charge was Miss Cora E. Lake, Miss Nellie Bacher, Miss Corinna Young, Miss Edith M. DuBois and Miss Lottie Wilson.

—George B. Naylor's paint factory near Dunellen is about completed.

$1,000 CHECK TO PAY WAY TO HOLY LAND.

Dr. Richards Given a Substantial Farewell by His Church.

HE SAILED SATURDAY.

THE CHECK PRESENTED WITH A SPEECH BY CHARLES PLACE.

The Reception Held in the Chapel of the Crescent Avenue Church and Largely Attended by Parishioners of Dr. Richards—The Recipient Made Appropriate Thanks—Refreshments Served.

The high esteem in which Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards is held by the members of his congregation of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, was well attested last Thursday in several ways. The congregation turned out en masse to attend the reception in his honor on the eve of his departure to the Holy Land, presented him with a check for $1,000 to meet the expenses of the trip, and bid him farewell with a hearty grasp of the hand.

The reception was held in the chapel of the church and was arranged by the social committee of the Christian Endeavor Society. It was the night for one of the Endeavor sociables but the occasion was taken to give the pastor a farewell reception before his departure Saturday. Mrs. Richards was to share with her husband in receiving the good wishes of their friends but an unfortunate attack of the grip kept her at home.

During the first part of the evening a musical programme was rendered in the Sunday-school rooms. It included violin solos by Mrs. Nellie Udell-Smith, accompanied by Mrs. Charles L. Lewis, piano solos by Miss Lavinia French, and baritone solos by William Holmes, accompanied by Howard Case.

Henry G. Squires made a short speech preliminary to the presentation which was then made by former Mayor Charles Place, president of the board of trustees. The check for $1,000 was made up by private gifts from the different members of the congregation and was intended to meet the cost of Dr. Richards' trip. Dr. Richards followed with a short speech in which he thanked his kind friends and pictured some of the scenes that he was likely to see and places of interest that he would visit. Irs Wilthrop Trowell, chairman of the social committee, presided.

The congregation then adjourned to the parlors where the reception was held. Here Dr. Richards stood while his flock filed past, each with a shake of the hand and a word of farewell.

Refreshments were served by a number of the young women of the church. The Misses Tracy were in charge, assisted by Miss Bushnell, Miss Jessie Bushnell, Miss Gertrude Andrews, Miss Hunter, Miss Clark, Miss VanDeventer, Miss Elsie Pole, Miss Gilbert and Miss Burnett. Max Munger was in charge of the ushers and the ice cream.

AMATEUR THEATRICALS.

"Diplomacy" to be Produced by Local Talent in Music Hall.

"Diplomacy," one of Sardou's best plays, will be given in Music Hall during the latter part of April. Many well known amateurs will be in the cast, among them former Mayor and Mrs. W. Saunders, Mr. and Mrs. Van Fleet, Miss Huntington, Laurens VanBuren, Miss Wickinham, Miss Waring, Mr. Waring, Miss Grace Cooley and Mr. Pinoffa.

Rehearsals are being held at ex-Mayor Saunders' house on Rockview avenue, and the cast is almost complete. The play will be given for charity.

DID NOT WITHDRAW.

High School Athletic Association Postpone Action on Withdrawal.

A meeting of the Plainfield High School Athletic Association was held at the High School building Friday afternoon. The advisability of withdrawing from the New Jersey Interscholastic Athletic Association was discussed and action on it was postponed until the next meeting. A. L. Schomp was elected treasurer in the place of Harry Cuming, resigned. A committee was appointed to consider the advisability of holding another benefit concert. W. A. Fisher was elected manager of the baseball team.

Disappearing Frost May Make Trouble.

The frost is beginning to come out of the ground during these warm spells, and Street Commissioner Gavett expects that he will have some trouble with the streets this spring. The frost this year went down deep, and, when it comes out, will no doubt raise or lower the roadbed in various places and make it uneven. There is one place on Central avenue, just within the city line, where every year the crust breaks and rises until there are depressions in the road eight inches deep.

E. T. Phillips, of North Plainfield, a member of Augustin Daly's company, has been detained at home by illness for several weeks. He was able to return to New York Saturday.

M'VEY GETS LICENSE AFTER MUCH TALK

Councilman Hetfield Objected To Signer on Application.

HIS ANIMUS QUESTIONED.

COUNCILMAN BUCKLE CRITICISED HIM WITH SEVERITY.

All But One of the Applications for License Were Granted—Mr. Hetfield Made a Great Demand for the Exact Letter of the Law to be Followed Out—Sewage Beds Looked After.

There was a warm time at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council last Thursday and the exchange of words between members regarding the granting of a liquor license to John H. McVey, of North avenue, was very strong, almost reaching personality. The discussion finally came to an end and after the meeting the participants shook hands and had a good laugh.

To the first place there were four remonstrances presented against the granting of licenses, three of which applied to the application of Andrew Schlick. One was from the Pond Machine Tool Works, another from Mrs. Taylor, a third from residents of the Third and Fourth wards, while the fourth was from the Friends' Society. The latter referred to all licenses. After these presentations Mr. Coriell, chairman of the license committee, stated that he had all the respect for those who protested, but that it was a well-known fact that some licenses had to be granted. He said that the committee had spent considerable time in examining the applications. While in many cases they were obliged to accept affadavits, they believed that all applications were correct and he then moved that they be granted, presenting Mr. McVey's application first.

Here is where the trouble began and ended. Mr. Hetfield asked for a ten minute recess so that the license could be discussed by a committee of the whole. This was done last year and he saw no reason why the same rule should not prevail again. This request was refused and the discussion waxed exceedingly warm.

Mr. Coriell stated that the committee was ready to report, and he saw no reason why the matter should be taken out of their hands.

Mr. Hetfield then said that as inasmuch as a recess would not be taken he would have his say in open Council. He stated that regarding Mr. McVey's application he had been furnished with a deed, a copy, showing that William Warnock, one of the signers to the application had purchased of Mrs. Frank Linke and her husband, for the sum of $1, a 12-foot lot in Netherwood, so that he could sign the application. This, Mr. Hetfield said, took place on January 28th of the present year. He said that it would not stand the test of the Supreme Court and if ever tested would be knocked out. He added that this same lot at Netherwood had figured previously in similar deals. He then moved that the application lie on the table until the next meeting, and that the Corporation Counsel be instructed to take testimony regarding the conveyance of the property in question.

Mr. Coriell took exception to this, and stated that it is a well-known fact to many that lots are often transferred for such purposes and that Mr. Warnock is according to law a freeholder. Mr. Barrows added a word by saying that if the Council should go into extreme details in such matters many licenses would not be granted. He spoke of the applicant as being a first class hotel-keeper and thereby entitled to a license.

Mr. Buckle remarked that one year ago Mr. Hetfield took steps to abolish the ordinance compelling applicants to secure signers, and now he was laying such stress on the matter. It seemed to him that Mr. Hetfield had taken particular pains to look into Mr. McVey's application, and that there must be something behind it. He also remarked that Mr. Hetfield was the last man to expect of objecting to a license.

Mr. Hetfield continued the argument by saying that the members should talk to the question and not to him. He said that if Mr. McVey's application conformed to the law he would willingly vote for it. It was nothing to him, but if the law is a farce the Council is obliged to follow it. He thought that the remarks by Mr. Coriell and Mr. Buckle were unkind, and insisted that they could not call him down for doing his duty, the very thing he was placed in the Council to do. He added that he remembered Mr. Buckle voting against a license because it was too near another place, and was sure that the Court would declare the acts unconstitutional if the matter should be tested.

Mr. Coriell remarked further that he thought Mr. Hetfield had waited for a poor time to object, and intimated that personal spite was shown. He also said that if Mr. Hetfield's point was a ruling factor two thirds of the licenses in Plainfield and Elizabeth would be revoked.

The discussion was finally concluded and the licenses were acted upon. Mr. McVey, as well as all the other applicants, receiving the license, with the exception of Andrew Schlick, of 724 West Third street. This one the committee had decided not to recommend and the remonstrances had influenced them more strongly against this applicant. The following persons received a license: J. H. McVey, J. H. Staats, J. E. Beerbower, Jacob Blimm, Hans Hansen, Henry Haurand, J. A. Blatz, Martin J. Kane, John Rafferty, Daniel Galbraith, Alex Findlay, Bernard Clark, John Goff and Frank Linke. In all cases Mr. Andrews voted in the negative, except for the licenses to keep a hotel. Mr. Hetfield voted against Mr. McVey's application, but in favor of all others. Those who voted for all licenses were Messrs. Barrows, Coriell, Homan, VanHerwerden, Mellick, Tolles, Hetfield, Buckle and Smith. Mr. Leifke was absent from the meeting. On Mr. Schlick's application Messrs. Smith and Hetfield voted in the affirmative and the rest of the members voted against the application.

The next important matter introduced was that regarding the present condition of the sewer. The report was made by Mr. Barrows and accompanying his remarks he presented a large map, prepared by Street Commissioner Gavett, showing the present difficulties in the system. Mr. Barrows stated that the sewer system is a legacy left with the city, and while many theories had been offered to remedy the difficulties he was convinced that the system was being run too cheaply. The committee on streets and sewers had been convinced that the system is all right by Engineer Farquar, who had made several inspections. Mr. Barrows said that a year ago 600 000 gallons of ground water was flooding the beds, while today there are 1,250,000 gallons. He said that there is now a suit against the city brought by Mrs. Milliken, and that the borough of Dunellen would probably bring suit on account of the sewer beds. He thought it was the duty of the Council to make the system such a success that no one would be able to abolish it, even if a few thousand dollars had to be expended, in accomplishing the purpose of keeping the beds right.

He informed the Council that Mr. Farquar had made two suggestions to remedy the difficulty now experienced by the beds being flooded by ground water caused by leaks. One was to locate underground drains and another was to use cast iron pipe with lead joints. The former would cost about $2,000, while the latter would necessitate an expense of about $5,000. The immediate necessity of doing this work was impressed on the Council and Mr. Barrows stated that if a large amount of money was necessary it could be secured under a new law to be enacted. This law is to be introduced by Mr. Murray, and the committee had been assured of its adoption by both Houses of Legislature and the signature of the Governor.

Mr. Barrows then offered three resolutions, all of which were adopted. One was that underdrains be located on Watchung avenue and Richmond street, according to the maps and specifications filed. The second resolution approved the plans and specifications filed, while the third resolution provided for the proper two weeks advertising of the notice in the city papers that the Council would meet Monday evening, March 13th, to receive bids for the work according to the plans.

Residents of West Front street petitioned the Council for a fire-alarm box to be located between Plainfield avenue and Albert street. This matter was referred to the fire and building committee. The work of macadamizing East Ninth street, East Sixth street and Franklin place was awarded to A. I. & N. B Smalley, as their bids were the lowest. Mr. Barrows offered a resolution that the sum of $600 be appropriated to repair the steam roller.

Mr. Hetfield took exception to the amount asked for, and he thought estimates should be asked for and the matter di cussed in open Council instead of by the committee.

Mr. Barrows told the members that if they could not trust the street committee they surely ought to be willing to trust Mr. Gavett, whom all knew could be relied upon. The resolution was finally adopted.

Mr. VanHerwerden offered a resolution to the effect that the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company be instructed to place a telephone in the house of Mayor Rockfellow, as per agreement.

Before the Council adjourned President Andrews named Messrs. Buckle, Mellick and Smith as a committee to confer with the committee of three from the Sons of Veterans looking towards the erection of a suitable soldiers' monument in this city. The Council then adjourned.

Mayoralty Possibilities.

In addition to those already mentioned L. E. Barkalow, Dr. Cooley and Charles Place are talked of as possibilities for the borough Mayoralty.

PROF. SUMNER TALKS ON NATIONAL POLICY.

He Opposes the Tendency of the Present Administration.

A NATION BY OURSELVES.

DECLARES EXPANSION IDEAS ARE DISTINCTLY SPANISH.

He Says That Self-Government is Not a Matter of Flags and Fourth of July Orations—Thirst for Glory Robs People of Their Judgment—Conquest Can Do Nothing for Trade in This Country.

Since the days of President Woolsey there is no one who has so impressed himself on the students of Yale College as Prof. W. G. Sumner. His clearness of thought and honesty of purpose have extended his reputation far beyond the limits of his classroom.

His lecture at Grace church chapel Thursday was an intellectual treat. His subject was "The Recent Conquest of the United States by Spain," his point being that the ideas now dominating this country in reference to expansion are distinctively Spanish.

The war was brought by the irresponsible classes; its primary cause was partisan jobbery, aided by sentimentalism and sensationalism; the conservative classes, including the pulpit, the press and the platform (from which better things could have been expected) acquiesced in the evil and can be justly accused of moral cowardice.

Spain had self-government and lost it when she entered on a career of military glory; the same fate probably awaits us if we persevere in the same course.

We cannot assimilate the Filipinos and Spanish-Americans; they hate our manners, customs, institutions and religion; we must rule them by force, just as Spain did.

We cannot admit them as states; our confederation has too many heterogeneous elements already. We need more intension, not more extension.

Our national existence began in a revolt against this Spanish colonial system, and yet we are proceeding to fasten the same system on these islands. If liberty is good for us, why not for them?

If imperialism becomes dominant we must give up our constitution and then our liberty will become nothing but a lot of phrases.

The English colonial system is a matter of slow growth; it is utterly foreign to our ideas and habits. We cannot improvise such a system without previous training, any more than we could improvise an army last summer.

Are these colonies to be brought into our tariff and navigation system? If they are, it means that they will be forced to trade with us; that is the regular Spanish system which prevailed everywhere in the last century. If they remain outside our system then they will impose taxes on our own trade, which we will hardly tolerate.

Imperialism — which is merely another name for war, debt, corruption, bribery, glory, pomp and a big army and navy—will kill democracy. Our ancestors saw this and tried to avoid these burdens. We have been tolerably free from them for a century, and it has been our glory and our strength; yet now we voluntarily assume them.

It is mere bombast to say that Americans can do anything, and such optimism will be fatal to us. We have problems enough at home without seeking others abroad. If we reject and neglect our advantages we must not complain if we suffer unpleasant consequences.

Some of Prof. Sumner's remarks are worth quoting verbatim:

"Self-government is not a matter of flags and Fourth-of-July orations, nor yet of strife to get offices."

"The most important thing which we shall inherit from the Spaniards will be the task of suppressing rebellions."

"The thirst for glory is an epidemic which robs a people of their judgment, seduces their vanity, cheats them of their interests and corrupts their consciences."

"Conquest can do nothing for trade, except to remove the political obstacles which the conquered could not or would not remove."

"The time when a maxim or principle is worth something is when you are tempted to violate it."

Prof. Sumner's hearers may not all have agreed with him, but his earnest and impressive address will not be soon forgotten.

Beware, Small Boys.

Some small boys, whose names are withheld for their parents' sake, had better stop smoking cigarettes, throwing mud at Hall's drug store windows, and on people's personal property, thereby making a general public nuisance of themselves, or they may find themselves in the station house and their names made public.

AT A CHRISTIAN'S BIER.

IMPRESSIVE FUNERAL SERVICES OVER REMAINS OF LATE WM. SWALM.

Rev. Cornelius Schenck, Pastor of the Late Mr. Swalm, Spoke in Feeling Terms of Deceased—Love for Church.

The funeral services of the late William Swalm were held at 1 o'clock last Thursday at the residence of the son, Albertis Swalm, corner of West Front street and Plainfield avenue, and were largely attended by relatives and friends. Rev. Cornelius Schenck, Ph. D., pastor of Trinity Reformed church, where the deceased was a member, officiated. He spoke from the text found in Gen. 16 15: "And thou shalt go to thy fathers in peace; thou shalt be buried in good old age." His words were filled with comfort to the bereaved ones. He dwelt at length on the beautiful Christian character and life of the departed and of his faithfulness in attending the House of God.

Mr. Schenck referred in his remarks to a pathetic incident just before the close of Mr. Swalm's life. It was about a week ago that he was found by members of his family in an attitude of prayer, and in his supplication to his Divine Master he prayed for each relative, for his pastor and wife, and for his church, which he loved so dearly; concluding the prayer, he recited a verse of that beautiful hymn, "Jesus Lover of My Soul."

At the close of Pastor Schenck's remarks, the Rev. Isaac S. Schenck, of West Ghent, N. Y., brother of the former, offered a beautiful prayer in which he invoked the richest blessing of the Heavenly Father on those left behind.

During the service, Miss Florence Kline sang two beautiful solos, one being "The Christian's Good-night."

The floral tributes consisted of roses, palms and pinks, the latter being a favorite with the deceased. There was also a beautiful wreath of galax leaves.

Interment took place this morning in Greenwood Cemetery, Brooklyn, and Pastor Schenck accompanied the remains to the last resting place.

PREACHER DECLARED A MOCK MURDERER.

AN OBJECT LESSON IN TEMPERANCE.

A Mock Trial Held by the Reform Club—All the Absconders of an Organized Court.

The members of the Reform Club chose a new way to drive home the truths about temperance Thursday, and gave a lecture upon that subject in an entirely new way. An entertainment was given at which the main feature was a mock trial, when one of Plainfield's preachers was tried for the murder of his wife.

As a temperance lecture and also as an amusing form of entertainment the trial was a success and attracted a large number of spectators, who sat throughout it all. The unfortunate prisoner, a victim of strong drink, was Benjamin Hand. He was accused of shooting his wife while in a drunken rage, and after the jury had brought in a verdict of guilty delivered a forcible temperance lecture in answer to the judge's question, "Why should sentence not be passed upon you?"

The judge was C. E. Mosher, but his best friends would not have known him in a black gown and grey wig. He looked very dignified as he sat upon the bench, busily taking down notes. William G. DeMeza was prosecutor, and S. S. Swackhamer used all his eloquence to have the prisoner discharged, but without avail, for the jury had made up their minds as to the prisoner's guilt days before they went into the jury box, and their opinion couldn't be changed. A number of witnesses were sworn on both sides, and the trial made as real as possible. At the close of the trial, when the prisoner was led out to receive the sentence of the court, "that he be hanged by the neck until dead," refreshments were served, and a social time enjoyed. This was the celebration of the Reform Club's fifteenth anniversary.

Young Folks Enjoy Themselves.

The Misses Tillie and Rosie Bowe entertained a number of their friends in a pleasant manner at the home of their sister, Mrs. W. W. Mills, of Summit avenue, Thursday evening. Among those present were: The Misses L. Bremmer, C. White, D. Bennett, S. Mattoe, E. Perry, C. Mills and T. and S. Bowe; and the Messrs. G. Bremmer, F. Bimble, W. Robinson, J. Bowe, J. Hall, C. Parson, T. Krutzfelt and others.

Funeral of Mrs. Lynch.

The funeral of Mrs. Thomas Lynch was held from her late home on Madison avenue Friday morning at 8:30 o'clock, and from St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock. The pallbearers were Michael, Peter, John and Charles Flynn, Daniel McCarty and James Lynch. Interment was in St. Mary's cemetery.

A Building Boom.

The local real estate dealers claim that next spring there will be considerable change in property in Plainfield and that there will be a building boom.

LOCAL ATHLETES WON DUAL INDOOR GAMES.

Brunswick Y. M. C. A. Worsted By Many Points.

LASTED FOR FOUR HOURS.

PLAINFIELD WAS FIRST IN SIX OUT OF SEVEN EVENTS.

First of Athletic Meetings Between Neighborhood Y. M. C. A.'s—Plainfield Was Represented by Raymond B. Carroll, George Proctor Smith and Frank O. Bristol—Carroll Scored Most Points.

Plainfield won a substantial victory in the dual indoor athletic contest between teams from the Plainfield and New Brunswick Y. M. C. A.'s, held in the local gymnasium Tuesday Feb. 21st. Victory was won by a score of 1,343.5 points to 1,255.5 points, the Plainfield boys winning six out of the seven events. The points were scored according to the excellence of the performances from a table prepared by the Y. M. C. A. Athletic League. The contest was interesting enough, but it was dragged out for four weary hours until audience and contestants were completely tired out.

Each side was represented by a team of three men. Plainfield's team was composed of Raymond B. Carroll, George Proctor Smith and Frank O. Bristol. The New Brunswick contingent was Rooney, Lyons and Thompson. C. E. A. Heywood acted as referee. Henry B. Drake and E. Maxwell Honeyman were the measurers.

In the first event, the standing broad jump, New Brunswick came out ahead by one point. In putting the shot the lead was increased to six points. On the standing high jump Plainfield picked up and took the lead by one point. After that Plainfield's team bested their opponents in every event. In the running high jump, they particularly distinguished themselves, leaving New Brunswick way behind.

At the close the individual scores were as follows: Carroll, Plainfield, 486 5; Smith, Plainfield, 428; Bristol, Plainfield, 428; Thompson, New Brunswick, 422; Lyons, New Brunswick, 418.5; Rooney, New Brunswick, 415.

The summaries of the events were as follows:

Standing Broad Jump—Won by Lyons, of New Brunswick; Bristol, of Plainfield, second; Carroll, of Plainfield, third. Distance, 8 feet, 11½ inches.

Putting the Shot—Won by Smith, of Plainfield; Thompson, of New Brunswick, second; Carroll, of Plainfield, third. Distance, 37 feet, 2½ inches.

Standing High Jump—Won by Carroll, of Plainfield; Lyons and Thompson, New Brunswick, tie for second. Height, 4 feet, 3 inches.

Running High Kick—Won by Bristol, of Plainfield; Carroll, of Plainfield, second; Lyons and Rooney, of New Brunswick, tie for third. Height, 8 feet, 2 inches.

Running High Jump—Won by Carroll, of Plainfield; Bristol, of Plainfield, second; Smith, of Plainfield, third. Height, 5 feet, 3 inches.

Three Standing Broad Jumps—Won by Bristol, of Plainfield; Lyons, of New Brunswick, second; Rooney, of New Brunswick, third. Distance, 25 feet, 1 inch.

Hop, Step and Jump—Won by Carroll, of Plainfield; Rooney, of New Brunswick, second; Smith, of Plainfield, third. Distance, 34 feet, 11½ inches.

$500 FOR NEW MARKET WOMAN FROM CALIFORNIA

SECURED AFTER MUCH LITIGATION.

Mrs. Newton Secured One-Sixth of Estate Represented in a California Ranch.

Several years ago G. W. Newton, formerly of New Market, became a part owner of a large ranch in Colusa county, Cal., which was worth considerable money. Some few years later Mr. Newton died and letters of administration were taken out by his brother, Charles A. Newton. In the legal transaction, it is alleged, he tried to deprive Mrs. George W. Newton, who still resides at New Market, of her one-sixth share in the estate.

Mrs. Newton sought Lawyer J.P.D. Kirch of this city, who instituted proceedings against the administrator, Charles A. Newton. The case was in litigation for several months and fought bitterly. As all of the business had to be transacted by correspondence it was made just that more difficult. For sometime it look as though the plaintiff might lose the case.

Mrs. Newton was, however, greatly pleased Friday, when she received a check for $500, this being her one-sixth share in the estate.

He Will Be Hello Boy.

Louis Wortman, a young man, has been secured at the hospital to attend to the telephone. The duties in this respect have increased to such an extent that this action has become necessary.

MERCHANT TURNED HOST

WOODHULL & MARTIN'S CLERKS ENTERTAINED AT LAKE HOPATCONG.

The Holiday Financially Spent at Mr. Woodhull's Summer Home on Halsey Island—A Special Car for the Party.

Washington's birthday was pleasantly spent by a large party of Plainfielders at "Pioneer Cottage," the summer home of Floyd T. Woodhull & Martin, on Halsey Island, Lake Hopatcong. Mr. and Mrs. Woodhull gave a large house party at their cottage to which were invited, in addition to outside guests, the clerks and employes of the store with their wives and sweethearts.

The Plainfield guests left here in a special car attached to the 7:12 a. m. train and after a pleasant run of about three hours reached the station. Mr. Woodull's cottage occupies a commanding site on a small island three-fourths of a mile out from the mainland, and is one of the coolest and prettiest places on the lake. The cottage was built about six years ago when the island was a primeval wilderness. Mr. Woodull cut the first tree, split the log in half, smoothed it off, and now it is a mantel in the reception room.

The party, increased by other guests at different points on the route, were transported from the shore to the island across the ice in a large open sled, a novel experience for nearly every one in the party.

After the long ride in the train and the trip across the ice, dinner was the one thought in everybody's mind, and preparations were made for it at once. The party number 53, and ate in three companies. The table was tastefully arranged, and was loaded with good things. It was waited upon by the ladies. Clam chowder and tomato soup came first, and this was followed by roast turkey and chicken, with dressing, cold ham, corned beef and tongue, potato salad, Boston baked beans, olives, pickles and relishes, pies, cake, coffee, fruit, nuts, raisins and candy.

Mr. Woodhull went to the cottage February 21st, and when the guests arrived the place was warmed throughout. The day turned out so bright and pleasant that part of the time was spent on the wide piazza, which commands a fine view of the lake and mountains. Mr. Martin had his violin, and several of the ladies volunteered their services at the piano, and the day was taken up with singing and dancing. Miss Grace Allen, of Dover, a cultured elocutionist, rendered the party selections which were very much appreciated, and presided at the piano a great portion of the time. Mr. Martin also favored them with vocal music. After a day of uninterrupted pleasure, the party retraced their way across the lake and took their car for home, arriving in Plainfield at 8:45 p. m. Mr. Woodhull and his wife proved an excellent host and hostess, and everyone who partook of their hospitality returned home having had a splendid time.

In the party, beside Woodhull & Martin's clerks, were Miss Margaret Menaugh, of Hackettstown; E. M. Bartles, Mr. and Mrs. William Dufford, Mrs. Delph, Miss Cool and Mrs. Angie Sharp, of German Valley; Mrs. Lillian Johnson, Miss Grace Allen and Fred Allen, of Dover; Mrs. Campbell and Frank Cortwright, of Newark; Mr. and Mrs. Morris Barrick, of Dunellen; Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Allen and son, of Lake Hopatcong; and Mr. and Mrs. Edson C. Martin and a Daily Press representative from Plainfield.

The elaborate dinner was provided by Mr. and Mrs. Woodhull and the clerks, all of whom donated freely, and there was such an abundance that a lunch was served on the train coming home. Mr. Allen had his camera with him, and took a few photographs of the group.

It is a deplorable fact that there are a few lawyers who have been making lots of money out of damage cases, following the custom adopted by lawyers in large cities, to take one-half of the winning stakes. A bill has been introduced in the Legislature which provides that in suits in damages for injury to employes it shall not be lawful for the person bringing suit to pay his attorney a fee in excess of $100, except where the case is carried to a higher court, where an additional $100 may be paid. It further provides that the trial court, or court of review may allow a further fee of not more than $500, which shall be added to the judgment.

The thought seems to be gradually permeating the minds of Jerseymen that perhaps it is the best policy for the Legislature to meet and do nothing at all rather than to do much that is bad, as has been the case too frequently.

Another Commuter Councilman.

Councilman Frank Smith, who has been associated for fifteen years with the Potter Press Company, has tendered his resignation, to take effect March 1st. He will engage in the insurance business in New York.

A DECADE SHORT OF THE CENTURY MARK.

William Swalm Passes Away at the Age of Ninety Years.

HIS LIFE WAS A USEFUL ONE.

ONE OF THE DEMOCRATS WHO NAMED JACKSON FOR PRESIDENT.

Born in New York State, but for Many Years a Potter Merchant in New York City—Was Instrumental in Organizing Trinity Reformed Church—Remains to be Interred in Brooklyn.

At the ripe old age of 90 years, two months and thirteen days, William Swalm, one of Plainfield's most respected and honored citizens, passed away February 21st at 11:20 o'clock. Mr. Swalm had been complaining for over a year, but since last August he had been confined to the house and to the bed a greater part of that time. He was subjected to an attack of grip and this had a very weakening effect on him. During the past few days of his life he was unconscious and failed to recognize any one. His grandson, Walter Swalm, was watching patiently by his bedside Tuesday evening, and just before Mr. Swalm died it was noticed that he was sinking slowly and the end was near. Mr. Swalm lived a Christ-like life and such died. Thus another one of Plainfield's staunch citizens passed away.

William Swalm was of German parentage, being the son of Godfrey and Charity Swalm, who resided at Montgomery, Orange county, N. Y., where Mr. Swalm first saw the light of day December 8th, 1808. He spent his boyhood days at the place of his birth and left there when 18 years of age to take up his residence in New York city. While at the latter place he was married. He engaged in the butter business in Fulton Market and for twenty one years he remained in that business. He afterward moved to Brooklyn, then to Sing Sing, then back to Brooklyn, and then to Plainfield.

During his residence in Brooklyn he was instrumental in organizing the Reformed Dutch church, which now stands at the corner of Hancock street and Tompkins place, and is used as a Jewish synagogue. He was also associated with Benj. A. Hegeman, Sr., as a member of the consistory of that church, and he alone gave $6,000 toward the church.

It might also be stated that he resided with his family for a time at Ellenville, N. Y., and was one of the delegates that was elected to help put in nomination Andrew Jackson for his second term for the Presidency. Mr. Swalm stated that he cast his maiden vote for President Jackson. He was a strong Democrat.

It was always his boast that he had a personal acquaintance with General Lafayette, having met that distinguished personage at Newburgh-on-the-Hudson.

When he moved to Plainfield he purchased the Ephraim Drake place at Evona, where he devoted his time to light farming. He lived there four years. He lived for nine years where he died, at the corner of Plainfield avenue and West Front street. Altogether he lived in Plainfield thirty years. He was a faithful churchman and when he came to this city it was through his means that Trinity Reformed church was organized.

During Mr. Swalm's connection with the church he filled the position of elder. He was always a faithful attendant and was but absent.

In municipal matters Mr. Swalm took a great deal of interest. He served the city as a commissioner of appeal under Former Mayor L. Y. F. Randolph, and he also served as one of the commissioners on streets. He was the last one of eleven children. He leaves a widow, who will be 94 years next April; three sons, David W. F. Swalm, Everitt S. Swalm, of Brooklyn; Albertis Swalm, of this city, and one daughter, Mrs. Pascal Locke, of Brooklyn. Four grandchildren survive him as follows: Walter Swalm, Williams A. Swalm and Clarence Swalm, of this city, and Mrs. Ida L. Thomas, of Brooklyn.

The Jolly Whisters.

The Jolly Whist Club was delightfully entertained last Friday by Councilman and Mrs. R. I. Tolles, of Westervelt avenue, at their home. There were twenty members of the club present and everyone had a good time. Mrs. Taylor was the winner of the first prize for the women, while Mrs. S. C. Baker secured the second prize. Councilman J. F. Buckle was awarded first prize for the men and Postmaster E. H. Bird was presented with the second prize. Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Baker, of Fifth street, will entertain the club at the next meeting, Friday evening, March 10th.

Supper Netted $100.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the First Presbyterian church are rejoicing over the fact that they have realized about $100 net from the New England supper given in the chapel of the church last Thursday evening.

INDIVIDUAL CUPS AT COMMUNION SERVICE.

Agitatation Among Local Advocates Going on Quietly.

USED IN A LOCAL CHURCH.

SEVENTH-DAY BAPTISTS GLAD THAT THEY CHANGED.

The Fear of Communicating Bacteria of Disease, When Using One Cup for All Communicants to Drink Out of, Predominates the Minds of Those Who Want Individual Cups in the Churches

A few of the more liberal-minded and advanced thinkers connected with the evangelical churches of this city are quietly advocating the use of the individual communion cup in the religious services, instead of expecting all the communicants to drink from one, two or four cups as is done in every church here, with the exception of one. The subject being such a delicate one, and the churches being composed of many who are averse to any change in the mode of service, those who favor the use of individual cups are working without any unnecessary publicity.

Over a year ago the Seventh-Day Baptist church abolished the old-fashioned way and now uses the individual cup. Rev. A. E. Main in a conversation with a Daily Press reporter, said that his people were so well pleased with the new way that nothing could induce them to return to the old. There are two more churches here where there is a strong desire to follow the example of the Seventh-Day Baptists, and there is no doubt but what in time it will be. One church lacks the means; the other is afraid to move rapidly in the matter for fear of hurting some one's feelings.

The advocates of the individual communion cup point out the wrong of perpetuating a custom which, they claim, would not be tolerated for a moment in any home, that of permitting 200 or 300 persons to drink from a vessel without its being emptied and cleansed each time. They call attention to the fact that microbes in countless numbers inhabit our system, and pass back and forth, in and out of the vessels we put to our mouths, and that by the use of a common drinking cup at the communion service diseases germs are carried from those who are ill to those who are well. After communion services in churches in Rochester, a microscope revealed twenty-two living microbes, any of which would have worked incalculable harm in the system of any person who happened to imbibe them.

Physicians without exception endorse the individual cups, and it was through the efforts of Dr. T. H. Tomlinson, a member of the board of deacons of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, that the new plan was introduced there. The cups used are small glass ones holding about a tablespoonful of wine. They are filled before the service and placed on trays, fitted with little depressions to hold each cup steady while they are being carried.

When the time for service comes the deacons pass through the congregation with their trays, each one holding from 30 to 40 cups. When all are supplied the pastor gives the signal, and every cup is drained and placed in a little rack made for the purpose and placed on the back of the pews. The cups are collected afterwards and washed and scalded in hot water.

Those who use the new system say that it shortens the service and gives the communicant an opportunity to put his whole mind on the sacred ordinance, as he is not constantly thinking how he can get the cup and partake of it before his next door neighbor, who has a mouth full of tabacco, drinks from it.

In conversation with a gentleman whose antipathy to the public cup is well known, the reporter was told that some objected to the new way because only one cup was used at the Last Supper. This, he says, is not known to be so and even if it were true, when the churches introduce four or even six cups into the service for the sake of convenience, why not two hundred?

The study of bacteria is a comparatively new science, and numbers of people either do not believe in it, or laugh away the fears of their neighbors. For this reason the agitators of the individual cups are not moving rapidly, but they hope soon that public opinion will come more strongly to their aid.

Mrs. Hall to Talk in Boston.

Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, of this city, will give two informal talks in March, Thursday afternoons, at 3 o'clock, in Boston. On March 16th the talk will be given at the home of Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, 241 Beacon street, on the subject: "The Progress of Woman in the Nineteenth Century." On March 23d the second talk will be given on the subject: "General Francis Marion and the Huguenots of South Carolina," at the house of the Misses Mason, 1 Walnut street.

PARKS LOST AT WHIST.

PLAYED ROSEVILLE FOR STATE CHAMPIONSHIP LAST NIGHT.

Final Round Had to Be Played Over—Roseville Won by Score of 13 to 10—Will Meet Ridgewood—The Score by Rounds.

Newark, Feb. 28—The play-off of the last round for the championship of the New Jersey Whist Association was begun in the rooms of the Roseville Athletic Association last evening with a match between the teams from that club and the Park Club, of Plainfield.

The match resulted in a victory for the Roseville team by a score of 13 to 10. The first round went to the home club by a score of 5 to 3. Then they increased their lead by winning the second, 7 to 1. The last round saw the Parks brace up and win, 6 to 1, but the brace didn't come in time and Roseville won.

The Park Club was represented by its "pony" team, which is composed of P. B. Matthews, A. A. Freeman, Fred H. Freeman and Albert Woltmann.

The Roseville team will now meet Ridgewood and, if victorious, will get the State championship. A victory for Ridgewood would necessitate a match between them and the Parks. If the Parks win then, the final round would have to be played over a third time.

NEW BOROUGH SCHOOL TO BE READY IN APRIL.

BUT NOT ENTIRELY COMPLETED.

Regular Meeting of the Board of Education Monday Night—School Furniture Exhibited.

The regular meeting of the Borough Board of Education was held last Monday with a full attendance of the members. Considerable time was spent in arranging reports to be presented at the annual meeting of the Board to be held Tuesday, March 31st.

A number of samples of school furniture were exhibited for the purpose of giving the members a chance to select furniture for the new school. Nothing was definitely done in this matter.

Architect Wilson Potter, of New York, was present at the meeting and informed the Board that he thought it would be possible to take possession of the new school by the middle of April, although it is not probable that the school will be completed by that time.

The usual batch of bills were received and ordered paid by the Board, after which the meeting adjourned.

YOUNG WOMEN'S CLUB WORKERS.

Committees Appointed by the President Announced Monday Night.

A meeting of the young Women's Club was held Monday, at which the president, Miss Morraller, appointed the various committees to serve for the coming year.

At the meeting last Monday night the following officers were elected: President, Miss Morafler; vice president, Mrs J. E. Kimball; secretary, Miss Kragers; assistant secretary, Miss Whitton; treasurer, Miss Cooley; assistant treasurer, Miss Shannon.

The committees oppointed last night were as follows: Library committee, Miss Halloway, Miss Canes and Miss Walz. House committee, Miss Concert, Miss Ginna, Mrs. Rushton and Miss Oakley. Class committee, Miss Humphrey, Miss V oom, Miss Shannon, Miss Brett, Miss Eastmap. Entertainment committee, Miss Whiton, Miss Christianson, Miss Ellis, Miss Teller, Miss A. Gray and Miss Cooley. Membership committee, Miss Krager, Miss Kearnes, Miss Stafford and Miss Cooley. Reception committee, Mrs. L. H. Biglow, Jr., Miss Krager, Mrs. Kimball and Miss Lynch.

The club are looking forward to a good season of work, and having reorganized themselves, are adapted to accomplish it.

AGED FRIEND DEAD.

Phebe E. Vail Passes Away at the Age of 85 Years.

The death of Phebe E. Vail, aged 85 years, daughter of the late Joel and Catherine Vail, occurred Tuesday after an illness lasting one year with rheumatism. She was born at Greenbrook, but the majority of her life was spent in this city where she lived on Church street between Second and Third streets. She was a consistent Friend and belonged to the Friends meeting house on Watching avenue. The funeral services will be held from the Friends meeting house Thursday afternoon next at 2:30 o'clock.

Junior Class Entertained.

The members of the Junior class of the Plainfield High School were entertained Saturday evening at the home of Miss Alice Morgan, of Albert street. Besides the Juniors, there were a few other young people present, making twenty present in all. A very pleasant evening was passed.

"Hank" Southard Out Again.

"Hank" Southard, who sometime ago was sentenced to a term in State Prison on a charge of attempting to commit an assault on a young girl, has served his term and has returned to Plainfield.

HOSPITAL GOVERNORS UNABLE TO AGREE.

Animated Discussion Over Proposed New Buildings.

PLANS HELD IN ABEYANCE.

RECOGNIZED, THOUGH, THAT SOMETHING MUST BE DONE SOON.

The Present Facilities Are Inadequate for the Demands—Some of the Governors Want Proposed Plans Followed Out Entire, While Others Only Want Imperative Changes to Be Made.

One of the liveliest meetings ever held by the board of governors of Muhlenberg Hospital took place last Monday, but practically no progress was made regarding the proposed new hospital buildings now under consideration. There was a full attendance of the members and an exceedingly sharp difference of opinion was evidenced by the members. It was after 5 o'clock when the meeting adjourned and at that time the members were no nearer a decision than when the meeting commenced.

Some of the members are desirous of erecting the new buildings according to the plans furnished by a New York architect, while others, thinking it too much of an undertaking, are anxious to put up the building most needed at present and then add to it as it is possible to do so. The supporters of the latter plan say that there may be great changes in methods of construction later on, and they want to take advantage of any improvements that may be made.

This is what caused the difference of opinion and the argument was continued with animation. There were just enough members on either side to prevent a ultimate decision and hold the matter in abeyance.

It was a recognized fact that something must be done at once to provide for the increased work at the hospital. There are twelve patients now occupying space that was only intended for eight people. This state of affairs is a handicap those in charge very much.

Many of the members feel as though it would be impossible to erect all of the proposed buildings at once, but that the main structure can be built very soon. They are confident that the necessary money will be forthcoming to meet the present exigencies, but if an attempt is made to put up all the new buildings there will be opposition not easily overcome.

As the members could not come to any decision last night the meeting was adjourned, but another meeting will probably be held at an early date. In the meantime some missionary work will probably be done. At the meeting a report from the committee on the proposed new buildings was received, but this report was not made public, and it cannot be ascertained what the committee favors.

Charles D. Brodhead and R. R. Ackerman, newly elected members of the Board, were present at the meeting for the first time, and evidenced considerable interest in the proceedings.

The monthly report of the medical director at the hospital showed that during the month 18 patients were admitted. 12 were discharged cured, 6 were discharged improved, 1 not improved and 3 died. The total number treated was 44, and 23 patients remained at the hospital on February 21st. In the dispensary department the total number of cases treated were 26 and the total number of visits 106.

EIGHT CARS DERAILED.

A TROUBLESOME WRECK AT GRANT AVENUE STATION.

One of the Cars Turned Over on Its Side in the Ditch—West Bound Track Blocked—Broken Truck Was the Cause.

A small wreck occurred on the Central Railroad Tuesday, just west of the Grant Avenue station, and delayed travel of the two west bound tracks for three hours. Eight freight cars left the track, one of which turned over on its top and lay in the ditch. One of the cars was badly broken and wrecked, and the debris was scattered along the track for several feet.

The accident occurred about 4 o'clock. A freight train was going west when a truck under one of the cars broke. The train broke in two here, and the cars in the rear piled and ran off the track before they stopped. Most of them were empty. The wrecking crew was sent for, and by 7 o'clock had cleared the main west bound track, and by 9 o'clock travel was resumed on both tracks. No one was injured.

Engagement Announced.

The engagement of Miss Parrott, eldest daughter of Surrogate George T. Parrott, of Elizabeth, to Robert Eaton, clerk in the law offices of Governor Foster M. Voorhees, of Elizabeth, is announced. Both young people have a number of friends in this city who will be interested to learn of the engagement.

WAS ROASTED TO DEATH

TERRIBLE RESULT OF A FIRE IN SPRINGFIELD YESTERDAY.

John Smith Lived Alone and Was Unable to Get Out—Neighbors Tried to Rescue Him as He Feebly Cried for Help.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Springfield, Feb. 28.—The old Smith homestead on the road to Milltown, took fire at an early hour yesterday morning, and was burned to the ground, resulting in death to its only occupant, John Smith, eighty years old, who lived alone in the building. Spencer Cooper, a neighbor, was aroused by the crackling of the flames, and with the aid of Charles VanHouten, whom he awakened, endeavored to enter the building and rescue Smith, who could be heard feebly calling for help. They were driven back by the smoke. Part of the charred body of the old man was found later in the ruins.

The Smith homestead was an old-fashioned one-and a-half-story frame dwelling, and was one of the few houses left standing by the British Army after the battle of Springfield. It was built by Captain Scudder Smith, a grandfather of John, over 150 years ago. After the Captain's death the property went to his son Daniel, who married and settled there. Daniel at his death left one daughter, Mary, who was married and moved to Irvington, and three sons, Daniel, who is now practicing medicine in Newark, and John and Isaac, who lived alone in the old homestead. Some ten years ago Isaac died, and John had been living there alone since then.

WILL TELL HIS STORY OF THE LEHIGH WRECK.

TREGEMBO WAS SEVERELY INJURED.

He Has Left the Hospital and Is Now Staying at the Home of Councilman Compton.

Arthur Tregembo, of Shenandoah, Pa., one of the persons injured in the Lehigh Valley Railroad wreck at West Dunellen, who has been at the hospital under treatment, was discharged yesterday, but owing to the fact that he lost both legs and is obliged to use crutches he was unable to get away unattended. Mr. Tregembo is a member of the Jr. O. U. A. M., and while at the hospital he was looked after by Franklin Council, No. 41, of this city.

Councilor Ephriam Compton, of 1,322 East Second street, has taken Mr. Tregembo to his home and will keep him there until he is able to walk with his crutches. If possible Mr. Compton will get him to the meeting of the Council Thursday evening, when Mr. Tregembo will relate his story about the wreck and tell what he knows about it. He is a highly interesting talker and no doubt a large attendance of members will be at the meeting. Any person desiring to meet Mr. Tregembo can do so by calling at Mr. Compton's home.

WENT TO CHURCH OFTEN AND VISITED HEN ROOSTS.

COLORED CHARACTER IN COURT.

Said He Never Stole the Rabbit, But That They Couldn't See Him Anyhow—Must Leave Town Saturday.

"Fore de Lawd," quoth old J. C. Goldsberg to City Judge Runyon last Monday, "I jebah took Mose Quaas' brown rabbit. An' den dat litt'l nigger couldn't a seen me no how 'cause de doah was shut to a crack." Then the old colored man went on to tell the Judge that he was a Christian man, attended four services every Sunday.

Last July, he was notified that he was wanted by the police, charged with wandering about Quaas' domicile and appropriating the rabbit. He told the Judge that he felt very much depressed but went to church and returned home revived. He was ordered to appear in court last Saturday morning but failed.

Monday afternoon Patrolman Flanagan found him stowed away at his home, 301 Plainfield avenue. He was haled before the Judge, found guilty despite his protestations and the Judge gave him until Saturday to get out of town.

One of his neighbors has reported that Goldberg was prowling about the former's chicken coop a few evenings ago.

New Church Members.

The following new members have recently been admitted by the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church: Elsie Harman, 505 West Eighth street; Helen Harman, 505 West Eighth street; Lucille R. Ackwell, 344 East Front street; Mrs. Catherine R. Runyon, 330 East Sixth street; Anna Cornelia Runyon, 330 East Sixth street, and Cornelia Clark Sampson, 229 East Fifth street.

$4,000 for a Life.

The Lehigh Valley Railroad Company effected a settlement with Mrs. H. E. Welkel, widow of one of the victims of the recent wreck at West Dunellen. The amount paid was $4,000. Claim Agent P. J. Ferguson stated that every case of injury had been settled and that several families of dead victims had also been settled with.

LOCAL TROLLEY NOT TO GO INTO DUNELLEN.

No Transfers to Be Given From Plainfield.

RULE IN FORCE TOMORROW.

PASSENGERS FROM DUNELLEN WILL GET TRANSFERS THROUGH.

The Plainfield Street Railway Company Will Only Run Their Cars to the City Limits—New Rule Expected to Cause a Great Deal of Trouble—What the Cause of the Change Is.

The board of directors of the Plainfield Street Railway Company has formulated a new rule in reference to the running of cars on the West Front street line that is expected to cause a great wailing and gnashing of teeth among those people who use the trolley for transit between this city and Dunellen. It is an order which went into force yesterday allowing the cars of the company to run only as far as the city line at the outskirts of Dunellen, instead of running the cars into the centre of the borough, as is the practice now.

Ever since the Brunswick Traction Company opened their Dunellen branch and made connections with the Plainfield Street Railway system the cars of the local company have been running to the center of the borough, and carrying Dunellen passengers to and from this city for one 5-cent fare. This arrangement has been a great accommodation to hundreds of people, but in conversation with Superintendent Adelmann, of the local company, this morning a Press reporter was told that the Dunellen people living in the west end of the borough had been making a great many complaints because the cars of the company were not run to their end of the borough. Their action, he said, has resulted in the officers of the road being importuned and negotiated with unreasonably to do things which would lessen the service in this city, and they had decided to stop running cars altogether in Dunellen.

But in arriving at the decision they have enacted a rule which will cause a great deal of trouble, it is anticipated. That is, they will not give transfers for passengers going from this city to Dunellen, to be used on the cars of the Brunswick Company from the city limits to points in the borough. Through passengers going to Dunellen or beyond will either have to pay an extra 5 cents to the Brunswick Company, or else walk in order to walk to their destination in the borough.

In coming from Dunellen to Plainfield, however, another rule will be in force which is right the reverse. That is that the Brunswick Traction Company will give through passengers a transfer good to any point in Plainfield, which will be accepted by the local company. This arrangement is made compulsory on the part of the Brunswick Company on account of the terms of their franchise, which says that passengers shall be carried from any point in Dunellen to any part of Plainfield for five cents. In making the terms, however, the local company held the high hand, and it is understood that they exact five cents from the Brunswick company for every transfer which they accept, thus compelling the other company to carry passengers to the eastern limits of the borough for nothing.

But under this arrangement there is bound to be trouble, too. At present the Plainfield company run their cars under a headway of twelve minutes, but the Brunswick company's cars only run in Dunellen once every hour. As a result a Dunellen car will meet only one in five cars on the Plainfield line. In the interval between the running of the cars on the Brunswick line passengers from Plainfield will be in the same predicament that they were before the former line was constructed, when all passengers had to walk from the city limits.

SUMMER HOME BURNED.

Union Village Fire Supposed to Have Been Started by Tramps.

Union Village, Feb. 28.—The furnished summer residence of Manning Hanvill, a New York optician, was totally destroyed by fire at 3 o'clock this morning. The fire is supposed to have been started by tramps. The house and its contents were entirely consumed. The loss will reach $5,000.

Mr. Hanvill is now living in New York while his place of business is on Twenty-third street, New York City. He was notified regarding the fire this morning.

Contract for Building Street Railway.

L. W. Serrel, Jr., of this city, has received the contract for the construction of the Scotch Plains extension of the Plainfield Street Railway Company. He is now making plans to commence the work. There has been a considerable increase in the price of steel rails of late, and it may that the work may be delayed a little in the hope that the prices will drop before the material is needed.

A Prominent Physician.

A prominent New York physician in discussing the merits of Ripans Tabules with a brother M. D. said: "Several years ago I asserted that if one wished to become a philanthropist, and do a beneficent deed—one that would help the whole human race—nothing could be better than to procure the Roosevelt Hospital prescription, which is the basis of the Ripans Tabules, and cause it to be put up in the form of a ketchup and distributed among the poor."

Sales Increasing.

The largest retail drug store in America is that of Hegeman & Co., on Broadway in New York City. A reporter who went there to learn how Ripans Tabules were sold, bought a five-cent carton and asked: "Do you have much call for them?"

He was referred to a gentleman who proved to be the head of the department.

He said: "The sale of Ripans Tabules is constant and is increasing, due especially to the influential character of the testimonials in the daily press, and growing out of these, through the recommendation of friend to friend. Satisfaction with them is very general. When once they are begun I notice that a permanent customer for them is made. This, I believe, is through their intrinsic merit, which proves the basis for character of the advertising. I think them specially useful in the general run of stomach troubles."

An Elderly Lady.

An elderly lady living at Fordham Heights, a part of New York City, and who was known to be a warm advocate of Ripans Tabules for any case of liver trouble or indigestion, said to a reporter who visited her for the purpose of learning the particulars of her case: "I had always employed a physician and did so on the last occasion, but I felt I was, at that time obtained no beneficial results. I had never had any faith in patent medicines, but having seen Ripans Tabules recommended very highly in the New York Herald concluded to give them a trial, and found they were just what my case demanded. I have never employed a physician since, and that means a saving of $3 a call. A dollar's worth of Ripans Tabules lasts me a month, and I would not be without them for more if it were my last dollar." At the time of this interview there were present two daughters who specially urging objected to their advertising a testimonial which should parade his name in the newspapers, but to do this the elder lady argued: "There are many who suffer as I have, and I am sure I take great pleasure in recommending the Tabules to any one afflicted as I was. If the telling about me has been the means of enabling some other person similarly afflicted to be as greatly benefited as I have been, I see no objection." The daughters, knowing her earnestly good will about the benefit she had received, decided she was quite right.

TEN FOR FIVE CENTS RIPANS ONE GIVES RELIEF

A new style packet containing five tablets (enough for any ordinary occasion) has just been placed in the market, and can be had of any druggist. This new packet is for the convenience of customers who do not wish to purchase the dozen carton. The 60 (6 dozen) box is for families and those who use the tabules frequently. Ripans Tabules are sold by druggists. The five-cent packet can be had at the nearest druggist's, or by sending to the Ripans Chemical Co., No. 10 Spruce Street, New York—or a single sample will be sent for 10 cents. Ripans Tabules may be had by mail (carton) at 60 cents. Five grains flavor.

SPEER'S GRAPE WINES. ALSO UNFERMENTED GRAPE JUICE, And ★★★ Climax Brandy.

SPEER'S PORT GRAPE WINE
NINE YEARS OLD.

THIS CELEBRATED WINE is the pure juice of the Concord grape, matured in the wine yards, and left to rest in the wood for nine years previous to bottling. Its flavor and purity result before delivery. It is invaluable

Twenty-nine years' extensive Properties are unsurpassed by the other wines in the world, being produced under Mr. Speer's personal supervision, and from grapes grown on his own vineyards. Its purity and genuineness are guaranteed by the principal Hospitals in the United States, where it have examined it. It is particularly beneficial to the aged, debilitated and infirm, as in every respect it is A WINE TO BE RELIED ON.

Upon the signature of Alfred Speer, Passaic, N. J., is affixed to the outer wrapper of each bottle.

Speer's (Socialite) Claret
Is held in high estimation for its richness as a Dry Table Wine, and for its delicate flavor.

Speer's P. J. Sherry
Is a wine of superior Character and partakes of the rich qualities of the grape from which it is made.

Speer's ★★★ Climax Brandy
IS A PURE distillation of the grape, and stands unrivalled in this country for medicinal purposes, and equal in quality to the celebrated Vintage Cognac Brandies of France, from which it cannot be distinguished.

SOLD BY DRUGGISTS AND GROCERS WHO KEEP FIRST CLASS WINES.

HEAT YOUR HOUSE

with Sunshine Parlor Heater or stove; there are NONE BETTER. Othello, the highest grade portable range, Canopy and Manhattan ranges are the favorites at moderate prices.

FOR SALE AT
A. M. GRIFFEN'S,
119 East Front st.
Telephone Call, 6.

FARMERS' WIVES
or any other ladies who wish to work
Can Earn Lots of Money
working for us in spare time at home on our cloths. We offer you a good chance to make plenty of spending money easily, in leisure hours. Send 12c, for cloth and full directions for work, and commence at once. Cloth sent anywhere. Address
WINOOSKET CO. (225 C) Boston, Mass. Mfg. Dept.

VICK'S SEEDS
Bulbs and Plants have gone to thousands of satisfied Customers for a half century and to introduce them to thousands more we have issued a Special Golden Wedding Edition of Vick's Garden and Floral Guide
which is a work of art. It has 64 pages handsomely set in colors, 4 pages steel engravings, and is filled with hundreds half-tone illustrations of Flowers, Vegetables, Plants, Bulbs, Roses, etc., and tells how to grow and get them. A marvel in Catalogue making; an authority on all subjects appertaining to the culture of flowers for the home, and a descriptive catalogue of all that is desirable. It is too expensive to give away indiscriminately, but we will send it to our friends and to any guests to have a copy, therefore we will send the Guide with a $1.25 Bill for 25 cents worth of flower and vegetable seeds 15 cts
It tells how credit is given for full amount of purchase to be buy other goods.
Vick's Little Gem Catalogue
A perfect little gem of a price list. It is simply the Guide condensed. Handsomely illustrated. FREE and in handy shape for reference.
Vicks Monthly Magazine.
Twelve months' reading matter. Profusely illustrated, improved, and up to date as all subjects relating to Gardening, Horticulture, etc. Keep by subscription price 50 cents a year.
Special trial offer—Send 10c for the Magazine one year and a Vick's Garden and Floral Guide, for 25 cents.
OUR NEW PLAN of mailing Vegetable Seeds gives you more for 5 cts. than money than any other seed house in America.
JAMES VICK'S SONS, ROCHESTER, N. Y.

Children Cutting Teeth
Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used for over Fifty Years by Millions of Mothers for their Children while Teething, with Perfect Success. It Soothes the Child, Softens the Gums, Allays all Pain, Cures Wind Colic, and is the best remedy for Diarrhœa. Sold by druggists in every part of the world. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

Quality Rather Than Quantity.
President Eliot of Harvard, says: "The International is a wonderfully complete, concentrated source of accurate information."
WEBSTER'S INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY
Best for the Household.
Words are easily found. Pronunciation is easily ascertained. Meanings are easily learned. The growth of words is easily traced, and excellence of quality rather than superfluity of quantity characterizes its every department.
Specimen pages sent on application to G. & C. MERRIAM CO., Publishers, Springfield, Mass.

W. B. CODINGTON,
Counsellor-at-Law
Commissioner of Deeds, Master-in-Chancery, Notary Public. Offices Corner of Park avenue and Second street.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

VOL. XXXII. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, MARCH 9, 1899. NO. 10.

"Support the Constitution Which is the Cement of the Union, as Well in Its Limitations as in Its Authorities."—Madison.

EXCITEMENT BROUGHT ON A SUDDEN DEATH

Randolph Runyon Stricken While Climbing Into a Wagon.

HORSE HAD BEEN PLUNGING

A WEAK HEART WAS EXERTED AND DID THE FATAL WORK.

Mr. Runyon Has Been in Ill Health for Some Time, But His Condition Was Not Considered Serious — Born and Brought Up in Dunellen—Leaves a Widow and Three-Year-Old Child.

Dunellen, March 8.—A sudden death that has saddened this community occurred here yesterday afternoon after 1 o'clock. Randolph Runyon, whose untimely death it was that occurred, was in good health and spirits at noon yesterday, but a little excitement caused by a fractious horse was too much for his weak heart, and in five minutes after the first symptoms appeared Mr. Runyon was dead.

For several years past Mr. Runyon has not been in the best of health and for the last two months has been confined to the house, unable to do anything that required exertion. The physicians said it was heart trouble and warned him against any unnecessary excitement or worry. Within the past week Mr. Runyon grew better and was so well yesterday morning that he went to one of the stores to do some shopping. After dinner he came out again, and he and his brother were preparing to drive to the Samptown cemetery to see about stoning up a vault for the late Peter Finger, of Washingtonville.

As the horse was led from the stable towards the street a loose curtain on the back of a wagon startled the animal. Randolph reached out and seized the animal by the head, and after a short struggle succeeded in subduing him. Then walking towards the buggy to take his place inside, he suddenly fell forward and clutched at one of the wheels, but his grasp loosened, and he would have fallen had not Firman Giles and Arthur Giles, who were standing near, caught him.

He was carried into Walter Runyon's office, a few feet away, and Dr. Brakeley summoned, but in a few minutes after the unconscious spell came he died. The remains were taken home soon after, but not before Mrs. Annie Tinsman had reached the house and told the sad news to his wife. Arrangements will be made today for the funeral.

The deceased was about 28 years of age and was a member of William G. Holton Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., and Rockview Council, D. of L. From the first the widow will receive $250, and from the other $200.

Mr. Runyon was born and brought up in Dunellen, and is one of the three sons of Eugene Runyon. He was educated in the schools here and when of age went to work with his brother, Walter G. Runyon, the undertaker, and was in his employ when he died. The deceased married Ernestine, one of George Giles' daughters, and they have one child, a three-year-old girl.

TRACTION TREASURER MISSING.

Carried Considerable Money and May Have Met With Some Mishap.

Elizabeth, March 8.—Charles B. Reed, who for three years has been cashier and treasurer for the North New Jersey Traction Company, has not been at his office since last Thursday. Mr. Reed is about thirty years old, is married, and his home is on Mulberry street, Newark.

Mr. Reed was in the habit of carrying large sums of money belonging to the company between the Elizabeth office and the main offices in Newark, and his family fears that some mishap may have befallen him.

A Kipling Evening.

The members of the Quill Club held a "Kipling Evening" Tuesday at the regular meeting of the club. The famous "Recessional" was sung by the Quill Club Quartette, assisted by Stacy Reynold's. "The White Man's Burden" and other characteristics selections by Kipling were read together with several sketches of his life and character and literary comparisons.

Speaks Twenty-seven Dialects.

Charles A. Swan, missionary from Africa, will lecture at the Y. M. C. A. on Thursday evening with lime light views. Meeting commences at 7:45 p. m. All are cordially invited. Mr. Swan is an Englishman and speaks twenty-seven African dialects.

Miss Ella Conkey, of Fourth street, is visiting Brooklyn friends.

FORMER PLAINFIELDER DIED WHILE AT WORK.

EMPLOYED IN S. A. GINNA'S SHOP.

Patrick Brenley Sat Conversing With a Fellow Employe When Death Overtook Him.

On Monday last in New York occurred the sudden death of Patrick Brenley, aged 50 years, a former resident of Plainfield. Mr. Brenly was for many years employed at the home of Stephen A. Ginna, of Watchung avenue, after which Mr. Ginna gave him employment in his factory in New York city, where he was a faithful and efficient employee, having charge of one of the floors. Monday morning he went to work as usual and greeted his fellows as was his custom. Soon afterward he took a seat on a packing case and was conversing with a shipping clerk. A few minutes later he fell backward. He was picked up by his fellows and laid on the floor and an examination showed that life had left the body. He leaves a wife and three children.

SALE FIRST, THEN FIGHT

PROPERTY OF BARD COMPANY TO BE SOLD AT ONCE.

Will be Disposed of as Advantageously as Possible, Then the Contestants Will Scramble After the Cash Proceeds.

The combatants in the warfare over the goods of the defunct Bard Company have agreed to an armistice. After each side has been checkmated in its efforts to sell the property under its claim, they have now all agreed it the better plan to sell the goods under the most favorable circumstances first and then fight over the final distribution of the proceeds afterwards.

The last step, before the making of the armistice, was taken Tuesday but did not go into effect until yesterday in the application of the mortgagee in the case, the First National Bank, through its lawyer, Former Judge W. M. Stillman. Sheriff Kirk replevined the goods in question this morning and took them out of the hands of Constable Mattox, who was constable for the execution.

As a result of the armistice the property belonging to the company is to be placed in the hands of George W Wrennick, vice-president of the Bard Company. Mr. Wrennick will open the store and dispose of the goods at very reasonable terms. The contestants in the matter realize that every day that the property is held it decreases in value in comparison with the new and improved stock that is constantly appearing on the market. An auction sale usually disposes of the goods far below market value. So Mr. Wrennick, who is particularly competent to take charge, will dispose of the property remaining for cash. After everything is sold then the warfare will be resumed and the money from the sale of the property will be held until the case is settled by the courts. Meanwhile the store will open for trade tomorrow.

TROLLEY TO LAKE HOPATCONG?

New Rumors That a Line Is to Be Built from Newark

Morristown, March 8.—A strong rumor has been revived that during the coming summer a trolley line will be constructed from Newark to Lake Hopatcong, via Morristown and Dover. Recent extensive improvements in the plant of the Morristown Electric Light and Power Company, such as the addition of new and powerful engines and motors, also the erection of Hazelton porcupine boilers with larger capacity, and the reorganization of the Dover Electric Light and Power Company, lend considerable color to the general opinion that these plants are to be used to supply power to the proposed trolley line.

The officials of both companies decline to discuss anything bearing upon the future business arrangements of the companies.

Enjoyed a Smoker.

The members of John Hand Camp, No. 28, Sons of Veterans, met last Tuesday and enjoyed a smoker. During the evening there were several excellent speeches in the good of the order. A report of progress was made concerning the proposed soldiers' monument.

Will Re-organize the Militia.

Trenton, March 8—Governor Voorhees has appointed Generals Sewell Wanser and Spence, of the National Guard, as a commission to consider a plan of re-organization for the National Guard in this State.

A Popular Hotel.

The popularity of the Hotel Kensington is evidenced by the number of traveling men that stop there.

WHY JUDGE RUNYON DISCHARGED KENNETT.

He Explains Reasons to a Local Reporter.

LAW DOESN'T COVER IT.

IMPORTANT EVIDENCE THAT DID NOT COME UP IN COURT.

Judge Says That Police Officers Investigated and Found That it was Impossible for Anyone to Look Into Kennett's Rooms Through Windows—Present Ordinance is Explained by City Judge.

There has been considerable criticism of City Judge Runyon's action in discharging all the prisoners made by Patrolmen Totten and Saffron in their raid on the alleged poker game at the home of Stephen Kennett, 433 West Fourth street. Comment was made at the apparent disregard of the testimony of the officers who participated in the raid. The trial also made public a phase of the local ordinances heretofore generally unknown.

A newspaper reporter called on City Judge Runyon in his office Tuesday afternoon and interviewed him regarding his reasons for the decision that has caused so much talk The Judge was perfectly frank about stating his position.

Regarding his statement that the young men arrested at Kennett's house even if they had been gambling were not violating the city ordinances, the Judge said that such was the only interpretation that could be placed on the law of the city. It only provided for punishing those who conducted the gambling houses and not the frequenters unless the latter were interested in any way in the proprietorship of the establishment Under the latter case, the Judge explained, came Henderson and his fellow colleques of the Neapolitan Athletic Club a month ago.

In reference to the discharge of Kennett himself, the Judge said that he was perfectly satisfied that the man was innocent After the men were arrested they were given no chance, he said, to make any changes in the house. When at the direction of the Judge the police accompanied them back to the house later that night, he had it on the authority of Sergeant Kiely and several other officers who were with him that the blanket had hung in front of the window as Kennett had told and that it was impossible for anyone to see inside the room. As the men were all locked up and the house kept locked in the interval, it was impossible, said the Judge, that the blanket should have been hung up after the raid had been made.

"Another and really more cogent reason for my action in this case," remarked the Judge, "is the fact that according to my interpretation of the only section of a city ordinance applicable to gambling. (Section 6 of the ordinance relating to the Morals, Peace and Good Order of the city.) the only defendant who could by any possibility have been held, would have been Kennett, who was proprietor of the house where the alleged playing took place. In his case I could not feel justified in holding him, as his house is in no sense a gambling house, and if he be liable, then every one in the city playing any game of cards in his own house, whether for stakes or not, is liable under this section, as the following language quoted therefrom, must make apparent. 'For keeping or causing or permitting to be kept a house, shop, room or place of any description . . . in which is kept any table or device of any kind, upon or by which any game of chance or hazard shall be played, any sum not exceeding $100 etc.'

"To my mind this section must apply, and apply only to such as maintain regular gambling places, in which I include clubs, where there is a common proprietorship and does not apply to private individuals who play games of chance in their own houses with their friends at frequent intervals.

"For the foregoing reasons and especially the last one," said the Judge in conclusion. "I feel absolutely justified in having decided as I did."

Getting After the Doctors.

Westfield, March 8—At a meeting of the Westfield Board of Health Secretary John M. C. Marsh was instructed to write to the State Board of Health and ask for instructions how to proceed against physicians who do not report births to the proper authorities. Births here are often not reported until months after they occur.

—There is at present a striking picture in the borough of the lamb and lion lying down together in politics.

LOCAL BILLS ACTED ON BY LEGISLATORS.

Senate Passes Measure Authorizing Bond Issue.

REBATE FOR TAXES PAID.

MR. MURRAY FATHERED TWO BILLS AMENDING ELECTION LAWS.

The Measure Authorizing a Rebate of Six Per Cent. on Taxes Paid in Advance Was Recommitted to Avoid Being Lost—City Will be Able to Borrow Money For Storm Sewer.

Trenton, March 8.—The Senate passed a number of bills yesterday afternoon that were of interest to Plainfielders and other sections of Union county. The bill authorizing Plainfield to issue bonds for the construction of a sewer to carry off surface water on Park avenue was passed. Under the provisions of another bill that was passed the Plainfield voters may make the salary of their mayor $1,500 or as much less as they desire. But it is not expected that Plainfield will take advantage of the law if the Governor signs it. The Summit city bill was also passed.

In the Assembly Mr. Murray fathered two bills amending the electing law, one requiring the announcement of the full title of each ballot counted, and the other providing that members of county boards shall sit from 1 to 9 o'clock each afternoon on the Thursday and Saturday preceding election day for the purpose of revising the registry.

Mr. Murray's bill allowing the authorities of Plainfield to grant a rebate for taxes paid in advance, at the rate of 6 per cent per annum, coming up on final passage, Mr. Murray advocated the measure, saying it was the practice in boroughs, and worked so well that Plainfield desired a similar privilege. His bill, however, is drawn in general terms, and applies to all cities. Mr. Guenther and other Newark members opposed the bill, saying it would affect that city disastrously. The money lost to the city under the provisions of this bill would be sufficient to build a new schoolhouse every year. The bill, they held, was bad, too, because it was in the interest of the rich taxpayer, and ultimately must increase the burden of the poor property owner. The 6 per cent rate was altogether too high. The fight against the bill was so strong that Mr. Murray had it recommitted for amendment. Mr. Wakelee's suggestion that the rebate be fixed at a rate not to exceed 6 per cent will probably be adopted, thus not interfering with the rate as fixed in Newark and other cities.

An effort will be made to increase the powers of the State Board of Arbitration so that it may be able to force its services upon manufacturers who happen to be at loggerheads with their employes. Senator Fitney introduced a bill which provides that the Board of Arbitration in investigating labor disputes may issue subpœnaes to witnesses, and in case the subpœna is disregarded application may be made to any Supreme Justice for an attachment for contempt, with a penalty of fine or imprisonment.

Senator Ketcham introduced a bill requiring building and loan associations to make an annual report to the bureau of statistics, such as its chief shall designate; he is empowered to require more frequent reports if necessary. Associations not reporting shall incur a fine of $10 a day for the term of their delinquency. An appropriation of $1 000 is provided in favor of the bureau.

Valuable Dog Returned.

The valuable dog owned by Hon Bourke Cochran, of New York, which strayed away from the kennels of J. D. James, of Sycamore avenue, was returned to the latter by O F. Pearson, the contractor, of East Front street. Mr. Pearson's young son saw the dog in an open field near their place and coaxed it to his home. When the elder Mr. Pearson saw the animal he was convinced that it was Mr. Cochran's animal. Mr. James paid the lad the $25 reward that he had offered for its return. The dog is worth several hundred dollars.

May Die by Degrees.

At present there is no intended action on the part of the Board of Trade toward disbanding, as reported in the News. The Board may gradually go out of business, but will not disband at present.

$700 For Uniforms.

At the meeting of Warren Engine Company last Tuesday the fair committee turned over to the company $700 to be added to the amount in the treasury to purchase uniforms with.

MR. MURRAY PROPOSES TO MAKE A HOT FIGHT

Determined That His Trolley Bill Shall Have a Fair Chance.

A PLAIN SPOKEN CIRCULAR.

PLAINFIELD'S STATESMAN DOES NOT MINCE HIS WORDS.

He Has Attacked a Vicious Piece of Legislation and He Does Not Propose, to See It Squelched as Most Anti-Corporations Bills Are—The Bill of Mr. Murray's Is a Just One.

Trenton, March 8.—Assemblyman Roger Franklin Murray has determined that his House Bill No 10 shall come before the House and either win or be beaten on its merits. The Plainfield statesman has made a fight in the House several weeks in succession to have his bill brought out, and there is a prospect now that it will receive early consideration. Assembly man Carroll held the bill up last week on a plea that he had an amendment to offer. The Hudson man is now keeping mum in regard to his amendment.

Meantime Mr. Murray has been working overtime in the effort to enlist favor for his bill. As a step in this direction a circular was left on the desk of each member of the House in such a position that the members could not fail to see it.

After calling attention to the vicious law which extends the time to July 1, 1900, for corporations to fulfill their contracts for building street railways, irrespective of whether the corporations have made a contract with a municipality for a quicker completion of their road, Assemblyman Murray puts down these questions:

"Do you want the contracts of your Board of Aldermen, Common Council or Township Committee extended and perpetuated in this way?

"Do you believe a contract entered into between your municipality and a corporation should be over-ruled by the Legislature?"

"Is this local government and home rule?"

Assembly Bill No. 10 repeals chapter 189 of the laws of 1898.

This bill was introduced in the Senate March 16, 1898, was reported March 23, 1898, read the second time March 24, 1898, was engrossed and reported on the same day and passed the Senate under suspension of the rules the following day, March 24, 1898, by a vote of 11 to 6.

The bill was received in the House March 31, 1898, the same day it passed the Senate. The Consolidated Traction Company did not need an extension of time to complete its railroad from the Senate to the House; it certainly has it laid before the bill was introduced in the Senate. It was reported by the Committee on Railroads and Canals immediately (the committee certainly had considered the bill before they received it, for we all know that the Committee on Railroads and Canals of the House of 1898 examined all bills with great deliberation,) and passed the House the next day by a vote of 37 to 16.

Assembly Bill No. 10 was introduced January 19, 1899. Reported without amendment February 7, 1899, passed second reading February 7, 1899, took three weeks to engross it and was reported February 27, 1899.

If you are opposed to Chapter 189 (laws of 1898,) vote for and speak for the passage of Assembly Bill No. 10.

The New Clothing House.

Schepflin & Schultz, the wholesale clothing merchants, have opened a retail clothing store in the Schepflin block, at 224 West Front street. It is their intention to give their customers the benefit of the commission that usually goes to the middleman and sell their stock at wholesale prices, coming direct from the manufacturer to the consumer. They have a stock of men's, boys' and children's clothing of great variety and are selling everything at prices so low as to astonish everyone. They deal also in gents' furnishings. Mr. J. Castin is manager of the new store.

New Telephone Line.

Westfield, March 8.—The New York and New Jersey Telephone Company will build a trunk line from Roselle to Bound Brook, which will parallel the tracks of the Lehigh Valley Railroad and connect all the small towns along that road. A great boom in the felt factories of Picton is expected, and thereby more direct telephone service will be required. The residents in each village along the line of the railroad are welcoming the telephone with open hands.

SILK MILL ENTERPRISE NOT DEAD BY ANY MEANS.

PLANT WILL BE PUT IN OPERATION.

Board of Directors Are Encouraged by Prospects—New Machinery May Be Bought.

Last Monday evening the Watchung Silk Mill Company held a meeting in the Board of Trade rooms and discussed matters pertaining to the starting of the proposed plant. There were signs of encouragement in the fact that several thousand dollars worth of stock was subscribed, and the chances are favorable for an early start of the plant.

Just as soon as the company realizes the necessary cash, operations will begin. As expert silk weaver has been secured, who will have entire control of the business.

There is a bare possibility that the company may purchase entirely new machinery for their plant, as there seems to be some features about the machinery now owned by the company that are not desirable.

FACTORY FOR GARWOOD.

BIG PLANT OF COMBINED ORGAN COMPANIES WILL LOCATE THERE.

Owners of the Concern Favor Garwood—Factory Would Cost $200,000—Would Employ Several Hundred Men.

Garwood, March 8.—Another large industry is planning to locate here and spend several hundred thousand dollars in the erection of a plant. President Germain and Superintendent Chase, of the Æolian Organ Company, of Meriden, Conn., and Treasurer Cross, of the Votey Organ Company, of Detroit, Mich., were the guests Monday of Superintendent Frank W. Morse, of the Garwood Land Improvement Company.

They came here with the idea of locating a big factory here. A combination of the Æolian and Votey companies has been effected and the combination intends establishing a large manufactory.

The visitors were much pleased with the situation and seemed of the opinion that Garwood would be selected as the site for the factory. The factory would cost $100,000, and when finished would employ several hundred men.

There has been a steady boom in real estate here for the last month. A number of new families have moved here and contracts have been made for a number of new houses.

BOARD OF HEALTH ORGANIZE.

N. B. Newhall Re-elected to the Position of President.

The Board of Health organized Tuesday, the following officers being appointed: President, H. B. Newhall; treasurer, J. Augustus Smith, registrar; B. VanD. Hedges, M. D., secretary; Wm. H. Murray, M. D., Wm. Addis, Sr. was appointed as Inspector.

The regular meetings of the Board to be held on the first Tuesday in each month at 8 p. m.

An ordinance providing that all pipes referred to in the plumbing ordinance shall be measured by their internal diameter was introduced and advanced to its second reading.

Fire Makes a Big Hole in Spotswood.

New Brunswick, March 8.—A fire which began in the store of Appleby & Dill, at Spotswood, ten miles from here, about 2 o'clock yesterday morning, destroyed nine buildings, including the store in which it originated. Five buildings formerly used as a snuff factory and three unoccupied houses. The buildings were all the property of Mrs. Leonard F. Appleby, of New York city.

Forty Lines All Cut Up.

Notwithstanding the fact that on the surface political affairs are apparently very quiet in the borough, there is a great deal of missionary work being done by both parties. That the entire vote is divided there is no denying, and the wisest of the politicians say that the tickets will be scratched more this year than ever before.

Engine Had to Run Backwards.

The 8:48 New York train pulled in the station yesterday drawn by an engine running backwards. The train starts from Dunellen, and something was the matter with the turn table, so that the locomotive could not be turned around. The trip to New York was therefore made running backwards.

An Ad That Had No Results.

B. W. Hand, of North avenue, lost a roll of money last week. There was $18 in the roll, and must have been picked up by a discreet person, as Mr. Hand has advertised for the return of the money without avail.

C. W. King, of Watchung avenue, has recovered from the grip.

BUT TWO DAYS MORE FOR ROESEL TO LIVE.

All Arrangements Made For the Execution Friday.

VANHISE IS TO DO THE JOB.

THE CONDEMNED MAN IS CLOSELY WATCHED DAY AND NIGHT.

Gallows Will Be Erected in the Main Corridor—Execution Will Take Place Soon After 10 o'Clock in the Morning and Witnessed by Only Those Allowed by Law to View Such Scenes.

Elizabeth, March 8.—With only two more days to live, the meantime being in the shadow of the gallows that will jerk his life out in a jiffy, Louis Roesel is enjoying life as well as a man can under such circumstances. At times Roesel seems wrapped up in his own thoughts and wants to be left severely alone; at other moments he is lively and passes the time away in cracking jokes with those whose whole duty it is to see that he does not cheat the gallows by making way with his own life.

Yesterday morning VanHise, the hangman, of Newark, visited the jail, and in company with Sheriff Kirk took measurements to see if it would be possible to erect the gallows he has instead of building a new one. He found in the main corridor plenty of room, and the timber for the gallows will be brought here today or tomorrow. The gallows will not be erected until Thursday night or early Friday morning. It is made to go together with bolts, and will take but a few hours to put it up ready for use.

The hanging will be witnessed by but a few men. Among them will be a sheriff's jury of 24 men, all of whom have been appointed and notified to be present at 10 o'clock on Friday morning next to be sworn in. Besides, three members of Roesel's family will be allowed to be present, two clergymen, four newspapermen and the assistants of the keepers and sheriff. Just when the execution will take place is not known, but it will be as soon after 10 o'clock as possible.

Now that preparations are about made for the hanging, Sheriff Kirk has doubled the number of the death watch in the daytime. Two men watch Roesel by day and two by night. His every move is most closely watched, but there is little to do, for Roesel, when not laughing and joking with his guard, is spending his time in writing and talking with Rev. I. M. Phelps, his spiritual adviser. He still adheres to his statement that he will meet his fate like a man, and will not make any trouble for anyone.

Sheriff Kirk is already beginning to wish the affair was over. He is greatly bothered with persons who want to witness the hanging.

WRIT DISMISSED.

Important Decision in the Action of Robinson Against Randolph.

Trenton, March 8—Lawyer Winfield S. Angleman appeared before the Court of Errors and Appeals yesterday to argue in the case of Peter Robinson against former Mayor L. V. F. Randolph, both of Plainfield. Robinson sued the defendant for $2 000 damages in the Union County Court and succeeded in getting a verdict of $50. The defendant carried the case in the Court of Errors and Appeals to secure a new trial.

Mr. Angleman made an exhaustive argument in the case and succeeded in having the writ dismissed, which is considered a victory for the plaintiff. Former Congressman Dunn, of Elizabeth, represents Mr. Randolph, but it is not known whether he will contest the verdict any further.

TO ELECT SCHOOL TRUSTEES.

Five Members of the Borough Board of Education to be Chosen

The annual meeting for the election of five members of the Board of Education of the borough will be held Tuesday evening, March 21st, in the schoolhouse on Somerset street at 8 o'clock. The polls will remain open one hour and as much longer as may be necessary to enable all voters present to cast their ballots. At the meeting will be submitted the question of voting a tax to pay teachers salaries and the current expenses of the school, the amount thought necessary being $10,000, also a tax to provide free text books and other supplies, this amount thought necessary being $1 200. In all the total amount thought necessary to raise is $13,000.

B. A. Bogeman, Jr., of the borough, has returned from a business trip to Buffalo.

THE VALUE OF MEAT.

ITS NUTRITIVE VALUE HAS BEEN ESTABLISHED.

Actual Value Canned Meats—Investigations That Have Been Made by the Government—Some of the Soluble Matter Removed by Cooking Is Nutriment.

A discussion has arisen regarding meats, both canned and refrigerated, that have been furnished the United States troops to supply the army and navy during the late war with Spain. The effect of this discussion might be productive of good, were conclusions reached after testimony was presented; but as loose generalities are taking the place of sworn evidence, the trade and commerce of the country are threatened and the agricultural interests, of the vast west especially, are being seriously imperiled.

Take, for instance, the important article of canned meats, and how few there are, even of those who have constantly used them, who know anything of their actual nutritive value. Most of the comment now indulged in discloses the densest ignorance as to the scientific data upon which their value is based. These data are established so thoroughly that they are now, and for a long time have been, placed beyond the realm of doubt and have reached that condition outside even of discussion. Careful scientific work in this country and exhaustive expert research on the part of European governments have resulted in authoritative conclusions known to be axiomatic and unassailable.

The United States government made a thorough investigation of the subject of foods and their nutritive values during the years 1890-1895. W. O. Atwater, professor of chemistry in the Wesleyan university, Middletown, Conn., devoted several years in this country and in Europe to this subject and the results of his work are published by the department of agriculture at Washington, and are standard authority. With European governments the food problem has demanded the closest attention. It has been probed by them until the very bottom facts have been laid bare. As Atwater has investigated for the United States, so have Dr. Soxhlet, Rueber, Ekstanzer, Stuhlers, Fassbenden, and other conspicuously eminent authorities, investigated for France, Germany, Austria and other European countries. Tests innumerable have been made in professional test armies, under all conditions of service—in barracks, during maneuvering in peace and actual war. Penal and eleemosynary institutions have been availed of for these tests and carefully recorded data for years affirmed and reaffirmed until their accuracy is now known to be definitely established.

The charge of inferior nutritive value when applied to canned boiled meats, needs only investigation for its refutation. Even a cursory study will be sufficient to establish their superiority, but reasons for this superiority may be concisely stated. Animal life requires three classes of foods—nitrogenous matter in the form of proteids, carbohydrates, as sugar, starch and allied products; phosphates and a few other salts. Meat is the chief source of nitrogenous matter as used in daily food. Its chemical analysis shows it to be composed of water, proteids and a small percentage of mineral matter. The maximum amount of matter in meat, soluble in boiling water, is four pounds in 100. The nutritive part of meat is albumen and myosin, the latter established by the fact that of these is soluble in boiling water. Upon immersing meat in water at the boiling temperature, the albumen coagulates, causing contraction that squeezes out the water, producing a shrinkage of forty per cent in weight. Less than two per cent of this shrinkage is due to the extraction of matter soluble in water; thirty-eight per cent is water removed by the contraction in cooking. None of the two per cent of soluble matter removed by cooking is nutriment.

The ignorant charge, therefore, sometimes heard, that meat has had all the nutrition cooked out of it is necessarily false in its implication. This charge is always maliciously or ignorantly made. The nutrients in meat are insoluble in boiling water. The value of canned boiled meat, as a nutrient, has been fully established by the most extended experiments in Europe and America; and it is beyond the possibility of dispute that ninety-eight per cent of the proteids of boiled beef, such as is put up in cans, is digestible and is assimilated by the system. So that it may be positively asserted that the nutritive value of the canned meat, known to commerce, is absolutely, at any stage of its manufacture, beyond the control of the manufacturer. He be honest or dishonest, he can not tamper with it.

Scientific limitations protect the consumer even if unscrupulous manufacturers desired to rob him. Tests that may be counted by the hundreds prove this. These tests are laboratory tests; they are exhaustive and practical, and are conducted by scientists with closest attention to detail. Every particle of food taken into the system and every article excreted is analyzed. These tests extend for months, under all conditions. Individuals as well as masses of people are subjected to them. The armies of Europe and the motley assembly of men in public institutions contribute to the unassailable accuracy of their results. And all of this great mass of scientific testimony proves, *beyond controversy, that boiled meat, in*stead of being less nutritious than uncooked fresh meat, is actually more so, for it is known that sixty pounds of the former contains as much nutrition as 100 pounds of the latter.

RAILWAY TO THE SUN

THE SEA IS A TREASURE HOUSE OF GOLD.

Untold Billions of the Precious Metal—It Would Make a Carpet One Thousand Miles—It Would Make a Girdle of Gold Coins Around the Equator.

It is little realized that the sea is a treasure house of gold, so incredibly rich as to far exceed the wildest dreams even of a mad millionaire.

Although in every thirteen gems it holds only one grain of pure gold, its bulk is so great that its 400,000,000 cubic miles of water hold in solution gold of the value of $5,125,000,000,000,000.

If this gold could be rescued and distributed equally among all the inhabitants of the earth each man, woman and child living would have a fortune of $3,416,666, and would enjoy the comfortable living income of $2,625 a week, or more than the annual income of five cabinet ministers at the first class.

Let us coin in fancy the sea's gold, and pile our myriads of coins into one stupendous column. Our tower of gold, standing on a base a quarter of a mile each way, would rise above the clouds to a height of 14,828 feet, or 904 feet lower than the summit of Mt. Blanc. To demolish and cart away our tower of coins we should require the services of 2,000 horses for every man, woman and child in the world.

If we make a carpet of our marine gold we should have more than sufficient to cover an area 1,000 miles long and 183 miles wide; in fact, to "gild" with pure gold the whole of Great Britain and Ireland, Holland, Belgium and Portugal, with a remnant of over 6,000 square miles of gold to spare.

With our golden treasure we could make a girdle of gold coins around the equator forty-eight miles in width, or as wide as from the Thames to Edmonton, or southward, to the outskirts of Croydon.

Similarly we could construct a roadway to the moon 251 yards wide, along which 150 carriages might be driven abreast in comfort.

We could make a railway track of gold to bridge the 91,725,000 miles which divide us from the sun. Our golden track would be 11 1-4 feet wide; and if in 1724, when George I had still three years to reign, an engine had started on its long journey from earth to sun, and had raced night and day over its yellow track at the rate of sixty miles an hour, it would only reach its destination as these lines are being printed.

As a final flight of astronomical fancy, let us construct two rails of gold coins each 2 1-2 inches wide, and on this track let us take a journey to Neptune, 2,746,000,000 miles away.

We should have quite sufficient gold for this purpose; but, journeying night and day at sixty miles an hour, it would take us 5,342 years to reach Neptune, by which time it would be best to think of the return journey.

To have completed our journey today we ought to have started nearly 1,000 years before the deluge, according to recognized chronology. We should in this way have escaped the flood, at any rate.

With our treasure of the sea we could buy the United Kingdom, with its land, houses and all its accumulated wealth of every kind, 82,000 times over, and we could furnish our national revenue for the next 9,000,000 years allowing for reasonable growth; in fact, a single minute's income from our treasure, if carefully invested, would be sufficient to meet our entire national expenses.

All the gold current to-day throughout of the world if collected together would represent only 1.5662 part of our myriad sea coins, and if the same amount of gold could be procured by our mints every year it would take them 1,358,960 years to mint a pile as large as ours.—Tid Bits.

One Social Phase of Army Life.

"It is true that a great deal of army influence was exerted in behalf of Captain Carter, whose sentence is about to be definitely approved by President McKinley," said a gentleman connected with the service, "but it wasn't due to sympathy or any disposition to condone his offense. In fact, the movement had quite a different inspiration. You see the army (of course, I'm speaking of the commissioned officers) forms a sort of big family, knit together by a surprising number of table-of-contents. A young West Pointer may do unlimited flirting in his cub period, but when he gets ready to settle down it's usually the major's daughter or the colonel's niece that he picks out for a wife. Well, the result has been that there is an immense amount of family pride in the service, and when a fellow like Carter goes wrong there's a general movement to hush it up. The army wants his case disposed of as quickly as possible, and realizes that sending him to prison is the best way in the world to keep it alive. He would be a standing advertisement of the whole affair, and when the emergency years hence it would be revamped, embroidered like all manner of tradition. So there is a unanimous sentiment in favor of firing him and firing him and forgetting him. As far as 'not being punished enough' is concerned, the people raising that cry have evidently never encountered a cashiered army officer. You'll have to go to some out of the way corner of the universe to find one, but after you do and hear his story, I'll guarantee that you'll shudder whenever the subject is mentioned."

The man who pleases nobody is really more lovable than the man who tries to please everybody.

AN INTERVENTURE.

It was a cruel thing that Harry Burton should have been called upon to fight a duel during the first six months of his residence at the University of Bonn. He was just an English public school boy, who might have made some show with the singlestick, but had no knowledge of the use of any deadly weapon. Least of all was he acquainted with the peculiar system of fence with which the German students slash and scar each other's faces.

The quarrel, too, was, as usual, about nothing in particular—the upshot of a foolish drunken row in a beer garden.

"What do you mean by staring at me you fellow?" said Karl Muller, who had had too much beer for breakfast.

"I didn't stare at you. You're not good looking enough to stare at," Harry Burton answered.

"Here is my card," said Karl Muller. "I take the liberty of calling you an ass."

"I don't want your card," said Harry Burton; and tore it into little pieces and flung it in the other's face.

Hence arose the quarrel, and Karl Muller had sent his seconds demanding an apology or reparation, and was walking about the University of Bonn boasting of his intention to disfigure the Englishman for life. For he knew that, whereas in Germany a scar got in a duel is almost as good as a patent of nobility, a slit nose is likely to prove a thorn in the flesh of an Englishman for ever.

"He won't fight," Karl Muller confidently asserted to his second. But the other was not so sure.

"He'll probably refuse the schlapper," he said, "but he'll probably offer to go out with pistols."

"If the young man preferred to be shot, we will oblige him."

Karl Muller was very deadly with the pistol, and Harry Burton's record at the shooting galleries was poor. So that it seemed likely that the young Englishman would find himself in a bad way, in any case.

"But he was a brave boy," said Gott fried enthusiastically, when telling me the story.

The confession pleased me. The tribute of a duelling nation to the courage of our peaceful countrymen is always grateful to the ear.

"Then he was willing to go out with pistols?" I inquired.

"Certainly. He was willing, and even anxious. That is not what made me say that he was brave. I said that because of the conditions that he made. At first I thought he was only playing—what do you say? playing a game of—"

"A game of chess," I interposed.

"Just so. I thought that at first. But when he found that Karl would not be—"

"Bluffed."

"He went on with the duel all the same."

"Tell me about it."

"Well, of course, as the quarrel was so foolish, I didn't want the duel to be too serious, and at the same time I didn't want it to be ridiculous. So I proposed that we shot each at twenty paces. Then I thought if they liked to miss each other, nobody could say that it was done on purpose. That was a good idea, wasn't it?"

I nodded.

"Well, this young Englishman wouldn't hear of that. 'That isn't good enough for me,' he said. 'Your man is a good shot and I am a bad one. At twenty paces he might hit me, and I should certainly miss him. That isn't fair. So I offer you an alternative. I'm willing to fight at fifty paces, where we should both probably miss, or I'm willing to fight at four paces, when we should both have an equal chance of hitting.'

"Quite so," I interposed. "That certainly seems like what the Americans call a big game of bluff. What did you do?"

"What did I do? Well, I thought that it was now my turn to play this game of—"

"Bluff."

"Thank you. Yes, I thought it was my turn to play this game of bluff. So I told him that to fight at fifty paces was ridiculous. I said that Karl would not hear of it. If he did he would be the laughing-stock of Bonn. It must be four paces, then, if your countryman insisted. In this way I thought to frighten him, and so make him apologise.

"You failed, I take it."

"I failed entirely. He just said 'Very well' in your quiet English way, and never turned a hair, but he went out at four o'clock in the morning and stood up to Karl's pistol at four paces."

"And then?"

"Well, the end of it wasn't so serious, because the other second and I put our heads together, and loaded with blank cartridges. It was the only way, because the German law would not say that that was not duelling but murder, and we should have got sent to prison. But your young countryman knew nothing about that, and when he started out that morning he never expected to come home alive. Oh! yes, he was a—what is the word?"

"A plucked 'un," I answered, and felt very proud of Harry Burton and the respect with which he had inspired the fire-eating students of the University of Bonn.—Golden Penny.

Mrs. Murphy—"The swate little babies!"

Mrs. Dugan—"They do be shot, an' nut's twins they are."

Mrs. Murphy—"Yez don't say! An' are the both av thim yours?"—Judge.

BRIAR ROOT PIPES.

AMERICA HAS LEARNED A THING OR TWO ABOUT MAKING THEM.

A Great Number of Them Are Imported Here From France and England But the Greater Number Are Now Made by American Manufacturers.

Not so long ago it was hardly possible to get a perfectly satisfactory pipe made from briar root, that did not come from the other side of the Atlantic, but the conservatism of the American briar, as it is now made, is beyond question, and it is now holding its own against the imported product. This is greatly due to improvements in wood turning machinery, by means of which American manufacturers are now making the greater part of the pipes used, and turning them out at a rate which a few years ago would have seemed impossible. The greater number of pipes imported here formerly came from France, but a good many were supplied by England. The wood from which they are manufactured here is still imported from Europe.

The best briar is French, but a good briar is produced in England and in some parts of Germany. The wood comes over in rough blocks, free of duty, packed in bags.

The bags hold from 200 to 300 blocks each, and the importation runs up to about 6,000 bags yearly. When the blocks arrive they are roughly shaped to shape the bowl and cut away the superfluous wood they are put into the "turning" machine. Another appliance reduces the stems and hollows out the bowl, after which it assumes some resemblance to the pipe it is intended for. It is then carefully sand papered and pumicestoned, until it is brought to the proper size. The last operation before the pipe receives its stem and trimmings is the drilling of the airhole.

The stems are made of either celluloid, bone, hard rubber or amber. Amber is costly, and is rarely attached to the cheaper grades of pipes. The demand is steadily increasing, and the American pipes are supplanting those of Europe in this market. Every smoker nowadays prefers a briar to a clay and some prefer it to the meerschaum. Much of the present activity in this demand is said to be due to the special importation of the last few years, which drove many people who had before then smoked nothing but cigars to the much more economical pipe. Another reason given by the proprietors of cigar stores is that the national habit of smoking pipes is gradually giving way to the influence of European fashion, and many of them prophesy that before many years the sight of an Englishman walking down Broadway smoking a briar root will excite no comment, since the custom of outdoor pipe smoking is already being treated with a surprising tolerance by Americans themselves.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A Chinese Notion.

The Chinese, so far as can be learned from history, are the oldest nation on the earth. They are, to us of extreme modern ideas, a strange people, and some of their ways and fancies are not to be explained. The most painstaking scholars and antiquarians appear to have failed, in many particulars, to discover the motives that actuate the individuals of this prehistoric race. Yet, doubtless, the economies that we see them going through in mining camps on the Pacific coast are all to them as full of meaning as the rites of modern religion are to the believers in Christianity. The Chinese, in some particulars, are not unlike the army of the orthodox in the church militant, who believe in a personal life of the present human frame in the world beyond. The Chinese custom of decapitating their criminals is one which is explained by the statement that they believe that the appearance of a person in the spirit world without a head is prima facie evidence of having committed some crime, and punishment is meted out accordingly. Hence, the horrible mutilation which took place on the evacuation of Shanghai by the Taipings, when the imperial officers gave orders for the decapitation of every rebel body, and even coffins containing the remains of prominent rebel leaders were broken open and dishonored to insure their punishment hereafter. Hence, also the anxiety displayed by the friends of officers who lost their heads during the rebellion to recover them and stitch them on to the bodies again, as much as one hundred and thirty-three pounds having been paid by the officers of the imperial army for the head of a friend.

Little Silk Hat Issue.

The man who has looked upon the curling iron in the hands of his fair friends with disdain will do well to try and let them operate upon him, for there is a handy little iron now for which he will find use himself. This is a minute silk hat iron which conforms to the shape of the various parts of his latest and most fashionable title. With the curling iron, it, too, has a handle by which it is held over the gas jet to be heated before being passed over the silk surface of the hat. For sudden emergencies this iron, which can be used at home in a very few minutes, will be found a very handy arrangement, and save much vexation in waiting for the hat man to perform an operation which should take but a few minutes.

Justice—"Have you any children, Mrs. Murphy?"

Mrs. Murphy—"Yis, I have two livin' an' wan married."

DARK SIBERIA'S LIFE

A RUSSIAN SURGEON TELLS OF EXISTENCE IN SAGHALIEU.

In the Flogging of the Convicts the Worst Criminals are Generally Chosen to Wield the Terrible Knout—Escape Is Out of the Question.

Passing a gloomy passage of the Alexander prison, I saw the walls are covered with black mold ness and reek with the strong scent of pine cones strewing on the floor. We find at the end of the corridor chairs and tables for the authorities who witness the infliction of the punishments; among the officials are a lawyer, the chief of the prison, and the surgeon, and a little way off is placed the "block" of threatening aspect, behind which stands the wielder of the knout, who awaits his victims with a curious look. His garb is apparently intended to make the situation all the more impressive; he wears a tall white head covering, soft felt shoes, a blood-red shirt with its sleeves turned up, and carries in his hand a knout. Along the wall stands a row of convicts with smoothly shaved heads, and facing them is a long line of warders armed with loaded revolvers in the hand. The silence as of the grave, which stamps all proceedings broken from time to time by the rustling of the handcuffs and the leg fetters, and by a furtive cough or rustling of the papers upon the table of the prison governor.

"Who will be the next?" is the question that, too, often seems to be read upon the deathlike features of the "arrestants"—

"Sidoroy" is called out, by the governor in a quiet, restrained voice. Sidoroy steps unsteadily and with an increasing totter and rattling of his chains out of the line of gray, long felt coats. I note his lips growing pale and the fear in his widely opened eyes, as though he were a hounded wild beast.

"Lie down!" is the command. Hastily making the sign of the cross on his breast, Sidoroy lies down at length on the bench, and throws each arm around it; he is then bound by leathern thongs to the bench, and his hands are tied together beneath it.

"How many?" asks the warder charged with counting the strokes.

"Sixty!" is the quiet answer of the governor.

"Look out," or "Pull yourself together," forms the general remarks of the knout wielder, and the next moment there is a swish in the air and thuds upon the bare back of Sidoroy, who utters heart-piercing shrieks. One, two, three—the warder recalls all the tale of the stripes, give none of which missed and leaves a black and blue welt. Four, five, six—that is followed every stroke has gradually become an unbroken howl and roar, and readers must have strong nerves if they can picture further all the hideousness of this diabolical form of punishment.

This sort of castigation is inflicted upon convicts whenever it is ordained by the law or by the police and local authorities. The dispenser of blows is always a fellow taken from the prisoners themselves, and in his hands the knout is a truly terrible engine, as said literally to flie. The knout consists of a thick wooden stick, to which hide strips inches long and two inches wide, and this thong is cut so as to form a three lashes at its end. A convict who retains the smallest degree of human feeling can never be induced to undertake this office, and thus only the most reprobate and hardened criminals are chosen for the dread work. To these human creatures the courts of Russia intrust human life. It is in their power to inflict only light punishment upon the condemned, to make him a cripple for the rest of his days, or to send him to his grave on the spot, and if the official is never deem it necessary to put any restraint on these doggers.

The courts generally condemn to flogging confirmed criminals, fugitives from Siberia and vagabonds, many of whom have received sentence of seventy-five hundred to six hundred blows. An old Siberian tramp finished his curriculum vitae with the following words: "I have received all told fourteen hundred stripes, and with the last hundred blows from the knout and numberless thrashings by sticks." As is to be expected, the statistics of the Siberian prisons show the futility of these punishments as corrective measures. In proportion as the punishments increase in number and cruelty so the the relapses and backslidings into crime increase. Nostalgia, or intensified home sickness, is curiously strong in the breasts of the Siberian prisons and will not be suppressed by the cruel system of whipping.

Hitherto we have dealt only with the knout, which is the rarer form of punishment, and must be ordered by a court martial. The corporal punishment by means of rods and sticks is somewhat different, for thy form the Alpha and Omega of the corrective measures in use in Siberian prisons. This form of punishment is regarded rather as a formality, and its effects are much worse than those of the knout, for it is meted out to all in the same measure; it needs not to be ordained by a court of law, and the victim undergoes no previous medical examination as to his fitness to undergo the punishment. Every governor of prisons can give thirty and every district governor one hundred of these blows, at their sole discretion. It is the naked truth that even criminals when grievously ill do not escape this punishment. A female prisoner in this district or Korsakov was whipped to such an extent that she fell down dead.—St. Petersburg Medical Record.

THE HAPPY FAMILY.

MRS. BEECHER DOES NOT RECOGNIZE SUPREMACY IN MAN.

She Believes in a Certain Equality Between Man and Wife, Though They Occupy Widely Different Spheres in the Household.

The best traits in a young man's character will naturally be revealed when, after intimate acquaintance with a young lady, his interest in her expresses itself in affection and an earnest desire to win hers in return. If at length this interest becomes mutual, with no desire to make a false impression or to appear better than they really are, both are likely to manifest the best and most lovable traits in their characters. For love, if true, softens and refines the daily life.

With the lover is this most emphatically the case. To him no effort is burdensome by which he can gratify her slightest wish, and the act of self-denial for her sake increases his happiness. But when the prize is won and the twain are made one—how is it then? Will all the kind and thoughtful, the sweet and graceful courtesies grow brighter and holier as the years roll by? Will the respectful attention and honor every true gentleman gives to woman be even more scrupulously given to the wife? If so, "then will sweet peace wreathe her chain round them forever," and the love born in youth will grow deeper and more sacred with the coming years.

But there can be no hope of true happiness in any household if marriage brings indifference, or the husband feels released from the necessity of ownership from giving the wife the attention and politeness he was so ready to bestow before marriage. The first year of married life is no doubt in some respects the most trying and critical. During the period of courtship and engagement young people do not really become fully acquainted with each other, because they then live largely in an unnatural atmosphere. There is a fairy-like spell upon them, which tends to hide, without the least intention of deceiving, all disagreeable or inharmonious peculiarities of character—and every-body has some. Life is then calm and beautiful, and in this new joy they are lifted above the many frets and infelicities that are apt to irritate and disturb in common life.

Many young people enter the married relation thoroughly ignorant of the duties connected with the new life upon which they are apparently thoughtlessly entered. The husband naturally understands what is right and honorable in his intercourse with the men with whom he may be associated. But, especially if he is an unfortunate, he does not always seem to appear to have no idea of the respect and attention which every wife has a right to expect, and which he as an honorable man is bound to give. A claim for wives respect and attention even should what is true gentleman will give to any other woman. I also claim that wives are bound by the same law, or true happiness and a true home can never be realized.

Both should be affable, courteous and kind-hearted to all with whom they associate, lacking in no kind and obliging act that can make all that come under their influence happy. But for each other, whose lives are now united, there should be more kindness and affection beyond what is ever seen in their intercourse with others, however worthy and well-beloved.

Unless children, growing up under parental guidance, learn by their parents' example the importance of the obligations assumed by marriage, the records of crime and cruelty that fill our daily papers will continue and happy homes will be "like angels' visits, few and far between."

Much has been said on this subject by earnest request and my only wish is that it should be understood that this manner of securing domestic happiness should be regarded as applicable to both parties. I beg for unity between husband and wife, not only in thought but in purpose. All rules for governing their lives, bound together as they are by their marriage vows, should be accepted by both unitedly, I have no battle to wage between man's supremacy or woman's rights. I simply claim that they should equally labor together for one purpose, the welfare of each, the building of their homes, working as one in spirit, but each taking the part best adapted to the abilities given. I long to see those united in this most sacred relation governed by the law of kindness and confiding love, to see the respect and consideration they bestowed on strangers and acquaintances blossom into riper and more tender respect and attention when bestowed on each other.

MRS. HENRY WARD BEECHER.

On Trial.

"Marian, here's a dray stopping at *our door with a piano, a sewing ma*chine, and a parrot. There must be a mistake in the number."

"No, dear, they belong to our cook. She's a graduate of the School of Cooking, and has kindly consented to try us."—Detroit Free Press.

Knew Her Business.

Aunt—Your bride, my dear boy, is delightfully rich and all that, but I don't think she will make much of a beauty show at the altar.

Nephew—You don't, eh? Just wait till you see her with the bridesmaids that she has selected.—Pick-Me-Up.

Easily Done.

"Before I can surrender this wig," said the desk sergeant, "it will be necessary to prove ownership."

The applicant removed his hat.

"The wig is yours," said the sergeant promptly.—Chicago Post.

LOVED BY THE GODS.

He was lounging in the stern of the boat, his head on the cushioned seat, and a cigarette, just removed from his lips, between his fingers. His eyes rested with affectionate admiration on the girl who finally opened her eyes with a cry of wonder.

"Goodness me! Where are we, Stephen?"

"Dunno, dear," was the lazy response.

"But we're out of sight"—a little doubtfully.

"You're with me and I'm with you. Isn't that good enough?"

"No!" with a contradictory little smile.

"Come here, then, and tell me what more you want."

She pulled in the oars, smoothed the sleeves of her white blouse, and rose and stepped over the low seat between them. He made room for her beside him, putting the cushion between her back and the hardedged board.

"What more do you want, Ruby?" he asked again, taking her arm and laying it around his neck. She looked into his face for a moment.

"Nothing in the world, dear," she half sobbed, kneeling his kiss.

"Are you so happy, Jessie?"

"Oh! far too happy, Steve!"

The swell from a distant steamer reached them; now in great waves, oily rollers, lifting the boat with grave and gentle dignity; then followed half a dozen quick, narrow waves, swinging her jerkily from side to side. All was still again, and Ruby looked at her eyes.

"Sleepy?" asked her lover.

"No; just glad, dear." So there was silence awhile. "Tell me something, Stephen," she said at last.

"I love you?"

"That's nothing!" she retorted, with a flicker of her closed lashes and a stirring at the corners of her mouth.

"It's everything, darling," he answered.

"Oh well, half of everything; then," she corrected, sweetly.

He bent over her, whispering unsteadily. "Ruby, Ruby, sometimes it all seems to be true. Do you think God loves better than other people?"

"I don't know about other people, dear," she said, "but we have got all we want."

"If I were to lose you, Ruby," he began passionately, but she laid her fingers on his lips.

"You won't do that, Steve, you won't do that! Oh, laddie, laddie," she cried, giving way to her heart, "you won't ever lose me."

Later, Stephen said, "You love me best when you call me Laddie."

Later, Stephen and flushed. "I forgot," she said; "it's one of mother's words."

"It's a nice word, Jessie. You must not let it get lost when we're living in London town. I'll want to hear it often."

The afternoon waned, but the warm haze intervened, so the sun's waning was unnoticed Stephen, looking at his watch, "so we must be drifting comfortably into shore."

"Very slowly, I'm afraid," said the girl.

"Are you in a hurry?"

She shook her head contentedly.

"Always, my dear, my dear."

A sudden clamp sound behind them made Stephen leap up. "Holy God!" he exclaimed, to the oars, Ruby."

A large steam yacht, with her delicate black lines and smart yellow funnel, was almost on them. Her whistle screamed excitedly, and those on board were shouting, and above the sharp ring of the telegraph signalling "full speed astern." But the small boat was doomed. Even as the yacht shifted her helm, Stephen took two rapid strokes in the same direction. "Don't look me, Ruby," he cried, "I'll save you."

But she clung round his neck. "You won't lose me, Steve?"

There was no tremendous crash, for the yacht had been going at half speed on account of the haze, but she had sufficient way on, despite her reversed engines, to upset the frail craft. At the moment of collision Stephen caught at a rope flung to him, but missed, and, with his sweetheart's arms about him, he felt beneath the steamer's side and lost the sea.

"Stop the engines!" yelled a man in the bows, preceding an awful danger. The captain had observed it, too, for again the telegraph rang, and the screw ceased to revolve. But a girl who looked over the yacht's stern gave a pitiful cry, and slipped to the deck in a dead faint.

Almost immediately a boat was in the water and the crew, with the owner, a burly American millionaire, sprang in and rowed astern. They had not far to go, and the silent people on the yacht saw the lovers pulled on board. It was then that the yacht's company began to see of the men of the party. "Ask the ladies to go below at once, sir."

Very slowly the boat returned to the yacht, and when it neared the side the two oars did not look up, and the girl's face, bowed down in the stern, sobbing like a child.—From Madame.

Polite Old Gentleman—I perceive, madam, that I need not inquire about your health.

Nice Old Lady—Thank you, sir, I confess that I feel ten years younger than I am.

Polite Old Gentleman—Possibly, madam, but you cannot feel a day younger than you look.—Truth.

Giles—I suppose you get paid for writing those magazine jokes?

Smiles—Sure. You didn't imagine I wrote them for fun, did you?

Giles—Oh, no; any one could tell that by reading them.—Chicago News.

WHEN.

When cherries grow on apple trees,
And kittens wear
lace collars,
And boys their sisters
never tease,
And bears wear
woollen wraps;
When all the nursery dolls and toys
Begin to dance and play,
Then little boys and little girls
May lie in bed all day.

When donkeys learn to sing and dance,
When pigs talk politics,
When London is a town in France,
When two and two make six;
When drops of rain are real pearls,
When coal is clear and white,
Then little boys and little girls
May sit up late at night.

G. Clifton Bingham.

The Snake's Tail.

The Japanese children play some good games that might help American youngsters through a wintry afternoon. The girls, big girls, too, have a very pretty ball game that they call "yemari," which seems in hand ball, but it is not at all the same thing as the hand ball we know. A number of them stand in a circle, one of them takes the ball—they use one about two inches in diameter—and throws it perpendicularly on the ground. As it rebounds she strikes it back with her open hand. This she does as often as she can do so without moving from her place in the circle, but when it rebounds nearer to some other girl—as it will be sure to do soon—it is the part of that girl to strike it down. So the games goes on till some girl fails to hit when she should, or to make it rebound, and then she is cast out of the circle. The game goes on till only one girl is left, and then she has the honors of the game, "kachi," or victory, as the girls call it.

There is another merry game called "catching the snake's tail." One player is selected to be the catcher, and the rest range themselves in a row, one behind the other, each child putting his or her hands on the shoulders of the child in front of him.

The catcher stands in front of the row some feet away, and when the row is ready the game commences, and it consists of the catcher's efforts to catch the last child in the row, while the row defends its tail, the snake's tail. This is usually the smallest child playing, for the row is graduated by size; the catcher must not push any one in the row, and the chain of the row must not be broken; either action constitutes a "foul;" when the "tail" is caught that child becomes catcher, and the catcher becomes the tail.

A variation on the game is for the catcher to try out that he will catch a child. "Which child do you want?" asks the head of the row, and then the catcher says third, or fifth, or whatever he will, and then the row tries to defend that child under the same conditions as before.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

Monkeys as Miners.

A traveler arriving from the Transvaal tells of an inhabitant of Pretoria, a gold miner, who owned two little monkeys—intelligent animals that were accustomed to follow him into the galleries. They saw the workmen engaged in picking up the mineral, and, in virtue of their gift of imitation, they did the same.

Distinguishing easily the traces of the precious metal they soon became expert collaborateurs and the proprietor thought he saw a career plainly indicated for other monkeys.

He procured a force of twenty-four of them, which, initiated by the two first, soon became so expert as to replace five or six workmen and to pick up the ore nicely in little heaps.

These monkeys, it appears, were very honest, not having been perverted by the human miners. They did not think of stealing or hiding the nuggets, they did not drink, they were not difficult in the matter of wages, they did not dream of organizing a syndicate. In short, they are model workmen.

Kitty Found Electrician.

An ingenious Augusta boy has found a new way of putting in electric wires that deserves to be patented. His mother had given him permission to have an electric light in his room if he would put it in his own wiring. In order to do this it was necessary to carry the wires from one room to another. How to do this in a neat and workmanlike manner was a perplexing problem, but the young man was equal to it. He bethought himself of a pet cat which was greatly devoted to him and would answer readily to his call. A good stout string was attached to Kitty's tail, and she was put under the flooring and called through from one room to the other. With the aid of this string the wires were soon in place, and in a manner, too, that would have done credit to the best workman in the city.—Bangor, Me., Commercial.

"So your new star made an instantaneous success?" said the manager's friend.

"Yes," was the reply. "That comes pretty near expressing it. She made a good impression when she did come on the stage; but it was all over in a moment."—Washington Evening Star.

A BOY'S KING.

My papa, he's the best cat man I
What ever lived, I bet,
And I ain't never seen no one
As smart as he is yet.
Why, he knows everything almost,
But mamma says that he
Ain't never been the President,
And that surprises me.

And often says talks about
How he must work a war—
He's got to tell for other folks,
And do what drives say;
And that's a thing that bothers me—
When he's so good and great,
He might find he's some smarter men
But I bet you they are dead.

Once when he thought I wasn't near
He talked to papa 'bout him,
And told her how he hates to be
The slave of other men,
And how he weighed that he was rich
For her and me—and I
Don't know what made me do it, but
I had to go sobbin'.

And so when I sat on his knee
I sez him: "Is it true,
That you're a slave and have to tell
What other folks to do?"
Why, he looked at me kind of just
A slave, it seems to me."

And then the tears came in his eyes,
And he hugged me tight and said:
"Why, no, dear, I'm not a slave—
What put that in your head?
I am a king—the happiest king
That ever sat held sway,
And only God can take my throne
And my little realm away!"
—S. E. Kiser in Cleveland Leader.

Care of a Locomotive Before a Run.

"Running the Fast Express" is the title of an article by George Ethelbert Walsh in St. Nicholas. Mr. Walsh says:

The engineer comes down to his post of duty nearly an hour before his train is scheduled to leave. All night long in the round-house the engine has been carefully watched; a wiper has spent the whole night rubbing down the panting, snorting iron horse until every rod and cylinder shines like gold or silver; the banged fire has been kept going so that a little steam has been always in the boxes; and before he left at night the fireman put everything in perfect order inside the cab. The fireman appears first in the morning, and inspects the work of the round-house people, and if any part is not satisfactory, he makes it so. The engineer makes his inspection after the fireman, and thoroughly and carefully examines every part. All the bearings are then oiled, and the oil-cups are filled with oil. Next, the engine is run out of the round-house and tested. Fifteen minutes before the time to start, the engine is coupled to the train, and the steam and air-brakes are tested.

No race-horse was ever brought to his post better fitted for running the course than is the locomotive of the fast express. In addition to the tests already made, a mechanic goes from wheel to wheel, and upon every one strikes a sharp, resounding blow to ascertain if the wheel and axle are sound. Nuts and bolts are examined. The engineer and fireman are held responsible for the perfect condition of the engine and cars before the start is made.

Curious Facts About the Toad.

The toad lives to be four years, does not begin to propagate its species until the fourth year, but then lays over 1,000 eggs a year. It has lived two years without food, but cannot live long under water. It never takes dead or motionless food. It takes its food by means of its tongue alone, and it operates this so rapidly that the eye cannot follow its motions. It captures and devours bees, wasps, yellow jackets, ants, beetles, worms, spiders, snails, bugs, grasshoppers, crickets, weevils, caterpillars, moths, &c. The stomach that doesn't find at yellow jackets, wasps, blister beetles, and click-beetles or pinch bugs would seem to be prepared for anything in the insect line, and it doubtless is. In twenty-four hours the toad consumes enough food to fill his stomach four times. A single toad will in three months devour over 10,000 insects. If every ten of these would have done one cent damage the toad has saved $10. Evidently the toad is a valuable friend to the farmer, gardener, and fruit grower, and can be made especially useful in the greenhouse, garden, and berry patch.—Galveston News.

Innocent Child.

"Papa," said Teddie, "little children ain't responsible for what they do, are they?"

"No, Teddie," said the sweet child's father, "their parents are responsible."

"And do little children's parents have to be punished for their sins?"

"Yes, dear."

"Then, why didn't you go out and kick yourself instead of jumpin' onto me when you heard me swearin' yesterday."—Cleveland Leader.

AN EXPERT TASTER.

A TEMPERANCE WOMAN WHO LIVES BY WINE TRAFFIC.

Has Scruples About Drinking But Must Live—One of Four Professionals—Her Sense of Taste Perfectly Developed—Has Won for Her Fame and Distinction.

To be a professional wine taster and yet a strong advocate and follower of the strictest temperance principles, to take wine into the mouth all day long and day after day and yet never swallow it, this is the paradox which Mrs. Frona Eunice Wait of California, who last week stayed at the Auditorium Annex, has accomplished steadily for a period of ten years. That she sees nothing at all paradoxical in this unusual state of affairs furnishes a fresh element of interest in regard to her peculiar vocation.

Mrs. Wait, who is one of the four professional wine tasters in the world, was originally a newspaper woman, and slipped into the work of critically tasting the wine which she had always before held in abhorrence, if not contempt, quite by accident. While on some reportorial work she was asked to write a book about wines and winemaking. Pleading her ignorance of the subject as a reason for the refusal which she did not wish to seem ungracious, she was surprised at an opportunity to spend six months in the vineyards studying the matter, and at terms so advantageous that she hesitated to persist in her refusal. By the time the period of study had expired she had book enough, as she was a recognized authority upon wines and wine flavors, although previous to its commencement she had never tasted wine. The work of professional wine tasting came gradually to her afterward.

At the present time Mrs. Wait, whose technical opinion is highly valued by wine students all over America, is making a tour of the country on a commission to lecture in every state, regarding the wine industry of California. The commission, which came to her unasked, from Governor James Budd of that state, was started under the auspices of the state board of agriculture of California, and Mrs. Wait was urged to undertake the work, because of her peculiar fitness for it. Regarding the growing of the vines and all the processes of winemaking she is decidedly enthusiastic, and she says there is no subject in the world more interesting, more wonderful, and more full of varied and changeful interest than that of wine. As to the effect the tasting has upon her health, she declares that it has none, for the simple reason that she never swallows the wine, or so rarely as to render the use of the word quite allowable.

"My sense of taste is so fine and so perfectly developed," she recently declared, "that I can tell a Napa Valley wine from that of the Sonoma valley blindfolded, although the two vineyards run side by side, perfectly parallel to each other, and I can tell a hill wine from a valley wine in the same manner, and this allowing for the two wines in both instances to be made from the same grape, the same blend, and to be of the same age. But to keep my palate in this exquisitely sensitive condition I must take the utmost care of my health, and I never do a wine tasting when I am ill in the world, or when I am travel weary, nervous, exhausted or in anything but a perfectly healthy and normal condition. In the same way and for similar reasons I would not take wine while I was on an ocean voyage, which greatly improves all wine good enough to stand the trip, and I am extremely careful not to partake of anything inimical to the wine before beginning my work. Of course that is the reason I have won for her fame and distinction in her unusual line of work, therefore, Mrs. Wait first assures herself that all the conditions pertaining both to herself and to the wine are as they should be. Then she tests—or "tastes"—the wine by means of the bouquet, the odor. This test satisfactorily concluded, she next tastes it in the ordinary manner. Only when she suspects a flaw of some kind, as over-acid, lactic fermentation, or some other undesirable weakness, does she allow an infinitesimal portion of the liquid to pass down her throat. Good wine leaves the palate and throat cool and refreshed; wine which is spoiled by lactic fermentation renders there organs hot and uncomfortable. So as a final test when the case is one in which the decision is exceedingly hard to render or arrive at Mrs. Wait sometimes allows a teaspoonful or so of the wine under judgment.

"How does this peculiar business of mine affect my temperance principles?" she repeated when this question was propounded to her. "Why, not at all. I never swallow the wine, as I have said. I am so strict a believer in temperance principles that I never take even tea or coffee, and in the rare cases in which I feel in duty bound to allow it, although I earn my bread and butter by tasting it, but my temperance principles by no means impel me to preach against its use as a medicinal factor."

Hints for Home Nursing.

Every housewife should have pasted on the door of her medicine chest, a list of rules for times of sickness, and for sudden emergencies. The medicine case, by the way, should be kept locked in order that juvenile fingers may not tamper with poison bottles.

In case of an unexpected chill from any cause, the never-failing hot water bottle (one of India rubber is best) should be used in combination with hot lemonade or coffee, and unless the difficulty is beyond home remedies, relief is sure to follow.

Hot black coffee is always excellent when an immediate stimulant is required as after a fainting fit or cramp, brought on by sea bathing.

After over exertion, a ten minutes' rub of alcohol and salt, followed by a complete rest and nourishing food, is frequently all the remedy required.

When a member of the family is taken seriously ill, and weeks of nursing are likely to follow, put the room in order quietly and decorously, so that the patient may not be annoyed by any confusion.

If the room is hot and stuffy, close the blinds, and sprinkle them well with water, or if there are no blinds, hang up green cambric and keep it wet; the fresh air will get through the wet curtain will be quickly cooled.

Clear out all unnecessary furniture, draw the bed out into the room, and keep the patient as quiet as possible.

Never put down pillows on an invalid's bed. Let the head be high and the pillows should there be one, and keep the under sheet drawn tight, so that there will be no wrinkles.

Ice is a luxury not easily obtainable in all places, and is one of the hardest things to do without. Where ice is scarce, hot water will prove more cooling than ice itself. Ice keeps well wrapped in newspaper, and little bits can be chipped off as needed.—New York Journal.

Calling, Not Saying Don't.

"What is your name?" asked some one of a small boy who was always being nagged. "Charley Don't," he answered, having in his cheerful imperturbability mistaken the invariable accompaniment to his Christian name.

But few of us have the imperturbability of this child under the dont's of our families or our friends. Some of us have our spontaneity crushed. Some of us grow rebellious and indignant and at last we go to the two opposite extremes, getting off our balance on the other side. And most of us grow self-conscious, and have periods in which we question every one of our best impulses, weighing them against our motives.

The development of many a young person sensitive to impressions is retarded for years by the thoughtless don't of an elder whose opinions they have been taught to respect. For many of the dont's are thoughtless sayings, which, had not force been a serious consideration. I know a wise old lady who said don't so many times one morning to a grown-up daughter that she detected herself in it at last and laughed. "Don't pay any attention to me," she said at last. "I only say it because I always have said it."—Harper's Bazar.

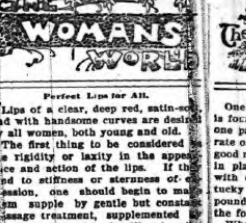
Good Taste in Stationery.

Emily Huntington Miller felicitously treats of good taste in stationery in the Chautauquan, and lays down the following canons of good taste:

"Whims and fads in letter paper rise and fall with other fancies, and there is occasionally a brief reign of scarlet or lavender in fashion's realm, but it is safe to say a certain grade of novels that the impassioned lover presses to his lips the rose-tinted, perfumed letter of his lady and wears it next his heart. To a healthily educated person a perfumed letter is an abomination, and a good quality of unruled, cream-white paper of such size as to fold once in the envelope is the only style that is sure of remaining always in good form. A violet sachet, with the faintest possible breath, laid in your writing desk, to obviate any possible odor from the sizing of paper, may be allowable. The monogram or other heading is a matter of individual taste, but must not be conspicuous, and once adopted should never be changed. It is a mark of good taste to avoid attachment, but it requires skill, and a shapeless blot of smoky wax can not be considered decorative."

A Dangerous Cleanser.

It is surprising, says a physician how many people persist in cleaning bottles with shot after the frequent cautions that have been given. Nothing cleans bottles so easily as a handful of shot, which can be shaken into every corner of the vessel. Fairly done with cleanliness, but the danger of lead poisoning is great, even when the bottle is rinsed out with clean water, and it is doubly dangerous when there is no rinsing out at all, as is usually the case. Clean sand is a convenient and thorough bottle cleanser especially as the particles of sand which adhere must be afterward washed out, to complete the process. When time is not an object, a bottle can be well cleansed by the aid of potato parings.



Perfect Lips for All.

Lips of a clear, deep red, satin-soft and with handsome curves are desired by all women, both young and old.

The first thing to be considered is the rigidity or laxity in the appearance and action of the lips. If they tend to stiffness or sternness of expression, one should begin to make them supple by gentle but constant massage treatment, supplemented by the cultivation of an intelligent smile. Not a perpetual grin, be it understood, for that deepens the lines around the mouth, and gives the face a haggard, pained expression anything but becoming. The smile to be cultivated is one a brightening of the whole face with a sensitive parting and curving of the lips. It is not necessary to stretch them.

Then instead of firmly closing the lips, as so many women have a habit of doing, the muscles across the jaws and hardness to the mouth, they should learn to bring the lips together very lightly, allowing that always agreeable dimpled effect in the corners. But where the mouth is inclined to stand open, with loose, undefined lines, the region around the mouth should be redoubled, using the treatment as a tonic to tone up flaccid nerves and muscles. With such a mouth the object must be to learn to hold the lips with firmness tempered by grace.

To this end thorough massage once a day, ten minutes should be spent morning and evening, standing before a mirror and with thumb and forefinger pinch the curves of the mouth, accentuating their delicacy and cleanness. Even this method has been given a fair trial, for one month, it is impossible to judge of the happy result.

The next point to be looked to is the attaining of that exquisite polish and satiny texture of skin, without which no mouth may be accounted perfect. To this end the lips should be bathed twice a day in water as hot as can be borne. Strictly avoid ammonia, as often and so foolishly recommended, because hartshorn parches and cracks the skin. A good white soap is all that is necessary for cleansing purposes, and it should be freely used once a day—at night just before retiring. After thoroughly drying the lips, gently rub on white perfumed vaseline or cold cream. It is well to anoint both the lips and the surrounding parts of the flesh before beginning the massage or moulding treatment.

The lips should be rarely moistened with the tongue, and never bitten or drawn between the teeth. Such treatment not only tends to chap them, but to coarsen the skin, until after a while coarseness and coarsens their texture. For dry lips nothing is better than keeping them constantly greased with some colorless perfumed cream. This done persistently, the dry feeling will soon be overcome and the texture of the skin much improved.

The massage movements for the lips are always upward and circular. They are so simple that after a few treatments by a professional any one can learn to do her own work. Of course health, temperance and ability are the most potent factors after all in rounding, tinting, and shaping a sweet mouth.—New York Sun.

A Pleasure Book.

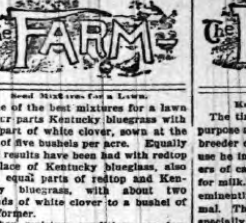
"What is the secret of my happiness?" said the contented woman to one of a different order. "My dear, I keep a Pleasure Book. Long ago I learned that there was no day so dull and gloomy that I could not find some way of pleasure, and I have made it the business of my life to write down the little things which mean so much to a woman. I have a book for every year since I left school, and a place for every day. It has a little lock to keep down the chat with a friend, the thoughtfulness of the husband, a flower, a book, a walk in the field, a letter, a concert or a drive; but it all goes into my Pleasure Book, and when I am inclined to fret I have only to read over a few pages to find a happy, bless'd memory. I am my own fairy, and it will lift you above little worries and vexations, and give you something pleasant to think of every day in the year."

Stones for Each Month.

The month stones and the virtue of wearing "for luck" the gem bestowed on the month in which one was born, emanate from the Orient, and it is curious to maintain that each month of the year is influenced by a special precious stone that affects the destiny of all persons born therein. The dedications and the meanings attached to them are as follows: January, garnet, emblematic of constancy; February, amethyst, sincerity; March, bloodstone, courage and presence of mind; April, diamond, innocence; May, emerald, success in love; June, agate, health and long life; July, cornelian, contented mind; August, sardonyx, married felicity; September, chrysolite, antidote against madness; October, opal, hope; November, topaz, fidelity; December, turquois, sincerity.

Nature's Wisdom.

The fish's belly is white and his back green, because in swimming about in the water the white belly is the color of the light shining through the water, hence protects him from his enemy below. His back being green makes him, on the other hand, appear from above as part of the green water, and is his safeguard from hawks and other enemies.



Seed Mixtures for a Lawn.

One of the best mixtures for a lawn is four parts Kentucky bluegrass with one part of white clover, sown at the rate of five bushels per acre. Equally good results have been had with redtop in place of Kentucky bluegrass, also with equal parts of redtop and Kentucky bluegrass, with about two pounds of white clover to a bushel of the former.

When moisture conditions are favorable the Kentucky bluegrass forms a softer and prettier greensward than redtop, but does not appear to endure drouth as well. Again, redtop has a tendency to form bunches unless grown very thickly. From these observations it appears that more or less sheltered situations where the full rays of the sun do not penetrate and where the ground does not quickly dry out the bluegrass and white clover mixture are unquestionably the best, but in more exposed situations a mixture of equal parts of bluegrass and redtop with a little white clover is preferable, as it is much more certain to withstand drouth.

It is impossible to give the best time for sowing a lawn, as the weather cannot be predicted far enough in advance. Different plots of grass have been successfully grown when planted any month in the year, from January and February, and at other times they have been absolute failures when treated in the same manner. The most frequent failures appear to be when the seed is planted in autumn; not having time to make much growth before severe weather begins, much of the grass is winterkilled. One of the most satisfactory results with a lawn was one planted in December. None of the seed germinated until spring, when it all came evenly and by mid June bore the appearance of a well formed turf. Some spring planting is as satisfactory. That sown since April 1 is usually better than if planted previous to that time.—American Agriculturist.

The Japanese Persimmon.

The Japanese persimmon tree is hardy in Virginia, but will not thrive much further north. It bears early, and is wonderfully prolific. In summer and early fall it is thickly covered with dark green leaves which entirely hide the fruit. During November and until early in December the tree presents a wonderfully brilliant appearance with its branches heavily laden with its bright orange-red fruit. The fruit is about the size of a mandarin orange, and it colors when half grown; it should be allowed to hang on the tree until after the first severe frost, for this will improve the flavor. For market it has the merit of shipping well and keeping long, if picked before a frost; in the city markets it finds a ready sale and at a good price.

In some localities it is called the "Keg fruit." No doubt it received its name from Japan, as a Japanese friend tells me the persimmon is most delicious when prepared in the following manner: Cut off the stem end of the fruit and fill the keg with persimmons, then replace the head and in a few weeks the fruit will be ready for eating, with a much improved flavor.—M. Abbott in Agriculturist.

Lime Benefits Clover and Timothy.

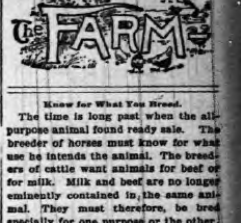
The experiments in liming by the Rhode Island station were continued through the season of '97 with clover and grass. With but one exception, the crops made heavier growth where the application of lime. At four farms in various parts of the state the unlimed clover plots looked better at the beginning of the season, but before fall the plants were puny and the stubble light. The probability of clover to gain the upper hand of sorrel upon limed plots has been fully demonstrated and is an important discovery.

Where timothy and red top have been found together, liming has invariably increased the percentage of timothy. This increase has been so great as to make the hay sell for $2 per ton more than that formerly harvested from the plot. The great benefits usually derived from adding wood ashes to the soil is thought to be not entirely due to the potash, but in a large degree to the high percentage of lime contained. As it seems probable that ashes will be more and more difficult to obtain, it is urged that lime should be applied in their place.

Blighted Celery.

It is a mistake to suppose that blighted celery is not worth growing. For four or five successive years the blight has besieged my garden; rotating the crop makes but little difference; not a decent bunch matured. Finally I found it would grow well for a month or six weeks perhaps, and then the blight appears; active growth ceases, then it stands in spite of fertilizers or irrigation.

But about the first of October I trim up the plants, leaving only the heart leaves. A shallow trench is dug, the soil loosened and the roots, with as much soil as can be conveniently left on, are placed in the trench; more soil is given and the plants left to grow. This is worked carefully in and about the plants, leaving only the tips exposed. Finer celery I have never had than much of mine furnished in January or February. If the long white brittle stalks are cut off squarely—not too close—a second crop has been ready in April. This is finer and coarser than the other, but a dainty luxury for the season.—C. A. Woolson in Agriculturist.



Know for What You Breed.

The time is long past when the all-purpose animal found ready sale. The breeder of horses must know for what use he intends the animal. The breeders of cattle want animals for beef or for milk. Milk and beef are no longer eminently contained in the same animal. They must therefore, be bred specially for one purpose or the other. Sheep are no longer largely bred for wool and mutton. They are now bred principally for mutton, and incidentally for wool. Fortunately, good mutton sheep produce good wool, which brings a high price in the market. In swine the leading breeds are Poland-Chinas, Berkshires and Duroc-Jerseys. They have but one use—the slaughter pen.

In fowls for eggs and flesh the Asiatics and the American breeds, Plymouth Rock and Wyandots, are considered the most valuable and are now bred enough to meet the demand, but with enough diversity to suit the taste of individual fanciers. For eggs alone the Leghorns are probably more largely sought than any other one of the non-sitting breeds.

Horse breeders are not having an especially happy time. Prices are low for all classes of draft and general driving animals and common plugs are not salable at any price. Among cattle for beef, the breeder has his choice, chiefly of Shorthorns, Herefords, and Polled Angus. Among dairy breeds are principally the Jerseys, Guernseys and Holstein-Friesians, with Polled Durhams, Ayrshires, and Brown Swiss good seconds. There are individual animals, in fact some milking families, in Shorthorns that are good and lasting milkers, but they are not common, nor can they be depended on to be as uniformly good milkers as can the true dairy breeds.

Hardiness of the Wickson Plum.

Wickson, the new Japanese crossbred plum, which was originated by Luther Burbank, California, and first fruited by him about 1893, has been successfully fruited in New York, and is attracting the favorable attention of nurserymen and fruit growers. Some of the features which recommend it for testing by those who are interested in plum culture are its extremely large size, handsome appearance of a lively red green in color and ripens well. The skin is thick and uniformly covered with red shaded with reddish purple. It was produced by crossing Kelsey with Burbank. Like Burbank, it is a cling, with amber yellow flesh. Juicy, yet so firm that it keeps and ships well.

The Wickson makes a good nursery tree, being a vigorous upright grower, with rather narrow leaves, the edges of which have a tendency to turn inward, so that the tree reminds one of Prunus Simoni. Taking all things into consideration, it is not surprising that nurserymen are increasing their stock of this variety.—New York Experiment Station.

How to Make a Wire Reel.

For a homemade wire fence reel simply convert an empty barrel into a hand roller. Across the open end, two pieces are nailed at right angles and in the center of this, as well as the bottom, a hole is bored to admit an iron rod, the push frame can be made of light pieces of hard wood braced across and on the under side a staple or hook is inserted to carry a can or paint bucket with tools, staples, etc. This may be suspended from the rod just inside the open end of the barrel by means of an S-shaped wire, but is not quite so convenient. In removing wire, one end is stapled to the barrel and then it is a simple matter to push the contrivance before you. In this way the wire is kept practically free from dirt and so does not gather much litter. If it is a temporary fence, it is frequently necessary to move it but a short distance and then it can be pushed all the way, but if the removal is to a greater distance, the rod can be taken out and the barrel with its coil of wire lifted into a wagon.—J. M. Shull, in Agriculturist.

Scanty Dairy Rations Unprofitable.

Though nature's statutes are plain and unalterable, there are in every community some who think 20 cows can be kept on hay enough for only 12 or 15. Another class feed hay but think it impossible to provide grain. "On my farm, last season," says a farmer, "we were afraid of hay. I concluded to feed a little more grain and less hay. As a result I had a greater yield of cream to the pound of grain fed than under the usual conditions. The grain ration consisted of bran, rye, bran, gluten and cottonseed meals. The cows averaged about 285 lbs. of butter for the year and the income, not including skimmilk but country calves, was 66 per cow. The cows were not kept in fancy stables, but received good care. Five cream from well-fed cows will produce better butter."

Better Fat and Cheese Yield.

When fat in milk increases, the casein and cheese yield also increases, in general, although in special cases the casein and cheese yield may increase while the fat remains unchanged, or the fat may increase while the casein remains unchanged or even decreases

The Constitutionalist.

A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.

PUBLISHED AT

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Terms—$2.00 per year.

A. L. Force, Editor and Proprietor

The Warship New Jersey.

The various municipalities in New Jersey have taken Congressman Loudenslager's cue and joined in a movement to petition the Navy Department to name one of the new battleships the New Jersey. The Elizabeth Common Council has adopted resolutions to this effect, and when the Jersey City Board of Aldermen holds its next meeting similar resolutions will be adopted. The officials of Plainfield, Newark, Paterson, Camden and Trenton are expected to follow suit.

"What we ought to do," says Congressman Loudenslager, "is to have the Navy Department fairly deluged with petitions. I am confident that New Jersey will at last get a place in the list of names for war vessels."

S. R. Krom, of this city, informs us that he is the author of the measure introduced by Assemblyman Murray providing for the killing of certain birds for scientific purposes, against the passage of which we entered a protest a few days ago. Mr. Krom says that the proposed law is a part of a statute which prevails in New York and is intended only as an aid to bona fide ornithologists who are engaged in scientific research. In his recitation of its provisions it appears that none but qualified ornithologists will be able to secure protection under its provisions, and then only in the pursuance of action of a strictly scientific character. Deviation from what is right and proper in the spirit of the proposed law is punishable in a severe manner.

New Brunswick is so pleased over the success of Congressman Howell in securing an appropriation of $100 000 for a public building for the old Dutch city that its citizens are contemplating tendering the Congressman a complimentary dinner in honor of the fact. The occasion will be a great chance for the local orators to spread themselves, and incidentally for Mr Howell to contemplate the glorious success of being able to indulge in the "you tickle me and I'll tickle you" policy which prevails in Congress in respect to appropriations for public buildings.

It will be remembered that a year ago at the urgent agitation and work of Senator Reed the Legislature passed a bill authorizing a State appropriation for the encouragement of the beet sugar industry, but Governor Voorhees determined the act a species of bad legislation and vetoed the measure. It is evident, however, that Governor Roosevelt, of New York, disagrees with the eminent executive of New Jersey, for he has signed a bill appropriating $30,000 for a similar purpose. The soil of New York State is well adapted to beet culture.

The Newark Advertiser thinks that the suggestion is well made that while the State appropriates large sums toward the building of new improved roads no State provision is made for the care and maintenance of these roads when built. That is left to the localities, and experience proves that the average township in the State cannot be trusted to take decent care of its roads.

Speaking of excellent terms secured in connection with granting public franchises, here is one that needs no commendation other than a plain rehearsal of its terms. A thirty-four years' extension of the street railroad franchise in Indianapolis has been granted by the Indiana Legislature, in return for which the company agrees to pay to the city $750,000 in instalments, or at the rate of about $44,000 a year, pave between its tracks, spend $1 000,000 in betterments to its plant, give the city the best service, sell six tickets for 25 cents and twenty-five for $1, practically give the city 250 acres of land for a park (the rental being $1 per year), and permit the city to buy the plant at the end of the term of the franchise.

The Philadelphia Ledger sententiously remarks: "If New Jersey could but own all the trusts she creates what a wealthy State she would be," and the Newark Advertiser pointedly comments that, "The reverse seems about to happen. The trusts are coming to own New Jersey."

A Chicago man stole a rabbit's foot for luck and was arrested and fined $5 and costs. The rabbit was still attached to the foot, which only goes to show what luck there was in the rabbit's foot—for the rightful owner.

W. J. Bryan Shinnifield, triplet son of Douglas Shinnifield, of Pana, Ill., chewed up a gold standard newspaper the other day and died from the effects. How contradictory fate works in some instances is shown in the above.

Absent Church-going.

About every so often some minister attempts to tell why it is that many people do not go to church on Sundays, and every such sermon is couched in words that attract attention if they do not correct. The latest pulpit talk on this subject comes from Hackensack, where Rev. Herman Vanderwart delivered a sermon on "Why Are so Many Pews Empty in Our Churches?"

Among some of the things the preacher blamed the bicycle and the Sunday newspapers for keeping many persons away from church. These were the entering wedges of the evil, and nothing was done to restrain them. But where he attracted the most attention was when he turned his words to hypocritical church members. A prayer defaulter, a long-faced and solemn-voiced defrauder of widows and orphans, or a covetous, grasping, non charaitable man who prayed long and loud, he said, did more harm to the church and the cause of Christianity than the most vulgar saloon talker or the most eloquent and persuasive infidel lecturer.

Rev. Mr. Vanderwart said that the members of the churches—and he did not except his own—were indifferent in a way that was hurtful to the Christ an cause. When a stranger came to church he did not get the welcome and attention needed to cause him to come again. Instead he was stared at as a stranger and left severely alone. The result was that he was chilled and remained away afterward instead of coming again.

Ministers, too, were largely responsible, he said. There were too many ministers who were good pastors, but poor preachers. They could not hold the interest of their listeners while in the pulpits, but were good at making pastoral calls and were popular. They did not, however, bring new faces into the church.

Good Legislation.

Assemblyman Benny, of Bayonne, has introduced three bills, intended to establish municipal ownership of street railways, gas and electric light companies. One of the measures allows the cities to construct gas and electric light plants, another empowers the cities to construct street railways, a third empowers municipalities to purchase or condemn gas and electric light plants already existing and purchase or condemn street railways already existing.

To each case bonds may be issued for the payment of properties purchased or acquired. There is little likelihood of any action on these bills at this session, if for no other reason because of lack of time Yet they are suitable subjects for legislative action, and the time of the Legislature could not be better employed than in their consideration.

The Sun tells a story of a Jersey farmer who owned a twenty-three year-old horse and gave a liveryman $2 to dispose of it to suit himself. The liveryman dyed the horse's hair, slicked him up, gave him stimulants and sold him back to the farmer for a fresh one. As the liveryman also lived in Jersey there is no reason for Jerseymen to feel that the item is a reflection upon the smartness of the people of the State.

Other sections of the country may feel inclined to criticise the billion-dollar Congress that has just adjourned, but New Brunswick is very well satisfied. The sum of $100,000 for a public building affords plenty of solace for the Old Dutch city.

The Democratic leaders in the Legislature are having a hard time of it by having their measures killed in committees without being given a chance to give them respectful consideration upon discussion on the floor of either House

Among those named as possibilities for the position of Chief Marshal of the borough is William N. Pangborn. It is understood that he has placed himself in line for the appointment and is making strong overtures for it.

Never before in the history of the borough has betting been so prevalent as regards election which takes place next week Tuesday. Large sums of money are being put up on both sides, and it is generally covered.

The Court of Errors and Appeals has decided that struck juries are legal in the trial of murder cases. This, however, will not tend to increase the desire of people to stand up before them.

There is a general and well defined feeling that the Senatorial battle in Pennsylvania will not run over into another week; but who is to wear the toga recently dropped by M. S. Quay is yet a mystery.

A Philadelphia mother who sold her hair to provide food for her children during the recent cold snap learned the absolute truth of escaping by the hair's length if not by the width.

A trust in coffin hardware is the latest. Though it will not cost much for the trust's obsequies it will undoubtedly die hard.

One Thing or the Other.

According to the statement of the City Judge, who is at the head of the local judiciary, there is no ordinance that prohibits gambling within the city limits. The only reference to the subject in the city ordinances is in the sixth section of the Ordanance relating to the Morals, Peace and Good Order of the City of Plainfield, which is as follows:

Section 6. For keeping or causing or permitting to be kept a house, shop, room or place of any description, in which any kind of disorder or not-ells made, or permitted, to the alarm, annoyance or disturbance of the neighborhood, or in which persons assemble, or to which persons resort for the purpose of buying or drinking spirituous or fermented liquors, or which place is injurious to the public health, public ease or public morals, or in which is kept any table or device of any kind, upon or by which any game of chance or hazard shall be played, any person not exceeding fifty dollars for each imprisonment in the city or county jail, or both fine and imprisonment at the discretion of the court.

The public at large has generally supposed that the local ordinances prohibited against gambling under any shape or form. The fact is that that the local legislation has provided only against regular gambling houses and that there is no ordinance to hold the individual gamblers unless they are interested in some way in the running of an establishment. There is a State law against gambling, but that necessitates indictment by the Grand Jury and is beyond the power of the local court.

A glance over the records of the past show that offenders have been sent down to the county jail and compelled to serve terms there for gambling. If it is the wish of the City Fathers that gambling in the city should be punished, then let them pass such ordinances as will make it a punishable offence. If not, then let all be treated alike in the matter.

There is a strong probability that after the borough election there will be a change in the appointment of borough physician, now held by J. H. Carman, of this city. The latter has been a very efficient officer, but there is a number of people who do not think that Dr Carman should hold the position inasmuch as he is a resi*dent of Plainfield. Among the* candidates mentioned for the position are Dr J. H. Buchanan and Dr. Pitts. Either one is liable to receive the appointment.

Miles Ross, whose name has been associated with Democratic politics in New Jersey for many years, is soon to retire from the office of Riparian Commissioner. The Hon. Mr. Ross had his share of public honors and emoluments and can well afford to spend the rest of his days in the serene contemplation of how fortune has favored him.

Plainfield's troubles with the disposal of sewage pales into insignificance when the trials and tribulations of the towns along the Passaic are contemplated, after reading Chancellor McGill's decision concerning the use of that stream as a dumping place for the offal of those various municipalities.

A Mount Holly woman has applied for a divorce for the reason that her husband refused to carry enough coal from the cellar to keep the fires going. That is one of the disadvantages of living in a climate such as this.

The Montana Legislature has legalized prize fighting and made gambling a felony. Under such circumstances it will be pretty difficult to describe the exact moral status of Montana.

Dry goods merchants are generally men of sobriety, but yet they delight to see things on the tear.

A week from today the knowledge of borough politicians will be more complete than it is now.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

Editorial Comment From Other Papers, Not Local to Plainfield.

We cannot but regard with irresistible sympathy the wretched Roesel to be hung in our own State next Friday. Deliberately his life is to be taken. We are told, in the interest of society. We are opposed to capital punishment. It is a relic of barbarism; a commentary on our boasted civilization. It is a judicial murder. Roesel has proved himself unfit to be free, or to associate with his kind. Send him, therefore, back to the solemn silence of his narrow cell, after burning into his brow the letter M, as a criminal escape. Let him toil less he be an expense to law abiding men; let his fare be coarse, his couch hard, if you will. But do not take his life and his thought. Leave him to his Maker, after confining him for life for the security of society.—Westfield Standard.

DOES COFFEE AGREE WITH YOU?

If not, drink Grain-O—made from pure grain, and is fully nutritious. The best think made Grain-O! I did not like it but after using it for one week I really should have missed it if I had to go back to coffee." It nourishes and feeds the system. The children can drink it freely with great benefit. It is the strengthening substance of rare grains. Get a package today from your grocer and follow directions in making, and you will have a delicious, healthful table beverage for old and young. 15 and 25c.

AN EQUINE HERO.

The Rescue of an English Officer by His Horse.

A graphic story is told by Surgeon-Captain Grey, one of the officers who served in Rhodesia. In the attack on Mashangombi's the horses began to trop, and soon thirteen lay on the ground, and it looked as if the men would all be killed. Evidently Captain Turner thought so, for he virtually gave the order, "Sauve qui peut," telling every man to fight the best he could for his own hand. But, though the horses continued to fall, the men escaped. Dr. Grey, to use his own words, "led toward the way out under a raking fire at a gallop, and was closely followed by the troop. Very soon, however, I fell from the saddle, struck with a bullet from an elephant gun about 500 yards off. The bullet struck me on the top of the thigh, smashing the socket of the thigh-bone, breaking a vein, and otherwise wounding me. My horse was carried on at full speed to clear the pocket-like entrance to the drift, where the natives were rallying in the hope of killing us. As I lay on the grass, bleeding profusely, I looked up and saw two natives aiming at me at a distance of about forty feet. At the same moment I saw my horse come thundering back from the drift. It suddenly stopped and stood over my prostrate body, covering me from the firing and at the same time making a peculiar noise through its nostrils. I thought it had been wounded, and that with the pain, noise and confusion it had gone mad. This notion, however, was soon dispelled, and it continued to stand over me in a kneeling posture, and I could see that the faithful ani*mal had come back to protect me.* I may mention here that this horse, which I myself selected, I made a pet of. The assegais from the approaching natives were now beginning to fly around me, and, thinking if I could reach my horse's back I should be shot which was preferable to being assegaied, I sidled, inch by inch, put my right foot in the stirrup, and made a supreme effort to mount. And I was successful, but how I, did it I do not know, for my left side was entirely paralyzed. On finding myself in the saddle, I called "Go!" to my horse, which darted like an arrow toward the exit from the drift."—St. James Budget.

HERRMANN'S KINDNESS.

Cancelled a Note for $15,000 Upon Learning the Distress of the Man's Wife.

A professional man who had struck a streak of hard luck went to Herr*mann for a loan. He wanted $2,500*, and was willing to secure it with a life insurance policy for $15,000. Herrmann let him have the money and took the policy, it was purely a business proposition and not a matter of friend*ship. The borrower's fortunes fluctu*ated from bad to worse, and about a year after the loan was made he died, leaving his affairs in a very tangled condition.

The death notice of the man recalled the circumstances of the loan to Herrmann, and he hunted up the policy, which he had forgotten entirely. He was on the point of placing it in the hands of an attorney for collection --in fact, I believe he had given it to his lawyer—when he heard that the dead man's wife was absolutely penniless and helpless, with several children on her hands. He instructed the attorney to discontinue proceedings, and the policy was transferred to the widow with the explanation that the debt had been cancelled before her husband's death, and that the policy having been misplaced accounted for the delay in its return.—New York Journal.

Three Remarkable Sisters.

The case of Mrs. Emma Hare, who told a magistrate the other day that she had twenty-seven children, was striking enough, but that of three sisters who live in Kingston, Jamaica, is perhaps more remarkable. These sisters had respectively nineteen, twenty and twenty-one children each, but, unlike Mrs. Hare, who lost most of them at an early age, these sisters succeeded in rearing the whole of their families, and on certain occasions all the sixty children, with their parents—sixty-six souls in all—have met in the celebration of some family event.—Tid-Bits.

A Brave Protector.

"I tell you, that Johnson is a brave fellow."

"How so?"

"He was once walking with his fiance in Africa, when a big lion came bounding toward them. John kissed the girl and then ran forward so that the lion might eat him instead of the girl."

"Did the scheme work?"

"Nope, the mighty king of the jungle took one smell of his whisko—tobacco and breath, and then jumped over him and ate the girl."—Downsville Breeze.

Paternal Advice.

"Micky," said Mr. Dolan to his son, "Oi do be afraid ye're gettin' to be a dude.'"

"I hope not."

"Well, Ive noticed yez wearin' yer Sunday clothes the week t'rough, and that ye have a eye yer job in the blacksmith shop. Oi want to say, widout barrum till anybody's feelin's, that it'll be doin' yez no hurt to be rollin' up yer sleeves more an' yer trousers less."—Washington Post.

The Loss Was Insubstantial.

A reporter in describing the murder of a man named Jordin said: "The murderer was evidently in quest of money, but luckily Mr. Jorkin had deposited all his funds in the bank the day before, so that he lost nothing but his life."—Tid-Bits.

BLAINE'S GRAVE.

A Plain Monument Erected Over His Last Resting Place.

The shattered oak which for about six years marked the grave of James G. Blaine in Oak Hill cemetery, has been replaced by a simply inscribed headstone, a duplicate of those which were placed over the graves of Walker Blaine, the great statesman's favorite son.

In 1890, after the sad death of Walker Blaine, and while the body was still lying in the historic old mansion in Madison place, Mr. Blaine, accompanied by a friend, went to Oak Hill cemetery to select a lot. The sad duty intensified the grief which the death of his son had caused, and he talked in a melancholy strain of the tricks which had checked his ambition and deprived him of the hope of perpetuating his name.

In the eastern part of the cemetery, half way down the terrace on the western bank of Rock creek, was a lot, such a one as he had in mind, *on the north*east, and, in the centre, a gnarled and twisted oak tree, blasted and dead. Mr. Blaine pointed out the tree with its lifeless branches, and remarked than it aptly represented his own blasted hopes. He took the lot and asked that nothing but the solitary tree should mark his own grave.

The remains of Walter Blaine were buried in the lot, and later it received the body of Mrs. Coppinger, wife of General Coppinger, and daughter of Mr. Blaine. Simple headstones marked their graves, and the space by the tree was reserved for the body of the Maine statesman.

During his illness which began in November, 1892, Mr. Blaine, anticipating the end, had made the request that his body be laid beside the tree, with no other mark to indicate his last resting-place. His wish was faithfully observed, and after his death, in January, 1893, his remains were quietly conveyed to the cemetery and privately interred, with the stricken tree for a gloomy sentinel.

The old tree stood until last winter, when, during a heavy storm, it was so badly shattered as to deprive it of its melancholy beauty. The friends of Mr. Blaine were anxious that some suitable memorial be placed at the head of the grave, and, after carefully considering the matter, Mrs. Blaine decided about six months ago to have a duplicate made of the headstone which marked the grave of Walker Blaine.

With great care a suitable block of Vermont marble was selected and the monument completed. It is eight feet high and of the simplest design. It is devoid of any ornamentation and bears the simple inscription:

.. ..
.. JAMES GILLESPIE BLAINE. ..
.. Born Jan. 31, 1830. ..
.. Died Jan. 27, 1893. ..
.. ..

Half a dozen workmen took the stone out to Oak Hill and in a driving snowstorm placed it at the head of the great statesman's last resting-place. There were no ceremonies.

The Mouth.

The mouth is the frankest part of the face. It can the least conceal the feelings. We can neither hide illtemper with it nor good. We may affect what we please, but affectations will not help us. In a wrong cause it will only make our observers resent the endeavor to impose upon them. A mouth should be of good natural dimensions, as well as plump in the lips. When the ancients, among their beauties, made mention of small mouths and lips, they meant small only as opposed to an excess the other way, a fault very com@mon in the South. The sayings in favor of small mouths, which have been the ruin of so many pretty faces, are very absurd. If there must be an excess either way, it had better be the liberal one. A pretty, pursed-up mouth is fit for nothing but to be left to its complacency. Large mouths are oftener found in union with generous dispositions than very small ones. Beauty should have neither, but a reasonable look of openness and delicacy. It has an elegance in lips, when, instead of making sharp angles at the corner of the mouth, they retain a certain breadth to the very verge, and show the red. The corner then looks painted with a free and liberal pencil.

A Long Service.

A description of the old New England Sabbath is created to make restless children of the present day and possibly some of their elders thankful they were not born two centuries ago.

The Sabbath began Saturday afternoon with the going down of the sun.

Sunday morning a horn was loudly blown to announce the hour of worship. Service began at 9 o'clock and lasted for eight hours, with an intermission of one hour for dinner and conversation. In the earliest days the congregation sat on rude benches, their seats being assigned them at town meeting. The service consisted of several parts, which are chronicled in an ancient diary as follows:

Prayer, fifteen minutes; invocation; chapter of Bible read and expounded; psalm in meter, read out line by line by Deacon S.; long prayer on various matters, one hour and a half; sermon of 100 to 250 pages; at close of service, baptism; sinners put on trial, confessed before congregation. Minister C. bowed right and left, no person stirring till he had passed down and out of the meeting house."—Youth's Companion.

Professor Smith—"No one can conceive of the slow and awful lapse of geological time."

Brown—"I don't know. I've had a plumber working for me by the day."

CLEARING SALE

OF

PIANOS

We are Closing

out a number of of good second-hand pianos at extremely low prices, and on easy terms of payment. Now is the time to get a bargain.

7 Octave Square.....$ 40
7¼ " " 70
7¼ " Upright..... 120
7¼ " " 165
7¼ " Hallett & Davis 190
7¼ " " 210

ON PAYMENTS $3 to $8 MONTHLY.

Lot of good second-hand Organs at $20, $25 and upward, $4 per month.

A large assortment of elegant new

Hallet & Davis

UPRIGHT PIANOS.

$500 and up, and 3 years' time if you want it Other makes—Cabinet Grands, all improvements. $225—$7 per month.

Free music and Catalogue for the asking.

THE W. F. TWAY PIANO CO.,

94 Fifth Avenue, New York.

JAS. M. DUNN,

Dealer in

GROCERIES, PROVISIONS, VEGETABLES, FRUITS &c

GARDEN SEEDS

fresh and carefully selected.

224 PARK AVENUE,

OPPOSITE NORTH AVENUE.

Everything usually found in a first-class grocery.

Goods delivered free of charge.

Woolston & Buckle,

PAINTERS,

Wall Papers, Painters' Supplies

141-145 North avenue.

GEORGE W. DAY,

General Auctioneer.

Sales of Personal Property solicited P. O. Box 132, Dunellen, N J., or address in care of Constitutionalist. Terms reasonable

W. R. CODINGTON,

Counsellor-at-Law

Commissioner of Deeds, Master-in-chancery, Notary Public. Offices Corne of Park avenue and Second street.

HUMPHREYS' VETERINARY SPECIFICS

500 PAGE BOOK MAILED FREE.

CONTENTS:

Part I.—Diseases of Horses.
Part II.—Diseases of Cattle.
Part III.—Diseases of Sheep.
Part IV.—Diseases of Hogs.
Part V.—Diseases of Dogs.
Part VI.—Diseases of Poultry.

Sold by druggists, or sent prepaid on receipt of price. Humphreys' Homeopathic Med. Co., Cor. William & John Sts., New York Arrival and Departure of Mails NEW YORK MAILS.

Arrive—7.20, 8.05, 11.20 a. m., 2.05, 5, 8.00 p. m.
Close—7.30, 9.30 a. m., 12.30, 2.30, 5.30, 7.00 p. m.

PHILADELPHIA AND EASTON.

Arrive—9.00 a. m., 2.00 and 6.35 p. m.
Close—9.30 a. m., 12.30 and 5.30 p. m.

BOSTON, NEW ENGLAND AND THE WEST.

Arrive—8.00 and 11.20 a. m., 2.00 and 8.00 p. m.
Close—8.00 and 9.30 a. m., 2.00 p. m.
Through mail to all parts of the West and South, close 2.00 and 7.00 p. m.

WARRENVILLE.

Arrive—9.00 a. m. Close—9.30 a. m.

SUNDAY MAILS.

Office open from 9.30 to 10.30 a. m.
Mail closes at 6.30 p. m.

F. H. BIRD, P. M

Central R. R. of New Jersey

Attractive Coal Using Equipment, Insuring Cleanliness and Comfort.

Stations in New York, Foot of Liberty, and South Ferry Whitehall Streets.

TIME TABLE IN EFFECT NOV. 26th, 1899.

PLAINFIELD AND NEW YORK.

Leave Plainfield 5 34, 7 02, 8 02, 9 06, 9 50, 11 00 a. m., 12 02, 1 02, 2 02, 3 02, 4 02, 5 02, 6 02, 7 02, 8 02, 9 02, 10 02, 11 02 p. m., 12 00 night. Sundays—5 34, 7 02, 8 02, 9 06, 10 00, 11 00 a. m., 12 02, 1 02, 2 02, 3 02, 4 02, 5 02, 6 02, 7 02, 8 02, 9 02, 10 02, 11 02 p. m., 12 00 night.

Leave New York, foot of Liberty St., at 4 00, 4 30, 5 00, 5 30, 6 00, 6 30, 7 00, 7 30, 8 00, 8 30, 9 00, 9 30, 10 00, 10 30, 11 00, 11 30 a. m., 12 00 noon, 12 30, 1 00, 1 30, 2 00, 2 30, 3 00, 3 30, 4 00, 4 30, 5 00, 5 30, 6 00, 6 30, 7 00, 7 30, 8 00, 8 30, 9 00, 9 30, 10 00, 10 30, 11 00 p. m., 12 00 night. Sundays—At 8 00, 8 30, 9 00, 9 30, 10 00, 10 30, 11 00, 11 30 a. m., 12 00 noon, 12 30, 1 00, 1 30, 2 00, 2 30, 3 00, 3 30, 4 00, 4 30, 5 00, 5 30, 6 00, 6 30, 7 00, 7 30, 8 00, 8 30, 9 00, 9 30, 10 00, 10 30, 11 00, 11 30 night.

Passengers for Newark please change one Elizabeth.

PLAINFIELD AND SOMERVILLE.

Leave Plainfield 5 38, 7 12, 8 12, 9 40, 9 54, 11 0 a. m., 12 12, 1 12, 2 12, 3 12, 4 12, 5 12, 6 12, 7 12, 8 12, 9 12, 10 12, 11 12 p. m., 12 24 night. Sundays—5 38, 7 12, 8 12, 9 40, 10 54, 11 0 a. m., 12 12, 1 12, 2 12, 3 12, 4 12, 5 12, 6 12, 7 12, 8 12, 9 12, 10 12, 11 12 p. m., 12 24 night.

Leave Somerville at 5 05, 6 05, 7, 7 27, 7 35, 8 05, 8 35, 9 05, 9 35, 10 05, 10 35, 11 05, 11 35 a. m., 12 05, 12 35, 1 05, 1 35, 2 05, 2 35, 3 05, 3 35, 4 05, 4 35, 5 05, 5 35, 6 05, 6 35, 7 05, 7 35, 8 05, 8 35, 9 05, 9 35, 10 05, 10 35, 11 05, 11 35 p. m., 12 05 night. Sunday at 8 35, 9 05, 9 35, 10 05, 10 35, 11 05, 11 35 a. m., 12 05, 12 35, 1 05, 1 35, 2 05, 2 35, 3 05, 3 35, 4 05, 4 35, 5 05, 5 35, 6 05, 6 35, 7 05, 7 35, 8 05, 8 35, 9 05, 9 35, 10 05, 10 35, 11 05, 11 35 p. m., 12 05 night.

PLAINFIELD AND BOUND BROOK.

Leave Plainfield 5 38, 7 12, 8 12, 9 40, 10 54, 11 0 a. m., 12 12, 1 12, 2 12, 3 12, 4 12, 5 12, 6 12, 7 12, 8 12, 9 12, 10 12, 11 12 p. m., 12 24 night. Sunday at 5 38, 7 12, 8 12, 9 40, 10 54, 11 0 a. m., 12 12, 1 12, 2 12, 3 12, 4 12, 5 12, 6 12, 7 12, 8 12, 9 12, 10 12, 11 12 p. m., 12 24 night.

Leave Somerville at 6 05, 6 35, 7, 7 27, 7 35, 8 05, 8 35, 9 05, 9 35, 10 05, 10 35, 11 05, 11 35 a. m., 12 05, 12 35, 1 05, 1 35, 2 05, 2 35, 3 05, 3 35, 4 05, 4 35, 5 05, 5 35, 6 05, 6 35, 7 05, 7 35, 8 05, 8 35, 9 05, 9 35, 10 05, 10 35, 11 05, 11 35 p. m., 12 05 night. Sunday at 8 35, 9 05, 9 35, 10 05, 10 35, 11 05, 11 35 a. m., 12 05, 12 35, 1 05, 1 35, 2 05, 2 35, 3 05, 3 35, 4 05, 4 35, 5 05, 5 35, 6 05, 6 35, 7 05, 7 35, 8 05, 8 35, 9 05, 9 35, 10 05, 10 35, 11 05, 11 35 p. m., 12 05 night.

PLAINFIELD AND BOUND BROOK.

Leave Plainfield 8 18 a. m., 2 18, 5 18 p. m. Sunday 8 18 a. m., 5 18 p. m.

PLAINFIELD AND LAKE HOPATCONG.

Leave Plainfield 7 12 a. m., 3 12 p. m.

WESTWARD CONNECTIONS.

7 12 a. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Allentown, Bethlehem, Mauch Chunk, Wilkesbarre, Tamaqua, Shamokin, Mahanoy City, Pottsville, Shenandoah, Manheim and Harrisburg.

7 12 a. m.—For stations to High Bridge, connecting for stations on High Bridge branch.

9 18 a. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Allentown, Bethlehem, Mauch Chunk, Wilkesbarre, Tamaqua, Shamokin, Mahanoy City, Pottsville, Shenandoah, Manheim and Harrisburg, connecting for Lambertville, Trenton, Bristol, Morrisville and Philadelphia.

3 18 p. m.—For parlor car for Easton, Allentown, Bethlehem, Mauch Chunk, Wilkesbarre, Tamaqua, Shamokin, Mahanoy City, Pottsville, Shenandoah, Manheim and Harrisburg.

3 18 p. m.—For Easton, Lehigh Valley and Chenango Division, and Bethlehem and Allentown.

5 18 p. m.—For Easton, Allentown, Bethlehem, Mauch Chunk, Wilkesbarre, Tamaqua, Shamokin, Mahanoy City, Pottsville, Shenandoah, Manheim and Harrisburg, connecting for Lambertville, Trenton, Bristol, Morrisville and Philadelphia.

5 18 p. m.—For Flemington.

8 00 p. m.—For Germans Valley and Chester, Gladstone, Allamuchy, Mauch Chunk, Tamaqua, Shamokin, Mahanoy City, Pottsville, Shenandoah, Manheim and Harrisburg.

8 00 p. m.—Sundays—For Germans Valley and Chester, Gladstone, Allamuchy, Mauch Chunk, Tamaqua, Shamokin, Mahanoy City, Pottsville, Shenandoah, Manheim and Harrisburg.

8 00 p. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Allentown, Bethlehem, Mauch Chunk, Wilkesbarre, Tamaqua, Shamokin, Mahanoy City, Pottsville, Shenandoah, Manheim and Harrisburg, connecting for Lambertville, Trenton, Bristol, Morrisville and Philadelphia.

FOR LONG BRANCH, OCEAN GROVE, ETC.

Leave Plainfield at 9 27, 10 27 for Sea Girt 11 30, Long Branch 11 45, a. m., 12 00 noon. Sundays, 9 27 a. m., 12 00 noon, 12 15, 4 00 p. m. Sea Girt 4 00 p. m. For Perth Amboy, 2 27, 5 27, 8 15, 10 27 a. m., 12 00 noon, 2 27, 4 00, 5 27, 8 15 p. m. Sundays, 2 27, 5 27, 8 15, 10 27 a. m., 12 00 noon, 2 27, 4 00, 5 27, 8 15 p. m. For Keyport, 10 27 a. m., 4 00 p. m. For Matawan, 10 27 a. m., 4 00 p. m. For Freehold, 9 27, 10 27 a. m., 4 00 p. m. For Lakewood, 10 27 a. m., 4 00 p. m. For Barnegat, 10 27 a. m., 4 00 p. m. For Tom's River, 10 27 a. m., 4 00 p. m. For Bay Head (Lakewood only) 10 27 a. m., 4 00 p. m. Sundays, 9 27, 10 27 a. m., 4 00 p. m.

ROYAL BLUE LINE.

Leave Plainfield for Philadelphia, 6 12, 8 27, 10 27 a. m., 2 27, 5 27, 8 15 p. m. Sundays, 6 12, 8 27, 10 27 a. m., 2 27, 5 27, 8 15 p. m.

For Trenton, 6 12, 8 27, 10 27 a. m., 2 27, 5 27, 8 15 p. m. Sundays, 6 12, 8 27, 10 27 a. m., 2 27, 5 27, 8 15 p. m.

For Bristol, Morrisville, Torresdale, Frankford, Tacony and Washington 6 12, 8 27, 10 27 a. m., 2 27, 5 27, 8 15 p. m. Sundays, 6 12, 8 27, 10 27 a. m., 2 27, 5 27, 8 15 p. m.

For Delaware River Bridge, Kensington, Richmond, Fishtown and Delaware Avenue, 6 12, 8 27, 10 27 a. m., 2 27, 5 27, 8 15 p. m. Sundays, 6 12, 8 27, 10 27 a. m., 2 27, 5 27, 8 15 p. m.

For Buffalo, Chicago and all points West, week-days at 9 04 a. m.; 4 00 p. m. Sundays, 4 00 p. m.

Plainfield passengers by trains marked) change cars at Bound Brook.

Tickets and full particulars at lowest rates may be had on application in advance to the Ticket Agent at this station.

J. M. OLHAUSEN,
General Superintendent.

H.P. BALDWIN,
General Passenger Agent

LEHIGH VALLEY RAILROAD

Time table in effect Feb. 5, 1899.

LEAVE SOUTH PLAINFIELD, N. J.

WESTWARD.

6 05 a. m. daily; 8 28 and 7 08 p. m. daily except Sunday, for Bethlehem.

8 58 p. m. Sunday evening local for Manchester.

9 03 a. m. daily; Express for Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Chicago and principal intermediate points.

12 52 a. m., 4 20 and 9 48 p. m. daily except Sunday, Local for Easton and Bethlehem.

2 58 p. m. daily except Sunday, "Black Diamond Express" for Rochester, Buffalo and Niagara Falls.

7 08 p. m. daily local for Easton and Wilkesbarre.

4 20 p. m. daily except Sunday, express for Manchester, L. & H. Junction and principal intermediate points.

7 08 and 9 48 p. m. daily, solid vestibule express for Scranton, Wilkesbarre, Buffalo, Chicago and principal intermediate points.

9 48 p. m. daily except Sunday, express for Manchester, L. & H. Junction and principal intermediate points.

12 52 a. m. daily except Sunday, express for Scranton, Wilkesbarre, Buffalo, Chicago and principal intermediate points.

6 05 a. m. daily except Sunday, for Easton and Bethlehem, connecting at Bethlehem for Mauch Chunk, Allentown, Reading, Pottsville, Shamokin, Mahanoy City, Shenandoah, Tamaqua, Manheim and Harrisburg; also for Flemington.

8 58 p. m. Sunday evening local for Manchester.

Trains leave Perth Amboy (State street) 7 12 a. m., 4 00 and 9 35 p. m. daily except Sunday. Sunday 7 12 a. m. and 9 42 p. m.

For further information call on or address the Ticket Agent, South Plainfield, N. J. Through tickets to all important western points may be purchased at the South Plainfield office.

Jos. ROLLIN H. WILBUR,
General Passenger Agent.

S. Bethlehem, Pa.

CHAS. S. LEE,
General Passenger Agent
26 Cortlandt St., N. Y. City.

NEW YORK TERMINALS—Foot of Cortlandt Desbrosses and West 23d streets.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Makes the food more delicious and wholesome

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

GAVE A BLACK EYE; HELD FOR GRAND JURY

Borough Men Engaged in Encounter Saturday Night.

DAN. O'CONNOR ARRESTED.

HE DID NOT WANT J. F. PEARSON ON HIS PROPERTY.

But the Latter Did Not Move Soon Enough and an Argument Ensued and Finally Blows Were Struck, O'Connor Being the Aggressor—He Was Arrested and Held for Grand Jury.

Last Satudaay evening on Walnut street, Prideville, there was a fight between Daniel O'Connor and John F. Pearson. As a result O'Connor is now held for the Grand Jury under $100 bail, furnished by Street Commissioner George Conover.

The scene of the original trouble was at the home of Mr. and Mrs Thomas Ailing, on Walnut street, the property being owned by O'Connor. Mr. Pearson was at the house and this fact did not suit the owner of the house. He ordered Pearson from the premises, but the latter was in no particular hurry to move. Finally the two men left the house and came toward town. When they reached Mayor Wilson's property they engaged in a little encounter, and Pearson had one eye closed, besides receiving a badly cut face.

In the meantime Chief Wilson heard of the trouble and hastened to the scene of the fight and made the arrest of O'Conner. The latter was arrested on the complaint of Mr. Pearson on a State warrant issued by Justice Crossley, and the hearing was set down for 9 o'clock Monday morning.

The hearing took place on time, Lawyer Frank Blatz, of the firm of Murphy & Blatz, represented the defendant, who waived examination and was placed under $100 bonds to await the action of the Grand Jury.

Thomas Ailing, in whose home the fight was started, made a complaint against O'Connor charging him with being disorderly. This case was tried before Recorder Long, but owing to lack of evidence it was dismissed.

WEST END HOSE COMPANY.

Nominations for Officers to Be Elected —To Secure Uniforms.

The members of West End Hose Company met last Monday and transacted considerable business. Nominations for officers to be elected at the regular May meeting were made as follows: Foreman, John Higgins, Gus Feiring; first assistant, Frank Perry, Gus Feiring; second assistant, Wm. Paasch, George Giddis; corresponding secretary, Frank Perry; financial secretary, George Giddis; treasurer, H. Hansen.

A committee was appointed consisting of Gus Feiring, John Higgins, Frank Perry, J. Brenmer and Charles Keller to make arrangements to secure uniforms for the members. There is now $100 in the treasury for a uniform fund, and at the meeting last Monday each member put his hand in his pocket and added something to that amount. Louis Bimble, Jr., was elected a member at the meeting, and this makes the membership twenty, being the number allowed the company by the Borough Council. The company is now in excellent condition and well equipped for duty.

ALARMS TO COME IN SLOWER.

Gamewell System Tested Monday to Remedy Defects.

Monday afternoon Chief Fairchild, of the Borough Fire Department, assisted by Electrician Stahl and an expert from the Gamewell Company, of New York, made a test of the fire alarm system in the borough. Heretofore the system has been working too rapidly, and often numbers would be skipped when an alarm came in. The object of the test yesterday was to remedy the trouble so that the alarms would come in slower, and this was done. A general test of the whole system will probably be made in a few days.

In its advanced and chronic form a cold in the head is known as Nasal Catarrh and is the recognized source of other diseases. Having stood the test of continued successful use, Ely's Cream Balm is recognized as a specific for membranal diseases in the nasal passages, and you make a great mistake in not resorting to this treatment in your own case. To test is a trial size for 10 cents or the large for 50 cents is mailed by Ely Brothers, 56 Warren street, New York. Druggists keep it.

THE COMMON COUNCIL.

NO IMPORTANT BUSINESS BEFORE THE SOLONS MONDAY NIGHT.

Mayor Makes Two Appointments—Park Avenue Storm Sewer Ordinance Passed —An Earlier Collecting of Taxes.

The regular March meeting of the Common Council was held Monday evening and all were present except Councilman Hetfield. The actual amount of important business considered was small and there was evidence of desire of the members not to remain in session any longer than absolutely necessary.

A communication was received from J. Ackerman Coles and others complaining of the poor condition of West Sixth street. They asked that the street be macadamized and that a crosswalk be laid at the corner of New and West Sixth streets. Frank W. Bushnell, a member of the committee on assessment and taxation, tendered his resignation and it was accepted. Mayor Rockfellow filled the vacancy by appointing Townsend Rushmore to the position.

The Mayor also appointed Thomas O'Gorman as a special patrolman, and the appointment was confirmed, as was also the appointment of Mr. Bushnell.

Building Inspector Doane reported that during the month of February seven permits were granted for buildings.

Regarding the complaint of Mrs. Beard, of Hillside avenue; Mr. Barrows stated that the assessment on her property for the sewer would have to stand, as it was found that the private sewer laid on Webster place was not adequate for the demand. It will be remembered that Mrs. Beard complained of paying two assessments, one for Hillside avenue and another for the sewer on Webster place. It was found, however, that all the people on Hillside avenue could not sewer in the Webster place sewer, hence the installing of the sewer on Hillside avenue. Mr. Barrows therefore moved that Mrs. Beard be notified that the matter is out of the Council's hands and that the assessment will have to stand.

A resolution was offered by Mr. Barrows authorizing the committee on streets and sewers to receive bids for furnishing crushed stone for street work. Mr. Barrows also called up the ordinance providing for a storm sewer in Park avenue, and it was adopted as was also the ordinance called up by Mr. VanHerwerden which provides for a change in the time of year for the collection of taxes.

Mr. Barrows asked the Council for $100 for the lights and, street committee to maintain the city park and keep it in good condition. After Mr. Barrows moved that when Council adjourn it be to meet on Monday evening, March 13th, the meeting adjourned.

DREW HIS GUN.

Trouble Over a Woman Brings Two Men Into Court.

Clarence Whelpley claims that Sunday morning Ellsworth Johnson, his former employer, drew a revolver and threatened his life. The trouble was over a remark Whelpley is alleged to have made about Johnson's wife. Johnson demanded that he should substantiate the remark. Whelpley started to depart, but Johnson demanded that he stand still, and admits that he drew a revolver.

Monday morning both men were arraigned before City Judge Runyon. Johnson pleaded guilty and Whelpley not guilty. The trial was set down for Saturday morning. F. J. Blatz, of Murphy & Blatz, represented Johnson.

Assessor Hubbard Recovering.

Assessor J. A. Hubbard, of West Fifth street, was out Monday for the first time after his long illness. He was just able to walk about in the fresh air for a few moments and then return to the house.

To Attend the Grand Lodge.

Grand Inside Watchman V. W. Nash, E. M. Laing and Henry Niehwitz will go to Trenton Tuesday, as delegates from Columbia Lodge, A. O. U. W., to the Grand Lodge which meets there.

Mayor was on Watch.

Mayor Rockfellow attended the regular meeting of the Common Council last Monday and took a lively interest in the proceedings.

DRINK GRAIN-O

After you have concluded that you ought not to drink coffee, it is not a misfortune but decided benefit if it, because it's health invigorating and appetizing. It is made from pure grains and has that rich seal brown color and tastes like the finest grades of coffee and costs about as much. Children like it and thrive on it because it is a genuine food drink containing nothing but food element. Ask your grocer for Grain-O, the new food drink. 15 and 25c.

WAR STILL CONTINUES OVER BARD CO. PROPERTY.

THE BANK WILL REPLEVIN GOODS.

Members of Bard Company Will Fight Holders of Executions on Same—

No Sale This Morning.

The war between the various disputants over the goods of the defunct Bard Company is still waged. The Constable for the executions still has possession, but both the mortgagee the First National Bank, and the members of the Bard Company have called upon the law to turn them out.

Constable Will Mottox has been in quiet possession of the store on North avenue since Monday morning when the sale under the executions was adjourned. Tuesday morning, Counselor O. L. Murphy went to the store accompanied by Former Judge W. M. Stillman, regular attorney for the Bank, and Auctioneer Carey. As it was so stormy, Constable Mattox allowed them to come inside after they agreed not to take any advantage of it. Mattox then announced that he would not permit the sale. The demand was formally made by Judge Stillman and refused. Then notice was served on the Constable to turn the goods over to the mortgagee. The Bank will now start a replevin suit and bring the case to trial in the county circuit court.

Murphy & Blatz are now representing the members of the Bard Company and will take the holders of the executions which are made in the name of the Bard Cycle Company. The case will come in a suit to try the right of property.

THE COURTS

JUSTICE WASH.

Adjourned—Case of Laing against Sullivan, for one week.

Settled—Case of Griffin against Thompson.

JUSTICE MOSHER.

Summons issued—In the case of the Plainfield Loan Association against Bowden, for possession of premises returnable March 13th.

JUSTICE MOFFETT.

Adjourned—Case of Simpson against Martin, for one week.

QUIETLY MARRIED.

Miss Mabelle Force and Ernest A. Millard Joined in Matrimony.

Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock occurred the marriage of Miss Mabelle Force, daughter of Mrs. Julia Force, of Watchung avenue, and Ernest A. Millard, of North avenue. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Charles E Herring, pastor of the bride, at his home on Watchung avenue. The bride and groom were unattended and the wedding was a simple and quiet one. Both the bride and groom are well-known in this city, where they have a host of friends who will extend their heartiest congratulations for success and happiness.

Mr. Millard holds a Government position at the postoffice, where he is an efficient clerk. Both he and his wife are popular in a large circle of friends. They will reside with the groom's parents for the present.

FROM WESTFIELD TO RAHWAY.

Application for a Trolley Franchise Before Rahway Common Council.

Rahway, March 8—Col. Hine, representing the capitalists who are projecting the road between Elizabeth and Plainfield, and who own the Plainfield Street Railway Company, appeared before the Common Council of this city last night and made application for a franchise for the proposed line from Westfield to Rahway. The application was received and a hearing set down for March 31st.

It is understood that Rahway people are in favor of the project.

How's This?

We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.

F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O.

We, the undersigned, have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years, and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions, and financially able to carry out any obligation made by their firm.

WEST & TRUAX, Wholesale Druggist, Toledo, O.

WALDING, KINNAN & MARVIN, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, O.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Price 75c. per bottle. Sold by all Druggists. Testimonials free.

Hall's family Pills are the best.

Thirteen Years a Janitor.

Stephen Hope, janitor of the Bryant school, has about recovered from his illness and will return to duty next Monday. On that day Mr. Hope will have completed his thirteenth year as janitor of the school.

Shaeyman Party All Right.

The German Lloyd Steamer Ems, with the Honeyman party on board, bound for Naples, touched at Gibraltar Monday. All on board were well, and had a pleasant trip.

Mrs William Ayres, of West Third street, has gone to Pottsville to visit relatives.

SURPRISED BY CLERKS.

PLEASANT TIME ENJOYED BY WOODHULL & MARTIN'S EMPLOYES.

Paid an Unexpected Visit to the Senior Member of the Firm in Honor of Their Second Business Anniversary.

Monday was the second anniversary of the opening of Woodhull & Martin's mammoth dry goods house on West Front street, and Mr. Woodhull, the senior member of the firm, was agreeably reminded of it at night by his employes and their friends who went to his house in a body after the store closed, and surprised him.

The surprise party was arranged by Miss Mabel Gillies and Miss Sarah Carney, who concieved the idea Saturday. Mrs Woodhull was let into the secret and contrived to keep her husband home from the store Monday evening, so as to enable the clerks to perfect the arrangements without his knowledge.

Soon after 8 o'clock a company of about forty young people, laden with baskets and boxes, might have been seen wending their way from the store towards Sycamore avenue. Arriving at the house the doorbell was rung, while the party gathered about on the front piazza. Mr. Woodhull himself came to the door, and to say he was surprised is putting it mildly But the self-invited guests pushed past him and took possession of the house. A merry evening was spent in playing games, dancing and listening to violin solos and duets by Mr. Martin and Mrs. Saums, and vocal solos by Mr. Martin.

Refreshments were taken, consisting of ice cream, cake, fruit, nuts and confectionery, and these were served about 11 o'clock. Altogether it was one of the happiest affairs imaginable, and showed the cordiality and good feeling that exists in this store between employer and employed.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Floyd T. Woodhull, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Shirley, Harold Shirley, Mr. and Mrs. William Messler, Mr and Mr. William Saums, Henry Blazure, John Johnston, Mr and Mrs. D. D. Williams, Mr and Mrs. W. E. Boice, Miss Hazel Boice, H. P. Greenwood, Miss Alice Kennedy, Charles Greer, Miss Matie VanHorn, Charles Suhr, Miss Eliza beth and Miss Miriam Wilcox, Miss Sarah Carney, Miss Mabel Gillies, Nelson VanWinkle, Miss Ella Mullen, Miss Cora Young, Miss Agar, Cornelius Barry, Alfred Harold, Miss Ella and Miss Eva DeCamp and Miss Annie Kelley. All the clerks were present, and having their wives and friends with them, passed the evening pleasantly indeed. Mr. Martin, of the firm, was treated the same way last year, so Mr. Woodhull was given the surprise this time.

THE GREAT INDOOR GAME

WHAT IS GOING ON IN LOCAL BASKET BALL CIRCLES.

Happenings of Interest to Plainfield Enthusiasts—What the Local Teams are Doing—Gossip Among the Players.

There are some good players among the embryo mining engineers who make up the team from the School of Mines of Columbia College. Among them are two old Twenty third Street Branch players who have been training their collegues into an excellent team. The team will play here in a few weeks.

Those who witnessed the game that the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. team put up against the Young Men's Institute team, of New York, in the latter's gymnasium last week, say that the local team played a good game although not up to its best work perhaps. The remarkable score that the Institute boys made against their Plainfield rivals can be accounted for by the wonderful goal throwing done by the home team, particularly Grimm, the Institute centre. Out of the fifteen goals thrown he made seven of them. He was very accurate and hardly missed a shot while the Plainfield boys threw frequently, but failed to score. The best critics in the game who have seen the Plainfield boys play say that their team play is hard to beat but that they are weak in goal throwing. During several of the last games played in the city, the local team has shown a decided improvement in that particular. More practice will surely result in bringing them to an even better standard.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

Something new in the line of a contest will be held in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium Saturday evening. It will be a club swinging contest, open to all members of the association, medal winners and all. The Indian club, that useful piece of hand apparatus of the gymnasium, will be used and the the local gymnasts will be asked to show their ability along that line. This contest will be followed two weeks later by another dumb-bell contest. The contest Saturday evening will be open to visitors and the privileges of the visitor's gallery will be free to all who care to witness the exhibition of work.

INSPECTED SIR KNIGHTS.

BIG KNIGHTS TEMPLAR OFFICIALS WERE PRESENT.

The Commandery in Full Templar Form According to Silent Tactics—Inspection is Followed By a Banquet.

Grand Captain General Eminent Sir Josiah Davidson, of Washington, was present in this city Monday, and inspected Trinity Commandery, No. 35, Knights Templar. The inspecting officer was well supported by the associate grand officers. The commandery opened in full Templar form, according to the silent tactics, in a most creditable manner, reflecting great credit upon the officers and those who took part.

This is an annual affair, and was followed last night by a banquet. Representatives from all over the State were present, particularly from Damascus Commandery, of Newark, who sent a large representation. Eminent Sirs Gidney and Fox, of New York Commandery, No. 65, of New York city, were there also. Right Eminent Sir John E. Rowe, past grand commander. All of these named stand high in the order.

Eminent Sir Nelson Y. Dungan, Commander, had charge. The grand officers and their associates, in full uniform and regalia, made a martial appearance. There was a large attendance at the inspection, which ended in a social way. Commander Dungan read short despatches supposed to have come from prominent people the world over in answer to invitations extended them to attend the inspection. They were all written by some wag (a member of the Asbestos Club, it is said) but were so pertinent to the present situation of things that they added greatly to the fun.

There was one from Admiral George Dewey, "Teddy" Roosevelt, Rear Admiral Sampson, Nelson A. Miles, the Prince of Wales, Dick Croker, Rear Admiral Schley, and last but not least, William McKinley.

THE AMUSEMENT WORLD.

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

The famous Washburn's minstrels bigger and brighter than ever, comes to Music Hall for a return visit this season, Friday night. The company has been enlarged since its appearance last December and now numbers fifty well known artists. In speaking of this grand double enterprise Mr. J. M. Wall, the able manager of the organization says: "The first part is new and novel; every song is new, and the end men keep the audience in an uproar through this portion of the performance. The olio consists of such well knows black face celebrities as, Kersands and Lasses Richmond, Lew Benedict, the Crescent City Quartette, Horner Bros., Weaver and Piatt, Knox Bros. and the wonder of the age, Joe Lowis, the world's contortionist. "The Sugar Grinder's Holiday" is a pleasing feature, and some very fine buck and wing dancing is introduced in this part of the programme. The performance closes with the War magnascope showing the very latest pictures of the Spanish-American war, intermingled with grotesque pictures. The performance from beginning to end is one of merit.

See Speer's Chateau wine cellars of New Jersey vineyards. Read all about it and about the unfermented Grape Juice.

New Jersey Grape Juice Sent to Europe.

Mr. Speer of New Jersey, has a reputation extending over the world as being a reliable producer of Oporto Grape Juice and Port Wine. They are ordered by families in Dresden, London and Paris for their superior virtues

In Chancery of New Jersey.

Between SARAH R. ROBINSON, Complainant, —and— HENRY H. ROBINSON, Defendant.

On Petition for Divorce.

To Henry H. Robinson:—

By virtue of an order of the Court of Chancery of New Jersey made on the 6th day of the date hereof, wherein Sarah R. Robinson is petitioner and you are defendant, you are required to appear and answer the petitioner's petition on the 10th day of April next, or in default such order will be taken against you as the Chancellor shall think equitable and the said petition is filed against you for a divorce from the bond of matrimony.

Dated this 27th day of February, Eighteen Hundred and Ninety-nine.

REED & CODDINGTON, Solicitors of Complainant, Robinson's Building, Plainfield, N. J.

3t5

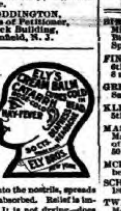
Nasal CATARRH

In all its stages there should be cleanliness.

Ely's Cream Balm cleanses, soothes and heals the diseased membrane. It cures catarrh and drives away a cold in the head quickly.

Cream Balm is placed into the nostrils, spreads over the membranes and is absorbed. Relief is immediate and a cure follows. It is not drying—does not produce sneezing. Large Size, 50 cents at Druggists or by mail; Trial Size, 10 cents by mail.

ELY BROTHERS, 56 Warren Street, New York.



Dr. Humphreys'

Specifics act directly upon the disease, without exciting disorder in other parts of the system. They Cure the Sick.

		Cents.
1—Fevers, Congestions, Inflammations		.25
2—Worms, Worm Fever, Worm Colic		.25
3—Teething, Colic, Crying, Wakefulness		.25
4—Diarrhea, of Children or Adults		.25
5—Dysentery, Griping, Bilious Colic		.25
6—Cholera, Cholera Morbus, Vomiting		.25
7—Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis		.25
8—Neuralgia, Toothache, Faceache		.25
9—Headache, Sick Headache, Vertigo		.25
10—Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Weak Stomach		.25
11—Suppressed or Painful Periods		.25
12—Whites, Too Profuse Periods		.25
13—Croup, Laryngitis, Hoarseness		.25
14—Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Eruptions		.25
15—Rheumatism, Rheumatic Pains		.25
16—Malaria, Chills, Fever and Ague		.50
17—Piles, External or Internal		.25
18—Ophthalmia, Weak or Inflamed Eyes		.25
19—Catarrh, Influenza, Cold in the Head		.25
20—Whooping-Cough		.25
21—Asthma, Difficult Breathing		.25
22—Ear Discharges, Deafness		.25
23—Scrofula, Swellings and Ulcers		.25
24—General Debility, Weakness		.25
25—Dropsy, Fluid Accumulations		.25
26—Seasickness, Nausea, Vomiting		.25
27—Kidney Diseases		.25
28—Nervous Debility		1.00
29—Sore Mouth, Canker		.25
30—Urinary Weakness, Wetting Bed		.25
31—Painful Menses, Pruritus		.25
32—Diseases of the Heart, Palpitation		1.00
33—Epilepsy, St. Vitus' Dance		1.00
34—Sore Throat, Quinsy, Diphtheria		.25
35—Chronic Congestions, Headaches		.50
77—Grip, Hay Fever		.25

Dr. Humphreys' Manual of all Diseases at your Druggists, or sent free.

Sold by Druggists, or sent post paid on receipt of price. HUMPHREYS' MED. CO., Cor. William & John Sts., New York.

HUMPHREYS' WITCH HAZEL OIL "THE PILE OINTMENT."

For Piles, External, Internal or Bleeding. Itching Piles in Any Condition. Instant Relief. Permanent Cure. Never Fails. Use in time. Prevents Fistula. Heeding the Blind and Painful Ulcers. Sold by Druggists, or sent on receipt of price. PRICE, 50 CTS. TRIAL SIZE, 25 CTS.

Sold by Druggists, or sent post paid on receipt of price. HUMPHREYS' MED. CO., 109 & 111 William St., Cor. John, New York.

VICK SEEDS

Bulbs and Plants have come to thousands of satisfied Customers for a half century and to celebrate the Golden Wedding we have issued a Special Golden Wedding Edition of which is a work of art. It has 64 pages lithographed in colors, a paper souvenir, and nearly 500 pages filled with information about Seeds, Plants, Bulbs, Tubers, Roses, Flowers, etc., elegantly bound in white and gold. A charming Calendar, making it unlike any on all subjects pertaining to the garden, with one of the same, and a descriptive catalogue of all the novelties of the season, is sent out every time. Consequently, but we want everyone interested in a good garden to have it, therefore we will send the Guide with a DUE BILL for 25 cents worth of flower and vegetable seeds to plant in it. It will be given for full amount of purchase to buy other goods. 15cts

Vick's Garden and Floral Guide

Vick's Little Com Catalogue
A perfect little gem of a price list. It is simply the Guide condensed. Illustrated. FREE and in handy shape for reference.

Vicks Monthly Magazine.
Each issue contains a dozen or more articles on all subjects relating to Gardening, Horticulture, etc. Regular subscription price 50 cents a year.
Special Offer—The Magazine one year and Vick's Garden and Floral Guide, for 75 cents.

OUR NEW PLAN of selling Vegetable Seeds gives you more for your money than any other seed house in America.

JAMES VICK SONS,
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

Children cutting Teething

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used for over Fifty Years by Millions of Mothers for their Children while Teething, With Perfect Success. It Soothes the Child, Softens the Gums, Allays all Pain, Cures Wind Colic, and is the best remedy for Diarrhœa.

Twenty-five cents a bottle. 114 eow

SEEDS for the Garden and Farm

Vegetable and Flower Seeds. All the Novelties and Standard Varieties carefully selected, tested and unsurpassed. Illustrated Catalogue FREE.

WEEBER & DON, Seed Growers, 114 and 116 Nassau Street, New York City.

MARRIED.

MILLARD—FORCE—In this city, Monday evening, March 7th, by Rev. C. E. Herring, Mr. Ernest A. Millard to Miss Mabelle Force, both of Plainfield.

DIED.

SPEARALL—In North Plainfield, Thursday, March 2d, 1899, Mary Parker, widow of Hiram Spearall, and daughter of the late Phillip Spearall, aged 74 years.

FINGER—At Washingtonville, N. J., March 6th, 1899, Peter Finger, aged 84 years, 6 months.

GREEN—In this city, Sunday, March 5th, 1899, Samuel Green.

KLEIN—In North Plainfield, Sunday, March 5th, 1899, Mrs. Klein, aged 93 years.

MASON—Suddenly in New York, Thursday March 2nd, 1899, Joseph Parker Mason, son of Joseph and Mary E. Mason, aged 50 years.

MCKAY—In this city, March 5th, 1899, Elizabeth, wife of John McKay, in her 52nd year.

SCHORR—In this city, on Sunday, March 5th, 1899, Elizabeth, wife of John M. Schorr.

TWEEDY—At Plainfield, New Jersey, on Monday, March 6th, 1899, Oliver Burr Tweedy, in the ninety-third year of his age.

VAIL—In this city, Tuesday, February 28th, 1899, Phebe R. Vail, in her 86th year.

CARNEY BROS.,

MADISON AVENUE.

Between Front and Second streets.

Tinners,
Plumbers
Gas Fitters,

Grates and bricks for all kinds of stoves can be found here at Jobbers' prices. Bring your tinware mending to us. The best tinners, the best plumbers, and the best gas-fitters in this section. We use none but the very best of materials, and our work always gives satisfaction. Keys of all kinds are made here. Tinware made to order. Ranges, brick and portable furnaces. Sanitary plumbing.

Sanitary Plumbing,

Brick and Portable Furnace
Gas Fitting, Tin Roofing,
Etc., Etc., Etc.

I am prepared to do any of the above branches in strictly first-class sanitary and workmanship manner.

Having associated myself with the Master Members Association of New York City, I employ none but first-class mechanics and non-union men. I believe in every man running a own business, at all times and in cases.

D. W. LITTELL,

No. 112 North Ave., Plainfield, N. J.

ALBERT HEDDEN

Livery & Boarding Stables

FOURTH ST.,

between Watchung and Park avenues. First-class Livery, Horses boarded by week or month. Telephone call, No. 114.

A. WOLFF,

Manufacturer of

CIGARS.

And dealer in all kinds of Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and smokers' articles, has removed from 234 W. Front street, to 231 West Front street, one door east of Madison avenue, and solicits the patronage of his friends and the public generally.

P. P. VanArsdale,

PIANO TUNER.

Instruments put in thorough order. Terms reasonable. Pianos and organs for sale and to let. Orders by postal, P. O. box 160, or left at Willett's shoe store, No. 107 Park avenue, will receive prompt attention. Residence, 301 E. Front street, corner Elm street. 9jly2

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

NEW IN EVERY DETAIL!

My new barber shop at

143 NORTH AVE.

is now open ready for business. All the latest appointments in the toncrial line.

EDWIN B. MAYNARD.

PATENTS
CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS & COPYRIGHTS.
CAN I OBTAIN A PATENT? For a prompt answer and an honest opinion, write to MUNN & CO., who have had nearly fifty years' experience in the patent business. Communications strictly confidential. A Handbook of information concerning Patents and how to obtain them sent free. Also a catalogue of mechanical and scientific books sent free. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice in the Scientific American, and thus are brought widely before the public without cost to the inventor. This splendid paper, issued weekly, elegantly illustrated, has by far the largest circulation of any scientific work in the world. $3 a year. Sample copy sent free. Building Edition, monthly, $2.50 a year. Single copies, 25 cents. Every number contains beautiful plates, in colors, and photographs of new houses, with plans, enabling builders to show the latest designs and secure contracts. Address, MUNN & CO., NEW YORK, 361 BROADWAY.

Wm. A. Woodruff,

Fire and Life

INSURANCE AGENT,

OFFICE,

corner Front St. and Park Avenue,

Plainfield, N. J.

Real Estate for Sale and Exchange Money to Loan on Approve Security

N. B. SMALLEY WILL LEAD G. O. P. BATTLE.

Nominated for Mayor by North Plainfield Republicans.

PRIMARY WAS A SURPRISE.

PRESENT COUNCILMEN ALL "TURNED DOWN" FOR RENOMINATION.

The Mayoralty Nomination Made Without Opposition—A Lively Fight for Councilmanic Honors. But Mayor Wilson's Supporters Were Defeated by a Large Majority—There Was a Big Attendance.

The Republicans of North Plainfield Borough met last Saturday evening to place in nomination a ticket to be voted for at the borough election to be held one week from tomorrow. It was by far the most largely attended primary ever held in the borough, there being fully four hundred citizens present, and of that number there was about one hundred Democrats who dropped in to see the fun.

There was two decided and surprising features about the primary. In the first place, Newton B. Smalley was nominated for Mayor without the slightest opposition, the secretary being authorized to cast the ballot. There was no lengthy speech made in placing his name before the meeting, and little interest was evidenced in this part of the proceedings. It did not had been an attempt made to endorse Mayor Wilson there would have been no doubt some fun, but all excitement along this line was absent. The second feature of the primary was the "turning down" of Councilmen MacLoughlin, Bald and Woolston for a renomination. This was one of the greatest surprises. All three Council men were, according to old-time principles, entitled to a renomination, but the presence of another ticket, Messrs. Robert Clark, Jr., Thomas Dowd and Harrison Coddington, completely snowed under the present officials. Messrs. MacLoughlin, Bald and Woolston each received 82 votes, while Robert Clark, Jr., received 168, Thomas Dowd 163 and Harrison Coddington 165. That there was a strong effort made to elect the last three named men was clear from the fact that as the tickets were counted these names appeared frequently, showing that they were not voted in bunches.

Former Mayor B. A. Hegeman, Jr., chairman of the Republican Executive Committee, called the meeting to order promptly at 8 o'clock, and without any frills asked those present who they would have for chairman. For mer Mayor Charles Place was named and selected for the position. S. B. Joseph was made secretary, while Freeholder Andrew Lutkins and former Councilman Schutt were appointed tellers.

The first business was that of nominating a man for Mayor. Newton B. Smalley was the only nominee and there was no opposition. Then came the nomination of men for Councilmen. The nominees were John G. MacLoughlin, F. H. Ball, Robert Clark, Jr., Thomas Doud, Harrison Coddington and L. B. Woolston. The result in the contest is given above.

J. Q. Miles was nominated for Justice of the Peace for two years, in place of H. S. Thomas, who has moved away. Dr. Cooley was nominated as a commissioner of appeal, while James Lunger and John Worth were renominated as surveyors of highways for one year. The nomination for constable was left for the committee on vacancies to fill. The Board of Health was voted $550, the same amount as usual.

Senator Reed moved that a committee on vacancies be appointed and Chairman Place named C. A. Reed, W. F. Williams and B. A. Hegeman, Jr., as the committee.

After a collection was taken up for the janitor of the school where the primary was held, the meeting adjourned.

It must be said that the men named for councilmanic honors are strong candidates and will put up a good fight to win. The nominee for Mayor is well known by all and has always had a strong following. There is no doubt but what his friends will rally to his support and do all they can to elect him as well as the whole ticket. The large number of friends of the present Mayor who were at the meeting took the nomination for Mayor in a philosophical manner and had nothing to say pro or con, and it remains now to be seen how the votes will be cast on election day.

Dr. Belknap at the Y. M. C. A.

Rev. Dr. J. D. Belnap, the evangelist who has been at the First M. E. church for two weeks, spoke at the men's meeting in the Y. M. C. A. Hall Sunday afternoon and gave a very interesting talk. His text was "Lord, I Will Follow Thee." He sang a solo as did also Miss Etta Raybert.

Death of Mrs. McKay.

The death of Mrs. John McKay, aged twenty-two years of West Fifth street, occurred last Sunday. The funeral will be held from Hope chapel at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

ACTED LIKE ONE MAD.

STRANGE CONDUCT OF A MILBURN MAN SUBJECT TO FITS.

Arrested Sunday and Released Monday Morning—Ran Down Somerset Street in a Violent Manner—Locked Up Again.

The residents along Somerset street were startled Monday by seeing a strange man rushing madly through the street toward the city. When in front of the Thorn building he stumbled and fell and had a fit resembling that of epilepsy. At once a large crowd gathered, and to prevent the man from doing any damage several persons took hold of him and pinioned him tightly. In the meantime, Dr. Buchanan was called from the office of Collector Brown. He administered the proper treatment after the man was removed to a vacant store in the Thorn building. In a short time the stranger came out of the fit, and Chief Wilson escorted him to the lockup, where he is now being held until he recovers.

The man is Fred DeHart and he gives his residence as Milburn. How he reached Plainfield he does not know. Last Sunday he was arrested on Somerset street by Marshal Schenck who found DeHart begging and acting strangely. After he was locked up he had the fits. Dr. Carman, borough physician, was called and he gave the proper treatment. From appearances DeHart had been drinking and his actions were similar to the delirium tremens.

Early Monday the man was arraigned before Recorder Long, and the latter released him. Just after ward the man had another fit and Recorder Long called Dr. Buchanan from a nearby barber shop. The man was released afterward and he had been gone but a short time when he rushed down Somerset street as stated above.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF LATE J. PARKER MASON.

MANY BEAUTIFUL FLORAL TRIBUTES.

Rev. Calvin Stebbins, of Worcester, Mass., Officiated—Remains Interred in Woodlawn Cemetery.

The funeral services of the late J. Parker Mason were held Sunday morning at 10 o'clock from the home on Stelle avenue. The attendance of both relatives and friends was large. The services were conducted by Rev. Calvin Stebbins, pastor of a Unitarian church at Worcester, Mass., where the father of the deceased was an attendant. The divine held a personal acquaintance with the late Mr. Mason and he spoke at length regarding his early life in Worcester. He spoke of Mr. Mason as a man of high character and ability, and to the bereaved ones he had comforting words to say.

The floral display at the service was beautiful, yet very simple. After the service the remains were taken to Woodlawn Cemetery, New York, for interment. The funeral party left this city on the noon train and occupied the club car "Bronx" to Jersey City. Those who served as bearers were E. C. Perkins, F. O. Herring, D. C. Ivins, Irving Brown, W. T. Kaufman, C. E. Brooks, E. H. Booth, H. M. Stockton, of this city, and Mr. Kinnicut, of Worcester.

MUST TRY RIGHT OF PROPERTY.

More Litigation to Grow Out of the Bard Company's Failure.

The constable's sale of the property of the Bard Company, which was to have been held Monday to satisfy a judgment obtained by Attorney G. W. V. Mov for Augustus Marsh, was called off, as the Bard Company claims the goods. This means that before anything else can be done, and within ten days, the right of property will have to be tried.

The distress warrant for rent comes in ahead of everything else, and before Mr. Moy could have begun to satisfy his judgment, Woolston & Buckle would have to be paid. As the matter stands now, the affairs of the company and its creditors are in a mixed-up mess, to say the least.

LIVED HERE THIRTY-EIGHT YEARS

Wilhelm Klein Passed Away at the Age of Seventy-Eight Years.

Wilhelm Klein, aged seventy-eight years, one of the oldest and most respected citizens of Plainfield died Sunday of consumption. He was a native of Germany and has lived in this city for thirty-eight years. He carried on the cabinetmaking business for years and he had a large circle of friends and acquaintances. The funeral services will be held from the residence of his son, Louis Klein, 331 East Second street, tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Interment will be in Hillside cemetery.

Dissolved Partnership.

The firm of Hetfield & Gallup, doing a coal and ice business, has dissolved and will not continue the business on West Front street. It is rumored that Brady Brothers, ice dealers, will fill the houses on Front street near Grant avenue, and will dispose of ice from that place. This rumor is not got decided just what he will do.

BOROUGH COUNCIL ADJOURNS SINE DIE.

Last Friday's Session Devoted to Closing Up Year's Business.

$5,000 TO BE BORROWED.

RECORDER LONG OFFERS TO SERVE NINE WEEKS FOR NOTHING.

Borough Can Secure Small Amounts of Crushed Stone Now and Then for Nothing—Question of Deducting Taxes in the Case of Dr. Cooley and Dr. Davis Caused Considerable Discussion.

The last meeting of Mayor Wilson and the Borough Council for the present borough year was held last Friday and every member was in attendance. Contrary to expectations there was little business of special importance and the session was an uneventful one. Clerk Arnold's report showed that $5 had been received as subscription on the macadamizing of Summit avenue and that $8 had been received as fines from Recorder Long. The report of Collector George F. Brown showed that during the month of February $1,291 11 had been collected, that there is $1,455 28 in the borough fund and $171 21 to the Watchung avenue fund, and a total balance on March 1st of $1,926 49.

In a communication Recorder Long stated that he would serve nine weeks after the expiration of his term without expense for the reason that during his term Mayor Wilson served as Recorder for that length of time. He offered his services for the extra time and the communication was received and filed.

Mr. Woolston, of the street committee, reported that in all $181.81 had been expended during February on street work. He also made a report on the petition of W. J. Buttfield regarding certain parts of the borough being used for a dumping ground. The matter has been referred to the Board of Health. Mr. Woolston stated that in conversation with J. Y. Wilson, dealer in crushed stone, the latter informed him that whenever the borough wanted a half dozen loads of stone to repair the streets in the borough broken through travel of the stone wagons the same would be delivered free.

Mayor Wilson made a short statement on behalf of the Board of Health and said that the Board was in need of $77 27 to complete the amount due them by law, $550. This matter will be attended to.

Mr. Rogers offered a resolution confirming the election of J. Daly and F. A. Long to membership in Warren Engine Company. Mr. MacLoughlin offered a resolution authorizing the Collector to mark off his books certain amounts and mark the same "uncollectable."

Mr. Vallant offered four resolutions providing for notes due very soon. One was for $50, six months interest on the Watchung avenue improvement, another was for $2,041.67 to cover a $2,000 note, and another one provided for a $2,000 note due March 6th, and was for $2,050. In view of the fact that these notes are to be met and there is not a sufficient amount in the treasury to meet them, he offered a resolution to the effect that $5,000 be borrowed for ten months for the borough account.

Mayor Wilson at this time introduced the old question of deduction on taxes in the case of Dr. Cooley and Dr. Davis, and wanted to know who is to pay the amount in question. The sought for information was asked of Borough Counsel Reed, who was present.

The case is this: Dr. Cooley secured from the Commissioners of appeal a deduction of $3,000 on account of notes in the bank, and it is said that Dr. Davis has secured a deduction of the same amount on the same notes in Plainfield. It was stated by Mr. MacLaughlin that Dr. Cooley owes Dr. Davis, and in view of this fact it was thought that Dr. Cooley is entitled to the deduction, and as regards the deduction secured by Dr. Davis it was thought the borough had nothing to do. Mr. Reed gave as his opinion that the man who owes the money is entitled to the deduction, and it was thought advisable to learn who was the maker of the note, and this is the way the matter was left.

Mayor Wilson then put a motion that was offered that the Council adjourn without date, and thus the proceedings of the present Mayor and Council came to a close. After the meeting the Borough Solons remained and had a quiet conference by themselves.

Park Club Climbing Up.

The sixth and last round of the Inter-City Whist tournament was played in Brooklyn Saturday night. The tournament was won by team A, of the New York Whist Club. The Park Club, of this city, was seventh, having pulled up from sixteenth place. In the play of Saturday night the Parks were second. In the contest for the best individual score, F. H. Freeman, of the Park Club, was fourth.

DINED THE COMMITTEES

FORTY Y. M. C. A. WORKERS ENJOYED A PLEASANT EVENING.

The Dinner was Served by Ten Ladies—After the Meal Remarks on Association Work Were Made by Various Diners.

The annual dinner to the newly appointed members of the committees of the Y. M. C. A. was given Saturday evening. There were about forty men present, and these represented the working force of the association. The dinner was for two purposes; to gather the different committees together for a social hour, and also to talk over among themselves the best plans along their own particular lines, by which the good of the association can be increased.

The dinner was given in the small hall. There was four tables, one in each of the four corners of the room, and arranged as they were with lamps, flowers and glittering glass and silver ware, made a pretty appearance. It was a regular turkey dinner, with all the accompaniments, and needless to say was enjoyed by all. Ten ladies attended upon the tables. They were Mrs. J. W. Gavett, Mrs. Ryer F. Murray, Mrs. Leroy H. Gates, Mrs. C. E. A. Heywood, Mrs. Frank T. Clawson, Mrs. S. R. Struthers, Miss Adele Kirby, Miss Clara Long, Miss Carrie Dewey and Mrs. J. M. Manning.

The dinner was served soon after 6 o'clock, and it was after 9 o'clock before all had left the hall. President Stephen Cahoone presided, and during the evening remarks were made by the following: George W. Rittenhouse, of the religious work committee; J. A. Robinson, of the education committee; O. S. Rogers, boys' work committee.

After the remarks questions were asked upon the various points brought out, and an informal discussion followed.

TROLLEY TO GO OUT ARLINGTON AVENUE.

The Necessary Consents Were Secured Thursday.

THE COMPANY IS PLEDGED.

IT IS CALCULATED TO RUN THE EXTENSION TO GOLF LINKS.

Charles L. Moffett and Harry C. Runyon Accomplished the Work of Securing the Right of Way—Street Railway Company are Obliged to Build According to Their Agreement.

The last barrier that lay before the path of the trolley extension out Arlington avenue and to the Crescent Oval, Hillside cemetery and the golf links has been overcome. Thursday afternoon Charles L. Moffett and Harry C. Runyon completed the undertaking of getting a majority of consents for a trolley line on Arlington avenue, between West Fourth street and Randolph road.

One of the concessions that the Common Council secured from the Plainfield Street Railway when the Scotch Plains extension franchise was granted, was that the corporation should run a branch line on Arlington avenue to Randolph road and then over that thoroughfare to Woodland avenue and to the places already mentioned, when the necessary consents should be secured.

The Arlington avenue extension is not considered particularly valuable by the street railway as it is not part of the main system of trolley lines that these trolley promoters have planned. They were not anxious to build it, but agreed to do so if the consents were secured, and to operate it according to the same rules as the rest of their line. This proposed extension is quite valuable to the city, however, in opening up that portion of the city and furnishing the long wish-for rapid transit to the Oval, cemetery and golf links.

Messrs. Moffett and Runyon have been working to secure the consents. They met with no organized opposition and had little difficulty in getting the required number.

The necessary consents on Randolph road were secured some time ago. It is a question, however, whether the best line for the extension would be to follow Randolph road itself or go through a private right of way parallel to that street. It has been settled that the road will follow a private right of way south from Randolph road and parallel to Woodland avenue.

The proper ordinance providing for the Arlington avenue extension will be introduced into the Common Council shortly by the street committee.

Eight New Church Members.

Eight persons united with Trinity Reformed church at the communion services Sunday morning, four by letter and four on confession. Two of the latter were members of the Sunday-school and also of the Junior Endeavor Society.

HOW THEY DO IT IN THE CELESTIAL EMPIRE

"Chinese Evening" at Congregational Church Friday.

HEARD ABOUT FOOCHOW.

FLAGS OF BOTH NATIONS WAVED SIDE BY SIDE.

Some of the Young Women Were Gowned in Chinese Fashion—Heard From Two Girls at Foochow School Who are Supported by Christian Endeavor Society—Letters Read From Both.

The good folk of the Congregational church were entertained in the church parlors Friday evening with a "Chinese Evening," under the auspices of the missionary committee of the Christian Endeavor Society. The parlors were gaily bedecked with the American and Chinese flags while some of the young women were Chinese costumes. Chinese lanterns were also used in the decorations.

It was not exactly a sociable nor yet a missionary meeting, sort of a combination of both. The Christian Endeavor Society is supporting two Chinese maidens who are being educated at the Foochow girls' boarding school. So Foochow has particular interest to the Endeavorers. The meeting part of the evening dealt mostly with Foochow and the two school girls.

A description of the school and its methods was read by Miss Mary Chase. Then a letter from one of the girl students was read by Miss Nellie Winckler. A letter from the other was read by Miss J. Louise Jenkins. A recitation was given by Miss Carrie Fuller. Then a game of questions and answers about Foochow was played, all the visitors participating. A message from Foochow was read by Rev. C. L. Goodrich. That concluded the programme.

The remainder of the evening was devoted to sociability. The committee wanted to have as appropriate refreshments as possible. As most of the visitors were not particularly fond of rice in the ordinary form, rice pudding was provided, which the visitors were allowed to eat American fashion. Tea was provided.

The affair was arranged by the missionary committee of which Miss Mary Chase is the chairman. The attendance during the evening was large and all expressed much satisfaction at the rather novel sort of an evening.

FOX RAN FOR FIVE MILES

GIVEN FIVE MINUTES START, BUT SIR REYNARD WAS CAUGHT.

Hounds Took the Scent and Chased the Fox Through the Woods Till They Caught Him—Another Run to be Held.

In spite of the rain Saturday the fox hunt took place at Ellis Campbell's club house according to the programme. There were several men with good dogs there, who were anxious to take part in the hunt, so after a consultation Sir Reynard was turned loose, given five minutes start, and then pursued by dogs and men.

The fox was a magnificent gray fellow, and was caught in Bingoes, N. J. When he was let go he started for the woods, and cleared five miles before he was caught. The hounds took the scent and with loud baying followed the fox through open fields and woods until they cornered him back of the J. Wesley Johnson farm, near Metuchen. One of the men dought the dogs off, and seizing the fox wrapped him up in a coat and carried him back to the hotel. In two weeks the fox will be loosed again.

After the crowd had returned there was a drag hunt. A bag of anise seed was drawn around the country, ending at Campbell's. The dogs were put on the scent, and "Hunter," Edward Campbell's hound, came in first.

COMPLETE DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

Committee Makes Nominations Not Made at Primary.

The Democrats of the borough have completed their ticket to be voted for at the election to be held Tuesday, March 14th. The complete ticket is as follows: Mayor, John F. Wilson; councilmen, three years, S. S. Swackhamer, Walter Lisbarger; two years, W. J. Conroy; justice of the peace, Andrew Love, Sr.; commissioner of appeal, D. A. Mills; surveyors of highways, L. M. Bird, D. W. Beard; constable, Henry Bodenheimer. The appropriation for the Board of Health is $550.

Death of Mrs. Schorb.

Mrs. Elizabeth Schorb, aged 75 years, wife of John M. Schorb, died Sunday. The funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at 3:15 o'clock from her late residence, 115 East Front street. Interment will be in Hillside Cemetery. Mrs. Schorb has lived in Plainfield about 50 years, and died suddenly from old age and heart trouble. She leaves a husband and three children, John, William and Josephine.

CARLYLE AND HIS WIFE

AN INTERESTING TOPIC DISCUSSED BY LEON VINCENT.

The Lecture Was Wittily Delivered by Mr. Vincent, Who Put Carlyle Down as One of the Leading Literary Lights.

Leon Vincent, in Vincent chapel Friday afternoon, delivered the first of a series of three lectures under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society, the subject being "Carlyle and His Wife." The lecture is one that Mr. Vincent has often delivered, and is always listend to with attention as it abounds in humor, pathos and eloquence.

"It used to be," said Mr. Vincent, referring to the lecture, "all about Thomas Carlyle; now it is half about Carlyle and half about his wife; and in a short time I expect it will be all about Carlyle's wife."

Mr. Vincent began his lecture with the burial of the great writer, who is destined to live for many years in the hearts of his readers. The simple funeral services, simple at his own request, were spoken of as in startling contrast to the pageant accorded Fred Archer, a noted horse jockey, who died about the same time, and whose interment was made the occasion of all that was beautiful and sublime.

Mr. Vincent admitted that he was partial to the Scotch writer, and looked upon him as a literary hero. He described his work over the first volume of the "French Revolution" which he loaned John Stuart Mills, a friend, to examine. Mills, without asking the author's permission, gave the precious manuscript, the work of months, to a lady whose servant, seeing the loose leaves lying around, kindled a fire with them.

At this time Carlyle's fame had not come, and he was even in financial difficulties. Nevertheless he went to work again with marvelous pluck, and re wrote the entire volume, and produced a work of more worth than the original. The first volume was received more readily on this side of the Atlantic than in England, and the first financial returns were made to the author from his American publishers. It was not until he was twelve years of age that Carlyle was recognized as the genius he was, and after that until his death he was given the place in literature which he deserved.

His wife was a Jane Welsh. She was a remarkable girl and developed into a remarkable woman. Intellectual in a high degree, she was her husband's help meet in every respect, and to loved her with a love so genuine as to be almost phenomenal. Miss Welsh, when young, was something of a flirt. She had many admirers among her male friends, and was in love with a clergyman before she met Carlyle. She was as capricious as any woman could be, and three weeks before she accepted Carlyle as her affianced husband, emphatically refused him, and declared that under no considerations would she marry him. She died suddenly one afternoon while out driving in her carriage.

CLOSE OF METHODIST REVIVAL MEETINGS.

DR. BELKNAP FINISHES HIS WORK.

Last Night the Church Was Filled and a Number Professed to be Christians.

The revival meetings at the First M. E. church, which have been conducted there for the last two weeks by Rev. Dr. J. D. Belknap, of Syracuse, were concluded last evening. Although the weather has been unpropitious for the time, the attendance has been very good considering. Last night the church was filled. A number have professed a desire to lead a new life and become Christians.

The farewell service last evening was in charge of Dr. Belknap. Dr. Snodgrass making a few remarks on the success of the meetings and how popular Dr. Belknap has been. Dr. Belknap's address was on the text, "Almost thou persuadest me to become a Christian." He told how it was necessary to become more than almost and illustrated it with several pathetic stories. He concluded by giving the principal reasons why everyone should become a Christian. The service closed with the usual appel to the congregation to begin life anew on Christian principles.

In Dr. Richards' Pulpit.

Rev. Dr. A. F. Schauffler, a prominent New York divine, filled the pulpit in the Crescent Avenue church Sunday morning and evening. He was listened to by large congregations. In the morning he told of how great opportunities come when one was about his daily toil. In the evening he spoke on "The Child and the Book," telling of how the Bible can be made very interesting to the child if explained in the right way.

Consumptive Was Buried.

Samuel Green, of East Third street, died Sunday after an illness lasting about one year. Death was due to consumption. A wife and one daughter, who lives in Washington, survive him. The funeral services will be held from Bethel chapel next Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Interment will be in Hillside Cemetery.

POLICEMEN RAIDED BUT ALL WAS IN VAIN

Judge Runyon Dismissed all the Prisoners in Court.

AN ALLEGED POKER GAME.

TOTTEN AND SAFFRON CLAIM THAT THEY SAW GAME IN PROGRESS.

The Six Prisoners Swore Otherwise—Some Trouble Among Prisoners About Names—Several Had Two—Said All They Were Doing Was Telling Stories and Eating Peanuts—Officers Saw Cards and Money.

Two members of the police force, Patrolman Totten and Saffron, raided the house of Stephen Kennett, 433 West Fourth street Sunday morning shortly after 9 o'clock. They arrested Kennett, his son and four visitors, on the charge of gambling. Monday morning they appeared in the City Court and told their story.

It was the largest trial that has occurred during Judge Runyon's term of office. For a year it has been reported to the police that there has been gambling going on at Kennett's house. The men who are alleged to have frequented the place are principally employes of the Pond Tool Works. When the news of the arrest became public there were a host of friends of the six prisoners who went to Judge Runyon to intercede for them. Among them were Andrew McArdel and several other politicians.

According to the brief synopsis of the case posted on the station-house blotter, Patrolmen Totten and Saffron raided the house of Kennett at 9 o'clock Sunday morning and arrested Stephen and William Kennett, John Scott, Patrick MacNamara, Charles Walsh and a young man named Dunn, all of whom were charged with playing poker for money.

The story of the two policemen were practically the same. Totten had heard the sound of voices and had peeped through a slit in the curtain and seen them gathered about the kitchen table playing poker for money. He went for Saffron and the latter heard the rattle of the cards and saw the playing as well. They had tried to gain an entrance by the rear door but it was locked. Kennett told them to go to the front and when Totten entered he says he saw no signs of playing except that part of a pack of cards lay on the mantelpiece. Both officers heard a great scuffling going on within, just before the door was opened.

Some of the prisoners had a little difficulty over their names. John Scott, who said his name was sometimes Douglass, told how he had been invited to a party at Kennett's. He found great difficulty in remembering the Kennett's name was although he had known him for years. He told how the only occupation of the party during the evening was eating peanuts and telling stories.

Councilman Walter L. Hetfield, who conducted the prosecution in the absence of Corporation Counsel C. A. Marsh, drew out the information that there was only one bag of peanuts which arrived at 11 o'clock. How according to the testimony of the various witnesses the eating of peanuts went on until after 1 o'clock and there were still some left that Patrolmen Totten ate when he raided the place.

Some of the prisoners were very positive that no money had changed hands. McNamara was not sure of it. William G. DeMeza conducted the case for the defendants.

Kennett told that a blanket had been hung before the window so that no one could possibly see inside the room. None of the other witnesses mentioned about the blanket. The burden of the testimony was that they had happened in to Kennett's, one to call, one to attend a party, and the rest because they frequently went there to see him. They said that the evening was spent in eating peanuts and telling stories and that no cards were played.

DeMeza pointed out these facts in summing up and asked the Judge to dismiss the prisoners for lack of evidence. Councilman Hetfield declared the evidence of the two policemen, who had no possible reason for making the charge if it were not true, was only met with the evidence of the prisoners who were naturally anxious to free themselves. In his mind it was more than sufficient to hold the prisoners.

The Judge evidently thought otherwise. He was rather nervous when he announced his decision and hesitated and stumbled over his words as he announced that the prisoners were dismissed.

—The Laire Hardware Company is advertising seasonable goods, such as paints, brushes, putty, etc, at very low prices.

—Scheffin & Schultz, the clothiers, opened their new store in the Scheffin building Saturday evening. The regular spring opening will take place next Saturday.

WILSON RENOMINATED AFTER LIVELY FIGHT.

Exciting Borough Democratic II Primary Thursday Night.

WAS A BIG ATTENDANCE.

OPPONENTS OF MAYOR WILSON TRIED TO NAME H. P. REYNOLDS.

First Clash Between the Factions Occurred in the Selection of a Chairman—Wilson Supporters in Majority—W. L. Saunders Nominated the Mayor to Succeed Himself—Councilmen Named.

If there is a single Jeffersonian Democrat in the borough of North Plainfield who can remember a time when political affairs were similar to those exhibited last Thursday at the primary held in the basement of the Borough Public School, he must have forgotten it after attending last night's meeting. It was without a doubt one of the largest and most excited gatherings ever held under the auspices of the Democrats of the borough. Fully 150 people were present, and from the very start there were signs of "A Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight."

It could be plainly be seen, by the time that Former Mayor William L. Saunders called the meeting to order, that there was a very strong opposition crowd present who were out to defeat the nomination of Mayor Wilson for a second term. Here and there groups gathered and with a shake of the head gave voice to sentiments of "We shall see who is going to rule this borough ?"

When Mr. Saunders called the meeting to order, he remarked that the presence of so many citizens reminded him of good old Democratic times, and he greeted all with cordiality. He then asked those present who they would have for chairman. Here is where the trouble started. David J Carney named A. E. Keaney while David Bodine named James Trewin.

It was at first the intention of Mr. Saunders to take a viva voce vote, but he entertained an objection offered by Mr. Bodine, who asked that the vote by ballot. Mr. Saunders stated that the good old principle of Democracy would prevail—the majority decides. After he stated clearly that no Republican would be allowed to vote, he named E. T. Douglass and John Emmons as tellers.

The vote for chairman resulted in Mr. Keaney being chosen by a vote of 91 to 87 for Mr. Trewin. In all 121 votes were cast. The friends of Mr. Trewin were somewhat uneasy. In the meantime L. B. Bird was chosen secretary and he read the call of the meeting.

After the call was read Mr. Saunders stepped forward and placed in nomination for the Mayoralty honors Mayor John F. Wilson, in the following speech :

"A citizen of mature years, a large and perhaps the largest tax payer in the borough, a man of undoubted business ability, large experience and high character, was against his will about two years ago, urged by certain Democrats to accept the party's nomination for Mayoralty. He won at the polls and has since then conducted a vigorous, practical businesslike and honest administration of affairs. Being a man of strong convictions and character he has naturally made enemies. His course has seemed to me to be one of diligent search after error and untiring determination to uproot it when found. That he has worked up—once in the interests of the borough and that he has accomplished results no one disputes.

"The office is perhaps not without some interest or attraction with him. It gives him food for thought. It occupies his mind and I am not so sure that it does not keep him awake nights. It really should afford him and it does afford me considerable amusement when the question is asked 'cui bone' ? What good is all this? What does the Mayor of North Plainfield get out of this office. Is there any money in it? No. Is it a means by which directly or indirectly there is profit in it for an honest man? No. Is there any honor in it? Very little. There is certainly no honor in keeping it up—once a Mayor always an ex Mayor. Is there anything about it which is conducive to one's health happiness, enjoyment or prosperity. I think not and I speak from experience on the other side of the case, the office of Mayor even in a little borough like this carries with it its weight of responsibility and cares. The Mayor is a servant, not a master. He is attacked by day and night and from all sides and with all public matters from questions of money and taxation to those of street brawls and family quarrels, and all this without money and without price!

"Now, why should there be any question about the re-nomination and election of Mayor Wilson if he is willing to take the job at no pay. We should be glad of it. He is in harness, accustomed to the ropes, is honest, has plenty of time at his disposal and yet some one objects to his continuing to work for us for nothing. Do not let personal considerations effect your vote, for in such a case you will be confessing that your vote is cast not so much in the interest of the public as in your own private interest. If Mayor Wilson has offended you be a big enough man to say that you will vote for him, because he has been a good Mayor and in doing this you will exercise in a noble manner this high privilege given to a citizen.

"I favor and I nominate Mayor Wilson as a Democrat. He is by inheritance and by conviction a Democrat. I say this notwithstanding his independence in politics and in office. He is the same kind of a democrat that Grover Cleveland is, and I would ask if there is any man who loves the Democratic party less because of that page in its history which records the election and administrations of President Cleveland. He and Mayor Wilson both have their faults. They are both men of strong convictions. Personally they may not perhaps belong to the type of "good fellows" but their record is clean and they are simple human as we all are. From the practical point of view it is not easy to elect a Democrat to office in this borough. In my judgment no other Democrat but one of the independent type like Mayor Wilson can win sufficient Republican votes to be elected; hence, I would ask you to bear this in mind and to ask yourself whether you would rather have a Republican in the office, and at the same time look backward and see if you can discover any good things which the Democrats of this borough have received from the Republican party. It is a question for you to say between two evils choose the least."

Following the remarks by Mr. Saunders there were several cheers and some hisses. Immediately afterward John Case nominated H. P. Reynolds. This name brought forth cheers, and David Bodine in answer to David Carney's remark that Mr Reynolds would not accept the nomination, replied that he did not believe it. He had talked with Mr Reynolds and was led to believe that he would take it. He did not think that Mayor Wilson was the only man who could win, and he nominated Mr. Reynolds.

Here is where the contest became warm. Mr. Carney still urged the fact that Mr. Reynolds would not run, while there were cries of "Throw him out." "It's none of your business," and "Don't believe a d—— word of it," etc., were heard in a deafening manner.

Mr Carney was not to be turned down thusly and he at once produced a letter from Mr. Reynolds in which he stated that he would not accept and that he would vote for Mayor Wilson if he was nominated. The following is a copy of Mr. Reynolds' letter :

"Washington Park, March 2, 1899.

"Dear sir:—Replying to your note just now at hand it seems unnecessary for me to 'verify' or to assert anything in regard to the nomination, except that I have from the first advocated, and that I still advocate the renomination of Mayor Wilson. That I hope and expect to vote for his re-election, and that I should regard any change at this time a misfortune for the borough. Moreover Mr. French clearly understands that these are my views.

"Respectfully yours,

"H. P. Reynolds."

This blast brought forth more exclamations such as "Freeze out," "It's a dirty Irish trick." "Don't believe that Reynolds wrote it," and many similar statements were made. While everyone was excited James Trewin asked the chair to recognize him, but he failed of his purpose and was not given the privilege of the floor.

One taxpayer explained, "Why not let the respectable Democrats have their say instead of these people that bang around saloons ?" Finally order was restored and the voting began for Mayor John F. Wilson, H. P. Reynolds and John Emmons. The latter was nominated by David Bodine, and while the chair did not recognize the nomination of Mr. Reynolds he received a great many votes. George Bird and Dennis Gavin were the tellers, and the result of the vote was tha' Mr. Wilson received 81 votes, H P Reynolds 66 and John Emmons 5 When the vote was announced there were hisses and cries "The Park Club did it."

This matter being settled the next thing in order was the nomination of two Councilmen for two years and one for one year. S. S. Shackamer, Walter C. Linbarger and W. J. Conroy were nominated. E. T. Douglass declined a nomination.

It was then the sense of the meeting that a committee of the balance of the ticket as follows: Justice of the Peace, two years; Constable, three years; Commissioners of Appeal, two years, and two Surveyors of Highways, two years.

Chairman Kenney appointed G. W. Bird and Dennis Gavin a committee to fill the vacancies, after which the meeting adjourned.

PRACTICAL SOLUTION OF LABOR PROBLEM

How it is Remedied at One Big Factory.

SOCIAL SERVICE WORK.

DR. W. H. TOLMAN GAVE ILLUSTRATED LECTURE ON SUBJECT.

Successful Attempt by National Cash Register Company to Interest Employes in Welfare of the Concern—Prizes Offered for Best Suggestions as to Means and Methods at Factory.

What has been done along the lines pointed out by the League for Social Service was the burden of an illustrated lecture by Dr. William H. Tolman, secretary of the League, given in the chapel of the Seventh Day Baptist church Thursday. Incidentally, the lecture gave the Plainfielders present ideas they might utilize in their own city to beautify it and improve the condition of its inhabitants.

The lecture was largely devoted to describing and illustrating the methods used by President Patterson, of the National Cash Register Company, to improve the condition of the relations between employers and employed at their big factory at Dayton, by the great delicacy of the machines needed the very best effort of the men and to secure this President Patterson tried various methods to secure their co-operation and interest.

Schools were established for the employes where they might study their work in a systematic manner. The factory buildings were arranged so as to be convenient for the employes at their work and various little conveniences, whichever but little, were provided. Prizes were offered for the best suggestions regarding tools, machines and methods. Literary and educational societies were encouraged and a clubhouse provided.

One way in which President Patterson had of improving particularly ugly spots in the city was to show views of them in his frequent exhibitions of stereopticon views. The owners of such places soon tired of having them pointed out and did their best to improve the appearance.

Dr. Tolman told how President Patterson declared that all these improvements in the factory had come showered their results in dollars and cents, for the employes worked harder and better under the new circumstances The management of the factory was placed in the hands of five of the most experienced men. It was, in fact, a sort of cabinet form of government and was found to be very successful.

Similar methods used in other factories were shown and the steady advance of this kind of social service pointed out.

Interesting leaflets were distributed at the close of the lecture. The lecture was illustrated with stereopticon views.

HOMŒOPATHISTS AT THE HOSPITAL

New School of Physicians Will, Demand Equal Rights for All.

In view of the largely increased facilities of Muhlenberg Hospital in prospect, the physicians of the homœopathic school are beginning to agitate the matter of their being allowed to practice in the institution.

Under the present rules of the hospital none but alopathic physicians are permitted to treat patients at the institution and this has caused much unfavorable comment among the clients of the new school of medicinal practitioners.

The homœopathists intend to demand that when the improvements at the hospital are consummated that one portion of the buildings be set apart for the admission of homœopathic patients who may be treated as the like.

USED FISTIC ARGUMENTS.

Excited Borough Politicians Indulged in a Lively Fight.

After the Republican primary in the borough last Saturday evening several small-fry politicians became engaged in a fight, wherein one fellow had his face punched by a leader of the party. Bitter words were exchanged about some of the candidates, and friends of each side defended their name. In doing so it became necessary to use force.

One fellow was picked up bodily and thrown out of a rendevous while, as stated, another fellow received a blow in the face. Some of the participants were trying to arrange to engage an official of the borough in a fight, but the latter was in no mood to enter the contest. In the course of time the fighters were quieted and finally went home.

Entertained His Bible Class.

Saturday evening Thomas B. Crossley, of Duer street, entertained the members of his adult Bible class at the First M. E. church. The affair was held at Mr. Crossley's home. In addition to the members of the class present there were Rev. and Mrs. W. C. Snodgrass, Rev. and Mrs. W. C. Nelson.

AN ORDAINED MINISTER.

GEORGE POOLE ACCEPTED AS AN EXPOUNDER OF BAPTIST GOSPEL.

The Services Held in the Park Avenue Baptist Church Last Evening—The Storm Prevented a Large Attendance.

Thursday George Poole, of Oak Tree, was no more in the religious world than an earnest, faithful church man; today he is a minister of the Gospel, with the power to baptize and also to perform marriages, and has been welcomed into the concourse of Baptist ministers. His ordination services were held last night in the Park Avenue Baptist church, but owing to the storm, the attendance was discouragingly small But the service lacked none of its solemnity or interest because of the small number out to witness it, and Rev. Robert Lowry, D. D., who preached the ordination sermon, spoke with as much force and power as though there were thousands listening to every word he uttered.

Rev. J. H. Parks, D. D., of Scotch Plains, who was elected moderator of the council that sat to examine Mr. Poole, presided at the service last night, and at its close pronounced the session adjourned.

After the Scripture reading, prayer and the singing of one or two hymns, Rev. Lowry preached the ordination sermon. His text was his next three words from the Gospel according to St. Matthew: "Go ye, therefore." The ordination prayer was to have been uttered by Rev. D. J. Yerkes, D D., but in his absence Dr. Parks invoked the Divine blessing upon the candidate, who humbly knelt before him with the hands of four ministers resting on his bowed head.

The charge to the candidate was given by his pastor, Rev. J. W. Richardson, and Rev. Frank Fletcher, of New Market, welcomed him with a few words into the company of the Baptist preachers. The benediction was pronounced by Rev. Mr. Poole.

The newly-made preacher has accepted a call as pastor of the Baptist church at Ringoes, Hunterdon county, and will go there at once to take up his labors.

Among the members of the congregation last night was Deacon Bond, of the Ringoes Baptist church, who came to Plainfield to see his new pastor ordained.

GROWTH OF RED MEN.

MIANTONOMOH TRIBE HEARD ADDRESSES BY PAST SACHEM LEAHY.

There are 16,000 Members in New Jersey, and the Wealth of the Tribes is $35,000,000—Plainfield Tribe Was Honored Also.

Miantonomoh Tribe of Red Men met Friday night and received one proposition for membership. Past Sachem Leahy, who attended the grand lodge meeting at Trenton Friday, February 24th, gave a brief synopsis of the business transacted there, to the edification of all who listened.

He said that there were, at the close of the fiscal year, 16,000 members of the order in the State of New Jersey. The wealth of all the tribes was $350,000. During the past year $165,000 has been dispensed for sick benefits and the help of poor brethren. Several important changes have been made in the constitution and by laws. The insolvent debt of the defunct financial benefit association has been assumed by the great council of New Jersey. It was decided to issue bonds to the amount of $600 to liquidate 24 unpaid claims of the defunct association.

Leahy went on to say that Plainfield ought to feel honored in the selection of Grand Junior Sagamore William Newcorn as Grand Senior Sagamore, an office next to the head of the order; also in the selection of Past Sachem Westphal as chairman of the law committee of the grand council, and deputy grand sachem of district No. 31.

Leahy gave a vivid description of the installation ceremonies, the most important feature of which was the presentation of a past grand sachem's regalia by Takanassee Tribe of Long Branch to outgoing Grand Sachem Wm. Smythe; a past grand sachem's jewel by brethren from South Jersey; and a solid gold ring engraved with the token and emblems of the order by brethren from Paterson.

Funeral of an Aged Quaker.

The funeral of Phebe R. Vail was held Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the Friends Meeting House. The services were very simple as is the Quaker custom, the only speaker being a Quaker preacher from Shrewsbury, N. J. Interment was in Hillside. The five bearers were nephews of the deceased, and were John Vail, of Newark, Henry W. Runyon, of Jersey City and Charles, David and Compton Vail, of this city.

A Tidy Sum for the Hospital.

The cakewalk held in Washington Hall Thursday night for the benefit of the Muhlenberg Hospital netted $25.69 for the institution. The cake for the contest was made and donated by Mrs. Wm. B. Thiers, of Watchung avenue.

DIED AT HIS DESK WITH PEN IN HAND

Sudden Passing Away of J. Parker Mason.

A PROMINENT PLAINFIELDER

AS HE STARTED TO WRITE HIS HEAD DROPPED FORWARD.

Quickly Laid to Rest by His Employer, But Died Before a Physician Was Secured—Engaged in Iron and Steel Business—Had Resided in This City Ten Years—Prominent in Social Life.

All Plainfield was shocked Friday morning to learn of the sudden death of one of its well-known residents, Joseph Parker Mason, Jr., 507 Stelle avenue. Mr. Mason died suddenly while seated at his desk in his office in New York. Death was caused by heart disease.

February 25th Mr. and Mrs. Mason returned from Florida where they spent four weeks with Mr. Mason's father, a retired New York lawyer, who was there for his health. Mr. and Mrs. Mason took the trip for their health, having just recovered from the grip. Mr. Mason was feeling much better on his return to this city but he did not go to New York to attend his business duties until Tuesday. He was in the iron and steel business and represented the interests of Morris, Wheeler & Company, of Philadelphia, in New York. His office was on the fourth floor of the Columbia building, 29 Broadway, New York

Thursday afternoon DeWitt C. Ivins, of this city, was in Mr. Mason's office on business. Mr. Mason started to leave the room and then remembered that he had a letter to write. He seated himself at his desk and was looking over some papers when his head dropped forward and he fell from his chair.

He was laid on a sofa by Mr. Ivins and the clerks and Dr. Turner, of 30 State street, was hurriedly summoned. Mr. Mason passed quietly away before the physician could arrive. Mr. Ivins notified William T. Kaufman, of this city, who was an intimate friend and the latter telephoned the sad intelligence to the family at Plainfield.

The remains were taken to an undertaker's rooms on a permit granted at the Coroner's office. Heart disease was declared the cause of the sudden death. The remains were brought to this city for the funeral.

Mr. Mason was born at Worcester, Mass., in 1849. He was well educated at the schools there and afterwards sent to Harvard College. Soon after leaving college, he began a business career entering the iron and steel business in which he remained up to the time of his death. Twenty one years ago he was married in New York to the daughter of Howard Wright, of 236 Lexington avenue.

They moved to Plainfield in 1889 and resided on Central avenue for a time. Then Mr. Mason built a handsome residence on Stelle avenue into which he moved three years ago and has since resided. Mr. Mason was a Republican but took no active part in politics. He was appointed one of the sewer commissioners by Mayor Charles J. Fisk, two years ago. He was a member of the Union County Country Club and the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club. He attended the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church.

Mr. Mason leaves a widow and one son, Parker Wright Mason, now a student at St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H. He was well-known in this city and had a host of friends here who will mourn his loss.

URGENT CITY WORK.

Getting Things in Readiness to Build Richmond Street Sewer.

Although the bids for the work on the Richmond street sewer will not be received by the Common Council until next Monday night, arrangements are being made as fast as possible to secure materials to begin the work as soon as the contract is awarded. Generally this work is left to the contractor, who does not begin it until he receives the contract, but the urgency of this case is so apparent to every one that matters are being pushed as rapidly as possible.

The last rain has raised the water six inches higher, and it is now within six inches of the highest point recorded.

A Surprise Party.

A surprise party was given to Miss Lucetta Clark, of Grandview avenue, last Friday. The affair was arranged by Miss Nettie Bruersacha, Miss Minnie Nitchwitz, Walter Hamilton and Joseph Farlee. Games, dancing, vocal and instrumental music helped to pass an evening of pleasure. Those present included the Misses Lucetta Clark, Mabel Stevens, Nettie Bauersachs, Minnie Nitschwitz, Nellie Vermeule, Kate Bodine, Grace Clark; Fred Martin, Arthur Jeffery, Joseph Farlee, Walter Hamilton, William McCullough, Ray Stevens, Harry Woodland, Robert Haad and Albert Dunziger, of this city; Walter and Harry Wallace, of Jersey City.

M'ALL AUXILIARY WORK

ANNUAL REPORT PRESENTED TO THE SOCIETY YESTERDAY.

Mrs. Mead Reviews the Accomplishment of the Missionaries in Charge of It. Excellent Work Done by the Missionaries in Charge of It.

The following is the annual report of Mrs. M. L. Mead, secretary of the McAll Auxiliary, during the fiscal year just ended, and which was read at the annual meeting March 1st :

Once again we prepare for the annual meeting of our Plainfield McAll Auxiliary, and as we recall the the events of the year just closing we find that there has been much to make us very thankful in the past, and very hopeful of the future. Our home meetings have had an average attendance of twelve officers and managers and always a number of friends who are more than welcome.

If more ladies could meet with us the first Wednesday of every month the interest in our work at Lizieres could but increase, for the letters are constantly bringing us new causes for thankfulness.

In May we received a very entertaining report of the annual meeting of the American McAll Association from our delegate to Boston, Mrs. Cornelius Schenck, and in November we had an illustrated lecture by Mrs. Mitchell Tyng. And we trust that her interesting talk will bear fruit, and that many who heard her will wish to share our privileges.

We have had no new life members this year, but we have raised $639 22 and as the large donations have been fewer, this shows an increased number of contributors which is encouraging. Our funds have all gone toward the support of the McAll mission in Lizieres, which does almost the only evangelical work done in that large manufacturing city.

The meeting in the Coan Burgeand continue to be be well attended, and the new hall, which was opened last year in the Clos Ste Maire, has fulfilled the hopes which we all had for its success. It is a section of the city that absolutely swarms with children, many of whom know nothing of their parents. They are living in the poorest and most degraded of homes, if such hovels can be called homes. The little creatures flock to the meetings and are very regular at all the gatherings. The older girls find great comfort in the reunions for prayer that Miss DeGaris holds for them, and although they are all hard workers in factories, stores or as washwomen, they come gratefully to the Thursday evening and Sunday meetings, often bringing friends with them.

The soldiers, the Christian Endeavor and temperance meetings continue to be largely attended and are accomplishing great things for the young men and boys. One of these societies lately pledged itself to pay four or five francs a month toward the support of the mission. Miss DeGaris has discontinued giving wool and materials to the women at the mothers' meetings, as she began to feel that "some come too much for the loaves and fishes," but she occasionally has tea and biscuits as a treat for them. The attendance at the Sunday-schools has not fallen off this year after the Christmas fetes as in some previous years

We remember the several illnesses of Mr. Boye and Miss DeGaris during past twelve months which have laid them by for months at a time, the innumerable difficulties, which almost alone they have to surmount, we can but see the Lord's hand and blessing on their labor, and continue to support their efforts by our sincere prayes and generous contributions.

The Board of Managers of the library continue their kindness to us in allowing us to use the parlor for our meetings, and we greatly appreciate their hospitality. Also we acknowledge the courtesy of the editors of our Plainfield papers who print our notices each month free of charge and in various ways assist us in reaching the public.

M. L. Mead, Sec'y.

RAISED TO REAR ADMIRAL.

A Brother of Dr Endicott Promoted in the Navy Department.

M. T. Endicott, a brother of Dr. George Endicott, of this city, who has been chief of the Bureau of Yards and Docks in the Brooklyn Navy yard for the past two years, was raised to the rank of Rear Admiral by nomination of President McKinley and confirmation of the Senate before it adjourned on Friday. Admiral Endicott is well-known in this city, where he has frequently visited his brother, and it will be pleasant news to his friends to hear of this promotion.

To Attend Grand Council.

The grand council of the A. O. U. W. will be held at Trenton Thursday. C. T. Rogers, James B. Dunham and W. C. Magee will represent Central Lodge. G. T. Dunham and Henry Nitchwitz are delegates from Columbia Lodge.

JOINED IN WEDLOCK A HALF CENTURY AGO.

Golden Wedding Anniversary Celebrated March 1st.

TOGETHER SINCE CHILDREN

MR. AND MRS. JAMES M. VOORHEES WERE THE CELEBRANTS.

They Were Married by Rev. David T. Hill, who was Pastor of the Baptist Church at New Market at That Time—Always Lived in Plainfield With the Exception of About Nine Years.

In a quiet and unassuming manner Mr. and Mrs. James M. Voorhees, of East Seventh street, corner of Park avenue, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary March 1st. The celebrants, both being hale and hearty, were the recipients of many congratulations from friends and relatives, and they were wished many happy returns of the day.

Mr. and Mrs. Voorhees are well-known residents of this city, having lived here since 1855. Mrs. Voorhees was born at New Market, while her husband is a native of Bound Brook. Living near one another they grew to know each other intimately, and thus their early friendship ripened into love which resulted in their marriage fifty years ago.

They were married by Rev. David T. Hill, who at that time was pastor of the Baptist church at New Market. He later was pastor of the Second Baptist church, this city. As stated, Mr. and Mrs. Voorhees came to Plainfield in 1855 and with the exception of nine years, which they spent at Beverly, N. J., they have lived here ever since.

Mr. Voorhees is by trade a carpenter and in his younger days was considered one of the best mechanics in this vicinity. A large number of houses in this city and borough were built by him, and many young men who have since become successful business men learned their trade with him. The first house he built is now the Worth property on Grove street, and was built before the street was opened. Many other houses were erected by him and they stand today in excellent state of preservation. Mr. Voorhees is now too old to follow his trade, and both he and his wife live a life of retirement and ease.

During March 1st afternoon and evening a number of friends and relatives called at the home and joined in the quiet celebration of the bride and groom. There were also guests present from Somerville and Bound Brook. The celebrants received a number of substantial gifts as pleasant reminders of the happy event, and surrounded by loving friends they passed a day that will always be remembered for genuine pleasure.

RESIDENTIAL CHANGES.

Plainfielders Who Will Soon be Found at New Addresses.

E. C. Mulford & Son., real estate and insurance brokers, of North avenue, have been kept busy of late effecting rentals for their customers. A partial list of is given here. J W. Muerling, of New York, has taken Charles J. Fisk's house, 16 Rockview avenue; W. H. Stevens, of Bayonne, has leased the house at 527 Madison avenue; E. P. Cropsey has moved from East Fifth street to 929 Watchung avenue; Peter Schultz has leased the house at 423 Carleton avenue, owned by J. B. Mills; T. M. Day, of New York has taken W. H. Bohl's new house on Carleton avenue; Rev. J. G. Dyer, a Baptist minister of White Plains, N. Y., has rented D. N. Force's new house on Carlton avenue; H. N. Cone, of New York has leased C. W. McCutchen's house corner of Central avenue and West Sixth street; P. Ludwig Conde has rented C. A. March's house on East Second street, near Washington street; F. C. Adams has moved to a house on Westervelt avenue, and Former Mayor H. E. Needham has leased J. C. Dyer's house on Craig place. This same firm transacting the above business has sold the house at 413 East Fourth street to the present occupant, James McGoldrick.

RESERVED DECISION.

Judge Bartine Asks for Briefs in Case of Miodovnik Against Thorn.

Judge Bartine of Somerville, reserved his decision in the David Miodovnik against A. B. Thorn case Friday, and has requested the lawyers to submit briefs. Only the plaintiff's side of the case was heard Friday, as there were some points about a contract that were not explained sufficiently. Miodovnik sued Thorn for $300 damages in Justice Smalley's court last fall, and secured a judgment against him for $200. Thorn appealed. William Bewsorn represented Miodovnik, and W. S. Angleman, Thorn.

Powers Settled Up.

The sensational case of Officer Jeremiah Cash against M. Powers was settled Friday by the payment of the full amount of the claim in court just before the hour set for the trial.

EDUCATORS DISCUSS MODERN SCHOOL WAYS

Giving Smart Pupils a Class Separate From Duller Ones.

CHOOSING ONE'S STUDIES.

FREE VACINATION OF PUPILS TO COMMENCE NEXT THURSDAY.

During January 169 Pupils Underwent Medical Examinations and in February 86 Examinations Were Made—$360 Received in Tuition Fees—Proposition to Postpone Vacation so as to Include Easter

The Plainfield Board of Education spent a good part of their time Monday night discussing several suggestions brought up by Superintendent H. M. Maxson from the National superintendents' association at Columbus, which he attended. Among the suggestions made was one that promotions should be five months apart instead of ten as is now the case. Mr. Maxson said he was working along these lines and also gradually preparing classes of particularly bright, smart pupils who could be formed into classes by themselves and thus be allowed to outstrip their fellow students.

Another point brought up at the association and which Mr. Maxson introduced for discussion, was that the pupils entering the High School should feel free to choose any courses of study from among those prescribed, and drop such as they had no aptitude for. Mr. Maxson remarked that the Plainfield High School is particularly liberal in this, but always has insisted upon the pupils taking algebra, whatever else he or she omits.

Mr. Abbott was quite in favor of extending this privilege of choosing one's courses even to the exclusion of algebra, if necessary, while Mr. Lounsbury spoke on the opposite. As these were merely suggestions, thrown out for discussion, no formal action was taken upon them.

The meeting was attended by President Probasco and Messrs. Abbott and Lounsbury. A batch of bills for January and February to be acted upon. Collector Martin reported the sum of $2,793.03 in taxes collected and deposited for January, and $1,148.23 for February. The sum of $1,628.35 of the State money, he reported, was also deposited in the bank.

The medical directors reported that 169 pupils had been examined during January and 86 during February. On March 9th they will commence the free vaccination of the pupils, as ordered by the board. Professor Maxson reported that $360 had been received in tuition from out-of-town pupils for '98 and '99. Mr. Maxson also reported that the pupils of the Bryant, Irving and Washington schools had raised $10 each for library books.

He also submitted a proposition to postpone the Easter vacation one week, so as to allow the vacation to include Easter. Mr. Maxson has given permission to three young ladies from the State Normal School, who graduate this June, to come here and observe and help in the schools, as was done last November. A request from the Cadet boys that they be allowed to drill in the Whittier Hall, has been granted.

Mr. Maxson also suggested that the pupils finishing the course of study mapped out for them in the grammar classes be given some sort of a certificate or diploma, and exhibited one which seemed fitting. It was the unanimous opinion of the Board that the suggestion be adopted, and the clerk was authorized to procure a supply.

Dr. Probasco said that he had secured Rev. Charles Cuthbert Hall, president of the Union Theological Seminary, to speak at the commencement exercises June 22d. The Board then went into executive session.

BOROUGH BOARD OF HEALTH.

Andrew Love, Sr., Elected President for Ensuing Year.

The annual meeting of the Borough Board of Health was held last Monday at which time the officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: President, Andrew Love, Sr; secretary and treasurer, Rev. W. E. Honeyman; counsel, Charles A. Reed.

The business of the Board was mostly of a routine nature. It was stated that at present there is not a contagious disease in the borough and the health in general is first-class. Mr. Love introduced the matter of using certain parts for a dumping ground, as complained of by W. J. Buttfield to the Borough Council, and it was learned that the matter had not been reported to the Board of Health. When this is done the Board will take some action.

Appropriations Not Made.

The annual appropriations were not made at the Common Council meeting last Monday owing to the failure of the several committees to make up their budget for the year. Councilman VanHerwerden again asked the committees to let the finance committee have the statements prior to the next meeting.

POMP ON THE INSTALLMENT PLAN.

Prince Nikita Sustains His Reputation Regardless of Expense.

Like several other princely spendthrifts in Europe, Nikita of Montenegro is as generous in times of scarcity as in times of plenty. His civil list of $40,000 a year is to his creditors something like the great prize in a lottery; the lucky one gets it and the rest get nothing. In Montenegro this kind of princely bankruptcy encounters few obstacles, for Nikita rules with the aid of dungeons and swords for the rebellious creditor, and is totally callous to the appeals and remonstrances of the populace.

The one trip which did not lead him to his Russian source of supplies was that to Italy to attend the wedding of his daughter and the Italian Crown Prince. As father-in-law of the future King of Italy, Nikita doubtless felt it incumbent upon him to do the grand thing, so he scattered costly decorations—stars, crosses, &c.—hither and thither among the Italian courtiers. He let no available man escape, and consequently had an order for any quantity of Montenegrin decorative jewelry to be made by the Rome goldsmiths. To one firm he gave an order for $20,000 worth of decorations, and to another one for $15,000 worth. A third received the commission to make up $8,000 worth. This third firm was in luck, for, having the smallest bill, it was able to collect the money at once upon delivering the stars and crosses.

The other two firms could not collect their bills, and therefore refused to deliver the goods, thereupon Nikita's intention on the part of his Montenegrin Highness and embarrassment on the part of King Humbert and his court. Appeals to the two suspicious firms were in vain, for they had heard of Nikita's ways, and were not to be humbugged. So eventually the Italian court marshal in chief felt obliged to interfere to save the dignity of the allied house of Montenegro, and after Nikita had paid $5,000 to one firm and $2,500 to the other, guaranteed the payment of the balance on the installment plan. The stars and garters were then delivered, the Italian court was decorated plentifully according to programme, and his Highness of the Balkans went home in the happy consciousness that when he should default on his future installments, the Italian court would accept its burdens and pay the bill.—New York Sun.

A HOUSE BUILT UNDER WATER.

A Novel Way to be Amused and Also to Keep Cool—Rises to the Surface.

A glass house under water is the latest luxury. A rich man, who has a large lake upon his estate, recently caused it to be drained, and in the deepest part he has had a house built which contains three rooms—a smoking-room, a dining-room, and a servants' waiting-room. The framework of the house is of iron, and the floor is stone, resting upon a foundation of concrete. The sides and roof, however, are entirely composed of very thick plate-glass. There is a passage under the water from the boat-house to the glass house, and air is obtained through large clumps of artificial water-lilies which rest upon the surface of the lake. It is indescribably pleasant to sit in one of the rooms upon a warm day; the air is very cool, there is no sound to be heard, and it is especially interesting to watch the fish swimming around, attracted by the glare of the electric lights. This is decidedly a new luxury. The house and the passage, moreover, cost comparatively little to build.—Tid-Bits.

A Curious Find.

Some years ago the late Precenter Venables was visiting at Greve Hall, and found in his bed-room an odd picture handsomely framed, but having for its subject nothing more than a tripod pure and simple. What was its history? On inquiry, it appeared that Sir Charles Greville had painted a family picture of the Grevilles, and, as his manner was, had exercised his fancy with some of the members of it, painting young Henry Greville as Cupid and his sister as Hope. Years passed; the boy and the father quarreled, and the angry father had Cupid cut out and a tripod substituted for it, at which Hebe might be supposed to be ministering. After another interval of time, some one told the late Lord Greve, the possessor of the picture, not only the story of the tripod, but also the fact that a Cupid—certainly by Reynolds—was at a certain place. It was, in fact, the identical portrait. The portrait was then carefully restored, and the tripod was also framed as a memorial of the loss and recovery.

Filled the Dog's Teeth.

A dog doctor was called upon to perform a strange operation. A well-known society lady visited the hospital with her pet King Charles spaniel, who was suffering with the toothache. The doctor wanted to extract the tooth, but the lady protested that the loss of one of its front teeth would spoil the beauty of her pet, and asked that the tooth be filled. The doctor sent for a dentist, who, at the operating table, filled the dog's tooth with gold, returned the animal to its mistress and received a large fee for his work.

An Accomplishment of the Duke of York.

The only member of the Royal Family who can dance a genuine sailor's hornpipe is the Duke of York, who learned that accomplishment while a young cadet, and it is told that often he and his brother, the late Duke of Clarence, would get into a cabin together, and while the latter whistled, Prince George would go through the steps with untiring energy and enthusiasm.

WOMEN THERE TO VOTE.

LIVELY SCHOOL MEETING IN WESTFIELD LAST NIGHT.

Proposition for Putting Up a New School Building at a Cost of $40,000 Was Overwhelmingly Defeated.

Westfield, March 7. — The annual school meeting was held last evening at the Westfield Club Hall, at which New York bankers and brokers in kid gloves and silk hats rubbed against farmers with cowhide boots, and with the women of the town voted down the proposition of the Board of Education to build a new primary school building at the corner of Elm and Orchard streets.

There were fully six hundred people present when President John B Green, of the Board of Education, called the meeting to order. Mr. Green explained that the present school quarters on Prospect street were unfit for school use, being to small and unsanitary, and he asked that the people vote the appropriate $40,000 for the purpose of building a new school in the town and one small one at Mountainside.

This called for a decided opposition on the part of a large number of the property owners and parents of school children living on the south side of the track. Most of them expressed themselves as being heartily in favor of more school room, but they thought the township should build two schools, one on the south side of the town and the other on the north side of the track.

After a large amount of talk on the part of both sides it was left to a vote of the people present, which resulted in a crushing defeat for the members of the Board of Education. Those in favor of it numbered 82, and those against it 242.

STATEMENTS DO NOT AGREE.

Brunswick Traction Company Say the Plainfield Company Did Not Act Fairly.

Referring to Superintendent Adelmann's statement that the Brunswick Traction Company demanded fifty per cent of the proceeds of the traffic of the Plainfield Street Railway Company in Dunellen, the New Brunswick Times stated Monday:

"Fred Weigel, one of the counsel for the local company, when seen this morning denied that such a demand had been made. Since the opening of the line from Dunellen to Plainfield, the local company, he said, had been carrying passengers free of charge both ways. The Plainfield Company had been asked to pay them one and one-half cents for every passenger carried over this line from whom they received five cents but they would not consent to such an agreement. The Plainfield Company refused to act fairly in the matter and so they were stopped from coming into Dunellen."

IN HIS NINETY-THIRD YEAR.

Death of Oliver Burr Tweedy After a Short Illness.

After an illness that extended only from last Saturday, Oliver Burr Tweedy, one of Plainfield's oldest and most respected citizens, died Monday night at his late home on Crescent avenue. Until Saturday Mr. Tweedy was in his usual good health, and then he was taken with a cold which resulted fatally.

Oliver Burr Tweedy was born at Danbury, Conn., August 10th, 1806. He engaged in business in New York city in 1822, and in 1871 he removed to Plainfield, where he continued to reside until the time of his death.

Mr. Tweedy has lived to see nearly all the old merchants of his generation pass away, hardly one of whom now survive him.

HOTEL KEEPER DEAD.

Peter Finger Passed Away at His Hostelry at Washingtonville.

After a long illness of a complication of diseases Peter Finger, aged 46 years and 8 months, died last Monday at his home at Washingtonville. Death was due to cirrhosis of the liver. Mr. Finger has been a resident of Washingtonville about six years, having moved there from Cranford, where he kept a hotel. He also at one time kept a hotel at Springfield. He was a well-known hotel man and was generally known throughout New Jersey. During his residence at Washingtonville he conducted the hotel formerly owned by Mr. Demler. He leaves a wife. The funeral services were held at his late residence Thursday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock.

To Drill in the Rink.

The Plainfield High School Cadets have made arrangements for the Crescent Rink, where they expect to drill until the weather will permit outdoor drilling. They now drill every Thursday evening.

Prize Choristers.

The prize choristers of Grace church for the month of February are Malcolm Davis, Arthur Calun, Harris Egan and the Misses Clara Wood ward and Eleanor VanDeventer.

Revival in Colored Church.

Sunday evening at the Calvary Baptist church there were fully eight hundred persons present at the revival services. Three conversions were reported.

SLEEPY BURKE'S DISCOVERY.

A Reformed Safe-Blower's Cynical Opinion of Most Christians.

"Sleepy" Burke, in the role of a "reformed safe-robber," addressed a heterogeneous Chicago gathering at the noon-hour service in Willard Hall. Many of the seats were occupied by the curious from the neighboring office buildings, while among the spectators were half a dozen strong-arms workers and thieves. Mr. Burke sat on the platform, with eyes downcast, and fanned himself with a hymnal, while Mr. Moyle exhorted the wicked to acknowledge and repent of their sins. At the end of an hour Mrs. Lake briefly introduced "Sleepy."

He walked up to the little marble-topped table and, drawing a "cannon" from his pocket, which had done excellent work in many a hold-up, said, as he placed it on the table: "That's what youse call the X rays."

Having thus uniquely engaged the attention of his auditors, Mr. Burke continued:

"I heard 'em speaking of a man what was dyin', whose mother was out in California. My mother is in California, an' she don't know where I'm at, alive or dead. I ain't heard from me in four months. I ain't no full-fledged orator, I ain't. I've only been in this business six days. It ain't any wonder, for I've been caged up like a wild beast for most my life.

"There's a lot of Christians in the world. I could see it from me cell doors, as I looked through the bars. There's churches for God, fountains for beasts, but no Christians ready to help a ex-convict who is trying to reform. Since I've been out a year and a half ago, I've been lookin' for work to earn a honest livin', an' I can't find it, for I tol' th' truth an' said I was an ex-convict. 'Sleepy' Burke is universally known. If he ain't been trying to reform there ain't a Christian what's come to me an' said, Burke, there's a place for you?'"

This statement was afterwards modified. One man gave him $5, while another invited him to eat at his restaurant.

In commenting on the lack of societies ready to aid a discharged convict to lead an honest life, Mr. Burke had this to say: "I believe there's a society for the benefit of ex-convicts which was established by an ex-president of the United States, Rutherford B. Hayes. It was formed a year. The last meetin' was accomplished in Philadelphia. That does a whole lot o' good for convicts just comin' from Joliet—don't it?"

Mrs. Lake whispered something to the speaker, who paused and then continued: "She wants me to tell you how I found the Savior. I've prayed for Christ to come for years. Asked Him to come down to my cell, but He didn't. Two months ago there came to me a great light. I realized there was a Savior life, an' I concluded to bury the hatchet an' smoke th' pipe o' peace with God."

Then "Sleepy" reverted to what he apparently thinks his forte now by saying:

"There's just as bad as me what wants to lead a honest life. It's impossible for a man to reform in the city of Chicago. Youse ask for aid an' they send youse to the Young Men's Christian Association. It sounds very nice, but youse don't go to somebody else. Youse gets discouraged when youse t'rown down like this a dozen of times, an' gets discouraged an' curses that kind o' Christianity."

Then Mr. Burke told of his release from Chester clad in the underclothes of a suicide, with $10 in the pockets of his stained clothes, and his walk to Chicago—features in his reformation familiar to newspaper readers—observing as a parting: "Christian organizations shun tramps."

"Thieves," he continued, "were ready to take me in when Christians wouldn't have nothin' to do with me. Last night I spoke at the People's Institute, which was a surprise at that, an' if it hadn't been for a criminal I'd have slept in the alley last night."

Mr. Burke paused for a moment, and looking about the hall for inspiration, spied his "cannon." Picking it up he resumed:

"For years this has been me weapon an' me friend. Whenever I brought it down the man usually produced; that's more than a Christian ever did. I had a show on State street, an' intended to give me money to a society what 'ed help ex-convicts, instead of meetin' once a year, electin' a President and Secretary, and blackballin' some o' the members. The police closed the up, because I showed how the keepers at Joliet was robbin' the prisoners of more'n $80,000 a year. They was afraid o' a investigation."

Was She Sane?

A man whom the circumstances of travel caused to sit in the same seat with a young lady who was unusually friendly said, as he was leaving:

"I thank you for a very pleasant chat, but I am afraid you would not have been so kind to me had you known I am a married man."

"On the contrary, my advantage of me," promptly responded the young lady, "I am an escaped lunatic."

Condensed Truth.

A minister having walked through a village churchyard and observed the indiscriminate praise bestowed upon the dead, wrote upon the gate post the following: "Here lie the dead and here the living lie."—Tid-Bits.

What He Saw.

Attorney—You say that you witnessed this altercation?

O'Hara—No, sor. Oi don't see that Oi was busy looking at th' foight.—Cleveland Leader.

MAKING LIFE BRIGHT FOR EAST SIDE GIRLS.

A Large Audience Hears of College Settlement Work.

THE CHRISTODORA HOUSE.

EDITOR OF HARPER'S BAZAR ONE OF THE PRINCIPAL SPEAKERS.

The Settlement Was Started by Two Young Women With Little Money but Much Faith, and Now Occupies a Fine Building of Its Own and Does a Great Work Among Poor Girls.

The college settlement work has a warm place in the hearts of Plainfield people, and the Congregational church was crowded Monday with an audience eager to hear of the work of Christodora House, of New York, a new college settlement, and one conducted on different principles from the earlier settlement houses.

Rev. Charles Lyman Goodrich, pastor of the church, presided. It was scarcely necessary to introduce the first speaker, Mrs. Margaret E. Sangster, the editor of Harper's Bazar, and the author of so many words which have gone straight to the hearts of hundreds of readers. Simply and graphically Mrs Sangster told the history of the settlement, from its beginning in the efforts of two consecrated young women, with little money but much faith, whose longing to brighten life socially, intellectually and spiritually for the girls of the East Side was too strong to be resisted. From its first home in a small flat, with an audience room in a dark cellar, the settlement has moved into its own fine building at 147 Avenue B, and has added to its work one feature after another until it now has a strong educational department, a number of social clubs, and many aids to the religious life; for the point in which Christodora House differs from other settlements is in its distinctly religious atmosphere.

Mrs. Sangster's address was followed by another by Miss O. I. MacColl, the head resident worker of the settlement. Miss MacColl who is in fullest sympathy with the spirit of the work, told enthusiastically of the life at Christodora house, describing the interesting meetings of the girls' clubs, the young women's eagerness to gain knowledge, and their rapid advance in spiritual life. Both speakers dwelt especially on the tremendous change made in these tenement house girls, by a few months in the new atmosphere of culture, refinement and Christianity. They are eager for social privileges as their more fortunate sisters, and the change from life in the crowded tenements or the degrading influences of the saloon to the pleasant home life of the settlement house has a marvellous transforming effect. The girls who fought in the street and threw chairs at one another in the cellar audience-room now conduct themselves like the young women in any home of refinement. Many amusing or touching anecdotes were told by the two speakers, making the picture of life at the settlement a very real one to the audience. A warm invitation was given to all women interested in the work to visit Christodora House.

CLEMENCY AT $5 A DOSE.

Rude Conduct in Music Hall Not Passed Over Lightly by Judge Runyon.

The trouble between Special Officer Edward Martin and Frank Frazee at Music Hall one night last week, came up in the City Court Tuesday before City Judge Runyon. Martin and his witnesses said that Frazee was drunk and raised a disturbance and that Martin then came in and led him away, Frazee resisting. Frazee was represented by William G. DeMeza.

Frazee's plea was changed from not guilty to guilty and his lawyer asked the clemency of the court on the ground of the previous good character of the prisoner. The Judge fined him $5.

Resolutions on Death of Late Judge.

A very handsome set of resolutions, framed, have been prepared under the direction of a committee from Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., to be presented to Mrs. DeMeza, of West Second street, in memory of her son the late City Judge George DeMeza. The committee will wait on Mrs. DeMeza and present her with the loving token of esteem.

At the Hospital.

John Cahill, of West Second street, who has been at the hospital for a month under treatment, was discharged Monday morning, cured. Oscar Olson, of 111 Somerset street, who has been under treatment at the same place since Jan. 23d, was also discharged.

Supper in New Parsonage.

A supper will be given in the new parsonage of Grace M. E. church on Thursday and Friday, March 23d and 24th, under the auspices of the Epworth League of the church. The profits will be devoted to furnishing the parsonage

Speer's Port Grape Wine

Nine Years Old,

Burgundy Eight Years Old, and Claret 16 Years Old.

Extensive Wine Cellars.

Storing, Ageing and Racking Wine.

A wine made one year and sold the next is not a proper wine for invalids; to get rid of its coarse and injurious elements requires years for it to lay in wood casks, and by frequent drawing off from its gross sediment, or the coarse parts it becomes rich and mellow and valuable for invalids. It is sudorific, diuretic and blood making from the iron in the soil of the Speer vineyards in Northern N. J.

The principal varieties are the Port, Burgundy, Sherry and Claret and the Climax brandy. All these wines when stored for years and drawn off from time to time in fresh fumigated casks become vastly superior products and necessarily are more expensive. This is why Speer's wines and Brandy are more costly and so far superior to the California wines. They are absolutely pure; unexcelled by any in the world. Speer's wines are ordered by wealthy and refined families in Europe where they are prescribed by physicians and are esteemed for their superiority, velvety roundness, full body and refined flavor. The efficacy of these wines is wonderful. It has been a study and a pride during Mr. Speer's life to produce a wine of the highest grade of perfection—not so much to make money as to excell in getting a wine of the richest character. He has spared no labor nor expense in bringing his vineyards and wines up to the above high standard of excellence. The Climax ★★★ Brandy twenty years old is equal to the finest French brands.

To be had of Druggists and Grocers who sell high class wines.

A Prominent Physician.

A prominent New York physician in discussing the merits of Ripans Tabules with a reporter M. D. said: "Several years ago I asserted that if one wished to become a philanthopist, and do a beneficent deed—one that would help the whole human race—nothing could be better than to procure the Roosevelt Hospital prescription, which is the basis of the Ripans Tabules, and cause it to be put up in the form of a ketchup and distributed among the poor."

Sales Increasing.

The largest retail drug store in America is that of Hegeman & Co. on Broadway in New York City. A reporter who went there to learn how Ripans Tabules were selling bought a few Ripans in a carton and asked:

"Do you have much call for these?"

He was referred to a gentleman who proved to be the head of the department. He said:

"The sale of Ripans Tabules is constantly increasing, due especially to the influential character of the testimonials in the daily press, and growing out of these, through the recommendation of friend to friend. Satisfaction with them is very general. When once they are begun I notice that a permanent customer for them is made. This, I believe, is through their intrinsic merit, which proves the bona fide character of the advertising. I think them specially useful in the general run of stomach troubles."

An Elderly Lady.

An elderly lady living at Fordham Heights, a part of New York City, and who was known to be a warm advocate of Ripans Tabules for any case of liver trouble or indigestion, said to a reporter who visited her for the purpose of learning the wonderful cures of her case: "I had always employed a physician and did so on the last occasion I had for one, but at that time obtained no beneficial results. I had never had any faith in patent medicines, but having seen Ripans Tabules advertised so highly in the New York Herald concluded to give them a trial, and found they were just what my case demanded. They were prescribed by a physician since, and that means a saving of $3 a call. A dollar's worth of Ripans Tabules lasts me a month, and I would not be without them were it worth my half dollar." At the time of this interview there were present two daughters who specially objected to their mother giving a testimonial which should parade her name in the newspapers, but to do this the elder lady argued: "There may be some one else who can be helped as I am sure I take great pleasure in recommending the Tabules to any one afflicted as I was. If the telling about my case in the papers enables some other person similarly affected to be as greatly benefited as I have been, I see no objection." The daughters, knowing how earnestly she felt about the benefit she had received, decided she was quite right.

TEN FOR FIVE CENTS
RIPANS
ONE GIVES RELIEF

A new style packet containing TEN RIPANS TABULES (sufficient to relieve almost any ordinary case of indigestion, sick headache, etc.) may now be obtained for the price named (five cents) at most druggists. For those who prefer to purchase in a cheaper form, a packet containing SIX RIPANS TABULES will be sold for FIVE CENTS. The RIPANS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York — or a single carton containing 60 RIPANS TABULES (enough for a month) may be had for 60 cents. One grives relief.

HEAT YOUR HOUSE

with Sunshine Parlor heater or stove; there are NONE BETTER. Othello, the highest grade portable range, Canopy and Manhattan ranges are the favorites at moderate prices.

FOR SALE AT

A. M. GRIFFEN'S,

119 East Front st.

Telephone Call, 6.

FARMERS' WIVES

or any other ladies who wish to work

Can Earn Lots of Money

working for us in spare time at home on our cloths. We offer you a good chance to make plenty of spending money easily, in leisure hours. Send 13c. for cloth and full directions for work, and commence at once. Cloth sent anywhere. Address

WINOOSKET CO. (225 C) Boston, Mass. Mfg. Dept.

Quality Rather Than Quantity.

President Eliot of Harvard, says: "The International is a wonderful compact storehouse of accurate information."

WEBSTER'S INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY

Best for the Household.

Words are easily found. Pronunciation is easily learned. Definitions are easily learned. The growth of words is easily traced, and excellence of quality rather than superfluity of quantity characterizes every department.

Send for prospectus, etc., to G. & C. MERRIAM CO., Publishers, Springfield, Mass.

DIME

Savings Institution,

Of Plainfield, N. J.,

Is now receiving deposits payable on demand, with interest, allowed on all sums from $5 to $3,000.

J. FRANK HUBBARD, President.
GEO. W. ROCKFELLOW, Vice-Pres.
J. C. POPE, Treasurer.

Money deposited on or before January tenth will draw interest from the first.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

VOL. XXXII. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, MARCH 16, 1899. NO. 11.

"Support the Constitution Which is the Cement of the Union, as well in Its Limitations as in Its Authorities."—Madison.

LUCKY "THIRTEEN" FOR NEWT. SMALLEY.

Col. Wilson Defeated For Mayor of North Plainfield By a Narrow Majority.

ONE DEMOCRAT ELECTED TO BOROUGH COUNCIL.

THE MOST EXCITING ELECTION NIGHT EVER WITNESSED ACROSS THE BROOK.

Owing to the Closeness of the Contest the Interest in the Outcome Was Intense Throughout the Evening—Proposition to Consolidate City and Borough Was Defeated By an Overwhelming Vote—Incidents of the Day and Night—Vote By Districts.

Newton B. Smalley is to be North Plainfield's next Mayor. He was elected at the borough election, yesterday by the bare majority of thirteen votes after the hottest campaign that North Plainfield has witnessed for many a year. The result was in doubt up to the time that the very last ballot was counted. Two Republicans and one Democrat were elected by varying majorities.

The whole borough was stirred to its foundations by the contest. Every one was arrayed on one side or the other. "Newt" Smalley and his political friends of the G. O. P. gathered together for the fight of their life. They had arrayed against them most of the Democrats and a certain faction of the Republican party. Party lines became indistinguishable for the time being. Col. Wilson had some of his strongest supporters in the Republican camp, while several of his bitterest enemies in the fight were fellowers of Jefferson. The contest was a bitter one, and the worst elements of both parties made it one of vilification and "mud slinging." The fight continued up to the time when the polls were closed and the last ballot was cast.

Everybody understood that the fight was to be for the Mayoralty. Mayor Wilson ran for re-election on rather non-partisan grounds and thus lost some support from his own party. His personality and the success of his term were used as a means to win over independent voters. Smalley drew the adherance of the strict partisan element of the G. O. P. His general popularity was trusted to swing many into line.

Both sides fought hard in the two weeks of the campaign. Not a stone was left unturned. Every voter in the borough was interviewed by both sides. The interest grew intense. When yesterday morning came both sides were ready for the fray, with a host of workers at the polls. Not even at a National election has so much general interest been shown. All day great crowds hung about the two polling places, which front each other on Somerset street, near Lincoln place. The first district polling place was in the store next to Warren Engine house. Voters of the second district went to Saengerbund Hall. There was deep feeling in the result, but the day passed off without any encounters.

At 7 o'clock the polls closed. The vote was remarkably large, rivalling that of 1897. Nearly a thousand ballots were polled. The excitement still continued. After a short interval the election officers began to count the votes. It was slow work for the old and laborous system was used and the men grew weary and counted slowly.

Saengerbund Hall was the assembling place for most of the interested ones. The other polling place was too small to accommodate many. The crowd began to gather in Saengerbund Hall at an early hour. At 8 o'clock it was well filled. Everybody was talking and arguing. The crowd surrounded the election officers with a ring three and four men deep. Everybody was very anxious to know how it was coming out. It was early seen that the election was going to be very close.

The results of the first fifty showed that Smalley's stronghold was in the second district, which lines to the east of Somerset street. The Colonel balanced him in the other district. When a hundred ballots had been counted at each place, Smalley showed up in the lead by six votes. Among the Councilmen, Clark and Swackhamer began to look like the leaders. Harrison Coddington afterwards came into the lead.

As the count progressed it still showed Wilson and Smalley close together. It was expected that Smalley would increase his lead in the middle of the count and he did, being at one time as many as forty votes ahead. Then he slowly began to loose as the ballot boxes were gradually emptied of their contents. The morning vote in the first district piled up the Colonel's lead in that section.

Never was there such a sight as was witnessed in Saengerbund hall as the count progressed. The large hall became filled until the crowd numbered nearly five hundred people. Outside many others thronged the sidewalks and streets. Smalley was in or near the hall all the time after the counting began. Toward the last he was dragged about by his followers who grew wild with enthusiasm and excitement as the end approached.

In the hall everybody was talking despite the efforts of the officers to keep some semblance of quiet so that the voice of John Goodwin, who was reading the ballots, might be heard. The crowd gathered in little groups and earnestly discussed the situation. Toward the last the appearance of Smalley or the announcement of a straight Republican ticket brought forth great cheers.

Both parties were represented although, from the cheering, it was evident that the Smalley faction was in the majority. There were a few who who had partaken too freely of intoxicants and were inclined to be rather boisterous.

Plainfield had a big delegation of politicians over to see how it was done. Their campaigns were but child's play in comparison to this one and they came to learn. Among the familiar faces the writer noticed were those of Assemblyman Roger F. Murray, City Judge W. N. Runyon, City Clerk J. T. MacMurray, Andrew McArdel, Wm. Newcorn, George J. Tobin, John Keely, Postmaster E. H. Bird and Councilman John VanHerwerden.

The second district was the first to finish counting. It gave Smalley a majority of 78. Swackhamer and Coddington were high men among the Councilmanic candidates. Wilson ran well ahead of his ticket while Smalley was behind the Republican vote. There were 473 ballots cast. 294 were Republican and 159 Democratic.

After the crowd had heard the result, it surrounded Smalley and bore him across the street where the entrance to the other polling place was besieged. The pressure was so great that the glass in the doors was smashed. In the first district Wilson had a lead that back only a few votes at equalling Smalley's in the other district. The count was watched with breathless interest, and when it was concluded and Smalley's election by thirteen votes conceeded, the crowd fairly went wild.

The general result, when computed, showed that Smalley was Mayor, having received a total vote of 492, as against Wilson's 479, a difference of 13. Harrison Coddington, Republican, was elected to the Council for one year, over William J. Conroy, by a majority of 203. Robert Clark, Jr., Republican, and S. S. Swackhamer, Democrat, were elected to Council for terms of three years each by respective majorities of 64 to 62. Dud the other Republican nominee, was cut in the Second district. The results of the First district showed 313 Republican and 219 Democratic ballots cast. Wilson ran clear away from his ticket.

The result of the question of consolidation showed the overwhelming sentiment against any such action. Some were not interested enough to vote at all.

When it was known for a surety that Smalley was elected, that borboughite was picked up and placed on the shoulders of his delighted friends who carried him about the streets. A raid had been made on all the neighboring sheds and barns and soon a hugh fire blazed up at the corner of Somerset street and Lincoln place. Fresh fuel was heaped upon it until it illuminated all the scene. Some of the musical G. O. P. ites tried to sing a ditty about "Newt" Smalley, prepared for the occasion, but the cheering was too great. Then they yelled that Smalley was all right.

Smalley was hustled over to Plainfield and the Independent Fife and Drum Corps routed out. A procession of several hundred men and boys was formed. Brooms were procured and the visitors marched all over the borough shouting and screnading as they went.

While there was no regular Republican headquarters during the evening, Spencer's store served that purpose. The second floor was opened up to some of the younger workers who entertained with song and dance for a time.

The Democrats had no rallying place. Colonel Wilson did not show up at the polling places during the evening but remained at home where he was kept informed of the situation and the probable trend of events.

At 12.30 o'clock, the drum corps went over the brook and a parade was formed. The victorious candidate was hoisted into an open wagon and dragged about the streets of the borough until after 2 o'clock. There were cheers and shoutings and everybody was happy. After the parade was over Smalley was called upon for a speech.

He thanked his friends for their aid in the campaign and declared that he would not disappoint them when he came to office. He promised that they would find his administration satisfactory. He declared that there were going to be some changes in borough affairs during the coming year.

Some of the younger set celebrated the victory by ringing the Holy Cross church bell while the procession was still in its glory.

There was this morning more or less talk about a recount of the votes, but no substantial reason could be learned why such action should be taken, and no one was found who would take the initiative in testing the count.

Some interesting records were kept by the Democratic challengers while the vote was being counted. They show that Smalley was scratched 203 times on Republican tickets, 121 in the first district and 82 in the second. Wilson was scratched 99 times on the Democratic tickets, 44 in the first district and 55 in the second.

ELECT ON IN BOUND BROOK.

Citizens' Ticket Met With But Little Opposition.

Bound Brook, March 15.—The borough election was held here yesterday and resulted in the election of the Citizens' ticket complete. The ticket was the result of a fusion between Republicans and Democrats. There was no organized opposition to it.

The only contest of importance was in the vote for Freeholder of Bridgewater township. There were only two nominees, the names of both of whom were placed on the Citizens' ticket. William J. Logan, Democrat, the present freeholder, was given a majority of 3 over Peter H. Smith, his Republican rival.

The votes for the other candidates were as follows: For Mayor, Richard H. Brokaw, 314; for two Councilmen for three years, Samuel W. Morton, 331; John W. Dent, 314; for Councilmen for two years, Lincoln R. Hart, 304; Lawrence Wells, 329; for Assessor, Charles McNabb, 322; for Collector, Andrew S. Corieli, 275; Thomas F. Laing, 47; for Commissioner of Appeals, Benjamin Billian, 319.

LITTLE INTEREST AT THE PLAINS.

Republicans Elected All But Their Town Committeeman.

Scotch Plains, March 15.—The township election held yesterday was one of the quietest in the history of the township, only 311 votes being cast out of a registry list of 525. Both sides seemed to suffer about equally from the stay-at-homes. The entire Republican ticket was elected with the exception of T. J. Nicholl, the Democratic nominee for Town Committeeman, who defeated William D. Johnston, Republican nominee, by 78 majority. E. L. Hand, Township Clerk, was re-elected over F. W. Hoppell, the Democratic nominee, by 60 majority. All appropriations were carried with very little scratching.

Fanwood.

What looked a short time ago to be a warm election in Fanwood borough dwindled down until yesterday morning found only one ticket, the Citizens. This was: For Mayor, George Kyte; Councilmen, Palmer and Young; commissioners of appeal, Messrs. Kelbe, Frazee and Wright. Only 48 votes were cast out a registry of 92.

Westfield.

Westfield, March 15.—The Republicans at Westfield yesterday elected their whole ticket by good majorities, the vote is given below: First district, Clerk, Irving I. Ross, D., 97; Charles D. Reese, 123. Councilsmen, Martin Welles, R., 192; John Darsh, D., 125. Second district, C. D. Reese, 260, Irving I. Ross, 122, Martin Welles, 226, John Darsh, 154. The principle fight was between the nominees for township clerk but a split in the Democratic party defeated Mr. Ross, who has been the clerk for the past six years and has always won by large majorities.

Cranford.

There was an exciting election here yesterday and a big vote was gotten out. There was three tickets in the field—the regular Republican, the Democratic and the Citizens'. The last won all the offices by good majorities. The ticket elected was: Township clerk, Samuel Marshall, 225; committeeman at large, J. H. Crommell; committeeman from first district, J. H. Thompson.

North Plainfield Township.

A very light vote was cast in North Plainfield township. The expected

CONTINUED ON PAGE 5

THE VOTE BY DISTRICTS.

	1st Dist.	2d Dist.	Total vote.	Maj.
For Mayor—
John F. Wilson, Dem	295	184	479
Newton B. Smalley Rep	230	262	492	13
For Councilmen—
Samuel S. Swackhammer, 3 yrs, Dem	306	214	520	62
Walter C. Linbarger, 3 yrs, Dem	135	148	283
Wm. J. Conroy, 1 yr, Dem	228	159	387
Robert Clark, Jr., 3 yrs, Rep	227	295	522	64
Thomas Doud, 3 yrs, Rep	225	233	458
Harrison Coddington, 1 yr, Rep	299	291	590	203
For Justice of the Peace—
James Q. Miles, Rep	312	297	609
For Constable—
Henry Bodenheimer, Dem	218	159	377
For Surveyors of Highways—
Lewis M. Bird, Dem	217	155	372
Duer W. Baird, Dem	216	156	371
James S. Lunger, Rep	314	298	612	240
John H. Worth, Rep	315	296	611	239
For Commissioner of Appeal—
David A. Miller, Dem	219	154	373
Justus H. Cooley, Rep	307	292	599	226
Consolidation Question—
In Favor Of	41	62	103
Against	139	246	385	282

A GREAT TURNABOUT DOWN IN DUNELLEN

Mayor Brakely Defeated for Re-election by R. J. Swackhamer.

DEMOCRATIC FREEHOLDER.

THE REST OF THE CITIZENS' TICKET WAS NOT CONTESTED.

Mr. Swackhamer Secured a Majority of 99 Over Mayor Brakely—Railroad Employers Help to Elect Their Fellow-Workmen—Great Rejoicing After the Result of the Election Became Known.

Dunellen, March 15—The closest and most exciting election that has been held in the borough for 20 years, took place yesterday, and resulted in an overwhelming victory for the People's ticket. Ruliff J. Swackhamer, nominee for Mayor, received over two votes to Dr. Peter W. Brakely's one, and Peter C. Staats, for chosen free holder, won by eleven votes. These were the only two independent nominees, the other names on the ticket being the same as those on the Citizens' ticket.

There were no Republicans or Democrats in Dunellen this spring, all were Citizens' or advocates of the People's ticket. There was a determination to defeat Dr. Brakely, and it is said the result of the election is due to a great extent to the railroad men, all of whom voted for Swackhamer, who is also an employe of the Central Railroad.

Out of a possible vote of 334, 280 ballots were cast as follows: For Mayor, Ruliff J. Swackhamer, 189; Peter W. Brakeley, 90.

For Chosen Freeholder, Peter C. Staats, 143; Firman H. Gise, 132.

For Councilmen, J. Newton Apgar, 2.7; Frederick K. Wilcox, 241.

For Commissioner of Appeal, Samuel Lemley, 279. The appropriations are $1,800 for borough purposes and $150 for the support of the poor. One vote was thrown out. Lucky, for Commissioner of Appeal, received the unanimous vote, 279. The total number of People' votes was 174; Citizens, 105.

When the result of the election became known a delegation of citizens formed into parade to take the news of his election to the new Mayor. He had left the polls early, and spent most of the evening quietly playing checkers in William H. Cole's coal office, where the delegation expected to find him, but he had gone home. He received his honors in a simple manner, and responded handsomely to the congratulations.

New Market.

New Market, March 15.—A light vote was polled here yesterday and the entire Republican ticket was elected. Not over sixty per cent. of the voters turned out and there was no excitement and very little interest shown over the results. The only offices over which there was any contest were for Town Committeeman and Overseer of the Poor. John H. Sebring's majority over Lewis D. Walker was only fifteen, while John C. Morris' over Clark T. Rogers was considerable more. The following are those elected: For Township Clerk, Chas. S Day; Town Committeeman, John H. Sebring; Overseer of the Poor, John C. Morris: Surveyors of Highways, Albert L. Boice and Samuel Giles; Commissioner of Appeal, William Fits Randolph; Constable, William F. Polhemus. The appropriations voted for were $1,800 for support of the poor and $5,000 for working roads.

Ladies Aid Society Elect.

The annual meeting of the Ladies Aid Society of the First M. E. church was held in Vincent chapel Tuesday afternoon. The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Henry A. McGee; first vice president, Mrs. W. C. Snodgrass; second vice president, Mrs. Whitney; secretary, Mrs. John Lewis; treasurer, Mrs. J. Q. Packer.

Gazelle Members Get $10 a Piece.

Sometime ago Gazelle Engine Company decided to disband, and as there was money in the treasury it was agreed to return to each member his proportionate share. Yesterday each member a check for $10, that being the amount due them.

Sprained His Wrist.

John Vroom, formerly in employe of The Daily Press, but now of the Paul T. Norton Company, severely sprained his wrist Tuesday afternoon while handling bales of hay at the freighthouse.

—A surprise in honor of his fiftieth birthday was given F. VanLiew, 621 LaGrande avenue, Tuesday evening.

CLAIMED THE JURY WAS TAMPERED WITH.

Sensational Stand Made In Justice Mosher's Court.

WAS IN THE CHAPOT CASE.

ONE JUROR HANDED PLAINTIFF'S LAWYER A NOTE.

Judge Coddington, Who Represented the Chapots, Insisted That the Jury be Kept Out Till They Agreed, but He Was Disappointed in the Verdict —Further Action Will Probably be Taken

The second fight of property trial in which the Chapots were interested took place Tuesday afternoon in Justice Mosher's court, and resulted in a verdict against the claimants, just the opposite to the verdict brought in by a different jury last week, when Frank Zabetti was the party who had the judgment against them.

This time Pierre Tessier, who was formerly night watchman at the factory, was the one who levied upon the goods of the C Chapot & Sons Chamois, Leather and Glove Company to satisfy a $70 judgment. The goods were claimed by the Chapot Chamois Company, which succeeded the former concerns, and there fore Tessier could not get anything until the right of property was tried.

The new company claimed to have been incorporated Dec 13th, 1898, but upon cross examination admitted that title to the goods, etc., was secured Jan. 31st for the consideration of $1.

W. S. Angleman represented the watchman and claimed that as the company was insolvent at the time the transfer was made, it was illegal.

The jury retired at 4:15 o'clock, and at 5 o'clock brought in a verdict against the claimants. At 5:45 o'clock fifteen minutes before they came in, they sent out word that they could not agree, and asked to be discharged. W. A. Coddington, who represented the Chapot Chamois Company, objected to their being discharged, as Justice Mosher kept them in a little longer, and at 6 o'clock they came to an agreement.

When the jury had rendered their verdict Coddington asked that the jury be polled, which was done, but the verdict was not changed. Then an unexpected thing occurred, which gave an opportunity to the lawyers to use high words. Mr. Coddington requested that the Judge should not record the verdict, as he said the jury had been tampered with, and then went on to say that just before they were locked out he had seen one of them, who afterwards proved to be P. N. Kline, hand a folded paper to Mr. Angleman and had seen the latter nod his head. Mr. Angleman admitted that he had been handed a paper, and drawing it out of his pocket showed it to the court. It read, "What is the law in reference to a firm who fails as to their power to dispose of their stock on hand?"

Mr. Angleman said he had simply nodded his head to show he had received the note, but made no answer, and that it was done in plain view of everyone in the court room, and was not objected to at the time. Mr. Coddington had no right to say anything against the verdict then. Justice Mosher recorded the verdict, but Mr. Coddington may take some further steps in the matttter.

The jurymen were B. W. Hand, J.S. Garretson, Ralph Sauns, P. N. Kline, Fred Winkel and Charles Lister.

DEVOTED TO MISSIONS.

Presbyterian Women Elect Their Officers.

The annual meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Presbyterian churches was held Tuesday afternoon in the parlors of the First Presbyterian church and there was a very large attendance. The first business of importance was the election of officers for the ensuing year as follows: President, Mrs. Samuel Milliken; vice-presidents, Mrs. Wilson Smith, Mrs. W. R. Richards, Crescent Avenue church; Mrs. James Petrie, First Presbyterian church; superintendents of collectors, Mrs. D. N. Grosndyke, Crescent Avenue church; Mrs. Wm. Remsen, First Presbyterian church; secretary, Miss Henrietta Haviland; treasurer, Miss Addie Dietrich; secretary of literature, Mrs. Sarah Hayes.

Somerset Freeholders Democrats

Somerville, March 15.—The election in Bridgewater township resulted in the re-election of William J. Logan, Democrat, for freeholder by 200 majority. H. V. Todds, also a Democrat, was elected township clerk. The rest of the officers elected are Republican. The Board of Freeholders will remain Democratic.

WILL BETTER THE OLD OR START ANEW.

Improvements Planned for the Methodist Cemetery.

THEY WILL BUILD A LODGE.

SOME TALK OF REMOVING TO NEW LOCATION.

The Present Cemetery is in Danger of Being Cut Up By the Opening of City Streets—State Laws Permit Those Want to Contribute Present Cemetery and Give Trustees Power to Govern.

The Methodist cemetery on Plainfield avenue is either to be improved in appearance and put in presentable shape or else moved to a new location entirely. Such is the decision of the board of trustees of the First M. E. church, in whose hands the control of the cemetery lies. Most of the trustees favor the improvement of the present property rather than the idea of establishing a new cemetery.

When the Methodist cemetery was originally established on Plainfield avenue, just south of Evergreen Cemetery, the burying ground of the First Baptist church, it was hardly believed that Plainfield would ever stretch out so far as that. Some of the purchasers of plots were given deeds, some were not. Those that did receive their deeds were given such power over the property that the governing body of the cemetery could do practically nothing without the direct co-operation of the owners of the plots. This was very difficult to obtain and it is the cause of the present condition of the cemetery.

It is the intention of the Trustees to improve the cemetery and centralize it. Rev Dr. W. C. Snodgrass, pastor of the church, has been looking up the owners of the plots with a view of securing their consents to move the remains from the scattered graves to others more centrally located or transfer one plot for another, giving in each case a deed for the new plot.

The idea is to get possession of that part of the cemetery that borders on West Seventh street and there erect a lodge house and green house. A regular sexton would be put in charge who could keep the cemetery in good condition and look after the plots and place flowers on them according to the wish of the owners. A new fence would be put around the cemetery and the present neglected condition done away with.

The other project is to purchase a tract of land adjoining the Hillside Cemetery and transfer all the remains from the old cemetery to the new, giving each owner deeds in the new one. Eventually, the cemetery would probably pass under the same excellent care that now controls at Hillside.

One reason for changing the location is that at any time the city is liable to decide to open up West Fifth and Sixth streets right through the cemetery. According to a law that was passed by the Legislature, the city can condemn the land and take possession of it to open up a street.

While such action is not likely at present, a change in the circumstances in the future is possible.

Something is going to be done, anyhow, and the Trustees are doing their best to do away with the neglected appearance of things in the cemetery and to make it an ornament to the section where it is located.

BAND OFFICERS ELECTED.

Arrangements Also Made for Concerts at Dunellen Terminus of Trolley.

A meeting of the Queen City Band was held Monday evening and the following officers were elected for the year: President, Horace Adams; secretary, Adolph Kahrman; treasurer, Peter Hanson; musical director, Benjamin LaVere; assistant director, M. C. Sorensen. A number of new members were elected into the band.

Arrangements have been made whereby the band will give weekly concerts this summer at the Dunellen terminus of the Plainfield Street Railway.

Trouble Over a Dog.

A warrant has been issued by Justice Mosher against Paolo Armo, an Italian, upon complaint of Sam Yezezia, another Italian, who claims that the defendant shot and killed the latter's dog a few days ago. It is not likely that Paolo will be captured, as he left his home near Netherwood Tuesday with no intention of coming back. Sam lives in Fanwood township.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Millard and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Millard, of North avenue, will move to the Stillman building next week.

The Woman's World

Discovery of the Attar of Roses.

Delicious perfumes are always interesting to women. The far-famed otto (or attar) of roses is chiefly made in Bulgaria. Kasanlik is the centre of the rose-growing country. Red roses only are used in making the perfume, but white roses, which grow more freely, form the hedges of the fields.

The trees, which grow to a great height, are separated by paths nine feet in width, to allow the oxen and plow to pass. The perfume is obtained not only from the petals, but also from the stalks and leaves. These give a peculiar scent, which adds greatly to the delicacy of the perfume of the petals.

October, April and June are the months for planting branches of the old trees. Weeding, pruning and digging are necessary for three years, when trees become full grown, and repay the labor spent upon them by bearing for twenty years.

The discovery of the delicious attar was quite an accident and took place three centuries ago. The Persian Princess Nour Djihan was strolling through the splendid galleries of her palace with her betrothed (the Mongolian Prince Djihanguyr) and noticed in the rose water basins about the passages an ugly, yellowish oil floating on the surface. Orders were instantly given to remove this unsightly fluid, when it was discovered the perfume also was removed. Thus the virtue of the essential oil was found out, which is still called in Persia "Attar Djihan."—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Fault of Business Women.

A professional woman who has to employ a young woman assistant says that one of her greatest troubles is that her assistants are constantly trying to impress not only upon her, but upon patients, that they are not accustomed to such employment, but have been brought up to better things, though she is well aware of the fact that the young women have come from homes where there was neither culture nor money.

It is one of the weaknesses of many nice girls that they do not feel sure enough of themselves in taking up employment outside their homes, but they must needs offer some excuse or reiterate the fact that they are accustomed to something better. It is a weakness which brings them little credit from their confidantes. A girl entering a school for typewriting and stenography was asked by the other students why she had come to the school. "Are you taking up stenography, and going to take a position for fun?" they asked. "Why, certainly not," she replied. "It is too hard work; I do not do hard work for the pleasure of it." "We are so glad," answered her querists. "The greater number of the girls here are there just for fun' and will take positions to 'pass away the time.'"—Chicago Times Herald.

Well-Bred Children.

Discipline for child and man alike is the secret of happiness. No one can doubt that the well-bred, properly disciplined child is happier than the rough little boor, the embodiment of selfishness and rudeness. The boy need not be a prig, nor the girl an automatic doll; let them be as natural as possible, but let the naturalness be that of the little lady and gentleman, and not of a being with the instincts of a savage.

An American lady writing from Brussels, says that though "hotel children" have long been a terror to her, she has been quite captivated by the conduct of the English children in her Brussels hotel. Her windows open on a gallery in which a number of children belonging to English families play daily. What especially charms her is that the children carry their good breeding out to their play, and though they shout and romp, they do not raise their voices to the screeching point, nor do they stop before her windows. They have been properly taught—by precept and example—to be considerate of the rights of others, and being properly taught, obedience follows as a matter of course.

Caring for Wet Shoes.

When with out overshoes you are caught in the rain, carefully remove all surface water and mud from the shoes as soon as they are taken off. Then, while still wet, rub them with kerosene oil on the furry side of cotton flannel.

Set them aside until partially dried, and again apply the kerosene. They may then be placed in a moderately warm room and left to dry gradually and thoroughly.

Before applying French kid dressing or any polish give them a final rubbing with the flannel, still slightly dampened with the kerosene, and the shoes will be as soft and flexible as when new, and will be very little affected by their bath in the rain.—New York Journal.

Dressing for Bruises.

Turpentine, in which is dissolved as much camphor as it will take up, is pre-eminently the dressing for lacerations, bruises and cuts. Its antiseptic action is equal to that of carbolic acid; it speedily stops bleeding. Few if any ulcers long resist its continued application.

Cholly—I hear that Chappie committed suicide in Lunnon.

Dude.—Ya-as. The pwince spoke to him on the street and he nevah wished to be recognized by an inferiah pehson afterwards.—Truth.

The Woman's World

Reserve Toys.

Each year, with the arrival of Christmas, there rushes into the house in which children dwell a flood of toys that threatens to inundate the nursery and make all semblance of order impossible. The playthings are so numerous that the satiated owners turn from one to the other without deriving thorough enjoyment from any one of them. The novelty soon wears off, and in a few weeks the pretty trifles are more or less broken or marred, and the little ones view them discontentedly, and long aloud for fresh fields and pastures new. To avert this certain reaction from the Yuletide excitement, the judicious mother will select from among the mass of toys a number which are to be laid aside for some future time. It is not necessary to tell the children of this scheme. A large box in the attic or in the upper shelf of some closet may be a storehouse for many of these treasures. There they will rest unharmed until the playthings in the nursery become an old story, when they in their turn are relegated to the upper shelf, and the new toys appear. These will be hailed with delight by the little ones by whom they have been forgotten. Or it may be that the children have been confined to the house by a heavy fall, or more frequently, by the nursery, by some ailment that makes life seem dreary to their baby eyes. Then mamma appears with the reserve fund, and outdoor allurements and indoor ailments are forgotten in the joy of these new possessions. This system keeps the nursery from being overcrowded with toys, and preserves the toys from the breakages consequent upon such overcrowding. But best of all, it provides children with a variety of amusements through the monotonous winter days.—Harper's Bazar.

Grooms for the Wheel.

Bicycle grooms and bicycle stables are the recent additions to the modern establishment. The stable may be a small city house, be in the basement. The stalls for tandems and single machines are properly fitted up, and there the groom attends to his duties of oiling, cleaning, polishing, and rubbing. His main duty, however, is to follow his mistress at a stated distance, whether she rides demurely along a city avenue or flies over a country road; so appearance is the main consideration in his selection. Observation shows that a rather young boy, of the "buttons" type, with a decided English air, is looked upon with the most favor. The liveries for these new attendants may be as resplendent or as plebeian as the taste of the mistress dictates.

The great majority of people, however, cannot afford the luxury of an especial attendant for their wheels, and "cleaning companies" have been established to meet their wants. Operators are sent to residences for a comparatively small amount they keep the machines in perfect order. Very soon the people who persist in grooming their own wheels will be looked upon with the raised eyebrows that are bestowed on the servants who are poor, or so independent, that they "do their own work."—Puritan.

The Mirror Does Not Flatter.

No doubt the human race would consider it little short of a universal tragedy if there were no looking glasses. Yet, in spite of their widespread use, it is an astonishing fact that none of us have ever seen ourselves as others see us.

In the first place, the reflection in the mirror does not portray our likeness with any attempt at accuracy. The hair is wrong in tone; the eyes are not correct in color, and our complexions are hopelessly libelled by this specious household deceiver. It is certain that the looking glasses made by the truth the sale of various complexion washes would decrease to half, for any fair skin looks gray and pallid in the glass, and numbers of women who have splendid complexions ruin them by trying to improve them because they look bad in the mirror. You may be certain that, however plain your face seems, it is by no means as plain as it appears in the telltale mirror. Secondly, glass cannot assume your natural expression while peering at the looking glass. The eye must be in a certain position before you can see at all, and the eye, so far as expression is concerned, governs the face. The looking glass looking at you can see only one of your expressions in the glass, and that expression is one of attentive examination. All the other expressions by which your friends know you, favorable or unfavorable, you have never seen, and never will see.

Good for Throat Irritation.

A troublesome throat irritation or cough, the result of a winter cold, is most annoying, but a home remedy will relieve it quickly and surely, and without the aid of other medicines. The following formula was given by a physician many years ago, and has been found to be of great value: Take one-quarter of a pound of the best gum arabic and pour over it a half pint of hot water; cover and leave it until the gum is dissolved; then add one-quarter of a pound of pure white sugar and a generous half gill of strained lemon juice. Place these ingredients over the fire and let them simmer about ten minutes; then pour the mixture into a bottle and cork. When taking this syrup a little water may be added.

LIFE OF TOLSTOL

INFORMATION CONCERNING HIS EARLY LITERARY STRUGGLES.

Some Incidents in the Life of the Great Humanitarian—How Tolstoi Profited by the Counsels of Nekrassoff Shown by His "War and Peace."

Count Leo Tolstoi, to-day the most remarkable figure in Russia, has once more attracted the attention of all Europe by his renewed attempts to secure imperial permission for the deportation of the members of the long oppressed Dhoukhobortsi.

The St. Petersburg Niva publishes some interesting information with regard to Tolstoi's early literary struggles.

It was in 1852 that Count Leo Tolstoi sent to The Contemporian of St. Petersburg his first literary work, "Childhood," which he presented without a signature. It was only when the poet Nekrassoff, who was the director of The Contemporian, urged him to sign his writings and assured him that no Russian review had the right to publish an anonymous article that the author decided to sign his name to his work. Nekrassoff praised his first work, but at the same time wrote to Tolstoi:

"As to the question of honoraries, I neglected to speak of it in my first letter for the following reasons: It is the custom (with our reviews) not to pay for the first work offered to the public by a debutant. The greatest authors, Goutcharof, Turgeneff, myself, we all have passed by that road. I advise you to submit to this rule, promising you for your subsequent works the highest price, the price we pay our best writers —fifty roubles (imposition leaf (six teen pages)' Another motive for my omission of this subject in my letter was this: Before speaking of it I wished to see if the opinion of the public should accord with my own. It is certainly in your favor. I am very happy to see that I was not misled by my opinion of your first work, and it is with a lively satisfaction that I offer you the above conditions."

Three years later, in 1855, Tolstoi published his "Contemporains in his "Souvenirs of Seyastopol," which suffered severely at the hands of the censor. In regard to that work Nekrassoff wrote to Tolstoi:

"The horrible mutilation which your article suffered has turned my blood. I cannot think of it even now without rage and sorrow . . . Your features, to-day lost. It must always bear witness to the rare power which was able to exhibit a truth as strong and as healthy as that contained in your writings under conditions which would have made it impossible for any but a genius to do his work. I do not tell you how highly I esteem your writings, and to speak in general terms, how highly I esteem the tendencies of your talent and all the qualities which tend to vigorous and so true a truth as just exactly what Russian society needs—the truth, the truth of which here remains so little in our literature since the death of Gogol. You are right when you give so large a place to his love of truth. I do not know any one in our day who makes himself so warmly loved as the one to whom I write these words, and I have only one fear. It is that time and the misery of reality may make of you what they have made of the majority of us, that is, killing the energy, without which there are no writers—in fact, such as we need in Russia. You are young, and there are changes in course of preparation, which, let us hope, may finish well and perhaps then your career may be brilliant. I will not console you by saying that your work, even mutilated as it is, has been considered admirable by many people. We who know the work in its plentitude know well, unfortunately, that it is only a mass of words without cohesion, a work whose intimate meaning has disappeared. Your story, the 'Coupe du Bois,' has suffered less from the censor, although in that also several inestimable traits have been suppressed. My opinion of this novel is that in its form it reminds us of Turgeneff, but the resemblance ends there. All the rest belongs to you alone, and you only could have written it. Do not neglect such subjects. In all that concerns soldiers our literature furnishes nothing but trivalties. Under whatever form you may express what you know of military life your writings will be interesting and useful in the highest degree.

That Tolstoi profited by the counsels of Nekrassoff we can see in his celebrated romance, "War and Peace," which he wrote not long after he received the poet's advice.

Why an Elephants Neck is Short.

The reason of the shortness of the elephant's neck is, that the head of the animal is so heavy that were it placed at the end of a neck of a length proportionate to the dimensions of that organ in other animals, an almost incalculable amount of muscular force would be necessary to elevate and sustain it. The comparative absence of a neck obviates the difficulty, and the trunk serves as a substitute. The uses and advantages of a long neck, peculiarly exemplified in the giraffe, which combines only the same number of vertebral articulations as in the elephant, are in the latter supplied by the trunk or proboscis, by which he is enabled to carry food to his mouth and to drink by suction. This curious organ contains a vast number of small muscles variously interlaced, is extremely flexible, endowed with the most exquisite sensibility, and the utmost diversity of motion, and compensates amply for the absence of a long neck.

NEST AS BIG AS A CITY LOT.

Wonderful Mounds Built by the Mallee Hens of Australia.

The mallee hen of Australia lays its eggs in a huge nest. The nest is really an artificial mound of gigantic proportions for the size of its maker and the purpose it is to serve. This artificial mound is a co-operation incubator. It is built by small parties of birds, male and female working alike to construct it. These same pairs or flocks of birds annually repair and enlarge the queer-looking cone, which rises up like a turret dome from the level prairie.

Sometimes these tunnels attain a height of fully fifteen feet in the perpendicular, with a radius of equal measurement. Many of these nests have measured as much as fifty yards, or 150 feet, around their base. That would give the largest one measured a diameter of about fifty feet. These mounds-builders work through a sort of funnel cavity at the top of the cone.

The hens of all the building and repairing pairs lay in this immense nest. The eggs are deposited about six feet below the surface. While each hen lays her eggs in the family mound, no hen drops her egg closer than twenty inches to that of her neighbor. These eggs are deposited in a cavity made for it wherein it is placed in a vertical position, carefully covered, and the surface as carefully smoothed over by the hen before she quits the nest. Comparatively small parts of the bird and fowl species, these mallee hens lay at night instead of in the day. Several days elapse also between the dropping of two eggs by the same hen.

The eggs of the mallee hen are out of all proportion to her size. They are as large as those of a goose, and of large hense are very much smaller.

The eggs thus laid and covered in this great sand oven in the hot districts are never again disturbed by the hens. The eggs are hatched by the heat the sun bakes into the soil where they lay. It has never been known how the young chicks are excavated from their egg grave, for the eggs are deposited fully six feet below the surface, and the hardening rains do not aid their exit very much.

The hen is so very shy and vigilant that no one is able to study her maternal and domestic habits with satisfaction. As she lays her egg at night, and transacts most of her affairs in the night watch so that no naturalist or curious individual can ferret her out, possibly she steals to her expected young in every other mound under, and gives them the parental unearthing which they must surely need after the pipping of the eggshell.

Bush naturalists have been curious to know how this peculiar fowl builds that nest. The birds have been seen working at it, and the mounds have been inspected, but the piling of the dirt is not from the immediate vicinity for that is undisturbed. Small sprigs and the like enter into the plastic masonry, which stands storms and heavy rains, when they do fall, without serious injury.

These huge cones stand for years, to be annually nested in by the same flock which originally constructed the family incubator. When detected the hens emit a pitiful little cackle, and flutter away like a wounded innocent. The young are always either found under the sand or hide behind some mound or object of a friendly color.—Col. John F. Hobbs in Chicago Inter-Ocean.

Story of a Repentant Dog.

This little dog tried to make amends for his misdeeds, but, unfortunately, he did not do it in the best way, although he did the best he could. A story comes from New Haven about a black spaniel that abstracted a feather duster from his owner's house, and while playing with it tore out all the feathers. The dog, after being shown the featherless handle, was given a severe whipping with it. He then disappeared, and about an hour afterward walked bravely into the house with a brand new duster in his mouth. He walked up to his mistress and meekly deposited the new brush at her feet. By the mark on it she saw that the dog had stolen it from a neighboring fancy goods store.

TRAGEDY OF A FENCE

A MISSOURI FEUD IN WHICH A FAMILY WAS BADLY WORSTED.

Old Johnny "Fast Eighty" Had Been in Many a Standup Fight—Volunteers start to Raze the Fence—The Nerve of a Woman.

Bloody feuds from rail fences grow, or from some other insignificant cause, and there is no place on earth where family quarrels are more lasting or more sanguinary than in the Southern and Southwestern States. When, in Christian County, in the Ozark region of Missouri, the Meadowsen declared war upon the Bilyeus because the latter family resented the announcement of the former that a fence owned in common should be removed, the hostilities resulted in the death of three of the defendants and the wounding of one of the aggressors.

The two families are so united by inter-marriages that it is hard to pick out a certain member of either and say with any degree of exactness just what he or she is.

After the war, old Johnny Bilyeu declares, notwithstanding that he lost a son and two grandsons, it "was a bully goood scrap," and he wouldn't have missed it for any number of sons and grandsons. The Meadowses and one of the surviving Bilyeus are under arrest, and will be tried for murder, but old Johnny Bilyeu says "it's a shame to hang a feller for licking his man in a fight, even if he is a Medder, durn him, and has been killin' Bilyeus."

For old Johnny is past eighty years old, and has been in many a standup fight. He shoved ammunition to his son, Steve, and his two grandsons, Jimmie and Pete, and cheered them on with "Give 'em hell!" But, as it turned out, it was a game of take as well as give, and nobly did the Bilyeus take it.

About the middle of November Bud Meadows got his volunteers together and started out to raze that fence which divided the two farms. He had leveled only a little gap when Steve Bilyeu and his son Pete came running out from their house with guns in their hands. There was a cessation of the leveling just then, and the work was postponed till the week after Thanksgiving. Then once more Bud got his koborts together and sallied forth. This time his men were armed, and they confronted armed men. The procession moved in the following order: From the Meadows house came Bud Meadows, Steve Meadows, Steve's brother, Hosea Bilyeu, Steve's cousin, and the husband of Steve's sister, Frank Tabor, who had married Steve's daughter; Martin Bilyeu Steve's brother's boy, and Mrs. Bud Meadows and Mrs. Bob Meadows, wives of Steve's two sons. Notwithstanding their contrary names and relationships, they all were Meadowses.

The enemy advanced to the scrap in this order: Steve Bilyeu, with his sons Jimmie and Pete; Mrs. Steve Bilyeu, with a big pruning knife, and in the rear, hurrying along as well as his aged legs would carry him, was the redoubtable patriarch, old Johnny Bilyeu, who carried his eighty years and his gun with equal ease.

Some one fired a shot—who no one knows nor cares. But it was the signal for the opening of the battle. It was one, too. From clover rows, cut to one-quarter-inch length, in a pail and pour on sufficient boiling water to scald it. Let stand for a few minutes, then add equal parts of corn and oats, ground together, and wheat bran to which is added one-sixth part animal meal. Mix and feed at once. Give plenty of pure water to drink. Be sure not to forget the water.

At noon, scatter a few spoonfuls of wheat in the litter, to afford the hens a little exercise. Gather what eggs there are, to keep them from freezing. Toward night feed a feed composed of four parts oats and one part each of wheat and corn. Scatter in the litter. Gather up the remainder of eggs and see that there is plenty of clean water. When the fowls have gone to roost for the night, empty the water dish and look up the house. The amount of corn may be increased or diminished according to condition of fowl. Small and active breeds can eat more corn to advantage than the larger fowls. Boiled potatoes or other vegetables may be given frequently to good advantage. Cabbages, beets and turnips may be fed without cooking, and will help to increase the supply of eggs. Ground oyster shells should be kept where the fowls can have access to them at all times. It is well also to have a box of gravel or crushed rock within reach.

There are other methods of feeding that give good results, but, cost considered, it is not easy to find a better one. With the exception that the clover rowen may be omitted during that part of the season when the poultry have a grass run, practically the same method of feeding may be practiced throughout the year.—E. Randall in American Agriculturist.

A Winter Food Cooker.

Warm mashes are desirable for fowls and hogs in winter. To cook the food with but little labor, take half a barrel and set in a dry grocery box, filling in about it with chaff. Make two covers, one to fit inside the barrel, the other to shut tightly down over the box. Put in the meal and wet it soft with one or more pails of boiling water. Do this at night and close tightly. The mass will cook all night long and be nice and warm for feeding in the morning.

The Farmer's World

The Right Way of Working Butter.

The use of a barrel or box churn is now quite generally substituted for the old fashioned dash variety. With the latter it is almost invariably customary to churn until the butter comes in a hard lump or solid mass. Granular butter can be made in a dash churn as well as in the most approved of modern models. The whole secret lies in stopping the churning at the proper time. This is when the butter particles appear about the size of wheat kernels. By lifting the butter in granules from the churn with a ladle or skimmer, the buttermilk can be easily washed out in the butter bowl.

Too much washing undoubtedly injures the flavor. While it is generally conceded that washing until the water comes off clear assists in retaining its quality, if it is not to be consumed in the month or six weeks first following its manufacture a middle course is advisable. Wash the butter in two or three waters, then salt to taste and work up into shape.

Probably no single feature in connection with the new and improved methods of butter making which have been advanced of late years finds so slow acceptance among farmers' wives as that recommending only a single working. This is the rut in which many of them stick. The fact is one thorough working at the time of salting, is all that is required. When gathered in granules, only sufficiently to allow the butter to float upon the surface of the buttermilk—and, by the way, this is greatly facilitated by adding a handful or more of salt to the contents of the churn when the separation begins—the washing free from the milk is an easy task. Every grain is distinct and separate from every other grain. The cold water prevents their adherence and each is individually brought in contact with the cleansing fluid. Then when drained and while still in granules, add the salt, scattering it over the mass and incorporating it thoroughly with the ladle. The action of the salt will be to start the buttermilk, and at the time of dissolving. Drain this off and work exactly as would be done had the butter been previously salted. Work until all excess of moisture is removed, and the butter is a smooth, waxy mass. One or two workings will suffice to make a wafer-like pat with a portion of it, using the ladle, of course, then lift one side and fold it together. If it almost folds over without becoming broken yet finally does break, it is worked enough.

Over working butter is injurious, rendering it salvy and spoiling the grain. Insufficient working leaves an excess of water incorporated with it and also leaves the butter mottled and streaked in appearance after standing a few hours. Such an operation may as well be done at once as to let it remain with the salt insufficiently blended. Try the once working plan and you are sure to like it, especially in very cold weather.—Mrs. E. R. Wood in Agriculturist.

What to Feed Fowls in Winter.

We all like a warm breakfast on a cold morning and farm fowls appreciate one, too. Feed clover rowen, cut to one-quarter-inch length, in a pail and pour on sufficient boiling water to scald it. Let stand for a few minutes, then add equal parts of corn and oats, ground together, and wheat bran to which is added one-sixth part animal meal. Mix and feed at once. Give plenty of pure water to drink. Be sure not to forget the water.

At noon, scatter a few spoonfuls of wheat in the litter, to afford the hens a little exercise. Gather what eggs there are, to keep them from freezing. Toward night feed a feed composed of four parts oats and one part each of wheat and corn. Scatter in the litter. Gather up the remainder of eggs and see that there is plenty of clean water. When the fowls have gone to roost for the night, empty the water dish and look up the house. The amount of corn may be increased or diminished according to condition of fowl. Small and active breeds can eat more corn to advantage than the larger fowls. Boiled potatoes or other vegetables may be given frequently to good advantage. Cabbages, beets and turnips may be fed without cooking, and will help to increase the supply of eggs. Ground oyster shells should be kept where the fowls can have access to them at all times. It is well also to have a box of gravel or crushed rock within reach.

There are other methods of feeding that give good results, but, cost considered, it is not easy to find a better one. With the exception that the clover rowen may be omitted during that part of the season when the poultry have a grass run, practically the same method of feeding may be practiced throughout the year.—E. Randall in American Agriculturist.

A Winter Food Cooker.

Warm mashes are desirable for fowls and hogs in winter. To cook the food with but little labor, take half a barrel and set in a dry grocery box, filling in about it with chaff. Make two covers, one to fit inside the barrel, the other to shut tightly down over the box. Put in the meal and wet it soft with one or more pails of boiling water. Do this at night and close tightly. The mass will cook all night long and be nice and warm for feeding in the morning.

When and How to Mulch Strawberries.

Those who have not already prepared their strawberry beds for winter by giving them a mulch of some kind, should do so at the freezing and thawing of spring begins. In localities of great exposure they should be covered as soon as the ground becomes frozen enough to bear up a team and wagon. This mulch may serve several purposes other than the protection of plants during winter, such as summer conservation of moisture, cleanliness of berries at fruiting time, and subjugation of weeds in the most approved and Southwestern States. When, in Christian County, in the Ozark region of Missouri, the Meadowsen declared war upon the Bilyeus because the latter family resented the announcement of the former that a fence owned in common should be removed, the hostilities resulted in the death of three of the defendants and the wounding of one of the aggressors.

The two families are so united by inter-marriages that it is hard to pick out a certain member of either and say with any degree of exactness just what he or she is.

After the war, old Johnny Bilyeu declares, notwithstanding that he lost a son and two grandsons, it "was a bully goood scrap," and he wouldn't have missed it for any number of sons and grandsons. The Meadowses and one of the surviving Bilyeus are under arrest, and will be tried for murder, but old Johnny Bilyeu says "it's a shame to hang a feller for licking his man in a fight, even if he is a Medder, durn him, and has been killin' Bilyeus."

For old Johnny is past eighty years old, and has been in many a standup fight. He shoved ammunition to his son, Steve, and his two grandsons, Jimmie and Pete, and cheered them on with "Give 'em hell!" But, as it turned out, it was a game of take as well as give, and nobly did the Bilyeus take it.

About the middle of November Bud Meadows got his volunteers together and started out to raze that fence which divided the two farms. He had leveled only a little gap when Steve Bilyeu and his son Pete came running out from their house with guns in their hands. There was a cessation of the leveling just then, and the work was postponed till the week after Thanksgiving. Then once more Bud got his koborts together and sallied forth. This time his men were armed, and they confronted armed men. The procession moved in the following order: From the Meadows house came Bud Meadows, Steve Meadows, Steve's brother, Hosea Bilyeu, Steve's cousin, and the husband of Steve's sister, Frank Tabor, who had married Steve's daughter; Martin Bilyeu Steve's brother's boy, and Mrs. Bud Meadows and Mrs. Bob Meadows, wives of Steve's two sons. Notwithstanding their contrary names and relationships, they all were Meadowses.

The enemy advanced to the scrap in this order: Steve Bilyeu, with his sons Jimmie and Pete; Mrs. Steve Bilyeu, with a big pruning knife, and in the rear, hurrying along as well as his aged legs would carry him, was the redoubtable patriarch, old Johnny Bilyeu, who carried his eighty years and his gun with equal ease.

Some one fired a shot—who no one knows nor cares. But it was the signal for the opening of the battle. It was one, too. From clover rows, cut to one-quarter-inch length, in a pail and pour on sufficient boiling water to scald it. Let stand for a few minutes, then add equal parts of corn and oats, ground together, and wheat bran to which is added one-sixth part animal meal. Mix and feed at once. Give plenty of pure water to drink. Be sure not to forget the water.

At noon, scatter a few spoonfuls of wheat in the litter, to afford the hens a little exercise. Gather what eggs there are, to keep them from freezing. Toward night feed a feed composed of four parts oats and one part each of wheat and corn. Scatter in the litter. Gather up the remainder of eggs and see that there is plenty of clean water. When the fowls have gone to roost for the night, empty the water dish and look up the house. The amount of corn may be increased or diminished according to condition of fowl. Small and active breeds can eat more corn to advantage than the larger fowls. Boiled potatoes or other vegetables may be given frequently to good advantage. Cabbages, beets and turnips may be fed without cooking, and will help to increase the supply of eggs. Ground oyster shells should be kept where the fowls can have access to them at all times. It is well also to have a box of gravel or crushed rock within reach.

There are other methods of feeding that give good results, but, cost considered, it is not easy to find a better one. With the exception that the clover rowen may be omitted during that part of the season when the poultry have a grass run, practically the same method of feeding may be practiced throughout the year.—E. Randall in American Agriculturist.

A Winter Food Cooker.

Warm mashes are desirable for fowls and hogs in winter. To cook the food with but little labor, take half a barrel and set in a dry grocery box, filling in about it with chaff. Make two covers, one to fit inside the barrel, the other to shut tightly down over the box. Put in the meal and wet it soft with one or more pails of boiling water. Do this at night and close tightly. The mass will cook all night long and be nice and warm for feeding in the morning.

Origin of Finger Rings.

The first authentic reference to finger rings occurs in the Old Testament, where Judah's signet ring is mentioned. It is also evident they were in use among the Egyptians at that time, for Pharaoh is said to have taken the ring from his own finger and put it on Joseph's hand when he made him ruler over Egypt. In those days rings seem to have been used not so much for ornaments as for practical purposes. They were used for sealing. Germans used to wear signet rings of iron, and every free man had a right to wear one. Ambassadors, in the early days, used to wear gold rings as a part of their official dress. This privilege of wearing rings afterward extended to chief magistrates and senators. The emperors used to confer this right upon those whom they wished to favor. Nowadays the wearing of rings has no particular significance except the wedding ring and the engagement ring. Anybody who wants to, and who can afford to purchase one, can wear a signet ring. The custom of wearing rings is a very popular one, and the manufacture of them forms one of the most important branches of the jeweler's industry.

Saving Watering Device.

Such breeds as the Leghorns, Minorcas and some others, have such large combs and wattles that there is much danger in watering them in winter from open dishes. They wet these head appendages, then become chilled and many times frozen. A good device for avoiding this is a disk, whose sides do not flare at all, fitted with a circular piece of board that will loosely fit inside. In this board are four or more small round openings, through which the fowls can thrust their beaks but not their combs or wattles. As the water is consumed the board falls bringing the surface always within reach.—American Agriculturist.

Excessive Fertilizing Not Profitable.

In a New York test, 1,000 lbs of fertilizer applied to an acre of potatoes increased the crop 48 bu in '95 and 41 bu. in '96. The same reason the application of 2,000 lbs to a like area produced 53 bu in '95 and 54 in '96, thus showing that the use of over 1,000 lbs p acre was added with a loss compared with the use of 1,000 lbs.

OUR ARMY'S RATIONS.

UNCLE SAM APPEARS TO BE VERY LIBERAL WITH THE BOYS.

Spanish Soldiers Get Scarcely Enough to Live On to Say Nothing of Fighting—About Four Pounds of Food to Each American Soldier a Day.

Louis Napoleon said he lost in 1870 because his generals did not know how to move supplies. Wellington said his victories were won at the camp kettles. Napoleon, who led his armies off the enemy's country, in order to make rapid marches, did not underestimate the value of a well organized commissary. In the Ulm campaign he had 10,000 men flogged for pillaging, which was the usual outcome of his theory of subsistence. His army practically disbanded in the Russian Campaign to hunt food, which cost him 25,000 men by straggling in the Gettysburg campaign, whole regiments going away from the army to get something to eat.

So important is the stomach of the man behind the gun that our army has always been provided with large rations. The average soldier finds it really in excess of the wants of the average appetite. No other soldier in the world has so much allowed him to eat in three square meals of the day. It weighs four pounds. The Spaniards never get their ration full two pounds of food.

A ration in our army is the allowance for subsistence of one person for one day. It consists of twenty ounces of fresh beef, or mutton, when it can be bought for the same price as beef, or twelve ounces of pork or bacon, or twelve ounces of salt beef, or fourteen ounces of dried fish when meat cannot be furnished, eighteen ounces of flour or soft bread, or sixteen ounces of hard bread, or twenty ounces of corn meal, and a pound of potatoes or three and one-fifth ounces of onions, and the rest of the pound of potatoes, or four and four-fifths ounces of canned tomatoes, and the rest of potatoes or fresh vegetables to the same amount as the allowance of canned tomatoes. Every ration includes also either two and two-fifths ounces of beans or peas, and one and three-fifths ounces of either rice or hominy. These allowances make fifteen pounds to the hundred rations and ten pounds of rice or hominy. Ten pounds of green coffee, or eight pounds of roasted, or two pounds of tea are allowed to the hundred rations. Fifteen pounds of sugar go with a hundred rations, also there is a gallon of vinegar, four pounds of salt and four ounces of black pepper. The boy in blue also receives, beside the unknown ration, four of the latter and eight of the former to the hundred rations.

Adding up these amounts, he has about four pounds of food furnished him for daily consumption. This is his allowance in peace or war.

Tommy Atkins doesn't fare as well as this. He gets in barracks, or stations, but a pound and a pound of bread and three-fourths of a pound of fresh or preserved meat daily. His groceries and vegetables he must by out of his pay. In the field his country does more for him. For three days at any point where he is he gets a ration of hardtack, the inhkeener for hot breakfasts and dinner. When his commissary gets into working order he gets about the same quantity of groceries our boys have and half a pound of vegetables. Yet his ration is little in excess of three pounds of food daily. If his commanding officer orders it, he can have a tenth of a gill of lime juice and half a gill of rum—something our army ration has never included.

The soldiers of France receive tea and a half ounces of meat, fresh, salt, canned or smoked, and twenty-four ounces of bread or biscuit, daily. Only two meals—the "day" and the "night" meal —are provided for by the Government. The soldier's meal fund must get the third. On special occasions there are issues of wine, beer, cider and brandy, in the discretion of the officer. If the men are fatigued by a hard day's work they can have their liquor. The amounts are a quarter of a litre of wine, half a litre of beer and the same of cider, and a sixteenth of a litre of brandy.

The Italian soldier, whose ration is about the same as that of the French, receives a quarter of a litre of wine daily. The Austrian can choose wine beer, rum or cognac in similar small amounts, and besides receives an ounce of smoking tobacco in this ration. The Austrian officers are favored with half an ounce allowances of cigars daily. Tobacco has not been recognized in our ration except that an army board some years ago proposed allowing half an ounce a day as part of an emergency ration.

Russia gives her soldier in time of peace two pounds of flour and half a pound of meat. To this is added an allowance of the cost of a pound of meat which may be invested in vegetables and salt. In war the bulk of the ration is somewhat increased and oat meal added. Diluted wine and a peculiar vinegar ration when the drinking water is bad are allowed.

Spain's peace ration consists simply of twenty-three ounces of black bread baked in one loaf across the top of which there are two slashes to divide it into three parts for the meals of the day. The soldier lays in his own. In war he gets five ounces of potatoes and three and a half of peas. The meal allowance is the smallest known in any military establishment—two and three-fourths ounces of fresh meat, three-fourths of an ounce of pork, sausage and three-fourths or an ounce of bacon for his soup. He has six gills of coffee a day, and on feast days is allowed wine.

HIS LAST GIFT.

The Emperor's Kindly Thought for His Wife's Birthday.

A pathetic story comes from Russia of the late Emperor's tender regard for the wishes of his wife. The summer before the Emperor's death he and the Empress visited a jeweler's shop in St. Petersburg to select some jewels for their eldest daughter's bride. The Empress saw a beautiful bracelet, and expressed great admiration for it, and remarked laughingly to her husband that she must purchase it one day. Shortly after their return to the palace the Czar was seized with one of those serious attacks of illness to which he was subject, and the Empress forgot the bracelet. The Emperor died, and to the Empress in the early days of her widowhood came a birthday, the first anniversary which she must pass alone. On her previous birthdays the Tsar had been wont to place some flowers in the morning-room of the Empress. Inside the bouquet was always folded some rich rare gift, chosen months beforehand. The Empress had not noticed the room, as too full of painful memories; but on this morning, the morning of his wedding-day, Nicholas requested his mother to go there as a favor to him. The first thing she saw there was the bouquet of the usual place, and inside the flowers was a case fastened and sealed by the Tsar's own hands. It contained the bracelet. He had ordered it on the same day that the Empress saw it, and on his death-bed had given instructions as to the birthday gift, bidding his son to be near to comfort her when she received it.

Dr. Holmes' Wit.

Some of Dr. Holmes's brightest things never got into any of his published volumes. His reference in "Elsie Venner" to the "twenty-seventh letter of the alphabet" so puzzled one lady who was reading the story in company with a relative that she wrote to the author, telling him that neither she nor her cousin Edward could make out his meaning. The answer received was characteristic—"Boston, March 4th, 1861. My dear Miss Lavinia—The twenty-seventh letter of the alphabet is pronounced by applying the lips of the person speaking it to the cheek of a friend, and puckering and parting the same with a peculiar explosive sound. 'Cousin Edward' will show you how to speak this labial consonant, no doubt, and allow you to show your proficiency by practising it with your lips against his cheek. For further information, you had better consult your gra'ma. Very truly yours, O. W. HOLMES."

Too Stout to Suit the Prince.

Of the little incident which excited between the late Prince Henry of Battenberg and Princess Beatrice it is almost unnecessary to speak, so notorious was it. They both carried their love for each other on their sleeves, in the conventional anecdote is related: Last year Princess Beatrice had her portrait done by a well-known lady pastellist, who, while a thorough artist, knows how to combine a good likeness with a pretty picture. One morning when the portrait was nearly finished, Prince Henry happened to enter the studio. After a minute examination, the Prince remarked: "But you have not made my wife stout enough. I am fond of my stout frau, since it shows she is happy." The portrait was altered.—Tid-Bits.

Something Like That.

A college principal, who is a great gardener, went to see a friend. One day he met being summer, and he on his vacation—rushed in from the garden all soiled and spattered, and without his glass eye. His wife was seated with a caller of importance. She perceived the errand of her husband's condition, and frigidly said to him:

"John, go at-once to the library and tell your master Mrs. —— wishes to see him." He went and soon reappeared, clothed, eyed, and in his right mind.

The college principal, it is plain, is himself a man of presence of mind. There are plenty of men, who, confronted by such a remark of genius as this, would have stared and faltered out: "But, my dear ——" and spoilt it all.

Diplomacy Scores Again.

"Did I talk in my sleep last night?" he asked cautiously.

"Talk! I should say you did," his wife replied.

"Must have been a nightmare if I did."

"It was four of 'em at least; you were talking about having 'two pairs' all night long."

"Ah! I see—two spans. I remember now. I dropped into the horse show for an hour on the way home."—Chicago Times-Herald.

His Reasons.

She—Why are you so much in love with yourself?

He—For two reasons.

She—Two reasons! What are they?

He—Well, one reason is I think it is a good idea to be in love with a worthy person, and the other is I think it a good idea to have a worthy person in love with me.—New York Journal.

Like Heaven.

Tommy—Paw, what does it mean in the paper when it says that the leaders of a party are working like beavers?

Mr. Figg—It might mean they are saying nothing and sawing wood, but it usually means that they have begun throwing mud.—Washington Star.

A Fact Established.

Is it true that Braglow was insane when he died?

Certainly not; didn't he leave all his money to his relatives?—Roxbury Gazette.

HOMES OF THE CLAY-EATERS

A Peculiar Class of People Who Live in Alabama.

Yellow clay as a daily food is what many of the people of Winstead county, Ala., live and thrive on. The county of Winston is in the northwestern portion of the state and is sparsely settled, its population being poor and appearing to be eking out a mere existence. It is only within the past few years that the amount of taxes collected from the entire county amounted to $1,000. Until 1818 Winstead was forty miles from the nearest railroad and the county court house twenty miles further. Houses for worship and those for educational purposes are few and far between. A majority of Winstead's population live in small log cabins of the rudest kind and eke out a miserable existence by farming, hunting and fishing.

Their farms, or patches, as they call them, are small clearings around their cabins, and are seldom more than a few acres in extent. Their crop (as they invariably say) consists of corn, peas, potatoes and a few acres fortunate enough to own a horse attempt to raise a little cotton. The land is very poor, and, as the crops receive little work, the yield is always small. A few hogs are raised, but the majority depend on the country stores for the few strips of bacon they eat during the year. Here in this county, though, the moonshine stills flourish as the green bay tree, in almost every cove and hollow. Little farms among the hills may be found a still whose undertaker's delight is produced by the soft light of the moon and where Uncle Sam fails to get his pull-downs of 90 cents on the gallon. These people are too far from market to sell their corn for money, but they can convert it into good, straight liquor, carry it in kegs or jugs to the more thickly settled neighborhoods a few miles away and obtain a few dollars in money, some tobacco, coffee, and snuff for the women folks. Men, women and children are all slaves to the tobacco habit. The women chew, smoke, and dip snuff, but "dipping" is generally a Sunday luxury, as snuff is hard for them to get.

The clay eaten by these people is found along the banks of the small mountain stream in inexhaustible quantities, and is of a dirty white color usually, sometimes a pale yellow. It has a peculiar clayey appearance, and the oil keeps it from sticking to the hands or mouth. When dry it does not crumble, and a few drops of water will easily soften it until it can be moulded into any shape desired. The clay is almost without taste, but evidently possesses some nourishment, as these people declare they can subsist upon it for days without any other food whatever. They eat it in small pieces in the mouth and hold it there until it dissolves, and is swallowed in small quantities at a time. The quantities eaten at one time varies from one lump as large as a pea for a child or beginner to a lump as large as a man's fist for those who have eaten it for years. These people eat the clay with a ravenous relish, and the only bad effect seems to be the bad appearance it gives to those of long indulgence addicted to the habit. The skin turns pale, so pale, in fact, as to give the face the pallor of death, and then later on turns a sickly pale yellow, a decidedly resembling some of the negro families in the county, because of the clay eating grow old, at less in appearance, prematurely, and they lose forever the bright glow of joy and health. Strange as it may appear there is little sickness among these clay eaters, the general health being the average of mankind, this proving that clay eating is not fatal in its effects.

Muscular Exercise.

In an actor's face the muscles are exercised as thoroughly as are the body muscles of an athlete who is undergoing a systematic course in gymnasium. Hence, in a typical actor's face, even when at rest, no one group of expression muscles outpulls the others; and, as a consequence of this state of muscular balance, there is about it a positive aspect, suggestive of a mask.

Primitive Sounds.

The sounds most usually produced in infancy, such as pa, ma, da, and the like, are generally used to signify father and mother; but it is a singular fact that what signifies father in one language means mother in another. In the Georgian language, for instance, spoken in the mountains between the Caspian and Black seas, deda means mother, and mamma father.

Not Absorbed in Politics.

Citizen—"Mr. Greatmann, I heard a curious debate the other evening. Is the subject was, 'Can a politician be a Christian?' What is your opinion?"

Mr. Greatmann—"He kin, but he'll git licked."—New York Weekly.

An Unkind Conclusion.

Sauso—"Something was runnin through my mind a few moments ago—"

Rodd—"I suppose it was running fear it might be asked to stay in suc cramped quarters."—New York Herald.

Sent Her Out of Hearing.

Hostess—"Don't you think my daughter has a beautiful voice, Mr. Brown, and that I ought to send her to Paris to have it cultivated?"

Bronson—"Yes, if I were you would send her at least as far as that."—Life.

"Aunt Lucy, what is eccentricity?" "It is the queer things that other people do."—Chicago Record.

SOME ANTIQUE RINGS.

ODD SUBSTITUTES FOR THE GOLD BANDS WORN BY BRIDES.

One Filled Lady Married With a Curtain Ring—A Scarf Pin Which Was Used in an Emergency—An Instance in Which a Quoit Was Turned into Service.

Incidents in which the marriage service has to be temporarily suspended while bridegroom and best man tumble over one another and murmur strange nothings as they vainly search for a missing ring are by no means so uncommon as one might imagine. This makes it usually thought about through an excess of caution.

The groom, being afraid perhaps to trust to his own memory upon such a momentous occasion, hands over the precious circlet to the best man for safe custody. The latter, who, by the way, is no more to be trusted carrying loose wedding rings about than is the groom himself, places the ring for safety in as out-of-the-way place as he can possibly think of in the brief time at his disposal. Before he has had time to remember where he has hidden it he fortunate enough to own a horse attempt to raise a little cotton. The land is very poor, and, as the crops receive little work, the yield is always small. A few hogs are raised, but the majority depend on the country stores for the few strips of bacon they eat during the year. Here in this county, though, the moonshine stills flourish as the green bay tree, in almost every cove and hollow. Little farms among the hills may be found a still whose undertaker's delight is produced by the soft light of the moon and where Uncle Sam fails to get his pull-downs of 90 cents on the gallon. These people are too far from market to sell their corn for money, but they can convert it into good, straight liquor, carry it in kegs or jugs to the more thickly settled neighborhoods a few miles away and obtain a few dollars in money, some tobacco, coffee, and snuff for the women folks. Men, women and children are all slaves to the tobacco habit. The women chew, smoke, and dip snuff, but "dipping" is generally a Sunday luxury, as snuff is hard for them to get.

The clay eaten by these people is found along the banks of the small mountain stream in inexhaustible quantities, and is of a dirty white color usually, sometimes a pale yellow. It has a peculiar clayey appearance, and the oil keeps it from sticking to the hands or mouth. When dry it does not crumble, and a few drops of water will easily soften it until it can be moulded into any shape desired. The clay is almost without taste, but evidently possesses some nourishment, as these people declare they can subsist upon it for days without any other food whatever. They eat it in small pieces in the mouth and hold it there until it dissolves, and is swallowed in small quantities at a time. The quantities eaten at one time varies from one lump as large as a pea for a child or beginner to a lump as large as a man's fist for those who have eaten it for years. These people eat the clay with a ravenous relish, and the only bad effect seems to be the bad appearance it gives to those of long indulgence addicted to the habit. The skin turns pale, so pale, in fact, as to give the face the pallor of death, and then later on turns a sickly pale yellow, a decidedly resembling some of the negro families in the county, because of the clay eating grow old, at less in appearance, prematurely, and they lose forever the bright glow of joy and health. Strange as it may appear there is little sickness among these clay eaters, the general health being the average of mankind, this proving that clay eating is not fatal in its effects.

Muscular Exercise.

In an actor's face the muscles are exercised as thoroughly as are the body muscles of an athlete who is undergoing a systematic course in gymnasium. Hence, in a typical actor's face, even when at rest, no one group of expression muscles outpulls the others; and, as a consequence of this state of muscular balance, there is about it a positive aspect, suggestive of a mask.

Primitive Sounds.

The sounds most usually produced in infancy, such as pa, ma, da, and the like, are generally used to signify father and mother; but it is a singular fact that what signifies father in one language means mother in another. In the Georgian language, for instance, spoken in the mountains between the Caspian and Black seas, deda means mother, and mamma father.

Not Absorbed in Politics.

Citizen—"Mr. Greatmann, I heard a curious debate the other evening. Is the subject was, 'Can a politician be a Christian?' What is your opinion?"

Mr. Greatmann—"He kin, but he'll git licked."—New York Weekly.

An Unkind Conclusion.

Sauso—"Something was runnin through my mind a few moments ago—"

Rodd—"I suppose it was running fear it might be asked to stay in suc cramped quarters."—New York Herald.

Sent Her Out of Hearing.

Hostess—"Don't you think my daughter has a beautiful voice, Mr. Brown, and that I ought to send her to Paris to have it cultivated?"

Bronson—"Yes, if I were you would send her at least as far as that."—Life.

"Aunt Lucy, what is eccentricity?" "It is the queer things that other people do."—Chicago Record.

TO BURN SATAN IN EFFIGY.

A Salvationist Describes Their Vivid Manner of Forcing Truths.

"You see, we Salvationists have learned that the old ecclesiastical way of bringing out truths doesn't reach everybody. So we hit on this spectacular show to burn sin and the devil out of the hearts of the people. First we'll have fireworks and a parade on the streets. The word 'Sin' will be borne aloft in burning letters than can be seen half a mile away. After the parade we will return to Memorial Hall, New York, and a number of cadets dressed in red will enter, some bearing a huge red coffin with "Hades" painted in white letters on either side. After marching around to the tune of a dirge they will place the coffin on a platform. After a song or two I'll get in my work.

"I shall take a huge knife, and after pulling yards of ribbon from the coffin, the head of Satan, with a cord to the end will appear, arrayed in a huge bonnet covered with feathers, laces, ribbons, and what not. This represents pride, one of the greatest enemies to salvation, and off the head will come. Then I will make an address on pride before cutting out the devil's vertebrae. That's doubt, and will be illustrated by one of Bob Ingersoll's lithographs, used for advertising purposes, and a revolver, for you see he advises a person with no hope in life to put an end to existence. I shall speak of bow doubt brings destruction and faith salvation. Next I'll cut the tongue out of the devil's head. You see it has 'scandal, lies, blasphemy' printed on the tongue. That all can read. And so it will be until I've cut the old fellow into mincemeat. At the close the room will be darkened and the devil will be burned in effigy in a lake of fire. It is a gruesome sight, but the moral effect of the different sins being taken from the people by conversion."—New York Sun.

No Fear of the Wine Cup

"Harry," she said, reproachfully.

"Well?" he returned, apprehensively, for there was that in her tone that made him fear the worst.

"It is evident from your breath," she went on, "that you have been drinking."

"Well," he said again, for want of something better to say.

"When a mere girl," she explained regretfully, "I made a solemn vow that lips that touched wine should never touch mine."

"Is that all?" he said, with evident relief. "If you were a little more conversant with the price of things in that line and with the details of my salary you wouldn't hesitate a moment on account of that vow. But it's mighty lucky that you didn't include anything but wine in it."—Chicago Post.

The Busy Queen.

Queen Victoria's private letters number many hundred every year. She writes to bee numerous relatives, forgetting no anniversary or occasion on which a letter might be welcome. The London Chronicle says that to the younger members of the royal family she never fails to send birthday gifts, accompanied by a few loving words of greeting. Every day the birthday book is consulted—not that birthday cards which singers actors and other personages are asked to write, but that smaller volume reserved for relatives and intimate friends. Then there are numerous letters of a semi-private nature which are written by the Queen herself containing words of condolence, letters of congratulation to brides who have been connected with the court, letters to foreign monarchs.

A Cure for Balky Horses.

An officer of police gives the following method for curing balky horses. "When I was a mounted policeman," he says, "I learned of a most humane and kind method of curing a balky horse. It not only never fails, but it does not give the slightest pain to the animal. When the horse refuses to go, take the front foot at the fetlock, and bend the leg at the knee-joint. Hold it thus for three minutes, then let it down, and the horse will go. The only way in which I can account for this effective mastery of the horse is that he can think of only one thing at a time; and, having made up his mind not to go, my theory is that the bending of the leg takes his mind from the original thought."

What He Needed.

The physician pondered the case for a few minutes before he ventured an opinion.

"I think your husband needs a rest more than anything else," he said at last. "If he could be convinced of that"——

"But he refuses absolutely to listen to me, Doctor."

"Well," returned the physician thoughtfully, "that's a move in the right direction."—Chicago Post.

She Showed Good Judgment.

Her Selection.—"How did you happen to insure in that particular company?"

"I consulted the wishes of my wife."

"Of course, that's very praiseworthy. But—does she know anything about life-insurance companies?"

"Yes. She investigated, and found that this one always issues the prettiest calendars."—Washington Star.

Wholly Different Now.

Among the Egyptians, engagement rings were always of iron, indicating the mutual sacrifice of liberty. One of the earliest gems used in the engagement ring was the lodestone, which symbolized the force of attraction which drew the maiden from her own family into another.—Philadelphia Record.

OUR MIGRATING BIRDS.

Studying Bird Life in the Woods in all Its Phases.

To the lover of nature there is no subject more interesting than that of bird migration. The semi-annual coming and going of the birds mark the changes of the season as accurately as does the calendar, and there is every reason to believe that the Indians thus determined the approach of warmer or colder weather.

It is true they counted time by the moon, dividing the year and months into so many moons, but they anticipated the approach of spring by the coming of the bluebirds, martins and thrushes, while the departure of these birds in the fall heralded the approach of cold weather.

Boys and girls can study this subject with pleasure and profit. A record can be kept of the different species of birds which arrive in the several states, together with the time of their departure and when such a record extends over a number of years the facts thus obtained are likely to prove of great value.

Besides this, by studying birds and their habits we learn to love them; a rivalry will soon spring up as to who shall catch the first glimpse of the returning songsters, and this will take us to the woods and fields, where birdlife can be studied in all its phases.

The Department of Agriculture at Washington has enlisted the services of scientists all over the country, and secured from them detailed reports as to what they have seen of the appearance and disappearance of birds.

One of the most curious and interesting phases of the subject is that of the relative speed of different birds when traveling north and south. The comparative speed of the different species was readily obtained, but to find out the exact number of miles which individual birds can travel in a day was a task of great difficulty.

Birds, when they once start on their journey, they maintain a steady flight. Those which breed in a certain grove or orchard are always the first to appear there in the spring, the desire to return to their old home causing them to start early.

In the migration southward, in the fall, the young birds seem to be the most eager to depart to warmer climes.

The record of fifty-eight species of migrating birds for one spring showed that on an average they covered twenty-three miles a day during a journey of five hundred miles.

They traveled more rapidly at the southern than at the northern end of their journey. The golden winged woodpecker, which breeds in the Southern states they linnered for several weeks, and, as they drew near to the North, they found that the weather was still cold, so that they did not hurry themselves.

In nothing the average rate of travel of twenty-five species it was found that most of the species averaged nineteen miles a day during March, twenty-three miles during April and twenty-six miles during May. The later the birds start starting for the North the faster it flies.

It was also found that the early-arriving birds, such as the robin, the cow bird and the golden flicker, travel on an average twelve miles a day, while the late comers, the so called summer birds, including the night-hawk, red-bird, Baltimore oriole and ruby-throated hammer, cover twenty-eight miles nearly every day.

The reason why daytime birds do not travel so far as by night, because they stop to feed and often wait for other companies to come up with them.

Land birds make an average of fifteen miles per daytime, but cranes geese and ducks fly much faster. It is also thought that birds do not fly for several nights in succession, but that they stop to rest and feed after having flown for one or two nights.

If the birds were to keep up a continuous journey northward they would reach their destination in a very short time. But they are on a pleasure trip, and do not care to tire themselves out.

When the different flocks draw near their accustomed haunts, and, in the course of a few weeks, are scattered all over the country.

In the fall they reassemble and start on their southern journey. What system of signals they have, by what intuition they all fix upon one gathering place, not even science can tell. Will the problem ever be solved?

Arctic Cold.

"Our physical sensations are relative," says a traveler in Arctic regions, "and the mere enumeration of so many degrees of cold or cold gives no idea of their effect upon the system. I should have frozen at home in a temperature which I found very comfortable in Lapland, with my solid diet of meat and butter, and my garments of reindeer."

The following is a correct scale of the physical effects of cold, calculated for the latitude of sixty-five to seventy degrees north:

Fifteen degrees above zero.—Unpleasantly warm.

Zero.—Mild and agreeable.

Ten degrees below zero.—Pleasantly fresh and bracing.

Twenty degrees below zero.—Sharp, but not severely cold. Keep your fingers and toes in motion, and rub your nose occasionally.

Thirty degrees below zero.—Very cold. Take particular care of your nose and extremities; eat the fattest food and plenty of it.

Forty degrees below zero.—Intensely cold. Keep awake at all hazards, muffle up to the eyes, and test your circulation frequently, that if any part stop somewhere before you know it.

Fifty degrees bilow zero.—A struggle for life.

FROM PALESTINE.

STEADY PRAYERS TOWARD A JEWISH NATION.

There are Forty Thousand Hebrews There—Half of Them Are in Jerusalem—A Very Large Proportion Are Industrious—The Hope of Israel.

In the last twenty years the number of Jews in the "Promised Land" has increased nearly threefold. There are in Palestine now 40,000, as against 15,000 in 1878. Over half of the present population, or 22,000, are in Jerusalem. Of these half have emigrated from Europe and America, and are called Aschkenazim, to distinguish them from the Oriental Israelites, or Sephardims. Twenty-two Jewish colonies in Palestine have been founded and subsidized by Europeans, ten by Baron Edmond de Rothschild, representing the Alliance Israelite Universelle, and the other twelve by the Jewish Colonization Association and by the Odessa Company. These colonies have a population of 960 families, or 5,000 people. It has been only since the eighties that the immigration of Jews to Palestine has amounted to anything. Though the idea of gathering in this land homeless Jews from all over the world was championed in the forties by Moses Montefiore.

Of the twenty-two present colonies that "Mikveh Memorial" is the largest, supporting more than 1,000. It has a graded school with five teachers, a synagogue and 4,000 acres of land under cultivation, on which are raised fruit, chiefly grapes, honey and mulberry leaves, the rearing of silkworms being a leading industry.

The "First to Zion" is another important colony, owning 2,000 acres and forty two-storied stone dwelling houses, with a school there with a Hebrew library, a synagogue and a hospital. One million five hundred thousand vines and 25,000 olive, almond orange and mulberry trees belong to this colony. Jaffa also possesses famous wine cellars.

The "Hope of Israel," a mile beyond Yafa, in the plains of Sharon, is perhaps best known for its agricultural school, in which 100 or more pupils are taught gardening. Recently a high school for Jewish girls was established in Yafa.

The "Head Corner Stone," amid the hills beyond Tiberias, with snow-capped Hermon in the background, is another prosperous Jewish colony in Palestine. Being near the source of the Jordan, water is plentiful and its situation, high up above the level of the Mediterranean, insures fair climatic conditions.

In the "Door of Hope" dairy farming is followed profitably and experiments made in tea planting. This colony is said to have 1,000,000 vines.

The Zionists may or may not succeed in taking the whole race out of the Jewish people, with a Parliament in Jerusalem and representation in foreign capitals, but, at any rate, Palestine which responds generously to modern influences will be developed. The Sultan seems disposed to grant railway, harbor and other franchises, and it is possible that the new Jewish Colonial Bank, the organization of which was recently announced, will be permitted, under certain guarantees, to play an important part in the industrial advancement and growth of Palestine. The movement furthermore, is bringing out new energies in the Jews in Palestine. "They are no longer content with studying the Halmud and living on charity, but are waking to the fact, as the Hebrew would put it, that to till the ground is worship of God.

Still, a Jewish colony, not far from El Mserib, on the caravan route from Damascus to Mekka, was attacked recently by predatory Bedouins. The settlers were driven away and their property looted and destroyed. Even a road built by the Jews to connect their frontier colonies with older ones in Galilee, west of the river, was partly obliterated. Taxes are more oppressive than ever, and the corruption and prohibitive measures regarding immigration are still in force, although inadequate.

Four or five weeks ago an English company announced its determination to build a broad-gauge railway from the sea at Haifa through the heart of Samaria and Galilee to Damascus and on to Bagdad, and active operations have already begun.

Monkeys' Voices.

All monkeys have voices, and many of them have very strong ones. Excepting the solitary and taciturn ourang-outang, the species which live in troops are chatterers, and keep up a great hubbub. The principal tones are shrill and rapid language, with the frequent repetition of the same sounds, may also be found in the languages of the most savage peoples. They are for the most part complex, guttural, and have few articulations, with few variations. But the alphabets of some of the African and Melanesian nations are not much richer.

Laughter is not wholly peculiar to man. Monkeys have a very hoarse and explosive laugh analogous to ours. Monkeys are also capable of showing sorrow and weeping, and it is possible to follow on their faces the equivalents of the physiognomical changes which in man answer to the expression of his various emotions. Among these are the drawing back of the corner of the mouth, and the contraction of the lower eyelid, which constitute the monkey's smile, and the depression of the eyebrow and forehead in anger.

If people are ruled by fear they are sure to be untruthful, and if they are not allowed to think and act for themselves they lose conscience—it dies.

The Constitutionalist.

A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.

PUBLISHED AT

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Terms—$2.00 per year.

A. L. Force, Editor and Proprietor

Mr. Martine's Oratory.

Last week James E. Martine journeyed to Rahway and delivered a characteristic Democratic speech before the Democratic Club of that city. The Rahway Advocate this week handles Mr. Martine's visit in this fashion:

"These magic words passed with startling rapidity from lip to lip of the members of the Democratic Club last Thursday afternoon, 'Jim's here!' How the faithful swelled until 'Expectation' was a condition and they fled from the haunts of man lest they be discovered. "Jim's here!" Can you doubt it? Has not the edict gone forth? Did not the dodgers, pasted beneath the snow and ice, or stuck in every conceivable place, proclaim the glad tidings? And they were right! "Jim" was here! The same old fire burns unabated in his breast and flashes from his eyes the same dramatic air, the same voice that has pleaded so eloquently in the past for the "Markets of the World," charged not since it secured its second breath and drove the colonists to its lair; that it will cry out against "Imperialism" now that the "markets" are a possibility, we—but we are wandering.

"Jim" was here! Not a single doubt of it. Remember the atmos heric disturbance Tuesday: didn't the wind blow!

The New Jersey editor of The Tribune, whose bailiwick is on Mr. Martine's political oratory will much amuse ment to the "Farmer Orator," got his eagle eye on to The Advocate's merry editorial note, and this is the result in Saturday's Tribune:

That is not possibly refer to anybody but the Hon. James E. Martine, the peerless orator and debating prophet, whose like is not elsewhere in all the State of New Jersey. He can see and sing the oncoming tide of victory where the aspect appears to others as absolutely hopeless and he is never so happy as when running for office whenever the possibility of an election is out of the question. Compare to him Mark Tapley, who was a glum old pessimist of the rankest kind.

Defeat It.

The second bill aimed to relieve Elizabeth of the expense of maintaining the District Court in that city by putting it upon the county, has made its appearance in the Assembly. Mr. Houston stands sponsor for it. The only change from the first bill, which was defeated through the efforts of Assemblyman Murray, is that it applies to second-class counties alone. Under such conditions the Elizabeth officials hope that it will not engage the opposition of either Hudson or Essex counties, which are first class counties, and that it will be passed by the Legislature.

If this bill become a law it will cost Plainfield about $800 in county tax, and Plainfield will not receive one cent in benefits from the court. Such a piece of legislation as that is all wrong. We understand that Assemblyman Murray will make a stiff fight against its passage. The Common Council of Plainfield, as well as the municipal officers of other sections of the county that receive no benefit from a district court in Elizabeth, should take immediate steps to prevent the passage of this measure.

If Assemblyman Murray reads and keeps in a scrap book all the smart things that are said in the newspapers concerning his career as a legislator, he will end the session in Trenton with the satisfaction that the name of Roger Franklin Murray is pretty well known from one end of the State to the other. Under the caption of "He Counts Only One" the New Jersey editor of the New York Press thus brusquely treats the Plainfield states man:

There seems to be that sort of fire of eloquence in Assemblyman Murray, of Union, which thrills and burns into the fibre of his own being, but it chills the marrow of everyone else. Mr. Murray has the sympathy of Speaker Watkins, yet the strong man from Woodbury is only human, and must at least occasionally consider that there are fifty nine other Assemblymen, each having equal constitutional privilege with the forensic statesman of Plainfield.

In commenting on the recent conviction of a Trenton justice of the peace for malfeasance in office, the Newark News truthfully observes:

It is to be sure unfit men are so frequently elected to the office of justice of the Peace, that that branch of the State's judicial department has fallen into disrepute. The position offers peculiar opportunities to prey upon the prejudices and ignorance, and for this reason is sought by some men of lax morals and blunted consciences, who care not at all for the obligations which should pertain to the office, but use it only as an instrument of oppression and extortion. Political parties rarely give proper heed to the character of the men nominated for justices of the peace on the respective tickets nor are the voters any more critical. Thus it frequently happens that unfit men have no trouble in being elected, and by their subsequent conduct bring both Plaintiff and disrepute an office which, when properly administered, is one of the most important and useful in the State.

In reviewing the work of New Jersey Congressmen The Tribune says of Mr. Fowler:

In the House Mr. Fowler busied himself mainly with finance and if no legislation resulted this fact was due to the diversity of views in the banking and currency committee and in the House. Some of those here who are recognized as having expert knowledge have spoken most highly of the ability displayed by the representative from the Fifth New Jersey Congress District.

Improved School System.

One of the most important reports presented to Governor Voorhees since his inauguration is that of the Educational Commission, and it possesses particular local interest because Samuel St. John McCutchen, long recognized as one of the leading educational workers in North Plainfield, was a member of the commission. Further than the part Mr. McCutchen plays in forming the report, Plainfield is also interested in it because State Superintendent of Schools Baxter is a resident of this city and was instrumental in suggesting many of the good points considered by the commission.

One of the most important recommendations of the commissioners is the plan for rural schools, which permits two or three districts to unite and establish graded schools. It will be remembered that this feature was first broached by Superintendent Baxter last fall. It was generally recognized as a splendid idea as aiming to afford aspiring young men and women in the country districts educational advantages that are now obtained only in large towns and cities at expense that acts as a prohibitive to those who live outside of such districts, and are not fortunate enough to possess the wherewithal to pay tuition fees and the other expenses incident to a daily attendance away from their immediate homes.

The commission also proposes to change the truant system in the State. The present Truant law is made inoperative because no provision is made in most cases for paying the truant officers. The new law proposes the payment of these officers and in cities policemen may be detailed to act in this capacity. The law is made clearer as to the committing magistrate for incorrigible children. It is also provided that any district may establish a truant school. These may be either day or boarding schools. To these truant schools incorrigible children may be committed and such children as are now sent to the Reform School and thus classed as criminals. This plan has already been tried in several States and with marked success.

Inasmuch as the question of spending money for school purposes has worked at cross purposes in Plainfield at different times it is interesting to note that the commission provides for a sen ible and fair system at arriving at a decision in such matters. It is provided that the president of the Board of Education, the Mayor and the chief financial officer of the city shall constitute what is to be known as the Board of School Estimate. To this body the Board of Education shall submit annually a budget or estimate of the amount deemed to be necessary for the support of schools for the ensuing year, giving the various purposes for which the money is to be used, and the amount thought to be necessary for each of such purposes, and also the amount expected from the State appropriation and the State School tax.

New Jersey is again held up to the unenviable light of the world as being the commonwealth selected for a monster combination of capital to get together in and control the coal market in defiance of what is right and just in the use of a public commodity. The quicker New Jersey sets down good and hard on the class of capitalists who use their advantages of wealth to deprive people of inherent rights the better it will be for all concerned.

To those who believe capital punishment should be abolished, here is a pertinent question: "What punishment does a murderer fear more, execution or imprisonment for life?"—News.

As tending to restrain violence that results in murder the consideration of what the consequences are to be—whether execution or life-long imprisonment—seldom, if ever, enters into the mind of the person who commits the crime. We believe that no man ever committed the crime of taking human life in a sane moment of the mind and purposes under such perfer sion possess all that is possible to be obtained in insanity. However sound may be the mind before or after committing such an act, the immediate promptings are those of a perverted and insane mental condition. And it is both law and justice that no man's life should be taken for actions performed while he is mentally irresponsible.

Assemblyman Murray has accomplished a creditable act in securing the passage of the trolley extension act repealer by the Assembly. When Mr. Murray introduced this measure every body thought that it would fail by the wayside the same as all other anticorporation bills do, but it did not. Mr. Murray is a splendid example of where there is a will there is a way.

Now that Admiral Dewey has said that he will not be President, and as he declines to come home to be smothered with the glories and attractions that such as he deserves at the hands of a grateful Republic, why not set aside June 1st as "Dewey Day" to be celebrated in honor of the Admiral? The idea is bound to be a popular one.

The Borough Election Results.

By the narrow majority of thirteen votes Newton B. Smalley today claims his right to be sworn in as chief executive officer of the borough of North Plainfield, to succeed Mayor John F. Wilson. The outcome of this memorable campaign occasions not a great deal of surprise to those who followed it closely. This is due not to the fact that either side of the contest were half hearted or discouraged at any point in the campaign, but because it was realized that which ever way the election resulted it would not be an overwhelming victory for the winner. Consequently the thirteen more votes that Mr. Smalley received over Mr. Wilson was accepted as the former's good fortune in a fight that will be recorded in the borough's municipal history as the most aggressive and exciting that has taken place up to the present time.

Considering the intensity of the contest political feality played but a trifling part in the factors that arrayed the voters on either one side or the other. True, party devotion was appealed to with success in some instances, but this influence was small in comparison with the non-partisan ideas that permeated the minds of the voters as a rule.

The result of the election hinged on the view that voters took of Mayor Wilson's administration. And that was guaged entirely by what the Mayor had done—not what he had left undone. Perhaps a man of greater political perspicuity would have shaped his public actions so as to have avoided the things that have arisen to make a Waterloo for the Mayor, but Mr. Wilson is not of that sort. He entered the office to do his duty as the law and his own conscience told him to do it, and he gave no thought to such consequences as he figured in when the polls closed last night.

The victory of Mr. Smalley is to a great extent due to the active, earnest manner in which he prosecuted his canvass for election. He left no stone unturned that might aid him in securing a victory, and in such work he had the aid of several of the borough's most active and influential Republican workers. A less aggressive political worker than Mr. Smalley would doubtless have been the loser in the contest.

In a New York State town the other day eleven masked men entered an electric light powerhouse and bound and gagged the three engineers, after which they blew open the company's safe and made off with the contents. It was a hard place for the engineers to get such a shock in.

An editor of a Prohibition organ in New York State devotes a column of his valuable space to the denunciation of a banquet where oyster cocktails were served. The Prohibition editor needs to take a course of study in his wife's cook book.

The Senatorial contest in Pennsylvania and Delaware has narrowed down to the point where Quay and Addicks are simply bent on preventing the other fellow from getting it.

An ordinance forbidding expectoration in street cars and public buildings has gone into effect in Newark. The best thing on the programme will probably be a pocket cuspador.

Robert Fitzsimmons, Esq., states that his arm is all right. Indeed, We also notice that his tongue is getting in some good licks, too.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

Assemblyman Roger Franklin Murray, of Plainfield, who helps Mr. Squire, of Elizabeth, to run the House, is one of the most earnest men in the Assembly. There has not been even one bill introduced in either branch of the Legislature this session that the blond statesman from Union has not studied carefully, and on which he is not prepared to enlighten the other fellows. As a result Mr. Murray can never sit still in his seat and see a bill come up for third reading without having his say about it. And the Plainfield man generally gets a fair share of attention when he stands up.

Mr. Murray's habit of taking a hand in every discussion has made him the subject of more than one good natured joke on the floor of the House. One in particular came from Allan Benny, who won a laugh by introducing a resolution giving the Plainfield man the privilege of the floor. Mr. Murray was not the least bit offended, nor was he at all put out when another document was handed in setting forth the statement that it was the sentiment of the House of Assembly that the Secretary of the Navy be requested to name one of the proposed new battleships after the Plainfield representative, Roger Franklin Murray.—Newark Advertiser.

A. S. Patterson, of Central avenue, has rented the house on Franklin place now occupied by E. H. Ladd, Jr., and will take possession shortly.

David E. Titsworth, of this city, has returned from a business trip to Minneapolis, and is now in Washington looking after some business.

BRIEFS.

New York has a training school where a course is given women desirous of learning the art of embalming the dead.

Mr. Jamseeji Tata has offered the Indian government $1,250,000 for the establishment in India of a university for research on the model of Johns Hopkins.

The will of Colonel Daniel Morris, who died at Atlantic City last week leaves $90,000 to Bishop McFaul of the Catholic diocese of Trenton, for charitable purposes.

The students of Yale university have completed, in the vicinity of the manufacturing district of New Haven, the erection of a substantial building to be devoted to missionary and social work.

M. Zola, in his retirement in England, has been learning English with the aid of the "Vicar of Wakefield." M. Theodore Duret, one of his friends, supplied him with a copy having the English on opposite pages.

The first woman the University of Berlin ever granted the doctor's degree, Miss Elsa Neumann, was awarded that dignity cum laude. Her special study was in physics, with mathematics and philosophy as secondary branches.

Dr. Murray expects to finish more than half of the new English dictionary published by the end of the century up to the middle of the letter L. The letter that has given the English compilers the greatest difficulty is, curiously enough, the letter H.

The coffin containing the supposed remains of Christopher Columbus was opened in Cadiz, on its arrival from Havana. About thirty bones and some ashes were found in the casket. It was reclosed and will be received at Seville with great solemnity and deposited in the cathedral.

Dr. Henry Van Dyke, asked how far should the pulpit be literary, replies the Observer: "I do not believe that the pulpit should be literary at all. It should be evangelistic. But it is possible that a man who knows something about literature may be able to do some decent work in an evangelical pulpit."

Tests of bicycle tires, recently made by Professor R. C. Carpenter of Cornell university, show that, other things being equal, the larger the tire the easier runs the wheel. A marked difference in the power of running is found between a one-and-one-half-inch and a two-inch tire. A single tube tire runs easier than a double tube tire.

The bishop of Havana, recognizing that, under American military rule, the church cannot be supported out of the public revenues, issued a circular letter to the priests of the different parishes, directing that the church be hereafter maintained by private contributions. The church is rich in Havana, and poor in other parts of the island. The religious orders, especially those occupying the convents, are wealthy, but the parishes in the interior are poor.

In an investigation of the schemes and methods of tramps the Rev. William C. Dewitt, of Chicago has discovered what may be called the tramp's commercial agency. In its operations in that city ratings are recorded and furnished to customers upon the payment of a fee, showing what men are charitable, how and when each may be successfully approached, what kind of an appeal is best adapted to this or that case, and indicating the maximum amount that may be expected from each.

EPIGRAMS OF THE WAR

"You can fire when you are ready, Gridley."—Commodore Dewey at Manila.

"The battle of Manila killed me, but I would do it again."—Captain Gridley, of the Olympia, on his death bed.

"Don't cheer, boys; the poor devil's are dying."—Captain Philip, of the Texas.

"The Maine is avenged."—Lieut. Wainwright, after the destruction of Cervera's fleet.

"War is not a picnic."—Sergt. Hamilton Fish, of the Rough Riders, to his mother.

"Who would not gamble for a new star in the flag?"—Captain Buckey O'Neil, of the Rough Riders.

"Don't get between my guns and the enemy."—Commodore Dewey to Prince Henry of Germany.

"I've got them now and they will never get home."—Commodore Schley, on guard at Santiago harbor.

"There must be no more recalls; iron will break."—Lieutenant Hobson to Admiral Sampson.

"Don't mind me, boys; go on fight-ing."—Captain Alyn K. Capron of the Rough Riders.

"Don't mind me, boys; go on fighting."—Captain Allyn K. Capron of the Rough Riders.

"Take that for the Maine."—Captain Sigsbee, as he fired a shot through the Spanish torpedo boat Terror.

"We will make Spanish the court language in Manila."—"Fighting Bob" Evans, when war was declared.

"Remember the Maine."—Commodore Schley's signal to the flying squadron.

"Don't hamper me with instructions; I am not afraid of the entire Spanish fleet with my ship."—Captain Clark, of the Oregon, to the board of strategy.

"To hell with breakfast; let's finish I would do it again."—Captain Gridley, 'em now."—A Yankee gunner to Commodore Dewey.

"Shafter is fighting; not writing. —Adjt.-Gen. Corbin to Secretary Alger, when the latter asked for news from the front.

"Afraid I'll strain my guns at long range, I'll close in."—Lieutenant Wainwright of the Gloucester in the fight with Cervera's squadron.

OATMEAL AND MACKEREL.

Chicago has pinched a secress, which again shows that the seerness of the everyday secress is sure, indeed.

St. Louis has a highwayman who operates in evening dress. So Chicago has not a monopoly on the "dress soot" for general use in the Middle West, after all.

After all the advertising the Mrs. Thomas W. Lawson carnation has received, Mrs. Thomas W. Lawson will be neglecting her opportunities if she does not go on the stage.

Wooten is the name of the Texas legislator who wants his state to secede from the Union because of the stamp tax on bonds. Texas won't go out. Wooten may if he wants to.

Now comes a Boston lawyer with the announcement that that wonderful Lawson pink was really sold for $30,000, too. All this shifting is calculated to stunt the plant's growth.

The first known instance of an Indian doing anything has occurred on the Pine Ridge agency in South Dakota. Even the fierce Sioux are slowly adopting the customs of the white men.

A New York artist is seeking a divorce from his wife because she never secured a penny for him through her social influence. He should have been more careful to choose a good saleslady when he married.

The New York man whose stock holdings earned $600,000 while he was spending 20 minutes over a friendly cocktail has the distinction of having drunk the most expensive cocktail on record—expensive for the other fellow on 'change.

The latest craze of Paris society is for after-dinner exhibitions of surgical operations, reproduced by means of the cinematograph. These persons exhibit the same good taste as Fitzhugh Lee's soldiers, who have had to be restrained from carrying away Spanish skulls and bones from Cuban cemeteries.

Senator Mason wants a law made requiring the reading of Washington's farewell address in all schools in the United States on each Washington's Birthday. As there already is a law making Washington's Birthday a legal holiday and schools are closed on that day, Senator Mason's sincerity is under suspicion.

Ex-Judge John M. Hall, of New Haven, who will be acting president of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company during President Clark's absence in Europe, has been vice-president of the company since 1893. The somewhat natural impression that Judge Hall's services to the company have been wholly or mainly of a legal character during this period is entirely erroneous. In course, his professional advice has been valued but his work has been of a general character. He has an intimate acquaintance with all the policies and operations of het company, and, in fact, has had a large share in forming them.

PEOPLE'S EYES.

Charles Lamb is described as having glittering eyes, strangely dissimilar in color, one being hazel, the other having specks of gray in the iris, as you see red spots in the bloodstone.

According to Trelawny no man had brighter eyes than Byron; they were gray and fringed with long dark lashes. Lady Blessington, writing of him a few months before his departure to Greece, adds that one eye was visibly larger than the other.

Audubon, as became a naturalist, had hawk-like eyes that dashed like a searchlight and were ever on the alert for each movement of animated nature." The Duke of Wellington also had, it is said, blue hawk's eyes gleaming with military genius.

The most striking feature of Burns was his large dark eye. It was, we are told by one writer, "full of mind and literally glowed when he spoke with emotion or interest." Sir Walter Scott, who knew the poet when he lived in Edinburgh, says, "I never saw such another eye in a human head, and I have seen the most distinguished men of my time.—Temple Bar.

Chatterton's brilliant gray eyes were his most remarkable feature. Under strong excitement one appeared brighter and, as in the case of Byron, larger than the other. Catcott says "it was like a flame in his head, and that one could see his soul through it." Barrett "never saw such eyes, fire rolling at the bottom of them," and he confesses that he often purposely differed in opinion from Chatterton to see how wonderfully his eye would strike fire, kindle and blaze up.

Eyes, as we know, are apt to vary considerably in shades of color in the same individual from time to time—a fact that explains why Wordsworth's familiar description of Coleridge as a noticeable man with large gray eyes does not quite agree with Carlyle's impression that his eyes were of a light hazel, nor this again with the writer who found them "light gray, prominent, fond of liquid brilliancy, as though the orb itself retreated to the innermost recesses of the brain."

MERCHANTILE DEFINITIONS.

A promissory note—acceptance of an invitation.

Bookkeeping—forgetting to return borrowed knowmes.

Double entry—charging the same thing twice.

Single entry—charging a man with goods, but not crediting the cash he pays for them.

A ledger—a counting house companion. Many people often spend their entire fortunes.

CLEARING SALE

OF

PIANOS

We are Closing

out a number of of good second-hand pianos at extremely low prices, and on easy terms of payment. Now is the time to get a bargain.

7 Octave Square		$ 40
7¼ "	"	70
7⅓ "	Upright	150
7⅓ "	"	165
7⅓ "	Hallet & Davis	190
7⅓ "	"	210

ON PAYMENTS $3 to $8 MONTHLY.

Lot of good second-hand Organs at $20. $25 and upward, $4 per month.

A large assortme it of elegant new

Hallet & Davis

UPRIGHT PIANOS.

$300 and up, and 3 years' time if you want it. Other makes—Cabinet Grands, all improvements, $250—$ per month.

Free music and Catalogue for the asking.

THE W. F. TWAY PIANO CO.,

94 Fifth Avenue, New York.

JAS. M. DUNN,

Dealer in

GROCERIES, PROVISIONS, VEGETABLES, FRUITS &c

GARDEN SEEDS

fresh and carefully selected.

224 PARK AVENUE,

OPPOSITE NORTH AVENUE.

Everything usually found in a first-class grocery.

Goods delivered free of charge.

Woolston & Buckle, PAINTERS.

Wall Papers, Painters' Supplies

141-145 North avenue.

GEORGE W. DAY,

General Auctioneer.

Sales of Personal Property solicited P. O. Box 132, Dunellen, N J., or address in care of Constitutionalist. Terms reasonable.

W. R. CODINGTON,

Counsellor-at-Law

Commissioner of Deeds, Master-in-chancery, Notary Public. Offices Corne of Park avenue and Second street.

HUMPHREYS' VETERINARY SPECIFICS

500 PAGE BOOK MAILED FREE.

CONTENTS:

Part I.—Diseases of Horses.
Part II.—Diseases of Cattle.
Part III.—Diseases of Sheep.
Part IV.—Diseases of Hogs.
Part V.—Diseases of Dogs.
Part VI.—Diseases of Poultry.

Same book in better binding 50 cts. HUMPHREYS' MED. CO., Cor. William & John Sts., New York

Arrival and Departure of Mails

NEW YORK MAILS.

Arrive—7:30, 8:30, 11:30 a. m., 2:30, 5, 6:30 p. m. Close—7:30, 9:15 a. m., 12:30 and 3:00, 7:00, 9:30 p.m.

SOMERVILLE and EASTON.

Arrive—6:40 a. m., 2:30 and 6:15 p. m. Close—7:30 and 9:15 a. m., 12:30 and 3:00 p. m.

PHILADELPHIA—Direct.

Arrive—6:40 and 11:30 a. m., 1:00 and 2:30 p. m. Close—7:30 and 9:15 a. m., 3:00 p. m. Through fast mail for all points South, close 2:30 and 7:30 p. m.

WARRENVILLE.

Arrive—12:30 p. m. Close—9:30 a. m.

SUNDAY MAILS.

Office open from 9:30 to 10:30 a. m. Mail closes at 9:15 p. m.

E. H. BIRD, P. M

Central R. R. of New Jersey

Nationally Cool Used Exclusively, Insuring Cleanliness and Comfort.

Notice to New York, East of Liberty, and South Ferry Watchcall Stations.

TIME TABLE IN EFFECT NOV. 20th, 1898.

PLAINFIELD AND NEW YORK.

Leave Plainfield 5:45, 6:07, 6:38, 7:05, 7:44, 8:05, 8:37, 9:05, 9:37, 10:05, 10:37, 11:05, 11:37 a. m., 12:05, 12:37, 1:05, 1:37, 2:05, 2:37, 3:05, 3:37, 4:05, 4:37, 5:05, 5:37, 6:05, 6:37, 7:05, 7:37, 8:05, 8:37, 9:05, 9:37, 10:05, 10:37, 11:05, 11:37 p

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Makes the food more delicious and wholesome

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

DESERVING POOR TO WORK IN SOAP FACTORY

Organized Aid Association to Establish an Industry.

SCHEME LOOKS PRACTICAL.

IT IS IN SUCCESSFUL OPERATION IN ORANGE.

The Association Also Plans to Secure and Fit Up Small Houses for the Use of Poor People at Moderate Rent—Latter Plan Cannot Be Carried Out Without Considerable Expense.

The quarterly meeting of the Organized Aid Association was held in the chapel of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church Monday night. A few reports were read and some suggestions made, after which the time was taken up by H. P. Reynolds and W. I. Nicholl, the latter from Brooklyn. Mr Reynolds read a report of the Conference of Charities, which he attended in New York last May, and Mr. Nicholl, who is secretary of the Bureau of Charities, of Brooklyn, told something about his work there.

Col. Mason W. Tyler presided at the meeting. The first report read, that of the treasurer, showed that the association had a balance in the treasury of $99 86. The receipts were $284.66, and the expenditures $184.80.

The executive committee had two unique plans to propose, which they intend to put into operation as soon as possible. One is the establishment of small industries by which the deserving poor can be helped until some thing substantial in the way of employment can be found for them; and the other is to fit up, clean, neat homes, which can be let at a small rent to those needing assistance, until they have been put on their feet again. But to do this capital is needed, so it is not likely that this second plan can be carried out just yet.

The industry which is under consideration is the establishment of a soap factory. The scheme looks practical, they say, and point out one in Orange, that is self-supporting. No capital is required to start it, neither does it require skilled labor. A superintendent of experience is needed, however, and when the association is ready the superintendent from Orange has promised to come over and teach them for a small sum a day. The sewing room and the woodyard, the employment committee reported, are working well.

Rev. Mr. Nickerson reported for the district committee that he was surprised to learn that many of their applicants are people who have never had to ask for help before, and said that people who heretofore were comfortably situated, had met with reverse and were compelled to ask the Organized Aid to be their friends. He said that the number of applicants is decreasing from year to year.

Mr Nicholl, who made the address of the evening, spoke on the "Value of Organized Charity to the Benevolent and Those Needing Assistance." Mr. Nicholl has been in charitable work for many years and hence his remarks were listened to with attention and profit. He spoke of the harm done by good hearted people who give indiscriminating to every beggar who knocks at their back door, and pointed out how much more good they would do themselves as well as the applicant for alms if they would devote that money to the Organized Aid, and let the poor be helped through the regular channels. He described some of the ways in which the poor are helped in Brooklyn, where they have a wood yard and a laundry in which the man or woman receives a small sum of money for their day's work, and at the same time are helped to something permanent.

Miss Schroeder, a niece of Mrs. Mason W. Tyler, entertained the audience with two vocal solos during the evening. She was accompanied on the piano by Miss Dumont.

See Speer's Chateau wine cellars of New Jersey vineyards. Read all about it and about the unfermented Grape Juice.

Port Grape Wine for the Sick.

"We can confidently recommend Speer's Port Grape Wine, a superior article of wine for the sick and debilitated."—Medical Review.

No Brandy is better than Speer's "Climax" of 1878.

May Be Chief Marshal.

One of the latest possibilities mentioned for chief marshal of the borough is Wm. McLaughlin, of Somerset street.

ZEPHYRS TO DISBAND

ANOTHER COMPANY OF VOLUNTEERS TO BECOME NON EST.

Hook and Ladder Boys Took Decisive Action Monday Night—Plans to be Divulged Among Those in Good Standing.

The example set by the other volunteer fire companies in this city has now been followed by the Zephyr Hook and Ladder Company. At a meeting of the company held Monday it was decided to disband that organization in a month without waiting for action on the part of the Common Council.

For some months the Zephyr Company, together with the other organizations of the local volunteer fire department, has been waiting for the re-organization of the department. The term of service of all the members has expired, and they are all entitled to exemption. Some of the members were for disbanding at once, but the more conservative persuaded them to wait and give the Council a chance to make the necessary changes in the department.

Last night a meeting of the Zephyr Company was held and was attended by over twenty of the members. The attendance was the largest at a meeting for a long time. The meeting was a lively one. A majority of the members expressed themselves as being in favor of a disbandment. It was accordingly decided to disband the company in a month and divide the funds in the treasury among the members in good standing.

Resolutions of Condolence.

At the regular meeting of Div. No. 4, A. O. H., held March 9th, 1899, the following resolutions were presented by the committee and were unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, It has pleased Almighty God to take from our midst our beloved friend and brother, Walter Barry, and

WHEREAS, In the death of Walter Barry Div. No. 4, A.O. H., has lost one of its most active members, be it

Resolved, That we, the members of Div. No. 4, A.O.H., while bowing to the Divine will express our deep sorrow at his death in the prime of manhood, and be it further

Resolved, That we tender to his beloved wife our heartfelt sympathy in her sad bereavement, and that a copy of these resolutions be presented to her, that a copy be sent to the Plainfield Daily Press and Courier-News for publication, and that they be spread in full on the minutes of our society.

Signed,

John J. Gallagher,
James McCarthy,
Committee.

New Editor for Jersey Page.

George W. Murray is now editor of the New Jersey page of the New York World, succeeding Joseph B. Byrne, who has been in charge of the page for several years. Mr. Murray has been connected with the World staff for several years and is a thoroughly newspaperman. Under his enterprising supervision the Jersey page is interesting and up-to-date in all respects, and will aid materially in maintaining the popularity of the World in this State.

Trust those who have tried.

I suffered from catarrh of the worst kind and never hoped for cure, but Ely's Cream Balm seems to do even that.—Oscar Ostrom, 45 Warren Ave., Chicago, Ill.

I suffered from catarrh; it got so bad I could not work; I used Ely's Cream Balm and am entirely well.—A. C. Clarke, 311 Shawmut avenue, Boston, Mass.

A 50c. trail size or the 50c. size of Ely's Cream Balm will be mailed. Kept by druggists. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren street, N. Y.

Judgment Secured by Servant Girl.

Mary Leary, a servant formerly in the employ of Adrain Pickhardt, of the borough, secured a judgment against her old employer in Justice Mattison's court Monday for $135 and costs. Ninety-nine of the amount was borrowed money while the balance was for back wages. Pickhardt says he will appeal.

Express or Sickness Fatal.

James Walker, of West Fourth street, who has been critically ill, is no better at present. The entire expense of his illness is being paid by the members of Stone Square Lodge, No. 38, F. and A. M.

In Politics Now.

William Dyos, who fifteen years ago lived in this city and had charge of James T. Closson's green houses, is nominated for Mayor in Cold Springs, Putnam county, N. Y., where he now resides.

GRAIN-O BRINGS RELIEF

to the coffee drinker. Coffee drinking is a bad habit—nine-tenths indulge in and suffer more or less daily headaches. Have you tried Grain-O? It is almost like coffee but its effects are just the opposite. Coffee upsets the nerves, Grain-O is a nerve food and strengthens them. Coffee unsettles the heart and disturbs the whole nervous system. Grain-O aids the stomach, all digestion and strengthens the nerves. Coffee is stimulating but it is injurious. Grain-O is not, otherwise. 15 and 25c. per package.

THE CITY WILL FIGHT DISTRICT COURT BILL.

Council Authorizes Corporation Counsel to Approve It.

NOW IN THE LEGISLATURE.

MR. BARROWS SAY THE MEASURE IS TYPICAL OF ELIZABETH.

C. W. Meeker Secures the Contract for Making Repairs and Improvements to the Sewer System—Y. M. C. A. Wants Lower Tax Valuation—Street Committee Furnishes Plenty of Business for Council.

The Common Council passed a resolution Monday which instructs Corporation Counsel Marsh to appear before the proper Legislative committee and oppose the enactment of what is known as the Squire Bill, which provides that Union county shall pay the expenses of the District Court at Elizabeth, which is now maintained by Elizabeth. Mr Barrows stated that if the bill becomes a law it means that Plainfield will have to pay $800 for which she will receive practically nothing. He said further that it is another case of where Elizabeth wants everything and wants Plainfield to help them. In his opinion he thought this was the biggest steal yet perpetrated, and he thought the matter should be defeated. Every member concurred with him and the resolution was adopted unanimously.

The first matter considered before the regular order of business was taken up was the bids offered for making repairs and improvements to the sewer system, as advertised previously. Four bids were received as follows: C. W. Meeker, Patsy Christmas, of Plainfield; A. Coster, of Orange; A. B. Hamlin, of East Orange. All bids were in proper form and the necessary certified check accompanied them. Mr. Meeker's bid was the lowest and by resolution of the Council he received the work. His bid in round figures for the principal part of the work was $2,879, while the next lowest bidder was Patsy Christmas, whose figures were $2,936. The bids of the other two men were very much higher.

In a communication President S. A. Caboone, of the Y. M. C. A., petitioned the Council to place a true valuation on the association property, claiming that the present valuation of $18,500 is too high. The matter was referred to the committee on assessment and collection of taxes.

George W. Tobin petitioned the Council to refund $16 94, being the amount of tax paid twice on the property located at 701 713 West Sixth street. The request was granted.

At this time Mr. Barrows presented a batch of business for the consideration of the Council. The first matter called for the adoption of the plans and specifications drawn for the proposed repairs and improvement of the sewer system.

The next resolution provided for a two weeks' notice in the local papers, that the Council would receive bids for constructing the proposed Park avenue storm sewer Monday evening, April 3d. This was followed with another resolution introducing a corporation notice which includes the plans and specifications for constructing the Park avenue sewer.

Another resolution by Mr. Barrows provided for an advertisement to be inserted in The Engineering News, New York, to the effect that the bids for the above work will be received April 3d.

An important matter, introduced by Mr. Barrows was an ordinance providing for the laying and maintenance of sidewalks in the city. The ordinance is drafted to comply with a recent enactment by the Legislature on the subject. It provides for a certain kind of stone with specified measurements. It also provides for the proper notice to the property owners, and gives the Council authority to lay walks and effect a lien on property. The ordinance also extends the sidewalk district to some extent and makes it obligatory that all walks be laid in the same way, according to grade furnished by Street Commissioner Gavett.

Following the introduction of the above ordinance, Mr. Barrows presented a corporation notice providing for a public hearing of the ordinance Monday evening, April 3d.

Mr. Barrows offered still another resolution to the effect that where the Council is obliged to lay walks that the money in that purpose be taken from the appropriation for street work. This action was taken to obviate trouble heretofore in doing such work.

This concluded the business of the evening and the Council went into secret session to consider appropriations and plans for the reorganization of the fire department.

An Approaching Marriage.

The marriage of Miss Mary E. Moulton, daughter of Mrs. Margaret M. Moulton, of West Fourth street, to Francis B. Carpenter, of North Branch, is announced to take place at the bride Wednesday afternoon, March 22d.

SCHOOL TEACHERS PLAY BASKET BALL.

They Have Organized a Team in Plainfield.

THE FIRST PRACTICE HELD.

MET AT GYMNASIUM IN WHITTIER BUILDING MONDAY NIGHT.

Miss Bessie Fitz Randolph, of the High School Team, Will Coach the Beginners — Elizabeth Schoolma'ams Have a Team, Too—Practice to Be Held Regularly—Those Who Organized Team.

Seven of the young women who are employed in this city as instructors in the public schools organized a basket ball team Monday evening. With the assistance of three other young women they played their first game last evening under the coaching of Miss Bessie Fitz Randolph, of the High School team.

The school teachers of Elizabeth have a basket ball team as have most of the teachers' colleges and normal schools. Among the most enthusiastic spectators of basket ball at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium have been some of the young women who have not decided to take up the game for themselves.

The movement was started sometime ago by Miss Mary Griswold and Miss Harriet Fillmer, both teachers at the Irving School. They interested others in the project, and it was finally decided to start at once if permission could be obtained to use the gymnasium on the second floor of the Whittier building where the High School girls play. Superintendent Maxson granted the necessary permission and the first practice was called for last evening.

Some of the young women, who were interested in the game, knew it only as they had seen it from the visitors' gallery at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. So Miss Randolph, who is one of the best and most experienced players on the girls' High School team, will coach the novices in the game.

The first practice was held last evening at the Whittier building under the direction of Miss Randolph. Beside the seven teachers, there were three other young women to fill out the number so that there might be two teams. The practice was very satisfactory and will be continued regularly up to the close of the playing season.

How's This?

We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.

F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O.

We, the undersigned, have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years, and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions, and financially able to carry out any obligation made by their firm.

WEST & TRUAX, Wholesale Druggist, Toledo, O.
WALDING, KINNAN & MARVIN, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, O.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Price 75c. per bottle. Sold by all Druggists. Testimonials free.

Hall's family Pills are the best.

To Loan $8,700.

At the regular meeting of the Union Building and Loan Association last Monday arrangements were made for the loaning of $8,700. There is not one penny in the treasury now that is idle, and all the money is out making more money for the members. At the next meeting a large number of shares will be subscribed for. This association is starting off under most favorable auspices and there are good prospects for plenty of business.

Ready for Business.

George W. Wrennick, a member of the Bard Company, which has passed out of existence, has opened the store on North avenue and is ready to do business again. Mr. Wrennick will handle a full line of photographic and phonographic goods, new supplies of which are received every day. He will also handle bicycles a little later. This new concern has nothing to do with the old Bard Company.

Chance for Sunday-school Workers.

The International Sunday-school Convention will be held this year at Atlanta, Ga., and a special train will leave New York over the Jersey Central Monday, April 24th, at 8:30 p. m., and the return trip will be made May 2d. The expense for the complete round trip will be $38. The trip affords a great many advantages.

Initiated Ten Candidates.

Washington Camp, No. 30 P. O. S. of A., met Monday and initiated ten candidates, and received five propositions for membership. Visitors were present from Bound Brook, Somerville and South Plainfield. After the business was transacted a banquet was spread to which all did ample justice.

THE ELECTION RETURNS

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1.

contest over the membership did not amount to much, and the candidate on the Citizens' ticket, William Morris, won easily. The rest of the Citizens' ticket met with no opposition and was elected, including William Damler, Township Clerk, and Benjamin Clark, member of Township Committee.

The Public Library.

The following books have been added to the Public Library during February, 1899:

Adams, Anglo-American relations and southern history.
Association for improvement of geometrical teaching. Plane geometry.
Boulger, Some familiar trees.
Brown, Chemical sanitation.
Butterfield, Gas manufacture.
Chicago, Educational commission. Report 1898.
Darwin, Traite de physique. 4 v.
Dawson, Geology of Nova Scotia, etc.
Dyer, West Indies.
Fourier, Heat.
Grant, Physical astronomy.
Heatner, Mathematical instruments. 3 v.
Herman, Louisiana purchase, etc.
Hutton, Scientific romances.
Landolf & Bornstein, Physikalisch-chemische tabellen.
Lodge, Signalling.
Library journal, general index, vols. 1-22.
Lodge, Elementary mechanics.
Maguire, Royal favorites. 2 v.
Merrifield, Technical arithmetic and numeration.
Mayer, Chemistry.
Proctor, The sun.
Ralmer, Rubber.
Richardson, Messages and papers of the Presidents. v. 4.
South, Astronomical statics. 2 v.
Smith, Analytical geometry.
Shufeldt, Natural history of the United States.
Samson-hein & Nesbitt, Arithmetic.
Schmaetz, Alternating current phenomena.
Studer, Birds of North America.
Thompson, Wild animals I have known.
Thomson, Outdoor life.
Thompson, Michael Faraday.
U. S. Agricultural department, annual report, 1898.
U. S American rep. bureau, Alaska.
" " Commercial directory of American republics, v. 2.
U. S. American rep. bureau, Foreign commerce of American republics and colonies.
U. S. American rep. bureau, Hawaii.
" " How Latin-America markets and manufactures of the United States.
U. S. American rep. bureau, Guatemala.
" Education bureau. Report of 1896-97, part 2.
U. S. geological survey. Seventeenth annual report.
U. S. military information bureau. Military notes on Cuba.
" Red book military information bureau. Military notes on Philippine Islands.
United States military information bureau. Organized militia of the U. S.
United States military information bureau. Selected professional papers.
United States military information bureau. Sources of information on military professional subjects.
National museum, proceedings, v. 20.
Urquhart, Electric light fitting.
Wilcocks, Fossil medusae.
World Fair, Almanac, 1899.
Worthington, Dynamics of rotation.
Zahm, Sound and music.

Results.

The election here today was all in favor of the regular primary ticket. There were, however, three tickets in the field, one naming Wm. C. Hope for collector and one naming John Gregory for township committeeman. The regular ticket won as follows: Total vote cast, 304; Mayor, Wm. T. West, 299; Councilmen, John N. Meeker, 299; George H. Warner, 166; collector, C. B Trimmer, 253; commissioner of appeals, Henry Krouse, 284

Warren Township.

The Democrats had everything their own way in Warren township. There was no opposition ticket and all their candidates were elected. The vote was light. The ticket is as follows: Township clerk, Henry F. Way; committee, Jas. Ralph; township committee, Thomas C. Bird; commissioner of appeal, Phesenden Stites; surveyors of highways, Peter Dougherty, William Miller; pound keepers, Antone Ammon, Jacob Koechleine, John Burnett.

Pastor Was Surprised.

Rev. H. Eyme, pastor of the German Lutheran church, was given a pleasant surprise last evening at his home by his congregation. A general good time was indulged in and the pastor was substantially remembered. During the evening Miss Eyme entertained the guests with music, and appropriate remarks were made by Pastor Eyme.

A LOCAL DISEASE

A Climatic Affection

Nothing but a local remedy or change of climate will cure it. Get a well-known specific

Ely's Cream Balm

It is quickly Absorbed. Gives Relief at once. Opens and cleanses the Nasal Passages. Allays Inflammation. Heals and Protects the Membrane. Restores the Senses of Taste and Smell. No Cocaine. No Mercury. Not Drying. Full size 50c. Trial Size 10c. at Druggists or by mail. ELY BROTHERS 56 Warren Street, New York

SEEDS ... FOR THE ... Garden and Farm

Vegetable and Flower Seeds. All the newest and best. Send for Catalogue. Free. Mailed to any address. No Monopoly. Nothing Secret. Everything Fully Described. Prices Reasonable. Quality Unsurpassed. Orders Promptly Filled.

WEEBER & DON, Seed Growers, 114 Chambers St., New York City.

Dr. Humphreys'

Specifics act directly upon the disease, without exciting disorder in other parts of the system. They Cure the Sick.

No.	CURES.	PRICES.
1	Fevers, Congestions, Inflammations	.25
2	Worms, Worm Fever, Worm Colic	.25
3	Cholera Infantum, Colic, Crying, Wakefulness	.25
4	Diarrhea, of Children or Adults	.25
5	Dysentery, Griping, Bilious Colic	.25
6	Cholera, Cramps, Vomiting	.25
7	Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis	.25
8	Neuralgia, Toothache, Faceache	.25
9	Headache, Sick Headache, Vertigo	.25
10	Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Weak Stomach	.25
11	Suppressed or Painful Periods	.25
12	Whites, Too Profuse Periods	.25
13	Croup, Laryngitis, Hoarseness	.25
14	Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Eruptions	.25
15	Rheumatism, Rheumatic Pains	.25
16	Malaria, Chills, Fever and Ague	.25
17	Piles, External or Internal	.25
18	Ophthalmia, Sore or Weak Eyes	.25
19	Catarrh, Influenza, Cold in the Head	.25
20	Whooping-Cough	.25
21	Asthma, Difficult Breathing	.25
22	Ear Discharges, Earache	.25
23	Scrofula, Scrofulous and Chronic	.25
24	General Debility, Weakness	.25
25	Dropsy, Fluid Accumulations	.25
26	Sea-Sickness, Nausea, Vomiting	.25
27	Kidney Disease	.25
28	Nervous Debility	1.00
29	Sore Mouth, or Canker	.25
30	Urinary Weakness, Wetting Bed	.25
31	Painful Menses, Spasmodic Pains	.25
32	Sickness of the Heart, Palpitations	1.00
33	Epilepsy, St. Vitus' Dance	1.00
34	Chill Tonic, Relaxy, Diphtheria	.25
35	Chronic Congestions, Headaches	.25
77	Grip, Hay Fever	.25

Dr. Humphreys' Manual of all Diseases at your Druggists or Mailed Free.

Humphreys' Med. Co., Cor. William & John Sts., New York.

HUMPHREYS' WITCH-HAZEL OIL

"THE PILE OINTMENT."

For Piles—External or Internal, Blind or Bleeding Itching Piles, Sore Nipples, Sore Eyes, Sore Feet. The relief is immediate—the cure certain.

PRICE, 50 CTS. TRIAL SIZE, 25 CTS.

Sold by Druggists, or sent free on receipt of price. HUMPHREYS' MED. CO., 111 & 113 William St., New York.

VICK SEEDS

Bulbs and Plants have gone to thousands of satisfied customers. Our Catalogue will help you celebrate the 50th year in business we have issued a Special Golden Wedding Edition of which is a work of art. It has 64 pages lithographed in colors, 500 engravings, and tells the truth about both hundreds of beautiful illustrations of Flowers, Vegetables, Plants, Trees, Vines, Bulbs, Roses, Small Fruits, etc. It is a safe guide to success. It is a work of reference. It is a Catalogue making no pretense, yet of all subjects pertaining to the garden, worth while for the price you pay for it. It is a book of information as desirable. It is too expensive to give away unless you pay for it, but we do offer something very much like it and good as to have a copy, that is we will send the Guide with a DUE BILL for 25 cents in payment of flower and vegetable seeds to be ordered next season. It tells how credit is given for full amount of purchases to buy other seeds or plants.

Vick's Garden and Floral Guide

Vick's Little Gem Catalogue

A perfect little gem of a price list. It is simply the Guide condensed, finely illustrated, FREE and in handy form. Vick's Garden and Floral Guide, for 25 cents.

Vicks Monthly Magazine,

enlarged, improved, and up to date on all subjects relating to Gardening, Horticulture, etc. Regular price 50 cents a year.

Special Trial Offer: The Magazine and Vick's Garden and Floral Guide, for 25 cents.

OUR NEW PLAN of selling Vegetable Seeds gives you more for your money than any other seed house in America.

JAMES VICKS SONS,

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

In Chancery of New Jersey.

Between SARAH E. ROBINSON, Petitioner, —and— EMERY H. ROBINSON, Defendant.

On Petition for Divorce.

To Emery H. Robinson, Defendant.

By virtue of an order of the Court of Chancery of New Jersey made on the 20th day of March, A. D. 1899, on the petition of Sarah E. Robinson is petitioner and you are defendant, you are required to appear and answer the petitioner's petition on or before the 30th day of April next, or the said petition will be taken pro confesso, and the Chancellor shall think equitable and just the petition is filed against you for a divorce from the bond of matrimony.

Dated the 20th day of February, Eighteen Hundred and Ninety-Nine.

BRIEF, CODDINGTON, Solicitors of Petitioner, Baldwin Block Building, Plainfield, N. J.

3t6

Children cutting Teething

Mrs. Winslow's has been used for over Fifty Years by Millions of Mothers for their Children while Teething, with Perfect Success. It Soothes the Child, Softens the Gums, Allays all Pain, Cures Wind Colic, and is the best remedy for Diarrhœa.

It digestion is over part of the world. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

Soothing Syrup

WANTS AND OFFERS

A GOOD FARM to rent, with milk route; small house and stock and implements if desired; terms moderate; first-class references required. For particulars address "Farm," care Constitutionalist.

DIED.

BERRY—In this city, at his late residence, 321 South Second street, March 8th, 1899, Walter Berry, in his 68th year.

DRISCOLL—In this city, at her late residence, 321 South Second street, March 8th, 1899, Mary Driscoll, in her 31st year.

RUNTON—At Dunellen, N. J., on Tuesday, March 7th, Sir Randolph Runyon, aged 74 years, 11 months.

CARNEY BROS.,

MADISON AVENUE,

Between Front and Second streets,

Tinners, Plumbers Gas Fitters,

Grates and bricks for all kinds of stoves can be found here at Jobbers' prices. Bring your tinware mending to us. The best tinners, the best plumbers, and the best gas-fitters in this section. We use none but the very best of materials, and our work always gives satisfaction. Keys of all kinds are made here. Tinware made to order. Ranges, brick and portable furnaces. Sanitary Plumbing.

Sanitary Plumbing,

Brick and Portable Furnace

Gas Fitting, Tin Roofing,

Etc., Etc., Etc.

I am prepared to do any of the above branches in strictly first-class sanitary and workmanship manner.

Having associated myself with the Master Members Association of New York City, I employ none but first class mechanics and non-union men. I believe in every man running his own business, at all times and in all cases.

D. W. LITTELL,

No. 119 North Ave., Plainfield, N. J.

ALBERT HEDDEN

Livery & Boarding Stables

FOURTH ST.,

between Watchung and Park avenues. First-class Livery. Horses boarded by week or month. Telephone call, No. 114.

A. WOLFF,

Manufacturer of

CIGARS.

And dealer in all kinds of Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and smokers' articles, has removed from 23½ W. Front street, to 261 West Front street, one door east of Madison avenue and solicits the patronage of his friends and the public generally.

P. P. VanArsdale,

PIANO TUNER.

Instruments put in thorough order. Terms reasonable. Pianos and organs for sale and to let. Orders left at Willett's shop store, No. 107 Park avenue, will receive prompt attention. Residence 301 N. Front street, corner Elm street. 9jy3

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS DESIGNS COPYRIGHTS &C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York

Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

NEW IN EVERY DETAIL!

My new barber shop at

143 NORTH AVE.

is now open ready for business. All the latest appointments in the tonsorial line.

EDWIN B. MAYNARD.

PATENTS

CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS COPYRIGHTS.

In business for over fifty years. Anyone desiring to obtain a patent should write to us for our opinion as to the probability of obtaining it. Our fee is not due until patent is secured. Letters strictly confidential. Address, simply, MUNN & CO., Opposite U. S. Patent Office, Washington, D. C. Send for our book, "How to obtain Patents," containing list of hundreds of mechanical movements wanted by inventors, and how to secure them. Also a catalogue of scientific books sent free. Also a catalogue of mechanical movements sent free. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice in the Scientific American, and thus are brought widely before the public without cost to the inventor. This splendid paper, elegantly illustrated, has a large circulation, and is read by more scientific men and engineers than any other paper in the world. $3 a year. Sample copies sent free. Building Edition, monthly, $2.50 a year. Single copies, 25 cents. Every number contains beautiful plates, in colors, and photographs of new houses, with plans, enabling builders to show the latest designs and secure contracts. Address MUNN & CO., NEW YORK, 361 BROADWAY.

Wm. A. Woodruff,

Fire and Life

INSURANCE AGENT,

OFFICE,

corner Front St. and Park Avenue,

Plainfield, N. J.

Real Estate for Sale and Exchange Money to Loan on Approve Security

JEALOUSY AMONGST THE LOCAL JEHUS.

Many Trials in City Court are the Results.

HARD TO CONVICT ANYONE.

HACKMEN ARE THE USUAL COMPLAINTANTS AGAINST EACH OTHER.

Circumstances of the Latest Trouble Between Keely and Barry—Barry Claims Keeley Took Away a Passenger Intended for Barry's Hack—Keely's Defence—Barry Did Not Appear for Trial.

There is a never ceasing jealousy among the hackmen who congregate about the North Avenue station that occasionally breaks forth into open warfare. The records of the police court show cases innumerable in which one hackman after another has been haled before the City Judge, usually on complaint of one of his own fraternity, to answer the charge of violating the hack ordinance of the city.

Saturday saw John Keely, one of the hackmen arraigned before City Judge Runyon, and but for the non-appearance of the complaintant, Charles Barry, a hackman, there would have been a repetition of former trials.

John Keely and his father, Patrick Keely, conduct a hack and livery business. They have a number of hacks and do a big business. As much of their trade is among their regular customers, young Keeley remains at the station most of time, calling up the hacks for the regular customers and looking generally after their welfare. Many of the other hackmen don't like it.

Now it is one of the provisions of the city hack ordinance that there shall be no soliciting of trade within a certain distance of the entrance to the station. Of course, Keely is way inside of that, but he claims he does not solicit trade there but merely looks after his regular customers. Some of his rivals dispute that statement.

The incident that led to Barry's complaint against Keely occurred a few days ago. The wife of a well-known Plainfielder came down the steps. Barry says that she called to him and that when he started to drive up Keely bundled her off into one of the latter's hacks.

Keely claims that the Plainfielder in question was one of his regular customers and had a receipted bill, just about to be sent, and a letter from the man to that effect, as proof. Owing to Barry's non-appearance the case case did not come to trial, however.

The police have considerable trouble in securing reliable evidence against any offenders, owing to the jealousy that exists, and is inclined to bias much of the testimony. There have been many of these "hackmen" trials, and there promises to be many more until something is done to stop the trouble.

CRUEL PARENTS.

Deserted a Two Weeks' Old Child at the Approach of Winter.

Chief Grant went to Middleton Saturday and arrested Willard Bassie, colored, who is wanted for deserting a two weeks' old child last fall. Bassie's employer gave bonds for the man's appearance in the city court March 20th.

Bassie and his wife lived on Cottage place at the time the baby was born, in the house with Mrs. Coleman. One night Bassie disappeared, and was not seen again, and a few days afterwards the woman followed his example. The baby boy was left with Mrs. Coleman who has been taking care of it ever since.

A few days ago Chief Grant got track of Bassie, and a warrant was sworn out for his arrest. If convicted of deserting the child he will have to furnish bonds to pay so much a week or month for the little one's support.

NOT A DRY ADDRESS.

Bright, Interesting Sermon Delivered on Domestic Missions.

Rev. Dr. Poole, of Somerville, secretary of the Domestic Board of Missions, Reformed church of America, delivered a stirring address to a large congregation in Trinity Reformed church Sunday morning, by invitation of the pastor, Dr. Schenck, with a view of stimulating interest in the cause. Dr. Poole has many warm friends in Plainfield and his address was greatly enjoyed by all, because of the fact that it was not a dry talk on missions, as is often the case with speakers, but on the contrary was full of earnest convincing arguments for more interest and larger gifts for the cause of domestic missions.

In the Postal Service.

William Shannon, of this city, formerly an employe of Woolston & Buckle, who so successfully passed an examination of the U. S. Railway Postal Service, has been stationed at St. George, S. I., for the present. He has a very responsible position and is giving satisfaction.

SWUNG CLUBS FOR PRIZE

CONTEST HELD AT THE Y. M. C. A. GYMNASIUM SATURDAY NIGHT.

There Were Only Three Who Took Part in the Contest—Edgar Sheppard Was Winner With 36 Points Out of 50.

There were only three contestants who showed up for the open Indian club swinging contest in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium Saturday evening. While most of the athletic members can swing the clubs after a fashion, there are only very few who have made any study of the moves with the clubs. Edgar Sheppard carried off the honors in the contest, showing the most originality in the moves and the best general skill in handling the clubs.

The visitors' gallery was filled with those who had come to witness the contest. They only found entertainment for half an hour as the contest was very short. It opened with a drill in which the three contestants and the other members of the evening class went through the regular class drill with the clubs.

Those who entered the contest were Edgar Sheppard, Eric Moraller and Herbert Brokaw. After the drill in which they all did equally well, they took turns in going through a combination of moves for periods of a minute each. There were two rounds. Sheppard had many original moves and made a good showing. The others, while they handled the clubs well, used the class moves to a large extent.

There was a possible 30 points to score. Sheppard was given first place, scoring 26, Moraller second with 23, and Brokaw third with 22 points. Physical Director O. E. A. Heywood acted as judge. The winner will receive a pair of fancy Indian clubs which will be presented at the end of the season.

THE AMUSEMENT WORLD

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of the Histrionic World.

If the public want to see a novelty, and everything points to the fact that they do, then they will soon have their wish gratified for "A Ragtime Reception," a rollicking, jingling farce comedy will soon be seen. It will have its first presentation at Music Hall Thursday night.

* * * * *

Tonight Chauncey Olcott enters on the last two weeks of his engagement at the Fourteenth Street Theatre, New York, where he has made a success in "A Romance of Athlone." He could continue until the warm weather had not Mr. Pitou made contracts a year ago calling for his appearance in other cities in the months of April and May.

* * *

Prosperity of no uncertain measure attends upon the famous Proctor theatres in New York city—namely the Twenty-third Street theatre which is so handy to all suburban visitors to the metropolis because of its central location just west of Sixth avenue, and the vast Pleasure Palace at Fifty-eighth street and Third avenue. The chief reason of Mr. Proctor's success is the constant excellence of the continuous programmes. Always a star of wide celebrity heads the bills at each theatre. At the Pleasure Palace this week Marie Dressler, the famous comedienne of comic opera fame, and Walter Jones, the star of all the Casino productions, will appear in a special sketch for the vaudevilles. In addition, there will be a score of other acts of great variety. Attention is specially directed to the special offering of the best seats at the Pleasure Palace in the afternoons to the ladies and children for only 25 cents. This is just one half the evening price. At Mr. Proctor's Twenty-third Street theatre, beginning today, Mindie Palmer, of "My Sweetheart" fame, who made a triumphant debut in vaudeville at the Pleasure Palace March 6th, will present her new comedietta, "Rose Pompon," assisted by her own company.

DENOUNCED CAKEWALKS.

A White Minister Preaches to a Colored Audience.

Sunday morning at the Mt. Olive Baptist church the pastor, Rev. E. E. Jackson, preached a strong sermon from the text "No Rest Here for the Redeemed," after which two persons came forward and united with the church. There have been additions at this church every Sunday since the pastor commenced his special sermons. Last evening at 7:30 o'clock Rev. B. W. Hand preached an able sermon in which he denounced cakewalks and public balls and said that these are not the places to find Christians.

Hacker In Court.

John Keely, hackman and liveryman, came up before City Judge Runyon last Saturday on complaint of Charles Barry, charged with soliciting customers in the forbidden ground at the North avenue station. Barry did not appear against Keely and so the Judge dismissed the complaint.

POEMS BROUGHT LOVE.

ROBERT BROWNING FOUND HIS WIFE BY LITERARY WORK.

An Interesting Sketch of These Famous Literary People Related by Leon Vincent to a Plainfield Audience.

Leon H. Vincent gave his second lecture in the series in Vincent chapel Friday afternoon, and discussed "Robert and Elizabeth Barrett Browning." These two characters, occupying such lofty positions in the world of poetic thought, are often said to be among the most tedious of the people even to read intelligently, let alone study, but Mr. Vincent brought them and their personalities so strongly and simply before his hearers that they were enabled to understand the poet husband and wife, and something about their sims life.

Mr. Vincent read his lecture yesterday afternoon, but handling his subject in his easy, delightful way that detracted nothing from its interest. Browning came from an old Dorcetshire family and was born in 1812. His father was a clerk in the Bank of England, but a man of some literary attainments and profound knowledge, especially of Greek and Latin. Surrounded by culture and a desire for learning young Robert naturally turned his attentions to what was good and pure in life, and at an early age was writing poetry. His first poem, "Pauline," was published by Mr. Fox and it was not a success financially. He found friends on this side of the ocean before being recognized by his own countrymen, as was the case with Thomas Carlyle. Mr. Vincent classed him with Chaucer and Shakespeare.

Although not a romantic age, there was considerable of romance in Robert Browning's courtship and marriage to Elizabeth Barrett. She, too, was a writer of poetry, and it was through some verses of hers that Browning came to know her. She was an invalid, but a love sprang up between them which never died, and culminated finally in their secret marriage September 12th, 1846. At this time Miss Barrett was over 40, while Browning was but 34. Her father's opposition to his daughter marrying any one, was the only reason for their unconventional marriage

With her union with Browning a new life seems to have been born into Mrs. Browning, and she began to allow the bright thoughts in her heart to escape through the medium of poetry.

In closing Mr. Vincent delivered a short criticism upon the work of Browning, and suggested three reasons why he is a great poet. Browning must be read with care, he said, to enable the reader to come to a full understanding of what he writes. He has a style peculiarly his own, which is sometimes hard to comprehend.

LIBRARY ADVANTAGES.

Twelve Hundred Valuable Volumes for School Work.

The following notice has been sent to all the schools in the city:

"The Public Library has recently, by means of the Babcock endowment, built up its departments of mathematics, astrogomy, physics, including electricity and electrical engineering, chemistry, geology, botany, natural history and photography, in all a library of about 1,200 volumes. The selections for the above have been made by men who, many of them by revise. Whelpey attempted to bolt but Johnson drew the revolver and Whelpey remained. Both were arrested for disorderly conduct.

Judge Runyon decided that while Johnson was in the wrong to carry a revolver and threaten anybody with it, the circumstances were more extenuating than they might have been. So he suspended sentence. The police are looking for Whepley.

COLORED TROOPS RETURN.

Praise Capt. Jenkinson, and do Not Regret Serving Their Country.

Capt. Henry L. Jenkinson and his entire company of colored troops, which he recruited in Newark, Elizabeth, Plainfield and Paterson in June, and which was mustered into the service of the United States as Company A, Eighth Volunteer Immunes, is returned to Newark Thursday, after eight months' service. The Eighth Immunes, were mustered out recently at Chickamauga.

The soldiers looked and felt well. They were enthusiastic in praise for the service they had given their country.

Entertained Her Friends.

Miss May Conroy, of Linden avenue, entertained a number of friends at her home last Friday. An evening of song, instrumental music and games was enjoyed by all and at a late hour a bountiful supper was served by the hostess, after which the guests departed leaving their best wishes.

Soloist to Reside Here.

Mr. and Mrs. Ward, of Elizabeth, have leased the house on Fairview avenue, formerly occupied and owned by the late E. E. Marshall, and they will take possession April 1st. Mrs. Ward is the contralto soloist at the First Baptist church.

ROSELLE HAS WON JOURNAL TROPHY.

The Parks Finished Second in Bowling League.

ELIZABETH FINISHED THIRD.

CONTEST IN LEAGUE WAS UNUSUALLY CLOSE THIS SEASON.

Trophy Now Becomes Permanent Property of the Roselle Casino Team, They Having Won It Three Times—The Park Club will Receive a $20 Trophy or Banner—Parks was Second by Small Margin.

The contest in the Central Journal Bowling League has been completed and the team from the Roselle Casino has now become the permanent owner of the trophy offered by the Elizabeth Journal, winning this year for the third time. The Park Club made a plucky fight for first place until the last few weeks of the tournament and then lost several games by low scores, victories in which would have set the Plainfield bowlers at the front. The effort landed the Parks in second place, however.

The season, which is now at an end, has been a very successful one. Up to the very last, it was impossible to tell in what order the clubs would finish. The Roselle Casinos and the Parks fought hard for first place and Elizabeth for the third. Elizabeth astonished everybody by a strong windup, threatening Roselle and the Parks for first and second place. There was just the difference of one game to put Elizabeth down to third.

Westfield made a good showing and then tumbled down. Westfield fell further than the Parks did and landed in fourth place, the Newark Bay Boat Club tieing the W. A. C. for the place. The New Jersey Athletic Club wasn't far behind while the poor Cranford Country Club team was hopelessly in the rear.

Roselle gets the Journal trophy while the Parks will receive the $20 trophy or banner, as they wish, for second place.

The final result of the league is as follows:

	Won.	Lost.	Highest Score.
Roselle.....	28	11	994
Park.....	24	15	1004
Elizabeth.....	21	15	911
W. A. C.....	20	16	909
Westfield.....	18	18	916
Newark Bay.....	18	20	944
Cranford Casino..	6	30	811

WHY HE DREW REVOLVER

E. LSWORTH JOHNSON WAS AFTER INSULTER OF WIFE.

Claims Whepley Insulted Mrs. Johnson and That He Wanted to Bring Him to Justice—Whepley Didn't Appear.

City Judge Runyon heard the story Saturday of why Ellsworth Johnson drew a revolver on Clarence Whepley, his former employe. Johnson was arraigned a week ago with Whepley. Johnson pleaded guilty and Whepley not guilty. Their trial was set down for this morning. Saturday Johnson was the only one to appear.

The original cause of the trouble was some remarks that Whepley had made to his employer's wife. An attempt was made to bring Whepley before Justice Storms on a criminal charge but he left town. At last John son heard that Whelpey was in town and went after him, armed with a re-

Whelpey was in town and went after him, armed with a revolver. Whelpey attempted to bolt but Johnson drew the revolver and Whelpey remained. Both were arrested for disorderly conduct.

Judge Runyon decided that while Johnson was in the wrong to carry a revolver and threaten anybody with it, the circumstances were more extenuating than they might have been. So he suspended sentence. The police are looking for Whepley.

COLORED TROOPS RETURN.

Praise Capt. Jenkinson, and do Not Regret Serving Their Country.

Capt. Henry L. Jenkinson and his entire company of colored troops, which he recruited in Newark, Elizabeth, Plainfield and Paterson in June, and which was mustered into the service of the United States as Company A, Eighth Volunteer Immunes, is returned to Newark Thursday, after eight months' service. The Eighth Immunes, were mustered out recently at Chickamauga.

The soldiers looked and felt well. They were enthusiastic in praise for the service they had given their country.

Entertained Her Friends.

Miss May Conroy, of Linden avenue, entertained a number of friends at her home last Friday. An evening of song, instrumental music and games was enjoyed by all and at a late hour a bountiful supper was served by the hostess, after which the guests departed leaving their best wishes.

Soloist to Reside Here.

Mr. and Mrs. Ward, of Elizabeth, have leased the house on Fairview avenue, formerly occupied and owned by the late E. E. Marshall, and they will take possession April 1st. Mrs. Ward is the contralto soloist at the First Baptist church.

WOULDN'T BE PRESIDENT

BUT CHOSEN VICE-PRESIDENT, AND MUST ACT AS CHIEF OFFICER.

Curious Outcome of Election of Officers of Christian Endeavor Society of the First Baptist Church Friday Night.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the First Baptist church met last Friday in annual session and transacted considerable business, including the election of officers and hearing the reports of the various committees. There was some difficulty in electing a president, as the present holder of the office, L. H. Biglow, Jr., declined to serve again.

The difficulty was overcome by leaving the office of president vacant for two weeks, and electing Mr. Biglow vice-president. By this action Mr. Biglow will serve as president until someone is selected to fill the position, Miss Saxton was elected secretary, Miss Susie Woodland, corresponding secretary, and Miss Belle Velmer, treasurer. The following persons were elected as the heads of the various committees: Lookout, Miss Mattison; prayer meeting, Mrs. Pierce; social, Miss Susie Woodland; missionary, J. Herbert Case; flower, Miss May Serrell; welcome and press, Miss Douglass.

The treasury reported a balance of $5 after all bills were paid. During the year considerable money has been expended in doing good work and the department has been well managed.

There was an attendance last evening of about seventy five, the largest thus far during the year. The report of the secretary showed that the average attendance during the year was thirty-five. The reports of the various committees were all of an encouraging nature and showed the society is prosperous. At present there is a membership of 125. There was an increase of twelve during the year in membership.

Miss Grace Yerkes, as superintendent of the Junior Christian Endeavor Society, presented a very interesting report, showing progress in the various departments. During the year the average attendance was 40. Mrs. J. Elston Woodland was elected as assistant to Miss Yerkes in the junior work.

Another business meeting of the society will be held Friday evening, March 24th, when an attempt will be made to elect a president.

The Public Library.

The following books have been added to the Public Library during February, 1899:

Adams, Anglo-American relations and southern history.
Association for improvement of geometrical teaching. Plane geometry.
Bonjour, Some familiar trees.
Box, Heat.
Brown, Chemical ranitation.
Butterfield, Gas manufacture.
Chicago, Educational commission. Report 1898.
Dagwin, Traite de physique. 4 v.
Dawson, Geology of Nova Scotia, etc.
Fiske, West Indies.
Fourier, Heat.
Grant, Physical astronomy.
Hentner, Mathematical instruments. 3 v.
Herndon, Louisiana purchase, etc.
Hutton, Scientific romances.
Landolt & Bornstein, Physikalisch-chemische tabellen.
Meyer, Chemistry.
Proctor, The sun.
Remsen, Inorganic chemistry.
Richardson, Messages and papers of the Presidents. v. 2.
Routh, Analytical statics. 2 v.
Salmon, Analytical geometry.
Shufeldt, Natural history of the United States.
Sonnenschein & Keshitt, Arithmetic.
Steinmetz, Alternating current phenomena.
Studer, Birds of North America.
Thompson, Wild animals I have known.
Thomson, Dynamics.
Thomson, Michael Faraday.
U. S. Agricultural department, annual report, 1898.
U. S. American rep. bureau, Alaska.
" " " Commercial directory of American republics, v. 2.
U. S. American rep. bureau, Foreign commerce of American republics and colonies.
U. S. American rep. bureau, Hawaii.
" " " How Latin-American markets and manufactures of the United States.
U. S. American rep. bureau, Guatemala.
" " Education bureau, Report of 1896-97, part 2.
U. S. geological survey, Seventeenth annual report.
U. S. military information bureau, Military notes on Cuba.
United States military information bureau, Military notes on Philippine Islands.
United States military information bureau, Organized militia of the U. S.
United States military information bureau, Selected professional papers.
United States military information bureau, Sources of information on military professional subjects.
National museum, proceedings. v. 20.
Urquhart, Electric light fitting.
Walcott, Fossil medusae.
Whitney, Almanac, 1899.
Worthington, Dynamics of rotation.
Zahm, Sound and music.

—A. L. Wilkins is setting the shafting and woodworking machines for J. G. Burdick, who has moved from Race street to the Bird building on Fourth street.

—The Metronome Banjo and Mandolin Club have been secured by the Christian Endeavor Society of the Park Avenue Baptist church to give a concert in the church the latter part of this month. Miss Shaw, of New York, will assist.

WOMEN URGED TO RALLY

MRS. FLORENCE HOWE HALL ISSUES A PROCLAMATION.

Women's Rights at School Elections are Described and the Fair Sex are Asked Not to Neglect Them This Year.

Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, of this city, president of the Woman's Suffrage Association of New Jersey, has issued the following proclamation to the women of New Jersey:

With the rapid growth of the population in many parts of New Jersey, as in other States, comes a corresponding increase in the number of children of school age. Old school accommodations are thus outgrown, and many little ones either remain without instruction, or gain it in overcrowded rooms where the ventilation is necessarily bad, or perhaps attend school only half of each day. In some localities school houses have become old and are out of repair, or need modernizing in accordance with the best thought of the present day. If we want all the modern improvements in our own homes, we surely want them in the school, the other home of our children, the place where they spend three to five hours every day.

The women in our State, those living in town and rural districts that is to say, have it in their power to give their children proper school accommodations. In all places where school meetings are held women are entitled to vote on the same terms as men—with this single exception that they may not vote for school trustees. But they can vote on all other questions coming before the meeting; can vote for a tax, or for the issuing of bonds, etc., and can themselves be elected to the office of school trustee, an office which a number of women are now holding in different parts of our State, with good results to the schools. One lady, Miss Sterling, has recently served as president of the Board of Education at Ridgewood, if she is not still filling that office.

School meetings are held in New Jersey on the third Tuesday in March, the 21st, and it is to be hoped that the mothers and daughters of our State will attend these, and see to it that the children have proper school accommodations. In Orange, Westfield, Cranford and elsewhere, the votes of women, added to those of men, have provided new school houses that were much needed. Let all good citizens, men and women, attend the school meetings on the 21st inst.

FUNERAL OF A HIBERNIAN.

Obsequies Over Remains of Walter Berry Attended by A. O. H.

The funeral of Walter Berry was held Sunday afternoon from the house, 650 South Second street. Rev. Father Smyth officiated and the services were attended by over 100 members of the A. O. H. to which the deceased belonged.

The funeral was held from the house instead of the church, the invariable rule with Roman Catholics, because of the 40 hours' devotion which was begun in the church at high mass yesterday, and which will continue until 8 o'clock tomorrow morning. The floral decorations consisted of two pillows of flowers, one from the A. O. H. and the other from the Ladies' Auxiliary.

The pall bearers were Joseph Galbraith, John Donnelly, Patrick Devier, Francis Donnelly, Edward Birmingham and Patrick O'Sullivan. Interment was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Y. M. C. A. Debating Society.

Several of the members of the Y. M. C. A. have been planning to organize a debating society among the association members this winter, but so far have done nothing about it. A meeting has been called for Thursday evening, March 23d, however, when a society will be organized. This year it will be nothing more than an old-fashioned debating society, but it may develop into something else by another year.

Organists On Trial.

Sunday morning and evening at the First Presbyterian church Mr. Zim, of New York, a graduate of the Conservatory of Music, Paris, officiated at the organ on trial. His playing was much enjoyed. Next Sunday Mr. Bender, of New York, a young man under twenty-one years of age, will play on trial. Mr. Bender is spoken of in the highest terms.

Of a Musical Nature.

An entertainment will be given at the Park Avenue Baptist church on the evening of March 28th, at which time the Metronome Banjo and Mandolin Club, assisted by Miss Marion Shaw, of New York, will entertain. The club is holding frequent rehearsals for the event.

Paul Symons' Brother Honored.

Joseph W. Symons, brother of Paul Symons, of East Third street, has recently been elected one of the three selectmen who govern the affairs of the town of Bradford, Vt. He also holds the position of second constable of the town.

Elaborate Easter Service.

Preparations are being made for an elaborate Easter service at the Mt. Olive Baptist church, morning and evening. An effort will be made at that time to raise $100 for the church.

WANT TO FREEZE OUT PLAINFIELD.

Elizabeth and Rahway Exchange Support.

COUNTY G. O. P. GOSSIP.

PLAINFIELD HAS TWO IMPORTANT CANDIDATES.

There Will Be a Big Fight This Fall Over the Nomination of a Clerk by the Republicans—Howard Wants to Try Again—J. T. MacMurray and Sheriff Kirk Also Prominently Mentioned.

Although the fall campaign is still many months away, political talk regarding the state of affairs in Union county at the next election is frequently heard.

"Honest Bob" Houston, one of the present Assemblyman from Elizabeth, is generally considered as a sure man for the Republican nomination of Sheriff. He wanted the nomination when it was given to Kirk, and his friends have been making a strong demand for the nomination this year ever since.

The fight of the campaign in the Republican party will be the one over the nomination for county clerk. The present incumbent, Mr. Howard, of Rahway, is already in the race. James T. MacMurray, city clerk of Plainfield, was prominently mentioned for the office last fall and even before. Then Sheriff Kirk, of this city, is also in line for the nomination.

While Elizabeth hasn't any candidate for the place, it is highly probable that the county seat will take a prominent part in deciding as to who shall receive the valued plum. There was an understanding between some of the politicans of Rahway and Elizabeth that, when Rahway gave her support to Cross for the senatorial nomination last fall instead of for Ackerman, that Elizabeth should reciprocate and support Rahway's candidate for the county clerkship. Now it still remains to be seen whether all the Elizabeth delegates will agree to any such "freeze out" for Plainfield. It is said that Elizabeth's delegation is nearly certain to split.

It is too early yet to say how the Plainfield candidates stand but MacMurray is reported to have a strong gathering of friends throughout the county outside of the cities. It will doubtless lay with the townships to decide who shall be honored in the race.

PLEASANT AFFAIR TO INTRODUCE A FIANCEE.

MISS HALL ACTED AS THE HOST.

Miss Thompson, Who is Engaged to Charles Prescott Hall, Was the Guest of Honor.

A pleasant but rather informal tea was given Saturday afternoon by Miss Coroline Minturn Hall, of Madison avenue, to introduce Miss Thompson, of Sing Sing, her brother's, Samuel Prescott Hall, fiancee. There were about fifty guests present, mostly of the younger set, who found Miss Thompson a charming young lady, who will be an agreeable addition to Plainfield society.

Miss Hall and Miss Thompson received and were assisted by the hostess' mother, Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, Miss Marjorie Swan, of Brooklyn, Miss Edith Negley, Miss Bessie Ginns, Miss Wickersham and Miss McCrady.

Mrs. John Doull Miller and Miss Elizabeth Stewart poured.

The decorations were of green, consisting of smilax and maiden hair ferns. After the tea the out-of-town guests were entertained at dinner.

Among the guests were Mrs. Eugene Hatch, Miss Talmage, Miss Daisy Sheppard, the Misses McAllister, of Elizabeth, Mrs. B. L. Dodd and daughter, of Newark, Mrs. Walter Longman, the Misses Tracy, Miss Irskine, Miss VanBoskerk, Miss Clapp, Miss Anna Miller, Miss Hallowway, DeLaRoche Francis, of Philadelphia, Mr. Turrill, Samuel Prescott Hall and David Prescott Hall.

GOODS WERENT SHIPPED.

An Absconding Debtor's Goods Attached at Freight House.

Two writs of attachment have been issued from Justice Nash's court against Mrs. Nancy Purviance, of 122 Crescent avenue. The first one was issued Saturday night for R. O. Howell, the grocer, who has a claim of about $50 for groceries bought. This was served by Constable Amos Moffett, just before the goods were shipped away from the freight house. The second one was sworn out by Bodo, Runyon & Co., and was served Monday morning by Constable Mattox

The Red Man's Fair.

The joint committee from Miantonomo Tribe and Iona Council which have the fair in charge, met Saturday night. It was decided to hold the fair in Washington Hall, beginning April 4th, and continuing for the balance of the week and perhaps a part of the week after. Various contests will be opened, and the fair will be made as successful as possible.

ALL MUST PAY TO GO ON THIS EXCURSION

No More Free Trips With First Baptist Sunday-School.

MONEY LOST IN THE PAST.

CHILDREN TO BE CHARGED 25 CENTS AND ADULTS 50 CENTS.

The Matter Discussed in a Lively Manner at the Annual Meeting of the Teachers Thursday Night—The Excursion to be Held July 13th—George H. Batchelor Re-elected Superintendent.

The annual meeting of the officers and teachers of the Sunday-school of the First Baptist church was held last Thursday. Superintendent George H. Batchelor occupied the chair and guided the business of the evening.

The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows: Superintendent, George H. Batchelor; secretary, W. O. Chapman; assistant secretary, Harry B. Drake; treasurer, Frank W. Jones; librarian, B. J. Shreve; superintendent of East Third Street mission, L. Warren Randolph; superintendent of Mt. Olive Baptist Sunday-school, M. C. Dobbins.

The report of treasurer Jones showed the receipts during the year to be $3,060.93 and the expenditures $1,709.45, leaving a cash balance of $352.80.

One of the principal questions under discussion was that regarding the annual excursion. Each year when this matter is introduced it always occasions considerable discussion and this year was no exception. It is a fact that these affairs are generally conducted on the smallest margin, and as a rule there is always a deficit. To overcome this difficulty a new plan was inaugurated last year whereby the scholars were charged 25 cents, while the teachers were charged 50 cents. So far as this went it was all right, but the number of scholars and teachers attending was comparatively small.

Thursday the subject was generally discussed at length. Some of the members thought that no charge should be made, and the friends of this plan stated that twenty or more persons could be found who would be willing to contribute $5 each and thus meet the expenses of the outing. This plan was not received with open arms, and it was then proposed that last year's plan be adopted this year. This seemed to be received more favorably, but one of the ladies thought that inasmuch as teachers were to be charged 50 cents that all adults attending the school should be charged similarly. It was finally so agreed and the plan was adopted.

The date for the excursion was set for Thursday, July 13th, and Superintendent Batchelor will soon appoint a committee to take charge. An agreement has been made with the Central Railroad that no other excursion is to go from this city during that week, thus giving the Baptists a greater opportunity for success.

HIS WORK AMONG THE AFRICANS.

Charles A. Swan Talked Interestingly of Missionary Experiences.

Charles A. Swan, an English missionary to Africa, gave a lecture in the Y. M. C. A. Thursday dealing with his work among the tribes of the dark continent. The lecture was to have been illustrated with lime light views, but through some mistake the views did not arrive so a map was used instead.

Mr. Swan has been among the Africans for three years, and has made wonderful progress with them. He speaks twenty-seven dialects, most of which he has learned during his stay on the continent.

Mr. Swan began his lecture by giving his hearers some idea of the size of Africa, and said that from north to south it was 5,000 miles, and at its widest part about 4,700 miles across. He spoke of the difficulty of getting from place to place on account of the lack of roads, and then described his work among the deluded natives at length.

CANCED THE NIGHT AWAY.

Scandinavian Society Hold Their Semi-Annual Ball.

The Scandinavian Society Thule held their semi-annual ball Thursday in Saengerbund Hall. There was a good attendance and dancing was kept up until early morning. Music was furnished by C. Wallander.

The committee in charge of the ball were B. Linmark, chairman; G. Peterson, secretary; H. Hansen, treasurer. Henry Sorenson was floor manager and the reception committee consisted of G. Nelson, Mrs. C. Bummell, Mrs. Gerlick, Miss E. Connell and Miss C. Lumbery.

To Hold a Fair Next Month.

The joint committees of Iona Council and Miantonomo Tribe, who have the coming fair in charge, held a meeting Friday night and decided to hold the fair during the week beginning April 10th, at some place to be chosen later.

LOST LEGS, THEN DIED

CHARLES LAWRENCE UNABLE TO SURVIVE THE TERRIBLE INJURIES.

Died at the Hospital Early Friday a. m. Just Before His Sorrowing Wife Reached the Institution to See Him.

Charles Lawrence, of Philadelphia, who had both legs run over by a car on the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad while attempting to make a coupling near Bound Brook, Thursday afternoon, died at the Muhlenberg Hospital here Friday morning at 3:30 o'clock.

Lawrence limbs were terrible crushed and the bones in both legs were shattered so that it was impossible to save either one of them. After the injured man had received somewhat from the shock to his system both legs were amputated by the hospital staff. After the operation he revived from the anaesthetic administered to him and was conscious up to the time of his death.

His wife, who is twenty-two years of age, arrived at the hospital a few minutes after he died. She was prostrated with grief when she learned the sad news, as she did not know how serious his injuries were until she arrived at the hospital.

The remains were shipped to the dead man's home in Philadelphia next morning, where they were interred.

CHURCH OFFICERS CHOSEN.

Charles W. McCutchen President of East Third Street Baptist Society.

The annual meeting of the East Third Street Baptist Society was held Thursday. Officers were elected as follows: President, Charles W. McCutchen; secretary, Irving L. Brady; treasurer, L. W. Serrell.

The terms of L. W. Serrell and I. L. Brady, trustees, expired, and they were elected again for two years. H. E. Neeham was elected to fill the unexpired term of Rufus K. Case. The treasurer reported that there was a balance of $10 in the treasury, and the reports of the secretary and other officers showed that the affairs of the society were in good condition.

In Memoriam.

At a regular meeting of Court Plainfield, 1144, Independent Order of Foresters, held March 10th, the following resolutions were adopted:

WHEREAS, God in His all-wise providence has taken from our midst our late brother Rufus K. Case, and

WHEREAS, We are deeply grieved by the bereavement, be it therefore

Resolved, That while we lament his absence from our meetings and feel that we have lost a grateful and worthy brother, and while we deeply deplore our loss, yet from his noble Christian character here on earth we believe he is now in Heaven with his Savior. We will ever cherish his memory and hereby extend our sincere and heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family, and be it further

Resolved, That these resolutions be spread in full on the minutes and a copy of the same be sent to the bereaved family and published in the Plainfield daily papers.

Rev. George Bowers,
James C. Hansen,
James Patterson,
Committee.

Painters are Busy.

Marsh, Ayres & Company already beginning their spring work and are filling their orders quick and fast. They have just signed the contract to decorate the interior of F. A. Barnaby's house on Plainfield avenue, which promises to be a work of art. The firm will also decorate the interior and exterior of the Revere House, and have begun work on it already. W. H. Moore's house on West Front street is also undergoing outside and inside decorations at this firm's hands, and they are also painting the Stratnby house at the corner of East Ninth street and First place.

Devoted to Temperance.

The Junior Epworth League of Grace M. E. church held its meeting Thursday afternoon. It was a temperance meeting and was led by Mrs. G. W. Gardner. The programme included the following: Singing by the Juniors; declamation, John Bodenheimer; solo, Rachel DeCamp; recitation, Morgan Amermann; singing by a quartette of boys, John Carney, David Fairchild, Earl Pope and Frankie DeCamp; illustrated temperance address, Mrs. G. W. Gardner; recitation, David Fairchild.

Charged With Breaking the Law.

Henry Staats was arraigned before City Judge Runyon Saturday a. m., charged by Peter Robinson with violating the health ordinance of the city. Francis J. Blatz, of the law firm of Murphy & Blatz, appeared for the prisoner and asked that the hearing be adjourned. The case will come up for trial next Saturday morning.

A Soldier in the Philippines.

Wm. H. Egbert, many years ago a grocer in Plainfield and who has many friends in this city, will learn by this that he is in the service of Uncle Sam as a member of the First Washington Volunteer Infantry, and stationed at present at Manila. He is in good health.

Received One New Member.

Court Plainfield, 1144, Independent Order of Foresters met last Friday and initiated one candidate. The members enjoyed a visit from several members from Watchung Lodge, and a pleasant time was had in the good and welfare of the order.

V. W NASH AN OFFICER.

ELECTED GRAND GUIDE OF THE UNITED WORKMEN.

Grand Lodge Ended Its Services at Trenton Yesterday—Instance of Over 1,000 Members During the Past Year.

The Grand Lodge of the Ancient Order of United Workmen closed its annual session Friday with the election of officers for the ensuing year.

The officers elected are: Grand master workman, William H. McCullough, Swedesboro; grand foreman, William S. Lambert, Newark; grand overseer, Frank W. Lussy, Camden; grand recorder, J. H. Lippincott, Camden; grand guide, V. W. Nash, Plainfield; grand inside watchman, Edwin Cadmus, Bayonne; grand outside watchman, A. H. Tomlinson, Elizabeth; grand trustee, Thomas Harris, Camden; grand medical examiner, Dr. Elmer E. Barwis, Trenton; representatives to supreme lodge, E. H. Colyer, Newark; E. C. Stahl, Trenton; John Eawright, Freehold. The installation was performed by Supreme Inside Watchman A. B. Jones, of Delaware, assisted by Past Grand Master Basse, of Delaware.

Sixty-seven lodges were represented by 125 delegates. The financial standing of the order was shown in the report of Grand Recorder J. H. Lippincott, of Camden. During the fiscal year ending December 31, 1898, nineteen assessments were made, and as a result of collections made from the assessments, $113,092.50 was placed in the hands of the grand receiver. Throughout the year fifty eight death claims were paid, amounting in all to $115 000.

Captain E C. Stahl, of this city, was elected grand master workman a year ago, and in his inaugural address promised that the order should gain a thousand recruits within the year. This promise was redeemed, as on February 1st, 1,003 persons had passed the muster and medical examination. At the end of the fiscal year 1,125 persons had been added.

Grand Master Workman McCullough honored Plainfield again by appointing William Newcom on the law committee. Plainfield received more recognition in proportion to its size than any other city in the State.

POLITICS IN DUNELLEN AN UNKNOWN FACTOR.

HARMONIOUS CITIZENS' PRIMARY.

Mayor Brakeley Re-Nominated Without Opposition—But Little Contest for Other Nominations.

Dunellen, March 10.—The Citizens' primary was held last night in the town hall, and officers were nominated to be voted for Tuesday. Everything went off smoothly, and there was very little opposition to the original ticket.

The call for the primary was issued by R. J. Swackhamer, a Democrat. Frank Wynecoop was elected chairman. Dr. P. M. Brakeley was given the nomination for Mayor, no one running against him. Firman H. Gise and Joel Giddis were named for Freeholder, but Gise beat Giddis by over forty votes.

J. Newton Apgar and Fred Wilcox were nominated for Councilmen and were elected over Fred Haynes and Frank Humpstone. Samuel Luckey received the nomination for Commissioner of Appeals. The appropriations made were just what the Council had asked for, $1,800 for borough expenses and $150 for the poor.

It is said that another ticket will be placed in the field before election day.

THAT NINE DOLLARS.

Remarks About Alleged Debt Made Trouble for Krewson.

Joseph H. Krewson came up before City Judge Runyon Saturday charged with taunting his erstwhile tenant, Chester A. Dennis, about rent alleged to be still owing. Dennis says that the rent has long been paid and that he has the receipts for it. The specific alleged offence occurred on February 25th.

Dennis says that Krewson yelled something about "that nine dollars," as he passed in his wagon. Dennis did not hear any profane language used, but he was sure that Krewson had insulted him. The Judge said it was not an insult in the eyes of the law and discharged the prisoner.

New Church at Basking Ridge.

The erection of a new M. E. church edifice at Basking Ridge, which has been under discussion a long time, is now an assured thing. Rev J. E Appley, the pastor, has now raised $2,000 and has hopes of raising yet by subscription an amount sufficient to build the church free from debt. The new structure will be built of stone, and when finished will be one of the most beautiful edifices in the county.

The People's Lyceum.

The People's Lyceum, of this city, will hold their public exercises in Mt. Olive Baptist church Thursday evening, March 30th. T. Thomas Fountain, of Brooklyn, will deliver the opening address.

To Start New Church Edifice.

As soon as the weather permits and the frost is out of the ground work will be started to erect the new edifice for the Church of the Redeemer.

MET HIS FATE FIRM

Roesel Executed at Elizabeth Friday Morning.

MET DEATH BY HANGING.

ANSWERING FOR THE MURDER OF FARMER PITTS.

Met His End Bravely, Still Declaring That He Did Not Strike the Fatal Blow—Execution Passed Off Quietly—Forty People Present.

(By a Staff Representative.)

The brutal murder of aged Farmer Pitts, of Summit, was expiated Friday morning by the death of Louis Roesel on the gallows in the south corridor of county jail, Elizabeth. It was the first time in twenty-two years that a crime, committed in Union county, has been punished by death. Roesel, the convicted murderer, met his death without flinching, protesting to the last that while present when the crime was committed, it was not he who struck the fatal blow.

The execution was witnessed by forty people. The rope that launched Roesel into eternity was pulled at 10:13 o'clock by Hangman VanHise. At 10:29 o'clock Roesel's heart stopped beating. At just 11 o'clock, the body was lowered and placed in the casket, its final resting place.

The day preceding the execution was a gala one at the county jail. The condemned man occupied a large cell at the end of the south corridor. Several of the constables were with him constantly. Mrs. Dodd, the matron, gave the prisoner a bouquet of flowers, which were placed on his little table. Several Elizabeth women also sent flowers.

During the afternoon Roesel expressed a wish to Warden Dodd to make a short statement before his death. Joseph D. Lowden, city editor of the Elizabeth Journal, went to see him and prepared a brief statement over Roesel's signature. In it he thanked his lawyers, Sheriff Kirk, Warden and Matron Dodd, and his spiritual advisors. He said that he was fully resigned to his fate and that he died without malice toward anyone.

The condemned man spent a very quiet night. While it was evident that he realized that his end was near he retained his self possession to the last. He sat up until 1:40 Friday morning. Constables H. J. Schoppe, Gustave Deinlein and James Carey occupying the cell with him. Then he lay down and slept quietly from 3 o'clock until 6 o'clock. He was given a breakfast at 7 o'clock, but took nothing except a cup of coffee.

Rev. I. N. Phelps, curate of St. John's P. E. church, Elizabeth, was in Roesel's cell yesterday. Rev. Dr. Ode A. Glazebrook, rector of that church, was with the condemned man many times since he has been sentenced.

After Roesel's breakfast, Rev. Mr. Phelps was with him for an hour. At 9 o'clock, Dr. Glazebrook came and remained with him up to the time of the execution.

In the hour previous to the hanging, Dr. Glazebrook read the death service. He had administered the sacrament yesterday. Dr. Glazebrook says that Roesel was the firmest man, under all circumstances, that he had ever attended. There was no braggadocia about him. He was quiet, but self-possessed, and declared himself ready to meet the end demanded by law. He said that he was ready to die and had made his peace with God. He still persisted that he did not strike the blow. He explained that they had only wanted to stun Pitts and get his money.

The scaffold, the same that has been used by Hangman VanHise on many other occasions, was erected in the south corridor Friday in thirty minutes.

As the hour for the execution, 10 o'clock, drew nigh, Sheriff Kirk and Mr VanHise went to the condemned man's cell. The noose was adjusted about his neck. When the Sheriff started to bind Roesel's arms, the latter begged that it should not be done "I want to die like a man," he said. The Sheriff explained it was necessary. Then the black cap was put on but pushed back from Roesel's face.

At 10 o'clock the persons who were to witness the hanging were summoned to the Court Room.

The jury of inspection recommended by Prosecutor English and appointed by Judge Vail was as follows: Mulford M. Scudder, Chas. P. Russ, William M. Oliver, Emmot K. Adams, Wm. H. Swain, Edward S. E. Newbury, George Ball, Dr. Victor Mraviag, Edward B. Kelly, Henry A. Bath and William Allen.

The deputy sheriffs appointed by Sheriff Kirk were: Dr. R. B Sinclair, George J. Tobin, Andrew McArdle, Louis A Graff, John K. English, H. C. VanEmburgh, Patrick Kiely, John F. Boswall, Jr., J. David, James B. Terwin, J. B. Cassidy, I. H. Robinson and Dr. W. A. M. Mack.

The newspapermen present were: A. W. Schwartz, Elizabeth Journal, Francis E. Whiteside, Plainfield Courier-News, Michael F. Gannon, Newark News, I. Meivin Sheldon, Standard News Association, Charles Burdette Moores, Plainfield Daily Press, E. R. Clyma, Elizabeth Leader.

At 10:07 o'clock the jury and other witnesses were ushered into the presence of the gallows by Former Under Sheriff J. Casper Kirkner, who assisted Sheriff Kirk in the preparations.

At 10:12 the procession from the condemned man's cell appeared. The Sheriff came first. Roesel, quiet but pale followed with Dr. Glazebrook and the Hangman close behind.

As they arrived in front of the gallows Sheriff Kirk asked Roesel if he had anything to say. In a low voice the condemned prisoner said:

"I forgive my enemies and thank my friends and all those who have been kind to me, I am at peace with God."

The Sheriff repeated the words after him.

The convicted murderer was a small slight man of twenty-two years. He wore a black cutaway coat and trousers of same material. He also wore a white shirt and turndown collar and black bow tie.

When VanHise leaned down to strap Roesel's legs, the prisoner stood perfectly firm. The black cap was pulled over his face and the noose fastened to the rope of the scaffold. On the other end of the rope was an iron weight of 700 pounds.

VanHise stepped over the rope that released the weight. At 10:13 he pulled it and the body of Roesel was shot into the air. There was not a sound save the sullen thud of the weight as it struck a box of ashes to deaden the fall.

The body of the murderer soon hung quietly, save for convulsive movements of the hands and limbs. At 10:19 these movements had ceased and the body was lowered to within a foot of the floor. Dr. Mraviag examined the body. At 10:29 Dr. Mraviag announced that the heart had stopped beating The body was not taken down until 11 o'clock. This was VanHise's sixty-first hanging.

The body was carefully examined by the physicians present and all declared Roesel dead. The neck was not broken, but death was caused by strangulation. They said that the man was unconscious from the first.

The body was placed in a coffin by Undertaker J O. Ogden and was buried this afternoon in the Poor House lot, Elizabeth. Dr. Glazebrook conducted the burial service.

ROESEL'S CRIME.

It was a Particular Brutal One and was Planned Out.

Louis Roesel was convicted of murdering Mr. Pitts, an old farmer, of Summit, a year ago last August. The story of the crime, as brought out at the trial, was that Roesel and George Manshanda, an older fellow-countryman, went to the Pitts homestead that night for the purpose of robbery. Roesel had worked as a farmhand for Mr. Pitts' nearest neighbor, Mr. Woodruff, for six months at one time, and for a month at a later date. Manshanda had also worked in the neighborhood. Mr. Pitts was a man of some means, a retired farmer, and was popularly supposed to carry considerable money with him and to keep more in the house. Manshanda and Roesel, being hard up, formed a plan to go there and rob him. The murdered man's only companion was an aged colored woman who kept house for him, so that they evidently considered that they had an easy task before them.

The alarm reached Summit quickly—the Pitts' homestead is a mile from town—and before midnight the country side was alive with searching parties, whose quest, however, was in vain, except for the finding of clues which were of value later. Manshanda was arrested on Staten Island within a month, and Roesel shortly after.

Manshanda confessed to complicity in the murder, and testified before the Grand Jury, and at Roesel's trial. He swore that Roesel struck the fatal blow, and in doing so supposed that that would clear him of the charge. Roesel told a story that agreed with Manshanda's in nearly all respects except that he swore that it was Manshanda who wielded the gambrel with such fatal effect. Both men admitted conspiring to rob, and each thought that if the other was convicted of actually committing the murder he would go clear, since no robbery had taken place. The courts hold, however, that when murder results from such a conspiracy the conspirators are all guilty of murder.

Manshanda saved his neck by turning State's evidence, but he got a sentence of twenty years in the penitentiary. There are some pretty strong reasons for believing that he was the actual murderer. He is the older, larger and stronger of the two men. Roesel is 22 and small.

The last man hung in Union county was Sylvester Quitler, a negro, who had killed his wife. His execution took place November 14, 1867.

ROBERT C RAND ASSIGNS

STATIONERY BUSINESS NOW IN THE HANDS OF A. S. THORN.

The Assets are $2,140 and the Liabilities $8,195.45—His Father Has Claims to the Amount of $6,213.82 for Advances.

Robert C. Rand, who since 1891 has been conducting a stationery store on West Front Street, made an assignment March 8th to A. S. Thorn, of Somerset street, and today the assignee is taking an inventory of the stock. Lawyer Winfield S. Angleman represents the assignee.

The assets amount to $2,140 and the liabilities $8,195.45. Of the latter amount $6,213 82 is in claims which A. W. Rand, father of Robert C. Rand, holds against the son, which makes the merchandise liabilities about equal. Yesterday in the Union county court Judge Vail made an order giving all creditors until April 17th to exhibit their claims to the assignee.

Mr. Rand took the business, as stated, in 1894, and succeeded his father, who conducted a very successful business. It is the intention of Mr. Rand to take a trip for his health and to give up business temporarily.

PLAINFIELD PUBLIC LIBRARY.

Librarian's Report for February, 1899.

Vols. on Accession-Book, Jan. 31, 1899	14,069
" added by Purchase	5
" added by Gift	8
" added by Binding	1
" now in Library	14,079
" in Babcock Collection, Jan. 31, 1899	1,167
" added by Purchase	11
" Binding	1
" now in Babcock Collection	1,179
Total number in Library	17,253
Number of card holders, Jan. 31, 1899	5,411
" registered during the month	24
Total number of reg. borrowers	5,445

BOOKS CIRCULATED.

Fiction	1,747
Juvenile	892
Biography	220
History	76
Philosophy, Religion, Mythology, etc.	46
Sociology	46
Science	4
Philology	4
Useful Arts, including Medicine	104
Fine Arts	4
Literature	237
Description, Travel	193
Periodicals	1
General Works	39
Total circulation	3,583
for Oct., 1897	3,567

Of the above number there were circulated

Babcock Collection	16
Potter Press Works	62
Pond Machine Tool Works	23
Scott Press Works	13
	90

Delivery Stations.

Y. M. C. A.	40
Hope Chapel	12
	52

Special Collections, Circulation, Babcock 112

Number of Circulating Days	22
Largest Circulation in One Day	250
Smallest "	30
Daily Average Circulation	162
Number of Visitors to the Building	4,009
" Student Visitors, included above	64

EMMA L. ADAMS,
Librarian.

SOCIABLE AT WARREN CHAPEL.

Successful Affair Arranged by the Ladies' Aid Society.

A successful sociable was held at Warren chapel Thursday under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society. J. W. Gavett had charge of the entertainment which consisted of recitations by Frank O. Bristol, and vocal solos by Miss Olive Lovell, of Flemington, accompanied by Miss Voeseller, of Flemington. Those who entertained did so in an admirable manner and won the hearty approbation of all present.

After the entertainment refreshments were served by a committee consisting of Mrs. Stiglits, Mrs. William A. Wilson, Mrs. Sutton and Mrs. Fink.

During the evening Rev. J. O. McKelvey, pastor, took a flash-light picture of his Bible class. Altogether the affair was one of the best held at the chapel in a long time.

Funeral of Peter Finger.

The funeral of the late Peter Finger was held Thursday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock from the home at Washingtonville and was very largely attended by relatives and friends. Rev. Geo. Kunser, pastor of the German Reformed church, officiated. There were present delegations from the Knights of Pythias from Roselle and Plainfield, and from their members pall-bearers were chosen. There was a large number of floral tributes from friends. Interment took place at Samptown.

Members of Board of Health.

The Board of Health for the ensuing year consists of Messrs. H. B. Newhall, J. A. Smith, Fred W. Dunn, B. VanD. Hedges, M. D. and W. H. Murray, M. D. The officials of the Board are Wm. Liddis, inspector, and M. B. Lewis clerk.

A Good Citizenship Talk.

Monday evening, March 20th, Rev. C. E. Herring will deliver an address before the Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church, on the subject of "Good Citizenship and Temperance."

RUNAWAY CARS CRASH INTO A LOCOMOTIVE

Sleeping Trainman in Caboose Instantly Killed.

COAL TRAIN BROKE IN TWO.

REAR SECTION RAN BACKWARDS INTO ANOTHER COAL TRAIN.

The Crash Came Near the Eight Hour on East Bound Freight Track of Jersey Central Railroad March 8th, Just Before Midnight—Ten Cars Broke Loose on Grade—Jacob Adams, Flagman, Killed.

A loaded coal train on the Jersey Central Railroad broke in two on the grade near Clinton avenue, March 6, just before midnight. The rear section ran backward carrying death to the sleeping trainman in the caboose and destruction to itself. Just before reaching Dunellen, it crashed into the approaching locomotive of another coal train. One life was lost and four cars and the caboose were scattered about the tracks, blocking the east bound tracks for two hours.

A long coal train, composed of both gondolas and coal himmlers, was bound from Easton to Jersey City. It was drawn by the Jersey Central locomotive No. 314. There is a long grade through Dunellen and on toward Grant avenue. At some point, the train broke in two, some ten cars forming the rear section.

There was no brakemen on the runaways which speedily came to a stop. Then they began to run backward, the grade being sufficient to start them. The crew on the forward part did not discover the break until too late. Meanwhile the runaways began to gather greater impetus.

In the caboose No. 381, was Jacob Adams, of Jersey City, the flagman of the train. It is supposed that he was asleep. At any rate he apparently knew nothing of the break.

Another coal train, drawn by locomotive No. 410, was following in the next block. The engineer saw the lights on the approaching caboose, but supposed that the train in front had stopped. He slowed down intending to stop. Then he discovered that the caboose was approaching.

There was not sufficient time in which to bring the heavy train to a standstill. Right opposite the Eight Bow, half a mile east of Dunellen, the runaway cars crashed into the locomotive. The caboose was ground into kindling wood and its solitary occupant instantly killed. Two of the large coal gondolas and two of the big himmlers were badly wrecked and heaped over the two east-bound tracks. The coal was scattered all about. Several other of the cars in the runaway section were derailed.

The crew of locomotive No. 410 escaped serious injury. The front of the locomotive was dented and scratched and part of the woodwork torn off. The engine still remained on the track, however.

Patrolman Saffron notified Chief Grant of the wreck and the latter gave permission to the railroad men to remove the body of Adams to Casey's morgue. The body was badly crushed. Adams was evidently instantly killed. It will never be known whether he made any attempt to escape the danger or whether he was asleep.

A wrecking train was telegraphed for and came from Elizabethport. In two hours the tracks were cleared for traffic. The four cars were so badly wrecked that the trucks were the only parts worth saving. The wreckage was burned. Some empty cars were sent to the scene of the wreck this morning and the scattered coal collected and sent away.

County Physician Westcott viewed the body this morning and granted a burial permit. The face of the dead man was badly disfigured. Dr. Westcott said that death was caused instantly by fracture of the skull.

The remains of Adams were sent to Jersey City where the funeral was held. Adams leaves a widow and several children. He was forty-five years old.

Surprised by Her Lodge Sisters.

A surprise party was given to Mrs. John B. Hope, of East Third street, Thursday. The affair was arranged by the members of Martha Washington Council, No. 23, Daughters of America, of which Mrs. Hope is a member. The members of the Council were present in large numbers with their husbands and best fellows, and enjoyed the evening in playing games, etc., interspersed with vocal and instrumental music.

Entertained Her Scholars.

Mrs. T. W. Powell, teacher in the Sunday-school at Grace M. E. church, entertained her class last Thursday at her home on Parkview avenue, and a very pleasant time resulted. There were recitations, songs and the playing of games, all of which helped to pass the time too quickly. The hostess served refreshments in abundance to her guests, after which they departed, thanking Mrs. Powell for the very enjoyable evening.

SUMMIT BOYS BEATEN AT BASKET BALL

The Plainfield Team Won An Easy Victory.

VISITING TEAM WAS LATE.

SUMMIT TEAM SCORED ONLY ON FREE THROWS ON FOUL.

Plainfield Boys Guarded Them Too Well Most of the Time—When They Did Get a Chance Their Aim Was Poor—Long and Smith Did Clever Work—Score Stood 16 to 0 in First Half.

The Plainfield Y. M. C. A. basket ball team had rather an easy time of it Monday evening in their match with the Summit Y. M. C. A. team in the local association gymnasium. The Summit boys played a hard, rough game but it couldn't stand up against the fast team work of the local five and Summit went down by a score of 30 to 3.

While Plainfield did not have much trouble in the match played at Summit, it was said that the Summit combination was vastly improved now and would give the Plainfielders a lively time. It was a mistake. At the very start the local players began to score and had no trouble in rolling up sixteen points in the first half. Long and Smith did some particularly clever work. They played right together and their excellent work resulted in four of the goals.

In the second half Bonny took Long's place and the Plainfield team slowed up. Smith was the only one to score in the second half. There were an unusual number of fouls called. While the playing was not much rougher than on previous occasions, fouls were twice called on both sides for rough play. Summit's only score was made by goals thrown on fouls. When it came to goal throwing from the field, they seldom had a chance and when they did the throwing was very wild.

The Summit team came over in a stage and was very late arriving. The game did not begin until 9:40 o'clock and then only fifteen minute halves were played. A large audience was present.

The teams lined up as follows:

PLAINFIELD.		SUMMIT.
Long, Bonny	right forward	Hochmore
H. Marshall	left forward	McDonald
Egan	center	Wagner
J. Marshall	right guard	Foster
Smith	left guard	Talbott

Score—Plainfield, 30; Summit, 3. Goals from the field—Long, (3), Smith, (5). Goal from foul—E. H. Foster, Summit. Referee—Frank Hoyt. Umpire—Mr. Hochmore, (2). Timers—J. VanAlstyne, of Plainfield; C. E. Bowden, of Summit. Scorer—Frank Barclay.

ANDREW JACKSON.

James E. Martine Eulogizes the Life of "Old Hickory."

In these days of great and notable events in our nation's history, we are prone to overlook and forget the past and those who did much to start our nation on its career of greatness March 15th should be held in reverence by every lover of our country, since it is the birth day of one of our most illustrious Presidents and truest patriots.

On March 15th, 1767, in the State of North Carolina was born Andrew Jackson, a man gifted with fearless courage and a degree of personal magnetism, that made fairly an idol of his friends. Never was a man more bitterly assailed and maligned than Jackson—pulpit and press alike vied with each other in bitter words of this most gifted patriot, but who will dare today to say aught against his honesty of purpose or patriotism.

Whether as war hero or statesman, the same indomitable will, courage and honesty characterized the life of Gen. Andrew Jackson.

He was as relentless a foe to combined capital as he was to those whom he fought at the battle of New Orleans. It is told that at that memorable battle along came a Tory and protested that the cotton bales which he was using as a barricade, behind which Yankee soldiers were fighting, was his personal property.

"Well," said Jackson, snatching a musket from a soldier, "There is no one better able to defend it than you."

His fear of the encroachments of the money power, lest it would prove a menace to the people's liberty, is a part of history. His declaration, that if elected President "by the eternal" he should veto the United States bank, brought down on him the curses and maledictions of wealth with all its power, but Jackson never flinched. The people triumphed and the idol of the Democratic party, Andrew Jackson, was elected President of the United States. The blessings of his administration are the heritage of the American people.

In the days of political vasillation and trickling and combines of the money power and insatiable appetite of greedy trusts we are prompted to cry out, "Oh! God how long?"

But I have great faith in the people. There will yet rise up another Jackson and "by the eternal" the people shall rule. All honor to Andrew Jackson's memory. J. E. Martine.

NO DUAL MEET WITH BRUNSWICK Y. M. C. A.

Plainfield Objected to a Professional Gymnast.

CONTEST IS CALLED OFF.

BRUNSWICK WANTED FANCY GYMNASTICS INSTEAD OF CLASS MOVES.

Neither Side Would Agree to Other Proposition—Mr. Heywood Also Asked That the Brunswick Team Be Composed Strictly of Amateurs—Mr Shetter Refused—Challenge Sent to Brunswick.

The proposed dual gymnastic contest between the Plainfield and New Brunswick Y. M. C. A.'s is off. This sudden action was immediately brought about by the refusal of New Brunswick to accede to the terms of Plainfield. The real cause was, however, that New Brunswick had a professional gymnast on its team and Plainfield did not care to injure the amateur standing of its gymnasts by allowing them to compete against him.

Physical Director C. E. A. Heywood went to New Brunswick Saturday afternoon to see N. W. Shetter, physical director of the New Brunswick association, with a view to settling the final arrangements for the dual contest. The nature of the moves had not been decided upon definitely as yet.

The New Brunswick men wanted to have fancy exhibition moves while Mr. Heywood thought it much fairer to have the regular recognized class move. The New Brunswick team was composed of old gymnasts who had had long experience. One was the gymnastic team of a New York club and was a recognized professional. Mr. Heywood insisted that he should be withdrawn as his appearance in the dual athletic contest had come near suspending the members of the Plainfield team. The New Brunswick management could not see it in that light.

No satisfactory agreement about the moves or men could be reached. So the 25 deposited by Plainfield was returned to Mr. Heywood and the contest was called off.

Mr. Heywood has now sent a challenge to New Brunswick for a dual gymnastic contest with class moves and both teams to be composed of amateurs only. It remains to be seen whether the challenge will be accepted or not.

WRECK ON THE LEHIGH.

TROUBLESOME ACCIDENT AT BOUND BROOK THIS MORNING.

Fast Freight Broke In Two—Front Section of Train Stopped and was Crushed Into by the Detached Cars.

Bound Brook, March 18—The Lehigh Valley Railroad company were troubled again with a bad wreck this morning, caused by a fast freight train breaking in two and the first section slowing up and the detached cars crashing into the forward cars. The accident occurred at 1:45 o'clock. A defective coupling was the cause of the break, which occurred on the curve west of the station. As the engineer approached the station he was signaled to slow up and did so. Then the rear end of the train crashed into the forward section.

Five box cars were derailed and badly smashed by the collision. Two of the cars were thrown to one side and crashed into two passenger coaches that stood on a siding during the night. The coaches were also badly wrecked. Both tracks were blockaded temporarily, but the wrecking crew from Jersey City had the west bound track cleared before daylight. The east bound track was cleared before noon. No one was hurt by the accident.

RUTGERS GLEE CLUB COMING

Will Entertain at High School Athletic Association Benefit.

While final action has not yet been taken by the committee in charge, it has been practically decided that the entertainment for the benefit of the High School Athletic Association will be held in the Y. M. C. A. hall the evening of Easter Monday, April 3d. The entertainment will be furnished by the Rutgers College Glee Club, assisted by a reciter from the college. This will be the first appearance of the Rutgers boys in this city for several years, and they will undoubtedly receive a hearty reception from the townsfolk. It is the intention of the High School associations to make it a popular price entertainment.

Mountainside Borough.

The whole Republican ticket was elected here yesterday with the exception of the Mayor. There was no Democratic ticket in the field and there would have been no Citizens ticket had the Republicans not thrown down the present Mayor, Joseph W. Cory. Mr. Cory thought it wasn't right so he got a Citizens' ticket in the field and beat the Republican candidate, Louis S. Robbins, by a majority of seven votes.

EXPLOSION AND FIRE IN A CANDY STORE.

Big Show Window Blown Into the Street.

CAUSE IS A MYSTERY.

EXPLOSION REVEALED A FIRE IN THE BUILDING.

Flames Were at Work in Back of Second Floor—Fire Alarm Whistle Didn't Sound at First—Fire Mostly Confined to Room Where it Originated—Loss Will Reach $500—Covered by Insurance

A mysterious explosion blew out the big plate glass windows in the front of John O. Campbell's confectionary store, 112 West Front street, Monday evening, and gave the first warning of the fire within that was threatening the building with destruction. A quick response by the fire department checked the conflagration before the fire had spread far from the room in which it originated.

The first floor of the building, 112 West Front street, which is owned by Mr. Campbell, is occupied by his candy store. The second floor is used as a store room. On the third floor are the rooms where the candy is made.

Mr. Campbell and a lad in his employ closed up the store shortly after ten o'clock. There was a solitary Welsbach gas light burning in the central part of the store. There was also a stove on the third floor.

Half an hour later Henry Liefke, of West Front street, was standing in front of Crosby & Hill's store watching the decorations of the show windows. He suddenly startled by a dull roar and the crash of broken glass. He saw the window in Campbell's store blown into the street amid a rush of smoke. He promptly turned in an alarm from keyless box No. 12. The alarm worked all right, but the whistle gave only one blast.

Patrolman Vanderweg thought that the box was out of order and sent in another alarm from the other box No. 15, immediately after. The second alarm brought out the entire department.

The firemen responded in quick time and found the fire in the rear of the building on the second story. Chief Doane telephoned to Manager Charles W. Runyon, of the telephone company, who hurried around to the power house and sent in an alarm on the whistle.

The stream from the chemical engine did good service in the front part of the store. Three lines of regular hose were laid in at the rear. The first alarm came in at 10:45 o'clock and the fire was under control inside of half an hour. In an hour the flames were entirely extinguished, but the department did not leave the scene until after 12 o'clock.

Most of the fire was confined to the back room of the second floor where a quantity of supplies was stored. The floor was burned through in one place. The ceiling was also burned through in another.

There was no apparent cause for the fire or for the explosion. While the big window was completely shattered, the interior of the store was not injured by the force of the explosion, and the gas in the centre of the store was not extinguished. The fire started in the back room on the second floor from some cause unknown. Chief Doane says that it may have been spontaneous combustion. There was no odor of gas about the store right after the explosion. The Chief says there was hardly time for a "back draft" explosion.

The loss on the building will amount to $350, and on the contents to $150, all of which is covered by insurance. The adjacent building, owned by Mrs. Samuel Dreier, was slightly damaged by smoke and water.

FELL THROUGH FLOOR.

John G. Bantle, of Watchung Avenue, Met With an Accident Friday.

John G. Bantle, the Watchung avenue tailor, met with an accident Friday from which he has now only just recovered. He was walking on the floor beams of his new building on Watchung avenue, when he slipped and fell through the open work into the cellar, landing in a heap of rubbish. Luckily no bones were broken, and he escaped with sundry scratches and bruises which were severe enough, however, to confine him to his bed for a day or two.

The Soldiers' Monument.

Next Saturday evening there will be a meeting of the joint committee from the Common Council and Sons of Veterans regarding the erection of the proposed soldiers' monument.

DOES COFFEE AGREE WITH YOU?

If not, drink Grain-O—made from pure grain. A lady writes: The first time I made Grain-O I did not like it but after using it for one week nothing would induce me to go back to coffee." It nourishes and feeds the system. The children can drink it freely with great benefit. It is the strengthening substance of pure grains. Get a package today from your grocer, follow the directions in making it and you will have a delicious and healthful table beverage for old and young. 15 and 25c.

WHY W. C. T. U. MOVES

RENT OF THEIR PRESENT QUARTERS IS TOO HEAVY.

Their Work, However, Has Been Very Successful During the Past Year—May Stay There if They Get Enough Money.

Will you kindly allow us through your paper to answer the oft-repeated question as to "why the W. C. T. U. is going to move" and to explain the situation that the public may see our position?

There are twelve branches of work, among them the evangelistic with its four services in week; the mother's educational afternoon, and the Loyal Temperance Legion of children, under a salaried superintendent, teaching them the dangers of alcohol and narcotics. Each of these departments should have $5 monthly to begin to do the work designed, but which has been heretofore hindered for lack of funds or supplied by those doing the work.

The current expenses, including janitor, heat, light, etc., are on an average $275 yearly, exclusive of rent.

Out of the 60 cents annual dues which over 250 members contribute, 35 cents goes to carry on the work of county, State and National, leaving 25 cents a member, or $62 50, for the year's work in Plainfield. Besides this, the free-will offerings in subscriptions, well wishes, honorary members, etc., and the contributions at our meetings, make the total receipts less than $350.

Now as to rental: For eight years the W. C. T. U. struggled and carried on its work with little result, because not centrally located. One year ago the large hall, 129 East Front street, where we now are, was secured, enabling owing to the kind generosity of Plainfield friends, who, to help us try the experiment, pledged themselves for the difference in rent. These contributions were for one year only. The committee realizing there were other demands upon Plainfield philanthropists so expressed it in writing, and it was so understood by the gentlemen who came to our assistance.

The twelve months is up. To the majority of us the work proved itself broader and more effectual. The meetings have showed larger attendance and greater interest, but it has been a heavy burden upon the few workers, and fairs, oyster suppers, entertainments, etc., have needed to be held to meet the expenses.

The offer of a hall, even though on a side street, again presented itself and the contrast between $250 and $500 rental appealed to the judgment of the Executive Board and after long consideration it was decided wise to make the change.

Since the decision a number have offered financial aid and even agreed to solicit funds, believing that to go off Front street, when so signally directed to try the experiment, would be a move, which, as they say, would set the work backwards twenty steps or more.

The authorized committee who received the pledges last Spring, has not yet quite finished its work and will answer any further inquiry or receive financial suggestions with the next few days, which, if the amount of $250 is subscribed, may influence the Executive Board to re-consider their vote about moving.

Very respectfully,
Mrs. S. H. Cahoone,
1126 Watchung ave.
Miss Yates,
128 E. Seventh street.

Costly Election Bonfire.

Prior to last Tuesday there stood at the corner of Park place and Somerset street a small summer house that had seen many hard winters. During the display of enthusiasm over the election of Mayor Smalley someone set fire to the house and an alarm of fire was sent in from Box 142 calling out the fire department. As the building was small and no damage could result no effort was made to put the fire out.

A Job for Somerset.

The following notice has been posted in the Public Library: Sunday attendant wanted at the Library. Applicants for the position should call at the Library, between 10 a. m. and 1 p. m., Thursday, March 16th.

—Soon after Easter a fair will be held in Washington Hall under the auspices of Miantonomoh Tribe, I. O. R. M.

—The annual spring millinery opening of Crosby & Hill, under the direction of Miss Daly, takes place Saturday, March 18th, and Monday and Tuesday. You are invited to visit the store during these reception days to inspect all that they have planned and prepared for your approval.

—Miss May Flanagan, who is in charge of the millinery department in Lederer's drygoods store, has doubled the business during the past year, and expects to make a large increase this coming year. Miss Flanagan has accomplished this by catering to latest styles in women's headwear. Next Saturday the annual spring opening will take place. An inspection is invited.

DR. LEWIS ON HISTORY.

CONCLUSIONS THAT THE LATE WAR HAS DEVELOPED.

The Inheritance of Spain Made Her Unfit to Deal With the Colonies—We are Not Burdened as She Is.

Rev. A. H. Lewis, D. D., delivered an interesting lecture before the Men's Society of the Seventh-Day Baptist church Tuesday upon "The Philosophy of History Illustrated in the Spanish-American War and Its Results."

The speaker said: "To the thoughtful student few things are more fascinating than the study of history. Not until the present century did men catch sight of its real character and deeper meaning. Recorded history begins in unwritten traditions. Within our historic period the first efforts at permanent chronogical history were mainly by centuries, but the last half of the present century has witnessed the gradual evolution of a philosophy of history.

'In history there is a necessary connection of the parts. The different stages interlock. Going backward you will at last find the initial point where created power—human or divine—brought into existence the germ which is being evolved. History is also unceasing in its movements."

Keeping the foregoing principles and definitions in mind the Doctor here introduced a few remarks about Spain, rehearsing her history when she first came into touch with civilization as a possession of the Carthaginians about 264 B. C.

"Of the National crimes of Spain," the speaker said, "four stand out in special prominence. First, the expulsion of the Jews, and then the Moors late in the 15 h and early in the 16th centuries. Second, the annals of 'the Council of Blood' in the Netherlands. Third, the Inquisition. Fourth, the policy of extermination of cruel oppression, systematically pursued toward the aborigines of America."

Turning to America Dr. Lewis noted the elements out of which our National life was born carrying the reader through the various vicissitudes of conquest down past the liberation of 3,000 000 slaves.

"Meanwhile the hour of Spain's judgment had come," continued the doctor. "Above them rose the voice of God, 'Let my people go.'"

"No nation ever separates itself from the past. The inheritance of Spain made her unfit to deal with colonies. She refused to grant justice or listen to wisdom. Our birth was entirely unlike hers. The rise of modern literature, in which the Bible played a prominent part, the Reformation, the political struggle for the rights of mankind, the abolition of slavery and the constant discussion of great ethical questions, combined to enrich our National childhood.

"We have not been burdened by Old World monarchies or checked by ecclesiastics. Free speech, colleges and pulpits have kept investigation at its height. This is not self praise. It is but justice to our history, and we shall be helped to meet the demands of these years by a just recognition of what our fathers have been, of what we are, and of what we ought to be."

NEW TELEPHONES.

Names of New Subscribers to Local Telephone Exchange.

The New York and New Jersey Telephone Company still continues to enlarge its local exchange by adding new subscribers all through the city. Among those who have had telephones placed in their residences or places of business during the last few weeks are the following: Walter M. McGee, residence, Rockview avenue; C. E. Hepburn & Co., drugs, Park avenue; Samuel Townsend, residence, Myrtle avenue; George P. Mellick, residence, LaGrande avenue; Alonzo Aldrich, residence, Sherman avenue; A. V. D. Honeyman, residence, Grove street; W. W. Warnock, bakery, North avenue; Larue & Cuming, real estate, North avenue; Hotel Kensington, North avenue; Mrs. Horace Kimball, residence, Park avenue; Martin I. Cooley, residence, Rockview terrace; J. H. Howell, residence, Myrtle avenue; C. Eisenbery, wall paper, West Front street; W. E. VanWert, Gregg School of Shorthand, West Front street; Hartley & Brigg, real estate, North avenue; Rufus Clark, jr., residence, Jackson avenue; Crosby & Hill, dry goods, West Front street; J. Meredith Dryden, residence, Watchung avenue.

Clark Township.

The election in this township was very quiet but the workers were all out and a large vote for a spring election was polled. The Republicans succeeded in electing Edward Maye for township committeeman over Addison C. Russell by one vote.

—The popularity of Mallison's drug store is evidenced by the increasing patronage accorded. This is one of Plainfield's up-to-date pharmacies.

—The Epworth League of Grace M. E church will hold a supper in the new parsonage the evenings of March 23d and 24th for the benefit of the parsonage furnishing fund.

Speer's Port Grape Wine

Nine Years Old,
Burgundy Eight Years Old, and
Claret 16 Years Old.
Extensive Wine Cellars.

Storing, Ageing and Racking Wine.

A wine made one year and sold the next is not a proper wine for invalids; to get rid of its coarse and injurious elements requires years for it to lay in wood casks, and by frequent drawing off from its gross sediment, or the coarse parts it becomes rich and mellow and valuable for invalids. It is sudorific, diuretic and blood making from the iron in the soil of the Speer vineyards in Northern N. J.

The principal varieties are the Port, Burgundy, Sherry and Claret and the Climax brandy. All these wines when stored for years and drawn off from time to time in fresh fumigated casks become vastly superior products and necessarily are more expensive. This is why Speer's wines and Brandy are more costly and so far superior to the California wines. They are absolutely pure; unexcelled by any in the world. Speer's wines are ordered by wealthy and refined families in Europe where they are prescribed by physicians and are esteemed for their superiority, velvety roundness, full body and refined flavor. The efficacy of these wines is wonderful. It has been a study and a pride during Mr. Speer's life to produce a wine of the highest grade of perfection—not so much to make money as to excell in getting a wine of the richest character. He has spared no labor nor expense in bringing his vineyards and wines up to the above high standard of excellence. The Climax ★★★ Brandy twenty years old is equal to the finest French brands.

To be had of Druggists and Grocers who sell high class wines.

A Prominent Physician.

A prominent New York physician in discussing the merits of Ripans Tabules with a brother M. D. said: "Several years ago I asserted that if one wished to become a philanthropist, and do a beneficent deed—one that would help the whole human race—nothing could be better than to procure the Roosevelt Hospital prescription, which is the basis of the Ripans Tabules, and cause it to be put up in the form of a ketchup and distributed among the poor."

Sales Increasing.

The largest retail drug store in America is that of Hegeman & Co. on Broadway, New York City. A reporter who went there to learn how Ripans Tabules were selling bought a package, and asked:

"Do you have much call for Ripans?"

He was referred to a gentleman who proved to be the head of the department. He said:

"The sale of Ripans Tabules is constant and steadily increasing, due especially to the influential character of the testimonials in the daily press, and growing out of these, through the recommendation of friend to friend. Satisfaction with them is very general. When once they are bought I find a permanent customer for them is made. This, I believe, is through their intrinsic merit, which proves the bona fide character of the advertising. I think them specially useful in the general run of stomach troubles."

An Elderly Lady.

An elderly lady living at Fordham Heights, a part of New York City, and who is well known to be a warm advocate of Ripans Tabules for any case of liver trouble or indigestion, said to a reporter who visited her for the purpose of learning the particulars of her case: "I had always employed a physician and did so on the last occasion I had for one, but found they were just what my case demanded. I have since employed a physician since, and they assure a saving of $3 a call.

A dollar's worth of Ripans Tabules lasts me a month, and I would not be without them now if it were my last dollar." At the time of this interview there were present two daughters who specially objected to their mother giving a testimonial, and pasting her name in the newspapers, but to do this the older lady argued: "There may be other cases just like mine, and I feel it to be a great pleasure in recommending the Tabules to any one afflicted as I was. If the telling of my case to a person in the precise condition for them is made. This, I believe, is through their intrinsic merit, which proves the bona fide character of the advertising. I think them specially useful in the general run of stomach troubles."

TEN FOR FIVE CENTS
RIPANS
ONE GIVES RELIEF

A few copies of the interesting booklet entitled "Ripans Tabules" can be had by any reader of these columns—FIVE CENTS. This book is printed and is intended for the poor and the rich, the young and the old, the male and the female, the married and the single, the parent and the child. Address THE RIPANS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York—or a single package of Ripans Tabules will be sent for five cents. Ripans Tabules may be had of druggists (the 60 cent size contains a family bottle), or by mail from the Company.

Everything for the Garden

Sweet Peas the choicest,
Fancy Lawn Grass Seeds
and odorless Lawn Dressing

Telephone Call, 6.

A. M. GRIFFEN'S,
119 East Front st.

FARMERS' WIVES

or any other ladies who wish to work

Can Earn Lots of Money

working for us in spare time at home on our cloths. We offer you a good chance to make plenty of spending money easily, in leisure hours. Send 12c. for cloth and full directions for work, and commence at once. Cloth sent anywhere. Address

WINONSKET CO. (225 C) Boston, Mass. Mfg. Dept.

Quality Rather Than Quantity.

President Eliot of Harvard, says: "The International is a wonderfully compact storehouse of accurate information."

WEBSTER'S INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY

Best for the Household.

Words are easily found. Pronunciation is easily ascertained. Meanings are easily learned. The growth of words is easily traced, and excellence of quality rather than superficiality of quantity characterizes its every department.

Specimen pages sent on application to G. & C. MERRIAM CO., Publishers, Springfield, Mass.

DIME

Savings Institution,

Of Plainfield, N. J.,

Is now receiving deposits payable on demand, with interest, allowed on all sums from $5 to $3,000.

J. FRANK HUBBARD, President,
GEO. W. ROCKFELLOW, Vice-Pres.
J. C. POPE, Treasurer.

Money deposited on or before January tenth will draw interest from th first.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

VOL. XXXII. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, MARCH 23, 1899. NO. 12.

"Support the Constitution, Which is the Cement of the Union, as Well in Its Limitations as in Its Authorities."—Madison.

MONEY WON THE DAY IN THE LEGISLATURE.

Assemblyman Cooper's Five Per Cent. Interest Bill Killed.

A LIVELY TIME OVER IT.

MONEY LENDERS BESTIRRED THEMSELVES AT THE LAST MOMENT.

Senator Pitney Espoused the Side of Those Interested in Keeping the Rate of Interest at Six Per Cent—Senator Reed Took No Part in the Discussion —Opponents Killed It in the Open.

Trenton, March 22—After having successfully left the Assembly and buffeted its way along the Senate with good prospect of steering into the Gubernatorial port to receive the endorsement of Mr. Voorhees, Assemblyman Cooper's Five Per Cent. Interest Bill was ingloriously killed by the Upper House yesterday afternoon. The proceedings under which it was killed shows the absolute subserviency of certain Legislators to the money interests of the State.

The money-lending concerns of the State had not taken the measure seriously, but when it was on the point of passing the Senate they bestirred themselves, and the telegraph companies did a land-office business. Dispatches were as thick as leaves in Vallombrosa. The money-lenders were most solicitous about the welfare of the borrowers, whom they were sure would suffer if forbidden to pay higher interest than 6 per cent.

When the bill came up on final passage Senator Ketcham emerged form a drift of these dispatches and on behalf of fifty money-lenders asked that the bill be recommitted in order to give these people a hearing.

Senator Martin thought this opposition rather belated. The bill had been introduced on the first night of the session. He had introduced a similar bill Feb. 17th, and the opposition had not shown itself until this late hour, and now it sought to kill the bill, not by fair means in the open Senate, but by recommitting it to a committee which had already hung up his own measure and had been tardy in reporting this one.

This caused a heated personal dispute between Senator Martin and Senator Pitney, the chairman of the committee who blamed Senator Martin for not appearing before the committee to explain the bill.

Senator M. Johnson opposed the bill, on the ground that it would make it hard for poor people to borrow money.

Senator McDermott took the same ground, and took occasion to severely condemn the practice of committees arrogating to themselves the right to kill bills by hanging them up in committee. Every bill, he said, was entitled to be reported one way or the other so that its fate might be decided by the Senate and not by the few members who constituted the committee.

Senator Martin called attention to the fact that under the ruling of President Reed, if the chairman of a committee sees fit to refuse to report a bill, the other twenty Senators have no power to get it before the Senate.

Senator Reed advocated the passage of the bill.

Then followed four roll calls. A motion by Senator McDermott to indefinitely postpone was lost—7 to 12. A motion by Senator Ketcham to recommit the bill was lost—10 to 9. The bill then came up on final passage and was defeated by this vote:

Ayes—Barber, Braum, Foster, Martin, Miller, Reed, Stanger and Von Cleef—8.

Noes—Cross, Evans, Hand, Hutchinson, H. W Johnson, W. M. Johnson, Ketcham, McDermott, Packer, Pitney, Smith and Stokes—12.

A motion by Mr. McDermott to reconsider was lost—8 to 12.

Young Man Prepare Mystery.

Something decidedly novel is being planned for a sociable to be held in the parlors of the Congregational church Friday evening. There is a cloud of mystery that surrounds all the arrangements that has prevented as yet the discovery of just exactly what it is going to be. "The Swarming of the Bees" is the title of the sociable, but its exact application is not yet discovered. Although the affair is under the auspices of the Women's Association, the entertainment is really under the charge of the young men of the church.

Olin F. Harvey, Jr., of Wilkesbarre, Pa., a student at Lafayette College, is the guest of his old college friend, E Maxwell Honeyman, of Grove street. He will remain in Plainfield for several days.

BEATEN BY HUSBAND.

MRS. JOSEPH MINER HAD TO APPEAL TO THE CITY.

Miner Was Arraigned This Morning, Pleaded Guilty and Was Fined $8—Said That He Had Been Intoxicated

It was a dismal morning at the city court yesterday. There was only one case to occupy the attention of City Judge William N. Runyon, that of a wife-beater. The husband, Joseph Miner, stood by the rail with his face turned away from his wife, who sat in the corner. She looked sorrowful and tears stood in her eyes.

There wasn't any trial. Miner admitted that he was guilty of assault ing his wife. Said that he was drunk and didn't realize what he was doing. His wife told a sad little tale of how he wouldn't work, fell to drinking and then struck her in the face and beat her. He was arrested Tuesday by Patrolman Higgins on a warrant.

Miner has been working at times in the foundry at the Pond Tool Works. He promised to go back to work if released. The Judge delivered a lecture and sentenced the prisoner to pay $8, or go to jail for thirty days. The fine will be paid.

WOODMAN BADLY HURT BY A FALLING TREE.

LIES IN AN UNCONSCIOUS CONDITION.

Pinioned Under the Tree for Sometime —It Was Two Hours Before a Doctor Attended Him.

Martinsville, March 22—George Zimmerman, aged 45 years, a well-known resident of this place, lies at his home in a critical condition, the result of an accident which happened last Monday afternoon while he was at work felling trees near Philip Bech's saw mill at Dog Watch Hollow. One of the trees fell on Mr. Zimmerman, striking him on the head. The head was severely bruised and received a very bad cut eight inches in depth.

The workmen about the place worked with all possible speed in their efforts to get Mr. Zimmerman from under the tree. In the meantime a physician was sent for, but it required two hours' time to get one from Plainfield. He was unable after an examination to learn whether the skull was fractured or not owing to the fact that the head was greatly swollen. Mr. Zimmerman was removed to his home and he has not yet regained consciousness. His relatives are much worried and they fear that the injuries sustained may prove fatal.

NEW OFFICIALS TO INSPECT.

Borough Streets to be Gone Over by New Committee.

Next Saturday afternoon the new borough street committee, Messrs. Clark, Coddington and Valiant, accompanied by Mayor Smalley and Superintendent of Highways, Thomas Doud, will probably make a tour of investigation about the borough for the purpose of ascertaining what is needed in the line of street improvements. This suggestion was made last evening after the Council meeting by Mr. Clark, who desires to learn at once just what is needed, so that the committee of which he is chairman, can work intelligently.

REPORT OF THE GRAND LODGE.

Interesting Proceedings in Prospect for Central Lodge.

Central Lodge, A. O. U. W., at its meeting this evening, will receive the applications of five candidates and will initiate three. Representatives Rogers, Dunham and Magee who attended the proceedings of the Grand Lodge in Trenton, will make an elaborate report of the proceedings.

There will also be a musical and literary programme rendered, and at the close refreshments will be served. The entertainment will be prepared under the auspices of Charles H. Randolph, chairman of the good and welfare committee.

Visited Vacant House.

Frank Houseman, Vincent Meaney, Seymour VanBlake and George Blake, were arrested by Roundsman Frederickson Monday morning and arraigned before City Judge Runyon on the charge of malicious mischief. It was alleged that they entered the vacant house at the corner of North Front street and Westervelt avenue and did considerable damage to the property. They all pleaded guilty and sentence was suspended by the Judge with a warning.

A Missionary to Talk

The twenty-sixth anniversary of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the First Baptist church will be held Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the church. Mrs. Heinrich, a missionary from India, will address the meeting. All are cordially invited to be present.

REMEMBERS FOUR WARS.

A UNION COUNTY MAN WHO IS CROWDING THE CENTURY MARK.

He Lives in Union Township and is Now in a Critical Condition—He Has a Daughter Seventy-Three Years Old.

In a cottage adjoining the Meeker Inn on Morris avenue, Union township, are now lying sick unto death, Mr. and Mrs. William Harvey Johnson. Mr. Johnson is ninety four years old, while his wife is eighty five. Fourteen children were born to them, eleven of whom are still living and married.

Mr. Johnson was married twice, and has a score of grandchildren. One of his daughters is 73 years of age, and resides in Newark. Never until within the last few days has Mr Johnson in all his long life needed the services of a physician. The last marriage in Mr Johnson's household was that of a daughter, twenty years ago. One of the sons of the aged sick man is the Rev. B. F. Johnson.

Mr. Johnson has outlived all the old people of Union county and is one of the few alive who remember the visit of Lafayette to America in September, 1824. He remembers seeing the soldiers marching to four different wars—namely, the War of 1812, the Mexican War, the War of the Rebellion and the Spanish-American War. His eyesight is nearly gone, and it is not expected that he or his wife will survive many days. Mr. Johnson was born in Schooley's Mountains in 1805.

WOMEN DID NOT TURN OUT.

No Fair Voters at the School Election in Dunellen.

Dunellen, March 22—The annual school meeting was held last night in the Lincoln schoolhouse for the election of three trustees. There was no fight, and the election was a quiet one. Not a woman took advantange of her right to vote, although in Lincoln conveyances were provided to carry them to and from the polling places.

The polls were open one hour and at the close it was found that W. J. Hamilton, Harry C Gaskill and Isaac J. Stiles were elected.

A mistake was made by the Board last year in not asking for a large enough appropriation, and the result is that many improvements needed have had to be only partially made, and a deficiency stares them in the face. The amount asked for this year was accordingly more than usual, $3,000, but the whole amount was voted for without much opposition.

NEW SCHOOL LAWS.

Commissioners Appointed by the Governor Have Finished Their Work.

Senator Stokes, J. B. Betts, of Somerville, and S. St. John McCutchen, the Commissioners appointed last June by Governor Voorhees to codify and revise the State laws relating to public instruction, have completed their work. The Commissioners started the work last October, and they have been constantly busy night and day up to last Monday evening at 6 o'clock. The new bill was presented to the House Monday evening last, and will be reported in that body for hearing tomorrow. It is believed that the bill will meet with strong opposition from some quarters, although it is considered to be one of the best ever presented.

EXEMPTS BOUND TO HAVE "GUS."

Won't Listen to Mr. Saltzman's Declination of Office.

The Exempt Firemen's Association held a meeting Tuesday and nominated officers for the election to take place at an early date. Auguste Saltzman was nominated for president, but declared that he desired to retire as he expects very soon to go to Europe, where he will live permanently. The members would not listen to this, however, and he finally decided to allow his name to stand. The other business transacted was of a routine nature.

New Boulevard.

Phillip Rohrich has started the work of opening a boulevard, a hundred feet wide, from Washingtonville to the new park he has established at the edge of the second mountain. It runs north from the Sterling road, starting near the intersection of the roads, and on a line parallel to the old Dugway road.

—The Woman's Home Missionary Auxiliary of the Monroe Avenue church will hold a meeting this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

Rev. J. U. Guenther, of the First German Presbyterian church, of Newark, will resign in May. Mr. Guenther founded the church 45 years ago, and also helped to organize the Presbyterian seminary for ministers at Bloomfield. He has performed 6,000 marriages.

BIG CROWD OUT TO THE SCHOOL ELECTION.

But Everything Passed Off in a Harmonious Manner.

5 TRUSTEES WERE CHOSEN.

THE NECESSARY FUNDS TO PAY EXPENSES WERE APPROPRIATED.

Meeting Was Called to Order by S. St. John McCutchen and Councilman Rogers Elected Chairman—Seven Nominations to Fill the Five Vacancies—Report of Last Year's Work Presented

The only thing exciting about the annual borough school meeting held Tuesday evening in the public school building was the crowd, and that quieted down to such an extent that by the time the vote for trustees was announced there was a handful of people present to hear the result of the election. In a few instances there were several things that appeared to be a little unusual, but everything went through on time, and as there was no opposition it was a strong indication that everyone was satisfied. A good many people came and stayed just long enough to cast their ballot after which they left. One noticeable feature was the absence of certain persons who have heretofore taken a lively interest in school matters. They may have thought that the programme was to be rendered satisfactorily and it would be unnecessary for them to be present.

President S. St. John McCutchen, of the Board of Education, called the meeting to order, and Councilman George T. Rogers was made chairman. Horace J. Martin was selected as secretary. In the call, which was read by the secretary, it stated that five members of the Board were to be elected to fill vacancies of A. V. D. Honeyman, R. M. Fountain, E. A. Overton, Henry Wells and George F. Brown. Mr. Wells resigned, owing to ill-health, while Mr. Brown resigned owing to the fact that he holds another office in the borough. There were three men to be elected for three years, one for two years and one for one year.

The following persons were placed in nomination: R. M. Fountain, A. V. D. Honeyman, E. A. Overton, James B. Joy, J. H. VanWinkle, Paul H. Loizeaux and J. H. Cooley. The balance and person at first declined to run and the nominations were closed. Afterwards W. C. Smith stated that Mr. Cooley had been persuaded to allow his name to be placed in nomination and the same was accepted.

There were in all 151 votes cast for the candidates as follows: Three years, A. V. D. Honeyman, 107; E. A. Overton, 108; R. M. Fountain, 109; two years, J. H. Cooley, 65; Paul H. Loizeaux, 77. The votes secured by Mr VanWinkle and Mr Joy were not announced.

There were 121 votes cast for the appropriations, for teachers' salaries and current expenses, $10,800; for text books and school supplies, $1,200; and 109 votes were in favor of the appropriations.

The polls were kept open for one hour and while the votes were being cast District Clerk R M. Fountain read his financial report. It showed that the receipts during the year were $30,340 36 and the expenditures $29,865 96 leaving a balance on hand of $7,374.40. In the building fund department it was shown that $20,488.68 had been received from the sale of and the interest on the $20 000 bonds issued for the erection of the new Watchung school, leaving a balance of $9,253 63.

Following the above report, which was received and filed, President McCutchen presented his annual report. This admirable paper showed that the total enrolment of the school during the year was 979. The monthly average attendance was 891 and the daily attendance 746. The enrollment in the High School was 106. This is much higher than in any previous year. There are at present twenty-seven teachers employed with Superintendent H. J. Whitman and the superintendent was commended for his excellent work, as well as the teachers.

Mr. McCutchen submitted a statement regarding the new school and stated that complete it would cost about $19,000. He commended Commissioner E. J. Waring as chairman of the building committee.

In the report Mr. McCutchen stated that in his judgment he thought that nine intensely interested school trustees were more to be desired than a less number as suggested to him. In this way the work could be divided to a better advantage. He also said that the appropriation this year is about $1,500 in excess of last year, owing to the building of the new school which would necessitate more money for expenses. The report also cited that the old part of the High School building, erected in 1882, needs attention, both as to proper heating and ventilation, while the boiler now used for heating is worn out and will not do for another year. These matters were brought to the attention of the citizens and Mr. McCutchen asked the earnest consideration of all on these matters.

The president in conclusion quoted extracts from Superintendent Wightman's report in which the superintendent hoped that a library could be established in the schools so that the scholars could take home a class of books for reading. He suggested as a plan that ten books be allowed to each classroom, and that the scholars be allowed to take them home and keep them for a limited time. He said that $75, together with the aid received from the State, would accomplish the plan. Mr. McCutchen at this time stated that H. A. McGee had already contributed $25 for this object. This statement led C. W. McCutchen and Walter McGee to contribute like amounts and George T. Rogers gave $10. This assures the library for the schools according to Mr. Wightman's plan.

Before the meeting closed those present were treated to a little surprise when William Pangborn, of Chatham street, asked the chairman if the several amounts bid for the work of constructing the new borough school could be announced. Mr. Pangborn stated that he had never been able to learn what they were and he had been informed that the local newspapers could not get the information.

This announcement created quite a stir. Some of the members of the school board questioned the statement and inquired of the reporters present if the papers had not already published the figures. They were informed that in a few instances they had, but not altogether.

Mr. Pangborn insisted that the figures be given out publicly and they were. Here they are: W. C. Smith, mason, $6 863 67; G. & C W. Hummer, carpenter, $6 689; Woolston & Buckle, slaters, $475; C. W. Krauss, plumber, $283 24; Wolfe Company, heating and ventilating, $1,897; A. D. Phillips, electrician, $65; furniture, $736.45; Bilies' Sash Company, $130; hardware, $187.

There was no further business to be considered and the meeting adjourned.

MUST RETURN THE PROPERTY.

Court of Chancery Issues an Order to Levi Hart and Wife.

Trenton, March 22.—The Court of Chancery has decreed that Levi E. Hart and Carrie, his wife, of Westfield, shall re-convey to Sarah Ann Hart the property deeded to them by her, and shall also re-assign the mortgages she assigned to them. Also that within 20 days they shall pay to her $3 500 and interest.

This is the result of the celebrated Hart case that has interested the people of Westfield and Fanwood. Hart and his wife, so the allegation reads, succeeded in getting Mrs. Sarah A. Hart, who is old and feeble, to make over her property to Levi Hart. Coddington & Swackhamer, of Plainfield, represented the old lady, and alleges undue influence, etc., in getting her to assign her property to him.

MARRIED YESTERDAY MORNING.

North Branch Swain Takes a Plainfield Girl for His Wife.

Miss Mary E Moulton, of 439 West Fourth street, and Francis B. Carpenter, of North Branch, were quietly married yesterday at 11:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's mother. Rev. Dr. Tiker performed the ceremony. There were only a few guests present, and those the relatives of the bride and groom.

A wedding breakfast followed the marriage, then the couple departed on an early afternoon train for a short honeymoon. Upon their return they will take up their residence with the groom's mother at North Branch. Mr. Carpenter is a machinist, and is employed in one of the machine shops at Bound Brook.

Fire in a Chimney

A still alarm was sent in to the fire headquarters yesterday morning F. C. Langhorne, of Putnam avenue, notified the department that there was a fire in a chimney at his residence. Chief Doane and No. 2 hose wagon hastened to the scene of the trouble and easily extinguished the fire with one extinguisher.

Now in Good Order.

The borough fire alarm system is now in first-class order according to a test made yesterday.

DISGRACE TO THE CITY.

PRESENT CONDITION OF THE PLAINFIELD CITY JAIL.

An Unclean, Sickening Odor Prevails There Tuesday—Can't Keep the Place Clean—How is Proposed New One Progressing?

An unclean, sickening odor filled the city jail yesterday. It wasn't anything particularly new, though perhaps the rain and dampness of the day somewhat increased it. The odor penetrated clear out into the court room. It was observed by some of the visitors at the city court. When they went into the corridor, which the cells open into, it was positively disgusting.

Once the city jail was condemned by the Board of Health. Then the city was allowed to retain the jail if certain improvements were made. The work was done according to direction. Warden Tommy Martin seems to attend to his duties well, but all his efforts cannot keep the place clean and sweet. The odor was so sickening that the visitors and reporters did not stay long. The thought of confining a human being in one of those cells, with that pervading stench on every side, was not pleasant. Then the visitors asked one another what had become of that movement to have a new station house.

DEATH CAME PEACEFULLY.

Mrs. Caroline F. Cutter Unable to Survive a Stroke of Apoplexy.

The community was deeply shocked Tuesday when they heard of the death of Caroline F. Cutter, which occurred in the afternoon about 3 o'clock, after being unconscious since last Wednesday evening, when she was suddenly stricken with apoplexy while alone in her room. Her last hours on earth were free from bodily suffering, simply going into a deep sleep and awaken into the joys of Heaven.

Mrs. Cutter leaves a son, Fred S., two daughters, Emma and Elizabeth, and a brother residing at Mena, Ark., besides a large circle of friends, to mourn the loss of a Christian mother and friend. Mrs. Cutter was a member of the Trinity Reformed church and for many years a teacher in the Sunday-school, until failing health compelled her recently to resign.

The funeral services will take place from her late residence, 409 West Front street, Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Interment will be private at Rahway, her native home, beside her husband and mother.

Wanted the Hangman's Rope.

Elizabeth, March 22 — Sheriff Kirk, of Union county, was surprised a couple of days ago by receiving a request from a New York saloon-keeper for the rope and noose with which Louis Roesel was hanged. The saloonkeeper, it seems, had witnessed the execution under the assumed name of J. Cassidy, and wanted the gruesome relic to place on exhibition in his establishment. He did not get it, as Hangman VanHise, of Newark, carried the noose away with him.

Poor Farm's Cattle Burned.

Millburn, March 22.—Six cows and two horses perished early yesterday morning in a fire which destroyed a large barn on the Millburn township poor farm, in White Oak Ridge. The cause of the blaze is unknown. Before it was discovered the fire had gained such a headway that it was impossible to save anything in the barn.

He Knows All About It.

If there is such a thing as having good roads in the borough Superintendent of Highways Thomas Doud will certainly accomplish that task. Mr. Doud is a man of large experience in road construction and not only knows when a road is properly built but also knows when enough money has been expended on it.

Debaters to Organize.

A meeting will be held at the Y. M. C. A. building this evening for the object of forming a debating society in connection with the Y. M. C. A. Such a society has been long contemplated, but no action has been taken until now. The society will organize at once and be ready to do active work next fall.

Money to Run City Government.

It is confidently believed that the next meeting of the Common Council, April 3d, the appropriations for the year will be fixed. Then the fire committee will be able to make arrangements to fit up the new engine house in the West End.

Turned Over Books to New Clerk.

Former Borough Clerk Arnold, of the borough, turned over his books, papers and all things connected with the office to Clerk Frank W. Rowley Tuesday afternoon.

MURRAY IS STILL FOR CHEAPER 'PHONES

Squier Got Support of Republican Caucus.

WON BY A SMALL VOTE.

PLAINFIELD PAID FIRE DEPARTMENT BILL PASSED.

Cheap Telephone Bill Will Be Kept in Committee—Republican Caucus Sustained Assemblyman Squier's Action—Other Bills Passed That Are of Interest to the People of Plainfield.

Trenton, March 23—The fight for cheap telephones on the part of Assemblyman Roger F. Murray, of Plainfield, still continues. Yesterday he had another encounter with the leader of the opposition, Assemblyman Squier, and the latter managed to rally a majority of the Republican legislators to his support in caucus.

Murray has been keeping steadily at work in his efforts to get his bill out of committee. His persistency has evidently worried Squier, for yesterday Squier asked the Republican caucus to sustain him in holding the "cheap telephone" bill in committee. The vote to sustain him was passed by a very small majority.

Despite this defeat Murray is still in the field, although he has very little possible chance of ever getting the bill before the Legislature this session.

Among the bills that were passed by the Assembly yesterday was Murray's bill giving cities like Plainfield the right on vote of the Council to raise a tax of not over quarter of one per cent. for the support of a paid fire department. It is well understood that the bill was intended to give Plainfield a paid department.

Another of Murray's bills, No. 183, went through the House as well. It exempts the Y. M. C. A. and the Young Men's Catholic Club from taxation.

Murray's bill, No. 39, allows the Council to allow a rebate for taxes paid in advance bill No. 138 allows the First M. E. church, in Plainfield, to sell a part of its burying ground on Plainfield avenue. Both were passed by the Senate.

A YOUNG WIFE DEAD.

Mrs. A. A. Philo Passes Away After Having Been Married a Year.

The many friends of Mrs. A. A. Philo will learn with deep regret of her sudden death which occurred last Saturday at her home at Keyport, this State. Mrs. Philo was married in North Plainfield about a year ago and she and her husband took up their residence at Keyport. The funeral services were held Tuesday at the home of relatives in Newark. The employes of I. H. Boehm's dry goods store sent a beautiful floral pillow and otherwise expressed their feelings of sympathy. A husband and infant daughter survive the deceased. Herman Philo, a brother-in-law of the deceased, has taken charge of the daughter.

SUIT AGAINST TRACTION COMPANY.

Fanwood Wants to Be Reimbursed for Money Spent Two Years Ago.

Dunellen, March 22—The inhabitants of Fanwood, through their counsel, W. R. Codington, have brought suit against the New York and Philadelphia Traction Company for the sum of about $900, and the papers in the suit have been issued by Justice Warden.

At the time the Traction Company applied for a franchise through the township special meetings were called, notices were posted and other expenses incurred which, it is said, the company promised to stand.

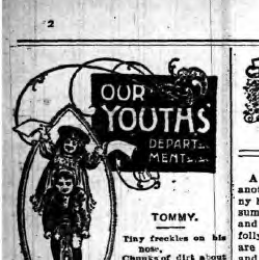
Two years nearly have passed, and no use of the franchise has been made, neither has the company paid those bills, so suit has been brought. The case will come up for trial April 4th.

WANT THE COSTS PAID.

Bard Cycle Company's Creditors May be Put to Extra Expenses.

There are now arising more complications in the affairs of the Bard Company, and they have begun suit in Justice Mosher's court against F. W. Runyon and A. L. C. Marsh, for the costs in the two right of property cases recently tried. Both Runyon and Marsh secured judgments against the Bard Cylce Company, and when the right of property was tried the Bard Company came out ahead. They now want the two plaintiffs in execution to pay the costs of the trial, about $6 apiece. The cases are returnable March 28th.

Rev. Father Smyth, of St. Mary's church, has returned from a visit with Newark friends.



Tiny freckles on his nose,
Chunks of dirt about his toes;
Making mud pies as he goes;
My boy, Tommy.

Underneath a tawny brow
Jetty eyes are sparkling now—
Planning mischief, too I vow,
My boy, Tommy.

Hunting robins in the trees,
Horn-ets' nest, and bumble bees—
Elbows out, and well worn knees,
My boy, Tommy.

Plays at soldier, Indian chief,
Railroad robber and bank thief,
"Goes to Canada"—in grief,
My boy, Tommy.

Sailing vessels, rain or shine—
Filled with gold from Klondike mine;
Skipping nuggets extra fine,
My boy, Tommy.

"Little one," say laughing I,
"Who are you?"—with wondering cry—
"Future President am I!
Your boy, Tommy."

—Tena M. Abbott.

Slate-Pencils.

Slate-pencils undergo a number of processes before they are ready for use, explains the Philadelphia Times, and in making them nearly all of the manual labor is done by boys.

First, broken pieces of slate are put into a mortar run by steam, and are crushed to a fine powder, which is then bolted in a machine such as is used in flouring mills. A fine slate flour results, which is thoroughly mixed in a large tub with steatite flour and other materials, the whole making a stiff dough. The dough is kneaded by being passed between iron rollers a number of times, and is then taken to a table, where it is made into short cylinders four or five inches in thickness, and containing from eight to ten pounds of material each.

Four of these cylinders are placed in a strong iron retort, which has a changeable nozzle, so that the size of the pencils may be regulated. In the retort the material is subjected to great heat and pressure, and is thus pushed through the nozzle in the shape of a long cord. As the cord comes through the nozzle, it passes over a knife, and is cut into the desired lengths. The lengths are laid on boards to dry, and are then placed on sheets of corrugated zinc, the corrugation preventing the pencils from warping during the baking process. The baking is done in a kiln, into which superheated steam is introduced through pipes.

The pencils go from the kiln to the finishing and packing room, where the ends are held for an instant under a rapidly revolving emery wheel, which neatly points them.

Finally they are packed in pasteboard boxes, one hundred pencils in each box, then one hundred of the pasteboard boxes are packed in a wooden box, and they are ready for shipment.

Slavery Among Ants.

The ant has long been held up to mankind as a model of industry. Along with the story of Washington's hatchet and the busy, busy bee, the ant and its zeal for work have formed the chief bugaboos of the American schoolboy. Now, along comes the scientist and proves that the ant, at least one species of the tribe, is about the laziest, the most ruffianly and the most dishonest thing in the animal kingdom.

This particular species is known as the red forest ant. These delightful creatures are regular slavers. The workers, built on the same model as an African settlement for a slave raid could get valuable pointers from the red forest ant. A drove of the red ants marshaled by the stoutest of the species, marches down on a colony of black ants, real workers. After a fierce battle, in which the black ants are always worsted, and driven to flight, the invaders take possession of the eggs they find in the quarters of their victims. These eggs the thieves carry off to their own quarters. Here the eggs are turned over to slaves that have been procured in previous raids. It is the duty of these slaves to nurture and rear the young ants that come out of them. This accomplished, and the young blacks having attained the proper working age, the slaves are forced to forage for food for their red masters, to look after things about the quarters, and to do the work of slaves generally. They are even compelled to chew the food for their masters.—New York Journal.

To Drive a Needle Through a Cent.

"An apparent mechanical impossibility may be accomplished by simple means, using a copper cent and a cork, with a common cambric needle, as accessories," writes magician Harry Kellar, in the Ladies' Home Journal. "Announce that you will drive a small needle through a coin, and few will be ready to accept your statement, yet it is very simple, and any one can do it. Take a copper coin, place it upon two small blocks of wood, leaving a very narrow space between the two blocks. Now, having selected a good sound cork, force the needle through it until the point just appears at the other end. Break off the portion of the head of the needle showing above the top of the cork. Place the cork upon the coin and strike it a fair, smart blow with a hammer. The needle will be driven entirely through the penny by a single blow.

THE WOMAN'S WORLD

The "Penny Habit."

A student of children has designated another peril of childhood as the "penny habit," the constant giving of small sums wherewith to purchase "sweets" and nuts. This indulgence exceeds daily and becomes a crime, as injurious are its effects upon health, disposition and character. The true value of money is better impressed by the English method of allowance, but under very different conditions from that granted in America, says a recent writer. Each child of the household is given a certain fixed sum every week to supply the trifling luxuries coveted aside from those on the family table. Whatever it may be, whether three pence, sixpence or a shilling, it is not increased or replaced when spent until the time expires. In this country, as a rule, the allowance is promptly spent at the beginning of the week, the middle and end hopelessly calling for additional contributions, prompted by the distressing poverty of the little pocketbook and the winsome pleadings of the owner. That this course is all wrong needs no argument other than actual experience with the fair-sick, excoriating child who is its victim. Foreigners attribute the lack of respect and love shown to parents by children of America as the natural sequence of over-indulgence. Recognizing this as a just conclusion to be not only deplored but remedied, a reform is asserting itself which is speedily to be apparent in results. At home, school and during vacation days mother love awakens to its responsibility, and strengthened by courage and firm resolve to meet it, will work wonders in the juvenile world.—Chicago Times-Herald.

A Queen in Her Own Right.

There is such an outcry on both sides of the Atlantic on the subject of international marriages, especially when one party to the alliance is a member of the British peerage and the other a member of the moneyed aristocracy of America, that a few statistics will not be uninteresting.

At the end of 1896 there were nine peers who married women of this class. As there are three American dowager peeresses, the total number of brides taken across the Atlantic by English peers since 1850 is twelve. It is curious, too, that there is not a single Irish peer on the list, and only one Scotch viscount.

Of the wives of the eldest sons of peers, five are American. There are also five of our kinswomen who hold the courtesy title of lady, nineteen with the courtesy title of honorable, fifteen who hold the title of lady as wives of baronets, nine as wives of knights. So in round numbers, since 1850, about seventy titled Englishmen have married Americans.

This number is likely to increase much more rapidly during the next decade, because the rapid increase that in the value of their landed estates, many English peers are growing more and more impoverished, while the ranks of moneyed Americans are steadily increasing. And the American girl seems incapable of learning, either by precept or example, that she is a queen in her own country, whereas in a foreign home she will find not only a queen over her, but something like twelve thousand titled dames who will look down upon her and possibly snub her.—Puritan.

Beauty of Small Courtesies.

We are all born but once. Most of us marry but once. We certainly can die but once. And if we look at life "as a small bundle of great things," we shall certainly not think it worth while to practice small courtesies. But if we regard it, far more truly, as "a big bundle of small things, we shall as certainly feel that few things in life are better worth doing than to practice be in our power to save anybody's life, or for anybody a fortune, shed lustre upon the family name, die for our country, or set the smallest river on fire in any way whatever. But if we conscientiously and sweetly really feeling it to be emphatically a virtue that is its own reward. Yet it is a wonder that preachers do not urge it upon their congregations from a thousand pulpits—on off-Sundays, say, when they are not pitching into the Pope, if they be Protestants or into the Protestants if they be Roman Catholics, and have time for the marrow of all creeds, and can be content to let the bones take care of themselves.—Lippincott's Magazine.

Hardy Table Plants.

The Mexican palm grass is a thrifty plant for a centerpiece for the dining table. It is a hardy grower and is especially effective. Parsley may also be grown pretty, and it may be preserved by placing it for several hours every day in the window, where the sun can reach it. A fern should be kept in a north room. In selecting a plant for decoration at this season, when it is possible to find one that has been grown out of doors, it will be found to be more hardy, and consequently the blossom will last longer.—New York Tribune.

ROYALTY LABORS.

PRINCESS LOUISE ADDS TO HER INCOME BY HER CHISEL.

People Desirous of Obtaining Favorable Notice from Queen Victoria Will Understand the Secret to Gaining Her Approbation.

Sculpture is a favorite art among those royal and imperial ladies of the Old World who are most distinguished for the exuberance of their temperament, the independence of their characters and the breadth of their mind. The young Princess of Naples has already distinguished herself as a sculptor. One of her works is a statue of her ancestor, the Vladika Danilo of Montenegro.

Princess Louise, fourth daughter of Queen Victoria, adds to her annual income by her chisel. She is far from rich, her husband, the Marquis of Lorne, being actually compelled to work as one of the junior partners in a firm of solicitors in the Queen Victoria Chambers, London. The Princess always has her hands full of orders for statues and busts of her mother, the Queen, from people desirous of social and titular distinction.

It has been found by persons of this class that the best way to attract the favorable notice of the sovereign is to present a statue of Her Majesty to some town or city, and when in addition to this the statue thus presented has been executed at a more than ordinarily large cost by her daughter Louise, of course the Queen is especially appreciative of the compliment paid. Thus some time ago Proprietor Borthwick, of the London Morning Post, who was member of Parliament for the Kensington district in the metropolis, announced his decision to present to his constituency a statue of the Queen to be erected in the chief square of the district. He placed the order for the statue with Princess Louise, and gave her a price of $20,000 for the work. The result was that the Queen herself presided at the unveiling of the statue, and before a year had elapsed the sagacious proprietor of the Morning Post had been elevated to a peerage under the name and title of Lord Glenesk.

One of the Queen's grandnieces, Countess Gleichen, whose father was Prince Victor Hohenlohe, earns her living by her chisel, which renders her independent of the relatively small allowance which Parliament has placed at her mother's disposal.

Another royal lady who is renowned from one end of Europe to the other for her skill with mallet and chisel is the widowed Empress Frederick of Germany, eldest daughter of Queen Victoria. Some of the best busts and medallions of her lamented husband have come from her studio.

An imperial lady who runs her very close in this respect is the widowed Archduchess Marie Therese of Austria.

HOW WORTH WORKED.

And the Long Waiting Women Would Endure to be Well Gowned.

On days on which there were to be Court dinners or other functions Parisian dressmakers had ordered gowns for them came to Worth, the well-known dressmaker, to be dressed. First come, first served; but there was a waiting room with choice refreshments—a very necessary arrangement—for a fair customer will wait one, two or even eight hours. When her turn came she entered the consulting-room. Worth stood there, armed with a pair of scissors. Two women stood beside him. They undressed the lady behind a screen—for her petticoats were to be the skirt of the gown, and her skin to be to the flesh. When her toilet so far was complete the new gown was donned, and she emerged from behind the screen to be passed in review by Worth. He was particular about the cut and plainness of bodies. He criticised aloud, worked here and there with the scissors and pins. The women acting under his orders also pinned and plied their needles. Glasses of wine were administered when nerves had run down from long waiting.

A Considerate Dog.

A neat dog story, which was related by a gentleman the other day, can be verified. He was riding upon the rear of a trolley car when the car passed over a nice, light, soft hat, which had blown between the tracks. The hat was not injured, but the wind gave it a little flirt after the car had passed and dropped it in the upon one of the rails. A big New York cur was coming and ahead of it a big mongrel pointer dog was trotting along.

The dog glanced at the hat, looked at the car, and then picking up the hat in his mouth, ran to the curb and deposited it upon the sidewalk near a group of pavers who were working alongside of the court house. After putting the hat in a safe place the dog loped after the big car and took his place in front of it.—Newark Call.

Turned Black and Died.

A peculiar case from a medical standpoint was that of Luther W. Thrasher.

The strange part of the case and the feature which proved so interesting to the physicians consulted was that about three months before he died the boy began to turn black. The nigrescence continued, and at the time of his death he was as dark as, or darker than most negroes.—Hartford Courant.

What One Girl Can Do.

A Kansas girl of seventeen won a prize in an unusual contest. She was matched against two more expert blacksmiths in the city, and, to their dismay, turned out a perfect horseshoe in less than four minutes.—Tid-Bits.

Hogs on the Dairy Farm.

Where there is no demand for the skim-milk of a dairy farm, some method must be devised for disposing of it in the best advantage. One very good way is to keep hogs, with the average size dairy quite a number can be kept to advantage.

At present the market demand is for light hogs or well fed pigs weighing about 200 lbs. To so pigs this will require more pigs than must be disposed of at six to eight months old. This means the raising or purchasing of more stock and as the last will require quite an outlay the first should be practiced when possible.

Much depends upon the sow for this purpose. Some are quiet, gentle and make good mothers, while fully as often they are just the reverse. If a sow proves to be a good mother it will be found far better to keep her steadily raising pigs, rather than changing every year. I have a sow which has averaged two litters annually for the past four years. Each litter had eight pigs which lived. She is a Chester White of good size, is easily kept when not sucking pigs and is the kindest of mothers.

With a dairy of 18 cows I raise enough calves for the use of the farm and keep most of the pigs. They are fattened and disposed of at six to eight months of age, and are always wanted by buyers. To fit pigs for market at this age requires good feeding, and grain in addition to the skimmilk. I feed corn meal mostly and on this diet they grow and fatten rapidly. I have had very little trouble with disorders of any kind. I am careful to keep them warm during winter, dry and dry and comfortable at all times. Last year I sold over $100 worth of pork and pigs, besides providing for the use of a large family.—E. R. Loude in Agriculturist.

The Seed Report Broken.

Over 20,000,000 packages of vegetable, flower, and field seed were distributed by the Department of Agriculture during last spring. This distribution gave to each member of Congress 40,000 packages of seed at a total cost of $130,000. Over 1,000,000 of these packages were flower seed, and nearly 300,000 field seed, the balance being a great variety of vegetables. In the entire distribution nearly every variety of vegetable known to the agriculturists was distributed. There were 32 varieties of beans, 16 varieties of beets, 23 varieties of cabbage, 11 varieties of carrots, 19 varieties of sweet corn, 18 kinds of cucumbers, 30 kinds of lettuce, 19 varieties of muskmelons, 17 kinds of watermelons and 15 varieties of onions. The entire amount of seeds distributed was sufficient to plant an area of 355 square miles.

This is the largest distribution of seeds ever attempted by the Department of Agriculture.—Washington Star.

Bumble-Bees in Australia.

Many years ago the farmers of Australia found bumble-bees from England and set them free in their clover fields. Before the arrival of the bees, clover did not flourish in Australia, but after their coming the farmers had no more difficulty on that score. Mr. Darwin had shown that bumble-bees were the only insects fond of clover nectar whose tongues were long proboscis sufficiently long to reach the bottom of the long tube-like flowers, and, at the same time, a body heavy enough to bend down the clover-head so that the pollen would fall on their insects' backs and thus be carried off to fertilize other flowers of the same species. According to a writer in 'Popular Science News,' the bumble-bees sent to Australia cost the farmers there about half a dollar apiece, but they proved to be worth the price.

Peanut Butter Industry.

A new use for peanuts is developing as the peanut butter industry becomes better understood. This product of the peanut answers in the place of ordinary butter for table use and is said to be excellent for shortening purposes, and for gravies, sauces, etc. In point of purity it is superior to the best dairy butter. It is well designed for the use of vegetarians who strenuously object to anything animal. There is already a considerable demand for this butter substitute, and it is very probable that it will be an enlarged market for the nuts. At present the product of the United States is about 500,000 bags annually, and that of the world is 600,000,000 pounds.—West Coast Trade.

Willing to Take the Whole.

A correspondent of the Boston Journal tells this story of Calvin S. Brice: A friend of his had a scheme for building a tramway across the White Pass to connect with the railway leading up to the Klondike. This man telegraphed Brice a description of the project that fairly made the wires glow. All he wanted was $100,000 to put the scheme through, and it was sure to yield $100,000 profit every month right from the start. How much of the $100,000 did Brice take? In reply a wire came the message: "You needn't look any further. I'll take the whole of it. Pay it out of the first month's earnings." Send on the $25,000 and look at once."

First Tramp—What do you think of dese fellers what's lookin' for perpetual motion?

Second Tramp—They is crazy. What we need is perpetual eat.

Pure Cultures in Ripening Cream.

Bacteria are minute organisms which take part in all organic changes. These have to do with the changes in the milk and butter. They cause, or at least affect, the flavor of the butter and determine whether it shall be of the highest order or of poor quality. The influence of normal feed does not have much of an effect upon the flavor. Turnips, leets, onions, etc., or vegetables which contain pungent oil, leave a disagreeable flavor, but ordinary feeds do not. The texture of the butter, however, can be altered by feed.

I have come to believe that some breeds of cattle produce a better flavored butter than others. In my opinion the Jersey leads in this desirable quality. The milk in the udder of the cow is usually free from bad odors. If it is milked into a can and not allowed to come in contact with the air, it will remain pure, but if it passes through much of the atmosphere or is allowed to stand exposed, it will soon deteriorate. This deterioration is caused by the introduction of bad bacteria, which are always found in the air and are especially numerous in a foul atmosphere. The use of pure cultures of fluids containing good bacteria of one kind is considered beneficial, especially where milk is unduly exposed.—Prof. C. D. Smith, Michigan.

Cow-Lot Rid of Rats.

In closed bins, where carbon bisulphide can be used, rats can be got rid of in short time. Merely place an open dish full of the chemical on top of the grain and allow it to evaporate. This will permeate every point and kill all living creatures. In using the bisulphide, remember that it is very inflammable and all lights and fires must be kept away from the building while it is being used.

Rats can also be killed by catching one of the animals and inoculating it with a virus prepared especially for this purpose. Release the animal and it will spread contagion among all the rats in the place, thus resulting in clearing a farm. This virus can be obtained from large drug stores and is good for use from 10 to 13 days after it has been put up. If the animal cannot be caught to be inoculated, the virus may be mixed with food and fed to the rats, when it will take effect in the same way. The advantage of this virus is that while it is death to rodents it does not affect domestic animals or human beings. In this it has a great advantage over strychnine, rough on rats, etc.—American Agriculturist.

Old Turkeys for Breeders.

I believe that the average turkey raiser makes a serious mistake in disposing of his breeding stock every year and recruiting his flock from young and often immature birds. Young turkeys do not make number one breeders. While it is true that a hen yearling hen will lay more eggs in a single season than a three or four-year-old, still from practical experience, I have become convinced that the latter will produce a greater percentage of poults with sufficient vitality to carry them to maturity.

One of the most striking instances illustrating the hardihood of old hens is the experience of a neighbor a few years ago who succeeded in keeping one hen thirteen years. While she was not as prolific as compared with her earlier years, yet in the aggregate she reared as many poults towards the last as during her more youthful years.

Currycomb and Brush.

As a rule the currycomb is used too much and the brush too little. When a horse, covered with sweat and mud, is brought into the stable, he should be rubbed dry with straw, and then the next morning, with a currycomb in one hand and a brush in the other, he can be thoroughly cleaned. The currycomb should be used only to straighten the hair ahead of the brush. The difficulty about getting a good currycomb arises from neglect to rub the horse clean with straw before leaving him for the night. Much care should be used in cleaning a horse's legs with a currycomb, so as not to injure the joints. Some persons in using the currycomb bear down so hard that it makes the horse nervous, and if he kicks he is not to blame.

His Own Uncle.

A few days ago a young medical student came suddenly face to face with Lear, kind, old, fatherly looking gentleman of highly respectable appearance.

They both stood transfixed. The same idea flashed across both of them.

"Your face is familiar to me—very familiar; but I can't remember where we have met so often."

However, the friendly impulse was carried out. They shook hands warmly, partook of a friendly glass and departed, still ignorant of each other's name and occupation.

But the young man was determined to solve the problem, and he solved on a waiter.

"Who is that distinguished stranger with the long white hair?"

And the waiter whispered slowly:

"That's Mr. Brown-Jones, the celebrated!"—Answers.

How This?

A doctor says that persons who attain their thirtieth year without suffering from any serious disease are liable all things being equal to live on they are at least seventy-three years of age.

Hold Over Ensilage Good Feed.

During the spring of 1896 I planted about nine acres of white flint corn to be put into the silo for winter dairy feed. The rows were three feet apart on the hills, with three to four kernels in each, were 15 inches apart in the rows. The corn made a very large growth, eared well and when ready to glaze harvest commenced, this being about Sept. 15. About 247 large loads were cut into ½-in lengths and put into three silos, each 16 to 18 feet deep and 11x17 inside measure. It was well packed in the corners and sides and also was well tamped down every two or three days for about three weeks, until well sealed. No other covering was put on it, but the top soon rotted so as to seal air tight. December 1 the first silo was opened for feeding. The waste on top for about six inches was thrown on top of the one next to it. After the first one was fed out the waste on top of the middle one was thrown on top of the third and last one. I first began feeding the second silo June 1, 1897, at which time the cows were turned out to pasture. Not being able to feed the third one, it was left till Aug. 15, when the accumulated waste of the three silos was thrown off and carted away. There was about 2 inches thick and thoroughly rotted. There was no connection between the decayed part and the preserved ensilage and it parted as nicely as though a sheet of paper had been placed between. The dairy of 40 or more cows was fed with the ensilage twice a day, about one bushel per cow, until all was used. It kept perfectly and was eaten by the cows as readily as in winter. The new corn was run into the silo next day after the old was used up.

This is my experience in keeping over ensilage for next summer's feeding when pasturage is short, or in a very dry season when extra feed is necessary. My cows eat it much better than newly cut corn from the field. My advice would be to never open the silo to be consumed over until ready to feed. I was unable in my conversation with different farmers using ensilage to find one who would give me any encouragement that mine would keep over. As I do not feed it I was driven to let it remain, believing the feed could do nothing worse than rot, but the experiment proved a success.—B. C. Patterson in Agriculturist.

Oxford Sheep Popular.

Originating about 1830 in Oxfordshire, England, by a mixture of Cotswold, Hampshire, and, to a certain extent, Southdown blood, this breed first came to public notice between 1850 and 1860. It is now known all over England and after its introduction into the United States by Alexander Hyde of Lynn, Mass., and William C. Rives of Virginia, it has become a favorite. The early importers found that Oxford sheep thrived much better on rough pasturage than other breeds. The mutton was of high quality even when the sheep had been reared on poor land. Of recent years this breed has given excellent satisfaction on the great farms of the middle west. The sheep belong to the middle wool breeds. The face and legs are dark brown with a grayish tinge. The head is medium in size with a short tuft on the top of the forehead. The fleece is not so long as that of the Cotswold but is closer and firmer and stands out well from the body. The legs are short and the barrel well rounded. The size of the rams ranges from 200 to 250 lbs. with the ewes somewhat smaller.

Oxfords from Iowa, Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan, Indiana and Ohio have taken many prizes, and this goes to show that this class of sheep is well adapted to a comparatively level country with rich soil. They seem to do well even on low lands and fields are quite swampy. This is probably due to the fact that the original home of the breed was at the base of the Cotswold hills, a wet, springy soil. These with the Shropshires come nearer general purpose sheep than any other breeds known. To this their popularity is largely due. The fleece is heavy and sells well, while the carcass furnishes a large amount of high grade mutton always in demand.

One Big Leak.

"It is a source of wonder to many, remarks an exchange, that each year there is such a vast amount of farm machinery sold in this section. But a visit to the farms will furnish the explanation. Answers, harvesters, etc., don't take care of their machinery. They leave it to rot and rust in fence corners that afford poor protection to it. They do not keep it in good repair and neglect it in many ways. Thousands of dollars are paid for useless mowers, harvesters, etc., every year that might be saved by our farmers if the machines were properly operated, kept in repair and well housed when the work is done. It takes off a good share of the profits to let a machine go to rack and wreck exposed to the elements."

All kinds of poultry have a great fondness for sour milk. It is a cheap food if properly handled. For laying hens and growing chickens put the milk into troughs or pans, boil before and after it is thick. For turkeys make a curd by pouring off the whey. Be very careful at the last feeding of the day to feed lightly, for when they run at large, their crops are crowded with insects. Try a small ration of curd and corn meal at night, to draw them home, after the forage of the day

Unsalted Butter.

The consumption of unsalted or sweet butter in New York is increasing all the time. A few years ago there were only three or four commission houses that handled it at all; now there are, perhaps, a dozen that do, some of them receiving large quantities. The sales of unsalted butter amount to less than 1 per cent of all. But the total consumption of butter is enormous, and the amount of unsalted butter sold is now very considerable. In a general way it may be said that sweet butter is eaten mostly by the very poorest people and by those who are very comfortably situated. By far the largest consumers of unsalted butter are the Hebrews. And unsalted butter is now used, or it may be had, in many of the finest hotels and restaurants. It has long been used in some of these; its increasing use in them is perhaps in response to, or, to demands from foreign guests. Unsalted butter is far more commonly used in Europe than here.

The butter commonly sold contains about an ounce of salt to the pound, and more or less coloring matter. The sweet butter contains no coloring matter, and is uncolored; salt is added to suit the taste of the consumer. In some restaurants there is now rand a butter containing about half the usual proportion of salt.

Salt is a preservative and the ordinary butter of commerce keeps much longer than sweet butter, and must be used while fresh. Sweet butter is mainly New York state butter, but in winter some is brought from further West. A great deal of the sweet butter is carried to the city by express, which adds to the cost of it, and the latter makes another charge for more for it, because it is all butter and no salt. Sweet butter costs at wholesale commonly a cent a pound more than salted butter, and sometimes 3 or 4 cents a pound more. It is of a lighter color than most salted butters, and when fresh and sweet is of an agreeable fragrance.—New York Sun.

When Lime Will Help Soil.

To find out if soil will be helped by the application of lime Dr. H. J. Wheeler, of the Rhode Island Station, says: Place a tablespoonful of the soil in a tumbler or cup and moisten with sufficient water to make a thick paste. Let it stand for twenty minutes, then with a knife blade part the soil and introduce a slip of blue litmus paper, say about half an inch wide and two inches long. Press the soil about the paper, and after two or three minutes remove the paper, rinse off the adhering soil and look to the color. If reddish, lime will be a benefit. If the soil has a reddish tint it may be well to bring that one side of the paper in contact with it, when if the red strikes through it may be considered that the soil is acid and lime will do it good.

If soil is suspected of containing an excess of carbonate of lime and magnesia stir a little of the soil in water to which a few drops of ammonia are added. Let stand for some hours, when the water at the top will be colorless. Where lime and magnesia are lacking the liquid has a dark brown appearance, the intensity depending upon the need of lime.

What quicklime is used in small quantities, Dr. Wheeler says, a convenient way is to place it in a basket and dip it in water for a moment, then dump it in a wagon body and let it remain for some hours, after which take it to the field and apply.

Harrow lime in at once, else it will take with the soil and not yield with the best results.

As to buying lime, he says: In every 178.6 pounds of carbonate of lime there is 78.6 pounds combined carbonic acid gas. It is, therefore, economy to burn the lime to avoid handling this extra bulk for each 100 pounds of lime.

When quicklime fully water slakes, 100 pounds of it takes up 32 pounds of water, thus increasing the weight one-third.

The Value of White Pine.

THE VALUABLE WHITE PINE.

Of all trees for all soils and all locations the white pine seems the best. From low bottom land to sandy hilltop, on heavy clay or prairie loam, it will thrive and always maintain the look of its environment. If crowded till some of its branches smother and die, it shakes off the dead, useless limbs, and rounds out the sparsest trunk. Wound the bark and its resinous juice pours out healing and protecting balm, until time covers it with a new growth. Planted in a close row it forms a splendid wind break for the drive or orchard or building. In a solid clump the cold blasts of winter and the excessive heat of summer are alike tempered and made agreeable, while every breath drawn here is laden with soothing, healing, resinous odors. Planted singly no tree surpasses it in symmetry of strength, and when mature the harvest is a rich one.—American Agriculturist.

Getting Rid of Wild Morning Glory.

This pest can only be killed by persistent effort. Smothering will prove most effectual. Mow the vines in small patches as early as possible, remove the shocks and plow the ground. As soon as any growth appears above the surface go over with a cultivator with a deep-working harrow. Repeat this as often as necessary until time for seeding for the following year's crop, then put in spring grain again and after harvest give the field the same treatment as the year before. Careful work of this kind will kill almost any weed pest, but if a few specimens remain, continue another year.

IS LEPROSY CHECKED

HAWAII'S DREAD PLAGUE DISCUSSED BY A HAWAIIAN.

Island Authorities Hope, But Are Not Sure, That They Have It Under Control — Life in the Colony—Regarding Intermarriages.

Hawaiian authorities sincerely believe that they have fought leprosy to a standstill. They base this belief on the fact that few or no lepers under middle age are now discovered. The young leper is only occasionally found. A few years ago it was not so. When the plan of segregating the sufferers from their kind and sending them to the colony on Molokai to live was put into operation, the discovery of young victims was comparatively common. Now, if no more youthful cases are found it is perfectly obvious that the complete stamping out of the disease will be only a question of time. It is, of course, unnecessary to state that no person in Hawaii cherishes any hope more earnestly than the hope that the spread of the disease has at last been definitely stopped.

The leper colony contained 1,111 persons on a certain date not long ago, and the population thereof is gradually though very slowly increasing. The number of persons known to be leprous in the colony is not increasing, however, but the reverse, the decrease by death more than offsetting the increase by newly discovered cases. The increase of population comes from the births. An attempt was made some years ago to prevent the marriage of lepers. It was not successful, however, and many children have been born of these marriages. Whether they will surely be lepers is not yet settled. Many of them are now apparently as healthy as any one. The boys and girls are kept separate, are educated and well cared for. The dread of leprosy felt by these persons people is very marked, as a matter of course. They aid the authorities in the work of fighting it to the extent of their ability by keeping entirely apart from those known to be tainted. This is rendered quite easy by the fact that the quarters of the youngsters are several miles from the homes of the adult sufferers. The colony, you must understand, covers a territory as large as eleven square miles, or half as many wide, or more at one point.

The leper colony, by the way, is a little world of itself. The colonists are much like other human beings. They engage in various occupations and have a social life of their own. They even publish newspapers. There was a time when the lepers were allowed to have certain small amounts of money in their possession. This has been prohibited, because it was found that they would gamble it away and all the money in the colony speedily found its way into the pockets of a few.

Everything possible is done to make the life of the children in the colony as bearable as may be. Every now and again an appeal is published in the newspapers for the raising of money to buy them something which they lack, and such an appeal never fails of its object. The boys have two bands and their instruments and the uniforms which they wear were sent to them as the result of private subscriptions in Honolulu, and the pleasure of the young girls in the colony has been especially looked after in many ways.

It is not easy for strange newspaper men to visit the colony. In fact, no one can obtain a permit to do so unless he can show that he is a person who will not write in too "rosehued" a vein concerning what he sees there.

"The statement that leprosy is not contagious," said a lifelong resident, "has been made so many times that it is hardly necessary to repeat it. The contention that it is not infectious is made by some who should be able to speak with authority, is false and misleading. Hawaiians, who ought to have some notion of the facts, if any one in the communication to the belief that it is infectious. Furthermore, although they think it not likely to be contradicted by persons of correct life, yet even that is not impossible.

The table linen, too, is always displaced at these Sanuary "white sales." For the last two years it has been cambrics and broken grasses for borders, oak leaves and acorns and a sort of zigzag chain lightning pattern, but now we find leafed flowers with clever blossoms, polka dots large and small and half moons with a small flower of some sort scattered among the moons. The prettiest of them all was one satiny design of moss rose buds with trailing vine of the same as border. The napkins, three dozen, are always produced in miniature in the same design in three sizes. One can always obtain a tray cloth and doilies of the same if one wishes—and has money enough. Isn't it funny when you look at it? You see a pile of beautiful, clean, white linen which the storekeeper is willing to give you in exchange for some dirty, ill-smelling, old, greeny brown rags.

The Colosseum.

The Colosseum is the name given to the Flavian Amphitheater in Rome, a large edifice for gladiatorial combats, fights of wild beasts and similar sports. It was begun by Vespasian, who died A. D. 79, and finished by Titus, 80 A. D., when to mark the event games and fights were held, in which it is said that 5,000 animals and a large number of gladiators were killed. The amphitheater was 1,641 feet around, 615 feet long, 510 feet broad, and was in the form of an eclipse, and seated 87,000 persons. The marble with which it was originally lined has been used to build the palaces of modern Rome. More than 400 varieties of plants have been found in the ruins.

FILIP.NO SNAKE DANCE.

Each Native Holds several Reptiles and Then Begins the Dance.

"There are some things in which the Filipinos resemble the American Indian disagreeably," says C. F. Todd of St. Louis. Mr. Todd spent a number of years in the Philippine Islands, returning to this country just before the outbreak of the war.

"I was exploring a portion of the Sulu group in search of a purchasable tree of teak, when my native guide invited me to see a snake dance at moonrise. We made our way through a jungled path a little way, and suddenly upon a green of forty natives squatted on the ground, perfectly motionless, as though carved out of marble. My guide had previously warned me not to speak or make a noise, as it would break the spell and throw the wrath of the medicine men, with serious and perhaps fatal results.

For many minutes there was no sound, then from behind a tree darted a hideously painted figure carrying in each hand a writhing serpent. It danced into the centre of the crowd, and others began to come out of the semi-darkness until there were twenty nude savages, each with a snake in each hand, brandishing snakes of all sizes and kinds, and as they bent forward and backward in contortions, snakes and men seemed blended into a writhing mass. The only sound was the angry hiss of the snakes.

"The ceremony lasted for full half an hour, then, though no word had been spoken, but by some preconcerted signal, each performer cast his snake to the ground and glided off to the woods. I was paralyzed with horror when I saw a huge reptile wriggling toward me, but it passed into the jungle. My guide afterward told me that the ceremony is performed twice a year, and the snakes are then released to escape. In the recollection of the oldest native, neither performer nor spectator had ever been bitten by the serpents at the celebration."

The Doomed Elephant.

Alfred Sharpe contributes to Blackwood a very interesting little plea for the preservation of the African elephant, which is being ruthlessly slaughtered for its ivory, and is now in danger of extinction. The reason is not hard to seek. The African native throughout the continent, since the introduction of firearms, urged on by the high value of ivory in European markets, has slaughtered elephants wherever he could find them, regardless of size or sex. During the period ivory of all descriptions is a valuable article elephants will continue to be indiscriminately killed. It would not do, as some have suggested, to try to destroy the trade in ivory, because it is almost the only export of Central Africa, but—

"If all the powers and states holding territory in Africa would agree to strictly prohibit the export of tusks under a certain weight, say fourteen pounds, for instance, the evil would be mitigated, and would faithfully carry out such agreement, all small ivory would become valueless to the owners. The African does not like to waste his powder; he would never fire a shot to kill a small and undersized elephant; many cow tusks exceed twelve pounds in weight, and one result of this prohibition would be that in the course of a few years the elephant throughout tropical Africa would have no longer any tusks worth the powder; nor, perhaps, cow elephants pay, because would be shot for the sake of the meat. Then, further—to make it a question to be in possession of tusks of fifteen pounds in weight."

This sounds very well on paper, but for a country which is so vast and probably in the main so inaccessible as our racer finds at hand is not in the nature of a compulsion. It is unfortunate that no such measure is now in force, but it does not seem to be done with the Indian empire, which would probably not be more difficult to tame, but for "lions in which it would make it almost impossible to shoot elephants. The same great tract and are so harassed by hunters that they never remain in one locality more than a few hours, and never later are, perhaps, twenty miles away.

The Pelt Slide.

Look on the bright side. It is the right side. The times may be hard, but it will make them no easier to wear a gloomy and sad countenance. It is the sunshine and not the cloud that gives beauty to the flower. There is always before or around us that which will cheer and fill the heart with warmth and gladness. The sky is blue ten times where it is black once. You have troubles, it may be. So have others. None are free from them. And perhaps it is as well that none should be. They give sinew and tone to life, fortitude and courage to man. That would be a dull sea, and the sailor would never acquire skill, where there is nothing to disturb its surface. It is the duty of every one to extract all the happiness and enjoyment he can within and without him; and above all, he should look on the bright side. What though things do look a little dark? The tide will turn, and the night will end in broad day. In the long run, the great balance rights itself. What appears ill becomes well—that which appears wrong, right. Men are not made to hang down their heads or lips, and they do only show that they are departing from the paths of true common sense and right. There is more virtue in one sunbeam than in a whole hemisphere of clouds and gloom. Therefore, be ever cheerful, look on the bright side. Cultivate all that is warm and genial—not the cold and repulsive, the dark and morose.

HER HEART UNTOUCHED.

Accommodated to Making Up Love With Her Thumb.

The young man with the vertically ringed beard took a seat at a table in a remote corner of the restaurant, placed up a pair of late, looked at it in an accommodated way, and drummed with his fingers on the tablecloth. "Waiter, is there a fly in my soup?" he called.

It was a soft, feminine voice that made the question.

No answer seeming to be answered: "Waiter, waiter!"

"Sah?"

"No."

"Fish?"

"No!"

"Roast beef?"

"No."

"Roast pork?"

"No."

"Perhaps you will kindly select something yourself?"

He acted up.

"Section heaven!" he exclaimed. "Lorena, is that you?"

She was silent.

"Lorena!" he exclaimed in a wild, agitated whisper, "do I find you here, after all these weary months?"

Still she did not reply.

"If all the many ways I have hard I have tried to find you! If you only knew how bitterly I regretted that rash speech, Lorena, you would forgive me. I have repented of it a million times. Take it back, Oh, take it back! Your hair is not red, dear. I was only joking when I said it was. And it made you so angry that you hid from me, did you? You changed your boarding place, threw up your position at Spotcash & Co's and finally up job as a waiter girl in a lunchery in order to get where you thought I'd never see you, did you? And if I hadn't happened to sit down in this dark corner, where you didn't recognize me till it was too late, I suppose you would have had some other girl come and take my order, would you?"

Still no reply.

"Do you know what I was thinking of when you spoke? I was thinking of you. I was wondering if I was ever going to find you again. You will say I ought to have recognized your voice. I believed you changed your voice when you changed your job. Lorena, don't lay that speech up against me any longer. I tell you I'm awfully sorry for it. Your hair is a beautiful auburn, dear—a beautiful auburn. I'd be willing to fight anybody who says it isn't. Lorena, don't say it's all over between us! I'll be the humblest man in the world if you'll call off your grudge and take back the ring you threw at my feet the last time I saw you. Give up this wretched you and go back to your bookkeeping. I'll haunt this place three times a day, not counting evenings, if you don't. If you hide from me again you'll break my heart."

The girl with the soft voice evidently was not touched by the outreak of love on his part for she simply said "Young man your order please, you are taking up to much time and I don't mix up love affairs with business."

Cool Training.

Merchant—You say you want a job as bookkeeper. Are you an expert at figures?

Applicant—I can do anything with figures that it is possible for mortal man to do.

Merchant—What has been your experience?

Applicant—I edited the high water marks on a daily paper till it busted then I worked as weigher in a coal office for five years, and—

Merchant—No question about your being an expert, sir; it is a question of references now, sir.

Where the Cost Came In.

The Young Man on the Verge was talking with the old man who had been there nineteen years.

"Tell me," asked the former, notebook and pencil in hand, "how much does it cost you and your wife to live?"

The old man who had been there nineteen years turned slowly in his pivot chair and replied: "My friend, the house rent doesn't amount to anything."

"I know that," put in the other, "but how much does it cost you to eat?"

"Well," answered the other, whose wife had attended cooking school in the early days, "I may say that it is not what we eat that costs the money; but what we don't eat."

And the Young Man on the Verge went away to think it over.—Detroit Free Press.

A Mystery.

Jones—"How on earth does Bluffem manage to get credit at that swell tailor's?"

Brown—"The tailor found out that he lived at the Astorf-Waldorfa."

Jones—"But how does he manage to bluff the hotel people?"

Brown—"I suppose they judge him by his clothes."

THE DESERT PEARL

THE BISKRAN OASIS IS THE KEY TO THE SAHARA DESERT.

The Little Oasis Has 150,000 Trees and a Practically Dry River. Its Oriental Town Hall, Fine Casino and Poetic Arabian Names.

The Biskran oasis, with its 170,000 trees, is about two miles long, and extends in half a dozen little villages by the Oued stream. The Arabs, in their poetic phraseology, style it variously the "Desert Queen," the "Queen of the Oases," and the "Pearl of the Desert." Seen after two days' journey through a barren, treeless waste, with its waving palms and bold ant verdure, it is a sight difficult to rival. Biskra has several fine built lines, of which the town hall, built in Oriental style, with glowing cupolas and a forest of dainty pillars, is the gem. It cost £6,000, and is cheap at that figure, but, of course, labor here is had for a song.

The Oued Biskra, or river, through the oasis, and causes much of its prosperity. The chief industry is date raising, and nearly all the inhabitants own a little plot of ground devoted to this purpose, and generally their only source of revenue. Biskra boasts of a fine Casino de l'Oued el Kirh, who bored artesian wells, and laid out vast date plantations. They also erected a fine Casino, and constructed a tramway to the old Roman village of Sidi Okba, about six miles distant—springs well known to the Romans, whence Biskra was called Ad Pisinam. In consideration of all these benefits the company was granted various privileges. They are to enjoy for ninety nine years the profits arising from the springs and from 300 acres of land, besides a large town plot.

Biskra is practically the "key to the Sahara," and ever since the French entered, in 1844, has been an important military station. The lover of Orientalism will find it here in a much purer form than in semi-European Algiers, and can also enjoy an almost perfect climate. The district, however, is not rainless, as is often supposed; on the contrary, in winter there is a fair share of rain, though not so much as in Algiers, where this is the weak point. Although Sidi Okba, Algiers, it is beautifully mild, there is no snow, and for the majority of the winter there is brilliant sunshine and a very even temperature. In the summer, however, it is almost uninhabitable. No one dreams of staying there unless military or other duty compels them. The heat is intense, the water noxious, and snakes and scorpions abound, whose bite often proves deadly in an hour. The country at this period is subject to plagues of grasshoppers, the ruination of all verdure and produce. A very annoying malady called "clou de Biskra," Biskra pimple, prevails, which has to undergo most treatment except change of air.

THE TRAMP'S MISTAKE.

He Ignorantly Tackled Buffalo's Strong Man.

Buffalo has a professional strong man, named Bert Bartram, who is a genial sort of a giant, tipping the scales at 310 pounds, while, as is the case with Sandow, his appearance does not give one the idea of his strength to the casual observer. Bartram was on his way home late last Monday night, and had reached a secluded thoroughfare along his route when a big and burly tramp suddenly stepped out from behind a tree and demanded money.

"I haven't a cent," said Bartram.

The tramp took Bartram by the shoulder.

"Now, see here, young fellow," he began, "I've just—"

He didn't get any further. Bartram took the other by both elbows and tossed him up in the air. Then he stood him on his head and then turned him over his knee and spanked him, afterward tossing him over a seven-foot board fence into a vacant lot. The tramp did not follow Bartram as he proceeded on his homeward way.

A Play Robber Killed.

A dispatch from Marion, Ohio, published recently, contained the following story:

Orlando Deweiss was out walking with a young lady last night. While passing a dark place he was stopped by a man, who ordered him to throw up his hands. Deweiss complied, by pulling a revolver and firing at the supposed highwayman. The ball struck the man, and he fell to the ground. When he was picked up Deweiss was dumfounded at the horrorstricken to find the injured man to be his chum, Verge Everly. Everly, in a spirit of fun, had sought to scare Deweiss by playing highwayman. The bullet struck Everly in the breast. He cannot recover.

More than Rev. Mr. Swadener Could Bear.

The Rev. Madison Swadener of Cincinnati Wednesday night found a man emptying the pockets of the coats in the hall. The burglar ordered the Rev. Mr. Swadener to hold up his hands. The Rev. Mr. Swadener knocked the burglar senseless. The Rev. Mr. Swadener then revived his man and kicked him out.

Half an hour later the doorbell rang. The Rev. Mr. Swadener opened the door. There stood the burglar. He had come back. As soon as the preacher turned to it the burglar knocked him down. The Rev. Mr. Swadener then lost his temper for the first time and thrashed the fellow soundly and threw him into the street.—Chicago Tribune.

A Common Failing.

Miss Quizzer—Do you believe all the disagreeable things you see in the newspapers?

Miss Busbus—I do if they're about people I know.—Roxbury Gazette.

A Fortunate Man.

"How did Grassgrow do with his book on 'Success in Farming?'"

"Splendidly. The book paid for all he lost on the farm."—Judge.

LOOK PLEASANT.

All men are liars; but some are not found out until after they are married.—Puck.

"But could you bring yourself to marry a woman who smoked cigarettes?" they asked the young man who had insisted that women had a right to smoke if they chose. "No. I have enough people begging my cigarettes now."

There are two kinds of laziness—active and passive. The passively lazy man does nothing, or as near it as circumstances will permit; the actively lazy man shirks the work he ought to do but spends his time doing something else.—Puck.

After a woman has cried once on a man's coat she thinks she has a right to call him by his first name.—Portsmouth Chronicle.

"What is that French officer so excited and angry about?" "Someone, intending to be complimentary, spoke of him as having forged his way to the front."

The Young Partridge—Aren't you afraid of the man behind the gun? The Elder Partridge—Not when he is rigged up in one of those fancy hunting suits.

"I know you have been defeated for constable," said the candidate's wife, as he crawled in at 2:30 A. M., very quietly. "I'd like to know what you know about it," he snapped. "Well, dear, I've come hearing up stairs and invite me to salute the next President of the United States."—Philadelphia North American.

Teacher—Miss Street, can you tell me what is most peculiar in the hatching of the cuckoo? Miss Street (doubtfully, preparing to guess at his meat in a clock.—Jewelers' Weekly.

Ashington—What makes you speak of old Slickamith as a war artist? Teller—Why, he is slick enough to draw a large pension for no apparent disability.—Puck.

"In one respect every woman is ambidexterous." "How do you make that out?" "She can throw just as well with her left hand as with her right."—Chicago News.

He—So you visited Pompeii? She—Oh, yes. Wasn't the village fun like it? She—Well, I must say I was awfully disappointed in the place. Of course, it was beautifully located and all that, but it was dreadfully out of repair.—Judge.

"I was sorry to do it," said Mr. Stormington Barnes, "but I was obliged to take notice of such gross neglect of duty. I have discharged the property-man." He was very careless, remarked Mr. Dramatic. "He often forgot the prompt book twice." "It's worse than that, this time. He has allowed the company to come away without its road map."—Washington Star.

The editor ran his eye critically over the manuscript the young poet had tendered. "It occurs to me," he said, "you use a faulty form of speech when you apostrophize the 'brave old years.' What is there brave about the years?" "Well," replied the young poet, with some stiffness, "there is comparatively few people who can make a century run."—Chicago Tribune.

"Did I understand you," said the imposing and handsome lady editor, "that marriage is a civil contract?" "Nothing is further from my thoughts, madam," replied the lawyer whom she was consulting. "Then I desire you to proceed against my husband at once for breach of contract." "But on what grounds, my dear lady?" "His hasn't been civil to me an hour since we were married."—Detroit Free Press.

The Robin—What's the matter, old man? You look all broke up. The Raven—Oh, I've just heard a lady economist on the woman question.

Mrs. Bellefield—I see that the women's vote is delaying the returns in Idaho. Mr. Bellefield—Have they gone back to change it?

Wife—Did you read about the man who married one woman thinking she was another?

Husband—Pshaw! I did the same thing myself.

Swifty—"Millionaires ain't no better 'n us."

Wise—"Huh, dey ain't ez good! We don't oppress labor."

Deaf Mute's Joke.

Jones was sauntering about the academy, and chanced to meet a friend, a deaf mute, who was conversing with a companion in sign language.

Greeting Jones cordially, the deaf mute drew out a note-book and pencil, and, after a brief pencil and paper conversation, introduced his companion by the same means, and shortly after withdrew.

Jones and the stranger discussed the pictures pleasantly for twenty minutes or more, meanwhile covering the backs of sundry envelopes and scraps of paper with their pencilings, when a sudden practical joke on the chum came upon the scene—a friend of Jones' new-made acquaintance.

"Hullo, George!" said the dumb man to the new-comer, familiarly. "How you like the pictures this year?"

"By Jove!" exclaimed Jones, in surprise, "can you talk?"

"Of course I can," said the gentleman, equally surprised, as he hastily put away pencil and paper. "Aren't you deaf and dumb?"

"Not by a long way," Jones replied, thrusting into his pocket an envelope nearly covered with pencil-marks; "but I'll kill Dummy next time I see him."

Insurance Company No Good

Lady of the House—Your company is no good.

Insurance Agent—Why do you say that?

Lady of the House—Well, my husband has been paying it premiums for three years and isn't dead yet.—New York World.

A MONOMANIACAL WITNESS.

A Murderer Escapes the Hangman by a Lucky Inconsistency in a Statement.

"That case in which a curious experience of my own had a bearing," remarked the old lawyer, "came years ago, and the worst witness I ever had to deal with was an old man who was no longer to be trusted. A [illegible] the way, is mercy another [illegible] chimney. The old fellow [illegible] retreat and gave [illegible] straight toward [illegible] I met my client was [illegible] I think of some way [illegible] down. While I was cudgeling [illegible] a friend whispered to me to ask him how high he could build a stack. 'What do you mean?' I asked, in surprise. 'Never mind,' said my friend. 'Just slip in that question and see.' So at the tail end of the cross examination I paused, as if struck by an afterthought, and said: 'You are a stack builder, I believe?' 'Yes,' replied the witness. 'Well, sir,' I continued, 'about how high can you build—' I never got any further. A swift inscrutable change flashed over the German's face and he rose suddenly from his chair. 'As high as der sky!' he roared. 'So high does angels come around it like birds!' In five seconds he was raving. You see, the man was a monomaniac—sane on every subject but one, and my friend was quick to know a weak spot. It is hardly necessary to say that his evidence in regard to the homicide was promptly ruled out by the Judge, and as there was no other witness of importance my man was cleared. The case would have been hanged, and would have been but for the lucky reference to the stack."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

An Appropriate Text.

A little girl who lives up town went to church last Sunday. She is a bright little miss, and considering her tender age, only six, she is decidedly intelligent. Her mother has been suffering from the grip and didn't accompany her, and as her father was away from home she went alone. Whether it was the loneliness of the big pew or whether the church was poorly heated, mamma wasn't quite sure, but, anyway, the little maid came home and declared she was very chilly.

"My! but it was cold while I was sitting there, mamma," she declared. "And so did my fingers and my nose. I don't believe there was hardly a speck of fire in the furnace."

Whether it was the "hell," said mamma; "did the other people seem to suffer, too?"

"Oh, yes, they did," cried the little maid. "They just shivered!"

Then mamma thought she would divert the child's attention.

"What was the text, dear?" she asked; "can you remember it?"

"I should think I could," was the quick answer; "I can 'member every word of it."

"Well, what was it?"

The little maid put her head on one side and screwing up her face, shrilly intoned:

"Many are cold, but few are frozen!"

And mamma had to admit that it seemed remarkably appropriate.

Willing to Concede.

At a carnival party, recently, a gentleman who had returned from a lengthened tour in the East, was relating some of the wonderful things he had seen on his travels. The yarns he spun were decidedly "steep," but the guests politely accepted his statements as true. Encouraged by the reception accorded to his fabulous stories he returned to state that he had seen at the foot of the Himalayas a tiger forty-three feet long, from the tip of the nose to the tip of the tail. This was too much, and everybody kept silence, until a gentleman from Oban dryly remarked:

"Oh, yes, the works of Nature are very wonderful and very large whatever. Just last week I saw a skate which covered a pond, which covered a quarter of an acre of ground."

Nobody spoke, and amid the silence the Eastern traveler left the room. The host, perceiving that something was amiss, went after the visitor.

"Is there anything wrong?" he asked. "I have been insulted," said the traveler. "That Scotch gentleman has dealt a blow at my veracity, and I cannot remain in his neighborhood."

Knowing that harmony should prevail among his guests, the host returned to the room, and explaining matters to the company, asked the Highlander to make an apology, if merely for the sake of peace.

"Weel," said he, "I'll no just apologize, but tell him to come back and take a few feet off the tregour, and we'll see what can be done wi' the skate."

He Could Wait.

A boy was sitting lazily in the stern of a skiff, angling his fish out in the water, when a man from the dock called sharply to him:

"What are you doin' there?"

"Nothin'," responded the boy.

"Do you get any pay for it?"

"No," and he drew one foot out of the water, ready to run if necessary.

"Why don't you go to work?"

"Will you get me a job?"

"Yes."

"Steady?"

"Yes."

"Pay anything?"

"Well, no," hesitated the man—"not the first week."

"How about the second?"

"Then I will."

"All right; I'll come round the second week. This is good enough for me now," and the boy put his foot back into the water, and winked at the man on the dock.

LI HUNG'S KINDNESS.

HIS INTEREST IN ONE OF HIS OWN COUNTRY WOMEN.

Appoints Her as a Representative to the Woman's Congress, to be Held in London in 1899, After Having Become Acquainted With Her Story.

Some time ago a Chinese Christian girl named Marguerite Wang came to America with the intention of obtaining an education. She remained here about a year and was just about to enter a woman's college when she received word that here father had betrothed her to a man whom she had never seen. Under the consular regulations she was forced to return to her home, foregoing her education, to marry this man. Miss Hartford, one of the principal workers in the Foo-Chow Mission, who was here on a visit, accompanied her on her return.

On the same ship with them was Li Hung Chang and his suite. The Viceroy noticed the Chinese girl and sent his secretary, Lord Li, to inquire about her. A day or two later he sent word that he would like to talk with Marguerite and Miss Hartford. "As high as der sky!" he roared. 'So high does angels come around it like birds!' In five seconds he was raving. You see, the man was a monomaniac—sane on every subject but one, and my friend was quick to know a weak spot. It is hardly necessary to say that his evidence in regard to the homicide was promptly ruled out by the Judge, and as there was no other witness of importance my man was cleared. The case would have been hanged, and would have been but for the lucky reference to the stack."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

An Appropriate Text.

A little girl who lives up town went to church last Sunday. She is a bright little miss, and considering her tender age, only six, she is decidedly intelligent. Her mother has been suffering from the grip and didn't accompany her, and as her father was away from home she went alone. Whether it was the loneliness of the big pew or whether the church was poorly heated, mamma wasn't quite sure, but, anyway, the little maid came home and declared she was very chilly.

"My! but it was cold while I was sitting there, mamma," she declared. "And so did my fingers and my nose. I don't believe there was hardly a speck of fire in the furnace."

Whether it was the "hell," said mamma; "did the other people seem to suffer, too?"

"Oh, yes, they did," cried the little maid. "They just shivered!"

Then mamma thought she would divert the child's attention.

"What was the text, dear?" she asked; "can you remember it?"

"I should think I could," was the quick answer; "I can 'member every word of it."

"Well, what was it?"

The little maid put her head on one side and screwing up her face, shrilly intoned:

"Many are cold, but few are frozen!"

And mamma had to admit that it seemed remarkably appropriate.

Willing to Concede.

At a carnival party, recently, a gentleman who had returned from a lengthened tour in the East, was relating some of the wonderful things he had seen on his travels. The yarns he spun were decidedly "steep," but the guests politely accepted his statements as true. Encouraged by the reception accorded to his fabulous stories he returned to state that he had seen at the foot of the Himalayas a tiger forty-three feet long, from the tip of the nose to the tip of the tail. This was too much, and everybody kept silence, until a gentleman from Oban dryly remarked:

"Oh, yes, the works of Nature are very wonderful and very large whatever. Just last week I saw a skate which covered a pond, which covered a quarter of an acre of ground."

Nobody spoke, and amid the silence the Eastern traveler left the room. The host, perceiving that something was amiss, went after the visitor.

"Is there anything wrong?" he asked. "I have been insulted," said the traveler. "That Scotch gentleman has dealt a blow at my veracity, and I cannot remain in his neighborhood."

Knowing that harmony should prevail among his guests, the host returned to the room, and explaining matters to the company, asked the Highlander to make an apology, if merely for the sake of peace.

"Weel," said he, "I'll no just apologize, but tell him to come back and take a few feet off the tregour, and we'll see what can be done wi' the skate."

He Could Wait.

A boy was sitting lazily in the stern of a skiff, angling his fish out in the water, when a man from the dock called sharply to him:

"What are you doin' there?"

"Nothin'," responded the boy.

"Do you get any pay for it?"

"No," and he drew one foot out of the water, ready to run if necessary.

"Why don't you go to work?"

"Will you get me a job?"

"Yes."

"Steady?"

"Yes."

"Pay anything?"

"Well, no," hesitated the man—"not the first week."

"How about the second?"

"Then I will."

"All right; I'll come round the second week. This is good enough for me now," and the boy put his foot back into the water, and winked at the man on the dock.

Too Prosaic.

City Editor—Go down stairs and get your pay. I have no further use for you.

New Reporter—Why, what's the matter?

City Editor—Nowhere in the entire twenty-one pages of copy that you have written about the girl that was held up and robbed do you say that she was singularly beautiful or prominent in society.—Cleveland Leader.

Of the thirty-eight Sultans who have ruled the Ottoman Empire since the conquest of Constantinople by the Turks, thirty-four have died violent deaths.

The Constitutionalist.

A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.

PUBLISHED AT

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Terms—$2.00 per year.

A. L. Force, Editor and Proprietor

Mayor Smalley's Bow.

Without attempting to expound high and new ideas for the municipal government of North Plainfield, Mayor Smalley made his official bow last night with a message to the Borough Council that makes a favorable impression because of the business-like treatment he gives the situation that confronts him and the new Council. It is brief and to the point, and therein is in keeping with the ideas that should gauge his official conduct at the outset. It would be assuming more than is so if one was to believe that Mayor Smalley possessed an intimate and ready knowledge of the official affairs of the borough now. The words of his message indicate that Mr. Smalley has a keen realization of this fact, and in it he deals in a purely informal manner with the administration that confronts him.

In one particular part of his message he sets at rest the ill stories circulated during the campaign, that if he was elected the borough would become a "wide-open" town in respect to a loose and liberal enforcement of the ordinances relating to the good morals and peace of the community. While there were few who really believed that such gossip was more than passing campaign fiction, it is reassuring to read Mr. Smalley's own utterances that every law and ordinance will be enforced if he has anything to do with it.

The message indicates that Mr Smalley has ideas that the present is a favorable time for economy, and a reduction in tax rate if that is possible. Such changes are always welcomed by the taxpayers if the municipal service is not lessened to a degree where discomfort and inconvenience is caused. The progressive spirit of the members of the Council and of Mayor precludes such a result, however.

Lower Rate of Interest.

The Merchants' Association, of New York, is vigorously opposed to the passing of a law by the New York Legislature reducing the legal rate of interest from six to five per cent. The opposition of this association to a change of the New York law obtains contemporaneous interest in New Jersey, where Assemblyman Cooper's bill, with the same object in view, is likely to be passed. A portion of the Merchants' Association circular says:

> The average merchant or manufacturer with small capital is accommodated by local banks and at the same time enjoys every facility for purchasing goods at the lowest possible prices. If the legal rate of interest is five per cent. bankers will not be willing to accommodate the small merchants and manufacturers, as a consequence of which they will go to the wall.

Very much the same argument was introduced in New Jersey several years ago when the bill reducing the rate from seven to six per cent. was pending before the Legislature. The moneyed men of the State, and especially the banks, declared that a six per cent. rate of interest would be ruinous to their profits and would necessitate the cancelling of mortgages and compel the borrowers to negotiate new loans, which would be hard to secure and would doubtless cause many business failures.

The Legislature, however, was prevailed upon not to heed such statements, and as a result six per cent. was made the legal rate of interest. The banks and the borrowers soon adjusted themselves to the new condition of affairs, and since then no one will attempt to say that either side has suffered by the change.

Recently we witnessed what was thought to be some very warm politics in North Plainfield, but the borough will take a back seat when compared with political affairs in Passaic, if the following from the News of that city is true: "The fight in the First ward has been on for some time, and a Welsh man can hardly get a light for his pipe from anti-Welsh man. Small boys of Democratic rearing in the Third ward are careful to throw stones only at dogs which belong to people suspected of being Republicans."

The exports of the United States now exceed those of Great Britain, and lead all other countries by several million dollars. American push and intelligence cannot be retarded even by the constant see-sawing tariff policy which we have been undergoing for years. But how much greater we would be in that class of trade if we had a permanent tariff policy is mere conjecture, but the present record is evidence enough that there would be a wide difference in our favor.

"Policeman Called a Brute." So reads a heading over an item in a New York newspaper. The cop doubtless regards such an appellation as a pleasant variation from being called a blackmailer and a rogue.

Raising Standard of the Bar.

Senator Reed is one of the members of the the Legislature who is strongly in favor of the repeal of the "Dunn" act in order to raise the standard of admission to the legal profession. In discussing the bill looking to that end the Senator said that he would not criticise the ability of many young men admitted to the bar in accordance with its provisions, but the system was responsible for the fostering of many iniquities. Some enterprising individual, he said, had compiled a pamphlet which should be styled "Becoming a Lawyer Made Easy," because it contained a list of questions propounded by the Supreme Court Examiners for several years back, together with the answers to these questions. Any bright young man with the aid of this book, could readily acquire a knowledge of law that might enable him to pass a successful examination. It did not, however, make him a lawyer except in name, and either he or his clints had to suffer.

Since the cessation of hostilities between the United States and Spain efforts to revive interest in the National Guard have met with poor success, but it is hoped that within a year at least the war influences will have been removed and the interest of young men once more aroused in the charms of military connection. The new State organization, it is thought, will be made less cumbersome than heretofore, and instead of seven regiments, there will be two 12 company regiments, one with headquarters in North Jersey and one with South Jersey headquarters. There may be one troop of cavalry, two light batteries, but nothing at all definite has been concluded.

According to the Philadelphia Record a Salt Trust is now on the ways ready to be launched, having been rigged with a Jersey charter, $12,000,000 capital and the usual provision of $5,000,000 seven per cent. preferred stock for insiders and $7,000 000 common stock for outsiders. There is a tariff protection for the Trust of eight cents per 100 pounds of salt in bulk and twelve cents per 100 pounds on salt in bags or barrels, which will insure a very comfortable profit when competition shall have been provided against. This Trust is intended to make things especially interesting for the farmers; and if the farmers should take the thing in hand they could make matters very interesting for the Trust.

That politics do not count much when a syndicate or trust is to be formed is demonstrated when we read that Senator Sewell and former Senator Smith figure as incorporators in the monster electric syndicate, with a capital of $117,000,000, with which to control all the electric vehicles of the country. Electricity is supposed to furnish the motive power for the new enterprise, but in reality some sharp financial practices with the people's hard earned dollars will move the scheme

James K. Arnold retires from the office of borough clerk with the reputation of having been one of the most capable occupants of that position that the borough has ever experienced. It fell to the lot of Mr. Arnold to undertake the new system of bookkeeping provided for the borough by the expert accountants, and how well he did his work is shown in the excellent condition Mr. Bowley, the new clerk, finds the books.

Having passed the Thompson Double Bar Bill the Legislature can go home with the serene satisfaction that they have done their whole duty to the State! Such trifling matters as cheaper gas, lower interest rates, curbing the trusts and the like are not to stand in the way of providing Billy Thompson's friends with plenty of the amber fluid to slake their thirst with on Sunday.

In Pittsburg eggs are selling for five cents a dozen owing to rivalry between produce dealers. Such competition as this needs the attention of the authorities. How can the aristocratic hens of New Jersey attempt to compete with such a price as this? Even the pauper hens of Canada and Novia Scotia may be expected to go on a strike rather than lay eggs to be sold at such prices.

If the Organized Aid Association of Plainfield carries out its plan of establishing a soap factory in which the poor of the community may find employment, the local counterparts of the genus hobo may be expected to give the enterprise a wide berth.

It is a very good thing for the members of the New Jersey Legislature to regard their office as a public trust. But when they allow capitalists to make a trust out of nearly all the public commodities, they are carrying the idea too far.

A camera fiend will take a picture in one-six hundredth part of a second is being made in Chicago. At last we may be able to catch some of the lightning-like editorials changes of our esteemed contemporary, The News.

Is He Eligible?

There seems to be a question as to whether Dr. J. H. Cooley can serve as a member of the Borough Board of Education, to which he was elected last evening, in view of the fact that he already holds an elective office in the borough, that of Commissioner of Appeals. The case of Collector George F. Brown is cited, where he was obliged to resign from the Board of Education because he could not hold two offices.

In connection with Dr. Cooley's choice it is said that his election was not regular, inasmuch as he declined to run for trustee, and after the nominations were closed his name was placed in nomination. The nominations were not opened again, which would be the legal way of accepting the name.

The Filipino warriors who would quit now are between the Devil and the deep sea if ever mortal was. If they persist in fighting they are in likely possibility of being annihilated by Uncle Sam's guns; and if they urge surrender they are executed as rebels by Aguinaldo. But is is scarcely expected that they will take Hobson's choice.

If there is anything the corporations would like to have and they don't see in New Jersey, just say the word and it will be theirs. There is nothing that we Jerseymen delight more in doing than to assist the poor corporations in gaining an honest foothold in the community.

The total number of officials required to take the government census in 1900 will be 45,000, but that's not counting in the Philippines. Unless things change over there very soon the need of enumerators for the Filipinos will be very small.

What the Legislature of New Jersey needs is more men of the stamp of Roger Franklin Murphy. Then there would not be so much cringing to influences that dare not show itself in the open, but gets there just the same.

Editor Runyon intimates that he will oppose the renomination of Assemblyman Squire next fall. We have heard such talk before, but that is all it amounted to—talk.

We have received the annual report of the State Prison. We prefer receiving a report of the institution any day rather than a passport to it.

The Atchison Globe thinks it curious that though a woman picks out her own husband she takes three of her own sex along to pick out a hat.

Though the author of the Five Per Cent. Interest Bill is a Cooper, he could not stave off defeat for that measure.

A Chicago man has risen to the occasion and pertinently observes laziness is the decayed fruit of philosophy.

Capital punishment is not inflicted in five States—Colorado, Maine, Michigan, Rhode Island and Wisconsin.

No one can accuse Mr. Bryan of being a coward to his principles.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

"Did the editor of The Journal ever hear of the racetrack gamblers being in business for their health?" inquires the Plainfield Press. Well, The Journal never heard of their being in business because it was unhealthy for them.—Elizabeth Journal

* * * * * *

That great and boisterous statesman, Roger Murray, whom the speaker loves so well, has been giving the Democrats a lift in their funny business of worrying the Republican majority. He voted with them when they made an assault on the Republican committee, because they would not deliver certain partisan bills. Mr. Murray is an energetic little fellow, but he lacks judgment and in consequence he has been in hot water all through the present session. His last move decides his political fate. With a record of voting with the Democrats, he cannot expect to receive any more honors at the hands of the Republican party.—Trenton Times.

—The congregations of the Christian churches in the eastern district will meet in the First Christian church, Philadelphia, in May, for a general conference.

—A very popular Swedish singer, Mrs. Ada Dahlberg, of Providence, R. I., will be present at the meetings of the Swedish Missionary Society next Sunday at 11 a.m. in the W. C. T. U. rooms and at 7:45 p.m. in the Y. M. C. A. Hall.

DOES COFFEE AGREE WITH YOU?

If not, drink Grain-O—made from pure grain. A lady writes: "The first time I made Grain-O I thought that from its appearance it would indeed be a rich cup of coffee. But it surpassed in taste and flavor my fondest expectations. The children can drink it freely, with the strengthening substance of fine coffee. Grain-O is sold by my grocer. I follow the directions in making Grain-O and it is a delicious and healthful table beverage for old and young. 15 and 25c.

A JOKE ON WEBSTER

PREPARED BY HIS FRIEND TISCALI AND TOLD AS TRUE.

The Great Statesman's Weight in Conjunction With the Simple-Mindedness of Seth Bump Rendered Ample Opportunity for Fun.

Tisdale, who many years ago was a mail manufacturer in Agawam, was an intimate friend of the Marshfield statesman and many were the gunning and fishing trips they enjoyed together, accompanied only by a great big, strapping good-natured fellow named Seth Bump.

Calling the dogs and Seth early one sunny summer's morning, they started off well supplied with refreshments, traps and everything necessary to make a gunning trip successful.

Suddenly arriving at the shores of a pond, the dog swam across, leaving the party to follow as best they could.

"Say, Tisdale," said Webster, looking a little glum at the prospect, "how deep is this water?"

"It's all of fifteen feet and twenty yards across. Why, going to swim it?" answered Tisdale laughing, although it meant a walk of more than three miles to go around the pond to the point opposite.

"No, but I'm going across this stream somehow."

"Say, Seth, I'll give you a dollar to swim me across on your back," said Tisdale, winking to Seth, who grinned, but shook his head rather doubtfully.

"Oh, come on! I'm a light-weight," coaxed Tisdale.

Finally Seth agreed and Tisdale was soon safely landed on the other side.

"Now, Seth, I'll give you a dollar to swim me over like you did Tisdale," said Webster, who weighed more than a hundred pounds heavier than Tisdale.

A dollar was a big sum to Seth, but Webster's weight looked like a bigger job than he cared to tackle.

"Look here, Seth, I'll give you $2," said Webster, showing him the money.

This was too much for Seth and he readily agreed.

When they had got well out into deep water Tisdale shouted: "Look here, Seth! Webster just winked to me that he wasn't going to give you anything. He's fooling you."

No sooner said than done, Seth immediately sunk under water, carrying Webster out of sight, and when he came up spitting and sputtering, he shouted to him: "I'll give you anything you say, Seth. Get me there and you can name your own price."

"No fooling, Mr. Webster, this time, or down you go to stay," said Seth grimly.

When Seth with his live freight had all but reached shore Webster smiled, although the water was running in rivulets down his cheeks.

"Say, Seth, he's just winked again" shouted Tisdale.

Down went Seth for a second time, carrying Webster out of sight, while Tisdale rolled in agony on the shore.

When they reappeared, language that would hardly grace a Methodist prayer meeting was heard in that vicinity.

"Say, it's all right, Tisdale, and I'll settle. But if I ever get an opportunity, you and that dod-rotted fool of a Seth Bump will swing for it," groaned Webster, as he wring the water from his garments.

NEW IRISH STORIES.

Some Anecdotes Told in the Recently Published Journals of Mr. O'Neill Daunt.

Some good stories are told in the journals of Mr. O Neill Daunt, recently published under the title, "A Life Spent in Ireland." At one time Mr. Daunt was the guest of Father Burke, in whose parish one of the sanguinary tithe affrays occurred between the parson and the Catholic people. The soldiers were called on to fire on the pop ulace, and some persons were killed. Soon afterward Father Burke received a government circular inquiring the number of his flock for the purpose of making up a census. He answered that, as he had not yet ascertained to what extent his people were thinned out on the last shooting day he could not furnish the required information with accuracy.

When Mr. Hemphill was canvassing Cashel he found that a party of electors, known as "commoners," numbering some thirteen or fourteen, were notoriously corrupt and always sold their vote to the highest bidder. Their usual price was £20 per vote. Hemphill requested the priest to preach on the sin of trafficking on the franchise, and the priest complied and denounced corrupt trafficking in votes as a mortal sin. The next day Hemphill met one of the corrupt voters and anxious to learn what effect the sermon had produced on these venal gentlemen, he asked the man whether he had been at mass on the previous day.

"I was your honor."

"Was not that sermon on bribery excellent?"

"It was an elegant sermon your honor."

"Will it do good, do you think?"

"I think it will make the election run very close, your honor."

"How so?"

"Why, we always got £20 for a vote before we knew it was a sin, but as his reverence says now, he is damned for selling our votes we intend not the future take less than £30.

FUN AND SENTIMENT.

"I don't think that Mr. Eatington ever declines an invitation to dinner." "Oh, no! He's a sort of social lion seeking what he may devour."—Puck.

"I see it is becoming the fad to have your wedding cinematographed." "But a feller doesn't have to have his courtship cinematographed, thank heaven!"

"Pa, what is a lineal descendant?" "A lineal descendant is a person who has to look back on some praiseworthy ancestor for his own importance."—Detroit Free Press.

"As to the emperor," said the empress dowager, "the silly boy hardly knows whether he is dead or alive." "Pshaw, whiskey remarked Li Hung Chang, "I infer that he reads the papers."—Puck.

Visitor—"What is the meaning of this large and enthusiastic demonstration? Is there a peace jubilee being held?" Boy—"Nay, sir. De local football club wiped de earth up wid der rivals."—Norristown Herald.

Book Canvasser—Pardon me, madame, but are you interested in the study of prehistoric man? Miss Antique—Not indeed! It keeps me busy trying to get the man of to-day interested in me.—Chicago News.

"Young Popularc is the most self possessed man I ever saw. He never seems to be the least bit rattled under an circumstances." "Why, in what exigency did you ever see him tried, to have such confidence in him?" "I saw him exhibiting his first baby to half a dozen women at once, and answering every question rationally."

A Tart Old Lady.

Out in Indiana a good many years ago a certain old lady, summoned as a witness, came into court wearing a large poke bonnet, such as was then much affected by rural folks. Her antiques—in fact, nearly all people busy trying to get the man of to-day interested in me.—Chicago News.

"Young Popularc is the most self possessed man I ever saw. He never seems to be the least bit rattled under an circumstances." "Why, in what exigency did you ever see him tried, to have such confidence in him?" "I saw him exhibiting his first baby to half a dozen women at once, and answering every question rationally."

A Tart Old Lady.

Out in Indiana a good many years ago a certain old lady, summoned as a witness, came into court wearing a large poke bonnet, such as was then much affected by rural folks. Her antiques—in fact, nearly all people busy trying to get the man of to-day interested in me.—Chicago News.

"Young Popularc is the most self possessed man I ever saw. He never seems to be the least bit rattled under an circumstances." "Why, in what exigency did you ever see him tried, to have such confidence in him?" "I saw him exhibiting his first baby to half a dozen women at once, and answering every question rationally."

A Tart Old Lady.

Out in Indiana a good many years ago a certain old lady, summoned as a witness, came into court wearing a large poke bonnet, such as was then much affected by rural folks. Her antiques—in fact, nearly all people busy trying to get the man of to-day interested in me.—Chicago News.

"Young Popularc is the most self possessed man I ever saw. He never seems to be the least bit rattled under an circumstances." "Why, in what exigency did you ever see him tried, to have such confidence in him?" "I saw him exhibiting his first baby to half a dozen women at once, and answering every question rationally."

A Tart Old Lady.

Out in Indiana a good many years ago a certain old lady, summoned as a witness, came into court wearing a large poke bonnet, such as was then much affected by rural folks. Her answers to the usual questions given by the attorney for the defendant, the court requested her to speak louder, though without much success.

"The court cannot hear a word you say, my good woman," said the judge, "you will have to take off that huge bonnet of yours."

"Sir," she said composedly and distinctly enough this time, "the court has a perfect right to bid a gentleman take off his hat, but it has no right to make a woman remove her bonnet."

"Madam," replied the judge, "you seem so well acquainted with the law that I think you had better come up and take a seat with us on the bench."

"I thank you kindly, sir," she responded, dropping a low courtesy to the court, "but there are old women enough there already."—Law Notes.

Mistakes in Telegraph Messages.

Two funny telegraph stories are printed by the Pittsburg Dispatch on the authority of a former employe of the Western Union company.

He was receiving a dispatch from Albany, in which the sender was not overcareful in spacing his letters. Lawton took the address as follows:

"Dr. A. Wing, room car agent, Central depot, New York."

The dispatch came back with the marginal report that there was no such person at the address named. The operator at Albany was called up and explained the following, in consequence of which the address was changed to "drawing room car agent, central depot."

A still more absurd mistake was once made in the same office when a telegram was received for "James W. Giles, pie clerk, Brooklyn nasty yard." This was afterward amended to read, "James W. Gillespie, clerk, Brooklyn navy yard."

A Correction.

As amusing double-barreled case of heterophemy occurred not long ago at a meeting of the licensing sessions in an English city. The chairman, discussing the law requiring the bona fide travelers to go a certain distance before being entitled to liquid refreshment, referred to it as being "three miles as the flow cries."

A superior person hastily rose to correct his worship, but could get no nearer than "Your worship means 'as the fly crows,' or rather," he added hastily, "as the cry flows."

No one was rash enough to make a further attempt, and the magistrates went on in their efforts in behalf of sobriety.

Honest Advice.

The Rev. Mr. Perkins being called upon sudenly to address a Sunday school, thought he would get a few original ideas from his young hearers. "Children," said he, "I want some of you to tell me what I shall talk to you about to-night. What shall I say?" At first there was no response. "That bright little fellow over there," said he, pointing to a youngster on a back seat, "What do you want me to talk about?" In a little, piping voice came the answer:—"Say amen and sit down."—Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

A Resourceful Bride.

"Can we afford it?" he faltered, sadly, "to have a skeleton in our closet?"

As for the woman, she wept, for they were indeed wretchedly poor, but she was not, therefore, altogether unresourceful.

"We might keep it in the hall and use it for a hat rack!" exclaimed the bride, for her mind was giving way under the constant effort to practice economy.—Detroit Journal.

His Purpose.

"What are you assuming such a belligerent air for?" said the small potentate's adviser. "Don't you know that we don't want to fight?"

"Of course, I know it. And I realize that we've got to do something exceedingly plausible to keep the other people from finding it out."—Washington Star.

CLEARING SALE

OF

PIANOS

We are Closing

out a number of of good second-hand pianos at extremely low prices, and on easy terms of payment. Now is the time to get a bargain.

7	Octave Square	$ 40
7¼	"	70
7¼	" Upright	120
7¼	"	165
7¼	" Hallett & Davis	190
7	" "	210

ON PAYMENTS $3 to $8 MONTHLY.

Lot of good second-hand Organs at $20. $25 and upward, $4 per month.

A large assortment of elegant new

Hallet & Davis

UPRIGHT PIANOS.

$200 and up, and 3 years' time if you want it. Other makes—Cabinet Grands, all improvements, $225—$7 per month.

Free music and Catalogue for the asking.

THE W. F. TWAY PIANO CO.,

94 Fifth Avenue, New York.

JAS. M. DUNN,

Dealer in

GROCERIES, PROVISIONS, VEGETABLES, FRUITS, &c

GARDEN SEEDS

fresh and carefully selected.

224 PARK AVENUE,

OPPOSITE NORTH AVENUE.

Everything usually found in a first-class grocery.

Goods delivered free of charge.

Woolston & Buckle,

PAINTERS.

Wall Papers. Painters' Supplies

141-145 North avenue.

GEORGE W. DAY,

[General Auctioneer.

Sales of Personal Property solicited P. O. Box 132, Dunellen, N. J., or address in care of Constitutionalist. Terms reasonable.

W. R. CODINGTON,

Counsellor-at-Law

Commissioner of Deeds, Master-in-chancery, Notary Public. Offices Corne of Park avenue and Second street.

HUMPHREYS' VETERINARY SPECIFICS

500 PAGE BOOK MAILED FREE.

CONTENTS:

Part I.—Diseases of Horses.
Part II.—Diseases of Cattle.
Part III.—Diseases of Sheep.
Part IV.—Diseases of Hogs.
Part V.—Diseases of Dogs.
Part VI.—Diseases of Poultry.

Above book in better binding 50 cts. HUMPHREYS' MED. CO., Cor. William & John Sts., New York.

DEMAND THE OLD RELIABLE

Central R. R. of New Jersey

Anthracite Coal Used Exclusively, Insuring Cleanliness and Comfort.

Stations in New York, Foot of Liberty, and South Ferry Whitehall Terminals.

TIME TABLE IN EFFECT NOV. 20th, 1898.

PLAINFIELD AND NEW YORK.

Leave Plainfield 5 14, 5 57, 6 25, 6 58, 7 08, 7 56, 8 08, 8 56, 9 08, 9 56, 10 08, 10 56, 11 08, 11 56 a. m., 12 08, 12 56, 1 08, 1 56, 2 08, 2 56, 3 08, 3 56, 4 08, 4 56, 5 08, 5 56, 6 08, 6 56, 7 08, 7 56, 8 08, 8 56, 9 08, 9 56, 10 08, 10 56, 11 08 p. m., Sunday, 5 14, 5 57, 6 25, 7 08, 7 56, 8 08, 8 56, 9 08, 9 56, 10 08, 10 56, 11 08 p. m., 12 08 night. 1 30 a. m.

Leave New York, foot Liberty St., at 4 00, 4 30, 5 00, 5 30, 6 00, 6 30, 7 00, 7 30, 8 00, 8 30, 9 00, 9 30, 10 00, 10 30, 11 00, 11 30 a. m., 12 00 noon, 12 30, 1 00, 1 30, 2 00, 2 30, 3 00, 3 30, 4 00, 4 30, 5 00, 5 30, 6 00, 6 30, 7 00, 7 30, 8 00, 8 30, 9 00, 9 30, 10 00, 10 30, 11 00 p. m., 12 00 night. Sunday—At 4 30, 5 00, 5 30, 6 00, 6 30, 7 00, 7 30, 8 00, 8 30, 9 00, 9 30, 10 00, 10 30, 11 00 p. m., 12 00 night. 1 30 a. m.

PLAINFIELD AND NEWARK.

Leave Plainfield at 6 30, 7 30, 8 00, 8 30, 9 00, 9 30, 10 00, 10 30, 11 00, 11 30 a. m., 12 00 noon, 12 30, 1 00, 1 30, 2 00, 2 30, 3 00, 3 30, 4 00, 4 30, 5 00, 5 30, 6 00, 6 30, 7 00, 7 30, 8 00, 8 30, 9 00, 9 30, 10 00, 10 30, 11 00 p. m., 12 00 night. Sunday—At 8 00, 8 30, 9 00, 9 30, 10 00, 10 30, 11 00 a. m., 12 00 noon, 12 30, 1 00, 1 30, 2 00, 2 30, 3 00, 3 30, 4 00, 4 30, 5 00, 5 30, 6 00, 6 30, 7 00, 7 30, 8 00, 8 30, 9 00, 9 30, 10 00, 10 30, 11 00 p. m., 12 00 night.

Leave Newark at 6 15, 7 30, 8 00, 8 30, 9 00, 10 00 a. m., 12 00 noon, 1 00, 2 00, 3 00, 4 00, 4 30, 5 00, 6 00, 7 00, 8 00, 9 00, 10 00, 11 00 p. m. Sunday, 7 30, 9 00, 11 00 a. m., 1 00, 3 00, 5 00, 7 00, 9 00, 10 30 p. m.

Passengers for Elizabeth will please change cars at Elizabeth.

PLAINFIELD AND SOMERVILLE.

Leave Plainfield 6 15, 7 13, 8 13, 9 00, 9 54, 11 07 a. m., 12 54, 3 11, 3 57, 5 03, 6 08, 7 08, 8 08, 9 08, 10 08, 11 08 p. m. Sunday 9 08, 10 08, 11 08 p. m.

Leave Somerville at 6 00, 6 50, 7 50, 8 50, 9 50, 10 50, 11 50 a. m., 1 50, 2 50, 3 50, 4 50, 5 50, 6 50, 7 50, 8 50, 9 50, 10 50 p. m. Sunday 9 00, 10 00, 11 00 a. m., 1 00, 3 00, 5 00, 7 00, 9 00, 10 00 p. m.

PLAINFIELD AND RARITAN.

Leave Plainfield at 6 30, 8 15, 9 04 a. m., 1 01 p. m., 5 00 p. m. Sunday at 9 04 a. m.

Leave Raritan at 6 00, 7 01, 9 15, a. m., 12 30 m., 4 35, 5 45, 7 30, 9 30 p. m. Sunday at 7 45, 11 30 a. m., 9 00 p. m.

PLAINFIELD AND LAKE HOPATCONG.

Leave Plainfield 8 10 a. m. Sunday at 8 10 a. m.

WESTWARD CONNECTIONS.

8 18 a. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Allentown, Bethlehem, Harrisburg, Pottsville, Mauch Chunk, Wilkesbarre, Scranton, Upper Lehigh, Williamsport and Sunbury.

9 12 a. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Allentown, Bethlehem, Mauch Chunk, Wilkesbarre, connecting for stations on High Bridge Branch.

11 18 a. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Phillipsburg, Bangor and Mauch Chunk.

1 54 p. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Allentown, Bethlehem, Mauch Chunk, Wilkesbarre, Scranton, Bangor and Portland.

3 18 p. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Allentown, Bethlehem, Mauch Chunk, Wilkesbarre, Scranton, Williamsport, Sunbury, Lewisburg, Watkins Glen, Elmira, Canandaigua, Rochester, Buffalo and Niagara Falls.

4 54 p. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Allentown, Bethlehem, Mauch Chunk, Wilkesbarre, Scranton, Bangor and Portland.

5 18 p. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Allentown, Bethlehem, Mauch Chunk, Wilkesbarre, Scranton, Williamsport, Sunbury, Lewisburg, Watkins Glen, Elmira, Canandaigua, Rochester, Buffalo and Niagara Falls.

6 18 p. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Allentown, Bethlehem, Mauch Chunk, Wilkesbarre, Scranton, Williamsport, Sunbury, Lewisburg, Watkins Glen, Elmira, Canandaigua, Rochester, Buffalo and Niagara Falls.

8 18 p. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Allentown, Bethlehem, Mauch Chunk, Wilkesbarre, Scranton, Williamsport, Sunbury, Lewisburg, Watkins Glen, Elmira, Canandaigua, Rochester, Buffalo and Niagara Falls.

10 00 p. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Allentown, Bethlehem, Mauch Chunk, Wilkesbarre, Scranton, Williamsport, Sunbury, Lewisburg, Watkins Glen, Elmira, Canandaigua, Rochester, Buffalo and Niagara Falls.

TOM RIVER BRANCH, OCEAN GROVE ETC.

Leave Plainfield at 9 10, 10 00 for Spa. Girt 9 55, 10 00 a. m., 1 04, 4 21 p. m. Sundays, 4 21 p. m.

Leave Spa. Girt at 7 00, 7 30, 8 00, 8 30, 9 00, 9 30, 10 00, 10 30, 11 00 a. m., 12 00 noon, 12 30, 1 00, 1 30, 2 00, 2 30, 3 00, 3 30, 4 00, 4 30, 5 00, 5 30, 6 00, 6 30, 7 00, 7 30, 8 00, 8 30, 9 00, 9 30, 10 00, 10 30, 11 00 p. m., 12 00 night. Sundays—At 4 30, 5 00, 5 30, 6 00, 6 30, 7 00, 7 30, 8 00, 8 30, 9 00, 9 30, 10 00, 10 30, 11 00 p. m., 12 00 night.

For Asbury Park, 9 10 a. m., 12 30 p. m. Sundays, 9 10 a. m.

For Ocean Grove, 9 10 a. m., 12 30 p. m. Sundays, 9 10 a. m.

For Bay Head, 9 10 a. m., 12 30 p. m. Sundays, 9 10 a. m.

For Point Pleasant, 9 10 a. m., 12 30 p. m. Sundays, 9 10 a. m.

For Lakewood, 9 10 a. m., 12 30 p. m. Sundays, 9 10 a. m.

For Toms River, 9 10 a. m., 12 30 p. m. Sundays, 9 10 a. m.

For Barnegat, 9 10 a. m., 12 30 p. m. Sundays, 9 10 a. m.

For Tuckerton, 9 10 a. m., 12 30 p. m. Sundays, 9 10 a. m.

For Beach Haven, 9 10 a. m., 12 30 p. m. Sundays, 9 10 a. m.

For Atlantic City, 9 10 a. m., 12 30 p. m. Sundays, 9 10 a. m.

ROYAL BLUE LINE.

Leave Plainfield for Philadelphia, 5 14, 9 56, 10 56 a. m., 1 13 p. m., 2 56, 4 56, 6 56, 8 56, 10 56 p. m. Sundays, 5 14, 9 56, 10 56 a. m., 1 13 p. m., 2 56, 4 56, 6 56, 8 56, 10 56 p. m.

Leave Philadelphia, Broad Street Station, for Plainfield, 2 00, 3 30, 4 30, 5 30, 6 30, 7 30, 8 30, 9 30, 10 30, 11 30 a. m., 12 30, 1 30, 2 30, 3 30, 4 30, 5 30, 6 30, 7 30, 8 30, 9 30, 10 30, 11 30 p. m., 12 30 night. Sundays—At 2 00, 3 30, 4 30, 5 30, 6 30, 7 30, 8 30, 9 30, 10 30, 11 30 a. m., 12 30, 1 30, 2 30, 3 30, 4 30, 5 30, 6 30, 7 30, 8 30, 9 30, 10 30, 11 30 p. m., 12 30 night.

For Trenton and Washington at 2 15, 5 45, 8 00 a. m., 1 35, 3 45, 6 00, 8 00 p. m. Sundays, 2 15 a. m., 1 35, 8 00 p. m.

For Bethlehem, Easton and Phillipsburg, 10 30 a. m., 3 45 p. m.

For Buffalo, Chicago and all points West, 10 30 a. m., 3 45, 8 00 p. m. Sundays, 10 30 a. m., 8 00 p. m.

Parlor Cars on all trains.

Plainfield passengers by trains marked) change cars at South Plainfield.

Tickets and Sleeping Accommodations at lowest rates may be had on application in advance to the Ticket Agent at the station.

J. H. OLHAUSEN,
General Superintendent.

H. P. BALDWIN,
General Passenger Agent.

LEHIGH VALLEY RAILROAD.

Time table in effect Feb. 6, 1899.

LEAVE SOUTH PLAINFIELD, N. J.

WESTWARD.

5 05 a. m. daily; 6 36 and 7 56 p. m. daily except Sunday. For Easton and local.

4 36 p. m. Sunday evening local for Mauch Chunk.

9 05 a. m. daily; Express for Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Suspension Bridge, Rochester, Canandaigua, Watkins, Elmira, Geneva, Ithaca, Auburn, Cortland, Binghamton, Owego, Waverly, Sayre, Athens, Towanda, Wilkesbarre, Hazleton, Mauch Chunk, Allentown, Bethlehem, Easton, Phillipsburg, Manunka Chunk.

11 30 a. m. and 6 30 p. m. daily except Sunday. Local for Bound Brook.

12 30 p. m. daily except Sunday. Local for Easton, Allentown, Bethlehem, Mauch Chunk, Wilkesbarre, Hazleton, Scranton, Pittston, Wyoming, Wilkesbarre, Penn Haven Junction, Stroudsburg, Delaware Water Gap and Manunka Chunk.

3 06 p. m. daily; local for Easton and Wilkesbarre.

4 40 p. m. daily except Sunday; express for Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Chicago and intermediate points. Sleeping car for Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Chicago and Canandaigua. Dining car for Manunka Chunk, Wilkesbarre, Penn Haven Junction, Stroudsburg, Delaware Water Gap, Easton, Allentown, Bethlehem, Mauch Chunk, Ithaca, Auburn, Cortland, Binghamton, Owego, Waverly, Sayre, Athens, Towanda, Wilkesbarre, Hazleton, Scranton, Pittston, Wyoming, Penn Haven Junction, Stroudsburg, Delaware Water Gap, Easton, Allentown, Bethlehem, Mauch Chunk, Manunka Chunk.

EASTWARD.

5 07 a. m. daily for New York and Brooklyn local 6 48, 7 40 a. m. daily except Sunday, 8 16 and 9 10 p. m. daily except Sunday. Sunday 7 40 a. m. and 9 10 p. m.

7 40 a. m. daily except Sunday, express for New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington. Sleeping car for Philadelphia. Sunday 7 40 a. m. and 9 10 p. m.

8 16 a. m. daily except Sunday, express for New York and Philadelphia. Sleeping car for Philadelphia. Sunday 7 40 a. m. and 9 10 p. m.

11 30 a. m. daily except Sunday, express for New York and Philadelphia. Sleeping car for Philadelphia. Sunday 7 40 a. m. and 9 10 p. m.

JUNCTION AND BRANCH.

For Somerville and Flemington, accommodations 8 15, 10 00 a. m., 3 35 and 7 30 p. m. daily except Sundays. Sunday 10 00 a. m. and 7 00 p. m.

Trains leave Perth Amboy (State street) 7 12 a. m., 2 30 and 6 40 p. m. daily except Sunday. Sunday 7 12 a. m. and 6 40 p. m.

For further information call on or address the Ticket Agent, South Plainfield, N. J. Through tickets to all important western points may be purchased at the South Plainfield office.

Col. ROLLIN H. WILBUR,
General Superintendent.
E. Bethlehem, Pa.

CHAS. S. LEE,
General Passenger Agent,
26 Cortlandt St., N. Y. City.

NEW YORK TERMINALS—Foot of Cortlandt Desbrosses and West 23d streets.

Arrival and Departure of Mails

NEW YORK MAILS.

Arrive—7:30, 8:30, 11:30 a. m., 3:00, 5, 8:30 p. m.
Close—7:00, 8:15 a. m., 12:00 m., 2:00, 5:00, 7:00 p.m.

SOMERVILLE AND EASTON.

Arrive—8:40 a. m., 3:00 and 6:15 p. m.
Close—7:30 a. m., 12:00 m. and 4:30 p. m.

PHILADELPHIA—Direct.

Arrive—8:40 and 11:30 a. m., 3:00 and 8:00 p. m.
Close—7:30 and 9:45 a. m., 2:00 p. m.
Through fast mail for West and South, close 2:00 and 7:30 p. m.

WARRENVILLE.

Arrive—12:30 p. m. Close—9:30 a. m.

SUNDAY MAILS.

Office open from 9:30 to 10:30 a. m.
Mail closes at 4:15 p. m.

E. H. BIRD, P. M

ROYAL BAKING POWDER
ABSOLUTELY PURE
Makes the food more delicious and wholesome
ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK

JOLLY TIMES UP IN THE ELKWOOD FLATS

Mrs. Beerman Accused of Assaulting Minnie Barrie.

IT STARTED AT A BALL.

MRS. BEERMAN ENTERED IN THE DISCUSSION THAT FOLLOWED.

Minnie Barrie Says That the Married Woman Did Things to Her Face and Neck—Mrs. Beerman Claims That It Wasn't Assault at All—Judge Runyon Did Not Agree to the Truth of That.

The trouble began at a dance last week. Minnie Barrie's partner said some things to Jessie Drake that, perhaps, he ought not to have said. Jessie said that Minnie put him up to it. Words were exchanged. Saturday they talked it over again in Mrs. Kate Beerman's rooms in the second story of the Elkwood building. Somehow it wound up in a fracas in which Minnie Barrie had her face discolored by altered blows. Mrs. Beerman was consequently called to answer for it before City Judge William N. Runyon Tuesday morning.

Jessie Drake and another young woman named Dunnlodge with Mrs. Beerman. They thought it about time that the girls moved away. Then Minnie Barrie, who is employed at Boss' restaurant, went to live there.

Minnie Barrie says that "that horrid Drake girl" took her to task for her conduct at the ball Mrs. Beerman, she says, took Jessie's part. It ended, she claims, by Mrs. Beerman assaulting her and beating her across the face and squeezing her neck, which was uncomfortable to the victim.

This morning, Boundsman Fred erickson arrested Mrs. Beerman on complaint of Minnie Barrie. The trial took place at once, Mrs Beerman pleading not guilty. She explained she did not assault the Barrie girl but laid hands on her with a perfectly honest intent. The Judge didn't agree with her. She was found guilty and sentenced to pay a fine of $10 or go to jail for thirty days. Later in the morning the Judge agreed to remand the sentence if the prisoner would agree to go back, care for her two little children and reform her ways. She promised and was set free.

THE NAVAL RESERVES.

Volunteer Sailors to Receive Extra Pay Very Soon.

Some question has been raised in Washington as to the proper construction of the law authorizing the paying of the volunteer Navy two months' extra pay, but Congressman Parker informed Lieutenant Goldingay, of the Newark division, last week that payment will be made just as soon as practicable. The Naval Reserves will receive their pay in the order in which the applications are received. A certain form of application blank has to be filled out and duly vouched for. Lieutenant Goldingay has sent for the blanks and will lose no time in gathering the necessary particulars. This money will come very handy to many of the Plainfield boys, the greater part of whom had about come to the conclusion that the bill would never become a law.

Epworth League Rally.

The Epworth Leagues of Plainfield, Dunellen, Scotch Plains and Westfield will hold a grand rally in Vincent chapel Friday evening. The affair will be under the auspices of Chapter No. 1, of the First M. E. church, of this city. There will be talks by members of the different leagues, some kind of entertainment, and refreshments and sociability with which to conclude.

No Promises Made.

Mayor Smalley set at rest many minds Monday evening when he announced at the meeting of the Borough Council that not one of his appointees had been promised the office they received, notwithstanding reports to the contrary. Each man was selected on the ground of efficiency and ability which he believes the appointees have.

Chronic Nasal Catarrh posions every breath that is drawn into the lungs. There is procurable from any druggist the remedy for the cure of this trouble. A small quantity of Ely's Cream Balm placed into the nostrils spreads over an inflamed and angry surface, relieving immediately the painful inflammation, cleanses, heals and cures. A cold in head vanishes immediately. Sold by druggists or will be mailed for 50 cents by Ely Brothers, 56 Warren street, New York.

DUTIES OF CITIZENSHIP.

REV. C. E. HERRING DISCOURSES ON VERY TIMELY THOUGHTS.

Pointed Out Many of the Evils That Stand in the Way of Better Government—Questions Taking the Philippines.

The Christian Endeavor meeting in the Trinity Reformed church Monday night was in charge of the Temperance and Good Citizenship Committee and was led by Frederick E. Smith. Rev. C. E. Herring gave a talk on "Good Citizenship," and presented to hearers what he called a resume of Dr. Josiah Strong's book, "The Twentieth Century City." Mr. Herring spoke of the great advances made in material things during the present century, especially in the United States. Wealth has increased to a wonderful extent; the population has increased 1,200 per cent. during the past 100 years; the working power of these States is two times as great as Britain. When we look at these things we are apt to be impressed with our greatness, the speaker said.

Mr. Herring pointed out that the tide of humanity is drifting towards the cities, and asked if they had an ideal government. The best brains do not rule there, he said, but the bosses are in power. He spoke of the ignorance often found in applicants for Government positions. Of Chicago's Mayor being considered one of the worst men in the city; of the increase of crime and vice in the large cities during the past few years, and said that some point these things out as signs of a dissolution of the Republic.

In treating of the saloons Mr. Herring denounced the free lunch counter as a temptation to poor young men. He said that not long ago he took a grip through that section of New York where the free lunch counter reigns, and found that in some places the customer had to pay for his lunch in addition to his glass of beer, while in other places the lunch was free. But, he said, he found these places great political centres, where political schemes were being rushed through, and in this connection said that the Philippines may not be a wise acquisition, as there will be many millions of ignorant voters for some one to dupe.

In closing, Mr. Herring urged his hearers, especially the men, to take more interest in the great questions of the day. He said that as much of the harm comes through indifference.

Mr. Smith followed Mr. Herring with a few words, and E. E. Anthony spoke for the committee.

Miss Minnie Williams rendered a solo at the opening and close of the meeting. She was accompanied on the piano by Miss Lillian A. Force.

WORTHY PATRIARCH IS A WOMAN.

Mrs. Emma Cox Chosen to Head Howell Division, Sons of Temperance.

The election of officers of Howell Division, Sons of Temperance, took place Monday and was followed by a grab bag sociable. The business was transacted first, and the election resulted as follows: Worthy patriarch, Mrs. Emma Cox; worthy assistant, Miss Flora Bennett; recording secretary, Benjamin W. Hand; assistant recording secretary, Mrs. Elizabeth Cox; financial secretary, Miss Alice Scribner; treasurer, Mrs. Sarah Mattox; chaplain, Miss Maggie Moore; conductor, Mrs. W. E Koyer; assistant conductor, Miss Sadie Mattox; inside sentinel, Andrew Cox; outside sentinel, William E. Koyer.

Mrs. Nestor Corwin, who has been chaplain of the order for ten years, was obliged to decline re-nomination on account of illness.

The committee in charge of the sociable, consisted of Mrs. Emma Cox, Miss Try Mattox, Mrs. Annie Angleman, Mrs. Radin and Miss May Thompson.

See Speer's Chateau wine cellars of New Jersey vineyards. Read all about it and about the unfermented Grape Juice.

New Jersey Grape Juice Sent to Europe.

Mr. Speer of New Jersey, has a reputation extending over the world as being a reliable producer of Oporto Grape Juice and Port Wine. They are ordered by families in Dresden, London and Paris for their superior virtues.

Presented With Past Masters' Jewel.

At the last meeting of Columbia Lodge, A. O. U. W., Henry Nischwitz was presented with a past master's jewel, he having just gone through the chair as past master. At their next meeting they will listen to reports from their representatives to the grand lodge in Trenton. A good and welfare committee, consisting of J. W. A. Bauerachs, F. C. Lounsbury and V. W. Nash, was appointed.

ALL WAS HARMONY IN NEW BOROUGH COUNCIL

Mayor's Nominations Were as Predicted.

THE COMMITTEES NAMED.

LARGE CROWD OF INTERESTING CITIZENS WATCHED PROCEEDINGS

Mayor Smalley Presided With Dignity and Grace Over the Meeting—Mayor Swore in the New Councilmen—Councilman Swackhamer Made President of the Council—Salaries Fixed for the Year.

Surrounded by a large crowd of interesting spectators, most of whom are residents of the borough, and some of this city, Mayor Newton B. Smalley and the new Borough Council met last Monday for the first time to organize and take the preliminary steps for the year's work. Mayor Smalley presided with dignity and grace over the deliberations and showed from the start that he is perfectly capable of occupying the chair recently vacated by a man of unquestioned ability. He exercised careful judgment and showed that he desired to be cautious.

The Mayor's desk was graced by two beautiful bouquets, the gifts of admiring friends.

The first business transacted was that of swearing in the new councilmen, Messrs. Robert Clark, Jr., Harrison Coddington and S. S. Swackhamer. This was performed by Mayor Smalley. After the new councilmen were seated the Mayor presented his message which is printed in another column.

Following the reading of the message there were presented a number of resolutions, all of which were unanimously adopted. Mr. Valiant offered one making S. S Swackhamer president of the Council. Mr. Clark offered one making the by-laws and rules of the Council of 1898, with one exception, the rules for the Council of 1899. The one exception provides for a committee on laws, ordinances and taxation.

Another resolution offered by Mr. Clark made the salaries of borough officials as follows: Clerk and auditor, $700; attorney, $350; physician, $125; marshals, $6.0 each; special marshals, 25 cents an hour or $2 per day when on duty; recorder, $200; superintendent of highways, $50 per year and $2 per day extra duty; chief of fire department, $100; engineer Warren Engine Company, $50; janitor Warren engine house, $70; janitor West End house, $35; borough electrician, $125; overseer of the poor, $100.

Still another resolution by Mr. Clark makes it necessary for the clerk and auditor to furnish a bond in the sum of $1,000 for the faithful performance of his duties. A similar resolution was offered by Mr. Burtis which provides that the marshals shall each furnish a bond in the sum of $500 for the faithful performance of duty.

Mr. Rogers offered a resolution abolishing the offices of borough engineer and delinquent tax collector, and Mr. Coddington presented a resolution fixing the date of meeting for the Council the first Friday of each month at 8 o'clock in the evening.

At this time Mayor Smalley appointed the several committees and the several officers for the coming year. With the appointments of officials resolutions were offered confirming each one. The appointments are as follows:

Streets and Public Health—Messrs. Clark, Coddington, Valiant.

Fire, Water and Lamps—Messrs. Rogers, Clark, Coddington.

Audit and Finance—Messrs. Valiant, Rogers, Burtis.

License and Marshals — Messrs. Burtis, Clark, Coddington.

Stationery and Supplies — Messrs. Coddington, Burtis, Swackhamer.

Laws, Ordinances and Taxation—Messrs. Swackhamer, Valiant, Rogers.

Clerk—Frank Bowley.

Attorney—Charles A. Reed.

Regular Marshals—Wm. T. Campbell, John H. Schenck, George Weiss, Frank Winn, Jacob Kleiner.

Overseer of Poor—Julius J. Stahl.

Superintendent of Highways—Thos. Doud.

Recorder—General Ell Long.

Physician—Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan.

Chief of Fire Department—George H. Fairchild.

Engineer of Warren Engine Company—Alonzo Brokaw.

First Assistant Chief of Fire Department—William Demarest.

Janitor of Warren Engine Company—Raymond Schenck.

Janitor of West End Hose Company—Frank Perry.

Electrician—Joseph Newman.

Special Marshals—Lemuel W. Pope, Francis M. Whiteley, Israel Jones, Richard McDonald, James M. Baglin, Louis G. Wyckoff, William Kiernan, Frederick Coverly.

Just before the meeting adjourned Mayor Smalley referred the bond of a constable to the committee on laws, ordinance and taxation, to be reported at the next meeting. The Council then adjourned.

After adjournment the large crowd in the lobby remained and personally greeted the Mayor and members of the Council, and wished each one all the success possible for the coming years. Noticeable in the crowd were several officials from this city, and they joined in the handshake and gave their best wishes.

CALL FOR ECONOMY BY MAYOR SMALLEY.

His First Message Read to Borough Council Monday.

BRIEF AND TO THE POINT.

RECOGNIZES THE NEED OF HAVING STREETS IN GOOD CONDITION.

He Says There is no Ground for Apprehension That the Laws and Ordinances Will Not be Enforced—Would Like to See the Tax Rate Reduced—Acts, Not Words, Will Tell the Right Story

The following is the complete text of Mayor Smalley's first message to the Borough Council which was read Monday night:

Gentlemen of the Council:—It is not my purpose at this time to make any extensive recommendations as to the future. It is my earnest desire, and I am sure it is yours also, to transact the business of the Borough in a manner that will give satisfaction to the public, and to deserve the continued confidence of the tax payers.

One of the most important matters will be the care and maintenance of our streets. This will require constant vigilance on the part of those in charge in order that the most benefit can be derived from the limited fund at our disposal for that purpose. We have many miles of macadamized streets, and it is absolutely necessary that a considerable part of the appropriation shall be used in making repairs which are needed to preserve them.

The present excellent condition of our fire department should be maintained, and the police department continued on its present efficient basis.

While rumors to the contrary have been recently afloat, and some apprehension may be felt in that regard, it will be my effort to see that the laws and borough ordinances are enforced, and that the peace and good order of the borough shall be preserved to the entire satisfaction of our citizens.

Without intending to reflect on any previous administration, nor to intimate that excessive salaries have been paid in all instances, I feel that certain reductions can be made without lessening the efficiency of the borough force, and in this I believe you agree with me as will be shown by your action.

The tax rate is high, and I believe that every effort should be made to economize in every direction where economy is possible without lowering the standard to which we are accustomed, and our officers should be, and doubtless are, willing to aid in this direction.

The ordinance compelling the tying of horses is, in my judgment, entirely too severe, and I recommend that it be modified so as to make it possible to adequately protect the public without working hardship to the individual.

Words will not improve the condition of our Borough, nor lessen our taxes. It will be our actions by which we will be judged, and with the belief that each of us is determined to do his full share toward making the coming year's work commend itself to the public, I will not take up further time except to say that I realize I am taking the place of a man of unquestioned ability, and require your cordial support in my efforts.

N. B. Smalley, Mayor.

THIRD TIME BEFORE A JURY.

Chapot Chamois Company Proves The Right to Property.

For the third time, Monday, the Chapot Chamois Company had to face a jury in Justice Mosher's court and proved to their satisfaction that the goods levied upon by a former workman to satisfy a judgment secured against the Chapot & Sons' Leather, Chamois and Glove Company, belonged to them. This time the judgment was given to Charles Reuger.

The same testimony given in court on the two preceding trials was given yesterday, and the jury were only out a few minutes when they returned with a verdict for the claimants. W. S. Angleman appeared for Reuger and W. A. Coddington for the claimants.

The jurymen were Harry Fraleigh, U. B. Crane, J. B. Clarkson, W. E. Alpaugh, J. N. Anderson and George Cook.

DRINK GRAIN-O

after you have concluded that you ought not to drink coffee. It is not a medicine but does it just as well because it's health to any one taking it. It is made from pure grain and has a rich seal brown color and looks like the finest grades of coffee and costs about one-quarter as much. Children like it and drink it by the request of those who want a drink containing nothing but pure food. Ask your grocer for Grain-O, the new food drink. 15 and 25c.

ASSESSMENTS WERE SETTLED BY COURT.

Opinion Filed on Borough Watchung Avenue Assessments.

ALL BUT FIVE SUSTAINED.

BOROUGH WAS VICTORIOUS IN FIFTY CASES.

Senator Charles A. Reed Represented the Borough in the Fight—Craig A. Marsh and Judge McCarter for the Contestants—Matter Has Been Held in Supreme Court for Several Terms.

The objections that some of the interested property owners found to the assessments as levied by the Watchung Avenue Commissioners of the borough have been settled by the Supreme Court of the State. The opinion was filed at Trenton Monday afternoon. Of the some fifty-five assessments which the Court was asked to review all but five were sustained.

Among the five contestants who were successful in having their assessments revised was Mrs. Sarah A. Coward, whose assessment of $1,3-2 was the largest of any. The other cantestants successful were Alexander Shotwell Wm. Boe, Andrew Lutkins and Louis A. Hummer, who had small assessments.

These assessments were all set aside with costs, on the ground that the Commissioners had arbitrarily divided the lots of the contestants by an imaginary line drawn parallel with the line of the street.

All the other assessments in the present cases were decided in favor of the borough and were affirmed with costs. The decision, it is said, will enable a number of the other assessments to be set aside on the same ground if the cases are brought into court.

The two judges who decided the case held the matter for two or three terms of court before rendering an opinion. Some of the unsuccessful contestants desire to have the case taken to the Court of Errors and Appeals. Either the borough or the contestants can take the case up to that court and possibly both sides may decide to take the opinion of the highest court.

Judge Thomas N. McCarter, of Newark, represented one of the contestants. The others were represented by Craig A. Marsh, of this city. The borough of North Plainfield was represented alone by Senator Charles A. Reed, borough counsel.

KNIGHTS TEMPLAR ELECT.

Prosecutor Nelson Dungan, of Somerset County, Chosen Eminent Commander.

Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T., held a regular conclave Monday evening and elected officers for the ensuing year as follows: Eminent Commander, N. Y. Dungan; generalissimo, Walter H. Freeman; captain general, Harry W. Marshall; prelate, C. G. Howard; senior warden, Samuel Bingham; junior warden, Robert Meeker; standard bearer, G. T. Dunham; sword bearer, Clarence Goss; warden, E. J. Smith; sentinel, Caspar Bolsterli; treasurer, C. H. Bugg; recorder, F. K. VanAuken.

How's This?

We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.

F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O.

We, the undersigned, have known F. J Cheney for the last 15 years, and believe him pefectly honorable in all business transactions, and financially able to carry out any obligation made by their firm.

West & Truax, Wholesale Druggist, Toledo, O.

Walding, Kinnan & Marvin, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, O.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Price 75c. per bottle. Sold by all Druggists. Testimonials free.

Hall's family Pills are the best.

Swarming of the Bees.

A novel kind of sociable will be held in the parlors of the Congregational church Friday evening under the auspices of the Women's Association. It is called "The Swarming of the Bees," and is arranged by the young men. Every body is requested to bring seven cents or some amount that is a multiple of seven.

Ask your Druggist for a generous 10 CENT TRIAL SIZE.

Ely's Cream Balm

CATARRH

contains no cocaine, mercury or any other injurious drug. It is quickly absorbed. Gives Relief at once. It opens and cleanses the Nasal Passages. Allays Inflammation. Heals and Protects the Membrane. Restores the Senses of Taste and Smell. Full Size, 50 cents. At Druggists or by mail. Trial Size, 10 cents, by mail. ELY BROTHERS, 56 Warren Street, New York.

ELY'S CREAM BALM CATARRH HAY FEVER COLD IN HEAD ELY BROS.

DIED.

BROWN—In this city, Tuesday, March 14th, 1899, Edith E. Brown, in the 35th year.

HOWARD—In this city, on Saturday, March 18th, 1899, Louis E. Howard, in his 52nd year.

LYON—Suddenly at New London, Conn., Mrs. Julia Rogers Lyon, widow of Hillpatrick Lyon.

VAIL—At Green Brook, March 20, 1899, Amos Vail in his 83rd year.

Dr. Humphreys'

Specifics act directly upon the disease, without exciting disorder in other parts of the system. They Cure the Sick.

NO.	CURES.	PRICES.
1	Fevers, Congestions, Inflammations	.25
2	Worms, Worm Fever, Worm Colic	.25
3	Teething, Colic, Crying, Wakefulness	.25
4	Diarrhea, of Children or Adults	.25
5	Dysentery, Griping, Bilious Colic	.25
6	Cholera, Cholera Morbus, Vomiting	.25
7	Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis	.25
8	Neuralgia, Toothache, Faceache	.25
9	Headache, Sick Headache, Vertigo	.25
10	Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Weak Stomach	.25
11	Suppressed or Painful Periods	.25
12	Whites, Too Profuse Periods	.25
13	Croup, Laryngitis, Hoarseness	.25
14	Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Eruptions	.25
15	Rheumatism, Rheumatic Pains	.25
16	Malaria, Chills, Fever and Ague	.25
17	Piles, External or Internal	.25
19	Ophthalmia, Weak or Inflamed Eyes	.25
20	Catarrh, Influenza, Cold in the Head	.25
20	Whooping-Cough	.25
21	Asthma, Difficult Breathing	.25
22	Ear Discharges, Earache	.25
23	Scrofula, Enlarged and Ulcers	.25
24	General Debility, Weakness	.25
25	Dropsy, Fluid Accumulations	.25
26	Sickness, Nausea, Vomiting	.25
27	Kidney Diseases	.25
28	Nervous Debility	1.00
30	Sore Mouth, or Canker	.25
30	Urinary Weakness, Wetting Bed	.25
31	Painful Menses, Pruritus	.25
32	Sea-sickness, Nausea, Vomitations	1.00
33	Epilepsy, St. Vitus' Dance	1.00
34	Sore Throat, Quinsy, Diphtheria	.25
35	Chronic Congestions, Headaches	.25
77	Grip, Hay Fever	.25

Dr. Humphreys' Manual of all Diseases at your Druggists, Mailed Free.
Sold by druggists, or sent post-paid on receipt of price.
Humphreys' Med. Co., Cor. William & John Sts., New York.

HUMPHREYS' WITCH HAZEL OIL "THE PILE OINTMENT."

For Piles, External or Internal, Blind or Bleeding, Itching, Painful or Chronic. Relief is immediate—a cure certain. For Fissures, Fistula, Ulcers, Eczema, Sore Nipples, Chafing, Etc., it is unequaled. Used by mothers, nurses and physicians the world over. Relieves Pain at once. Cures the worst cases. Prevents Blood Poisoning. Heals without leaving a scar. Acts on both the blood and the parts affected. Its use prevents Pneumonia and Erysipelas. Cures Sore Throat, Diphtheria, Coughs, Colds, Sore Eyes, Earache, Sore Chest, Sore Nipples, Sore Nose, Sore Feet, Chilblains, Frost Bites, Sunburn, Chapped Hands, Lips and Face, Barber's Itch, Scalds, Burns, Bruises, Cuts, Wounds, Sprains, Lame Back, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, Backache, Kidney Troubles, Female Complaints, Hemorrhoids, Varicose Veins, Varicocele, Spermatorrhea, Impotency, Nocturnal Emissions, Sexual Debility, Impaired Vitality, Premature Old Age, Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Mental Anxiety, Loss of Memory, Impure Blood, Nervous Prostration, Nervous Headache, Female Weakness, Exhaustion

PLANS FOR ERECTING A SOLDIERS' MONUMENT

Sons of Veterans Confer With the Councilmanic Committee.

LOCATION IS A QUESTION.

A CONTRIBUTION OF $25 WAS RECEIVED SATURDAY NIGHT.

The Project of Raising the Necessary Funds Will be Made a Popular One and Even Pennies Will be Welcomed Into the Funds—A Circular Describing the Monument is to be Issued Very Soon.

On Saturday evening there was held the first meeting of the joint committee from the Common Council and the Sons of Veterans, appointed to devise ways and means for the erection of a suitable soldiers' monument in this city, and the initiatory steps were taken looking toward the completion of that object.

In the first place Rev. W. C. O'Donnell was made president of the joint committee, J. F. Buckle was made treasurer and H. C. McVoy was selected as secretary.

The subject under consideration was discussed and many suggestions were made concerning efforts that are to be made to raise the amount desired to erect the monument. It was unanimously agreed that every man, woman and child in the city should be interested in the scheme and be made to feel that they should contribute something, if only a penny. It was decided that the school children should be interested, as well as every society, organization and church in the city, and to this end a prospective circular will be issued af an early date setting forth the object and purpose of the movement.

Prior to the holding of another meeting estimates will be secured as to the relative cost of monuments so that the committee will be better able to judge as to how much Plainfield's monument should cost. The sketch of one monument, together with the plans and specifications, were submitted by Mr. O'Donnell on Saturday evening, but this was not considered to be just what the committee want.

Regarding the location of the monument it was thought that no better place could be secured than the one in front of the Crescent Avenue church in the triangle, but Mr. Buckle expressed an opinion that the proper people to decide the location would be the members of the G. A. R., and the question may be left to them to decide.

An excellent start was made Saturday evening with one subscription of $25. Inasmuch as the Sons of Veterans proposed the scheme it is likely that that organization will head the subscription with a goodly sum as an incentive to others. The councilmanic committee, consisting of Messrs. Buckle, Mellick and Smith, are very kindly disposed to assist the committee from the Sons of Veterans all that they can, and there does not seem to be any doubt but what the monument will be an assured thing.

The committee will meet again on Monday evening, March 27th, when further progress will be made in the matter. It is hoped that by that time the committee will be able to issue the proposed circular and start the ball agoing. After the subscription lists are started weekly reports will be made in the local papers showing the progress that is made. Any person desiring information about the affair can secure the same from any member of the committee, who will also be glad to receive suggestions.

Local Endeavor Work.

The annual meeting of the Plainfield Local Union Christian Endeavor will be held Thursday night in the First Presbyterian church. Interesting reports on missionary work, junior work, social and general work will be read; also a report by the secretary of the general work of the union. The election of officers will be held, and the programme will be varied with with vocal solos. A sociable will follow the transaction of the business.

Metronome Club to Play.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Park Avenue Baptist church has arranged to give a concert Tuesday evening, March 28th, in the church. The celebrated Metronome Banjo and Mandolin Club, assisted by Miss Marion Short, of New York, an elocutionist of rare ability, will furnish the entertainment. The programme will be very fine.

Progressive Heart Party.

Miss Bertha Thorn, of Craig place, gave an informal progressive heart party at her home Saturday evening. There were four tables. The first prizes were won by Miss Mary Luckey and Will Coriell. The winners of the booby prize were Miss Bertha Needham and Harry Needham.

Miss Curry to be Present

Miss Sarah Curry, matron of the Westfield Fresh Air Camp, will be present at the annual meeting of the C. E. Local Union Thursday night, to meet any of those who desire to talk with her about her work.

NEW CENTURY COURSE

DISTANCES ARE EXACT TO THE SMALLEST FRACTION OF A MILE

The Route is From Englewood to Highland Park—Park Avenue and Front Street in This City are Part of the Course.

Work has just been completed of laying out a new century course for cyclers in New Jersey, the start and finish being at Palisade avenue and Dean street, Englewood. The distances are exact to the smallest fraction of a mile. What is more the course is made up of good, wide road bed, and wheelmen will not be obliged to do any sidepath riding at any point upon it, while the conditions of the country through which the course runs are such that there will be little, if any, annoyance from head winds

The route is: Englewood to Ridgefield, 4 6-2 miles; to Rutherford, 13 565 miles; to Belleville, 18 378 miles; to Brick Church (Main and Prospect streets), 23 311 miles; to Milburn, 29 236 miles; to Springfield, 30 708 miles; to Scotch Plains, 37 314 miles; to Plainfield (Front street and Park avenue,) 39 926 miles; to Metuchen (M. and E turnpike) 46 598 miles; to Highland Park (Smith's Hotel,) 50 929 miles. The total distance over this course and return is 101.858 miles. It will be known as the Englewood-New Brunswick Century Course.

INDOOR CYCLE RIDING.

A NEW ENTERTAINMENT FAD ENJOYED BY LOCAL SOCIETY.

Held in the Crescent Rink and Will be Given Regularly Every Saturday Night—The Admission is by Invitation.

The first of a series of regular weekly cycling entertainments was given Saturday evening in the Crescent Riding Academy and proved a success. About forty of the society people were out and enjoyed a pleasant spin about the academy on their wheels, as well as some difficult trick riding by the Martells, of San Francisco.

The affair was arranged by Miss Maud VanBeskerck and Miss Whiton and will be followed each week by another similar entertainment until May. The young people meet there to ride and enjoy a sociable time.

The management of this, the first entertainment, was given to Frank L. C Martin, the well-known bicycle dealer, and he made all the arrangements. Guttman's orchestra furnished the music, and refreshments were served upon the stage.

Admission was by invitation, and about eighty were invited. The storm kept half of that number away, so the attendance was not as large as was expected. The young ladies who conceived the idea were complimented highly at the success of their plan, and these Saturday night indoor rides will be looked forward to with a great deal of pleasure.

The entertainment opened with a drill or procession, which was led by Thomas Mulberkirk. Then the trio was given up to individual riding until the Martells were introduced and amused the spectators with some of the latest tricks in trick riding. The patronesses were Mrs. J. M. Whiton, Mrs. Samuel Huntington and Mrs. Joseph Meyers.

IN HONOR OF ST. PATRICK.

Rev. Father O'Hanlon Delivered a Lecture on Ireland's Patron Saint.

Last Sunday at St. Joseph's R. C. church a service was held in honor of St. Patrick, at which time Rev. Father O'Hanlon, a former rector of the church, delivered an interesting lecture bearing on the life, character and personalty of St. Patrick. The lecture was very helpful as well as instructive to all present.

Another feature of the service was the rendition of several musical numbers appropriate to the memory of St. Patrick. This programme was given under the direction of Organist James Baily and consisted chiefly of vocal solos as follows: "Come Back to Erin," Frederick LaPorte; "The Shamrock," Miss Justina Smith; "The Minstrel Boy," James Baily; "Killarney," Frederick LaPorte; "The Harp That Once Through Tara's Hall," Miss Justina Smith. The last selection was "America," and was given by Miss Smith. The entire musical programme was given in perfect style and Irish and everyone thoroughly enjoyed it.

Oh, Girls, Why Did You Do It?

The girls' basket ball team of the Plainfield High School was defeated Friday afternoon by the East Orange High School girls, but not by the score published in The Daily Press Saturday. They were really defeated by a score of 32 to 2, instead of 3 to 2. The Press obtained its information regarding the game from a supposedly trustworthy source and published the reported score, supposing it to be the truth. There was much mystery about the result of the game, as the girls of the team agreed, at first, to keep the score a secret, admitting only that they were defeated.

ALL HONORED PATRON SAINT OF IRELAND

Plainfield Celebrated Birthday With a Ball.

FIVE HUNDRED PRESENT.

THE ANNUAL BALL OF ANCIENT ORDER OF HIBERNIANS HELD.

Affair Took Place in Washington Hall Friday Night Whither Thronged Every Good Son and Daughter of Erin's Isle That Could Possibly Go—Danced and Made Merry All Night Long.

The only pity of it was that St. Patrick himself was not there last Friday to see how his sons and daughters celebrated the anniversary of his birth. The Ancient Order of Hibernians were in command, but every true son of Erin, who could possibly do so, turned out to do honor to his patron saint. Altogether it was a glorious occasion.

Plainfield doesn't have any St. Patrick's Day parade but, for the past quarter century, the "Seventeenth of Ireland" has been the time for the annual ball of Division No. 4, Ancient Order of Hibernians. Last night it was held in Washington Hall and fully five hundred fair maids and brave young men assembled to dance away the evening in remembrance of the day.

The hall was decorated with greens and tri colored bunting while the flags of the United States and Old Ireland waved in unison over the heads of the musicians on the stage. Prof. Wallander, of Newark, led the orchestra.

The ball opened with a selection on the Irish bagpipes by Patrick Gilhooley, of Newark, which rejoiced the hearts of those who had heard it in the "ould country." Shortly after 10:30 o'clock came the grand march. It was led by the floor manager, Samuel Goff, with Miss May Day, and his chief assistant, Martin Regan, with Miss Winifred Kelly. They were assisted by the other members of the floor committee, Patrick Carrigan, Patrick O'Keefe and Patrick Cullen.

The ball was a great success socially. Besides those who went to dance there was a host of lookers-on. The dancing continued without abatement until the early morning hours.

The officers of the local division of the A. O. H. are as follows: President, Edward Ryan; vice-president, Patrick Cullen; treasurer, P. J. Harris; financial secretary, Patrick Harrington; recording secretary, J. J. Gallagher; sergeant-at-arms, William Casey.

HORSE FELT "HIS OATS."

BILLY VANSICKLE'S EXCITING RUNAWAY IN METUCHEN.

Was Treating His Father to a Short Spin When a Wheel Collapsed—Elder VanSickle Thrown Out and Injured.

The Metuchen Record prints the following story of an exciting runaway in which William VanSickel, the North avenue meat dealer, was engaged in:

On Tuesday William VanSickle, a prosperous butcher of Plainfield, drove his wife to Metuchen with his fine trotting horse. The horse, which was always a spirited animal, had not been out of the stable for several days, and was "feeling his oats."

While waiting for his wife, who was making a call on Mrs. Bennett, his sister, Mr. VanSickle drove his father around. As the carriage turned into William street corner of the spokes of the wheel flew out. This caused the wheel to bend and the father was thrown to the ground. The frightened horse commenced to plunge and rear, when the wagon completely collapsed and Mr. VanSickle was thrown out. He clung to the reins for about 50 feet, but was finally obliged to let go after having a wheel pass over his body and his head badly cut and many scratches about his mouth. All this the terrified women at Mrs. Bennett's beheld from the window. On went the now maddened horse, dragging the clattering vehicle behind him. When he headed Voohees' the wagon lurched over and the animal became mixed up in some of the trappings, falling on his knees. Men hurried from Almond's and Martin and jumped to the animal's head.

In the meanwhile Dr. Hunt, who opportunely happened by, attended to the men. Mr. VanSickle, the elder, had picked himself up and seemed all right. The younger man was taken by train to his home in Plainfield, where after a few days in bed, he expects to be himself again.

The horse, which was slightly lamed, stayed at Becker's stable's over night. On Wednesday morning Mrs. VanSickle drove from Plainfield with the man and although when they started out the horse stood straight up, his lameness soon quieted him down.

Yesterday Mr. VanSickle, Sr., was suffering from a pain his hip.

C. C. Burt, of Plainfield, is a guest at The Raleigh, Washington, Ill.

ANOTHER TIE AT WHIST

VICTORY BY PARK CLUB MAKES THIRD ROUND NECESSARY.

Winners of the Three Sections in the New Jersey Whist Association are Having Trouble in Deciding Superiority.

The situation in the New Jersey Whist Association is peculiar. The winners of the three sections have twice attempted to settle the question of superiority and twice have ended in a tie. The final match in the second round was played Saturday night at the rooms of the Jersey City Club in that city. The contesting teams were the Park Club, of this city, and the Ridgewood Club. The Ridgewoods had already defeated Roseville and Roseville had defeated the Parks. Then the Parks tied the round by defeating Ridgewood by a score of 7 to 6. A third round will now have to be played.

The match Saturday night was decidedly close. The Parks were in good form and the luck was evenly divided. P. B. Matthews, Albert Woltmann, Arthur A. Freeman and Fred H. Freeman represented the Parks.

The first round of the match showed the Parks in the lead 3 tricks to 2. The result of the second was the same, 3 to 2, in favor of the Parks. The Ridgewood team braced up for the final and gained one point in the third round, winning that 2 to 1. The total score was 7 to 6 in favor of the Parks.

SHE PROMISED JUDGE TO GIVE UP DRINK.

Mrs. Kate McGleary in City Court Again.

WAS DRUNK ON STREET.

LETTER FROM HER HUSBAND SAVED HER A HEAVY SENTENCE.

She Was the Judge's First Case New Year's Day and Had Promised to Swear Off Then—Arrested Again by Patrolman Vanderveig Saturday Night—Has a Husband and Three Children.

City Judge William N. Runyon had a batch of offenders, left over from Saturday to administer justice to Monday morning.

The first to be arraigned before the City Judge was a woman, Mrs. Kate McCleary. The first day that the Judge presided on the local bench, Mrs. McCleary was brought before him, a victim of intemperance. She had been found lying about the streets New Year's eve too drunk to care for herself. The Judge let her go with a warning.

Mrs. McCleary lives with her husband, a hard working respectable man and three little children. Saturday night, Patrolman Vanderveig found her sprawled out on North avenue, unable to navigate. So he locked her up.

"I lead a lonely life," she began, the tears rolling down her cheeks. "And I get downhearted sometimes." The Judge did not think that she could get lonely with three children. He then delivered a lecture, the most severe yet heard from him since his term began. He had received a letter from her husband, begging for clemency this time, he said, and but for that he had decided to give her a lesson that she would not forget. She had promised to give up drink forever, when he let her go the last time and here she was back again for the same offence.

The woman pleaded that now she meant it and would drink no more. Judge Runyon suspended sentence but warned her that another arrest would mean the severest sentence the law allowed.

Fred Willibald, who was arrested Saturday morning by Roundsman Fredericksen and was too drunk that morning to be tried, came up Monday morning for a hearing. He pleaded guilty. The officer explained that he was not causing any trouble. Just fell on his back and was too drunk to change his position. So the Judge suspended sentence.

Dance at Park Club.

Arrangements are now about complete for a dance to be given at the Park Club on the evening of April 6th. It will be one of the most enjoyable affairs of the season.

Aged Friend Dead.

Amos Vail, of Greenbrook, one of the oldest Friends in this vicinity, died last Monday at his home after a long illness. Mr. Vail was born at Greenbrook and followed the pursuit of farming. He leaves a widow.

A Commissioner of Deeds.

Harvey L. Linbarger, of Reed & Coddington's law offices, has been appointed a commissioner of deeds by nomination of Governor Voorhees and confirmation of the Legislature.

A New Residence

George Miller is going to build a residence at the corner of East Front and Berckman streets. Work will be started this week if the weather permits.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AIDING MISSIONS

Silver Anniversary of the Young Ladies' Mission Band.

FIVE REPORTS WERE READ.

EACH ONE COVERED FIVE YEARS OF SOCIETY.

The Band Originally Met as a Prayer Meeting and Then Became Known as the Mah Mhyah Mission Band—After Five Years Present Title Was Assumed—$3,000 Raised in Five Years.

A quarter of a century of success has crowned the efforts of the Young Ladies' Mission Band of the First Baptist church, and in honor of the completion of that number of years as a society the event was celebrated Friday afternoon in a pleasant and profitable manner. The president, Mrs. D. Witt Brokaw, was in charge of the affair and conducted the programme.

Five reports were presented, each one covering a period of five years. Mrs. J. A. Powlison read the paper for the first five years. This showed that in 1873 a band of girls associated themselves and raised $25 to make Mrs. D. J. Yerkes a life member of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society. In 1874 these same girls formed what was known as the prayer meeting band. Meetings were held at the home of Miss Isabella Butler and at the home of Mrs. Eden Boice. Miss Butler was chosen as the first president of the band. In 1878 the name was changed to Mah Mhyah Mission Band and that name was kept until 1888. Mrs. Powlison was treasurer for the seven years, and during the first five years $800 was raised for mission work. This was considered remarkable considering the number of members, twenty, and the means at hand to collect money.

Mrs. W. O. Chapman presented the paper for the second five years. This showed that the band was increasing in membership and was doing good work. At this time the name of the society was again changed to the Young Ladies' Mission Band. Considerable money was raised during the second five years and it was used for foreign and home missions. The third five years was presented by Miss Grace Yerkes. During that time $1,400 was raised. Miss Yerkes read a letter from Mah Mhyah, in which she told of the work being carried on in India, where the band sends some of its money.

The paper for the fourth five years was read by Mrs. L. H. Bigelow, Jr., and it showed that over $3,000 was raised. This was the largest amount raised during any five years in the band's history. The report for the last five years was read by Miss Hattie Shreve and showed that a large amount of money was raised and wisely distributed to the best advantage.

After the reading of the reports a very enjoyable vocal solo was given by Mrs. Samuel Owe, after which those present had the pleasure of listening to an able and interesting address by Mrs. Heinrichs, of Tetta, India. She told much about the work in her field of labor and created much enthusiasm among those present.

A matter brought up for discussion at the meeting was in regard to the advisability of the older members of the band withdrawing and joining the older missionary society and allowing young persons to reorganize the band. There are good prospects of this being done, and it will be decided at the annual meeting of the band next Wednesday afternoon, when officers will be elected and other important business transacted. The band now numbers ninety members and is in a flourishing condition.

After the meeting yesterday a social time was held and tea was served by Mrs. Hadley Bonnell, Mrs. Elston Woodland, Miss Ida Yerkes, Mrs. G. F. Brown and Mrs. Charles H. Smith.

L. E. HOWARD'S FUNERAL.

Held From Grace M. E. Church Monday Morning—Interment in Brooklyn.

The funeral services of the late Louis Emerson Howard were held Monday morning at 10:15 o'clock in Grace P. E. church, where he was a member and attendant. Rev. Floyd Appleton, curate, officiated and conducted the regular burial service of the church. There was a very large attendance of friends present. The church choir assisted in the services and made a circle of the edifice preceding the funeral cortege up the centre singing "Softly Now the Light of Day." The recessional was "Awake My Soul Stretch Every Nerve." The remains were conveyed to and from the church by colored bearers.

The mourners accompanied the remains to the North Avenue station and occupied the club car "Netherwood" to New York attached to the 12:09 train. This car was placed into service through Mr. Howard's efforts. Interment took place Monday afternoon in Greenwood Cemetery.

THE DUTCH NOT THERE

BUT THE HOLLAND SUPPER WAS A GREAT SUCCESS.

Affair Given in Trinity Reformed Church Under the Auspices of the Bible Class Taught by Robert A. Meeker.

Those who have never partaken of a genuine Holland supper in the old country many thousands of miles away were given the opportunity last Friday at Trinity Reformed church of enjoying such a supper without the discomfiture of going to Holland to get it. This original idea was conceived in the minds of Sunday-school class No. 1, taught by R. A. Meeker, and to carry out the plans successfully they had the assistance of the officers and teachers of the Sunday school in their endeavor to secure enough money to meet the financial needs of the school.

In every particular the affair was a success and those who took part feel well repaid for their efforts. As an attraction, and incidentally, in honor of the day, the decorations were green, which color prevailed through a pleasing arrangement of bunting that was draped about the room and suspended from the pillars. Arranged about the rooms were tables where one could conveniently sit down and remain until the inner man was sufficiently filled and satisfied.

The supper was all to be desired. The menu was noticeable for the fact that everything mentioned was of a substantial nature and no doubt filled the minds of any as to whether they would get their money's worth. Old-fashioned baked beans, clam chowder, home made bread, jelly cake, crullers, corn beef, potatoes, etc., were some of the things that were provided, and no one was allowed to leave the table until they were satisfied. As a finishing touch ice cream filled the bill exactly.

Mr. Meeker, teacher of the class, was on duty at the door and accepted the shekels, and not one escaped his eagle eye. After the guard was passed the guests were welcomed by members of the school and they were made to feel at home right away.

While supper was being served from 6 until 10 o'clock a pleasant phonograph concert was given consisting of all the best and most popular selections. Altogether the affair was a success, financially and socially. Nearly one hundred and fifty suppers were served, and nearly everything was disposed of.

Those who took part in making the supper so successful included Miss Nettie Bandel, Miss Ward, Mrs. Wikoff, Mrs. Watts, Miss Chandler, and Mrs. E. E. Anthony, Miss DuBois, Miss Maude DuBois, Mrs. Brighton, Mrs. J. C. VanDyke. Among the young women who assisted were Miss Cora Laire, Miss Martie Anthony, Miss Grace Rowland, Miss Emma Gillem, Miss Grace Emmons, Miss Emma Lines, Miss Emma Backer, Miss Romeen, Miss Minnie Wyman.

Miss Randall had charge of the supper and gave personal supervision to it, while Mrs. VanDyke attended to the serving of the ice cream, assisted by some of the young women whose names are mentioned. The serving of lemonade was in charge of Mrs. E. E. Anthony, while the other work was divided equally among those who are included in the list of names.

BOY WAS A CRACK SHOT.

ALBERT CALLOWAY WON A MATCH AGAINST HOWARD.

The Lad Gave the Spectators a Surprise, Winning by 23 Birds to Howard's 21—Other Honors Were Won.

There was a surprised crowd at Scott Terry's Friday afternoon. A young lad, only seventeen years old, walked in and defeated an old hand at the business, incidentally winning a purse of $100. The young wonder was Albert Calloway, of North Plainfield. His rival for trap shooting honors was Charles C. Howard.

A match of twenty-five live birds, had been arranged between the two, for $50 a side. Almost all of the spectators present backed Howard as the probable winner. Frank Hedden was the lad's principal backer.

The match resulted in a victory for Calloway by a score of 23 to 21. The birds were a selected lot and flew well. The weather was ideal for shooting.

There were sweepstakes besides the match. At the blue rocks Tom Brantingham, of South Plainfield, took off the honors, bringing down 20 targets out of 25. Calloway and Howard will shoot again the 29th for $100 a side.

Died at the Hospital.

Peter O'Donnell, 23 years old, died in Muhlenberg Hospital Sunday where he was taken to undergo an operation. P. Casey & Son shipped the remains to the dead man's brother in Hoboken last Sunday. O'Donnell was employed in the Pond Machine Tool Works. He was taken ill and ordered to the hospital by his physician. O'Donnell was unmarried.

—The regular meeting of the "Woman's Parliamentary Club" will be held Thursday March 23d at 10 a. m.

LOUIS E. HOWARD DIED UNEXPECTEDLY.

He Was the Originator of Club Cars on the Central.

WELL KNOWN IN THIS CITY.

WAS IN ILL HEALTH, BUT ILLNESS NOT THOUGHT SERIOUS.

He Was Born in Brooklyn, But Had Lived in This City for Fifteen Years—First Club Car Was Named After Him—During His Business Career He Made and Lost Several Fortunes.

At 1:45 o'clock Saturday a. m. occurred the death of Louis E. Howard, of 312 LaGrande avenue, a well known Plainfielder. His death was sudden, for although he had been in poor health for several months, it was not thought that he was dangerously ill until yesterday. Death was due to a complication of diseases.

The deceased was born in Brooklyn, and would have been fifty-two years of age the 25th of this month. Fifteen years ago he moved to this city and lived on East Ninth street, then on Sandford avenue, and for the past year or so at 312 LaGrande avenue.

Mr. Howard was a popular man. He became a commuter, and during his business career has made and lost several fortunes. It was through his efforts that the club cars were introduced here. The first one was built ten years ago and placed on the road and named the "Howard" in his honor. The Central Railroad Company has since changed the name to the "Netherwood."

The deceased was a member of Grace P. E. church, and belonged to Jerusiem Lodge, Chapter 26, F. and A. M.; Anchor Lodge No. 149, F. and A. M., and Trinity Commandery No. 17, K. T. He was a sportsman and usually spent his summers in the Catskills, where, two years ago, he had a narrow escape from death in a burning hunter's shanty.

A widow and four children survive him, Mrs. G. Harry Squires, Miss Lelia Howard, E. C. and Frank Howard. Last October Mr. Howard was compelled to give up active business on account of his health, and had been an invalid ever since. Friday his trouble took a sudden turn for the worse, and shortly after midnight he died.

A BOOM IN THE WEST END.

Residential Improvements in the Vicinity of Monroe and Grant Avenues.

A most enterprising little building boom has been started in the section of the city bounded by Monroe and Grant avenues and West Seventh and Fourth streets. A very handsome residence is now under way on the north side of West Seventh street, just east of Monroe avenue. Manning & Son have the contract for the work. The house is being built by A. D. Thompson.

Two other houses are in process of erection on West Sixth street, in the same block. They will not be quite as elaborate as the other.

Plans for eight other houses in that section have been completed, and will be started with the beginning of good weather.

A DOUBLE WEDDING.

Two Plainfield Couples Plighted Their Troth in Elizabeth.

Announcement has just been made of a double wedding which took place Wedesday, March 1st, at Elizabeth, at which time four Plainfielders met at the marriage altar. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Bally at his home in Elizabeth.

One couple was William Dandridge and Miss Dora Hedgman. The groom is employed by Dr. Boone while the bride was employed by A. A. Taft, of the borough.

The other couple was James Whitton and Miss Tempa Morris. This groom is employed in Washington Park, as an attendant, while the bride was employed in a family on Fairview avenue.

The many friends of the contracting pairs will be surprised to learn of their marriage, but they will no doubt receive the hearty congratulations of all.

Arranging for the Fair.

The joint committees of Iona Council and Miantonomoh Tribe met Saturday night in William Newcorn's office and made the final arrangements for the fair to be held in Washington Hall Easter week. The committee are making plans for something out of the ordinary in regard to this fair, and expect to have an electric display, candy makers, glass blowers etc., present. Utawan, a genuine Indian fortune teller, is expected to be present.

Established Stock Rooms Here.

The Factory Bolles Revolving Sash Company, of New York, has located headquarters in this city. The second and third floors of the old Bird mill, 121 East Fourth street, have been rented by that concern and fitted up as stock rooms.

MRS. J. H. ACKERMAN IN THE WINDSOR FIRE

She Was a Guest There and Just Escaped With Her Life.

MRS. RUSHMORE WITH HER.

LOST ALL THEIR CLOTHES EXCEPT THOSE THAT THEY WORE.

Were Watching the St. Patrick's Day Parade From Their Apartments on Second Floor of the House When the Alarm Came—Had Not a Moment to Save —Now Stopping at the Holland House.

Among the inmates of the Windsor Hotel, the destruction of which by fire Friday afternoon involved such a terrible loss of life and property, were Mrs. J. Harvey Ackerman, of West Seventh street, Plainfield, and her daughter, Miss Lydia P. Ackerman. At the time of the fire Mrs. Robert Rushmore, of West Eighth streets, Plainfield, was visiting her mother, Mrs. Ackerman, at the hotel. All three escaped without injury but only in the nick of time, leaving behind everything except the clothing on their backs.

Mrs. Ackerman and her daughter occupied apartments on the parlor floor, the first above the street, in the Windsor. Mrs. Rushmore was with them and they were looking out of one of the windows of their parlor on the Fifth avenue side watching the St. Patrick's Day parade that was passing.

Suddenly the procession broke ranks and shouts of "fire" filled the air. Then they realized that the building they were occupying was on fire. Without even stopping to don hats or wraps they went into the corridor which was already filled with smoke. The flames were rapidly approaching. They hurried to the stairway and made their way down it and through the lobby with its excited occupants into the street. They took refuge in a house opposite for a short time until they were able to obtain a conveyance to take them to the Holland House where they are now staying.

Marion S. Ackerman, Mrs. Ackerman's son, was summoned from his New York office by telegraph and came at once. The other members of the family were then notified that Mrs. Ackerman and her daughters had escaped from the Windsor without injury.

The trunks of Mrs. and Miss Ackerman were at the fated hotel and were destroyed with all their contents. Nothing was saved. Mrs. Rushmore went to Plainfield today. Mr. and Mrs. Ackerman will remain in New York until next week when they expect to return to their Plainfield home.

Among those who were burned was Mrs. John VanValkenberg Waldo, who is known to several Plainfielders. She spent a portion of last summer and spring at the "Chestnuts" on Seventh street. She was stopping at the Windsor for a time. She was quite badly burned about the body and was rescued and taken to Roosevelt Hospital, where it is believed that she will recover.

Among the witnesses of the breaking out of the fire was Pat. the gardener in the employ of James E Martine, of Cedar Brook Farm. He was in the Hibernian's parade and was just passing along Fifth avenue in the neighborhood of the hotel when the flames burst out. He saw a woman jump from the fourth story and land on the sidewalk, crushed beyond recognition by the force of the fall.

Asa Collier, of East Sixth street, was in New York at the time of the fire and went to the scene. E. Maxwell Honeyman, of Grove street, passed by when the conflagration was at its height. There were a number of other Plainfielders who witnessed the fire from the sidewalk and from passing cars and L trains.

Editor Runyon Beaten

The second trial of the right of property in the Bard Company case lasted only a short time Thursday afternoon. It was the case of the Bard Company, claimant, against F. W. Runyon, plaintiff in execution. The defendant failed to appear, so the evidence was quickly put before the jury and they retired, bring ng in a verdict for the claimant. The jury men were John B. Phillips, Andrew Huff, James B. Clarkson, Ralph Saums and Josiah S. Smith.

A Christening.

Patsy Christmas, the well known contractor, christened his little child last Thursday mid general rejoicing. The affair was held at his home on Park avenue and was made the occasion for general rejoicing. There was a host of friends to wish him success and celebrate the naming of the child in right royal fashion.

Change in Borough Police Force.

According to reports there is going to be quite a change in the borough police force.

THE LAST AND THE BEST

LEON VINCENT'S TALK ON AUTHOR OF "THE LITTLE MINISTER."

This Popular Author is a Graduate of Newspaper Work, and Though Young Stands High in the School of Fiction

The best and best of the three lectures which Leon H. Vincent has been giving in Vincent chapel this spring, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist church, took place Friday night. Mr. Vincent's subject was "Barrie and the Scotch School."

In introducing his subject the lecturer spoke briefly about the new school that has sprung up within the past ten years, and which now threatens to usurp the place of English literature, since there is a halt called by the novel-reading public. Of dialect stories, Mr. Vincent thinks those with a hint of dialect in them are preferable to those that are full of it, and instead of the reader quickly getting the sense of what is read, because of the uncouth terms used, he must pay too much attention to the language.

Foremost among the Scotch writers Mr. Vincent placed James M. Barrie, who has recently become even better known to the world through his famous book, "The Little Minister." Mr. Barrie is now about 39 years of age, having been born in 1860, and for many years has been giving to the world the choicest bits of Scottish literature. His dialect is so pure and delicate, yet so substantial a part of the story he writes that it adds a charm to the novel.

Barrie took up literature when a young man, graduating into it from the great school of journalism.

After leaving college Barrie looked about for something to do. A position as leading writer on an English country paper was offered him. He accepted, and for two years labored hard at his desk for what he considered a princely salary of $15 a week.

Just when he began to write fiction is not definitely known. The old legends and tales of his native land began early to rise up in his imagination, and soon he began to sketch them with his pen. The outline was completed, a bit of real life was added, a plot was arranged on which to hang the tale and there was a story.

It is said upon the best authority that the young man had no very firm believers in his genius, for he received no encouragement even from his mother to induce him to spend his time in writing. When some of his tales first appeared in print she expressed an opinion that the editor who accepted "that stuff" must be a fool, and for a long time failed to realize that her son was delighting the whole English speaking and reading world with his books.

Barrie's work was quickly recognized and rewarded. His first publisher was Frederick Greenwood, editor of the St James Gazette. Barrie is the author of three well know novels, "When a Man's Single," "A Window in Thrums" and "The Little Minister." His last book, "Sentimental Tommy" is reaching an enormous sale, and is said by some to be the best he has yet written.

Towards the close of the lecture Mr. Vincent read humorous extracts from some of Barrie's writings.

To Change Their Location.

The members of the Young Women's Club have decided to change their quarters and on April 1st they will occupy two rooms in a portion of the double house on West Front street opposite Washington avenue. The club is in a very flourishing condition and every Monday evening a large number of the members attend the events arranged. On Monday evening, March 27th, Miss Grace Dodge, of New York, will come to the club and a social talk with the girls. Other interesting features are being arranged by the members to make the club one of the most successful in existence.

Residential Changes

George Conover, the furniture expressman, has moved the following persons' goods in a change of residence: Robert W. Dryden, from Hillside avenue to New York; Wm. Bacon from New York to Craig place; J. H. Fleming from Dunellen to Few York; P. J. Loizeaux from Westervelt avenue to Dunellen.

The Architect's Promise

The architect for the new borough school has promised that the building will be ready for occupancy about the middle of April.

Elected a Delegate.

Rev. B. W. Hand, of this city, has been elected a delegate to the Disciples Congress to be held in New York City during April.

WILL LEAVE LEAGUE AND GO IT ALONE

Plainfield Y. M. C. A. Will Withdraw from Cycling League.

ONE OF THE ORGANIZERS.

THE Y. M. C. A. CYCLING LEAGUE WILL PROBABLY DISBAND

Plainfield and Summit Will Conduct their Runs on an Independent Basis Hereafter—Trouble in the League After Passaic and Paterson Joined—The League is Now Four Years Old.

The days of the Y. M. C. A. Cycling League of Northern New Jersey are probably numbered. The New Brunswick Association went out last year. Plainfield and Summit have both announced that they will go it alone this season while Somerville is not anxious to continue its membership The other associations included are not agreed as to what they want to do. Plainfield was instrumental in the forming of the league and is now playing an important part in the movement that will probably end in the disbandment of that organization.

The league was organized four years ago at a meeting held in the Westfield Y. M. C. A., when J. C. Whiting was secretary. The meeting was called at the request of Thomas A Cuming and Rev. Mr. McPhie, then physical director here. The associations represented were Plainfield, Westfield, Elizabeth, Orange and Summit, Newark joined shortly after.

Runs were held every two weeks to the homes of the different associations and proved a great success at first. Gradually the membership was increased, Passaic and Patterson joining two years ago Since the last named associations joined, there has been trouble. They were too far away for Plainfield and neighboring associations to visit. Passaic and Patterson felt left out in the cold.

Last year the league was divided into two sections in an attempt to get round the trouble but it was not successful. Toward the last of the season, the Plainfield association practically gave up any attempt to attend the runs.

Bicycling will be part of the athletic department of the Plainfield Y.M.C.A this season as usual but the runs will be conducted entirely independent of any league. Arrangements will be made with several of the neighboring associations for the interchange of courtesies. The associations will visit each other when they please, giving notice in advance so that the home association can provide entertainment if it so wishes.

Summit will follow a similar plan and the old league will be allowed to live or die as it wishes.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL OFFICERS ELECTED.

Annual Meeting of First Presbyterian Sunday-School Held Last Night.

The annual meeting of the Sunday-school of the First Presbyterian church was held in the church parlors Friday evening The following officers were elected; Superintendent, E. M. Cave; assistant superintendent, R. H. Radford; second assistant superintendent, Miss Helen Boice; treasurer, F. Shotwell; secretary, E. D. Coegre; assistant secretary, Frank Hazeltine; librarian, F. L. Cobb; assistant librarian, Warren Townley.

The reports presented from the various officers and committees showed the school to be in a flourishing condition.

THE RAILS SPREAD.

Troublesome Accident on the street Railway Thursday Afternoon.

One of the Plainfield Street Railway Company's cars jumped the track on Woodland avenue late Thursday and three hours and thirty-five minutes were consumed in placing the car back again. The cause for the jump was the spreading of the rails. The mud in the vicinity is quite deep and the car began to settle, which made it very difficult to get the car on the tracks. The feat was accomplished, however, and the trouble has been remedied.

Realty Changes

The following real estate changes have been recorded in the Somerset County Clerk's office during the past week: Mary A Marsh et al to John P Emmons, North Plainfield, $1; John F. Harrison to Emma A. Dewey, North Plainfield, $1; George H. Byrd et al to Albert I Drayton, North Plainfield, $1; Laura P Garretson to Ellis A. Boss, North Plainfield, $1.

Franklin Council to Celebrate.

Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., is planning to hold a big celebration the last of this month at which time a large number of candidates will be initiated into the Council. The members for sometime past have been making extra efforts to increase their membership and their efforts have been successful, even beyond expectation.

HOT WALKING FOR CAKE

LIVELY TIME AT WASHINGTON HALL THURSDAY NIGHT.

Four Colored Couples Made an Exciting Contest—The Youngsters Won Verdict—Maggie Bell Was There Too.

The cakewalkers outdid themselves, the audience rumbled over itself in its enthusiasm to applaud, and altogether the cakewalk in Washington Hall, last Thursday, was a very "warm" one. The cakewalk was, of course, the event of the evening, but there was also a gathering of dusky belles and their beaux for a dance before and after the walk.

Quite a concourse of white folks happened in about 11 o'clock, the hour set for the walk. It was not held until nearly midnight. The excitement of it all made up for the delay, however.

Now cake walks are frequent but not so the good old fashioned kind that bring the spectators up standing with the excitement. There were four couples entered who walked under the direction of Ernest Bray, the master of ceremonies.

There were Andrew Ozy and Mrs. Charles Carr. Ozy had the step down to perfection, but his partner was slow on the start. In the second round she improved and they walked well. Bert Brown and Miss Adelaide Lewis, two small children, were the winners, however. She was light and graceful and full of life. Brown performed all sorts of funny stunts with a warmth and vigor that immensely tickled the crowd.

Maggie Belle Jackson appeared in an elaborate creation of pink and white, with a crown of sparkling stones surmounting her black, flowing locks. Her partner was Will Wilson, alias "Skinny," a dapper chap from New York. Their poses were sufficiently striking to satisfy the crowd, but, when it came to real walking, they couldn't hold the pace set by the little couple. The other couple was Miss Nora McCray and Harry Thomas.

The first prize, a cake, was awarded to the youngster. Mrs. Carr and Ozy took second, and Maggie Belle and her gallant third. The awards were made according to the sense of the spectators as expressed by their applause.

Howard Grobes was manager of the whole affair. Wm. Grobes and Louis Peterson were the floor managers.

LUNCH BOX SOCIABLE.

Pleasant Affair Arranged by Women's Relief Corps.

The members of the Women's Relief Corps, No. 10, auxiliary to Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., together with their friends, enjoyed a lunch box sociable with an entertainment Friday evening, in their rooms. The attendance was good and an evening of pleasure for all resulted. There were many visitors present including Department President Mrs. Cauley, of Paterson, accompanied by several members of her staff. Mrs. Atwood, of Trenton, was also present, and Mrs. Angleman, of Bayonne.

During the evening several recitations were given by Mrs. Andrew Cox, and Miss Jennie Smith rendered several piano solos. A very pleasant feature was the addresses given by members of the G. A. R. who were present.

FORMER SENATOR HOME AGAIN.

Mr. Smith Devoting Attention to Consolidating Electric Light Interest.

James Smith, Jr., whose term as United States Senator from New Jersey recently expired, has returned to his home in Newark. Before he left Washington he started negotiations for the acquisition and consolidation of the electric lighting and trolley interests in the city.

From Washington he went to Philadelphia, where he spent some time in looking after other electric lighting and gas interests in which he is interested.

Mr. Smith declines at this time to discuss his business enterprises in detail. He will soon go to Lakewood for a rest.

Surprise at Glenside Park.

Mrs. Molloy, of Glenside Park, arranged and gave a very pleasant surprise party to her daughter, Miss Anna Molloy, Friday evening. There were about fifty guests present from Newark, New York, Jersey City, Scotch Plains and Plainfield. There were about eighteen persons from this city who went by one of Conover's stages. Frazee furnished the music.

A Banquet at the Kenilworth.

The Plainfield Medical Society will hold their quarterly meeting and banquet on the evening of April 5th. The affair will be given in the dining hall of the new Hotel Kenilworth. As this will be the first public function in the Kenilworth Manager Sloats will make the occasion one for special effort on his part.

To Spread Out.

J. A. Smith & Bro., the Front street grocers, have decided to use the store adjoining their present one and the partition will be removed This will give the needed increased room.

A HEARTLESS MOTHER DESERTED HER BABY.

Last November the Child Was Left to Its Fate by the Parents.

MOTHER IN COURT TODAY.

THE BABY LEFT WITH A WOMAN WHO HAD FOURTEEN CHILDALN.

Lizzie Childs, the Mother, Arrested in Red Bank and Brought to This City —The Baby Put in Her Arms in Court This Morning But She Received It Without Any Expression of Love.

First father, then mother disappeared and the little dusky skinned babe was thrown upon the mercies of world to perish or survive as circumstances willed. A tender-hearted woman cared for the deserted infant and saved its life. Friday morning the young mother, Lizzie Childs, alias Mrs. Howard Bassie, was brought to justice and compelled to provide and for her child.

Last November a young colored couple came to the home of Stephen Coleman, of Paradise alley, and wanted a room. After they had lived there for several weeks a child was born. A week later the man, who gave his name as Howard Bassie left and did not return. A week after his disappearance the mother walked out of the house one afternoon, leaving the child asleep on the sofa. Her board was paid in full up to that time.

That was the last Mrs. Coleman saw of Lizzie Childs until Friday morning. The child woke up toward evening and began to cry. All the evening the sobs of the baby continued until the heart of Mrs Coleman could stand it no longer, and, although ill at the time, she took the baby under her charge. Mrs. Coleman already has fourteen children and has a hard time to get along. Since that time Mrs. Coleman has cared constantly for the deserted child and her husband has borne uncomplainingly the addition to the family.

December 20th the Colemans decided that there was little chance of the parents returning, and so they reported the matter to Overseer of the Poor Hanson. Warrants were issued by City Judge Runyon for the arrest of father and mother on the charge of desertion.

A week ago Bassie was arrested in Middletown, N. J., where his employer furnished bail for Bassie's appearance before the City Judge Monday morning. For some time Hanson has been looking for traces of Lizzie Childs. At last he found her in Red Bank. Thursday afternoon Chief Grant went to Red Bank where his warrant was indorsed by Justice Childs and arrested Lizzie Childs and brought her to Plainfield.

Friday morning in the City Court she declared that she had made arrangements with a woman in Plainfield to care for the child, but that the latter had evidently backed out of the agreement at the last moment. She expressed a willingness to take the child, but showed no particular feeling on the subject. Mrs. Coleman gave her the baby and with tears in her eyes and trembling voice she told the mother what an inhuman thing she had done and begged her to care for the little one in the future and not leave it again to die.

The Judge released the prisoner if she would agree to care for the child and she departed for Red Bank by the first train.

POPULAR ENGINEER LEAD.

Engineer Champion, of the Easton Run, Passes Over the Great Divide.

A sad event among the railroad employes of the New Jersey Central is the death of Engineer Champion. He was the driver of Engine No 172 which takes the train to Easton, stopping at Plainfield at 8:16 a. m. He was in the employ of the Central for nearly thirty years and was a general favorite. Recently he was taken down with pneumonia and lived just five days. The funeral services were held Thursday from the late home in New York, and interment took place Friday Out of respect for the departed, Engine No. 172 is now draped in mourning.

EIGHTEEN NEW JUNIORS.

Largest Number Ever Initiated at One Time by Franklin Council.

Last Thursday at the meeting of Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., eighteen candidates were initiated, the highest number ever put through in one evening. There were fifteen propositions received at the meeting and initiation will take place in two weeks. The Council numbers nearly 200 members and is growing rapidly. It is now one of the most prosperous and wide awake Councils in the State.

The Borough's New School Building.

Judging by present appearances the borough public school may not be ready for use this spring. The work is progressing quite favorably, but unless the building is perfectly dry it would hardly be fit for children and teachers to occupy it.

AGED WOMEN IS INSANE

AT BROOKSIDE RETREAT AND THINKS PERSONS WANT TO KILL HER.

Mental Condition of Mrs. Martha Russell, of Westfield, Enquired Into and She is Declared to be of Unsound Mind.

Thursday morning, before a commission consisting of P. H. Gilhooly, Dr. Cooper, of Westfield and M. F. Scudder and a twelve man jury, inquiry was made in the mental condition of Mrs. Martha Russell, of Westfield, who is at present an inmate of the Brookside sanitarium in North Plainfield.

The action was brought to determine whether Mrs. Russell was a fit person to handle her property, which consisted of some $6,000 in cash and bonds. P. Hamilton Gilhooly acted as judge in the proceedings. Testimony was given by Dr. J. H. Cooley, of this city, keeper of the Sanitarium, who said in his opinion Mrs. Russell was not in her right mind. She was given to hallucinations, and often thought persons wanted to kill her.

Testimony was also given by Albert L. Russell, M. s. Russell's nephew. He told of a number of acts which showed her to be unfit to care for herself. He also said she was eighty two years of age. Mrs. Russell's sister also testified. The jury, after being out a few minutes, returned with a verdict in accordance with the evidence, and was dismissed.

The Court of Chancery, under whose sanction the hearing was held, will now appoint a guardian to look after Mrs. Russell's property, and to see that she is given proper care for the rest of her life. She will probably remain at the sanitarium.

LEFT ONE WHEEL BEHIND.

Joel Manning's Horse Got Fractious Saturday.

A young horse belonging to Joel Manning, of South Plainfield, and tied under James Dunn's sheds, on Park avenue Saturday, undertook to run away. Backing out from under the shed, the horse turned around and started towards the street. At the end of the alley one of phaeton's wheels struck a post and hung there, while the carriage, with only three wheels, went on.

James Babbitt caught the horse before he had gone half a block, and he was unhitched from the phaeton and led back. Mr. Manning was not around at the time, having left his horse to do some shopping.

Resolutions of Condolence.

At the regular meeting of Division, No. 4, A. O. H., held March 9th, 1899, the following resolutions were presented by the committee and were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, It has pleased Almighty God to take from our midst, Mary, beloved wife of John Driscoll, one of the most active members of the A. O. H. Be it,

Resolved, That we the members of Division, No. 4, A. O. H., while bowing to the Divine Will, express our deep sorrow at her death. And be it further,

Resolved, That we tender to her beloved husband our heartfelt sympathy in his sad bereavement and that a copy of these resolutions be presented to him; that a copy be sent to the Plainfield Daily Press and Courier-News for publication, and that they be spread on the minutes of our society.

Signed. John J. Gallagher,
James McCarthy,
Committee.

Wedding Anniversary.

Marshal and Mrs. Frank Winn, of 93 Manning avenue, celebrated the seventh anniversary of their marriage Thursday in a very pleasant manner. There were a number of relatives and friends present who congratulated the the celebrants and wished them many happy returns of the day. Sociability was the feature of the evening and at a late hour supper was served. Mr. and Mrs. Winn received a number of useful and handsome presents as reminders of the event.

Entertaining Clergymen.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Shotwell, of Fairview avenue, entertained the elders and their wives of the First Presbyterian church at dinner Thursday night. Rev. C. E. Herring, the pastor, was one of the company, and a pleasant evening was spent. Those present were Rev. C. E. Herring, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Bettman, Mr. and Mrs. Mr. Mills, Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Cadmus, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Radford and Mr. and Mrs. William H. Shotwell.

Classis of Raritan.

The Classis of Raritan met in special session in the chapel of the First Reformed church, of Somerville, March 6th. An application was presented for a dissolution of the pastoral relation between Rev. Isaac L. Kip and the church of High Bridge. The application was granted and Rev. Isaac L. Kip was dismissed to the Classis of Philadelphia, within whose bounds he has received a call.

Euchre the Attraction.

The members of the Thursday Night Euchre Club were entertained last week at the home of Miss Charlotte Messersmith, of Washington street. Euchre, as usual, was the event of the evening. First prizes were won by Fred Ross and Mrs. Will F. Williams. Will F. Williams and Miss Ciara Williams were the winners of the second prizes.

A BOROUGH MADE IN A PECULIAR PLIGHT.

A Nice Muddle in Union County's Latest Municipality.

GOVERNOR IS TO BLAME.

SIGNED BOROUGH BILL WHILE TOWNSHIP ELECTION WAS GOING ON.

The Law Took Effect Immediately and as a Result the Citizens Lived in a Township in the Morning and in a Borough in the Afternoon—Questions That Arose in the Rights of New Officials.

The citizens of New Providence, one of the largest townships in size and the smallest in population in Union county, are confronted by a peculiar state of affairs and, as a result, they do not know just what their municipal standing is.

Some time ago some of the residents who reside within a mile of the Liberty pole in the centre of the village secured the passage of an enabling act through the Legislature providing for a borough form of government in that part of New Providence in which they reside. This bill became a law, the Governor signing it late Tuesday afternoon, when the regular township election for the election of township officers was nearly over. The borough advocates had waited in vain for the Governor acting, and were obliged to go ahead with the township election according to law.

Notwithstanding the fact that word was sent that the bill had become a law, the election went on and yesterday there was much guessing going on. Those on the winning ticket claim that the election holds good, while the friends of the defeated candidates say that the election cannot be legal because some of the successful candidates are residents of the borough, and because of their residence are not qualified to act as township officials, and that to correct this error it will be necessary to hold special elections for both the township and the borough.

The law upheld in this opinion by the fact that the General Borough act of 1897, under which part of New Providence was incorporated as a borough, does not provide for any case where the borough is formed on election day, while a township election is going on.

Township Counsel Corra N. Williams, of Summit, said when told about the state of affairs at New Providence: "The inhabitants of that portion of the township of New Providence included within the borough will not be compelled to have another election to elect officers for the borough of New Providence. That election will be ordered by the Union County Board of Election upon the application of any legal voter residing in the borough.

"The terms of officers to be elected in the borough will be only for the unexpired time between the date of election and the second Tuesday in March next, when under the General Borough Act of 1897 the annual election for borough officers takes place.

"The township officers elected at the township election held yesterday, still continue in office, and exercise their functions both in the township and the borough until the first Monday succeeding the election of officers in the borough at a special election ordered, by the County Board of Elections, when the township officials cease to have authority in the territory embraced within the borough, but continue to exercise their official power within the remainder of the township for the balance of the town."

A HEBREW MARRIAGE.

Ceremony Celebrated in the West Front Street Synagogue.

A wedding in the Jewish circles took place last Thursday in the synagogue, 204 West Front street, at 9:15 o'clock, when Miss Yetta Sena and Max Michelson, both of this city, were united in marriage, according to the ceremony of the Jews, by Rabbi Fine. There were fully one hundred relatives and friends present to see the ceremony. Prior to the wedding the guests assembled and enjoyed a dance, which is the custom, after which the bride and groom and their attendants appeared. Those who stood up with the bride and groom were Miss Lizzie Jacob, Miss Anna Minch, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Sena.

After the marriage congratulations were offered to the happy couple. An adjournment was then made to 129 Somerset street, the home of the bride's brother, where a reception was held and supper was served. Mr. and Mrs. Michelson received many elegant gifts from their friends. They will reside on Richmond street. The groom is an employe at the carpet works, and he and his wife have a host of friends who wish them well.

Ladies' Aid Elected.

The Ladies' Aid Society of Hope chapel have elected the following officers: President, Mrs. Robert Hangliter; vice-president, Mrs. Montgomery; secretary, Mrs. Sweeney; treasurer, Mrs. Sheppard.

HERALD ADVANTAGES OF CITY TO THE WORLD

Board of Trade to Make Another Spurt of Activity.

ADVERTISING TO BE DONE.

THE GREAT BOOMER, SI CRAKE, EXPLOITS HIS IDEAS.

A Little New Life Infused Into the Board of Trade at a Meeting Held Last Monday—Mr. Drake Says That Trolley Lines Will Help This Section Develop—Advertising in Greater New York Papers.

The time for action has come. So says the Board of Trade. While that organization has made the same decision several times before, this will be a particularly strong effort to rouse the Board into activity. The Board held a regular monthly meeting last Monday, and, after listening to the vivid vocal pyrotechnics of the renowned Silas D. Drake, of Lincoln, prepared the opening steps for an active campaign for the good of Plainfield.

Resignations were received from Woodhull & Martin and Frank J. Hubbard and accepted. The application of O. B. Rogers was favorably reported by the membership committee and elected into the Board. There were no communications or other committee reports.

Then President F. C. Lounsbury introduced Silas D. Drake. The promoter removed his overcoat and opened fire at the Board. The keynote of his discourse was that no city could expect to grow if it was never heard of and that advertising was the golden rod to success in city and town booming. To back his assertions, Mr. Drake told some of his own experiences and told the story of how he had started Lincoln on an 85 cent advertisement in a New York paper.

Another season of prosperity had just begun, he explained, so that this was just the time for Plainfield to begin a campaign of activity. Then the trolley lines and the county boulevard would open up this section. He also referred to Mountain Park as a place not appreciated by most of Plainfield. It was capable of magnificent development. He concluded with some very laudatory remarks about Plainfield and its attractions.

The members then talked over the situation and decided that it was time the Board woke up or died altogether. Various plans for the waking process were proposed but the scheme of raising an advertising fund found the most favor. A committee composed of C. H. Hand, B. B. Rogers and J. Fred MacDonald was appointed to solicit the funds which will be spent in advertising Plainfield and its advantages in Philadelphia and New York papers. The board will arrange further details of its campaign at the next meeting.

FINE QUARTETTE SINGING.

Star Course Entertainment Was a Very Successful Affair.

Another of the Star Course entertainments was given in the Y. M. C.A. Monday, at which the "Old Homestead Quartette," of New York, and Miss Addie Parker Jackson, of this city, appeared. The entertainment was one of the most successful ones ever given in this course, and the hall was filled to overflowing.

The quartette came prepared with a set programme which they attempted to follow, but encores were so frequent and persistent that they had to introduce several selections that were not down on the bill. There was solo singing as well as selections by the quartette, and every number was rendered with a finnish that took the house by storm.

Miss Jackson, too, was well received, and amused her hearers with several sketches in which humor and pathos were equally combined. The programme was divided in two parts, and the entertainment lasted until nearly 10 o'clock.

Plainfield Birds Won

Several sports attended a cocking main held at Garwood Saturday evening between birds from Stirling and Plainfield. Plainfield won six straight battles and all the money the mountain sports had with them, as the battle ended with the sixth main, although several others had been arranged.

The New Borough Clerk.

Frank Rowley, the new borough clerk, will be at the Mayor's office every morning where he can be seen by anyone having business to transact that comes in his department. It is quite likely that a telephone will be put in the Mayor's office and thus officials can be reached easily.

Fox Hunt Postponed.

The fox hunt that was to have been held from Campbell's roadhouse Saturday afternoon, was postponed a week on account of the rain. There were a few sportsmen who turned up and for their benefit the dogs were given a two mile run on a trail of an anise seed drag.

COST OF AN ELEPHANT.

Much Used in the Siamese Malay States as Beasts of Burden.

It is somewhat interesting to compare the weights carried by elephants in the tin-producing districts of the Malay peninsula with those used in the long journeys and mountainous country of the Lao states. In the peninsula the distances are seldom more than at most three or four days' march and the elephant is expected to carry as much as 900 or 1,000 pounds, besides his mahout and howda. The latter is often a mere brace of panniers, slung together so as to rest one on each side of the backbone, and covered sometimes with a light barrel roof of bark. A good tusker which will carry 950 pounds will fetch about 56 pounds, and a female which can carry about 800 pounds is worth about 45 pounds. In the Lao states, where journeys of ten days or three weeks are frequent, the average weight hardly exceeds 500 pounds, or one-third of what is usual in the peninsula. The prices in various parts of the country very considerably. When we were on the Me Kawng and in Muang Nan in 1893, a good tusker could be had for 33 pounds, and a female for 24 pounds; at Chieng Mai, where good teak-hauling elephants are in great demand, a tusker may fetch 150 pounds, and a female anything from 50 to 100 pounds, according to her strength and ability.

In the Siamese Malay states there are probably about 1,000 domesticated elephants, all told, and in the Lao country about 1,500, while 2,500 more are working at the present moment. That these animals breed in captivity in Siam is due to the fact that a large number of them spend the greater part of their time in timber hauling in the jungle. When there is no work for his beast, the mahout takes him out to a nice, cool, green bit of forest and leaves him there to enjoy himself. There is no expense connected with his upkeep, for he broods after himself. He has a hobble of rattan round his feet to dissuade him from wandering too far, and a wooden bell round his neck, by the tone of which the mahout or his little boy can always find him. When he comes back a month to look him up and give him some bananas.

This Island Is a Magnet.

In the Baltic the Danish island Bornholm, which is situated about 24 miles east by south, from the nearest point of Sweden, may be regarded as a huge magnet. So strong is the power of this magnetic island is not so great that it can draw the nails out of ships, as was told of the legendary magnetic hills, the magnetism of the rocks on the island of Bornholm and does cause a good deal of trouble to ships in quite another way, for the island exerts such an influence on the magnetic needle that it causes a vessel to turn perceptibly aside from its course. The effect of the island magnetism is felt at a distance of about nine and a half miles. On the island of Canna (one of the Argylishire Hebrides), situated about three miles northwest of Rum, there is a hill which has magnetic power sufficiently strong to affect the compasses of vessels passing near it. The island is a mile in breadth by four and a half miles in length.—Boston Traveler.

What Two Bullets Did.

On the out skirts of Edwards lay a rough rider, Walter S. Beebe, another fever victim, and twice wounded, a cut through the arm on July 1 and a revolver bullet in the left leg on July 2.

"It's only a couple of weeks," said Beebe, "since they got that bullet out of me. They located it at last with the X-rays. Here it is. See! Its my opinion that bullet came from one of our own sharpshooters. It was all foolishness the reckless way the boys shot off their revolvers in the charge.

"To show you the queer things some of these bullets did I'll tell you a thing I saw in the Las Guasimas fight. There was a man near me as we went along who stopped to break off a stick in the shrub. I guess he wanted to make a ramrod of it. If he hadn't stopped he might never have been killed, but at that as he had broken the stick and was twisting the last fibres apart a Mauser bullet went straight through his head, and he dropped to his knees. His hands still clutched the branch he was breaking and, as he knelt there, another bullet came and cut through the broken wood, so that he held his ramrod free. He had got what he stopped for."—Leslie's Weekly.

Emperor William.

The emperor of Germany has a little postal office of his own, with officials detailed especially, to handle the voluminous mail matter that comes every day addressed to him.

All letters are classified under the three heads, "private," "official" and "immediate." Private letters are handed over to the emperor unopened, while those marked "official" land in the civil cabinet of the Kaiser if they contain petitions by civilians, while those of a military character go to the military cabinet. Clerks of these two departments make all necessary inquiries regarding the communications, and then prepare the answers in accordance with the regulations for official letters. These answers are taken to the emperor, who expresses his approval by affixing his signature. Answers are then despatched by special messengers to their destination. The messengers used in this service are the most trustworthy men who can be found.

Spick—A new doctor has moved in next door; but his very name would kill his business.

Span—What is it?

Spick—Phil Graves.

TRANSFORMED HER.

Came Back to Town with Many of Her Winning Ways Left on the Stage.

Last year one of the photographic studios of this town employed a quiet, demure nice-looking young thing as a reception room girl. After spending her days staving off bad-tempered people who wanted to see the proofs of their negatives ten minutes after sitting for them, "spotting" prints with a fine camel's hair brush, and such, for five-week, the demure, shy young thing attended a vocal conservatory, where she was having her small, but pure and sweet, young soprano cultivated. Also, she put in much of her spare time at church sewing circles, choir rehearsals, and so on. She always dressed in black, and when spoken on to she had a very fetching way of casting her eyes upon the ground—that is, figuratively speaking. She surely was an extremely retiring little person.

Well, early last autumn she suddenly packed up her things, went to New York and joined a famous comic opera outfit as a chorus girl. Of course, she received the usual and customary "roasting" at the hands of her associates in this town for her act, but she was a couple of hundred miles away and, of course, didn't mind that.

"Anyhow, she'll come back to us the same little, shrinking Agnes that she always was," said the more charitably inclined of her friends.

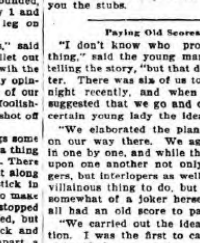
She came back to Washington a few weeks ago with the comic opera outfit to which she was attached, still in the capacity of a second-row chorus lady. A nice little matron, who had known the demure, shrinking young woman for a long time, met her on the street one afternoon. The retiring young thing had on a cream-colored Alpine hat, with a feather jauntily stuck to the left side of it, her hair was done up in a vaudeville roll at the back of her head, and she wore a long Newmarket ulster of black and white and red checks—very large, insistent checks—down to the heels of her boots. The nice little matron greeted the shrinking young thing cordially, and was given one gloved finger to shake.

"We have so missed you at our little church affairs," said the nice little matron. "You used to be so active in our——"

The ex-retiring young thing smiled blandly—as one smiles reminiscently over the remembered idiocies of childhood—and made a queer little snappy gesture with her horizontally-held right hand.

"Aw, fergit it!" she said. "Fergit it! Cut it out!"

Proof of His Love.



She—I can scarcely believe that you love me as much as you say.

He—Well, I'll bring my check-book with me to-morroy night and show you the stubs.

Paying Old Scores.

"I don't know who proposed the thing," said the young man who was telling the story, "but that doesn't matter. There was six of us together one night recently, and when some one suggested that we go and call upon a certain young lady the idea took.

"We elaborated the plan somewhat on our way there. We agreed to go in one by one, and while there to look upon one another not only as strangers, but interlopers as well. It was a villainous thing to do, but the girl is somewhat of a joker herself, and we all had an old score to pay off.

"We carried out the idea to perfection. I was the first to call, and the girl said she was glad to see me. Before she had time to say anything else another young man was ushered in. She was glad to see him, too. But when the third young man arrived she was somewhat confused and stammered a little over her welcome.

"The bell rang at intervals, and each time a young man was ushered in by the grinning maid.

"To cap the climax, a strange young man, who knew nothing of the plot, chanced to call.

"Then the fun began. We sat around the room and glared at one another as much as to say: 'What the dickens are you doing here?'

"The strange young man stood it exactly ten minutes. Then he fled, with the excuse that he had suddenly remembered an important engagement.

"The conversation was short and disjointed. We addressed all our remarks to the young lady, who got red and white by turns, as she endeavored to keep six conversations going on at one time, for not by a word or sign did any one let on that he was aware that anybody was in the room but the young lady and himself.

"When we had stood it as long as we could without laughing we solemnly took our leave one by one, with a parting glare at those remaining.

"Since then the young lady has been doing a good deal of thinking. But I understand that she is unable to make up her mind whether it was a joke or only a strange coincidence.

"But the strange young man, who has failed to call again, is no joke.—Detroit Free Press.

DUNELLEN.

Dunellen, March 22—The new Council met to organize Monday night, and to transact the small amount of business that was to come up before the meeting. President Harry Gaskill, of the old Council, called the session to order. The result of the recent election was read by the Clerk, Harry L. Terry, then R. J. Swackhamer, the new mayor and Messrs. Apgar and Wilson, the newly elected councilmen were sworn in. Mayor Swackhamer then took the chair and announced his appointments. In place of Mr. Terry, Charles H. English was appointed borough clerk. Harry Gaskill was again made president of the Council. The appointment of a recorder will be made later, but it is expected that Justice Warden, who now holds the office, will receive the honor.

William Waldron was arrested Monday night on complaint of his wife, who charged him with having been intoxicated for several days and beating her. Constable Wytnasky arrested the man, and after spending the night in the lockup, he was brought before Recorder Warden for a trial. The wife refused to press the charge, so the Judge suspended sentence on Waldron after giving him a severe reprimand. He promised to do better.

William B. Hayes, of Prospect avenue, has returned from Havana where he has been on a short trip of business and pleasure. Mr. Hayes covered a great part of the Island of Cuba in his travels, and has some amusing and interesting anecdotes to tell of his trip.

Wilson Frederick returned from Liberty, Sullivan county, New York, yesterday, where he has been spending two weeks for his health. Mr. Frederick is much better and expects to resume his duties in New York in a few days.

Justice Warden yesterday adjourned the case of the inhabitants of Fanwood against the New York and Philadelphia Traction Co., which was to have been tried. The case will now come up April 4th.

Mrs. Charles Dodwell has issued invitations for a pink "Koffeeklatsch" at her home Thursday afternoon. Friends from Plainfield as well as from New Market and Dunellen, have been invited.

Miss Daisy Sheppard, of Perth Amboy, is spending a few days with relatives in the borough.

Miss Mabel Jamison has returned from a visit with friends in Newark.

William Winans, of Stelton, was in town yesterday on business.

NEW MARKET

New Market, March 22—Mr. and Mrs. Abner Coriell celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary Friday. Invitations have been sent out in all directions, and the event is expected to be one of the largest New Market has ever seen.

A pleasant time is anticipated by all those who attend the Ladies' Aid Society sociable in the Seventh-Day Baptist church tonight.

Mrs. Samuel Bishop, of Elizabeth, who has been visiting Mrs. L. B. Nelson, has returned home.

It is said that one or two new houses are to be erected within the township this spring.

Miss Minnie Wurster, of Somerville, is spending the week with Miss Sue VanNest.

Stelle Blackford has moved to Plainfield, where he will reside in the future.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Scotch Plains, March 22—The annual school meeting, held in the Assembly room last evening, called out a large number of the voters of the district. George R. Nicholl was nominated as chairman and T. I. Nicholl, clerk of the Board of Education, acted as secretary. The annual school report finds the school in a flourishing condition, and but few changes will be made during the coming year. The Board informed the voters that owing to the increased attendance in the primary department it might be found necessary during the year to add an assistant teacher to this department of the school. If the Board found this necessary it could be done with the appropriation asked for of $3,100. The election of three trustees found five candidates in the field, Messrs. Robison, Terry, Cook, Clark and Walker, Eighty-nine votes were cast, Robson, Cook and Terry receiving a majority were declared elected. The appropriation asked for was carried with very little opposition. Nothing further coming before the meeting a motion was made and carried to adjourn.

The Borough Council met and organized Monday evening. Messrs. Palmer and Young, the newly elected Councilmen, were sworn in. William E. Collins was reappointed Borough Clerk for the ensuing year. Hans Lamberts received the appointment as marshal and William Collins as overseer of the poor.

Philip Jahn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jahn, starts today on the steamer Bremen for Germany, where he will take a two years' course at the trades schools of that country.

Excelsior Hook and Ladder Company held a regular monthly meeting in their rooms Monday evening, and not a claim bake as reported in the News of Tuesday evening.

A new electric light has been added to Russell road, and is appreciated by those using that street, as that part of the borough has been rather dark.

WESTFIELD

Westfield March 22—The handsome residence on Dudley avenue, owned by James T. Pierson, and occupied by Henry Piker, the Broad street shoe dealer, was completely gutted by fire last night. The alarm sounded at 8:45 o'clock and the firemen were at the scene of the fire shortly afterward, but they could do nothing as the water would not reach to the top of the house, there being only 20 pounds pressure. The fire is supposed to have started in the cellar, but it is not known for sure, as Mr. and Mrs. Piker were away from home. Mr. Piker's loss is about $800 and he has no insurance. The house is damaged to the extent of about $2,500 and is fully insured.

The ladies of Fireside Council, Royal Arcanum, are looking forward to the special ladies' night to be held Thursday evening of next week, with a great deal of interest. The programme has on it such entertainers as Miss Mattie Holmes, elocutionist; Winans and Bond, musical artists and comedians; Mrs. Charles Stratton, solo sopranoist, and Geo. B. Taylor, baritone, of the Cranford Music Club.

The Board of Trade and Improvement Association will hold a meeting at the town rooms tomorrow night. The association is now advertising extensively in the street cars in Brooklyn and is very well pleased with the results. One gentleman read the advertisement Saturday, came out Sunday, and Monday signed a lease for a house and will move here the first of next month.

John H. S. Haulenbeek, who organized a combination scheme of building and insurance in this section some time ago, died in Rossville. The funeral took place this afternoon from the residence of his father, Rev. Geo. Haulenbeek, at Norwalk, Conn.

The ministers of the different churches met yesterday and decided to hold a union service in the Presbyterian church next Sunday morning. The preacher on this occasion will be Rev. Dr. Charles Morris, of Newton, Mass.

WOMAN SCHOOL TRUSTEE

ROSELLE RECOGNIZES FAIR SEX IN SCHOOL ADMINISTRATION.

Miss May White Secures the Honor—Contrary to Expectations, Women Did Not Turn Out at the Westfield School Election

Roselle, March 22—At the annual meeting of the Roselle school district last evening Miss May White was elected a school trustee. John Gregory and C. H. Crane were also elected. The meeting voted to appropriate $20,000 for the purpose of erecting a new primary school building.

Westfield, March 22—Contrary to all expectation the women did not take an active part in the annual school meeting held here last evening. The meeting was called to order at 8 o'clock by District Clerk J. J. Coger.

A resolution was offered by Mr. Morehouse asking that the appropriation for the expenses for the coming year be made for $30, as asked for by the Board of Education. Samuel W. Reese, who was for seven years a member of the board, arose and asked that he be allowed to make an amendment. This he did cutting the figure down by several thousand dollars.

When the question was put the amendent was voted down and the original motion was carried. Harry Knight was re-elected a trustee and the new member will be Charles Forster, of Mountainside Borough.

The report of the district clerk showed that a balance of $1,046 15 would be left in the school treasury at the end of the present school year.

The board called the attention of the citizens to the increased number of school children in the township and asked that some provision be made for looking after them. The report also asked that the board be authorized to borrow money on notes for the purpose of paying their bills before the taxes were available as last year. A resolution to that effect was passed. The meeting then adjourned.

To Establish Borough Library.

In connection with the several subscriptions received for the establishment of a library in the Borough Public schools, it is only fair to state that $10 was given by President McCutchen, of the Board of Education. This makes in all $95 received to date.

Vice President Far Away.

Miss Rachel Maire, a missionary in India, has been elected president of the Foreign Missionary Society of Warren chapel. The society frequently receives interesting letters from Miss Maire who tells about her work.

Speer's Port Grape Wine

Nine Years Old,

Burgundy Eight Years Old, and Claret 16 Years Old.

Extensive Wine Cellars.

Storing, Ageing and Racking Wine.

A wine made one year and sold the next is not a proper wine for invalids; to get rid of its coarse and injurious elements requires years for it to lay in wood casks, and by frequent drawing off from its gross sediment, or the coarse parts it becomes rich and mellow and valuable for invalids. It is sudorific, diuretic and blood making from the iron in the soil of the Speer vineyards in Northern N. J.

The principal varieties are the Port, Burgundy, Sherry and Claret and the Climax brandy. All these wines when stored for years and drawn off from time to time in fresh fumigated casks become vastly superior products and necessarily are more expensive. This is why Speer's wines and Brandy are more costly and so far superior to the California wines. They are absolutely pure; unexcelled by any in the world. Speer's wines are ordered by wealthy and refined families in Europe where they are prescribed by physicians and are esteemed for their superiority, velvety roundness, full body and refined flavor. The efficacy of these wines is wonderful. It has been a study and a pride during Mr. Speer's life to produce a wine of the highest grade of perfection—not so much to make money as to excell in getting a wine of the richest character. He has spared no labor nor expense in bringing his vineyards and wines up to the above high standard of excellence. The Climax ★★★ Brandy twenty years old is equal to the finest French brands.

To be had of Druggists and Grocers who sell high class wines.

A Prominent Physician.

A prominent New York physician in discussing the merits of Ripans Tabules with a brother M. D. said: "Several years ago I asserted that if one wished to become a philanthopist, and do a beneficent deed—one that would help the whole human race—nothing could be better than to procure the Roosevelt Hospital prescription, which is the basis of the Ripans Tabules, and compose it to be put up in the form of a ketchup and distributed among the poor."

Sales Increasing.

The largest retail drug store in America is that of Hegeman & Co. on Broadway in New York City. A reporter who went there to learn how Ripans Tabules were selling bought a five cent carton and asked: "Do you have much call for these?"

He was referred to a gentleman who proved to be the head of the department. He said:

"The sale of Ripans Tabules is constantly increasing, especially to the influential character of the testimonials in the daily press, and growing out of these, through the recommendations of friend to friend. Satisfaction with them is very general. When once they are begun I notice that a permanent customer is usually made. This, I believe, is through their intrinsic merit, which proves the bona fide character of the advertising. I think them especially useful in the general run of stomach troubles."

An Elderly Lady.

An elderly lady living at Fordham Heights, a part of New York City, and who was known to be a warm advocate of Ripans Tabules for any case of liver trouble or indigestion, said to a reporter who visited her for the purpose of learning the particulars of her case: "I had always employed a physician and did so on the last occasion I had for one, but at that time determined to see if results. I had never had any faith in patent medicines, but having seen Ripans Tabules recommended very highly in the New York Herald concluded to give them a trial, and found they were just what my case demanded. I have never employed a physician since, and that means a saving of $3 a call. A dollar's worth of Ripans Tabules lasts me a month, and I would not be without them now if it were my last dollar." At the time of this interview the lady presented two daughters who specially obliged their mother giving a testimonial which could positively name in the newspapers, but to do this the elder lady argued: "There may be other cases just like mine, and I am sure I take great pleasure in recommending the Tabules to any one afflicted as I was. If the telling about my case in the papers induces some other person similarly affected to be as greatly benefited as I have been, I see no objection." The daughters, knowing how much benefit they had about the benefit she had received, decided she was quite right.

TEN FOR FIVE CENTS. RIPANS ONE GIVES RELIEF

A druggist may sell enough Ripans Tabules in a year to fill a hogshead, but the sale is made in single cartons. The five cent packet is intended for the poor and the ten cent carton for the rich. The low priced sort is intended for the poor and the rich alike. Ripans Tabules are sold by druggists, or by mail if the price is sent direct to the Ripans Chemical Company, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York. Five cents is the price of a single carton; the family bottle, containing 72 tabules, sells for $0.60. Ripans Tabules are the best blood purifier and system regulator known. One gives relief.

Everything for the Garden

Sweet Peas the choicest,

Fancy Lawn Grass Seeds

and odorless Lawn Dressing

Telephone Call, 6.

A. M. GRIFFEN'S,

119 East Front st.

Quality Rather Than Quantity.

President Eliot of Harvard, says: "The future will be a time of quality rather than quantity of consumption; past storehouse of accurate information."

WEBSTER'S INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY

Best for the Household.

Words are easily found. Pronunciation is easily ascertained. Meanings are easily learned. The growth of words is easily traced, and excellence of quality rather than superficiality of quantity characterizes its every department.

Specimen pages sent on application to G. & C. MERRIAM CO., Publishers, Springfield, Mass.

FARMERS' WIVES

or any other ladies who wish to work

Can Earn Lots of Money

working for us in spare time at home on our clothes. We offer you a good chance to make plenty of spending money easily, in leisure hours. Send 12c. for cloth and full directions for work, and commence at once. Cloth sent anywhere. Address

WINOOSKET CO. (325 C) Boston, Mass. Mfg. Dept.

DIME

Savings Institution,

Of Plainfield, N. J.,

Is now receiving deposits payable on demand, with interest, allowed on all sums from $5 to $3,000.

J. FRANK HERRARD, President.
GEO. W. ROCKFELLOW, Vice-Pres.
J. C. POPE, Treasurer.

Money deposited on or before January tenth will draw interest from the first.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

VOL. XXXII. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, MARCH 30, 1899. NO. 13.

"Support the Constitution, which is the Cement of the Union, as Well in its Limitations as in its Authorities."—Hamilton.

IMPORTANT LINK FOR CROSS-STATE TROLLEY

Monmouth Traction Company's to be Pushed.

GRIDIRONING THE STATE.

FROM JERSEY CITY TO CAMDEN BY TROLLEY IN TWO YEARS.

Connecting Links Necessary to Complete the Scheme are From Camden to Bordentown, From Trenton to Princeton and From the Latter Place to New Brunswick—An Outlet for Philadelphia.

Camden, March 29.—In a few days now it is expected that work will begin in earnest on the Monmouth Traction Company's line from Bordentown to the Camden county line. The company is running cars now from Bordentown to Fieldsborough, and has secured the right of way from the Burlington County Board of Freeholders over the county roads and bridges.

With the annexation of the town of Stockton, Camden City Council is vested authority over the streets of the annexed district, and the Camden and Suburban Railroad Company will probably seek permission to extend its line northeastward to meet the Monmouth Company's tracks at West Palmyra. The Camden Company's line is already built to within about two miles of West Palmyra, near the dividing line between Camden and Burlington counties. The connection will give the Monmouth Company the desired outlet for Philadelphia for its Burlington county traffic.

The completion of this section of road is only part of the general scheme of connecting New York and Philadelphia by trolley, and it may ultimately bring a continuous stretch of trolley track all the way to Cape May and Atlantic City, tapping all the larger cities of South Jersey.

The connecting links necessary to complete the scheme are from Camden to Bordentown, from Trenton to Princeton and from Princeton to New Brunswick. The Monmouth Company embraces the line from Bordentown to Camden, while another company is now securing the right of way from the State capital to Princeton. The latter corporation is meeting some resistance from the trustees of the Princeton University, who fear the resuite to the students of quick transit to Trenton. It is only a question of a couple of years, however, when one may board a trolley car in Camden and ride all the way to New York with but one or two changes.

HURLED TO DEATH BY A TRAIN.

Man Supposed to be From Oregon Instantly Killed Near Roselle.

Roselle, March 29—A man supposed to be Peter or Enoch Erickson, of Hood River, Ore., was struck and instantly killed near Roselle Monday night by the Royal Blue Line Express. The engineer saw the man struck and stopped the train. The train crew and some of the passengers searched both sides of the tracks and the fields adjacent for nearly an hour before the body was found. The man had been hurled clear of the road and over in a field.

In the pocket of the dead man's clothes were found $1.78, together with a number of photographs and letters, and an Odd Fellows' certificate from Lilleville Lodge, Hood River, Ore., made out to Peter Erickson. There were also naturalization papers issued at Hood River to Enoch Erickson. The man was about thirty-six years old. The body was taken to Mitchell's Morgue at Elizabethport.

Print Exhibit Postponed.

The exhibition of prints of the Plainfield Camera Club, which was announced to take place the first week in April, has been postponed one week. The exhibition will open Monday evening, April 10th, and continue one week. It will be open afternoon and evening. All prints intended for the exhibition must be in the hands of the committee by Friday evening, April 7th.

Old New Brunswicker Dead.

George Greer, one of the oldest citizens of New Brunswick, died at his home in that city Sunday evening. He was seventy-nine years old. Mr. Greer was for years a prominent business man in New Brunswick, and built the first amusement and assembly hall, which still stands. He retired from business fifteen years ago. He leaves a widow, two daughters and a son.

Miss Young, of Central avenue, has secured a position with Miss Smalley, the dressmaker, of East Front street.

CELLARS FULL OF WATER

A BLIND DRAIN TO GREEN BROOK MAY BE LAID.

Mayor Smalley Tells a Local Reporter That It Will Cost the Interested Property Owners About $30 Apiece.

The rain of the past few days has had a disastrous effect on cellars in the upper part of the borough, and a large number are today filled with water. Many of the cellars cannot be used at all, and it is making a great deal of trouble for the residents. Mr. and Mrs. Ward, of Elizabeth, who a few days ago moved into a house on Fairview avenue found that the cellar contained two feet of water.

A Local reporter in conversation with Mayor Smalley, of the borough, this morning, learned that some steps would have to be taken at an early date to drain that portion of the borough to overcome the present difficulty. He advised that a blind drain be located from the upper part of the borough to run toward Plainfield and empty into Greenbrook. He says that this work can be done at a probable expense of about $30 to *each property-*owner affected. The matter will probably receive the early consideration of property-owners and the drain will be laid.

This water question seems to puzzle a great many boroughites for the reason that the ground in the upper part of the borough is quite high. In a number of places where water is found in abundance the grade is higher than that on Somerset street, where there is less water. There is, however, a natural drainage toward Plainfield and little trouble would be found in laying a drain sewer.

KEAN TO GET FRANCHISE.

HE AGREES TO DEMANDS MADE BY ELIZABETH OFFICIALS.

In Consideration of Being Granted a Franchise He Agrees to Give All of the School Children a Three-Cent-Fare

Elizabeth, March 29—At an executive session of the City Council to consider the application of Senator John Kean for a trolley franchise from the Staten Island ferry, in the Port to Roselle Township line, the fight was over three-cent fares for school children, and the paving of Morris avenue by the company for the privilege of going through the West Arch, beneath the Pennsylvania tracks. The trolley company agreed to allow school children to ride for three cents, to pave Morris avenue with telford blocks, and further the company volunteered to charge only five-cent fares from the Staten Island ferry to Cranford, a distance of ten miles.

The ordinance granting the franchise has now passed the second reading, and will come up for final passage at the next meeting of the Council, and work will be begun as soon as the Mayor signs the ordinance.

QUIET HOME WEDDING.

Miss Alice Vail Kline Becomes the Wife of a New Yorker.

The wedding of Miss Alice Vail Kline, of this city, and Charles Edward Wheeler, of New York, took place Tuesday at the bride's home, and was a very quiet affair, only the immediate relatives of the bride and groom being present. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Wright, of Jersey City, an intimate friend of the groom. The young couple will reside in New York.

Distributing Poles Erected.

The New York and New Jersey Telephone Company is preparing to use the underground system of wires. Poles have now been placed in position at the corner of Watchung avenue and East Fifth street, on Watchung near LaGrande avenue, and at Watchung and Franklin place. They will be used as distributing poles. The underground cables to run to the base and from them, the various circuits will start. Other distributing poles will soon be placed.

Arranging for the Rails.

Mr. Collins, representing the iron concern that is to furnish rails for the Plainfield Street Railway Company for the extension in the eastern section of the city, is today, in company with H. C. VanEmburgh, civil engineer, making a survey of the route to ascertain exactly what amount of material will be required. It is proposed by the company to start the extension very soon if the weather permits.

A Fine Residence.

John F. Dryden, president of the Prudential Life Insurance Company, has bought the Coleman-Drayton house of Bernardsville, and is having a $50,000 addition built. When completed it will be one of the finest residences of this aristocratic town.

MORE LEGAL TROUBLES AMONG BARD CREDITORS.

CASES HEARD BY JUSTICE MOSHER.

Editor Runyon and A. L. C. Marsh Resist Attempt to Throw Costs on Them.

The trial of the Bard Company against Frank W. Runyon and Augustus L. C. Marsh, for the costs in the right of property trial which took place before Justice Moffatt a few weeks ago, came off Tuesday afternoon in Justice Mosher's court.

Both Mr. Runyon and Mr. Marsh attempted to levy an execution upon the Bard Company to satisfy a judgment they secured against the Bard Cycle Company, when it became necessary to try the right of property. The Bard Company showed conclusively that they owned the goods, throwing the costs upon Runyon and Marsh.

At the trial Tuesday both defendants brought set-offs in court to put up against the Bard Company, but both set-offs were against the Bard Cycle Company. Justice Mosher refused to allow Marsh's set-off, but reserved his decision in regard to the second party. A decision in the case is expected next Tuesday.

CHARGED WITH STEALING $1,800.

Levig Arrested on the Strength of a Letter From Pennsylvania.

Elizabeth, March 29—The police have arrested Joseph Levig at his boarding house in Elizabethport on a charge of stealing $1,800 from Martin Lloyd, of Duryea, Luzerne county, Pa.

The arrest was based on information given the police by Joseph Schuster, who has a store on First street, this city, and who received a letter from Lloyd Monday informing him of the robbery and asking him to watch for Levig, who was supposed to have come in this direction. Lloyd and Schuster were old friends, and the latter was also acquainted with Levig, who called on him a couple of days ago and said he had come east looking for a job. He was well treated by Schuster, who secured for him a boarding house.

The prisoner will be held until Lloyd, who has been telegraphed for, reaches this city and makes a formal complaint.

GOVERNOR VOORHEES TO ATTEND.

He Will Lay the Corner-Stone of a New Baptist Church.

Elizabeth, March 29.—The corner-stone of the new Central Baptist church will be laid next Saturday afternoon by Governor Voorhees. The church will cost between $40,000 and $50,000, and will be a handsome, commodious edifice of stone. Rev. Dr. Tomlinson, pastor of the church, who is a well-known author of historical books for young people, will preside at the exercises. An interesting programme is being arranged for the occasion. Many prominent citizens, together with the Mayor and other city officials, are expected to be present.

Twelve Years For Drunkenness.

Elizabeth, March 29.—Mrs. Ann Ford, formerly of Elizabethport, was committed to the county jail last Thursday for sixty days. This makes the forty-fifth time she has been sent up before for drunk and disorderly and as she has received an average of ninety days on each committment she has served 4 250 days in all, or a little less than twelve years. Ann probably claims the championship.

Spring Vacation at Public Schools.

Beginning Friday afternoon, the spring vacation at the Plainfield Public Schools will begin. It is the custom to give the vacation during the first week in April. This year it happens to fall at Easter time. The vacation will end Monday morning, April 10th.

Replacing Iron Poles.

The Plainfield Electric Light Company is gradually replacing the old iron poles, to support their street lights, with wooden ones. When the line has become crossed, several people have received slight shocks from touching the iron poles.

Putting Wires Underground.

Employes of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company have resumed the work of laying wires underground. If the weather remains pleasant the work will be completed in a short time.

Machine Shops Busy.

The local machine shops are at present very busy and employes are working night and day.

Raymond Mosher, of Elmwood place, who recently passed success fully through an operation, still continues to improve and it is now believed he is out of danger.

WOULD WED HIM ONCE; NOW CHARGES THEFT

Troubles of Miss Maggie Carpenter Aired in Court.

HOWARD DOTY INVOLVED.

SHE SAYS HE ROBBED HER THE DAY OF INTENDED MARRIAGE.

Doty Claims That She Was Infatuated With Him and Begged Him to Marry Her—Trip to See Clergyman—She Waited While He Recovered His Nerve—When He Came Back, She Was Gone.

Two weeks ago Maggie Carpenter wanted to marry Howard Doty. Tuesday afternoon this same young woman was instrumental in the holding of Howard Doty to await the action of the Grand Jury on the charge of larceny. The circumstances, which led to this change of heart, form a thrilling little tale that engaged the attention of Justice Nash Tuesday afternoon at the hearing.

Miss Carpenter lives at 117 Liberty street. She has been acquainted with Doty for some time. Doty holds the position of assistant to Janitor Boice, of the Elkwood building, and usually looks after the furnace that heats it.

Doty says that Maggie Carpenter has had her eye on him for some time and has thought matrimonial thoughts at the same time. According to him, she has done much of the wooing. However it was, he went to see her Wednesday, March 15th, at her home. There they met and talked it over and he says agreed to get married forthwith. Rev. T. Logan Murphy was the clergyman selected. Maggie says that he then took possession of $10 belonging to her with the remark.

"I just want this for a bluff. I'll give it back."

Doty says that she pressed him to take the money when they reached the corner of Washington avenue and West Front street. At any rate, the money changed hands as both admit.

When they reached Rev. Mr. Murphy's residence, Doty's heart evidently failed him for the moment for he asked the young woman to wait a minute as he would return shortly. When he came back, Doty says, she was gone so they didn't get married. Judging from the tale of Miss Carpenter, he was absent for some time. However that may be, they were not married that day, neither was the money returned.

Two days later, Maggie Carpenter decided that she had been robbed and forthwith proceeded to Justice Nash's court where a warrant was sworn out against Doty. He was subsequently arrested and his hearing was held Tuesday afternoon.

William G. DeMeza appeared as his lawyer. After hearing the story, the Justice held Doty under $50 bonds for his appearance before the Grand Jury.

WAGON TIPPED OVER ON TOP OF CHAS. WYCKOFF.

THE COLT WAS ACTING FRACTIOUS.

One of the Reins Broke and Caused the Accident—Fortunate Outcome for Driver.

Through the antics of a young colt owned by Charles Wyckoff, of West Front street, the latter nearly lost his life Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Wyckoff was in the wagon in his yard and was preparing to drive out when one of the reins broke. The horse was nervous, and the driver tried to handle him with one rein. He pulled on the rein so as to bring the animal about in the right position.

Just as he did so the colt made a sudden turn and threw Mr. Wyckoff out of the wagon and the heavy vehicle went over on top of him. Fortunately, Mr. Wyckoff managed to crawl from under the wagon in time to catch his horse before he broke up the rig. Mr. Wykoff's wife was near the horse at the time and she was powerless to assist her husband. She thought sure he would be killed

Brunswick's Police on Wheels

New Brunswick, March 29.—New Brunswick has started a bicycle police force. One wheel has been secured. It will be kept at police headquarters and used for answering burry calls. The police force numbers ten men, of whom only three are able to ride a wheel. The others are expected to qualify at the earliest possible date.

Inventory of Borough Property.

Mayor Smalley, of the borough, has asked former Street Commissioner Conover to give him an inventory of the borough property held by him at present. The property will soon be turned over to Superintendent of Highways Thomas Doud.

OLD FRIENDS IN COURT OVER A DRESS SKIRT.

SAYS MARY MULFORD STOLE.

Mrs. Jennie Kline Accused the Young Colored Woman of Larceny—Mary Mulford Held for Grand Jury.

An old dress skirt, recently discarded to the ash barrel, came near sending Miss Mary Mulford, colored, to jail. The trouble was that Mrs. Jennie Kline, colored, said that she stole it. Justice Nash was called upon, Tuesday afternoon, to listen to the circumstances of the case. He held Mary Mulford under $50 bail to await the action of the Grand Jury.

At one time Mary Mulford lived at Mrs. Kline's at the latter's home on West Third street. Then the young woman went elsewhere. Mrs. Kline says she missed a gown. Information came to her, she claims, that the gown was doing service for her erstwhile companion. Then came the complaint and subsequent arrest.

Mary Mulford had an explanation ready. She told how the dress, which she says isn't any good anyhow, having been all worn out, was given to her by another girl. The latter was in New York. She declared that she wore the dress often at Mrs. Kline's home and that the latter never said a word.

TAKEN TO MORRIS PLAINS.

Harry Pennington Removed From Institution for Feeble-Minded Persons.

Harry Pennington, a former resident of this city, was taken to the State Hospital for the Insane at Morris Plains Wednesday by Boundsman Frederickson. Pennington is a young man of eighteen years who has been confined in an institution at Vineland for feeble-minded persons. He has never been able to talk, although capable of understanding what others say to him. He gradually grew violent so it was deemed best to send him to Morris Plains.

Constable Mattox brought him to this city last evening. He was locked up in the city jail for the night as he was too violent to leave at large. This morning he was examined by City Physician Carman and another physician and declared insane. He was taken to Morris Plains later.

HORSE STILL MISSING.

Eight Months Has Passed Since Councilman Hatfield's Mare Disappeared.

Although eight months have elapsed now since Councilman Walter L. Hatfield's valuable sorrel mare left the barn one night and disappeared, no one knows where, not a trace has ever been found of her. Search has been kept up at intervals since she ran away, but the searchers have not even been rewarded with a clue.

The mare had just been driven into the barnyard that night in July, when she ran away, and was being unharnessed. In some manner she slipped away from the men and made off down the road towards Scotch Plains. Although search for her was begun at once that was the last ever seen of her, and it is thought that she has been stolen and sold.

Residential Changes.

The following residential changes have been made by Conover's furniture moving vans: C. Neal, from Summit avenue to Duer street; James Trewin, from Somerset street to Duer street; Mrs. Durrant, from Putnam avenue to East Fifth street; Walter Glenny, from Webster place to Hillside avenue; Mrs. Nevius, from East Fifth street to the Lincoln flats, Fourth street; F. S. Cutter, from 112th street, New York, to West Front street; Mrs. Miller from Lincoln to Greenpoint, N. Y.; Mr. Dowley from Norwood avenue to storage.

Don't Mind Silver on His Farm.

New Brunswick, March 23.—Silver ore has been found by Edgar Sarles, of Rutger's College, on the farm of George Drake, at Newton, a few miles north of New Brunswick. Curator Valliant, of the Rutger's Geological Museum, found the ore to be triassic sandstone, with chrysocalla, or silicate of copper, cuperate or oxide of copper, or pure metallic silver. Mr. Drake does not consider the find as of importance and said the only way he cared to get silver out of the ground was by raising vegetables.

Officers Chosen by Loyal Legion

The members of the Loyal Temperance Legion met Tuesday afternoon when the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, George Staats; vice-president, Alexander Galloway; secretary and treasurer, Philip S. Leichtentritt. The following persons formed the committees: Notifying, Irving VanWinkle; department, Sadie Brown, Herbert Grant; lookout, Florence Staats, Alfred Manley; flower, Dora Wilson.

—Society will probably wheel again at the Crescent Rink next Saturday night.

IN AID OF MISSIONS

ANNUAL MEETINGS OF MISSIONARY SOCIETIES OF M. E. CHURCH.

Held in Vincent Chapel Tuesday Afternoon—Encouraging Reports—Election of Officers Were Also Held.

The annual meetings of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society and the Women's Home Missionary Society of the First M. E. church were held in Vincent chapel Tuesday afternoon.

The meeting of the Foreign Missionary Society was held first. The reports showed the society in good condition. It was decided to support a Bible reader in China or India during the coming year. The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Mrs. Edward Winter; first vice-president, Mrs. W. C. Snodgrass; second vice-president, Mrs. Jaspar Cadmus; recording secretary, Miss Minnie Sharp; corresponding secretary, Miss Rachael Day; treasurer, Miss Susie Jackson.

The meeting of the Home Missionary Society followed. The reports showed a substantial balance in the treasury and a satisfactory condition in the rest of the affairs of the society. Plans were laid for the celebration of the tenth anniversary of the organization April 10th, when a missionary tea will be held.

The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Mrs. C. C. Coke fair; first vice president, Mrs. D. E Davis; second vice president, Mrs. O. L. Jenkins; third vice-president, Mrs. P. M. French; recording secretary, Mrs. N. W. Pike; corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. K. Miller; treasurer, Mrs. J. W. Jackson.

FAIR BASKET BALLISTS.

PLAINFIELD TEACHERS WHO HAVE TAKEN UP THE GAME.

Have Two Teams and Meet for Practice Twice a Week at the Whittier Building—Games of Those who Play.

Basket ball seems to have taken a firm hold on some of the young women who teach school in this city. Twice a week a number of them meet in the Whittier building, where, under the coaching of Miss Bessie FitzRandolph, they are fast becoming adepts in the game.

Monday night the young women met again for regular practice. While they find much enjoyment and good exercise in the game, they have not as yet planned to meet any of the outside teams. They prefer more practice first. Some of the young women were entirely new to the game, and it took them several evenings to get acquainted with the principles of play.

The ten young women, who turn out weekly for their basket ball game, are the Misses Perry, Manktelow, Muchant, Roesp, Griswold, Filmer, Brown, Wilbur, Randolph and Etta Randolph.

It is their intention to continue practice Monday and Thursday evenings until warm weather compels them to desist. Next fall the young women will resume practice and hope to be able to test their strength with some of their rivals in the sport.

HOBART REFUSES TO TALK NOW.

A Public Statement May be Made in the Near Future.

Washington, D. C., March 29.—The presidential party returned yesterday afternoon from Georgia on time. When Vice-President Hobart was approached last night he would not talk about the possibility that he may not be a candidate for renomination, stating that the matter had not been seriously considered at Thompsonville, and that it was too early to talk about it.

Later on Mr. Hobart will probably make a public statement on the subject. He will remain at his residence here until some time next month, when he will go to his home in Paterson.

The President and his advisers have not considered the name of a possible successor to Mr. Hobart and will not do so until they learn from Mr. Hobart himself that he cannot be a candidate.

New Central Office.

The preparation of the new central station for the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company is going forward rapidly. The station, which is located on Park avenue, near Fourth street, has been remodeled inside and entire new woodwork put in. The partitions are now nearly all in position. The company hope to take possession this spring.

Annual Methodist Conference.

The annual M. E church conference will be held next week in the Halsey Street M. E. church, Newark. A number of Plainfielders will be in attendance.

DID STRANGE THINGS WITH LIQUIFIED AIR.

Interesting Experiments at the Park Club.

B. C. BALL IN CHARGE.

FROZE RUBBER BALLS, SAUSAGES AND OTHER STRANGE THINGS.

Two Gallons of Liquified Air From Tripler's Laboratory Were Shown—Its Wonderful Properties Illustrated—Park Clubites Entertained by Its Freaks—Extreme Cold Was Noticeable.

The members of the Park Club found something to think about last Tuesday. The strange and rather uncanny performances of liquified air, as exhibited by their fellow member, B. C. Ball, were decidedly interesting, even if rather bewildering to some. The members gathered around and watched until the last drop of the liquid atmosphere had disappeared. Then they talked it over and wondered.

The entertainment at the Park Club was rather an impromptu affair. The house committee had planned to have this exposition of the wonders of liquified air later in the week. Yesterday Charles E. Tripler, of New York, the only man who has successfully liquified air in any quantity, notified Mr. Ball that yesterday was the only day this week that the fluid could be obtained. Mr. Ball notified the house committee. The only notification was through the papers and in person. Consequently there was not a large attendance in the club hall.

The entertainment opened with some selections on a phonograph. Then came the lecture by Mr. Ball. It wasn't a lecture, really, but rather a series of experiments with liquified air with short explanations by the experimenter.

When Mr. Ball left Tripler's laboratory, he had two gallons of the air in a large can, thickly wrapped with felt. By the time he reached Plainfield half a gallon had evaporated. In a few words he explained that air became a liquid when reduced in temperature to 312 degrees below zero. This was first done by Prof. Dewar, but in a very expensive manner. Now Mr. Tripler has greatly reduced the cost of producing it.

The can containing the liquified air looked something like an ice cream freezer. In the process of evaporation the air assumes the appearance of a white cloudy mist which is heavier than the surrounding atmosphere and consequently sinks to the ground. When Mr. Ball brought out a dipper full of the liquid air, these clouds of white mist rolled out and fell to the floor. He first filtered some into a Dewar bulb, a bulb within a bulb and separated by a vacuum, which keeps it at the low temperature. In that way it was possible to see just how it looked as it was not hidden by the white mist. It was a transparent fluid slightly blueish in color and looking very much like water.

The funnel, through which the liquid air was poured, was soon coated with frost by the extreme cold of the liquid and Arthur Murphy, who was holding it, had his hand relieved as his hands were nearly frozen.

As an evidence of the extremely low temperature of the liquid air Mr. Ball poured a little into a glass of water and a cup of ice formed beneath it immediately, in which the liquid air boiled away.

A common rubber ball was put into the liquified air and soon frozen solid. When thrown on the floor it broke into countless pieces as if it had been glass. The pieces, when they thawed out, assumed the usual appearance and properties of rubber.

A sausage was frozen in similar fashion and Mr. Ball had to take a hammer which cracked the sausage as if it had been stone. A frozen tin cover became so brittle that it was broken with the fingers. A raw egg was broken into the liquified air and soon assumed the appearance of a stone and had to be broken up to remove it from the plate.

Mr. Ball poured some of the liquid air on the floor and there was an immediate movement among the ladies in favor of drier quarters for their feet. But they didn't have to worry. The instant the liquid touched the floor, it was converted into clouds of the same white mist that rolled out in concentric circles and gradually disappeared. When the finger was immersed in the liquid air it did not feel wet. The only sensation was one of intense cold which soon became unbearable.

During the course of the evening, alcohol, which was once considered

CONTINUED ON PAGE 4

CHATLETS.

The dairy industry of Iowa continues to grow. There are now 1,002 creameries in the state, against 954 in 1897 and 851 in 1896.

The quickest trip ever made from the Cape in South Africa to Southampton was by the Carlsbrook Castle in 15 days and one hour.

Three places at least are known where green snow are found. One of these is near Mt. Hecla, Iceland; another 14 miles east of the mouth of the Obi, and the third near Quito, South America.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

As ministries go, the new French cabinet may be almost called a ministry of youth. M. de Freycinet is its only old—or thirty-seven member, his age being 70. Next in age come M. Lockroy, who is 55; M. Peytral, who is 55; M. Viger, 54; M. Guillain, 54; M. Delombre, 50; M. Dupuy, 47; M. Leygues, 46; M. Delcasse, 46; M. Lebret, 45, and M. Krantz, who is a mere youth of four-and-forty.—London Times.

Lieutenant-Colonel F. W. Kitchener, a brother of the Sirdar, who has been appointed governor of Khartoum, served in the Afghan war of 1878-80 as transport officer to the Cabul field force, and was present in the advance on Cabul under General Roberts. He also served with the Dongola expedition, under Sir Herbert Kitchener, in 1896, as director of transport, including the engagement at Firket and the operations at Hafir.

A London magician, who has given entertainments many years at Egyptian hall, kept up an offer of $2,500 reward for a duplicate of his box, which a man gets in and out of mysteriously. A clever mechanic solved the problem and demanded the money, but Maskelyne refused to pay, as he claimed that, though this box did the work of his the mechanism was different. He would not disclose his own in court, however, and the jury rendered a verdict against him.

The Neue Freier Tagblatt states that the dungeon in which Luccheni, the assassin of the Empress Elizabeth, is now confined has no windows, its walls are of cold, generally damp, stone, its floors of stone, its ceiling of stone, and that Luccheni will probably pay for his crime by the loss of his eyesight and his reason. Only once in a fortnight is he permitted to walk in the prison court-yard for half an hour. He does not even see the attendants who bring him his daily rations at o'clock every morning, as they pass them through an opening over the iron door which closes the dungeon.

Our Constantinople correspondent writes, under date of November 12: "The Turkish newspaper Sahab was seized yesterday and its publication suspended because it contained the phrase 'the unjust Padishah.' The editor explains that his offence is wholly due to an untoward accident. The intention had been to say 'majestic Padishah,' but the compositor carelessly pushed the two preceding letters up to the final wave, thus transforming the word which means 'majestic' into 'that wicked.' It remains to be seen whether this explanation will be found acceptable to the eyes of the offended sovereign."—London Times.

QUEER ADVERTISEMENTS

A Western farmer advertises for a woman to "wash, iron and milk two cows."

An advertisement once appeared in a Washington paper for "a room for a young man 10 by 12.

This is supplemented by the truthful but discouraging advertisement of a dentist: "Teeth extracted with great pains."

"No person," wrote an imaginative undertaker, "ever having tried one of these air-tight coffins of ours will ever use any other," says an exchange.

This is an advertisement from the columns of an English court journal: "Blankets! Blankets! Blankets! For domestic and charitable purposes of every description, quality, size and weight."

The following advertisement is from an Australian paper: "Wanted, a young woman (the plainer the better), to help a small, genteel family in their domestic matters! one without ringlets preferred."

An American paper published in Paris recently contained the following unique advertisement: "A young man of agreeable presence, and desirous of getting married, would like to make the acquaintance of an aged and experienced gentleman who would persuade him from taking the fatal step."

Here is a specimen of domestic advertising from the columns of the London Times: "Mrs. George Ashton, 5 Victoria street, Westminster, takes this opportunity of thanking her numerous friends for their kind letters of sympathy on the dissolution of her marriage."

DAYS GONE BY.

India rubber is not absolutely water tight.

A good locomotive usually lasts 12 years. During that time it travels something like 1,000,000 miles.

A light of one candle power can be plainly seen at a distance of one mile, and one of three candle power at two miles.

Reed pens, shaped after the fashion of quill pens, have been found in Egyptian tombs dating probably from 2,500 B. C.

The small letter "i" was formerly written without the dot, which was subsequently added to distinguish it from the letter "e" in hasty writing.

CEMETERY FOR DOGS.

Decent Burial for Pets in Graves Sold of Leased.

A society has just been founded in Paris whose object is the creation of a cemetery for dogs. M. Harmois, the editor of a popular magazine, is the originator of the project. The almost total absence in Paris of the back garden makes it a difficult matter to carry out a canine funeral with anything approaching decency. The more devoted owners of dogs convey the carcasses of their pets to the open spaces in the surrounding districts, with the result that every now and then the papers contain accounts of some bereaved person being arrested by a local policeman on the chi ge of clandestinely burying a baby, whereas all he had done was to consign his pug or his spaniel to its last resting place.

As a rule, of course, no such trouble is taken, and the dog's hearse is the dust cart. A strong contingent of the departed find their way to the Seine, but of late years in the course of its passage through Paris some 20,000 carcasses are fished out annually, the majority of them those of dogs. The watery burial is bad for the nectar we are usually asked to drink for a week or two in the bills of the summer, and is an ignominious end for the animals who suffer it. Considerations of this kind have induced M. Harmels to start his scheme. He applied for help to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, but that body decided at its last general meeting that its responsibility ended with the decease of its clients. In reality the society's policy is one of masterly inactivity throughout, and it is held in such slight esteem that one of its consolinguished members has publicly asserted that on the only occasion on which he ventured to intervene in its name he was taken into custody for creating a disturbance and stopping traffic.

However, M. Harmois has succeeded in obtaining sufficient support to start his enterprise. The site of his cemetery has already been selected on some waste ground near the old fortifications, and applications for canine candidates for admission will be able to find accommodation. The graves may be leased for as many years or few years as the dog owner considers to be the measure of his solicitude, and suitable inscription of simple gravestones or elaborate monuments will be allowed. Finally, for the benefit of pet owners in general, portions of the cemetery will be set aside for all the varieties of man's animal friends and companions, from parrots to marmosets, from canaries to cats.

Now, I am sure you'd never guess
The' his the truth and nothing less,
We havesuch heaping loads of fun
As make the wails laugh, every one,
With a little tramp at our house.

She strayed away, you see, one day,
And where she lived she will not say,
But when she saw us going by
Out from the hedge she hop'd to spy
This little tramp at our house.

"Let me go with you," was her plea,
"Why no? You don't belong to me."
"Good evening, doctor; here's a tramp:
Pray, do you own the little scamp?
She wants to go to our house."

"Not I," the doctor said, "you take her;
My dog just broke his chain to shake her."
And so this little gray and white,
That's hobbles ever you'll see,
Came up to live at our house.

She plays with me at hide-and-seek,
And makes me laugh until I'm weak;
She limps out here and limps out there,
And has a regular little tear—
This little tramp at our house.

She's a little shadow—that you see—
Had lived an air out less than that,
But now she is just rolling fat—
This little tramp at our house.

Her favorite dish is mutton rind,
She swallows it, and not a bit mind,
Then gnaws for more of that same kind—
This little tramp at our house.

She was never known to steal—
Just helps herself. How would you feel
If every time you took some cream
The hens should fall, and lightnings scream—
We don't do so at our house.
—H. S. Hubbard, in Our Dumb Animals.

The Kitten and the Bear.

Chris. Burns, the veteran First Sergeant of Troop D, had a kitten which, during the summer camping of the troop at the Lower Geyser Basin, made her home within the Sergeant's tent. Here, curled up on a pair of army blankets, she defied the world in general, and dogs in particular.

One day, when the camp was bathed in sunshine, and every soldier in camp felt lazy, an inquisitive black bear came down the mountain side, and, whether because he was in search of adventure or because attracted by a savory smell from the cook's fire, began to walk about among the white tents of the cavalry command.

Suddenly the kitten caught sight of him. Dogs by the score she had seen, but this particular "dog" was the largest and the hairiest dog she had ever seen. But she did not hesitate. It was enough for her that an enemy had invaded her special domain. Rising forth her spite, while the little body quivered with rage, she darted forth at the bear. The onslaught was sudden, and one glance was enough for Bruin. With a snort of fear Bruin made for the nearest tree, a short distance away, and did not pause until he was safely perched among the upper branches. Meanwhile, the kitten stalked proudly about on the ground beneath, keeping close guard over her huge captive, her back still curved into a bow, and her hair still bristling with righteous indignation, while her tail would now and then give a significant little wave, as if to say, "That's the way I settle impertinent bears."

The soldiers, who meanwhile had poured forth from their tents, could scarcely believe their eyes; but there was the bear in the tree, and the kitten below, and there were those who had seen the affair from beginning to end.

And perhaps the strangest part of it all was that the bear would not stir from his safe position in the branches until the kitten had been persuaded to leave her huge enemy a clear means of retreat! Then he slid shamefacedly down from his perch, and ambled hastily off towards the mountain.—Lieut. Charles D. Rhodes, U. S. A., in St. Nicholas.

A Great Button Collector.

The small boy who delights to collect buttons may please himself with the thought that a king once shared his weakness. That was Louis XIV., In 1685, when his craze was at its highest, he spent no less than $600,000 in this strange form of indulgence. Among the items of which this expenditure was made up are the following: August 1, 1685, two diamond buttons, value $7,866 francs; seventy-five diamond buttons, value 586,803 francs. On the buttons for a single vest he spent $200,000. Of the 354 "boutonnieres" used, 163 contained five diamonds each and the remaining 192 were single diamonds. It is estimated that during his lifetime this foolish monarch spent no less than $5,000,000 on buttons alone.

The Diamond Beetle.

One of the most beautiful of insects is the "diamond beetle" of Brazil. According to the investigations of Doctor Garbasso, the sparkling colors of the beetle, which blazes with extraordinary brilliance in the sunshine, originate in an entirely different way from the hues of butterflies. The scales of the diamond beetle appear to consist of two layers, separated by an exceedingly thin inter-space, and the light falling upon this produces the effect of interference, so that the resulting colors correspond with those of thin plates, or of the soap-bubble.

After little Johnny had come out of church, some one asked him how he liked the sermon. "Pretty well," he replied. "The beginning was very good and so was the end; but it had too much middle."

MOTHER'S LOOK.

I 'member such a lot of things
That happened long ago,
When me an' Jim was six years old -
An' now we're ten
So
But those I remember best—

The ones I most can see,
Are the things that need to happen
When mother looked at me.

It's funny how it makes you feel—
Lady's afraid of her,
She's about the nicest person
You'd find most anywhere;
But the queerest sort of feeling,
As queer as queer can be,
Makes everything seem different
When mother looked at me.
—Letchworth Smith.

Respect for the Flag.

The new cadet at the National Military Academy, whether he has come from the little country school with its home-made flag and staff, or from the city school where floats sometimes a flag big enough to cover half the roof of the other school, has been taught to respect the beautiful emblem of his country; but he will learn at West Point, as soon as he begins his career as a cadet, that one of the army, how thoroughly he is to be trained to honor it in his daily life. The laughing schoolboy salute he has perhaps given the flag from time to time now becomes a matter of sober ceremony, so rigidly required and handsomely ordered that it at once sets him to thinking; and the good, sound patriotism that was in him all along soon envelops every glimpse and ceremony of the colors with a sacredness that will deepen day by day.

One of his first lessons is to dow his cap each time he passes the "color line," where the color is guarded by a sentinel. Every summer the cadets pass several months in camp on the lovely banks of the Hudson, and beneath the grand old trees of the academy grounds.

During certain hours of the day a long line of stacked rifles extends along the front of the camp. Across the two stacks, in the center of the line, is laid the color, rolled about its staff. Up and down by this flag marches a natty cadet sentinel, and woe be unto the unlucky cadet who tries to pass this sacred trust without raising his cap.

Through his life at the academy this lesson of respect is continued, and when he has "doffed the cadet and donned the brevet, and changed the gray for the blue," and reported for duty with his regiment, he finds the same lesson of duty awaiting his skilled men, and then, probably for the first time, does he realize the full importance of those early lessons taught in the far-away schoolhouse.—Lieutenant B. W. Atkinson in St. Nicholas.

Even Princes Must Be Orderly.

That admirable nursery law, which sensible American mothers insist upon, of a child picking up its own toys after the day's play is over, is also enforced by the nurses in the royal house of York, in deference to the wishes of the duchess. The little princes are made to collect all their toys, while nursey stands by and directs this first lesson in law and order. But the other day all the Yorkling's aunts at Balmoral, the little Edward, who was spending the morning with his great-grandmother, was having a lovely time with his bricks and lead soldiers when the door opened and nursey appeared to take him off to his dinner. She glanced at the toys and then at the child, but Prince Edward was not inclined to pick them up. This, he thought, would be a fine time to break the hateful rules, and he stood irresolute, looking first at the playthings and then at granny. At last a happy thought struck him, and, pointing to the stout, infirm queen, he exclaimed, in a tone half of entreaty, half of command, "You help me pick them up." There is no doubt but her majesty would have aided her great-grandson if she could have stooped, for the youngster is the apple of her eye; but, under the circumstances, Master Edward was obliged to do it all himself, receiving little lecture on "duty," meanwhile.—Boston Journal.

Why Do the Eyes of Animals Shine.

Everyone knows how the eyes of a cat or a dog gleam green or red at night, and many suppose that this shining is due to some luminous quality in the eye itself—in fact, a sort of phosphorescence. But this is a great mistake.

The fact is that there is practically no such thing as utter darkness. Even on the darkest night or in a tight closed room there are rays of light which the human eye has not the power of gathering. But the animal's eye, particularly that of a carnivorous creature, can and does gather these (to us) invisible rays. So the gleam is in reality the light reflected from the bottom of the eyes, and its color varies with the color of the "choroid back of the semi-transparent retina." What makes the gleam the stronger is the extraordinary way in which the pupils of an animal's eyes dilate at night.

Wun Lung—I votee for respiectable man.

Sam Lee.—Whatee flor?

Wun Lung.—Alle samee change shirtee evly day.—New York Journal.

THE VOLCANO BATH.

People in California Plunge in Ice Cold Mud.

Volcano baths are the proper thing nowadays in certain parts of California and Mexico. Down in Mendocino county, California, such baths have become most frequent.

The volcano bath is not a water bath, says the San Francisco Bulletin, nor is it a fire bath or a lava bath, as might be supposed. It is a mud bath and no ordinary bath at that. Ice cold mud of a bluish tint and of the consistency of freshly mixed mortar is the element into which the bathers plunge splashing and sputtering. The way they manage is unique. A sapling is felled in the forests near the volcano craters, stripped of its limbs, carried to the crater and placed across it, so that each end of the pole rests on firm ground. Fancy yourself sliding out on one of these saplings stretched across a crater's mouth, then slipping gently off into the middle of a gurgling, bubbling, ice cold mass of mud and swinging yourself there, suspended by your hands, until relieved. Then up into the murky depths in an instant, for vastly quicker in action and surer of its victim than quicksand is the mud of Mendocino's mysterious volcanoes.

Cleanliness has nothing to do with it. It is not that for which people face the dangers of the volcano bath. The mud which is belched forth from the earth's interior is supposed to contain important medicinal properties.

There are about twenty-five of these singular cold belching volcanoes in Mendocino county, and they are among California's many wonders. They are situated high on a mountain side, seven miles from Cahto. At this time of the year they are unusually active Their rumblings may be heard for a distance of several miles when they are most violent. The mud frequently shoots over the rim of the crater, flows down the mountain like a lava stream and enters one of the Eel river's tributaries called Cold creek. All of the craters, which are about five feet above the earth's surface and bounded with a circular base or miniature crater from four to seven feet in diameter at the base and two to three feet at the top, corresponding parties have been busy cutting saplings fifty feet in length and pushing them into the mouth of a crater. Some of these have disappeared altogether. Others remain near the surface, playthings of the muddy element, which tosses them about like shavings in the bins in a rough sea. A significant coincidence is the fact that when the ocean, twenty miles away, is unusually heavy and rough the volcanoes become intensely active, relieving the sea by their burden of ice cold mud, but volumes of warm vapor. In some mysterious way the ocean seems to control their action.

For Bridesmaids.

At one of the Easter weddings all the bridesmaids are to wear white—white muslin dresses, with full skirts, with plaited ruffles, and waists trimmed with embroidered chiffon and made with lace sleeves. They are to carry bouquets of yellow daffodils, and wear white hats trimmed with yellow daffodils and many of the bridesmaids' gowns will be trimmed with flowers this year, while all are to carry bouquets, and the idea of spring flowers being used for decoration is to be carried to the extreme. Already the florists are trying to force the peach and apple blossoms to have them ready in time.

A truly magnificent creature will be the Easter bride, for her gown is to be of white satin, the material of her gown more gorgeous and the lace of her veil more costly.

The princess gown will be the one of all others to be chosen, and one of the most superb is made to open over an underskirt which is a mass of real orange blossoms fastened on to white net. Not all real blossoms, however. A great many of them are made of artificial flowers, although the original design calls for the real flowers, but the perfume would be too overpowering. The front part of the waist of this gown is made of point lace, draped across the soft folds, and on the left shoulder is a large bunch of orange blossoms, with long trailing ends, that go into the folds of the lace and hang down in the front of the skirt.

Wanted: Brains.

Dr. Burt G. Wilder, professor of Physiology on the Cornell staff of instruction at Ithica, has recently issued a circular to the governors of all the United States to bequeath their brains to the university. He says that while it is easy to procure the brains of criminals and of insane or ignorant persons, it has hitherto been extremely difficult to obtain those of persons in whom the cerebral development is beyond the average. He adds that it is highly desirable for the advancement of science that a considerable number of brains of this character should be secured. This request, which has been circulated principally among the students and graduates of Cornell, is accompanied by a blank form of bequest, which, however, contains a clause by which the legacy becomes void if serious objection is made by the relatives of the deceased.

A Helmet for Headache.

A French doctor has invented an electric helmet inside of which is a small motor making 600 turns per minute. This whirling is supposed to cure nervous headache and put the sufferer to sleep.

THE FARCE WAS SOLEMN.

Episode of the Hungarian Revolution Recalled.

On September 22, 1851, a most solemn farce was performed within the Austrian empire, such as seems an almost incredible occurrence for a European country and so recent a date. The kingdom of Hungary, which forms the central portion of that empire, was seeking independence, so far as to possess a parliament of its own, or what we call a constitutional government. This struggle was made during the reign of the present emperor, Francis Joseph, who had succeeded to the throne in December, 1848, and it was at last successful.

The national assembly, or Hungarian diet, consisting of upper and lower houses, was opened at length by a conciliatory rescript from his majesty on November 19, 1866, and on June 8 next year he was crowned king of Hungary at its capital, the two united cities, Buda-Pesth, the independence being thereby incorporated. But this had been won not without great cost to the people, and especially, or prominently, to their leaders. On October 6, 1849, five of these famous men were put to death at Pesth-Old-Buda. Count Serwie Batthyani, and thirteen others were executed on the same day at Arad, ninety-five miles to the southeast. But the government, or its military commander, General Haynau, was not content with such slaughter. Count Julius Andressy, born March 8, 1823, had escaped into exile, but on February 23, 1851, it was announced that he had been sentenced to death as a traitor to Hayn, by default of appearance, on February 17, 1867, the head of an independent constitutional ministry, and lived until February 18, 1890, and was buried with all honors in the presence of that same emperor. Yet, on September 30, 1851, Count Andressy had been executed at Buda-Pesth in effigy with all the solemnities which usually accompany the capital punishment of a living being, and with him in a similar manner the other leaders who had fled for refuge within the frontiers of Turkey, including Louis Kossuth, who nevertheless lived from April 21, 1802, till March 20, 1894, Casimir Batthyani and two other ministers and five military leaders.—Spare Moments.

Drink More Water.

"My opinion is that people do not drink as much water during the fall and winter season as they should," observed a well known physician to a New Yorker recently, "and it is positively necessary for them having health in view. There are thousands of people who do not drink one glass of water during the entire day, people, too, who drink from three to six glasses a day in the summer months of the year. Water is as necessary during the cool as during the warm seasons, and those who keep up their usual quantity, regardless of seasons, are benefited thereby in their general health. I do not believe in gulping down water just because it is convenient to drink it, but I do believe that drinking a regular liberal quantity of water each day is demanded by the system, and that what are known as water drinkers have on the whole much better health by so doing. There are many people who have such a horror of growing stout that they never drink a drop of water except in the form of tea into their coffees, teas and soups, and many of them carry it so far as to give up these so as to avoid using water. I have yet to see the man or woman who has been made fat by drinking water, while I know many who have grown stout by avoidine it. The kidneys cannot properly work unless there are liquids consumed. Stimulating drinks, beers and the like may furnish the liquids, but they furnish also poisons, and while it is unnecessary for perfect health, more than counteracts the benefits derived from their use. Take any of the animals, and it will be found they drink in regular supply every day and day in the year; that is, when they have any choice in the matter. It is a pretty safe rule to follow the habits of animals. I am sure none of them grow fat on water alone."—Washington Star.

How Various Nations Sleep.

In the tropics men sleep in hammocks or upon mats of grass. The East Indian unrolls his light, portable charpoy or mattress, which in the morning is again rolled together and carried away with him. The Japanese lie upon matting with a stiff, uncomfortable wooden pillow. The Chinese use low bedsteads, often elaborately carved, and supporting only mats or coverlids. A peculiarity of the German bed is its shortness; besides that, it often consists in part of a large down pillow or upper mattress, which spreads over a person, and usually answers the purpose of all the other ordinary bedclothing combined. The English beds are the largest beds in the world. The ancient Greeks and Romans had their beds supported on frames, but not flat like ours. The Egyptians had a couch of a peculiar shape, more like an old-fashioned easy chair with hollow back and seat.

Curious Measurements.

It is said the Indian and half-breed canoe-men of Canada compute distances on the water by pipes. One pipe is the distance they can paddle in the interval between the haltings they are allowed to make in order to have a smoke. A pipe, then, is this halt is given by the person in charge, at intervals which vary according to circumstances. If the guide is indulgent, he makes the pauses frequent; if the travelers are in a hurry, or if the weather is threatening, fewer stops are made. A "pipe" is, therefore wholly indeterminate.

In the rock of Gibraltar there are seventy miles of tunnels.

IF I WERE YOU.

If I a little girl could be,
Well—just like you,
With lips as rosy,
cheeks as fair,
Such eyes of blue and shining hair.
What do you think
I'd do?

I'd wear no bright and sweet a smile,
I'd be so loving all the while,
I'd be so helpful with my hand,
So quick and gentle to command,
You soon would see
That every one would turn to say:
"It's good to meet that child today."
Yes, you, my dear, that's what I'd do
If I were you.

Or, if I chanced to be a boy,
Like some I know;
With crisp curls sparkling in the sun,
And eyes all beaming bright with fun—
Ah, if I were!
I'd strive and strive with all my might
To be so true, so brave, polite
That in me each one might behold
A hero—as in days of old.
I would be a boy
To hear each one, looking at me, say:
"My chose and comfort all the day."
Yes, if I were a boy I know
I would be so.
But now, perhaps, you'd ask of me:
"What it was I'd be
Who had the young and merry face,
With smiles and roses all in place,
Tell us, what do you mean?"
Ah, dearies! if I ever fell
Far short of doing wisely, well—
It was you see,
Because none ever took the time
To tell me in such lovely rhyme
What I should now rejoice to do
If I were you.

The Body as a Mechanical Wonder.

The greatest of machines is the human body. That is the opinion of an engineer who looks at the subject from the technical standpoint.

Who would think that in his eye there is a block and pulley, or "tackle," as the sailors call it, as complete and efficient as that with which a ship hoists her mainsail? There it is, however; and whenever you look at the tip of your nose the muscle that moves your eyeball pulls on it. There are several of these pulleys in the body.

Another clever dodge of Nature is shown in the bones of the face. Accomplished engineer that she is, she always uses the smallest quantity of material sufficient for strength. In making the bones of the face she wanted a large surface to which to attach the muscles; but, as she didn't wish to encumber us with heads as heavy as an elephant's, she burrowed hundreds of little holes in the bones, called air cells, and thus secured strength, large surface and lightness.

When you get a severe cold you are apprised of the presence of another cunning device—the Eustachian tube. This tube is two inches long, and passes from the throat to the back of the mouth. It was put there to keep the air at the same pressure inside the drum as outside. Otherwise there would be no vibration of the drum, and you would be almost stone deaf. When you get a bad cold this tube sometimes becomes inflamed and blocked, and you are made quite deaf.

Adam's apple, if it was once that fruit that brought into the world all our woe, is now a useful organ. It serves as a sort of storage cistern of the blood for the supply of the brain. When the heart sends up too much blood Adam's apple intercepts it, by part of it, and when the direct supply from the heart temporarily runs short, Adam's apple gives up its store.

One of the most valuable of all the inventions ministering to comfort and safety is the perspirative gland. It acts like the safety valve of a boiler, letting off heat when we are becoming dangerously warm. If our temperature rose seven or eight degrees, we would not have twenty-four hours to live. The value of this sweat gland is therefore obvious.—New York Journal.

Better Than a Trolley Fender.

To northeastern Philadelphia belongs the honor of having a life-saving dog. Jock is an immense Newfoundland. A double trolley track traverses the street on which he lives. Jock was present once when a little one was taken from under the cruel wheels and manifested the liveliest interest in the occurrence. Ever since then he has been known on several occasions to pick up a smaller child with his strong jaws and quietly deposit it out of harm's way. The animal is a splendid specimen, and it is not to be wondered at that he is the most popular resident of the street.—New York World.

Cause for Rejoicing.

Returned Gold Seeker—We had reached the summit of Chilkoot Pass when we were attacked by half-starved wolves. We could hear their howls! Even in the semi-darkness of the Arctic night we could see their black muzzles—

She (excitedly)—Oh, I'm so glad they had muzzles on!

Very Much One.

Meadowbrook—I hear Morris contracted a mesalliance?

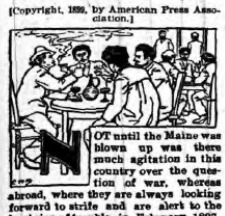
Dyker—Yes, poor chap! He married a girl who thinks golf stupid.

ABROAD IN WARTIME.

KATE PARSONS LATHROP TELLS HOW EUROPE BEHAVED TOWARD US.

How Some American Women Found Friends In Italy, Were Persecuted In France, Lionized in Austria and Snubbed in Germany.

(Copyright, 1898, by American Press Association.)



UP until the Maine was blown up there was much agitation in this country over the question of war, whereas abroad, where they are always looking forward to strife and are alert to the least sign of trouble, in February, 1897, two years ago, a great commotion swept over Europe as to whether there was to be or not to be fighting between us and Spain.

At the time President McKinley was inaugurated the interest ran highest. Just then we Americans were in quiet old Siena, Italy, and were astounded at the furore that convulsed the country. for home papers did not prepare us for any such intense excitement as we saw around us.

For many reasons the sympathies of the Italians inclined to us, but their decisions struggled in the balance for a long time before they finally took our side.

In all of the Italian towns the cafes di vino, the cafes chansons, all the rendezvous, were simply alive with buzzing humanities, who declared war, fought war and decided the war ten thousand times a day with bobbing heads and gesticulating arms. Men vowed that their neighbors, the Spaniards, were stupid pigs and sly dogs, whom they would like to stick personally; but, then, it was an entirely different thing when somebody else was going to have this pleasure.

Now, this was the uneducated mass, whose oil and olives and straw goods were at stake in the issue. All nations know what the men in the cabinets thought at the time, but few are aware, except those who were on the spot, of the general feelings of the bulk of the people.

But "pace" was not the terminus of the struggle, as all of us know, whereupon the Italian mind again writhed in throes of anxiety as to which side it should take. Had not the holy father blessed the Spanish arms, and yet were not the American merchants the best customers in the market?

Now every one knows what a hard fight ensues when religious sentiment and pocketbook are pitted against each other. But no nation can appreciate the full bitterness of what took place in Italy during our fighting with Spain except those who witnessed the clamorous bread strike in Lombardy, Tuscany and Naples by men, women and children, who used clubs one minute to gain their point and kissed crucifixes the next in repentance for having opposed both church and state.

Now matters in France were not in this state at all. We crossed from Italy into that country, when feeling against America was rampant and rediculous. 'Twas just after the blowing up of the Maine. 'Twas high treason to suggest this fearful outrage was anything more than an accident. America had no sense of the nice decencies, when for a moment she could suspect Spain of playing taken part in the fall of her man-of-war!

After the bugle note of battle rung out defiantly, venomous hatred boiled in the blood of France. Our dress, our manner, our bearing, marked us American women. Even the dear, sweet, pretty girl whom we picked out as parleying without a particle of English accent was snubbed right and left. Cochers never saw us when we waited cabs, clerks never had time to wait on us, hotel proprietors, if they happened to have a room, charged double for everything.

And the reason for this! Money, money, again money. Each cabman and clerk and countryman had his saved up earnings at stake. Millions of dollars belonging to the French people had been lent to Spain for railroads and street car lines and what not.

THE COCHERS NEVER SAW US.

Some of our countrymen and countrywomen left for England and Austria in self defense, but we remained in this hornet's nest and did queer things. Jingoes would have called us traitors and renegades, but in our patriotic hearts we knew that we were listening to the calls of pity, only to which womanhood is never deaf.

This is what happened: The students of Barcelona college, Spain, called upon President Faure and asked his permission to play and sing in Paris for the benefit of the widows and orphans of Spanish soldiers. This request was granted, and even the executive palace was opened to introduce to high society to the fashionable public, from whom most could be expected in the way of donations. One palace after another entertained these musicians and contributed generously in francs and sympathy.

At last our turn came. The dear little politic madame with whom we were staying had to have her finger in the pie too.

"It would not do, mes cheres," she suavely said to her 25 American guests, "for me not to do something. Mes amis would think that I was not solicitous for these pauvres petits. Then you, too (with a pretty, pouting, pleading pucker of her mouth), would help me just a little, would you not?"

Of course we would have willingly hurt madame's feelings. Besides, we were not loath to study a real Spaniard at near range. Then, too, it was interesting to have 20 students talk, sing and play while we took our afternoon cup of tea. It is unnecessary to say that we cautiously kept the topic of conversation on safe ground. Besides, we were not brutal enough to wound the sunken eyed, gaunt, pale faced lads, most of whom already had lost brothers and fathers in the war. Afterward we heard that later nearly all of even these poor young fellows lost their lives in Cuba. Does any one blame us for generously contributing to their exhortations?

They left behind them a lot of American girls sewing on plain muslin for the sisters and mothers of the men who were trying to kill our own loved ones. But I suppose it was the "trying" and failing to kill that made us generous to the under dog in the fight.

A short time after this above mentioned episode our navies won their astounding victories, and we openly showed our pride and delight. This was more than madame could stand. She didn't exactly ask us to leave her house, but she suddenly concluded to close her pension and go away to Boulogne-sur-Mer for a few weeks' rest on account of the hot weather. Well, we just had to pack up and move on. Now I am glad we had to do so, as it gave us an excellent opportunity to judge personally of the sentiments toward us of the different nations.

We sought refuge in Budapest, where we were received with open arms as heroes. All that was necessary was that we were a part of the great nation that stood before the whole world miraculously successful.

SEWING FOR SPANISH PRISONERS.

I believe on this account, that our words and our manners were studied as object lessons to be copied and our opinions valued and respected. As mothers and sisters of our navy and army demigods we took to the place given us in the spheres.

This was acceptable to our self respect and vanity after the treatment we had received in France and proved a consolation when we reached Germany, where again we were put on the rack of criticism and cross questioning. In the first place, we were women, and that was against us, as Germans consider all women as necessary evil. Besides, we knew nothing of Krupp guns, of right flank movements, of hollow square movements, of cavalry charges, of artillery charges. In the beer gardens the constant discussion was our army tactics, and they seemed to find no interest in any other topic.

In this great military nation the press was rife with criticism of what we were doing in Cuba, and minutely detailed accounts were published in it of the small town politics. It was cold that at first the empire was opposed to our war, condemning us as meddlers and crowing cocks that were unprepared to fulfill our threats.

But as months went by and it grew upon them that our resources were immense, their philosophical minds took to weighing and judging us by the tremendous results that we were accomplishing.

The public, as a whole, satisfied itself by calling us bad names and in feeling highly superior to us as a nation, because our volunteers had never been taught the shrift step.

All of this time that we were in Germany, France, Austria and Italy we received letters from those of our party who were traveling through England. In the beginning she wrote dolefully. The whole of the matter was this, that all those that were near and dear to us were to be swallowed up by the sea. She kept this up for some time, quoting her authorities for doing so, when Dewey's, and later Sampson's, victories, shook and aroused the civilized globe.

What a change came upon the spirit of her dreams! She was half mad with delight, and so was England. One of the world's greatest triumphs had been granted to the English speaking race! We were chips of the old block, we were courageous, we were capable, we were great!

KATE PARSONS LATHROP.

THE WOMAN'S WORLD

Ingenious Teaching.

A mother, who could hear in the next room every morning her small son of nine talking to himself as he spelled out the words and added the figures, crosswise, up and down, and in every possible way, of a large calendar which hung directly in front of his bed, bethought herself of furnishing him better occupation. She took down the calendar and put in its place a good print of Raphael's "Madonna della Seggiola," this with no word to him of the change. The next morning the little one's voice was stilled, but a noiseless peep into the room showed the young student rapturously to the picture, while about his lips the hint of a smile betrayed that his absorbing interest was a pleased one. Since then at intervals his morning picture is changed, not too frequently, for a child needs reiteration, until the boy has become a small connoisseur in famous paintings, and his occasional short visits to an art gallery are a great delight to him because of his artistic studies. The first ten minutes of a child's day are a most valuable receptive period. The young brain is refreshed by sleep, unexcited by any of the day's occupations, eager for impressions and peculiarly responsive to their influence.

The wise child-study considers that equally important with the first waking hours should be the last of the day. The mother who sits at her little one's bed as the tired, small frame is settling into repose will almost inevitably find the mind just before sleep works with unusual, if brief, clearness; she will be wise to let this last, strongly inpriated impression be a soothing one. A gentle voice, a short, easily comprehended talk with no sadness, no tragedy, no sharp elements of any sort, will send the temporarily keen but fast succumbing faculties off into slumberland under the best and most healthful auspices. Too many mothers leave to servants these significant moments of their children's lives, lovely to the mothers if they will enjoy them, and priceless to the growing character of their receptive powers if taken advantage of.—New York Evening Post.

A Curious Will.

The will of Mme. Brasseux, an eccentric Frenchwoman who recently died in Paris, might furnish food for thought for some of our American millionaires. She was very rich, and had been a hopeless invalid for many years, but she succeeded in extracting a great deal of pleasure from life. She filled her house with pretty young girls, and once a week for their entertainment gave a large ball, to which she invited any one and every one who pleased her, irrespective of social status. At each of these entertainments the hostess sat in her invalid chair, near the musicians, watching her guests dance and enjoy themselves.

When she died her will was found to be as eccentric as her life had been. She had left the whole of her vast fortune to individuals of all sorts and conditions, selected from time to time at these entertainments. Two thousand francs were left to a young man who danced unusually well; three thousand to a girl with a musical laugh; five hundred to a young woman with beautiful hair, and so on. All the bequests were small, but all were made for some definite reason. To them for some definite pleasure given by the legatee to the eccentric old lady. The Puritan.

Patti's Fondness for Linen.

Mme. Patti, who is a wonderful housewife, has a perfect passion for linen. Her cupboards are among the wonders of Craig-y-nos. With innocent coquetry Caroline, her faithful servitress for thirty years standing, has tied up the beautiful sets of sheets and pillow cases and towels and tablecloths and napkins in pink and blue ribbon, with little upstanding bows, so the cupboard, when opened, resembles a flower garden. Patti might well make the same reply that Mme. Roland made when one of her friends said, wonderingly, "How your servants love you!" She answered, "And how I love them!" Mme. Patti, indeed, is literally adored by her servants, and is even a heroine to her maid.—New York Journal.

The New Woman as a Wife.

It is the man who marries the new woman who is going to get the most out of this life, for even in living there is everything in knowing how. A clear headed, strong man out of her problem of life, her philosophy is teaching her to look for his possibilities with the same anxiety that she employs in studying her own; that to adopt herself to his individuality need not necessarily imperil her own; that the first element in the forming of this perfect home, which it is her ambition to establish, is perfect congeniality of spirit between herself and her husband.—Woman's Home Companion.

The Kitchen Apron.

Make your kitchen aprons with a full ruffle across the bottom. This will stand out from your dress skirt and catch whatever you may drop or spill, thus protecting the dress skirt. The front of a dress skirt is often soiled round the bottom because the apron does not quite cover it, or is drawn too tightly across it, but this ruffle will effectually prevent any soiling of the dress.

THE WOMAN'S WORLD

The Funny Woman not a Success.

The funny woman, in spite of her brilliant conversational qualities, is rarely a social success. Unbridled wit and tact are inimical. The wag who is bursting with a mot will hardly ever repress it just to preserve harmony. Now, when one sits at a dinner party to go off pleasantly and smoothly one does not feel safe in inviting a guest who may, in a moment of exuberant fun, create one of those "awful pauses" so dreaded in society, or innocently enrage some eminent personage by a telling "home shot." Genius for humor is like at any other sort of genius—you must take it as you find it, and it is a very difficult thing to confine in a strait-jacket of conventionality.

The funny woman is not usually a winner in the game of hearts, though she may succeed in affording her men friends excellent entertainment. The ideal girl—that paragon of man's fancy—is not usually she who is prone to puns and who has the ability to find a funny spot in the most sentimental situation. Men may admire quickness of wit in the abstract, but they are not so apt to fall in love with a girl who is always making "smart speeches." They are as disagreeably startled by sharp wit in a girl as by a pretty girl as though they had found pepper in their ice cream.

Dear, funny woman, we would not laugh always, nor live perpetually in a shower of mental fireworks. Ever and ever is there room to welcome with the earnest, grave and jokeless friend with whom we may discuss some profound and solemn theme without being met by a fusillade of feeble puns and witticisms. We know you are very funny, but one's head aches with continuous trilling, and an exclusively funny diet is about as sustaining as a ration of mere pepper and salt. Truly, there is a time to laugh, but it is not all the time.—Woman's Home Companion.

The Careless Woman.

The untidy woman is often thoughtless, and inconsiderate as well, and when this trinity of disagreeable traits is found in one woman, exclaims the New York Commercial Advertiser, woe betide the unfortunates who have to come in contact with her. Servants are driven to the verge of despair by the chaotic state of her rooms and her unreasonable fault finding when the slightest thing is mislaid. Her scolding, of course, has little effect, for no amount of preaching on the merits and virtues of order and neatness could counterbalance the example she sets in her own person and actions of disorder and untidiness. An example of the cruelties which want of thought will sometimes entail was painfully illustrated the other day by a poor washerwoman, who was obliged to go to a hospital to have an operation performed on her hand and arm. In rubbing an article of clothing on the washboard, a needle, which had been left in the garment by some careless mender, ran into her thumb, broke off and was so deeply imbedded in the flesh that all efforts to dislodge it proved futile, a surgical operation was performed. The poor woman's arm and hand were swollen to twice their normal size, and she suffered exquisite pain. Of course, her work was left undone, and some of her employers disappointed because of the non-arrival of their linen may give their work to some one else in the future. Worry, suffering and loss of income—and all because of the shiftless untidiness of some inconsiderate woman!

A Good Idea for Young Girls.

A New York paper tells of a class in education that has been formed by four young girls who meet at each other's house once a week and have an excellent teacher. Their object is to learn to talk and enunciate distinctly, to acquire the proper intonation of voice which is the accomplishment very much needed by our American girls), to recite well, and also to act and use the proper gestures in both acting and speaking. They are learning plays in English, French and German, and act as well as recite them. Another excellent thing their teacher is making a point of is to instruct them thoroughly in the art of reading aloud. Comparatively few girls read aloud with intelligence, yet much pleasure is derived from listening to an interesting book when it is well read, and the art adds much enjoyment to the evenings at home or with friends who like to make music. Besides this the charm of a cultivated voice needs no insisting upon. It is evident from the first moment of its existence, and equally evident when lacking. How many of our lovely girls lose their fascination when they speak! Moreover, elocution in these days means more than mere voice culture, and we have left the day of "yelocution" far behind us. Lessons in bearing, in ease, in bodily development, and in the art of dress include in their comprehensive "maintien" is now a part of the elocution lesson.

Honeyed Baked Apples.

In baking apples, honey for sweetening is truly delicious. Wash the apples and core them, but do not peel; a bit of cinnamon may be put in the holes made by removal of the cores. Put the apples into a baking pan, with just enough water to cover the bottom of the pan. When the apples have baked for 30 minutes, add the honey and baste them frequently until done. For very sour apples use a half gill of honey to every six apples. Eaten hot or cold, with or without cream, they are good.—E. M. L.

BRAVE KATE FIELD.

STORY OF HER LAST JOURNEY TOLD BY ELIZA ARCHARD CONNER.

How the Dauntless Woman Journalist Undertook a Twelve White Head Her End—"Giving Up Is Not on My Programme," She Said.

(Copyright, 1898, by American Press Association.)

Wherever she went, brilliant, lamented Kate Field made an impression that remained. The gifted mind, the powerful will, the witty, sarcastic tongue, and above all the warm, appreciative heart, made a personality not to be forgotten.

"She was the most grateful person for any small favor that I ever saw," said Miss Paris, the friend who put her on board ship for her last earthly journey.

I think Miss Field is more vividly remembered than any other American who has visited the Hawaiian Islands in recent years. At each point in my recent wanderings through Hawaii I was asked, "Did you know Kate Field?" I was glad I had known her living and in health.

KATE FIELD.

Her strength must have been failing before she attempted the Hawaiian trip. At the volcano of Kilauea she was too weak to endure the horseback and foot journey into and around the crater. She asked if some kind of a sedan chair could not be provided in which she might be carried a part of the way by natives. Just so indomitable was her determination to do her duty by the journal that had employed her. The churlish reply was made to her by a white man that the natives were not slaves and should not do what she asked.

But Miss Field appealed to the natives herself, undoubtedly these kindly and polite people would gladly have carried the brilliant woman journalist anywhere she wanted to go. She did not think to do this, however, and so missed one of the great features of her trip. It must have been a sore disappointment to her. As to the white man who thus snubbed her, he will have the remembrance to carry in his breast to his grave that he was ugly and ill natured to Kate Field in her dying days, and that he was the only person in the islands who was so.

Miss Field went next to a coast village on the island of Hawaii in the Hilo-Honolulu steamer. Her instructions were to investigate thoroughly and report the prospects for profit in the culture of the coffee berry in the islands.

In the coast village she staid with Miss Paris. Her vitality was then nearly exhausted, though. Upborne by her own royal will, she knew it not. The stomach seemed to fail altogether, an unerring indication that the life is worn out. She took such liquid nourishment as she could retain.

The journey through the coffee district was to be made on horseback. Seeing how weak she was, Miss Paris consented to accompany her. It was a triumphal procession that marched out of the little village of Kailua the morning they left. A guard of honor of handsome brown mounted native policemen accompanied the two ladies a little way on upon their road. A Hawaiian band, with guitar, violin and cornet, serenaded them, too, singing the sweet, wild melodies of their race. Miss Field was so laden with leis, or flower wreaths, that she was in despair. Weak as she was, each one seemed to weigh a ton.

"What shall I do with them?" she asked Miss Paris mournfully and yet half laughing, for she was pleased in spite of the incumbrance.

"Put them on your horse's neck and let him carry them," suggested Miss Paris.

This she did, and thus enwreathed and emblossomed Kate Field went out over the road she was never to retrace in this life.

It was her ardent wish to see the natives in their own homes and taste life as they knew it. Miss Paris is the daughter of the first missionary in western Hawaii and knew her people well and was welcomed among them all. They stopped that first night at the house of a native, intending to go on next morning. But now Miss Field's increasing weakness began to make Miss Paris seriously uneasy.

"Let us give up this trip for the present," she said, "and wait till you get stronger."

But Kate Field, the indomitable, answered, "Giving up is not on my programme."

She had never yet undertaken any enterprise she was unable to carry through; she saw no reason why she should give up this; she knew not that a stronger power than her own will was dominating her at last—even death.

Next morning it was plain she could go no farther. She was failing rapidly. Her will had begun to weaken, and Miss Paris was able to persuade her to abandon the trip temporarily. They were 13 miles from Napapoopoo, the coast village where the island steamers made their landing. By easy stages they rode to the village. It was Monday—steamer day. Miss Paris thought to leave her patient, remembering the long horseback ride before she could reach her own home. Miss Field laid her hands upon her shoulders and looked into her eyes.

"If you leave me before I get on board that steamer, I think I shall die," she said.

"Very well," replied the kind friend, "then I won't leave you. I will go with you in the boat to the steamer."

She did so, and as soon as her word and stopped not till she had placed the stricken journalist in her own bed upon the ship. Miss Field looked about her and smiled a faint, sweet smile.

"I am so comfortable," she said softly, "and—and—how shall I ever repay you?"

"Don't think of it," answered Miss Paris.

She was obliged to leave then, but as American doctor was on board, and to him and the ladies in his party she commended the sick woman. The physician saw the patient, gave some directions, and then he and his friends went ashore and remained till time for the steamer to leave.

It required some 24 hours to reach Honolulu. Of these last earthly hours of Kate Field there is no record. Whether she suffered greatly or whether she went out of life with any great death longing unfulfilled, who knows? There was no one with her but strangers, mostly the Japanese servants of the steamer, and on these lines there is not even a woman steward or attendant. Miss Field was carried from the steamer unconscious and in a dying condition to the residence of Dr. McGrew in Honolulu. Of her last thoughts there remains to us only this:

"Giving up is not on my programme."

ELIZA ARCHARD CONNER.

WHAT WOMEN ARE DOING.

Some Unique and Interesting Activities of the Unquiet Sex.

A vigorous campaign against the use of birds for the adornment of ladies' headgear has lately been inaugurated in New York city and vicinity by Mrs. Adella Cook, of Coudersport, author of a novelette of some suburban home is at Rochelle Park, near Hackensack, N. J.

In one of her recent stories, "Some of New York's Four Hundred," Mrs. Coulston takes the upper tendom of the metropolis to task for the scenes of such conspicuous follies and inhumanities. The story refers with special severity to the cruel treatment of the horses of the Four Hundred by "docking" and high checking.

The slaughter of birds for the decoration of hats also receives the novelist's condemnation. In the story is recorded the successful endeavor of a New York society girl who, under an assumed name, established an extensive millinery store to discontinuance the decorating of hats with birds by refusing to use them in making her patrons' headwear.

Putting into practice the sentiments expressed in her novel, Mrs. Coulston, who has an especial fondness for birds, has organized and is president of a society for the protection of the feathered tribes against the ravages of fashionable society.

MRS. ADELLA OCTAVIA COULSTON.

Mrs. Coulston's commendable efforts are seconded by a number of prominent women of New York and vicinity, who have pledged themselves not to wear birds on their hats and to continuously urge their friends to discontenance this pernicious decree of fashion.

Among the members of the society formed by Mrs. Coulston are Mrs. Helen M. Easton, Mrs. Mary A. Jeffries, Mrs. Garret R. Oldis and Mrs. Cornelia Cunningham. Believing it to be barbarous to kill birds for the sole purpose of decorating hats, these women will employ reasonable influence to make the wearing of birds unfashionable and odious and thus save from prospective annihilation the feathered creatures whose song and plumage are among nature's choicest gifts.

Miss Lucille M. Dent of Leavenworth, Kan., 15 years of age, has kept a scrapbook since the beginning of the war with Spain, having accumulated a collection of clippings for which she has been offered and refused $1,000.

Mary Antin, a 15-year-old Boston girl, is the latest literary prodigy. She was discovered by Zangwill and writes stories and poetry, for which he stands sponsor.

The marriage ceremony in Tibet is simple. The girl's father ties a rope about his daughter's neck and drags her to her future husband's abode. The latter pays what he considers a fair price, and she is henceforth his wife.

Mrs. Walter Vrooman, formerly of St. Louis, has organized a social settlement at Oxford, England, which is supplemental to her husband's Social Science school, recently established there.

THE WOMAN'S WORLD

Use of Tissue Paper for Packing.

There is nothing like tissue paper for keeping clothes when packed from steaming brushed and pressed and stringy and what women generally call "trunky." Between the layers of packed clothes nowadays the dainty woman is careful to spread sheets of tissue paper. Bodices are enveloped in it; it surrounds ruffles, ribbons bow and streamer; sleeves, ribbonloops and such things are stuffed with tissue paper, crushed lightly into a ball, so that there may be no flattening nor definition. "Plenty of tissue paper, and there need be no trunky clothes," says the traveling woman of to-day. "It takes up no more room and its results are inestimable." The only possible flaw is the virtue of the tissue paper habit, as it may be termed, is that it is possible to now and then forget the use to give it. Even the boxes and folders and envelopers, of course, are remembered, but the stuffed out ribbonloops run a great risk. There is a chance, if one is dressing in a hurry and has but recently been, to use tissue paper in packing, and, more than all else, if one's French maid is—well, by no means so omnipresent as she might be—of slipping in to a beribboned frock without stopping to remove its stuffings. It has happened. One evening this summer a woman twice patrolled the entire length of a hotel dining room, attended a dance and a card party and had a good time generally, all unconscious of the fact that the many ribbon loops on her gown were replete with tissue paper. Not until she was making ready to retire did she discover the true state of affairs. Oh, yes, said all the other women next day, they had noticed the stuffings, but somehow, you know, they didn't like to tell her. It transpired that even a novice in the novelet of those bunches of tissue paper were dying in Mrs. Blank's bows.—New York Sun.

Queen Margherita's Tact.

Of all the qualities once essential to a sovereign, the one most useful now is tact. Queen Margherita of Italy, who belongs to a house trained to kingcraft, for more than a hundred years, is said to be wonderfully skilful in dealing with social difficulties. An incident which occurred at one of her drawing rooms illustrates her readiness and delicacy.

The persons who are to be presented at a Roman Court are arranged in a large semi-circle in the throne-room. The queen enters and passes around the line, attended by a chamberlain, who names each person, adding usually a word or two to give the queen some clue for her remarks to notice. She asks a question or makes a remark to each and passes on.

On this occasion there was in the line a young man from South America whose embarrassment showed itself in pale cheeks and nervous gasps as the queen drew nearer. At last she reached him and stopped. He heard his name, saw her smile. There was a roaring in his ears; his knees shook. Every eye was bent upon him with amused interest, his terror was so pitiful.

"From Brazil?" she asked. "And what town in Brazil is your home, Signor?"

"I—your Majesty—I don't know!" he gasped.

The whole circle smiled, but the Queen's face was as calm as marble. "You mean that our beautiful Italy has already made you forget your home? Ah, signor, you are a skillful courtier! You flatter us too much!" and playfully shaking her fan at him she passed on, leaving him wondering how he came to make so brilliant a response, while the crowd looked at him, respectfully bewildered, also.—Youth's Companion.

Proper Care of Shoes.

Although the toes of shoes are less pointed than formerly, they are still pointed enough to break across the toes if the proper precaution is not taken. Indeed, even square shaped shoes are subject to this very unsightly result after a few days' wear, if the remaining space beyond one's foot is not properly filled out. The best antidote for this calamity is a piece of sponge, a roll of curiled hair or even a pad of tissue paper if neither of the others is available. Nothing so quickly gives a man or woman a careless appearance as to be improperly shod, and by carefully looking to this detail a trim and neat appearance may be maintained, even until the leather shows symptoms of becoming a thing of the past. With intelligent care patent leather shoes will hold their own a long time, which they fail to do otherwise. They should be wiped dry and then with a piece of cheesecloth immediately upon removing them, rolled up in a cloth or in soft paper and put in a box or a dry closet. When they are first taken off the feet the leather is expanded in consequence of the heat of the body, and they should therefore be protected from a sudden contraction which causes them to crack; hence the importance of protecting them from cold and dampness. It is a very little thing to do, and the result is entirely worth more than compensates one for his attention. After all, it is the little things of life that make or mar; it is the snowflakes that make the glaciers.—Philadelphia Ledger.

"And why did she choose him among so many admirers?" "The others did not propose."—Brooklyn Life.

The Constitutionalist.

A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.

PUBLISHED AT

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Terms—$2.00 per year.

A. L. Force, Editor and Proprietor

No Law to Touch Trusts.

In these days of imprecations on the formation of trust—and all that is said against the monster trade combinations is right and just in most instances—the opinion expressed by New Jersey's eminent citizen, the Hon. John W Griggs, Attorney-General of the United States, with reference to the United States laws in dealing with these evils of public welfare, comes with particular timeliness and force.

Attorney-General Griggs' opinion was drawn out by a man who is extensively interested in New Jersey, and who fears for the kindly feeling that this little commonwealth shows towards the disreputable practice of forming trade combinations to control the output and prices of necessities of life. The law known as the Sherman Act, which was enacted by Congress several years ago, is supposed to be the means of crushing trusts if the Attorney-General applies it with the proper industry and force, but according to Mr. Griggs the law is of no earthly use in trying to stamp out the business that New Jersey is fostering. In reference to this Mr. Griggs says:

The Sherman Trust-act does not give to the federal courts jurisdiction over any combination constituting a restraint of trade, unless such trade is known as interstate or international trade and commerce. A combination or trust for the purpose of manufacturing a monopoly in the manufactures of necessary of life is not within the scope of the Sherman act and cannot be so reached by the federal courts. This was decided in 1895 in the case of the United States against the combination of sugar companies.

As a matter of fact all the companies which you refer to are now organizing for the purpose of securing complete or partial monopoly of different branches of manufacture, are similar to the sugar combination and are not within the jurisdiction of the federal courts. If amenable to any law they are amenable to the laws of the respective states.

It is a popular error to assert that the Attorney General of the United States has control of the manufactures which engage in manufacture in the various states. This is entirely a matter of state control, and unless the funds of investors are made secure I am not free to deal with. I would be unconsciously to attempt a crusade against affairs with which I have no business.

If what Mr. Griggs states is so, and he is powerless himself in respect to the enforcement of the United States law, then it is up to the New Jersey Legislature. As plainly as words can intimate Mr. Griggs says that if the country is to be relieved of the oppression of trusts it must come from the Legislatures of the States that foster and protect such enterprises. As New Jersey is foremost in this class of commonwealths, and Mr. Griggs' opinion was drawn by a query that was propounded by the New Jersey situation, the Legislators cannot do better than accept the statement of the Attorney-General as peculiarly applicable here and hasten to follow his suggestions.

But inasmuch as the Legislature hopes to adjourn within a very brief time it is not to be expected that New Jersey will be relieved of the odium that attaches to it as the "Cradle of Trusts," until the people elect a Legislature that will deal with such a issue as it deserves to be dealt with. And the day is not far distant when such an outcome will result.

A Legislative Evil.

One of the fortunate things for corporations in killing legislation that they do not like in the State Legislature, is the custom of allowing committees to strangle such measures as the majority of the members think best—that is, from their point of view; and that is decidedly bad at times. In parleying with Senator McDermott a few days before the Legislature adjourned, when the Hudson county man wanted to get his riparian rights bill out of the committee's hands, President Reed cited the action of former President Robert Adrain, a Democrat, in declaring out of order motions to relieve committees of the bills referred to them. In commenting on this incident the Newark News tersely says:

The slaughter of bills in committee has become a palpable evil an abuse of committee functions. It was never contemplated that these subordinate bodies should assume the powers given by the constitution to the Legislature as a whole. Their province is to examine the bills and inform the whole House whether in their opinion the measures referred to them are good or bad. They may report favorably, adversely, without recommendation, by substitute, or with amendment, but in all cases it is their duty to report every bill referred to them in some way, and leave the responsibility for its passage or defeat with the Legislature.

Our esteemed friend, Mr. James E Martine, will be among the Jerseymen who will hie themselves to New York on the night of the dollar-ites' banquet to attend that great event and absorb some of the wisdom that will be expounded there.

The New York Tribune refers to our own Roger Franklin Murray as "Murphy." Certainly it cannot be because he was so green to Legislative ways.

Governor Voorhees and the Trusts.

Governor Voorhees' views in reference to the formation of trusts seem to be very elastic. When he was inaugurated as Governor he devoted a portion of his first message to the consideration of monster trade combinations and expressed his belief that formations of enterprises such as New Jersey was and is fostering, should be made the subject of legislative investigation. At the time, however, he stated that he was not conversant enough with the situation to deal with it in explicit words and would at a later date submit a special message concerning the subject.

What has been the result? The great majority of New Jersey people have been patiently waiting for the Governor to present his promised message, but as the days of the Legislative session were drawing to a close those who followed the trend of affairs at Trenton were unable to see that the Governor intended to do as he had suggested at the commencement of his term. But Governor Voorhees has finally come out of his hole and says in a newspaper interview:

I did have it in mind to make some inquiry into the subject, but the business of the Legislature has been so pressing that I have had no time. * * * Nobody has protested to me any facts that indicate that these combinations have been a wrong in their relationships, such as are legislating the price of the necessaries of life. In fact, the trend of information, as I hear it, is to the contrary—that they are reducing prices.

Mr. Voorhees' excuses are weak and flippant. His plea of overwork by reason of the Legislature is satirical rather than serious. That body has only made a pretence of work. Is it necessary for Mr. Voorhees to have a delegation of eminent citizens to call on him and inform him what the combinations

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Makes the food more delicious and wholesome

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

SELLING WHISKEY WITHOUT A LICENSE.

John Kavanagh Arrested and Arraigned in City Court.

LONG BEEN SUSPECTED.

PUT UNDER $200 BONDS FOR APPEARANCE AT EXAMINATION.

Two Specific Charges Against Him—Accused of Selling Two Glasses of Whiskey to Edward P. Hoppock on Two Different Dates—Counsellman Hetfield Will Defend the Offender.

The campaign of the Plainfield police against the alleged illegal liquor sellers has opened for the year. Monday morning John Kavanagh was arrested at his restaurant on the corner of Grant avenue and South Second street by Roundsman Frederickson on a warrant and arraigned before City Judge Runyon.

Kavanagh has been in the City Court before. He has long been suspected by the police, but evidence has been very hard to find. The police now claim that they have sufficient evidence to convict him. There are two specific charges against him. He is accused of selling Edward P Hoppoc two glasses of whiskey on Friday, March 10th, and two more on the Tuesday following. As Kavanagh's place is not licensed, he has no right to sell.

Kavanagh was arraigned before Judge Runyon Monday a. m. shortly after 9 o'clock. It was the most important case that has come before the present City Judge during his term of office. Kavanagh entered a plea of not guilty. Councilman Walter L. Hetfield appeared for him Kavanagh was held under $200 bonds for his appearance at trial. George O. Stevens acted as bondsman. The trial was set down for Thursday but will probably be adjourned at that time to a date mutually agreed upon by the lawyers. The city will be represented in the case by the Corporation Counsel.

Announcement.

To accommodate those who are partial to the use of atomizers in applying liquids into the nasal passages for catarrnal troubles, the proprietors prepare Cream Balm in liquid form which will be known as Ely's Liquid Cream Balm. Price, including the spraying tube, is 75 cts. Druggists or by mail. The liquid form embodies the medicinal properties of the solid preparation. Cream Balm is quickly absorbed by the membrane and does not dry up the secretions but changes them to a natural and healthy character. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren St., N. Y.

Sad Death of Young Woman.

A particularly sad death of one of Plainfield's well known young women occurred Monday morning after a brief illness. The deceased was Etta M., wife of Wilbur P Henderson, and daughter of the late William and Lucy Connett, aged twenty-six years. She was popular among a large circle of friends and her death will be a shock to all who knew her. She is survived by a husband and an infant child. The funeral services were held from Warren chapel, North Plainfield, Wednesday afternoon last at 2:30 o'clock.

See Speer's Chateau wine cellars of New Jersey vineyards. Read all about it and about the unfermented Grape Juice.

New Jersey Grape Juice Sent to Europe.

Mr. Speer of New Jersey, has a reputation extending over the world as being a reliable producer of Oporto Grape Juice and Port Wine. They are ordered by families in Dresden, London and Paris for their superior virtues.

Wagon and Trolley Car Collided

Car No. 12, of the Plainfield Street Railway Company, collided with a hay wagon on West Front street last evening. Samuel Blazier was motorman. The wagon was partially damaged, while the front of the vestibule on the car was crushed. Blazier had his face cut in several places by pieces of the flying glass.

Horsemen to Meet.

A meeting of those interested in the formation of a trotting circuit, to include Plainfield, Trenton and New Brunswick, will be held at an early date to perfect plans for the several meets.

Delegate From a Church

Rev. B. W. Hand, of this city, is the representative from the Second Gathering, Disciples of Christ, of this city, to the conference to be held in Philadelphia, Pa., the 9th, 10th and 11th of May.

SUNDAY WORKERS MET.

ANNUAL MEETING OF FIRST M. E. SUNDAY-SCHOOL.

Reports Showed a Good Record for the Past Year—Election of Officers Held—Missionary Society Met as Well

The progress that has marked the last year at the Sunday-school of the First M. E church was made evident at the annual meeting of the school held in Vincent chapel last Monday. It was well attended by both teachers and scholars.

The reports of the officers and committees were made, and told of the work done during the year. The treasurer, A. E Crane, gave notice that there still remained a substantial balance in the bank. The report of the secretary, James A. Stafford, showed a total membership of 307, greater than last year. The average attendance was very satisfactory, despite the fact there were so many rainy Sundays during the past year.

The election of officers was held and resulted as follows: Superintendent, J. W. Jackson; assistant superintendents, James R. Joy and Harry Gee; secretary, James A. Stafford; treasurer, Arthur E Crone; librarian, L. M. Dunavan. Library committee, J. R. Joy, J. A. Stafford, L. M. Dunavan, Miss Angleman, and Miss Essie Horne.

The annual meeting of the missionary society of the Sunday school followed the other meeting. The report showed that $2.0 had been given to the cause of home and foreign missions during the year The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Clifford W. McGee; vice-president, Samuel Blogemin; secretary and treasurer, Arthur E Crone.

Y. M. C. A. LITERARY SOCIETY.

Oscar S. Rogers Delivered an Oration on Evils of Immigration

The first real meeting of the Y M C A Literary Society was held Monday night, and an interesting programme of literary productions was presented. Oscar S. Rogers delivered an original oration, which dealt with the evils of foreign immigration, and there was a talk in which C M Dilliver, Mr. Drake and Mrs Dranges took part.

An original composition by C M. Dilliver, entitled "A Visit to the Globe Theatre in Shakespeare's Time" was read, and Harvey Linbarger read something upon the policy of expansion. The next meeting will be held April 10 h, when there will be a debate and a musical and literary programme.

Bryan Democracy Active.

New Brunswick, March 29—Organization Democrats are apparently alive as to the outcome of a rather vigorous movement among the Bryan Democrats of this city headed by ex-Alderman John Mulvey. The movement among the Independents has gained especial strength in the Sixth ward, where Mr. Mulvey, familiarly called 'Honest John,' has a large personal following and a clash is expected between the regular organization and the independents when it comes to nominating candidates for Mayor, City Recorder and the ward officers.

Election at Grace Church.

The annual election of the Grace P. E. church will be held at the parish house next Monday evening, when the various church officers will be selected. An amendment will be considered, the substance of which will be to change the date of the annual meeting from the first Monday evening after Easter to the first Monday after Advent.

To Elect Church Trustees.

On the evening of Wednesday, April 5th, there will be a business meeting at Grace M. E. church for the purpose of electing two trustees to fill the places of Ezra Loomis and Charles Hummer, resigned, and three more trustees in the places of H K Carroll, John Valiant and E. E. Winkler, whose terms expire.

To Vaccinate School Children.

The Board of Health of the borough are taking steps to have every one of the school children vaccinated. President McCutchen, of the Board of Education, has been communicated with regarding the matter.

New to Jerusalem.

A cablegram has been received from the Honeyman party and they are now in Jerusalem enjoying the sights of the Holy Land. All members of the party are well and are having a thoroughly good time.

Discussing Street Work.

There was a meeting of the borough street committee last Monday evening at the council rooms when the subject of fixing the streets of the borough was discussed.

REVIEW OF THE WORK OF THE LEGISLATURE

Partisan Legislation Seemed to be Severely Tabooed.

TRUSTS HAD A GRIP THOUGH

NOTHING INIMICAL TO CORPORATION INTERESTS WAS PASSED.

Appropriation Grew to Three Millions and the Democrats are Pleased With the Record Their Opponents Made—It is Alleged That There was Plenty of Cash to Help Grease the Wheels of Legislat on Trenton, March 28 The Legislature, which adjourned sine die last Friday, was in many respects a most remarkable body. It made a record for conservatism. No really important acts were passed. Nearly all attempts at partisan legislation were frowned upon, and as a consequence only two acts, relating to ward district lines in Trenton and New Brunswick, these being political, were placed on the statute book. Senator Hutchinson's bill, giving the control of the State Prison offices to the Republican party, never saw daylight. It was smothered in a committee of which the stalwart Senator Pitney was chairman. The importunities made by Colonel Dickinson, of Jersey City, and Hugh Lenz, of Newark, for legislation to give them control of the police and fire departments of those cities were brushed aside, which is because the policy of the Republican leaders was averse to interference in local affairs. The Republicans regard this as a great record for non partisanship and are confident that it has strengthened the party before the people.

As to other legislation, perhaps the record that has been made is not so satisfactory. Anyhow, the Democrats make that allegation It is charged that the Legislature from beginning to end has been entirely under the control of trusts and corporations. Not even one bill inimical to these interests has become a law. Several anti-trust measures were introduced, but because they had a Democratic sponsorship they were never permitted to come up for discussion. As to whether they were right or wrong was a question which should have been threshed out in open session and not strangled by the committees having them in charge. The Republican majority undoubtedly was guilty of cowardice in the method in it pursued with regard to that class of bills.

By a ruling of the President of the Senate it was declared that no Senator had a right to move for the discharge of a committee from the further consideration of any bill. This was regarded as autocratic to the extreme, and President Reed certified himself by saying that his ruling was only following precedent from time immemorial in the New Jersey Senate. In the House motions were always permitted to force committees to report bills, but there motions were quickly defeated by a strictly partisan vote. That the committees of the Legislature should have such drastic power over bills is regarded as beyond all reason.

A three million dollar Legislature is the name given to it by the Democrats This has reference to the large appropriations that have been made—the largest in the history of the State. Of course there were some good excuses for this disbursement of the public money. Nearly a half million of dollars has been appropriated for the Reform-atory and for compensation for the soldiers of the American-Spanish war. The Morris Plains State Hospital was given a pretty big slice, while, of course, hundreds of thousands of dollars had to be provided for the support and maintenance of the various State departments and institutions. The Republicans assert that there has been no extravagance at all, because every dollar appropriated was absolutely necessary for the running of the State Government. Of course the Democrats believe otherwise. They say that the pruning knife should have been used in many items of the bill, and that this "three million dollar" Legislature has in many cases wasted the public funds.

During the se sion 540 bills were introduced, 231 in the Senate and 318 in the House. Of these, 231 have become laws, and the Governor has 35 yet to act upon. The Governor has made a remarkable record in the manner in which he has disposed of the legislation of the session.

Church Trustees Chosen.

The annual election of trustees of the First M. E. church was held last Monday. C. Lansdale, W. R. Codrington and George H. Burgess were elected for a term of three years.

GIVE THE CHILDREN A DRINK

called Grain-O. It is a delicious, appetizing, nourishing food drink to take the place of coffee. Sold by all Grocers and liked by all who have used it because when properly prepared it tastes like the finest coffee but is free from all its injurious properties. Grain-O aids digestion and strengthens the nerves. It is not a stimulant but a health builder, and children, as well as adults, can drink it with great benefit. Costs about ¼ as much as coffee 15 and 25c.

DR FRENCH'S MEMORIAL.

TO HONOR THE MEMORY OF THE LATE LAMENTED ENDEAVORER.

Movement in Which Plainfield is Interested Proposed to Establish and Endow an Industrial Home in Newark

A movement, headed by the Christian Endeavor Society of the Park Presbyterian church, of Newark, has been started to raise a fund for the building and endowment of an industrial home in that city in memory of the late Rev. Dr. J. C. French. At a meeting of the society last Sunday evening William Russell, Miss Lottie Taylor, Miss Eulily Cooper and Miss Emma Baldwin were appointed a committee to forward the movement. The session of the church has approved the plan, and the directors of the Newark Industrial Home, which was founded by Dr. French, and of which he was president at the time of his death, will be invited to lend their aid.

Contributions have already been received from the Plainfield Local Christian Endeavor Union, and Dr. Cornelius Brett, of Jersey City, president of the New Jersey Christian Endeavor Union, has promised his support. The plan is to raise $50,000 and build a model industrial home in Newark. The thirty-one directors of the Newark Industrial Home are hearty supporters of Dr. French, and it is thought that they will give the scheme their earnest support.

SHOT THE THIEF.

L. M. Hillman Trapped and Killed a Huge 'Possum That Stole Chickens.

For some time the chicken coops on Sherman avenue and West Eighth street, west of Grant avenue, have been suffering from the depredations of some unknown marauder. Judging from the remains it was evident that the thief was a four-footed one, either an opposum or a skunk.

Among the chief sufferers were L. M. Hillman and F. E Kinsman, both of Sherman avenue. Last week Mr. Hillman set a trap out in the woods behind his home. Saturday night he visited the place and found a huge opposum fast. The animal was shot. It weighed twelve pounds. Now the chickens live in peace one more.

WORK OF THE HOSPITAL.

Board of Governors Met Monday and Discussed Plans.

The board of governors of Muhlenberg Hospital met Monday night in the Public Library and spent two hours transacting routine business. It is probable that a good part of the time was taken up in discussing the plans for the new building, for the plans were there, but the board refused to give out anything for publication.

The monthly report for March is as follows: Total number of patients admitted, 14; discharged, cured, 14; improved, 1; died, 2; total number treated, 37; dispensary patients, 36; visits, 109.

Younger Society Set Gave a Dance.

A number of Plainfield's prominent young people gave a delightful dance and reception in the Gamma Club rooms last Monday. There were about sixty couples present, including guests from New York, New Brunswick, Perth Amboy, Mt Vernon, N. Y., Summit and Jersey City. Music was furnished by Prof. Garland, of New Brunswick. The affair was given under the direction of a committee of six and every detail was arranged perfectly. About 1 o'clock Tuesday a. m. supper was served, after which dancing was continued until an early hour.

Gas Wheel Lost in a Collision.

The carriage belonging to George VanBoskerck, of 542 West Seventh street, lost one of its rear wheels Tuesday morning on Park avenue. The carriage was standing by the curb, when the horse attached to the delivery wagon of Byers' Seafood market started off and collided with the carriage. A wrecked wheel was the result. The horse was caught before it had run any distance.

Rescued Dog Broke His Teeth.

A well-known Front street merchant, who has but recently been forced to use "store teeth," was so unfortunate a few days ago to give vent to a hearty sneeze, when out of his mouth flew his set of teeth and broke the plate on which they were fastened.

Colored Phythian Attended Church

Goodwill Lodge, No. 8, K. of P., colored, observed Thanksgiving day last Sunday when the lodge attended divine services at the Fillmore Baptist church, at which time an interesting address was delivered by Rev. L. L. Croom.

New Trolley Schedule.

The Plainfield trolley cars are again running under twelve minutes headway during the evening. This change will be welcomed by a whole lot of people, who hitherto could walk faster than ride.

Crushed Stone for the City.

A. I & N. B. Smalley, of the borough, have received the contract to furnish the city this year with crushed stone for the streets and stone for culverts.

DR FRENCH'S MEMORIAL.

TO HONOR THE MEMORY OF THE LATE LAMENTED ENDEAVORER.

Movement in Which Plainfield is Interested Proposed to Establish and Endow an Industrial Home in Newark

A movement, headed by the Christian Endeavor Society of the Park Presbyterian church, of Newark, has been started to raise a fund for the building and endowment of an industrial home in that city in memory of the late Rev. Dr. J. C. French. At a meeting of the society last Sunday evening William Russell, Miss Lottie Taylor, Miss Eulily Cooper and Miss Emma Baldwin were appointed a committee to forward the movement. The session of the church has approved the plan, and the directors of the Newark Industrial Home, which was founded by Dr. French, and of which he was president at the time of his death, will be invited to lend their aid.

Contributions have already been received from the Plainfield Local Christian Endeavor Union, and Dr. Cornelius Brett, of Jersey City, president of the New Jersey Christian Endeavor Union, has promised his support. The plan is to raise $50,000 and build a model industrial home in Newark. The thirty-one directors of the Newark Industrial Home are hearty supporters of Dr. French, and it is thought that they will give the scheme their earnest support.

SHOT THE THIEF.

L. M. Hillman Trapped and Killed a Huge 'Possum That Stole Chickens.

For some time the chicken coops on Sherman avenue and West Eighth street, west of Grant avenue, have been suffering from the depredations of some unknown marauder. Judging from the remains it was evident that the thief was a four-footed one, either an opposum or a skunk.

Among the chief sufferers were L. M. Hillman and F. E Kinsman, both of Sherman avenue. Last week Mr. Hillman set a trap out in the woods behind his home. Saturday night he visited the place and found a huge opposum fast. The animal was shot. It weighed twelve pounds. Now the chickens live in peace one more.

WORK OF THE HOSPITAL.

Board of Governors Met Monday and Discussed Plans.

The board of governors of Muhlenberg Hospital met Monday night in the Public Library and spent two hours transacting routine business. It is probable that a good part of the time was taken up in discussing the plans for the new building, for the plans were there, but the board refused to give out anything for publication.

The monthly report for March is as follows: Total number of patients admitted, 14; discharged, cured, 14; improved, 1; died, 2; total number treated, 37; dispensary patients, 36; visits, 109.

Younger Society Set Gave a Dance.

A number of Plainfield's prominent young people gave a delightful dance and reception in the Gamma Club rooms last Monday. There were about sixty couples present, including guests from New York, New Brunswick, Perth Amboy, Mt Vernon, N. Y., Summit and Jersey City. Music was furnished by Prof. Garland, of New Brunswick. The affair was given under the direction of a committee of six and every detail was arranged perfectly. About 1 o'clock Tuesday a. m. supper was served, after which dancing was continued until an early hour.

Gas Wheel Lost in a Collision.

The carriage belonging to George VanBoskerck, of 542 West Seventh street, lost one of its rear wheels Tuesday morning on Park avenue. The carriage was standing by the curb, when the horse attached to the delivery wagon of Byers' Seafood market started off and collided with the carriage. A wrecked wheel was the result. The horse was caught before it had run any distance.

Rescued Dog Broke His Teeth.

A well-known Front street merchant, who has but recently been forced to use "store teeth," was so unfortunate a few days ago to give vent to a hearty sneeze, when out of his mouth flew his set of teeth and broke the plate on which they were fastened.

Colored Phythian Attended Church

Goodwill Lodge, No. 8, K. of P., colored, observed Thanksgiving day last Sunday when the lodge attended divine services at the Fillmore Baptist church, at which time an interesting address was delivered by Rev. L. L. Croom.

New Trolley Schedule.

The Plainfield trolley cars are again running under twelve minutes headway during the evening. This change will be welcomed by a whole lot of people, who hitherto could walk faster than ride.

Crushed Stone for the City.

A. I & N. B. Smalley, of the borough, have received the contract to furnish the city this year with crushed stone for the streets and stone for culverts.

BASKET BALL SEASON ENDED IN A VICTORY.

Local Y. M. C. A. Team Badly Defeated a New York Team.

VISITORS ON THE DEFENCE.

AGGRESSIVE TACTICS OF THE LOCAL PLAYERS OVERWHELMING.

The Team From the School of Mines, Columbia College, Were Utterly Unable to Keep Up With the Pace Set By the Association Players—Big Audience There—Score Was 41 to 4.

If the basket ball players of the class of 1 00 School of Mines, Columbia College, had a high opinion of their ability in the game, they were grievously disappointed, last Monday. The basket ball team of the Plainfield Y. M C A. ended its season last night by simply overwhelming their collegiate opponents from the School of Mines, throwing goals until they tired of the sport. Plainfield won by a score of 41 to 4. The game was played on the local gymnasium.

For the first three minutes of play it looked like a very exciting game. Long scored for Plainfield, then Smith, of Columbia, who was left unguarded, neatly dropped the ball to clinch the goal. Another goal for Plainfield followed. Then another, and another, until the spectators wearied of counting them.

The clever little move that the college boys showed to score their first goal seemed to wake up the local players. They play with a snap and vigor that was simply irresistable. The Columbia team played hard and fast but based t o much dependence on blocking tactics than on passing.

It was a defensive game that the visitors played or were compelled to play almost from the start. In the first half they had but few chances to try for goals, and in the second none at all. Plainfield played hard for the first half and rolled up a score of 34 to 4. In the second half the local team seemed contented with 9 points and with preventing their opponents from scoring.

There was a large audience present that overflowed the visitors' gallery and crowded all the extra space on the gymnasium floor. Much enthusiasm was shown for the playing of both teams. During the interval between the halves, several of the college boys gave an exhibition of free work on the high bar.

The detail score was as follows:

PLAINFIELD.	COLUMBIA SCHOOL OF MINES.
Long.....Right forward.....Smith, R. S.
K. Miller.....Left forward.....Smith, R. W.
Read.....Centre.....Goode
E. Miller.....Right guard.....Burns
Smith.....Left guard.....de la Fuente

Summary—Goals from the field—Long (3), E. M. Miller (3), Read (3), Smith (2), R. W. Smith (1). Goals from fouls—Long (1). Fouls—Called on Plainfield, 7; on Columbia, 6. Referee—C. K. A. Haywood, of Plainfield. Umpire—A. H. Smith, of Plainfield. Timekeeper—J. H. Dana. Scorer—F. T. Marcey.

How's That!

We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.

F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O.

We, the undersigned, have known F. J Cheney for the last 15 years, and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions, and financially able to carry out any obligation made by their firm.

WEST & TRUAX, Wholesale Druggist, Toledo, O.

WALDING, KINNAN & MARVIN, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, O.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Price 75c. per bottle. Sold by all Druggists. Testimonials free.

Hall's family Pills are the best.

—A meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be held at an early date to settle the question of moving from the present quarters. The majority seem to be in favor of remaining at the present place and keeping the rooms open every evening.

Avoid drying inducements, use that which cleanses and heals the membrane.

Ely's Cream Balm is such a remedy, cure CATARRH easily and pleasantly. Contains no mercury nor any other injurious drug. Is quickly absorbed. Gives relief at once. It opens and cleanses the nasal passages, allays inflammation, heals and protects the membrane, Restores the Senses of Taste and Smell. Regular Size 50c., Family Size, $1.00, by mail, or at Druggists. ELY BROTHERS, 56 Warren Street, New York.

CATARRH

ELY'S CREAM BALM CATARRH DISEASE

CATARRH

ELY BROS.

COLD IN HEAD

Children Teething

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used for over Fifty Years by Millions of Mothers for their Children while Teething, with Perfect Success. It Soothes the Child, Softens the Gums, Allays All Pain, Cures Wind Colic, and is the best remedy for Diarrhœa. Sold by druggists in every part of the world. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

Dr. Humphreys'

Specifics act directly upon the disease, without exciting disorder in other parts of the system. They Cure the Sick.

NO.	CURES.	PRICES.
1	Fevers, Congestion, Inflammations, Vertigo	.25
2	Worms, Worm Fever, Worm Colic	.25
3	Teething, Colic, Crying, Wakefulness	.25
4	Diarrhea, of Children or Adults	.25
5	Dysentery, Griping, Bilious Colic	.25
6	Cholera, Cholera Morbus, Vomiting	.25
7	Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis	.25
8	Neuralgia, Toothache, Faceache	.25
9	Headache, Sick Headache, Vertigo	.25
10	Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Weak Stomach	.25
11	Suppressed or Painful Periods	.25
12	Whites, Too Profuse Periods	.25
13	Croup, Laryngitis, Hoarseness	.25
14	Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Eruptions	.25
15	Rheumatism, Rheumatic Pains	.25
16	Malaria, Chills, Fever and Ague	.25
17	Piles, External or Internal	.25
19	Ophthalmia, Weak or Inflamed Eyes	.25
19	Catarrh, Influenza, Cold in the Head	.25
20	Whooping-Cough	.25
21	Asthma, Difficult Breathing	.25
22	Ear Discharges, Earache	.25
23	Scrofula, Enlarged Glands	.25
24	General Debility, Weakness	.25
25	Dropsy, Fluid Accumulations	.25
26	Sea-Sickness, Nausea, Vomiting	.25
27	Kidney Disease	.25
28	Nervous Debility	1.00
29	Sore Mouth, or Canker	.25
30	Urinary Weakness, Wetting Bed	.25
31	Painful Menses, Fruritus	.25
32	Disease of the Heart, Palpitations	1.00
33	Epilepsy, St. Vitus' Dance	1.00
34	Sore Throat, Quinsy, Diphtheria	.25
35	Chronic Congestions, Headaches	.25
77	Grip, Hay Fever	.25

Sold by Druggists, or sent prepaid on receipt of price. Humphreys' Med. Co., Cor. William & John Sts., New York.

HUMPHREYS' WITCH HAZEL OIL "THE PILE OINTMENT."

For Piles—External or Internal, Blind or Bleeding. Fistula in Ano, Ulcers, Itching or Protruding Piles. The relief is immediate—the cure certain.

PRICE, 50 CENTS. TRIAL SIZES, 25 CTS.

Sold by Druggists, or sent post-paid on receipt of price. HUMPHREYS' MED. CO., 111 & 113 William St., New York.

VICK SEEDS

Bulbs and Plants have gone to thousands of satisfied customers in half century and to celebrate the 50th year in business we have issued a Special Golden Wedding Edition of which is a work of art. It has 24 pages lithographed in colors, 4 pages duotone, and nearly 100 pages finely engraved illustrations of Flowers, Vegetables, Vegetables, Plants, Fruits, etc., elegantly bound in white and gold. A special Calendar Coupon good on another page in all subjects pertaining to the garden, and one for the Calendar will be sent to any address if desirable. It is our experience to give away information, and we will be pleased to correspond with any amateur interested in a good garden to have a copy, therefore we will send the Guide with a DUE BILL for 25 cents which can be used for flower and vegetable seeds

Vick's Garden and Floral Guide

It tells how credit is given for full amount of purchase to lay before planting.

Vick's Little Gem Catalogue

A perfect little gem of a price list. It contains the Guide's directions for planting. Gives all the novelties and other desirable seeds. Sent FREE enlarged, improved, and up to date on all subjects relating to the home, Horticulture, etc. Regular subscription price, 50 cts. per year.

Vicks Monthly Magazine,

Special Offer—The Magazine one year and Vick's Garden and Floral Guide, for 50 cts.

OUR NEW PATENT Vegetable Seeds given away for your ... amount of your seed house in America.

JAMES VICK'S SONS, ROCHESTER, N. Y.

In Chancery of New Jersey.

Between SARAH E. ROBINSON, Petitioner, —and— EMERY H. ROBINSON, Defendant. } On Petition for Divorce.

To Emery H. Robinson:

By virtue of an order of the Court of Chancery of New Jersey, made on the day of the date hereof, wherein Sarah E. Robinson is petitioner and you are defendant, you are required to appear and answer the petitioner's petition on or before the 1st day of April next, or in default such order will be taken against you as the Court may think fit and equity and justice the said petition is filed against you for a divorce from the bond of matrimony.

Dated this fifth day of February, Eighteen Hundred and Ninety-nine.

REED & CODDINGTON, Solicitors of Petitioner, Babcock Building, Plainfield, N. J.

2 25 5

DIED.

CONOVER—In this city, Thursday, March 23d, 1899, Kattie E. Conover, aged 28 years and 6 months.

CORTELLE—At South Plainfield, Sunday, March 26th, 1899, John P. Cortelloe, age 37 years, 11 months, 4 days.

CUTTER—In this city, Tuesday, March 21st, 1899, Caroline P., widow of Joseph S. Cutter.

ESTERBROOK—Died on Fourth day, 3d month, 29th, at the residence of her son-in-law, Francis Wood, Plainfield, New Jersey, Mary, widow of Richard Esterbrook, formerly of Saunders Co., Pa., in the 87th year of her age.

HENDRICKSON—In this city, Monday, March 27th, 1899, Effie M., wife of Wilbur P. Henderson and daughter of the late Wm. and Lucy Connett.

JOHNSON—In this city, Thursday, March 23d, 1899, Elmer E. Johnson, aged 36 years, 9 months, 3 days.

MARCLEY—In this city, Thursday, March 23d, 1899, Caroline T. Marcley, wife of M. F. Marcley and daughter of the late Stephen Vail.

SCHILLER—In this city, Friday, March 24th, 1899, Harold H. Schiller.

SCRIBNER—Suddenly, of pneumonia, at Raleigh, N. C., on Wednesday, March 22d, 1899, Herbert Vail, wife of Frank H. Scribner and daughter of Mahlon Vail, of Park avenue.

STORY—In this city, March 25th, 1899, Mrs. Eliza Story, in her 20th year.

CARNEY BROS.,

MADISON AVENUE,

Between Front and Second streets.

Tinners, Plumbers Gas Fitters,

Grates and bricks for all kinds of stoves can be found here at Jobbers' prices. Bring your tinware mending to us. The best tinners, the best plumbers, and the best gas-fitters in this section. We use none but the very best of materials, and our work always gives satisfaction. Keys of all kinds are made here. Tinware made to order. Ranges, brick and portable furnaces. Sanitary plumbing.

Sanitary Plumbing,

Brick and Portable Furnace

Gas Fitting, Tin Roofing,

Etc., Etc., Etc.

I am prepared to do any of the above branches in strictly first-class sanitary and workmanship manner.

Having associated myself with the Master Members Association of New York City, I employ none but first class mechanics and non-union men. I believe in every man running a own business at all times and in cases.

D. W. LITTELL,

No. 112 North Ave., Plainfield, N. J.

ALBERT HEDDEN

Livery & Boarding Stables

FOURTH ST.,

between Watchung and Park avenues.

First-class Livery. Horses boarded by week or month. Telephone call, No. 114.

A. WOLFF,

Manufacturer of

CIGARS.

And dealer in all kinds of Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and smokers' articles, has removed from 234 W. Front street, to 261 West Front street, one door east of Madison avenue and solicits the patronage of his friends and the public generally.

P. P. VanArsdale,

PIANO TUNER.

Instruments put in thorough order. Terms reasonable. Pianos and organs for sale and to let. Orders by postal, P. O. box 160, or left at Willett's shoe store, No. 107 Park avenue will receive prompt attention. Residence 303 E. Front street, corner Elm street. 4jly3

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS DESIGNS COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook of Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York

Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

NEW IN EVERY DETAIL!

My new barber shop at

143 NORTH AVE.

a now open ready for business. All the latest appointments in the tonsorial line.

EDWIN B. MAYNARD.

TRADE MARKS COPYRIGHTS.

CAN I OBTAIN A PATENT? For a prompt answer and an honest opinion, write to MUNN & CO., who have had nearly fifty years' experience in the patent business. Communications strictly confidential. A Handbook of information concerning Patents and how to obtain them sent free. Also a catalogue of mechanical and scientific books sent free. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice in the Scientific American, and thus are brought widely before the public without cost to the inventor. This splendid paper, issued weekly, elegantly illustrated, has by far the largest circulation of any scientific work in the world. $3 a year. Sample copies sent free. Building Edition, monthly, $2.50 a year. Single copies, 25 cents. Every number contains beautiful plates, in colors, and photographs of new houses, with plans, enabling builders to show the latest designs and secure contracts. Address MUNN & CO., NEW YORK, 361 BROADWAY.

Wm. A. Woodruff,

Fire and Life

INSURANCE AGENT,

OFFICE,

corner Front St. and Park Avenue,

Plainfield, N. J.

Real Estate for Sale and Exchange Money to Loan on Approve Security

SEEDS ... FOR THE ... Garden and Farm

Vegetable and Flower Seeds. All the newest and best varieties. Our handsome illustrated Catalogue FREE.

WEEBER & DON, Seed Merchants 114 Chambers St., New York City.

WALTER LONG WON LAST INDOOR EVENT.

Closing Gymnastic Contest at Y. M. C. A.

ONLY FIVE COMPETITORS.

CONTEST INCLUDED BAR AND DUMB-BELL DRILLS.

Finish Between Long and Moraller Was Very Close—Moraller Broke in One Move With Bar-Bell and Lost His Chances Thereby—Drill Led by Physical Director C. E. Heywood—The Scores.

The series of indoor contests in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium ended Saturday evening with the open competitions with bar-bells and dumb-bells. The season has been the most active and the most successful of any since the opening of the gymnasium. The events of Saturday night were new to competition in the local association. Consequently, there were only a few members who entered. They showed, however, an evident healthy activity in standard gymnastics that promises well for the future.

The exercises with bar-bells and dumb-bells were combined in one contest instead of holding seperate events as was first planned. The contest was confined entirely to the drill and the contestants were not asked to give any original exercises.

The bar-bell drill opened the contest. There were only five entered, Walter L. Long, Eric Moraller, Herbert Brokaw, Walter Sampson and George Creverling. A number of the other members of the evening class lined up with them, however, and went through the drill for the exercise involved.

The drill was led by C. E. A. Heywood, the physical director. There were twelve moves with the bar-drill. Long and Moraller were both in good form. Moraller lost his chance for first place by a break. He lost the count in one of the moves and stopped for a moment before he could recover the swing. There were ten points possible to score in the drill.

Then followed the dumb-bell drill with ten moves, also under the direction of Mr. Heywood. The scoring was the same. Long and Moraller kept together in great shape and there was no evident superiority for either.

The judges were Robert A. Meeker and Louis I. VanAistyne. At the conclusion of the events, they announced that Walter L. Long had won from the contest with a score of 19 out of a possible 20 points. The others finished in the following order: Moraller, 18½; Brokaw, 17½, Sampson, 15½; Creverling, 15. But for Moraller's break he would have tied Long. Long was in fine form, however, and went through the moves easily and gracefully. He never lost the time or the move, his loss of the one point being due to a slight carelessness in his form.

RULES OF THE BOYS' CLUB

Those Who are on the Waiting List Will Have Limited Privileges.

The Boys' Club has been very popular with the boys lately, and often the waiting boys outnumber the members, even now when they are more than thirty.

Friday night Mr. Saugstad, the superintendent, called a meeting of the members and asked for suggestions as to restrictions to be placed on visitors. After many suggestions had been considered the following was agreed to be a fair restriction to non-members.

Friends of members who want to look through the club are always welcome.

Boys whose names are on the waiting list may come on Tuesdays and Fridays, and may use the gymnasium while the members are at work.

Boys whose names are not on the waiting list may come only on Friday, and may use the gymnasium the same as those who are on the waiting list, on that night.

This does not apply to adults. They are always welcome.

MADE A TOUR OF THE STREETS.

Mayor Smalley and Street Superintendent Doud Out Inspecting.

On Saturday last Mayor Smalley together with Superintendent of Highways Thomas Doud, and the members of the street committee of the borough, made a thorough inspection of the streets in that municipality, for the purpose of getting an idea as to which streets need attention this year. Altogether the officials were gratified in a general way with the condition of the street, but they found a number of streets that will need attention at an early date, and the street committee will give the matter proper attention.

Successful Operation.

Last Saturday a very successful operation was performed on Charles E. Cranston, of Jackson avenue, by Dr. Zoglio, assisted by Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan. It was the removal of an abscess from a gland. The patient is doing very well. Daniel Main, late of the U. S. A. Hospital Corps, is in attendance as nurse.

A NEIGHBORHOOD RALLY

EPWORTH LEAGUE MEMBERS MET IN VINCENT CHAPEL.

Rally Was Conducted by Henry Uce, President of the First M. E. League—Discussed the Work Before Them.

There was a pleasant gathering of all the Epworth Leaguers of this vicinity in Vincent chapel, Friday evening, to attend the "neighboring rally," given by Chapter No. 1, of the First M. E. church. The chapel was crowded with young people who came from Dunellen, Scotch Plains, Westfield and Plainfield. Five Leagues were represented.

The interior of the chapel presented a charming appearance. Long streamers of red and white, the League colors, were draped about the room and from a central point over the desk to the gallery. The emblem of the Epworth League occupied a prominent place over the platform. Palms and potted plants were grouped about the platform and the sides of the room, giving a charming effect.

The rally was conducted by Henry McGee, president of the Epworth League of the First M. E. church. After an opening hymn and prayer by Rev Dr. W. O. Snodgrass, the presidents of the different Leagues present were called upon for three-minute speeches. Westfield was represented by Mr. Townley; Scotch Plains by Mr. Lewis; Monroe Avenue M. E. church by Mr. Beekman; Dunellen by Mr. Apgar, and Grace M. E. church by E. E. Winckler.

They extended the greetings of their fellow-members and gave some happy thought of the work before them. Then followed a piano solo by Miss Florence L. Spaulding, of Bound Brook, a recitation by Miss Mary A. Luckey, a soprano solo by Miss Etta Raybert, and another recitation by Miss Luckey.

A MUSICAL RECITAL.

Programme to be Arranged and Presented by Mrs Frank J. Smith.

Mrs. Smith announces a recital to be given at the Casino April 4th. She will have the assistance of Miss Martha Miner, soprano, and G. Morgan Strickliett, tenor both from New York. A recent St. Albans paper speaks of her in the following terms:

Everybody had looked forward with pleasure to hearing Mrs. Smith, and no one was disappointed. She is perfectly at ease on the stage and her gestures are graceful. Her voice is magnificent and readings were given with the feeling expression which is the mark of an artist. It would be hard to say which of her readings found the most favor with the audience, for she showed a wide range in her selections. Possibly she was at her best in the selection from Sir Edwin Arnold entitled "In the Garden with the Persian Poet Sa-di," yet it would be hard to improve upon her excellent rendering of the humorous monologue, "A Pair of Lunatics."

The music which Mr. Smith rendered on the piano during the readings was beautiful and formed an artistic setting for Mrs. Smith's selections. The music was composed by Mr. Smith.

A Happy Surprise.

A complete surprise was given to Horace J. Martin at his home on Jackson avenue, Friday evening, in honor of the celebration of the anniversary of his birthday. During the evening recitations were given by Mrs. Willard Ross, Helen Woolley, Miss Ross, Mrs. Lindsey Woolley and Charles Van Middlesworth sang a solo. A feature was the singing of a song composed for the occasion by Mrs. Woolley, entitled "The Martin Ball," and rendered to the tune of "A Hot Time in the Old Town." The affair was arranged by Mr. and Mrs. Woolley.

Annual Meeting of Mission Society.

The Woman's Foreign Mission Society of the First Baptist church held its twenty-sixth annual meeting Friday afternoon and heard reports from the officers, the substance of which have already been presented and published in The Press. All the departments showed progress and the society is in a better condition than ever. During the afternoon a stirring address on missions was heard from Mrs. Heinrich, a missionary doing work in India.

Trolley Party to Brunswick.

A party of twelve Plainfielders enjoyed a trolley ride to New Brunswick and back Thursday evening and made a visit to Mrs. Miller, of the latter place. The party was chaperoned by Mrs. Nomer, of the borough. En route the party had a cakewalk and a musical programme was rendered. It was 11:30 o'clock when the happy crowd reached home, but they all voted that they never had a better time.

"Mr. Roosevelt, of Plainfield."

Thomas I. Honeyman visited his cottage at Lake Hopatcong Monday and found that it had been ransacked and some of his canned goods stolen. On the table where the theives had eaten was this note: "Mr. Roosevelt, of Plainfield, had a lunch."—Somerville Gazette.

BACK TAXES GROW SINCE LAST REPORT.

New Report of Martin Act Commissioners.

IT WAS FILED FRIDAY.

THE AGGREGATE AMOUNT NOW REACHES $78,000.

The First Report Was for $65,000—Some of the '98 Taxes and Sewer Assessments are Now Included—Names of Innocent Property Owners Have Many of Them, Been Dropped From List

The Martin Act commissioners of Plainfield have been at work again. Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock two bulky volumes containing the new report of the commissioners were filed in the office of the County Clerk in this city. The old report, which was set aside by Union County Circuit Court, showed some $65,000 in back taxes and assessments to be collected. The new report, which includes the taxes for 1898 and the sewer assessments, foots up to a total of about $78,000.

The Martin Act commissioners made their first report March 29th, 1898. The report was contested by some of the interested property owners and was referred back to the commissioners by the Circuit Court for reconsideration, October 19th, 1899. The commissioners resumed their hearings Dec. 19th. After all the interested ones had been heard the commissioners went to work and prepared the report that was filed yesterday afternoon. It will now await the approval of the Circuit Court, after which steps will be taken for the collection of the same.

The report is an interesting one in view of the agitation over the Martin Act and its results and the fight made against the decision of the commissioners. The increase in the grand total is caused by the addition of the taxes due for 1898 and the sewer assessments that were not paid. A glance over the pages of the two volumes of the report show that a number of the property owners, who had been entirely innocent of the fact that taxes were still due on property they had purchased, have been omitted in the new report.

The report is divided into two volumes, one for the east section, containing the First and Second wards, and the other for the west section, containing the Third and Fourth wards. There are, in all, 555 properties affected, which are divided among some 200 different property owners.

Among the first items noted in the First ward is one against the Young Men's Christian Association of $504.12 back taxes and assessments for property on East Front street. If the bill, which has just passed the Assembly at Trenton, be made a law, the Y. M. C. A. will hereafter be exempt from taxation.

The largest item is against the estate of Elias Cole, for property on East Front street and Leland avenue, and amounts to $4,709.15. Among the other large charges are those against Loomis & Rice, $1,800; Franklin Wiley, $2,345, and John K. Vanness, $1,400. Among the prominent names on the list, against whom the amount of back taxes varied, were those of J. T. Vail, Rev. J. P. Taylor, D. W. Littell, George DeMeza, Craig A. Marsh, William A. Coddington, John E. Beerbower and A. D. Thompson. There were 141 properties involved in the ward.

The most prominent name to figure in the report of the Second ward was that of Martine. The back taxes placed against it amounted in all to $14,106.33, and were divided as follows: Estate of Daniel Martine, $10,660.60; estate of Anna N. Martine, $2,163.37, and James E. Martine, $1,282.36.

Back taxes were recorded against the name of Constantine P. Ralli to the amount of $900; against the Hotel Hunterston for $622.21; against Ella J. Cokefair for $789.78; against Dr. Edward Rushmore for $705.37, and against J. J. H. Pollion for $567.56. Among the other names noted for lesser amounts were those of Mrs. Catherine H. McClure, J. T. Vail, estate of Elizabeth D. Vail, Emma A. Jones, J. R. Mills, C. H. Hand and the First National Bank. There are 130 properties affected in the ward.

The principal item of back taxes in the Third ward is against a farm, the interest in which is divided among their parties. The division of back taxes is as follows: William J. Leonard, $1,63 59; estate of Cornelia B. Leonard, O. B Leonard executor, $340.60; and Mrs. E. M. Leonard, $636.01.

The other large item is against Mrs. Anna O. Marsh for $721 42. The remainder are lots in number and are for varying amounts. The familiar names include a jointly owned property on Essex street by C. A. Marsh and W. R. Coddington and others by the Home Building and Loan Association; Mrs. Caroline M. Hunter, D. W. Littell, Mrs. C. J. Ohl, P. E. Kinsman and Elias H. Bird.

The list of properties in the Fourth ward, on which there are back taxes, is the largest of all. They number 179. Most of them are comparatively small, no one property owner being charged with more than $1,000. The largest include the estate of John O. Sutphen, Charles P. Sebring, the estate of Jeremiah VanWinkle, James F. Smith, and Chapot & Sons. William Craig and James Craig, who reside in the neighborhood of the sewer beds, are reported as owing back taxes to the amount of about $600 and $700 respectively.

Among the other prominent names in the Fourth Ward list are Mrs J O. Campbell, Jacob Voebl, J. E. Martine, the estate of James Brand, Patrick Casey, William J. Rooney and B. A. Hegeman, a joint property on Washington avenue, Tunis J. Carey, F. C. Lounsbury, Vincent W. Nash, Mt. Olive Baptist church, for assessment, William A. Coddington, Plainfield Real Estate Company, J. B. Coward, A. M. Griffin, M. F. Marcley, John D. Runyon, J. O. Stevens, the estate of E. W. Runyon, Mrs. E. W. Runyon and Mrs. Hulda M. Vail.

The Martin Act Commissioners, who prepared the report were J. A. Hubbard, of this city, and Frank Berger and City Comptroller Carleton, of Elizabeth. The clerk of the Board was Frank J. Hubbard, of this city. It was Mr. Hubbard who filed the report yesterday afternoon.

After the report has been on file in the County Clerk's office for the proper time, the Circuit Court will call a public hearing and listen to such objections as may be made against the rulings. Then the Court will consider them and decide whether or not to accept the new report.

WHAT A BEE SOCIABLE IS

NOVEL ENTERTAINMENT AT THE CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

Given Under the Auspices of the Young Men to the Young Women—Hunting for Slips of Paper in Flower Pots.

The young folks of the Congregational church are noted for giving odd sociables, but the one held Friday night excelled any that has been held there for some time. It was a "bee sociable," and was given by the young men to the ladies.

The first part of the evening was spent in a social way, with piano solos by Miss Sadie Mae Howell and vocal music by M. C. VanArsdale. Then the doors to the Sunday-school room were thrown open, and everyone was invited to walk into the room, and take part in the game, the "swarming of the bees."

Flower pots, labeled rose, geranium, lily, etc., were set about in different parts of the room. Each one was handed a slip of paper directing him or her to such and such a flower pot. There the seeker found a slip of paper corresponding to the slip he held in his hand, which directed him to another flower pot, and so on until he had completed the chain, when he found that he had a complete story by putting together the different pieces of paper. These were taken to the hive keeper, George Fuller, who took the city, and for a small sum of money gave in return a typewritten copy of the story brought to him.

The game was intricate and required the exercise of patience to reach the end. Mr. Fuller is responsible for introducing it and deserves great credit. He and Stacy and Walter Reynolds were in charge of the sociable, and took Mr. VanArsdale into their confidence. They kept everything pertaining to the sociable a secret, and there was an air of mystery about it. Sponge cakes and chocolate were served at the close.

THE POETRY OF MOTION.

Promenade and Cakewalk at the Crescent Rink Thursday Night.

The Martin brothers tried their hand at entertainment again last Thursday. They held a promenade and cakewalk at the Crescent Rink, which was attended by some 200 people. The white folks went to see the cakewalk and the colored people wanted to dance. So the two were alternated.

The Martin brothers quartette gave several camp-meeting melodies. Then followed a cakewalk for the little people, in which the Hendricks Harlin and Harold Wales did some well executed stunts and took first prize. Only one other couple competed.

In the big cakewalk that followed at midnight there were three competing couples. Andrew Oby added another victory to his list, Miss Nora McCabe sharing it with him this time.

Entertained at Cards.

Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Taylor, of Fairview avenue, entertained the card club of which they are members, at their home Thursday evening. This was the last meeting of the club for the season and an informal dance followed the play. The first and second prizes for the women were won by Miss Elizabeth Smalley and Miss Lillian A. Force, while George Fuller and Harry Maxson were the successful contestants for the men's prizes. In addition to the regular membership there were present a number of out-of-town guests.

PRIVATE ENTERPRISE TO DRAIN CELLARS.

Borough Citizens Want to Live on Dry Land.

TO BUILD SURFACE DRAINS.

MISGIVINGS ABOUT THE NEW WATCHUNG SCHOOL BUILDING.

Neighborhood in the Vicinity of Somerset and Regent Streets and Mountain Avenue Affected by the Damp Ground Caused by Gathering Surface Water—Cost to Remedy Would be $700.

Friday evening at the home of A. I. Smalley, of Somerset street, about a dozen property owners living in that vicinity met for the purpose of discussing ways and means for constructing a drain or sewer to carry off the surplus water that fills the cellars in the neighborhood of Regent street, Somerset street and Mountain avenue. For sometime past residents have had considerable trouble with the water which is near to the surface of the ground. When land was purchased on Mountain avenue for a public school there were many who had misgivings about the advisability of building in that locality on account of the water. In order to overcome this difficulty the contractors laid the foundation only eighteen inches underground, claiming that this would overcome the difficulty. It is now a question as to whether the trouble will be averted. Many claim that the cellar of the new school will always be more or less damp.

The discussion Friday evening at the meeting led to a decision which will probably provide for a drain to carry off a great portion of this water. The idea is to run this drain through Regent street, Somerset street and Mountain avenue, and have the water run into a small creek that crosses A. L. Smalley's property. This, it is thought, will make dry cellars and avert further trouble.

Mr. Smalley was authorized to secure a profile of the course of the drain, together with the proper grades, and the probable cost of the work. This is to be submitted at a meeting to be held at an early date when a final decision will be reached.

It is estimated roughly that the cost will be about $700 and the expense is to be borne entirely by the property owners or those directly affected. Of course these persons will not be called on to pay the expense of draining water from the new school grounds if this be found to be necessary. This expense will have to be borne by the taxpayers in general.

POLICE BOARD INVESTIGATION.

Looked Into Circumstances of Recent Raid of Alleged Poker Game.

The facts concerning the recent raid of an alleged gambling house and the subsequent dismissal of the prisoners were revived by the members of the city Police Board, at a meeting held Thursday. The officers of the force and the patrolmen who took part in the raid were present as was also the City Judge. The Judge explained his reasons for dismissing the prisoners and the policeman told of the circumstances of the raid.

The Board decided that, while there seemed no doubt but that the officers were inspired by the right motive, they acted without a full knowledge of the local ordinances on the subject and on the impulse.

No action was taken in any of the cases. The Board also considered troubles said to have arisen owing to jealousy in the force.

Red Men Had a Pow-wow.

Miantonomo Tribe of Red Men held an interesting meeting Friday and listened to an elaborate programme of music, speeches and recitations. Brethren Holstein, Stiglitz, McGinnis, Allen, Dreier and Mattis entertained the members with songs while Brethren Westphal, Woolston, Johnson, Leahy, Green and Newcorn made short addresses. Piano solos were rendered by Bretzen Naylor and Dreier, and Mr. Lodge gave a recitation. The fair committee reported that arrangements for the fair had been completed.

Dance at the Park Club.

A formal club dance will be held at Park clubhouse Friday evening, April 7th. The patronesses will be Mrs. B. A. Hegeman, Jr., Mrs. William J. Rooms, Mrs. Samuel Townsend, Mrs. William L. Saunders, Mrs. James T. Scott and Mrs. S. St. John McCutchen.

Queen Esther Band Raised $115.

The Queen Esther Band of Grace M. E. church has raised $115 to be used in furnishing the new parsonage. They have already purchased all the shades for the new building, and they will furnish the dining room and possibly one of the bed rooms.

Union Good Friday Services.

The Union Good Friday services of all the local evangelical churches will be held in the Cresent Avenue Presbyterian church next Friday evening.

WEDDED FIFTY YEARS.

GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY OF MR. AND MRS. ABNER CORIELL.

Celebrated at Their Home in New Market Friday Afternoon — The Event the Occasion of Congratulations.

Mr. and Mrs. Abner Smalley Coriell celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage Friday afternoon and evening, and gathered a host of their relatives and friends about them for the occasion. Mr. Coriell is one of the oldest and most substantial residents of this section.

They are a hale and hearty old couple and enjoyed the gathering with as much zest as the younger members of the Coriell family. Mr. and Mrs. Coriell first stood together in the parlor of the homestead and received their guests. Then followed an informal time. In the evening the young people were predominent.

Invitations were sent all through the country, many of them to friends and relatives who live at a distance. There were many letters of congratulations received from those who could not be present. The house was thronged with guests from New York, Philadelphia, Bound Brook, Plainfield, Skelton, New Brunswick and Dunellen. There are nine children and twenty-three grandchildren, most all of whom were present.

Mr. Coriell was born at Harris Lane, Middlesex county, in 1821. He was wedded to Miss Margaret Gilbe, his first wife, in 1841. She died December 23, 1846. In 1849 he married Miss Catherine Anne Blue, the present Mrs. Coriell. The first ceremony was performed by Rev. B. K. Rogers, of Bound Brook. Rev. W. B. Gillette, of New Market, performed the second.

The aged couple were remembered in a substantial way by many, and have quite an array of presents to remind them of the day.

OBSEQUIES WERE SIMPLE.

Funeral of the Late Mrs. Cutter Were Held Friday Afternoon.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Caroline P. Cutter, who died Tuesday afternoon, was held Friday afternoon from her late home, 409 West Front street, at 2:30 o'clock. Having such a large circle of friends, and being known as a religious worker, the house was filled to overflowing.

The services were in charge of her pastor, Rev. Cornelius Schenck, Ph.D., of the Trinity Reformed church, with which body she was identified. They were very simple, in accordance with a wish expressed by Mrs. Cutter prior to her death. Rev. Mr. Schenck read the Scripture, offered prayer, and made a few remarks in which he paid glowing tribute to the dead woman.

The floral offerings were abundant, and consisted of set pieces, bunches and cut flowers. There was a wreath of roses from Mr. and Mrs. Oliver, of Rahway; a lyre of roses from Mrs. Darby; bunches of calla lillies from Mrs. John Abbott and Mrs. John Lewis; American beauty roses from Mrs. Brown, of Newark, and also flowers from the members of her Sunday-school class.

Interment was at Rahway beside her husband and mother. The pallbearers were four cousins of the deceased, James H. Ayers, Charles Woodruff, Henry Woodruff and Elmer Oliver, all of Rahway.

THE WOMAN'S EXCHANGE.

Success of the Work Demonstrated Beyond a Doubt.

At the second annual meeting of the Plainfield Exchange for Woman's Work, the following account of the year's work was rendered. Receipts $5,684.04; disbursements, $5,650.79; balance $33.25. The superintendent's report showed receipts from sales: Fancy work and infant's department, $1,383 27; household department, $3,439 83; making a total in all departments of $4,823.109. Commission on consignors reported instead of necessities. Therefore the executive committee makes this explanation, as they wish this matter so be fully understood by the public. The annual fee for subscribers is $5 with privilege of naming one consigner; $3 without such privilege. Consignors ticket $2 and the Exchange receives 10 per cent on price of articles sold. Mrs. O. T. Waring was re-elected president.

Mule Kicked; Sent to the Hospital

George McEntud, of 739 West Fourth street, whose occupation is that of driving mules, received a lacerated wound on the scalp Friday afternoon while in the performance of his duty. One of the mules he was driving became balky and vented his spite by kicking the driver. McEntud went to the hospital and had the wound dressed after which he went home. The injury is not serious.

Work for the City.

Street Commissioner Gavett has received bids for furnishing crushed stone from A. I. & N. B. Smalley at $1 per ton and J. H. Wilson at $1.05 a ton. A. Kane submitted a proposal for furnishing crosswalk stone at 40½ cents per running foot, also for culvert materials. Michael Powers submitted a higher bid for the same work.

EDITOR RUNYON SIZED UP IN A ROUGH WAY

Editor Rollinson, of Rahway, Indulges in Tart Comments.

FRESH POLITICAL NEWS.

WAS RUNYON A CANDIDATE FOR POSTMASTER OF PLAINFIELD?

The Advocate Declares That He Was and That He is "Sore" and Disgruntled Because Congressman Fowler Did Not Award This Plum to Him—"Vainglorious as a Peacock."

For the past few years Editor and Postmaster Rollinson, of Rahway, who is one of the influential G. O. P. politicians of Union county, has been the object of many alleged brilliant editorial jibes from the esteemed Editor Runyon, of The News. A few days ago the latter indulged in one of his characteristic comments on the Rahway newspaperman, doubtless little thinking of the hornets nest that he was to stir up. But yesterday's Advocate ripped Editor Runyon up the back in great shape and told some things that will be surprising news to most Plainfielders. The Advocate's size-up of Editor Runyon follows:

Editor Runyon, of the Plainfield Courier-News is one of these common nuisances—a man with a grievance. Like the ostrich, he fools himself with the delusion that he has safely protected his grievance from public view and hypocritically poses before the fraternity as one of those rare creatures, a truly independent editor. The "grievance" that is gnawing at his vitals like a canker worm, however, runs away with his discretion at periodical times, and the editor holding an office becomes the especial victim of his spleen. On Saturday, using our reference to Governor Voorhees' refusal to favor a bill for the publication of the laws and statement that it was only consistent with his record, for a pretense, he malignantly assails us for holding an office, repeats the stale falsehood as to total income therefrom—just about doubling same—and concludes with an insulting falsehood. In common with several other editors who have been a mark for Runyon's poisonous shafts, we are tired of passing over his gratuitous slurs from a charitable feeling for his weakness. It is not pleasant to expose a fellow editor, especially one of your own political faith, but, when a man is continually going out of his way to criticise and condemn others who in no way give him any cause or excuse therefor, why patient forbearance is no virtue. While Runyon criticises editors holding office, or securing "pap" as he states it, there is no more rapacious "pap" seeker in the State than he.

In local matters, we are informed on the best authority, he has gone to the verge of political blackmail in the prosecution of his search for "spoils;" his methods have been on a level with the Tammany striker, in his dealings with local officials. While claiming to publish a straight party paper—when spoils are in sight—he nevertheless has abused the position of editor to gratify personal spite through the editorial columns and caused more disturbance in the Republican party in Plainfield than all other causes put together. While holding up other editors to scorn and ridicule for accepting office, he at the same time was one of the most persistant seekers after the Plainfield postmastership—on the quiet—and when he found himself outside the breastworks by the appointment of Mr. Bird, he was so disgruntled and sore at his failure to get an office, that he has ever made a favorable editorial reference to Mr. Fowler since. In the campaign last fall with all the important issues involved in the election of a Congress, this straight (?) party paper had no opinion on the question of the election of a Congressman from this district whatever. So far as the Republican cause was concerned in this respect, it had no supporter or advocate, because forsooth Runyon, the editor, didn't get the postoffice. That's the kind of a Republican he is; that's the kind of a party paper it is; that's the kind of a paper the Courier-News is.

Did this man ever accept an office? Perish the thought! Yet as a matter of fact, he was elected a year ago by the Republicans as City Clerk of Plainfield. When his term expired he was refused a re-election by his own party Republicans, and he is incensed of the duties of the office and another Republican was selected for the position. It is thus shown that this man Runyon is not only as officeseeker but a retired office-holder with a record—a portion of which we have reluctantly made public. "Fools rush in where angels fear to tread."

With this we dismiss the sore head Plainfield editor from all further consideration. He is a "hollow mockery and sham," and is quite as a peacock and just about as useful.

Lieut. Rand Off to Duty

Lieutenant Lewis H. Rand, the young Plainfielder, who graduated fourth in his class from the United States Military Academy at West Point, has been assigned to duty in the Engineering Corps at Montgomery, Ala. He has gone to his post of duty after a short leave of absence.

WOWAN BIT THE HAND OF HER NEIGHBOR.

The Trouble Caused by Drinking Beer in Ross' Apartments.

SENT TO JAIL FOR 40 DAYS.

MRS. KATHERINE CAHILL DEFIED MAJESTY OF A COP.

Cahill Was Enjoying a Quaff of the Amber Fluid When His Better Half Appeared on the Scene—Ordered to Depart, but Failed to Go—Fight Ensued and Handcuffs in Police Court Friday Morning.

Mrs. Katherine Cahill objected strongly to her husband drinking beer with the man down stairs. Patrick Cahill was not pleased with his wife's interruption. The man downstairs resented her refusal to depart without delay and applied a little force. Mrs. Cahill left the imprint of her teeth upon his hand. Then the man downstairs, whose real name is William Ross, had to go to Edward S. F. Randolph's pharmacy and have the wound cauterized. This was, in substance, the story that was rehearsed before City Judge William N. Runyon Friday morning.

Patrick Cahill and Wm. Ross, with their respective families, occupy a house on South Second street. Cahill has the upper floor and Ross resides downstairs. Thursday the Cahill children made so much noise that Ross felt obliged to draw the attention of Cahill to the fact. Cahill returned from the Food Tool Works, where he is a faithful employe, shortly after 9 o'clock, and was requested to step into Ross' rooms. He did so and a pint of beer was forthcoming.

While the neighbors talked it over Mrs. Cahill appeared and ordered her husband home. He told her that it was time for her to be at home. Then words passed between Mrs. Cahill and Ross. Refusing to depart when he told her to go, Ross felt constrained to put her out. She bit him. She says he threw her off the porch.

Mrs. Cahill summoned Patrolman Totten and asked him to arrest Ross and her husband, claiming that they were drunk and beating her. Totten investigated and decided that Mrs. Cahill was the cause of the trouble. She became abusive and defied the majesty of the law. Totten locked her up.

Friday, Judge Runyon heard the story and took the policeman's view of the case. Mrs. Cahill's excuse for her behavior was that she didn't want her husband spending his money in beer for Ross to drink. The Judge sentenced her to pay a fine of $10 or go to jail for 40 days. It will be the imprisonment.

HEROIC ACT SAVED THE LIFE OF A LITTLE BOY.

FELL FROM SECOND STORY WINDOW

Driver Townley Caught Him in His Arms—The Boy Not Injured in the Least.

William H. Townley, driver of Alert Hose Company's wagon, performed a heroic act Friday morning at 10 o'clock that was out of his ordinary routine of duty, and thereby probably save the life of three-year-old James Hansen, Jr.

The child's parents live in a flat in the building, adjoining the West Second street engine house. Mrs. Hansen left her boy in one of the rooms on the side of the building for a moment while she stepped into the kitchen. The window was open and it is evident that the child climbed to the window sill, where he lost his balance and fell out. At any rate Driver Townley was nearly under the window when he heard a child's piercing scream. He looked up and saw the child toppling out of the window, which is thirty feet from the ground. He rushed under the spot where the child was to fall. As the boy, who weighs about 35 pounds, dropped, Townley held out his arms and dexterously caught the little fellow without so much as giving the child a serious shock.

A moment after the mother appeared in the room and was startled to find the boy gone. She looked out of the window and was quietly told of the circumstances by Townley.

The parents thought it best to call Dr. Rodgers, but the latter, after seeing the child, said that he was not injured in the least.

Arranging for the Fair.

The committee, having the Red Men's fair in charge met Saturday night in William Newcorn's office. The committee of arrangements reported that they have secured the New York and Philadelphia Candy Company to send representatives to the fair, and go through the methods of making candy from first to last, illustrating the methods employed.

Fake Injuries.

Roundsman Flynn found John Cahill, aged 35 years, of 452 West Second street, in the street last Saturday evening. The man claimed to be injured, and the ambulance was summoned to convey him to the hospital. Examination proved no injuries and the man was discharged.

DEATH ENDS SUFFERING

MRS. M. F. MARCLEY RELIEVED OF HER EARTHLY AFFLICTIONS.

Sustained a Fracture of the Hip and Then Became Blind—Native of This City—She Was a Faithful Baptist and a Christian.

Mrs. M. F. Marcley, one of Plainfield's oldest and best known residents, died Thursday afternoon at her home on New street, after a very long and serious illness. Sometime ago she sustained a fracture of the hip after which she lost her eyesight. These afflictions made her an invalid and her relatives have given to her every attention possible. Mrs. Marcley was advanced in age and has been unable to go out for sometime past.

She was a native of this city, where she has lived the largest part of her life. She was the daughter of the late Stephen Vail, who was a prominent citizen in Plainfield for many years. Mrs. Marcley was a faithful member of the First Baptist church and a regular attendant. Almost the last place she attended was the services at this church. She is survived by a husband and son, Dr. Marcley, of Buffalo.

NEEDED A MEGAPHONE

JUDGE HAD HARD WORK MAKING DEAF PRISONER HEAR.

Theodore Martino Borrowed Coal From Coal Yard at Midnight and Was Locked up Till He Explained to the City Cadi.

If there are many like Theodore Martino to be arraigned before City Judge William N. Runyon, the city would do well to purchase a megaphone for the use of the local magistrate. Martino is a little lad, but is deaf as a post. The introductory remarks flew by him unheeded. Then the Judge raised his voice but the youth was oblivious to it all. At last the Judge had to call the lad inside the rail and up to his desk where he shouted in the boy's ear. Then Martino heard and understood.

While Patrolman Vanderweg was patrolling his beat on Park avenue, Sunday at midnight, he heard some one shovelling coal in Boice, Runyon & Company's coal yard. He investigated and found Martino there with a coal scuttle and a scoop. He locked him up.

Monday a. m. the circumstances of of Martino's visit were satisfactorily explained. He was spending the night in Claassen's barber shop, where he is employed. It grew cold and he borrowed enough coal to last through the night. He did it once before, paying for it in the morning when the men came.

The Judge delivered a lecture and shouted to the lad that he mustn't do it again. The lad smiled, nodded, and departed with the remark:

"All right. Good bye."

"Good bye," said the Judge and the Court smiled.

LODGE BRETHREN ATTENDED.

Funeral Services Over the Remains of the Late Elmer E Johnson.

The funeral of Elmer E. Johnson was held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock from his late residence, 110 Netherwood avenue. Rev. S P Simpson, of St. Stephen's church officiated. The services were attended by delegations from Paughcaughnaughsinque Tribe, 193, I O. R. M., Miantonomo Tribe, 118, I. O. R. M., Goodwill Lodge, 101, K of P., of Scotch Plains, and Perseverance Lodge, 74, K. of P.

The deceased belonged to Paughcaughnaughsinque Tribe and Goodwill Lodge and the bearers were from members from those two, O. H. Voorhees and F. G. Bach from Paughcaughnaughsinque, and Messrs. Leason and Albert from Goodwill. Interment was in Hillside.

The services were simple. The members of the lodges accompanied the remains part of the way to the cemetery, then left them. At the grave the burial service of the K. of P. was conducted by a member of Goodwill Lodge.

Residential Changes.

Among the changes in residence effected through the agency of E. O. Mulford & Son, of North avenue, are the following: J. W. Kenworthy from Westervelt avenue to 21 Willow avenue; W. W. Ulmer from East Third street to 422 East Second street; F. W. Howland to Webster place near Putnam avenue: E. A. *Edger, of Bay*onne, to F. E. Kinsman's house 69 Sandford avenue; Mrs. Isabelle de Maziere, from Webster place to Mrs. Vernon's house on Washington avenue; Miss Elizabe Gill from East Fifth street to Fifth street and Watchung avenue; Miss Susan B. Peck to 132 Crescent avenue; W. V. Sutton from East Front street to Mrs. Stepp's house on East Third street; J. P. Lairs from Park avenue to 119 Richmond street; John Layton to 437 East Fifth street; A. H. Derby, of Mt. Carmel, Pa., to 431 East Fifth street.

Miss Thursa VanNest, of Martinsville, who has been visiting her aunt, Mrs. Martha Colthar, of Duer street, has gone for a few days' visit with Mr. and Mrs. William Palmer, of Brooklyn.

OFFICIAL RESULTS OF BOWLING LEAGUE.

Interesting Facts Regarding the Finish.

THE INDIVIDUAL WINNERS.

SECRETARY F. O. BALL GIVES FINAL TABLES OF CONTESTS.

F. O. Ball Stands Fourth in the Contest for highest Individual Averages and for Average Number of Spares—Dr. Thiers Stands Next of Park Club Team—The Average Scores.

While the tournament of the Central Journal Bowling League was over several weeks ago, the results of the individual contests have been watched for with considerable interest. F. O Ball, secretary of the League, has now furnished This Paper with the official results of the tournament, including the individual contests for the highest average scores and the highest average number of spares.

It is interesting to note that the team that won the championship did not roll the highest average score. The Parks were well down in the list and yet managed to stand second. It is a fact that has already been noted that the Parks and Roselles won off ener with moderate scores than by any remarkable exhibition of bowling. The following table shows the averages of the teams:

	Games Won.	Games Lost.	Team Average.	High Score.
Roselle.....	28	11	794.98	904
Park.....	22	16	776.66	906
Kline both....	20	16	767.3	911
P. B. B. C....	19	17	767.03	905
Westfield....	18	18	766.05	915
Scotch C....	16	20	760.86	914
Cranford....	6	30	740.55	905

When it came to star individual work, the Parks did not do anything sensational. As was eminently proper F. O. Ball, the captain of the Park Club team, set an excellent example of steady bowling to his team. He stood fourth in rank for the highest average score. Following is a table of the leaders with the clubs and average scores:

INDIVIDUAL SCORES.

Pope, Elizabeth....	172.84
Bodine, N. B. B. C....	171.51
Warner, Roselle....	168.70
Bodine, N. J. A. C....	164.91
[illegible], Elizabeth....	163.91
Kaye, Elizabeth....	163.83
Bentley, R. I. Westfield....	163.44
Davies, N. B. B. C....	162.49
Patterson, N. B. B. C....	162.41
Sharp, Cranford....	162.4
Ball, F. O., Westfield....	161.91
Dr. Thiers, Park....	161.16
Goodwin, A. A....	160.85
Smith, Westfield....	160.39
Smith, Scotch....	160.3
Hall, Westfield....	159.72
Pugh, R. J. A. C....	159.59
Smith, N. B. B. C....	159.5
Griffith, A. C., N. B. B. C....	159.51
Wenzelberg, N. B. B. C....	159.5
Griffith, I. A., N. B. B. C....	158.69
Vanderweg, Elizabeth....	153.9
Bate, Cranford....	153.9
Denman, Cranford....	153.8

Besides the prize given for the highest average score another was given for the highest average number of spares made per game. In this contest Ball stood fourth with Dr. Thiers seventh, the next Park bowler in line. The standing of the men was as follows:

SPARE AVERAGES.

Kaye, Elizabeth....	1.727
Bodine, N. B. B. C....	1.000
Ball, Park....	1.000
Tomlee, R. I. Westfield....	1.72
Smith, Roselle....	1.666
Pitcher, N. J. A. C....	1.666
Cobbold, Park....	1.666
Cooper, N. J. A. C....	1.666
Lane, Elizabeth....	1.545
Cobbold, Park....	1.500
Bates, Cranford....	1.488
Davies, N. B. B. C....	1.454
Warner, Roselle....	1.444
Patterson, N. B. B. C....	1.428
Vanderveer, Elizabeth....	1.368
Griffith, A. C., N. B. B. C....	1.363
Tomlee, W. M. Westfield....	1.346
Hall [illegible], Roselle....	1.454
Griffith B. I., N. B. B. C....	1.222
Denman, Cranford....	1.200
Smith, Westfield....	1.181
Pope, Elizabeth....	1.151
Wood ford, N. B. B. C....	1.000

Dropped Broken Glass in the Street.

Scott Terry, the well-known milkman and trap shooter, dropped a broken milk bottle from his wagon on North avenue Monday and left it there. Patrolman McCue ordered him to appear before the City Judge at 9 o'clock. When Terry appeared he explained that he had had no intention of throwing broken glass in the city streets, but had not noticed the departure of the troublesome bottle. Judge asked him to be more careful the next time and the incident was ended.

To Run Usual Excursion.

At the Sunday-school session at Grace M. E. church Sunday afternoon it was decided to conduct the usual summer excursion. The date set is July 16th. It will be run in connection with one of the other church excursions and the destination will be Asbury Park.

More Changes in Residences.

The following persons have been moved by George Conover, the furniture expressman: H. A. Alkinhead from 929 Watchung avenue to New Rochelle; Mrs. L. F. Bishop from New York to Plainfield, and W. H. Miles from New York to this city.

Another Paper in Plainfield.

Silas D. Drake has finally decided to locate his Real Estate News in Plainfield, and he will begin the publication of the paper in this city the first of April.

Too Much Hair.

Marshal Campbell, of the borough, is now wearing the hat formerly worn by ex-Chief Wilson, but before doing so he was obliged to have his hair trimmed.

A $12 CALF ENTAILS $500 LEGAL COSTS.

Trouble Started Over an Apparently Frivilous Matter.

FOUR LAWYERS ENGAGED

CASE DECIDED IN FAVOR OF PLAINTIFF IN DISTRICT COURT.

James McCarthy and Edward Coughlan Were the Litigants—Calf Was Put in Pasture Lot by the Former, But Coughlan Claimed it as His at the End of Last Summer—Replevins and Replevins.

An innocent looking black calf which is claimed by two neighbors, James McCarthy and Edward Coughlan, has been causing no end of trouble between them, and has plunged the men into law suits that already have cost both litigants nearly $500. The last chapter in the case was presented Thursday when a jury of six of Elizabeth's business men, sitting in Judge Atwater's court, gave a verdict in favor of the plaintiff.

The calf is now worth $25. At the time the trouble started, six months ago, it would have brought $12 in the market. Councilman Walter L. Hetfield represented the successful litigant, while the defendant had an imposing array of three lawyers, City Judge W. N. Runyon, Counsellor W. S. Augleman and Attorney G. W. V. Moy.

Last spring McCarthy hired pasture of Charles Hyde for two heifers. When November came and McCarthy went to take out his two heifers, Coughlan, who claims to have put one calf in the pasture in May, but who never hired pasture, so witnesses said, had taken one of them out. McCarthy found the calf in Coughlan's barn and demanded it as his. Douglan was equally as positive that it was his, so McCarthy brought an action before Justice Mosher for the value of the calf.

Acting on his lawyer's advice Mc Carthy discontinued that case, as he wanted the animal, not the money, and then began replevin proceedings in the District Court at Elizabeth. They replevined the calf and kept it twenty-four hours when Coughlan replevined the animal, and has it today.

When the case came to trial the court decided that McCarthy owned the calf. W. S. Augleman, Coughlan's counsel, made an application for a new trial upon expert testimony as to the calf's age, and the application was granted. That came up Thursday. Twenty witnesses were sworn and the trial lasted all day. At night the jury brought in a verdict for the plaintiff for the value of the calf, $25, and $25 damages.

Expert testimony was given in the case, and the exhibits consisted of six wax impressions taken of cows' mouths, to show the jury how the animal's age can be told by looking at the teeth. Dr. Pocock and Mr. Hetfield took an impression of the calf's mouth, which showed the calf's under jaw with the eight "milk teeth" as they are called. From Adam Fritt's collection, five more plates were shown, taken of cows six, ten and eighten years old. These were shown to convince the jury that the calf in question was two years old, as Mc Carthy claimed, instead of eighteen months as the other said.

MASQUERADED IN CALICO

UP-TO-DATE FIGURES TOGGED OUT IN GAYEST OF COLORS.

Committee in Charge Were Dressed as Red Cross Nurses—Over 600 Guests Were There—To Help Battling Fund.

A corps of Red Cross nurses, Uncle Sam and a man in a dress suit marshalled a motley throng of calico-arrayed maskers in Saengerbund Hall last Thursday. It was the occasion of the calico masquerade ball of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Gesang and Turn Verein. According to the request most of the guests were attired in calico. The Red Cross nurses were the committee in charge to head the grand march. They were Mrs. Herman Klinsman, chairman; Mrs. Chas. P. Meyer, Mrs. Charles Filber, Mrs. Andrew Schlaick, Mrs. George Haur and Mrs. Henry Klentofeld, Mrs. Rudolph Spiegel and Mrs. M. Mensen back. L. Fahn was "Uncle Sam" and headed the grand march. The man in the dress suit was Chas F Meyer, the floor manager.

A quintette disguised as dusky belles played a prominent part in the march. They were Rudolph Spelgel, George Weida, Otto Kellar, Mrs. F. Melcher and Miss Melcher.

There were over 600 present. Supper was served at midnight. The rest of the evening was spent in dancing. The affair was for the benefit of the building fund.

Had a Cakewalk.

Miss Aimee Emmons, of Prospect place, entertained eighteen of her friends Thursday evening in honor of her sixteenth birthday. It was a salamagundi party. A cakewalk was introduced later in the evening and furnished much merriment.

YOUNG CHRISTIANS REVIEW PAST YEAR.

Annual Meeting of the Christian Endeavor Local Union.

MANY GOOD THINGS DONE.

MISS FLORENCE G. HAWKINS IS CHOSEN PRESIDENT AGAIN.

There Are Now Sixteen Societies in the Union Representing a Total Membership of 764—Brief Reports From the Various Superintendents—After Business a Sociable Was Held.

Three hundred Christian Endeavorers gathered in the First Presbyterian church Thursday night to attend the annual meeting of the Christian Endeavor Local Union. Almost every society in the Union responded at the roll-call, which goes to prove that interest in Endeavor affairs is just as deep as ever.

The president, Miss Florence G Hawkins, presided, and on the pulpit platform with her sat the secretary, Miss Ernestine C. Smith, and Rev. C. L. Goodrich. The meeting opened with a service of song led by Rev. C. E. Herring. Miss Jessie Utter, the organist, was accompanied on the violin by Arthur Mosher.

After the devotional exercises, led by Rev. Mr. Goodrich and Rev. Mr. Herring, the business session was opened. An amendment to the constitution, proposed at a previous meeting, came up to be voted upon last night, and was adopted unanimously. The amendment was to the effect that $50 for former presidents of the Union and junior superintendents become members of the executive committee of the Union."

The secretary's report, written and presented by Miss Smith, was a straightforward statement of the year's history of the union, and was one of the best reports of this kind ever read. The secretary took a general review of the past twelve months, told what the Endeavorers had done and gave them a few words of advice as to what they should aim to do in the future. There are now seventeen societies in the union, representing eighty-six committees, with a total of 764 members. Seven societies reported decided progress in their work during the year. The report of the condition of the treasury showed that the receipts had been $60.11 and the expenditures $56 36, leaving a small balance of $3.75 to begin the new year with.

Mrs. K. L. Benson, as chairman of the nominating committee, presented her report in which she proposed the following to fill the offices: President, Miss Florence G. Hawkins, of the Park Avenue Baptist Society; first vice-president, Robert F. Bogardus, of the Presbyterian Society, Dunellen; second vice-president, A. V. Searing Jr., of the First Presbyterian Society; secretary and treasurer, Miss Ernestine C. Smith, of the Seventh Day Baptist Society. R. E. Anthony took charge of this part of the programme and put the question. The report was received, and the officers nominated elected, the secretary casting the ballot. Miss Hawkins, who was re-elected president, thanked the Endeavorers for electing her again to the office, and told how much she loved the Christian Endeavor work.

Brief reports from I. W. Travell, superintendent of the social depart ment; from Mrs. W. S. Lowry, superintendent of the junior work; and from Mrs. D. M. Runyon, superintendent of the missionary department, finished the business. All were then invited to adjourn to the chapel where a sociable was held. Miss Sarah Curry, matron of the Westfield Fresh Air Camp, Rev. Mr. Fox, pastor of the Mission church in New York, where many of the poor people who are brought out here come from, and Mr. Torrey, a New York banker, who is interested in the work, were present, and the Endeavors were enabled to meet them.

The sociable was a success. It was under the auspices of the social department of the union, of which Mr. Travell is chairman. Miss Annie Wyckoff had charge of the sociable last night, and was assisted by two members from each society. Mr. Travell was chairman of the temporary reception committee, and was assisted by three members from each society. These committees were distinguished by white badges which they wore.

Judge William N. Runyon and Charles E. Lewis sang a duet together during the religious service, and also rendered solos at the sociable.

Couldn't Open His Safe.

J. P. D. Kirch, the lawyer, had an unpleasant experience with his safe last week. In some way the combination became deranged and he could not open it until an expert from Philadelphia came and took the combination apart.

—Wednesday evening, April 5th, the annual meeting of the Crescent Avenue church will be held.

SOCIETY WAS AWHEEL.

INDOOR CYCLING AT THE CRESCENT RINK.

The Popular Exercise Enjoyed With Accessories Not to be Seen in the Usual Routine of Life—Two Was Served.

Society awheel was indeed a pretty sight at the Crescent Rink Saturday evening. This novel idea of preparing for a riding season, while the roads are in a condition that prevents outdoor wheeling, originated with Miss VanBoskerck and Miss Mary Whiton and their many friends, who are enthusiastic cyclists, unanimously agreed that it would be just the thing and then the affair could take on a few social features that would give added pleasure. To carry out the plans successfully F. L. C. Martin, of the F. L. C. Martin Cycle Company, heartily agreed to assist the fair ones in their efforts. There were about sixty people present and the majority of them took advantage of the opportunity to spend an evening on the wheel.

To date the event still more pleasurable Nathan Guttman's band was present and discovered appropriate music which gave the riders the proper "swing" as they circled the smooth surface.

Miss VanBoskerck and Harry D. West set the pace and they planned many very pretty figures, which, to an eye witness, in the gallery, presented an attractive scene.

Mr. Martin furnished, as a happy diversion, a game of polo for the amusement of the spectators. P. J. Sheehan and E. P. Brady, of the New York and Cleveland Polo team, played two fifteen-minute halfs, and Mr. Brady won by a score of 7 to 5. The play was very exciting, and being new was thoroughly enjoyed.

During the evening dainty refreshments were served on the platform and a social chat was indulged in by all. Those who presided were Mrs. Samuel Huntington, Mrs J. M. Whiton and Mrs. J. W. Reinhart. Among those present include the Misses Reinhart, Holly, Waring, Andrews, Schoonmaker, VanBoskerck, Whiton, Rider, Mr. and Mrs. E. T. VanBuren, Mr. and Mrs. Albert H. Atterbury, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Whiton, Mr. and Mrs. George P. Mellick, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Streuli, Newton Goddard, L. H. VanBuren, John Dumont, Morris Dumont, Joseph Myers, Edward J. Patterson, Clifford McKee, George Beebe, Mr. Case, Henry Ryder, Richard Waring, O. G. Waring, Lewis Waring, F. L. C. Martin, Howard Huntington, Augustus Huntington, Edward Wilson, Dr. F. C. Ard and City Judge William N. Runyon.

THE BEST WAYS TO TEACH

SOMERSET COUNTY INSTRUCTORS DISCUSSED SCHOOL MATTERS.

Meeting Held in the North Plainfield Public School Building—Creditable Exhibition of Miss Hart's Class.

A meeting of the Somerset County Teachers' Association was held at the North Plainfield school building Saturday.

A class exercise in reading was given by Miss Hart, of the North Plainfield school, and showed the rapid progress made by children who have been taught by the Ward method. The little ones earned much praise for themselves and for their teacher.

Principal E. H. Dutcher, of East Orange, in his address on "One Way of Teaching Reading," explained the Ward method and gave conclusive proofs of the value of this method.

Miss Shattuck, of Plainfield, gave a thoughtful talk on "The Use and Abuse of Methods," in which she urged the importance of the teacher's individuality in her work.

The afternoon session opened with an interesting paper on "Written Composition," by Mr. Crum, of North Branch. This was followed by a paper on "School English" by Mr. Dutcher, who quoted some examples of the subject under consideration and gave valuable suggestions as to ways in which pupils may be taught to speak and write correctly.

Seeing Great Sights.

Word comes from the Honeyman party, which was at Rome March 14th, that all were about to leave that morning for Naples and Greece. They had enjoyed three pleasant days in Rome in good weather; had heard the special Te Deum sung in St. Peter's in honor of the Pope's probable recovery to health, which was attended by 25,000 people, and had also seen the King and Queen of Italy review the military on the occasion of the King's birthday. All were in excellent health.

Graduated in Junior Class.

Larry Doyle, of this city, who is a student at Seton Hall College, was graduated last week to the Junior class. He has one year more to com*plete his studies. As yet he has not* decided upon his profession.

C. E. Hepburn, of East Second street, who went to Prescott, Ont., to attend to the interment of the remains of his mother and to settle the estate, is expected to return home next week.

MUCH HOSPITALITY FOR MACHINISTS.

Social Hour at Y. M. C. A. Saturday Night.

ENTERTAINMENT PROVIDED.

EMPLOYES OF POTTER'S AND POND'S WERE PRESENT.

First Entertained With Music and Speeches—Photograph Followed—Free Work in Gymnasium Was Shown—The Social Hour Closed With Refreshments and Sociability—Reception Committee.

Several score of employes of the Pond Tool Works and the Potter Press Works had a glimpse of the workings of the local Young Men's Christian Association Saturday evening and were incidentally entertained in divers manners. It was termed "A Social Hour" for the men from Pond's and Potter's.

Owing to the unpropitiousness of the evening the attendance was not as large as it might otherwise have been. It was, however, a very enjoyable occasion. The men were received by a delegation of the social committee, of which A. B. Meredith was acting chairman. He was assisted by R. A. Meeker, John M. Lewis, F. C. Harder, O. W. Dunham, J. M. MacNaughton, Clarence Brouard and others.

The guests first assembled in the main hall. Here they were first entertained by Prof. Charles Wohl, of Brooklyn, on his musical glasses. Then Stephen Cahoone, president of the association, addressed a few words of welcome. He was followed by D. E. Titsworth, superintendent at the Potter Press Works, who made a a short and interesting address. He dwelt on the many opportunities open to men at the present day, and pointed out the advantages that the Y. M. C. A. gave to those who were anxious to advance themselves. Another solo on the musical glasses by Prof. Wohl closed the short entertainment.

The guests were then invited to the small hall on the second floor, where Charles Mowen gave a number of selections on his phonograph. A trip to the gymnasium followed. There Physical Director C. E. A. Heywood and some of the members of the evening class entertained with a short exhibition of free work.

The "Social Hour" closed with the serving of refreshments in the small hall. The parlor was opened to the guests who found it a cheery place with its open fireplace on which a log fire burned brightly. The guests expressed their pleasure and were invited to come again.

AT A CHRISTIAN'S BIER.

Funeral of Mrs. Marcley Held From the First Baptist Church.

The funeral services of the late Mrs. Caroline T. Marcley were held Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock from the First Baptist church, and there was a large attendance of friends and relatives. Dr. Robert Lowry and Dr. Yerkes officiated and each spoke at some length regarding the exemplary Christian life of the departed.

During the service a quartette consisting of Miss Harris, Mrs. Ward, Wm. Holmes and G. W. Smith, sang several selections, including a favorite one of the deceased, "My Days Are Gliding Swiftly By."

There were many floral tributes exhibited as silent testimony of the very high regard felt for the departed. After an opportunity was given to view the remains interment took place in Hillside Cemetery.

DEATH OF D. C. BOWNE.

Member of the N. J. Bottling Association Succumbs to Fever.

David C. Bowne died last week at his home in Princeton, after an illness of about two weeks. He suffered first from inflammatory rheumatism but typhoid fever set in and to this he succumbed. He leaves a wife and family.

Mr. Bowne formerly kept a hotel at Jamesburg. Later he had the management of the Cranbury Station House, which John Elliott now controls.

Together with the Klotz Brothers, of Newark and Plainfield. Mr. Bowne recently incorporated the New Jersey Bottling Association. This corporation operates a branch on Somerset street in this city.

Not Settled Yet.

The celebrated suit case of James McCarthy against Edward Coughlan, was tried at Elizabeth Thursday, is not permanently settled yet. Although McCarthy has been awarded damages and the value of the calf, he has not possession of the animal, and Councilman Hetfield, his counsel, will apply Monday for a restitution of the calf.

A Profitable Supper.

The supper given last week at Grace M. E. church under the auspices of the Epworth League will net about $75, which amount will be used toward the furnishing of the new parsonage. The members of the League are much gratified with the result of their efforts.

BABY IS DRAGGED TO JAIL WITH MOTHER

A Truly Pitiable Sight Witnessed in City Court.

THE JUDGE WAS UNBENDING

MRS ANNIE HOLMES SENT TO JAIL FOR FORTY DAYS.

The Prisoner Had B en Drinking Heavily and Was Thrown Out of a Wagon Monday Afternoon—Mother and Baby Were Both Cut and Bruised—Later They Were Found Wandering About.

They led Mrs. Annie Holmes from her cell in the city jail Tuesday into the presence of City Judge William N Runyon. Her little child, still a baby in arms, clung to her. Great tears coursed down her grimy cheeks and left their path marked.

"Oh Judge," she sobbed, "Don't send me down today. Think of my little baby." The mite of a child lifted her head, looked at the Judge and then buried her face on her mother's shoulders. Only two weeks ago the mother was before the Judge on the same charge, drunk and disorderly. She then promised to give up drink and to reform so the Judge was lenient. This time she knew what to expect but still she begged for mercy.

"How do you plead?" demanded the Judge.

"Guilty," almost whispered the young woman as she hung her head. "But Judge, think of the child," she cried.

"Forty days in the county jail," and the Judge was stern. "Why didn't you think of the child yourself? You knew what would happen if you came back here again."

The only answer was the sobs of the woman as they led her away and soon the wails of the infant were blended with them.

Then John Philmore, the grey haired father of the prisoner, stepped to the rail and asked the Judge to make it a fine, saying that they would try to raise it. But the Judge was firm. Annie Holmes was an old offender and needed a salutary lesson.

When Annie Holmes appeared in the court room her head and shoulder were cut and her clothing blood-stained. A horrid gash was to be seen on the child's forehead. Yesterday afternoon, mother and child left the home of Henry Staats, on Johnston avenue, where Mrs. Holmes is employed as house keeper. Mrs. Holmes had been drinking deeply and could hardly sit on the wagon seat.

When they reached Watchung avenue and East Second street, the horse shied at a trolley car and started to run away. Mother and babe were pitched from the wagon. Both were cut and bruished but none of the wounds were serious.

Just before 6 o'clock, last Monday, Patrolman McCue found Annie Holmes wandering aimlessly about Park avenue. She could not even care for herself, much less the babe. So he locked them up. As the child is too young to be parted from her mother, she will go to jail with her.

NO SOUTH JERSEY PEACH CROP.

Report of Prof. John B. Smith of the State Experiment Station.

New Brunswick, March 28.—Prof. John B. Smith, entomologist of Rutgers College and of the New Jersey State Experiment Station, reports that the south Jersey peach crop is practically destroyed.

"The fruits in all parts of the State at the present time," he says, "are in good condition, except peaches. Plums are first rate. In South Jersey the peaches, especially in young orchards, are all gone. Only in sheltered localities are any left at all. All the early varieties are completely gone. Of the varieties that flower late, there can be found some buds; and in the old orchards where there is plenty of wood, there will probably be found a fair share of blossoms.

"The frost has wiped out all the early vegetation, and will put back vegetables, like peas and the garden truck, fully two and perhaps three weeks in this State."

Church Workers Coming to This City.

E. E. Steen, of Connersville, Ind., has taken up his residence on Orchard place. He is a prominent member of the Christian church and will soon associate himself with the Disciples gathering on East Third street. Rev. J. Graff, of Hamilton, O., is also thinking of moving to this city at an early date. Mr. Graff is connected with the Christian church and has preached in many parts of the United States and Canada successfully.

Former Plainfield-ite Honored.

At the recent municipal election held at Cold Springs, N. Y., William Dyos was elected president. Dyos is a Republican, but was elected on the Independent Citizens' ticket. Dyos lived in this city ten or fifteen years ago, and was employed as head man around the greenhouses of James T. Closson.

BRAVE AS ANY MAN.

WHAT AN AMERICAN WOMAN DID UNDER THE FLAG IN PERU.

With the Stars and Stripes and Her Courage She Kept Back the Peruvian Troops Who were Seeking Persons Protected by the Consul.

Mrs. Lucinda B. Trevitt, widow of Dr. William Trevitt, died recently, at the Home for the Aged, where she had lived for the past four years.

She was a remarkable woman, being distinguished by a high intellectual and Christian character. In 1858 when Dr. Trevitt was American Consul at Callao, Peru, an incident happened which snowed her bravery in most trying circumstances.

At that time, as there had frequently been before and since, a revolution was in progress, and some Americans who had participated in the uprising sought an asylum at the American Consulate.

For three days they were concealed in the attic of the Consul's residence, when the Government authorities learned of their whereabouts, and troops were sent to take them.

The captain of the troops went to the rear door and met Dr. Trevitt, who was armed, at the head of the stairs. The doctor grappled with the captain, and in attempting to secure his sword four of his fingers were almost completely severed from his hand.

He secured his sword, or rather, cavalry sabre, and is yet in the possession of the family. The captain retired from the house after making due apology to him.

While this incident was being enacted in the rear of the house a still more extraordinary one was in progress in the front, where the troops were trying to force their way into the house.

Dr. Trevitt's secretary, Mr. Rand, of New York, and Mrs. Trevitt attempted to stop them, and one of them struck him in the mouth with the butt end of his gun, knocking in his teeth. He fell back into the arms of Mrs. Trevitt, who had secured an American flag and was trying to spread it over the steps.

While supporting the wounded secretary she managed to spread the flag over the steps, and, then she dared the soldiers to cross it. Appalled by the woman's determination and bravery, the troops retired and made no further effort to molest the prisoners, who were subsequently hurried on board an American ship and brought to America.

The United States sustained the action of Dr. Trevitt, but the Peruvian Government complained of his action. —Ohio State Journal.

HEARD HIS OWN FUNERAL SERVICE.

Passed Quietly Away After His Strange Request.

The Nebraska State Journal says that on Saturday preceding his death, Prof. George McKinnon sent for the Rev. C. M. Shepphera. As the minister entered the house he saw that Mr. McKinnon was very low, but desiring to cheer him up, he spoke in a hearty way. They talked together for some time. Finally Professor McKinnon said:

"I have sent for you to hold my funeral services."

The minister was somewhat shaken by the words, but he said:

"Why, you are not going to die, my friend."

"Yes, I am, and I prefer listening to the reading of the Word, before my death, and in the prayers, so I think they will do me more good," was the response.

He would not accept a negative answer, and the minister took the Bible, and in the presence of the relatives read a chapter and prayed. The service was frequently broken by the exclamations of contentment which were uttered by the sick man. Having suffered so long he seemed glad to give up trying to bear his pain longer. There was a smile of supreme peace on his face when the prayer of the minister ended.

It was one of the most impressive services ever conducted, and Mr. McKinnon said he was ready to die when it was over.

He lived for five days after the services, dying peacefully Wednesday morning.

Digestion Defies Hypnotism.

Several Ann Arbor medical students challenged Kennedy, the hypnotist, to a peculiar experiment. In his week's stay here he has constantly claimed to be able to control the digestive organs of his subjects while they are under his hypnotic influence.

This the medics doubted, and to this final trial they challenged him. He accepted. One of his men was taken to a restaurant and given a full meal, after which he was hypnotized, with directions not to digest the food given him.

Twenty-four hours were allowed to elapse, and that evening a doctor was called and he was awakened. The attendants attempted to empty his stomach with a stomach pump, but was unable to do so. Then the patient was given strong emetics, but nothing could be brought from his stomach, indicating clearly that the food had been duly digested. The young medics are jubilant over the apparent success of their scheme.—Detroit Tribune.

A Great Cathedral.

Canterbury Cathedral is the largest one in England. Its extreme length is 545 feet, and that of St. Paul's, London, 512 feet. Salisbury has the highest spire in England, its altitude being 404 feet.

Wallace—Do you think electricity will be much in use in the next war?

Ferg—In this war I think the Spaniards are winning most of their battles with it right now.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Naturally.

"Mamma," said the little girl at the flower show, who had absorbed during the evening a glass of lemonade, a quantity of cider and some grape juice, "I wish you would buy me a drink of water. I want something to unthirst me."

DROP A CENT IN THE SLOT.

A Gallon of Boiling Water or All the Gas You Need Follows the Act.

The ingenious individual who invented the penny-in-the-slot machine probably never had any idea that it would come as a boon and a blessing to man; and to tell the truth, it has hitherto distinctly not been regarded in the light of a boon and a blessing by man—at least, not in the United States.

But no matter. A novel penny-in-the-slot machine, after a triumphal debut in Paris, is touring through England and earning enthusiastic encomiums wherever it makes its appearance.

The invention in question is a hot water lamp slot machine, that is so practical, so infallible, that ere long the ordinary street lamps now in use will be collected by the antiquary, along with brass candlesticks and flint and tinder boxes. In their place there will be at the street corners big ornamental columns, with improved and magnified lights at the top, the heat from which, instead of being allowed to go to waste in the atmosphere, will be used to boil water. At the base will be placed a machine into the slot of which an eager public will drop a cent and get a gallon of boiling water in exchange at any hour of the day or night.

A Frenchman is credited with having originated the idea of utilizing in this way the heat generated in the street lamps of cities. However this may be, it is certain that these public boilers were first set up in Paris, where their success was instantaneous and unqualified.

The machine has now been tried in London and several other large cities in the United Kingdom, where it has come to be regarded in the light of an indispensable adjunct of civilization without which life would no longer be worth living.

The possibilities of the scheme are, in fact, limitless. Each machine supplies fifteen gallons of boiling water an hour, or a gallon every four minutes.

That it would supply a real want is proved by the fact that there are a considerable number of people who make a snug income in the tenements of London and possibly in those of New York, for all I know—by selling hot water in the summer, and even in winter, at two cents a kettleful. One woman is said to have made a tidy fortune by starting such a business in the East End tenement district.

One enterprising gas company supplies houses with a slot meter. The occupant of the house drops in an English penny, or two cent piece, when he wants a light, and a certain number of cubic feet of gas is furnished by the meter. When the gas goes out he drops another penny in the slot, and the supply is renewed.

The same system has been put in operation on the railroads. If you are reading and desire a better light you drop a penny in a slot and a little electric reading lamp just above your head immediately throws its effulgence upon the eye tiring pages and renders your reading easy and agreeable.

Didn't Know the Ropes.

Gen. Morgan of Illinois, who commanded a brigade in Davis's division, was one of those men so shrewd in his appearance that a stranger would never have picked him for an officer of high rank, says Harper's Round Table. One day a new recruit of the brigade, who had lost some horses, asked a veteran where he might be likely to find them. The veteran said the only chief in the brigade was Jim Morgan, who occupied a tent over in blue. The recruit hastened to Morgan's tent, shoved his head in through the flaps, and asked:

"Does Jim Morgan live here?"

"My name is James Morgan," answered the General.

"Then I want you to hand over those books you stole from me."

"I have none of your books, my dear man."

"That's a lie," cried the soldier. "The boys say you are the only thief in the camp. Turn over them books, or I'll grind your carcass into apple-sass!"

General Morgan appreciated the joke, and laughed heartily, but when the recruit began pulling off his coat to make good his threat, the officer informed him of his relations to the brigade.

"Waal, blast me if I'd take you for a brigadier!" said the man. "Excuse me, General, but I don't thoroughly know the ropes yet."

Windows of Cloth.

Windows of cloth instead of glass sounds like an impossibility, and yet it is a reality, and the employment of such a substitute is an acknowledged success. It is not ordinary cloth, but such as is translucent, through which light comes just as through glass. To all intents and purposes this cloth window is similar to the sheets of glass, and lasts ever so much longer, while still having just as good an appearance.

Now, the remarkable feature of this new fabric is that it never leaks, does not break and is nearly one-third cheaper than glass. A large skylight composed of the new substitute for glass, which has been in constant use long enough to show its worth, remains in perfect condition, but one cent having been spent on it for repairs.

The material has many advantages claimed for it, chief of which is that by its employment in train sheds, freight houses, large auditoriums, and public buildings having skylights of large area, the light weight of the material permits of a simple, inexpensive and light form of skylight construction.

WORKING STUDENTS.

MANNER IN WHICH YOUNG MEN ARE ASSISTED AT COLUMBIA.

Students Given Employment and Thereby Enabled to Get Through College—A Committee Appointed to Find Employment for Those Who Need It.

Year by year the number of students in the colleges of the country who are self-supporting increases. The many things which a student can do in his spare hours, and the various societies that aid students, make this possible. In former years Yale was called "the rich man's college," and was considered an institution at which no poor student could work his way through. This has been all changed, and the number of self-supporting students is proportionately as large at Yale as at any other university except those in the cities.

It is to these latter that the poor student is most apt to go. They offer many more advantages than do the others. In a town where the college is the great institution of the place there are hundreds of opportunities of tutoring, translating, or acting as amanuensis. So needy students flock to Columbia College in New York city, and the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia. In Columbia and the City College there are committees on aid to the students. These committees either directly lend money to impecunious students, taking their notes, payable so many years after graduation, or find suitable employment for them. The student hands in his name and states what employment he is capable of working at, and as soon as a place is heard of the student is notified. Prof. Kemp, who is Chairman of the Committee on Aid at Columbia, was recently asked about the ways and means supplied by conscientious but poor students who work their way through Columbia.

"Every year," he said, "about ten per cent. of the students apply for aid. The majority are those who are taking post-graduate courses, but there are many undergraduates. We generally find places for them which pay enough to keep the wolf from the door.

Of course we cannot do much to help the freshmen and sophomores, for they are not capable enough yet, but we generally find congenial employment for the post-graduates. One of them spent his last vacation in Europe as a companion to some boys. During the last election one of the political organizations hired many of the students to watch the polls, at from three to five dollars a day. We obtained employment for others as detectors of illegal registrators.

"Most of the boys make their living by tutoring. We have any number who prepare young men for college in the classics and sciences. Most of these students we never hear of. They apparently studiously avoid us, as do those who obtain work on Saturdays in the retail stores. We can, at a moment's notice, supply students who will translate any letter written in a modern language and many small downtown firms have the students go to their offices on mail days.

"We can also supply on scientific subjects from among the students and a few have given such lectures, explaining the magic lantern pictures, which I lend them, before large audiences, for which they receive reasonable rates. Others take charge of boys out on Saturday, explaining the botany and geology of the metropolitan district. A great many act as book agents and some few are draughtsmen. In this way, we obtained between $4,000 and $5,000 worth of employment last year for needy students. We were, however, unable to help thirty-five out of 169 applicants. But these figures, in addition to the students who do not apply to us, show the great number of students working their way through college.

"But this is but one branch of our work. We find cheap, clean rooms, with respectable people for the students, and helped over fifty in that way during the month. Those students, bringing letters from the committee, have free medical advice at the College of Physicians and Surgeons. Every year we give scholarships, entitling the winners to free tuition, to 10 per cent. of the class. So, you see, a poor student can go through college, if he is but willing to work, just as well as the opulent one."—New York Sun.

Compressed Air Painting.

Car painting by compressed air is being tried on the Pittsburg and Lake Erie Railroads, says the Engineering News. The yard is well supplied with air pipes, and the barrel of specially prepared paint is mounted on a hand truck so that it can be moved to any part of the yard. The air line consists of 200 feet of one-inch heavy hose; the paint suction hose of 50 feet of ½-inch heavy hose. The barrel is equipped with a float of pine wood with 4-inch hole in the center. Over the hole is a small cup-leathering lower, used as a support and hose regulator, insuring a uniform feed of paint. This device is light in weight, and can be readily carried to the top of a box car for spraying the roof.

The time for carefully spraying a box car is thirty minutes; to employ a man to follow with a long-handled 8-inch whitewash brush, thirty minutes additional, making labor cost one hour per box car each coat. To paint a coil car 60,000 pounds capacity takes twenty minutes for each coat, including the time of two men. This road is also using a device for spraying on paint for the lettering, which, for covering uniformly, is considered a decided improvement over the stencil brushes, and will lead to a great saving in the wear and tear of stencil plates.

$10,000 WANTED FOR SOLDIERS' MONUMENT

Joint Committee Meets and Commences Its Plans.

TO APPEAL TO ALL CLASSES

PROBABLE LOCATION WILL BE THE CRESCENT AVENUE TRIANGLE.

Intention of the Committee to Interest Every Organization in the City in Raising Funds to Purchase and Erect the Shaft—Subscriptions for any Amount Will be Received—Blanks to be Distributed.

Further progress was made Monday evening regarding the proposed erection of the soldiers' monument in Plainfield, when the committee, consisting of President W. C. O'Donnell; Treasurer J. F. Buckle; Secretary Frank Smith; George P. Mellick, H. C. McVoy and Walter C Dobbins, met to discuss plans, means, etc., for the erection of the monument.

In the first place Mr. Smith was chosen secretary in place of Mr. McVoy, who stated that he found it impossible to attend to the duties of the office. This change was agreed to and then the business of the evening was taken up. Mr. O'Donnell presented a number of photographs and plans of monuments that stand in various parts of the country, and gave approximate figures concerning the cost of each.

In this way the committee was able to determine as to the amount thought advisable to raise. It was finally agreed that at least $10,000 should be secured to erect a suitable monument that would be a credit to the city. Every member of the committee evidenced enthusiasm regarding the project and the scheme is now well under way.

Regarding location there was some talk and it seemed to be the sense of the meeting that the proper place for the monument would be in the triangle in front of the Crescent Avenue church, and if arrangements can be made there is a probability that it will be placed there.

It is the intention of the committee to interest organizations, churches, the schools, and in fact everybody, if possible, in the cause, and owing to the fact that Plainfield is without a work of art of this nature there does not seem to be any good reason why it should not be successful.

The following announcement is made by the committee as a result of last night's meeting:

Headquarters Plainfield Soldiers' Monument Committee.

To the Patriotic, Public Spirited and Peace Loving People of Plainfield:

The undersigned committee, composed of representatives from the Common Council of our city and from the John Hand Camp, No. 28, Sons of Veterans, beg your co-operation in their efforts to secure a soldiers' monument, the idea being to erect a monument which will be an adornment to the city, thereby aiding to the artistic beauty of our surroundings.

The following plan is submitted:

1—It is deemed advisable to raise the amount of ten thousand dollars to carry out the plans of the committee.

2—Subscriptions of any amount will be received from individuals, societies, schools, churches or other organizations.

3—All money should be sent as soon as convenient to J. F. Buckle, treasurer, 145 North avenue, and the same will be deposited with the Dime Savings Bank.

4—It is intended to have prepared at an early date circulars, subscription blanks and forward same to every resident of Plainfield. All sums received will be acknowledged by the treasurer of the fund.

The committee desires the confidence and prompt assistance of every person interested in the good name of our city and desiring to honor those who have brought honor upon us.

W. C. O'Donnell,
J. F. Buckle,
George P. Mellick,
Frank Smith,
H. C. McVoy,
Walter C. Dobbins,
Committee.

LOAN ASSOCIATION OFFICERS.

Plainfield Institution Decided to Re-elect Present Officials.

At the annual meeting of the Plainfield Building and Loan Association last night the old officers were all re-elected, and are as follows: President, L. E. Barkalew; vice-president, Henry Liefke; treasurer, W. R Codlington; secretary, B. F. Cotlell.

The finance committee consists of W. A. Woodruff, James P. Homan and Jacob Voehl. The auditing committee consists of Louis Klein, Henry Liefke and J. P. Homan. W. R. Codlington was made solicitor.

A new series, the seventh, was started Monday night, and nearly 300 shares were taken and paid for. The series will remain open for one month. This is the largest number of shares ever taken on any one night since the loan has been in existence.

Speer's Port Grape Wine
Nine Years Old,
Burgundy Eight Years Old, and
Claret 16 Years Old.
Extensive Wine Cellars.

Storing, Ageing and Racking Wine.

A wine made one year and sold the next is not a proper wine for invalids; to get rid of its coarse and injurious elements requires years for it to lay in wood casks, and by frequent drawing off from its gross sediment, or the coarse parts it becomes rich and mellow and valuable for invalids. It is sudorific, diuretic and blood making from the iron in the soil of the Speer vineyards in Northern N. J.

The principal varieties are the Port, Burgundy, Sherry and Claret and the Climax brandy. All these wines when stored for years and drawn off from time to time in fresh fumigated casks become vastly superior products and necessarily are more expensive. This is why Speer's wines and Brandy are more costly and so far superior to the California wines. They are absolutely pure; unexcelled by any in the world. Speer's wines are ordered by wealthy and refined families in Europe where they are prescribed by physicians and are esteemed for their superiority, velvety roundness, full body and refined flavor. The efficacy of these wines is wonderful. It has been a study and a pride during Mr. Speer's life to produce a wine of the highest grade of perfection—not so much to make money as to excell in getting a wine of the richest character. He has spared no labor nor expense in bringing his vineyards and wines up to the above high standard of excellence. The Climax ★★★ Brandy twenty years old is equal to the finest French brands.

To be had of Druggists and Grocers who sell high class wines.

A Prominent Physician.

A prominent New York physician in discussing the merits of Ripans Tabules with a brother M. D. said: "Several years ago I asserted that if one wished to become a philanthropist, and do a beneficent deed—one that would help the whole human race—nothing could be better than to procure the Roosevelt Hospital prescription, which is the basis of the Ripans Tabules, and cause it to be put up in the form of a lozchup and distributed among the poor."

Sales Increasing.

The largest retail drug store in America is that of Hegeman & Co. on Broadway in New York City. A reporter who went there to learn how Ripans Tabules were being bought a five-cent carton and asked: "Do you have much call for these?"

He was referred to a salesman who proved to be the head of the department. He said:

"The sale of Ripans Tabules is constant and is increasing, due especially to the influential character of the testimonials in the daily press, and growing out of them, through the recommendation of friend to friend. Satisfaction with them is very general. If the sale keeps on as begun I notice that a permanent customer for them is made. This, I believe, is through their intrinsic merit, which proves the bona fide character of the advertising. I think them specially useful in the general run of stomach troubles."

An Elderly Lady.

An elderly lady living at Fordham Heights, a part of New York City, and who was known to be a warm advocate of Ripans Tabules for any case of liver trouble or indigestion, stopped, and to a beneficent deed—one that would help the whole human race—nothing could be better than to procure the Roosevelt Hospital prescription, which is the basis of the Ripans Tabules, and cause it to be put up in the form of a lozchup and distributed among the poor."

Sales Increasing.

The largest retail drug store in America is that of Hegeman & Co. on Broadway in New York City. A reporter who went there to learn how Ripans Tabules were being bought a five-cent carton and asked: "Do you have much call for these?"

He was referred to a salesman who proved to be the head of the department. He said:

"The sale of Ripans Tabules is constant and is increasing, due especially to the influential character of the testimonials in the daily press, and growing out of them, through the recommendation of friend to friend. Satisfaction with them is very general. If the sale keeps on as begun I notice that a permanent customer for them is made. This, I believe, is through their intrinsic merit, which proves the bona fide character of the advertising. I think them specially useful in the general run of stomach troubles."

TEN FOR FIVE CENTS
RIPANS
ONE GIVES RELIEF

A new style pocket case containing one dozen TABULES as packed in a paper carton (without glass) is now for sale at retail druggists generally throughout the United States. The 10 cent carton (12 tabules) can be had by mail by sending fourteen cents to Ripans Chemical Co., No. 10 Spruce St., New York. The 5 cent carton (6 tabules) can be had by mail by sending seven cents. Ripans Tabules may also be had of some druggists, in bottles containing 100 tabules, for 72 cents. Ripans Tabules may be had of druggists generally throughout the United States.

Everything for the Garden

Sweet Peas the choicest,
Fancy Lawn Grass Seeds
and odorless Lawn Dressing

Telephone Call, 6.

A. M. GRIFFEN'S,
119 East Front st.

Quality Rather Than Quantity.

President Eliot of Harvard, says: "The International is a wonderfully compact storehouse of accurate information."

WEBSTER'S INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY

Best for the Household.

Words are easily found. Pronunciation is easily ascertained. Meanings are easily learned. The growth of words is easily traced, and excellence of quality rather than superficiality or quantity characterizes its every department.

Specimen pages sent on application to G. & C. MERRIAM CO., Publishers, Springfield, Mass.

FARMERS' WIVES
or any other ladies who wish to work
Can Earn Lots of Money

working for us in spare time at home on our cloths. We offer you a good chance to make plenty of spending money easily, in leisure hours. Send 12c. for cloth and full directions for work, and commence at once. Cloth sent anywhere. Address

WINOOSKET CO. (225 C) Boston, Mass. Mfg. Dept.

DIME
Savings Institution,
Of Plainfield, N. J.,

Is now receiving deposits payable on demand, with interest, allowed on all sums from $5 to $3,000.

J. FRANK HUBBARD, President,
GEO. W. ROCKFELLOW, Vice-Pres.
J. C. PORE, Treasurer.

Money deposited on or before January tenth will draw interest from the first.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

VOL. XXXII. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, APRIL 6, 1899. NO. 14.

"Support the Constitution, Which is the Cement of the Union, as Well in Its Limitations as in Its Authorities."—Madison.

BRUTAL TREATMENT IN ORIENT DEGREE.

Startling Revelations About Secret Society Practices.

CANDIDATES BADLY HURT.

ONE MAN HAD HIS ARM PULLED OUT OF JOINT.

Left Unconscious on the Floor for Several Minutes—Revolting and Indecent Tricks Played on Unsuspecting Candidates, It is Alleged—Charles Yaeger Believes it is Time to Call a Halt to It.

If you will kindly permit me space in your columns to publish brutal outrages repeatedly practiced by some of the members of Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., in their sporting degrees, what is commonly termed the Orient—you will not only confer a great favor on me, but also to such members of the order, who, having taken their initiatory degree, contemplate initiation in the mysteries of the Orient.

The writer of this article is not averse to sport and can enjoy a practical joke, providing it is consistent with gentlemanly conduct and without danger of bodily injury, but the brutality and indignities that a large number of members were subjected to on Friday night last, by the persons commonly called team, is beyond description. In fact, if those side degrees are permitted to be practised in the future an ambulance and several doctors would be indispensible on the meeting nights of the order.

One man's arm was wrenched from the socket and the pain must have been intense, indeed, since he was left on the floor in an unconscious condition, and will possibly be incapacitated for business for some. Others fared no better, only that the mode of procedure was changed and so revolting and devoid of common decency that a description could not appear in public print.

In conversation with some of the intelligent members of the order I learned that these side degrees had been abolished in some localities on account of the serious consequences that resulted from the brutal treatment from the hands of the rough element that usually constitutes a team. In conclusion, permit me to state that this letter for publication is not aimed against the order—rather for the good of it—for if you publish it, I shall certainly mail copies to the grand officers who may possibly be instrumental in abolishing that brutal treatment to some extent.

Chas. Yaeger.

AGAINST POLICY DEALERS.

Justice Collins Says Gambling Dens Should Be Broken Up.

New Brunswick, April 5.—Justice Collins opened the April term of court yesterday. In his charge to the Grand Jury he referred to the campaign that has been made against local policy dealers. He said that the Grand Jury should spare no pains to break up the policy dens; that a determined crusade against them had been successful everywhere else, and that there was no good reason why it should not be successful in New Brunswick.

It has been expected that he would make some reference to the Grand Jury's duty in regard to investigating the Lehigh Valley Railroad wreck at West Dunellen in January last, but he did not speak of it. Prosecutor John S. Voorhees will lay before the Grand Jury the result of the informal investigation he made at the time of the wreck.

Daily Gospel Meetings.

Daily gospel meetings are to be held at Hope chapel, led by F. E. Taylor, evangelist, beginning on Sunday next. Meetings will be held every evening except Saturday and the afternoon meetings will be announced later. There will be special music and a cordial invitation is extended to every person in the city.

New Banking Firm.

Harvey E. Fisk, formerly of Plainfield, and lately associated with Harvey Fisk's Sons banking house in William street, New York, has formed a partnership with George H Robinson and opened a banking stock and exchange commission business at 36 Nassau street.

A Dance at Fanwood.

The Watchung Avenue Domino Club enjoyed a reception and dance Tuesday in the Fanwood Club house. There were about twenty-five couples present and a very pleasant time was had by all. Music for the occasion was furnished by Lambert, of Westfield.

PARK CLUB GOLFERS.

S. ST. JOHN McCUTCHEN AND EDWIN T. DOUGLASS ELECTED TRUSTEES.

Annual Meeting Held Last Night—Links to be Opened the Middle of This Month—The Membership is Rapidly Increasing.

The Park Golf Club is proceeding in the even tenor of its way and so there wasn't anything particularly startling to do at the annual meeting of the club held at the Park clubhouse last Tuesday. The meeting was well attended.

S St. John McCutchen and Edwin T. Douglass were elected trustees for a year. The greens committee reported through its chairman, C. W. McCutchen, that they had found the greens in good condition this spring, that forty trees had been cut down to open up the course and that the seventh and ninth greens would be entirely re-made. The links will open about April 15th or 20th.

The secretary, Meredith Dryden, reported that the membership of the club was rapidly increasing and was nearing the limit mark. The treasurer was absent and made no report.

There was some talk about making a change for junior and associate members for the use of the links. The matter was put in the shape of a motion and voted down by a large vote.

It was reported that the contract had been made for the addition of a room to the clubhouse, and that thirty new lockers would be added.

A VOLUNTEER LEAGUE.

NEW AUXILIARY TO Y. M. C. A. WORK HAS BEEN INAUGURATED.

The Members to be Interested in Foreign Work for Young Men—Meetings Will be Held Every Month.

Monday evening at the Y. M. C. A. building a new movement in the interest of foreign mission work was inaugurated under the title of Association Volunteer League. Its object is to interest members of the Y. M. C. A. more thoroughly in the foreign work for young men, as carried on by the international committee, so that the local association can be in close touch with the great foreign mission work throughout the world.

Membership in this league is not restricted to members of the Y. M. C. A., but any man can join who is sufficiently interested in this subject to devote some time and thought to its consideration.

Meetings will be held on the first Monday evening of each month, and members of the League are expected to pray in private and at the meetings for special objects, as will be indicated, some particular mission field being selected for each month's study. The Bible will be studied in its relation to missions, and the members will have the privilege of contributing a definite sum each year, to be given to the international committee, although not so much stress is laid on this feature of the organization as on prayer, study and investigation of mission fields and methods.

There were twelve present at the meeting and its inaugurators hope to draw into the organization many of those now interested in the great missionary movements of the age, and also to awaken in others now indifferent, an interest in this greatest work of Christianity, in obeying the final command of the Saviour to "Preach the Gospel to every creature."

JURORS DRAWN.

Sheriff Kirk Prepares for Term of Court in May.

Elizabeth, April 5.—Judge Vail presided in a special session of the Court of General Quarter Sessions yesterday, and Sheriff Kirk drew the panel of Petit Jurors for the May term. There were fifty-four jurors selected, the ordinary panel being forty-eight. County Clerk Howard, Under Sheriff Clark and others assisted in recording the list.

The jurors from Plainfield were: Andrew Love, Jr., Carlos C. Gallop, Frederick Huff, Nelson B. Childs, Hugh MacDonald and Daniel S. Pond.

Fanwood—Robert Walpole and George McCauley.

Westfield—Benjamin W. Mulford, and Cyrus P. Wilcox

"Dommie" Calling on Old Friends.

J. A. Demarest, U. S. Consul at Brockville, Ont., under President Cleveland's last administration, and for several years city editor and manager of The Daily Press, is in town today calling on old friends and acquaintances.

Hogging in the Borough.

Marshal Campbell, of the borough, had occasion to drive three tramps out of Washington Park this morning. The fellows were going from house to house hogging.

TROLLEY CAR THAT IS A VERETABLE PALACE

It Is Designed for Brunswick Traction Company's Officers.

FITTED OUT ELEGANTLY.

MAHOGANY FURNITURE, GOLD TRIMMINGS AND ELECTRIC BELLS.

The Car is Thirty Six Feet in Length and is Named "Annie R."—Interior of the Car Has Rare and Exquisite Furnishings—Equipped With Refrigerators—Local Dignitaries to Take a Trip On It.

New Brunswick, April 5.—One of the finest electric cars ever made in the United States has been shipped from Wilmington, Del., to this city, for the use of the officials of the Brunswick Traction Company. In attractive appearance, in interior finish and in richness and beauty of furnishings this palatial car is the peer of any in existence. The car was built by the Jackson & Sharp Company with a view of far surpassing all their previous efforts. It was the express stipulation of President Gottfried Krueger and Secretary Edward Radel that this car should be the company's masterpiece.

The cars measures 35 feet in length, 26 feet long over the sills, while the body is 7 feet 9 inches wide. The exterior finish is a harmonious combination of maroon and Broadway yellow, with artistic gold ornamentation. The centre panel of the body is of maroon, while the lower panel and the roof are in Broadway yellow. On the maroon background on each side is the inscription "Annie R." in gold letters with a shaded ornamentation of gold. The entire body of the car is stripped with gold.

On each side of the car are eight windows of heavy plate glass, set in mahogany sashes, while the hand railings are of polished brass. The usual vestibule contains but one door, they being situated on opposite sides. The interior of the vestibules is finished in polished oak, of the finest selection, and each contains a refrigerator, also finished in oak. Electric bells are placed nearby for the convenience of the motorman and conductors.

When one enters the car he is struck by the rare finish and exquisite furnishings. Richly upholstered chairs, rare mahogany and tapestry are on sides. There are but two stationary seats in the car and they are in the centre, while the corners at the opposite end contain buffets of mahogany, with silver timmings. The buffets are fitted with heavy plate mirrors. The sides of the interior are of mahogany, the lower portion being attractively paneled, while that above the sashes is artistically carved, the effect being admirable. The trimmings are of silver and oxidized metal and the draperies at the windows are of prettily figured damask, gathered at the sides of each sash.

A novel feature will be found on each entrance, while the carpet is a rich Brussels of exquisite figure. In the corners containing the stationary chairs are heavy plate mirrors. The ceilings are veneered, of a green tint and attractively striped and ornamented in gord. Three three-light electroliers are suspended from the ceiling. Deck sashes of mahogany fitted with gold embossed ground glass, add to the sumptuous effect.

The movable chairs and tables are of beautifully marked mahogany, inlaid with pearl and ivory ornamentation. The upholstering is in green, which harmonizes artistically with the mahogany. The traction company relegated expense in completing these furnishings. Each window support contains an electric push-button for the convenience of the passengers.

Mr. Radel will have the Aldermen and Freeholders for guests and in turn the township committees, etc.

Representing Various Nations.

A novel feature of the "Feast of All Nations," to be given in Trinity Reformed church this evening for the benefit of the Young Women's Mission Band, will be the appearance of those who are to assist in costumes representing the various nations. It will be well worth the price of admission to see these costumes. Supper will be served a la carte.

Going Over Tax Matters.

There will be an important meeting of the committee on collection and assessment of taxes Tuesday evening, at which time the Board of Assessors will also meet. It is the intention of the committee to present the books of the assessors before the Council at the earliest possible date.

THE M. E. CONFERENCE.

PLAINFIELD MINISTERS LEFT THIS MORNING TO ATTEND IT.

Conference Will Continue All of This and Part of Next Week—Rev. Mr. O'Donnell to Preside at Epworth Meeting.

Among those who left Plainfield yesterday to attend the M. E. church conference in Newark were Rev. W. C. O'Donnell, Rev. G. W. Gardner, W. C. Nelson, Dr. Snodgrass and Rev. George Angleman. The conference will continue throughout the week.

A business meeting will be held today at 9 a. m. and the anniversary of the Woman's Home Missionary Society at 3 p. m., with Mrs. Mary L. Woodruff presiding. Bishop Fowler will consecrate the deaconesses, and Mr. Iva May Dunham will speak on "Deaconess' Work in Our Cities." Rev J. A. Cole will preside at the missionary meeting in the evening, and the speaker will be Rev. Dr. W. F. Smith. The same day Rev. Dr. Marcus Bull, of Boston University, will lecture in Franklin Street church at 3 p. m. on "The Epistle to Philippians." In the evening Rev. Dr. C. H. Mead will address the Total Abstinence and Prohibition Society in Central church.

Friday morning another business session will be held in Halsey Street church. At 3 p. m. the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society will hold its anniversary, with Mrs. J. H. Knowles presiding, and Rev. Dr. J. F. Goucher, president of the Woman's College, of Baltimore, as speaker. In the evening the anniversaries of the Church Extension and Freedman's Aid and Southern Education Societies will be held. The speakers will be Rev. Dr. M. S. Hard, of Philadelphia, and Rev. Dr. J. M. Hamilton, of Cincinnati. At the same hour the Conference Epworth League will hold its annual meeting in St. Paul's church, with Rev W. C. O'Donnell, of Plainfield, presiding. Rev. Dr. C. L. Goodell, of Hanson Place M. E. church, Brooklyn, will speak on "The Greatest Story in the World."

Saturday evening evangelistic services will be conducted in Halsey Street Church by Rev. Dr. L. W. Munhall, of Germantown, Philadelphia.

Rev. Dr. R. Vashorn will lead the Conference love feast at 9 a. m. Sunday, and Bishop Fowler will preach the sermon at 10:30. At 2 p. m. the Bishop will ordain the deacons and elders, and at 7:30 p. m. Rev. Dr. W. S. Robison will preach a missionary sermon. The anniversary of the Sunday school Union and Tract Societies will be held Sunday evening in St. Paul's Church, with Rev. W. C. Snodgrass presiding and Rev. Drs. G. C. Wilding and T. J. Quitas as speakers.

Bishop Fowler will lecture on "Abraham Lincoln" on Monday, under the auspices of the Newark City Church Extension Society. Monday afternoon in Franklin Street Church Rev. William N. Rice, of Wesleyan University, will lecture on "The Alternative; Christianity or Agnosticism."

RESIDENTIAL CHANGES.

Many Plainfielders May be Found at New Addresses.

The following residential changes have been made by Conover's furniture moving vans: Mr. Moffatt from Carleton Avenue to Arlington avenue, Charles Force from Duer street to East Sixth street, B. M. Richards from Jackson avenue to East Sixth street, Mr. Denithown from Thorn building to Somerset street, Miss Passenger from Almont street to Jackson avenue, B. Luckey from Orange street to Lafayette place, J. H. Adams from Watchung avenue to East Third street, Mr. Merritt from Park avenue to Stillman building, Mr. Seal from Watchung avenue to Cleatham street, Mr. DeNun from Jackson to Steiner place, A. W. Ensworthy from Westervelt avenue to Willow avenue, Mrs. Wright from Duer street to Linden avenue, Mr. Pugh from Somerset street to Clinton avenue, Mr. Green from Steiner place to Stone street, Mr. Dunn from Watchung avenue to Norwood avenue, Mr. Polk from Almont street to Duer street, Mr. Wren from East Second street to Harlingen, Somerset county, Mr. Buell from one residence on Craig place to another one on the same street.

Building the Storm Sewer.

Patsy Christmas, who secured the contract for building the Park avenue storm sewer, expects to start the work in the course of a week, or just as soon as the pipe arrives. The pipe to be used is 24 inches and will be run from the Park avenue railroad bridge through the avenue to Somerset street and the brook.

—Seats are now on sale for "Diplomacy" to be given in Music Hall, April 29th, by home talent.

WEDDED QUIETLY AT BRIDE'S HOME.

Marriage of Miss Maude French and H. E. Snodgrass.

TOOK PLACE TUESDAY NIGHT.

RELATIVES AND INTIMATE FRIENDS PRESENT AT CEREMONY.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis H. French, of Craig place, Wedded to Son of Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Snodgrass—Couple Will Reside in Summit — Names of the Members of Bridal Party.

A quiet home wedding took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Louis H. French, of 18 Craig place, Tuesday at six o'clock, when their youngest daughter, Miss Maude Adeline French, was married to Harlan Estey Snodgrass, son of Rev. Dr. and Mrs. W. C. Snodgrass, of Central avenue. It was a pretty ceremony and was witnessed by the members of two families and a few intimate friends.

The ceremony was performed in the parlor under a bower of asparagus fern by Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass, of this city, father of the groom, assisted by Rev. Orrin W. Snodgrass, a brother. The bride was given away by her father.

The bride was gowned in white satin, trimmed with chiffon and lace and carried a bouquet of white roses. She was attended by a flower girl, Miss Susan Wharton, who was gowned in pink and carried pink and white tulips, and by two bridesmaids, Miss Edna L. French, her sister, and Miss Persis Snodgrass, a sister of the groom. Their gowns were of mousseline de soie over pink silk. They carried pink roses.

The best man was D. P. Mitchell, of Newark. The ushers were Frank W. French, a brother of the bride, Rhey T. Snodgrass, a brother of the groom, Warren L. Church and Henry L. McGee, all of this city.

The house decorations were elaborate and very pretty. Roses and smylax were used in profusion. L. A. Noe, of Madison, had charge of them.

After the ceremony, the wedding supper was served, after which the bridal couple departed on their honeymoon amid the usual showers. They will be absent several weeks, after which they will reside at Summit.

The young couple were the recipients of many handsome and valuable gifts from relatives and friends.

MRS. SMITH'S RECITAL.

Appreciative Audience Gathered in the Casino to Hear the Programme.

An appreciative audience attended the recital given in the Casino, last Tuesday, by Mrs. Frank Smith, and found much to enjoy in the programme rendered by Mrs. Smith, Miss Martha Miner, soprano, and Nicholas Sebastian, tenor. G. Morgan Strickler was to have assisted but he was unavoidably detained elsewhere and Mr. Sebastian filled his place very satisfactorily.

Of course, Mrs. Smith was the chief attraction of the evening and the reception accorded her was very flattering. Her selections were well chosen and delightfully rendered. In the first, "In the Garden with the Persian Poet Sa-di," a musical accompaniment, written by Frank J. Smith, was played by him. She was compelled to give several encores each time.

Miss Miner was a talented vocalist with a sweet voice which she used to advantage. Mr. Sebastian also made an excellent impression and his selections were received with favor.

ENDEAVORER'S PROSPEROUS.

Annual Meeting of East Third Street Mission Society Held.

The Christian Endeavor society of the East Third Street Mission have enjoyed a good year as told by the reports read at the annual meeting Tuesday. There is a balance of $31 left in the treasury, and a healthy growth has been noticed in the society.

The officers who have served during the past year were re-elected. They are, president, U. B. Crane; vice-president, Clifford A. Braider; secretary, Miss Emma J. Thorn; treasurer, R. W. Barnes. Messrs. Braider and Barnes were appointed a committee to see about having cards printed inviting strangers to the services.

Hotel License Transferred.

New Market, April 5—Mulford Casterline, the new proprietor of the Nelson House, was in New Brunswick with Lawyer Robert M. Clark, of Plainfield, yesterday to have the hotel license of Lloyd B Nelson transferred to him. This was accomplished, and last night Mr. Casterline gave a public opening to which people from all around came.

ANOTHER STANDPIPE.

IMPORTANT MOVE MADE BY WATER SUPPLY COMPANY.

Piece of Land Back of Johnston Property Bought by the Company—To Relieve the Pressure on Present Standpipe.

A very important move has just been made by the Plainfield Water Supply Company in the purchase of a piece of property on the mountain back of the Johnston property on West Front street. The land was purchased by the company for the purpose of erecting a standpipe thereon which will be used in conjunction with the present standpipe near the water works. Pipes will be laid from the works to the new standpipe and already the pipe has arrived. At a very early date the work of erecting the standpipe will be started.

The object is to relieve somewhat the pressure now brought to bear on the stand pipe in use, and the new stand will be made large enough to adequately assist the other one in the performance of the work required. This change will also allow for a greater supply of water if needed in case of emergency, and the service can be divided as desired by the company to supply certain parts of the city or the various towns along the Central Railroad where the water is sent.

RED MEN RULE THE FAIR

THE MIANTONOMO'S TRIBE EVENT OPENED AUSPICIOUSLY.

The Affair is Held in Washington Hall—Committees in Charge of the Brother-Red Men to be Present.

The fair to be held this week in Washington Hall, under the auspices of Miantonomo Tribe, No. 118, I. O. R. M., and Iona Council, No. 14, D. of P., opened Tuesday under auspices circumstances, and judging from the large attendance and the interest displayed in the event, and everything about it, bids well to be most successful. For an opening night the hall was well filled.

Under direction of the committee having the fair in charge the hall has been made to look as much like a Red Man's wigwam as is with the national colors, and soft hangings of red. Everything, too, has been used in decorating the stage upon which the musicians sit and furnish music for dancing.

There was no particular event last night to awaken interest, but tonight will be the big night. Visiting Red Men from all over the State will be present and also the board of great chiefs. There will be a cake walk in which the contestants will appear dressed in full Indian costume.

In addition to this twelve of Buffalo Bill's Indian Band are expected out from New York, and Utawan, the Indian fortune teller, will be there to read your future. Terry and Hawkins, a team of local acrobats, will amuse the spectators with some difficult work on the trapeze and bars, and altogether it will be the banner night of the fair.

David C. Allen is chairman of the committee having the fair in charge; Mrs. Charles L. Holstein is secretary, and Mrs. Andrew J. Stiglits is treasurer.

At the fancy table, which is supplied with a great variety of useful as well as ornamental articles in that line, is Mrs. William Westphal, assisted by Mrs. Edward Bowman, Miss Ella Sebring and Mrs. Charles L. Holstein.

Mrs. Fred Westphal has charge of the refreshment table, assisted by Mrs. Charles Dotzell, Mrs. Emma Weigman, Mrs. Jane Stephany and Mrs. Charles Deuckland.

BLIND SEWER TO BE BUILT.

Determined Effort to be Made to Drain Upper Part of Borough.

The contract for constructing a blind sewer for surface drainage in the upper part of the borough so that the present difficulty of having water in the various cellars will be removed, has been awarded to Patsy Christmas, who will start the work very soon. There is to be laid 1,600 feet of 12-inch pipe including 44 branches 12x4 inches. The pipes run from the house to the main pipe is to be 4 inches. The water will be run into small brook in the rear of A. I. Smalley's property on Somerset street. The permission to cross Somerset street and locate the drain will probably be secured from the Borough Council Friday evening next.

Deputy Grand Master A. Y. Tomlinson, of Elizabeth, will pay a fraternal visit to Columbia Lodge, A. O. U. W., Friday night.

V. W. Nash, grand guide and deputy grand master of Columbia Lodge, A. O. U. W., visited Success Lodge, of Newark, Tuesday night.

—A meeting of special interest will be held at the Reform Club tomorrow night.

MUCH EXCITEMENT IN A VERY SMALL SPACE

Four Frightened Teams Became Mixed Up Near Station.

ONLY ONE MAN WAS HURT.

THROWN INTO THE STREET AND BECAME UNCONSCIOUS.

A Truck, a Watering Cart, a Hack and a Bakery Delivery Wagon Were the Vehicles in the Accident—One Team Got Fractious and Then All the Other Horses Became Mixed Up.

A truck, a watering cart, a hack and a bakery wagon combined to make an exciting little happening at the corner of North and Watchung avenues yesterday while the 8:13 train stood at the station. William McConnell, a driver for Blair's Metropolitan Stable, managed to land on his head and was the only serious sufferer by the accident.

The four trolley cars were bunched on the switch at North avenue and P. M. French's water cart had stopped by the hydrant at the corner to be refilled with water. Charles Francisco was the driver. Just then one of William Hand & Son's big trucks, loaded with ice, was coming north on Watchung avenue and started to turn into North avenue. Frank Hand was driving. The team attached to the truck became frightened at the trolley cars and shied into the team attached to the water cart. Then all four horses began kicking and plunging.

Behind the truck was one of Blair's hacks, driven by William McConnell, and with Frank R. Marsh, of Madison avenue, inside. McConnell started to pass between the truck and the trolley car when his horse became frightened as well and bolted. Right in front of the hack was W. W. Warnock's bakery wagon, driven by Mr. Warnock. He had been waiting for the truck to pass.

The hack and the bakery wagon came together with a crash. The horse to the hack broke away while the driver was shot over the dashboard, landing on his head in the roadway. He was unconscious when picked up and carried into Mallinson's pharmacy where he speedily recovered.

Meantime the horses of the truck and water-cart had been separated and quieted down without damage. The horse to the bakery wagon stood the shock bravely and was brought under control immediately. The horse to the hack was caught on North avenue, near Park avenue, and brought back.

The only damage to Warnock's rig was a broken cross bar. Outside of the shafts and part of the frame work of the hack was wrecked and the harness broken. McConnell was able to return to work with a swollen and badly aching head.

BEAUTIES OF THE EMERALD ISLE.

Rev. C. H. Herring Lectured on an Entertaining Subject.

An entertaining lecture was given last Tuesday in the First Presbyterian church by the pastor, Rev. C. H. Herring, under the auspices of the King's Daughters, for the benefit of the church. The subject was "A Trip through Ireland," and the views shown were taken by Mr. Herring a few years ago when he traveled through that country by wheel. Mr. Herring recited some very amusing incidents in connection with his lecture and told of some laughable experiences. He depicted life in the cities as well as the country, and gave those present a good idea of the way that the poor and rich live in Ireland. The views were all excellent and very clear. One thing noticeable was the good roads to be found in Ireland for wheeling, and in this respect Mr. Herring found his trip a delightful one.

Important To Mothers.

The manufacturers of Castoria have been compelled to spend hundreds of thousands of dollars to familiarize the public with the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. This has been necessitated by reason of pirates counterfeiting the Castoria trade-mark. This counterfeiting is a crime and only against the proprietors of Castoria, but against the growing generation. All persons should be careful to see that Castoria bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher, if they would guard the health of their children. Parents and mothers, in particular, ought to carefully examine the Castoria advertisements which have been appearing in this paper, and to remember that the wrapper of every bottle of genuine Castoria bears the fac-simile signature of Chas. H. Fletcher, under whose supervision it has been manufactured continuously for over thirty years.—Phila. Bulletin. a

SAYINGS OF CHILDREN.

Undeveloped Grains That Sometimes Pass as Matured Minds.

"No thank you; I don't care for any,' said Little Marie, as her papa passed the cake. 'Why, dear,' said he; 'I thought you were fond of cake?' 'So I am,' she replied, 'but I heard mamma say it wasn't quite perfect, and when she says that it must be something awful.'

'Now, Tommy,' said the teacher, 'can you tell me what a propaganda is?' The little fellow looked at the ceiling and wrinkled his brow as he gravely wrestled with the problem, and finally replied: 'I don't know for sure, but think it must be a proper goose's brother.'

'Oh, look, what a pretty little moon!' exclaimed four-year-old Edith to her little brother, as she looked from her grandma's window at the small crescent in the western sky. 'Pshaw!' replied the unappreciative brother, 'I don't think it's half as pretty as the big round moon we had at home two weeks ago.'

'Johnny, aged five, had a habit of using in his conversation every big word he happened to hear, regardless of its exactness. One morning he and his elder brother were trying to wash from the same basin, to Johnny's detriment, and he ran into the kitchen, exclaiming, 'Mamma, Charley's metropolising the whole laudatory!'

New Cinderella Parties.

London society has been amusing itself with Cinderella parties, and it is said functions of a similar character have taken place recently at some private houses here in New York. The Cinderella party is not the usually accepted variety by that name, where the guests are bidden to say "Good night" just at the stroke of midnight. That sort of entertainment has proved itself almost impossible except among the youngest set, for where guests do not arrive until the early hour of eleven or thereabout it is hard to have a cast iron rule concerning their departure.

This Cinderella party owes its name to the chief source of amusement—namely, the wooden shoe which is furnished by the chief of store, and which in its primitive condition is used by the Eastern woman in going to her bath. The shoe is sometimes highly ornamented with painting, gilding, etc., and the trick is to find a foot that will exactly fit its rather unusual proportions.

The masculine sex is not debarred from this form of entertainment, as the committee of arbitration and final court of appeal is composed of the male members of the entertainment, and on them devolves the tremendous task of deciding when fair ones disagree. The wooden shoe, so familiar to frequenters of Oriental brica-a-brac shops, is naturally quite solid and the foot on which it is tried must not protrude an infinitesimal portion of an inch over the edge. Opportunities for dainty foot gear, for limitless discussions and coquettish attitudes are innumerable, and are usually made the most of. So the hostess devolves the pleasure of providing a suitable gift for the fortunate possessor of the prize foot for the fortunate Cinderella gives the shoe as a souvenir to some member of the committee.

There has always been a charm about the story of Cinderella which no amount of matured intellect is able to destroy. The prince and the slipper have formed the basis of many a girlish dream, and society always amiable to pretty foibles, has taken this fact into consideration, apparently, in providing the latest form of entertainment for its votaries.

Sim-Nel Cake.

In ancient times, it is said, there lived a worthy couple named Simon and Nelly, who delighted in gathering their children about them at Easter. On one of these occasions there seems to have been more of the unleavened dough than usual remaining after the Lenten fast, and the thrifty housewife determined to build a cake. The good man suggested that the remains of the Christmas pudding, still in the cupboard, be used for the interior. When all was put together, a quarrel arose as to how it should be cooked; one wanted it boiled, the other baked. Over this they came to blows. Nelly picked up the stool on which she sat and threw it at Simon. He responded by taking the besom and beating her on the head and shoulders. Then Nelly took the broom and went for poor Simon. She was the first to propose a compromise, suggesting that they first boil the pudding and then bake it. The big pot was then put on the fire, and the stool was broken up and used to help boil the cake, while the broom was broken later, and used to help heat the oven to bake the cake. The eggs broken in the fight were used to coat the cake. The cake, as we were first called Simon and Nelly, the legend says, and later Sim-Nel.

A Serious Quest on

A kitten went a-walking
One morning in July,
And idly fell a-talking
With a great big butterfly.
The kitten's tone was airy,
The butterfly would scoff;
When there came along a fairy
Who whisked his wings right off.
And then—for it is written
Fairies can do such things—
Upon the startled kitten
She stuck the yellow wings.
The kitten felt a quiver,
She rose into the air,
Then flew down to the river
To view her image there.
With fear her heart was smitten,
And she began to cry,
"Am I a kitten-fly?"
Or just a kitten-fly?"
—Carolyn Wells, in St. Nicholas.

FOR BOYS AND GIRLS.

THE CLEVER SEALS.

How They Play in the Aquarium—A London Seal Says "Mamma."

The Aquarium in Castle Garden has proved as great a source of delight as its most sanguine promoters could have hoped. Of all its occupants, none receives more attention from young people than the two young seals that amuse the public all day with their tricks.

The fish excite interest because they are so strange and curious, and different from anything that lives on the land. The seals owe their popularity to another cause, for they have all the best qualities of those animals which are most companionable to man.

The elder of the seals is Nelly, an amiable and beautiful creature, two years and six months old. The other is her brother, and is not yet full grown, on which account he is known as Baby.

Nelly is decidly the more vivacious of the two seals in the Aquarium. She has already learned many amusing tricks, although her education is yet in an elementary stage. She comes promptly when she is called, stands up on her divided tail and most politely shakes flippers with the keeper. Then when she is told to go and play she turns a somersault into the water and there performs many feats of aquatic gymnastics. She is able to stay under water three or four hours, but that is not a feat Nelly feels called upon to perform in the Aquarium. It is one she would resort to in a storm at sea. She seems to be greatly pleased with her commodious tank.

It is supposed that baby needs more rest than his sister, because he is still growing. He spends a considerable part of his time asleep. Then Nelly will steal up to him and nip him smartly in the flipper. This irritates the youth, and he turns on the disturber. A brief mill follows, in which Baby is invariably worsted.

At times they play together amicably, wrestling and chasing one another through the water. They play tag in the water in a way that should set a stimulating example to small boys.

The seal is capable of learning a surprising number of accomplishments. No animal excepting the pig has proved himself more useful in public exhibitions and better able to perform feats of an intellectual nature. Learned dogs have been known since the remotest antiquity, but seals are now their rivals in erudition.

London was recently entertained by a talking seal. This animal did not articulate very clearly when he tried to speak English, but perhaps he would have done better in a language more suited to his vocal organs. "Mamma" was the word which he pronounced most distinctly, and very touching it was to hear him say it, for he had doubtless been brutally snatched from the arms of a loving parent in Alaska or some other distant place. All his remarks were full of meaning and expression. When asked if he would like to fish he squeaked "yes" in a most unmistakable manner. He also had a very graceful way of returning thanks for a plug of tobacco. It was one of his many peculiarities to be fond of chewing.

The seal has shown himself able to read as well as any other animal. He has been taught to select letters from the alphabet so that they spell things which he needs.—New York Journal.

A KING IN RAGS.

He Sells Papers, but Is Nevertheless a True Nobleman.

In a Christmas sermon written for the New York Journal Rev. Dr. Charles H. Eaton tells this beautiful story:

One Christmas Eve, but a few years ago, a ragged newsboy was seen to enter a saloon on Printing House Square. He sold a few papers and left, but before he left the room he hesitated for a moment before a small box standing on the counter, marked "Gifts for Poor Children." When the boy thought no one was looking he dropped a few pennies into the box—all the profits of his sale—and ran out into the night.

A witness to his generous act followed him. It was very cold and snow was on the ground. The boy was seen to hurry into a stairway on the outside of a building, and there creep under the slight protection of the boards. There he lay down to sleep with only the heavens for a roof, and the moist ground for a bed. When asked why he who had no home and was compelled to sleep in the cold and the snow had given his all, he replied: 'I thought there were some poor children not so well off as I am. I can sell papers, you know.'

Is not the highest order of nobility shown in the spirit and conduct of this street gamin? In gracious courtesy, in tender usefulness, it was never surpassed, perhaps never equalled, by king or priest.

GIVES UP HER HOME.

MAGNIFICENT GIFT OF MRS MINNIE L. CUMMINGS.

The Authoress Donates Her Magnificent Home at Elberon, N. J., as a Residence for Worthy Women—An Elaborate Scheme of Beneficence.

Mrs. Minnie L. Cummings, the wealthy widow and authoress, and noted for her many practical schemes of philanthropy, has just made the most notable gift to her less fortunate sisters by giving her palatial residence at Elberon, N. J., The Towers, which was for a long time the summer residence of the late Ambassador Runyon, to the Woman's Property Protective League, an association founded by her for the protection of homeless and unfortunate women of gentle birth and education who have lost their homes and station in life through no fault of their own. The Towers will be a place where these women may reside until they are in a position to become self supporting or recover property to which they have a claim and have been unjustly deprived of. To recover this property will also be one of the aims of the association.

Another purpose of the Protective League will be to found other homes such as The Towers will be. They will be maintained as private residences and will in no sense be known as homes of charity. The Towers is a grand and imposing building, built upon a scale of lavish magnitude in keeping with the great wealth of its owner. It has forty-eight rooms and is surrounded by magnificent lawns.

Into this residence Mrs. Cummings, who is the President of the Woman's Property Protective League, with loving kindness welcomes all those who come within the scope of the objects of her association.

In this home Mrs. Cummings not only proposes to supply the members with a refined home, but also with clothing in keeping with their surroundings. Women of all ages will be admitted. Proper marriages Mrs. Cummings proposes to encourage, and will even *provide a trousseau and pay for the wedding*s, as well as to insure the welfare of the newly married couples.

The chief object that Mrs. Cummings has in view, however, is to save for the unprotected women her home, if foreclosed upon for non-payment of interest on mortgage, or if the principal of mortgage be due, or the home is seized for debt on fictitious or real claims, the Protective League will pay up such claims and redeem it and deed it back to the owner, take back a mortgage from her, and if the revenue from the property is only sufficient for the support of the owner or of her family, who are dependent upon her, the interest shall be permitted to accumulate until the owner shall be in a position to pay it. If necessary, the mortgage shall remain without being foreclosed, during the life of the owner. If the income is not sufficient to provide her with the necessaries of existence she shall become a guest in the league home. Every member will pay according to her income at all she will be cared for from the funds of the league, the same as those able to contribute something toward their support.

The league will also endeavor to supply those of its members who can and are willing to work with congenial home employment.

Mrs. Cummings has been led to this step by the reverses which have befallen a great many of her friends. Notably among these is the widow of the late General Custer, who is now reduced to poverty.

Mr. Hanna's Pineapple Patch.

Mark Hanna is growing pineapples. This statement will come as somewhat of a shock to those who think of Mark Hanna only as a political engineer. Although he is very much so, he loves the little pineapple patch that grows green and spiney out of the white sand of Dade county Fla. Twice within the last eighteen months has he turned his footsteps from the North to the South to feast from the products of his Florida slip in the palmetto-thatched lanai that stands shaded by whispering pine trees on the edge of Mark Hanna's pineapple patch.

It was about two years ago that the pineapple fever broke out in Florida and became so virulently epidemic in that pine and flatwoods lands.

The germ of the pineapple contagion entered his blood, and he bought an acre of pine land from Representative Linton of Michigan, who owns a big tract along the Biscayne Bay canal.

Mr. Hanna is a frequent traveler between the Atlantic and the Everglades, 300 miles south of Jacksonville. Uncle Mose Hawkins, a Florida Republican, "tends" it and sends a monthly crop report to Mr. Hanna. Uncle Mose told the writer that he would never "grub" an acre of hammock land with the sun at meridan and the mosquitoes in full bloom than to write out "dat 'port ter Marse Hanner."—Washington Star.

A Perfect Brute.

Mrs. Nubbins: My husband is a perfect brute.

Peterkin: You amaze me.

Mrs. Nubbins: Since the baby began teething, nothing would quiet the little angel but pulling his papa's beard, and yesterday he went and had his beard shaved off.

Nothing at All.

"Bobbie, I should think you were too old to allow your mother to put you to bed at night."

"Pooh! That's nothing. Father is a good deal older than I and she puts him to bed every morning."

MISS ADDAMS TALKS.

SHE POINTS OUT DEFECTS IN THE MODERN CHURCH.

Invited by the Ministers of Chicago She Gives Her Views—No Sympathy With Those Who Denounce the Theatre—Must Teach Morals and Ethics.

A short time since the Methodist ministers of Chicago invited Miss Jane Addams of Hull house, the well-known social settlement of that city, to address them. Miss Addams is one of the broadest minded women on the continent. The ministers asked her to point out what in her opinion were the defects in the working machinery of the modern church. She confined her attention to the Protestant church and to its lack of success in reaching the masses. Miss Addams spoke with great directness and what she said will have made many of the ministers stare. But all admitted that her views, though radical, were in the main correct. She told the ministers in the first place that the church did not adapt its methods to the special needs of the city. The methods wherewith the church has achieved great success in reaching the people in rural communities are entirely inadequate in a large city. In the country town the church is invariably the social center. Whatever of interest takes place in the town is usually held in the church. It is the common center where everyone meets, not alone for spiritual guidance, but for social diversion as well.

People who do not care for religion in the abstract, says Miss Addams, are attracted to the country church. In the city, however, the situation is different. The city houses people of all degrees and life is more complex. The church is compelled to compete with theaters, music halls and social organizations of every kind. The church simply cannot compete if it restricts itself to the usual Sunday services and the weekly prayer meetings. It must give to the great masses of the people in addition to recreation, which they find in the theatre and in the dance hall.

Equally courageous was miss Addams attitude upon the theatre. She has no sympathy with those who denounce the theatre as wholly bad. Indeed, she holds that in many cases the cheap theatres which are located in the vicinity of Hull house and makes the wide distinction that they are unmoral rather than immoral. They are melodramatic in the extreme. They arrive at their ends by allowing an engineer or by rescuing a shrieking girl from the sixth story of a burning building. The plays are sensational, the situations are impossible, but Miss Addams points to the fact that they seem to have no deleterious as the fashionable play which has for its motive some unclean story of domestic life. Indeed, in a way they carry their lesson. Villainy is always hissed and the good is always applauded.

"I would not," says Miss Addams, "make a theatre, but you have got to teach morals and ethics along more attractive lines. I believe if Christ came to earth again and he found the church steeple or the long sermon or the music and singing necessary to attract him, he would hesitate to change it if by so doing he could reach men. The saloons are doubtless an evil and I am no friend of them; yet they do supply a great deal of unimpeded and unstilted good fellowship. The young men and women who work in our shops, stores and offices need their friendship unnatural and give it a professional air. The people detect this readily and resent it."

Miss Addams again told the ministers that they did not sufficiently try to understand the point of view of the working people. The point of view of the church they have souls to be saved. That is true, but the pressing problem of millions of working men is not how they may save their souls, but how may they get a little more physical and mental comfort out of the pres ent life.

Doubtless, says Miss Addams, if they would go to church they would learn much that would help them, but they feel that the church is not organized to reach them or to supply their needs and they do not feel the slightest desire the church to go to them and to show them sympathetically and patiently how it may help them.

It is a radical statement for a Methodist minister to make, but one present said that he had upheld the sentiments of the majority of the ministers at the meeting when he said:

"I believe all Miss Addams said to us is true and more. I know the church is not reaching the masses. Only last week I stood watching a crowd of men building a sewer near my church. I wanted to reach them and say something to them, but I couldn't. It seemed as if a great wall was built between myself and the men in the ditch. We as a church should go among the people. There is more brotherhood in the saloon and the theatre and the mutual benefit society, and I mean to try to have a brotherhood spirit in my church."

Would be Popular Here.

In the island of New Britain a man must not speak to his mother-in-law. Not only is speech forbidden to his relative, but she must be avoided, and if by chance the lady is met the son-in-law must hide himself or cover his face.

Besides a soap trust and many other trusts recently formed we have now to have a brick trust. Of the poet who wrote "Man wants but little here below," were alive in these trust-ful days he'd have to modify his words a little, or else go out of the business entirely

Care of Bees in Winter.

If the bees were properly prepared for winter the preceding autumn, given plenty of good stores, properly protected out of doors, or placed in a cellar or other repository having the proper temperature, and precautions taken against the depredations of mice, they will require almost no care in winter. But if they have gone into winter quarters short of stores, and there are fears that they may be starving, it is better that they be examined, and fed, if it is needed, even though the task is unpleasant. Probably the best method of feeding bees in winter is to give them a frame of honey. All colonies do not consume the same amount of stores, and by examining a number of them, combs of honey can usually be found that can be spared to furnish the needy colonies with stores.

If some colonies must be fed, and honey is not available, the best substitute is a candy made of granulated sugar. Put in sufficient water to dissolve the sugar, then boil the syrup until it will harden in cooling. To learn when to remove the candy from the fire, take out a spoonful every few minutes and allow it to cool. As soon as it is sufficiently hard, remove it from the stove and pour it into shallow dishes to cool. Be careful not to get it too hard. If it is hard enough to retain its form when placed over a colony of bees, that is sufficient. A thin cake of candy is laid directly over the cluster of bees, and covered with a piece of enameled cloth.—W. Z. Hutchinson.

Are Dead Hedges Desirable?

I have had experience with both Osage hedge and barb wire fences, as well as board fences. I know that my hedge fets me by far the most expensive fence that I have.

My advice to the farmers would be, do not set out a hedge for a fence, but if you are unfortunate enough to have one and it is not in good condition, get rid of it as soon as possible. As for the barb wire fence, I believe that the farmers are themselves to blame for the greater part of the accidents. It is no uncommon thing to see a broken wire dangling from a post, or the wires hanging nearly to the ground where the staples have dropped out, or in fact where one or two wires have been put in one and one-half to three feet from the ground to stop a hole in a hedge or willow fence. If good posts are used, properly set and not farther than sixteen feet apart, and make the fence four and one-half feet high, put on eight wires and keep them stretched tight and stapled to the posts, a fence will be secured which will turn any and all ordinary stock. There will be but little danger of animals getting hurt upon it. It will not blow over, and there is but little expense in keeping it up after it has once been erected, as long as the posts are sound. I would prefer such a fence to any hedge that I have ever seen. But if one can afford it, a still better fence is a good wire one, with one barb wire on the top, and the posts not farther than sixteen feet apart.—Charles Prouty.

Notes on Hog Cholera.

It is almost impossible to cure hogs after they are once sick. The only way to be successful is to secure a stock of hogs which are thoroughly vigorous and healthy. To do this, avoid breeding young, immature stock, and do not ignorantly feed improper feeds. Feed healthful foods and give a variety. Always have the water pure. Infection is carried more largely by water than by any other method. Give plenty of salt, ashes, rotten wood, broken tile, mortar, soft coal, etc. Have these where the hogs can get at them at all times. Feed apples, pumpkins, and the like, whenever they are obtainable. If disease should break out among the animals, take away the well ones and put them into a lot that has never been occupied by hogs. Disinfect the quarters of the diseased pig and give extra care and attention.—American Agriculturist.

The Amount of Water in Butter.

The amount of water in butter varies widely. As a general rule, the more water there is in the butter, the poorer its quality and the lower its price. Some of the English courts allow as much as 20 per cent water without considering the butter adulterated, but in this country, butter is not considered of good average quality if it contains much over 15 per cent of water. Out of nearly 600 cases that were exhibited at the permanent Danish butter exhibition, very few had over 15 per cent of water and that was allowed, but all was 13.7. The butter from nineteenths of the cases averaged from 12 to 15 per cent of water, and from nearly half of them from 13 to 14 per cent.—American Agriculturist.

Club Roots and Cabbage.

I have gardened and farmed for seventeen years, and have grown 35,000 cabbages this season; they will average ten pounds per head. Some weigh twenty-two pounds. I can produce club root at will, and I do so destroy it, and can avoid it entirely by exercising care. Too much decomposed vegetable matter will produce it, but the worst of it can be righted by a good application of unslaked lime.—David W. Fox.

During the past year the government inspected 20,000,000 meat animals, an increase over the previous year of more than 50 per cent.

Sheep as Fertilizers.

In New-England some farms have been abandoned because of their sterility. Many of these farms are again becoming fruitful because of the presence of sheep. If you have a semi-barren pasture, feed out a few of sheep and it, or allow them access to it, and while they are feeding give them such food as grain and oil-cake in addition to the pasture, and then note the wonderful influence that this will have upon production. When a flock of ewes are nursing their lambs they may be thus fed. Buy the grain, if you haven't it, from men who will persist in growing wheat and coarse grains and in selling them all, and you will get your land fertilized for nothing. If you cannot afford to feed the cake, sow the food feed it to the lambs. An excellent illustration of the great influence which sheep exercise on the fertility of land is furnished by the farm of O. O. Munson, in Grant County, Minn. He owns a hilly farm, rejoices in the good fields of corn that Mr. Munson grew last season in a country where careful culture and usually something in addition in the form of enrichment are necessary to success in growing corn. Mr. Munson is now looking for a location in Montana for sheep to feed. He wants still further to enrich his land. Those who will grow only grain around him can sell to him. While their returns will grow less, his returns will grow more and more as he goes with all who grow grain only, as compared with those who grow grain and sheep. Especially will this be true of farmers who dwell on hilly soils which are so light that they wash and blow in turn.—Connecticut Farmer.

Manure for Orchards.

The following mixture contains nitrogen, phosphoric acid and soda, and has proved destructive to all grubs and worms that either live in the ground or go into it in order to pass through the state of pupa. As fast as full fledged flies to work their devastation on fruit and foliage, and there lay their eggs for the perpetuation of their kind: Five hundred pounds of quicklime, 300 pounds common salt, 300 pounds powdered sulphur, 100 pounds nitrate of soda. The quicklime should be slaked, the salt then mixed with it and allowed to remain for some thirty days for chemical changes and combinations to take place, in the mean time the sulphur and nitrate of soda times to have it intimately mixed. Then mix with it the powdered phosphate of lime and nitrate of soda.

The mass is then ready for use, and will cost about $8. Use 1,000 pounds of this mixture per acre, and spread broadcast on the orchard. It can also be used on lawn, meadow or pasture in the same quantity.

The use of this mixture not only increases the quality of the fruit, but also gives the fruit a better flavor, a higher quality and larger size, and puts the tree in vigorous condition for future yields. The ingredients can all be easily procured in any quantity at market prices, and the mixing can be done on the farm. It does not deteriorate in quality by keeping.—Andrew H. Ward.

An Unconsidered Point.

Notwithstanding the low price of dairy products, there is still a profit to be made in the business if the proper methods are followed, owing to the extremely low price of feed. The price of butter is low, there is no denying that, but at the same time the price of feed is correspondingly low, and while this is hard upon the man who raises it, yet it will not help him any for the dairyman not to take advantage of this fact.

Butter is nothing but feed in another form, and if feed is low we may sell butter at a low price and still make a profit if we but use skillful methods in turning the feed into butter. When butter hovered around the 30-cent mark, bran at the same time was in the neighborhood of $18 and sometimes $20 a ton in Eastern markets; and now, while butter has dropped to 20 cents, bran has fallen to a like low figure, and can be bought for $10 or $11. Now, if we can cheapen the cost of the actual transformation of the bran into the butter we can still make a profit.

Red Apple Country.

The reported purchase by an English syndicate of 100,000 acres of land in Southern Missouri for colonization purposes is encouragement to believe that at last the peculiar adaptability of the soil and climate of the Ozark region to the culture of apples and other species of the fruit tribe is of commerce is being recognized. Probably the experiment made by Congressman Richard Parks Bland in devoting seventy-five acres of his farm lands to the cultivation of a single variety of apples has spread the fame of the Ozark plateau as "the home of the big red apple" further than the ordinary means of advertising would have reached. The English syndicate is said to have paid only 75 cents an acre for the vast tract which it is going to colonize with Swedes. This must mean that the land so purchased is remote from railroad connection, as we know of no realty close to the railroads which traverse the region indicated that could be acquired for less than $5 an acre.

Profit in Forestry.

*One of the questions which is begin*ning to interest people in the East, and which promises profit to those who study it, is how to grow good timber trees. E. G. Lyman, of New Hampshire, one of the most experienced farmers of New England says that 50,000 feet of pine to the acre can be grown in sixty years, and as it can be grown on waste land the process is worth knowing.

Plant the pine seed, he says, about as thick as we plant corn, so as to have no large, low limbs, but tall smooth-bodied straight trees, and thin them often, so as to keep the trees intended for timber rapidly growing. Often prune these so as to have the butt logs perfectly free from knots to within two inches of the heart, and these knots sound and very small. The limbs should be carefully taken off as fast as they die, and if the trees stand close enough, few or no live limbs will have to be removed. The cost of pruning to twenty feet from the ground is about one and a half cents per tree. The white pine seed in New Hampshire has to be gathered the first week in September, as the cones usually open by the tenth, when the seed drops out. The cones can be very thinly spread on a floor in a dry place, where they will soon open and the seed can be easily beaten out with a stick. The white pine seedling is very liable to be killed by the direct rays of the sun on a hot day and hence need some shade the first two years.

Success With Poultry.

Anyone may attain success in poultry keeping if they will but give their whole proper attention to the past few years, my hens have given me much more than a return for my labor and I have never tried any of the methods advocated by so-called "fanciers," either.

My house is warm and light and I keep it clean and free from vermin. Every morning in winter I give my fowls plenty of clean, fresh water, which I know to be essential, and as much corn, oats, or buckwheat as they will clean up. I buy oyster shells and keep a box filled with them, so that every other morning my hens have a ration of pounded bone and shell and a big sugar beet, split through the middle, every morning. This last they will devour to the rind by night, and seem never to tire of the food. Boiled potatoes and scraps from the table I also find their way to the hen house, and toward night they have all the grain they can eat.

I never feed lard scraps, boughten poultry food or warm mashes, which I understand are the bane of fowls, but nevertheless I get as many eggs in December, January and February as I get in March, April and May.—R. J. Liddle in the Agriculturist.

Millet for Cattle and Horses.

The unfavorable conditions for the hay crop which prevailed over a large part of the country in 1895 and 1896 directed increased attention to millet as a forage crop. It proved highly successful, giving good yields when the work of preparation and seeding was properly done. Well-cured millet hay is relished by horses and cattle. But some caution should be used in feeding it to milch cows, especially if the heads contain much seed, for that condition is the stimulation of the mesenteral glands, and therefore creates a predisposition to mammites or inflammation of the udder. If millet is fed freely and alone, great care must be exercised to keep the cows from exposure to bad weather, especially in sudden transitions from a warm stable to outside cold. On the whole, it is better to feed the millet only once or at most twice a day in alternation with corn fodder, silage or meadow hay. Many serious cases of acute mammites have been traced to the source indicated above.

Ferments in Cheese Making.

For a considerable time butter ferments or starters have been cultivated and sold for use in dairies. Some recent developments are shortly to be made known as to the use of ferments in cheese making. In Scotland in certain districts cheesemakers have been very much injured pecuniarly by the cheese becoming discolored and it was necessary to take steps to ascertain first, the cause, and secondly, a remedy. The inquiries have been successful and the remedy, I learn, has been found in a ferment which it is proposed to cultivate for general distribution. This discovery is due to Prof. Drummond of the Kilmarnock dairy institute. That it may be expected to be a benefit to the dairy is apparent that one dairy alone realized £100 more this season than it would otherwise have done if the cheese had been discolored as in former seasons.

National Pig Feeding.

Careful experiments have shown that the liberal feeding of foods rich in protein—which is the so-called flesh-forming matter of the food—greatly increases the growth of pigs. The reason for this is quite evident and simple. It is that this food so encourages the development of muscular tissue, of which the vital organs mostly consist, that the digestion and assimilation of the food are made much easier and effective: that the food is eaten with better appetite, and is far better digested. In fact, the machinery of the pig is so much improved by this feeding that its work is done much more effectively, and consequently so much more profitably.

OUR FASHION LETTER

SPRING FASHIONS ARE NOW TAKING DEFINITE FORM.

Foulard Pre-eminently the Fabric—It Is Usually Made With a Double Skirt—The Regulation Tailor Made Shirt Waist—The Motor Car Coat.

Definite conclusions as to the fashions for spring are becoming more possible every day. A cynic once said that dress has always been, is and will always be woman's religion, and that she changes it often. It must be admitted that one fashion supplants another in rapid succession, and the feminine mind is ever seeking something new in materials, trimmings and designs, but this only goes to prove that woman is a superior creature. She who follows Fashion in all of her guises is an experiment, and a philosopher has told us that it is the experimenters who move the world. At the same time, some things, by their vast superiority, have become fixtures, and of these is the summer silk. Nothing takes its place in woman's wardrobe, and from early spring until late fall it adapts itself admirably to the coquetry of the to-day hot, to-morrow cool American summer.

The Style in Dress.

Foulard is pre-eminently the fabric for this gown this year, as it was last. A year ago dark and light colored taffetas, in tiny stripes and checks, tried to get an inning, but those who tried them said that gowns of this material is no way compared with those of soft China silk or foulard in point of grace, comfort or durability. With the present soft, clinging styles, taffeta, unless very soft, is out of the question this season, and perhaps that is just as well, for the new foulards are exquisite in texture, design and coloring. Formerly color was the first consideration in foulard gowns; now it is composition of line, as it is in dresses and waists of every kind. This is a technical term, but every woman readily understands that it means that carrying out of a harmonious line which characterizes every new design. The ornamentation of one's frock, be it a severe tailor-made affair or an afternoon toilet, must be in harmony with the most characteristic lines of the form. The long, flowing lines which distinguish many of the new gowns insure a graceful effect even on a naturally clumsy figure.

In Paris dressmakers are combining foulard with cloth, cashmere and canvas, but here, up to this time, no models of this sort have been shown. Foulard is combined with the transparent fabrics such as chiffon, lace and finely embroidered muslin. In point of color all shades of violet have the preference, though the dozen and one blues are considered quite as good style. While the foulard gown is usually made with a double skirt, it and the bodice from one scheme, for what decorates one decorates the other. The curving or straight line is carried up or down from one into the other, and they are not to be considered apart. This is well illustrated in the first model, which is effective when carried out in national blue silk with a cream figure. Bands of three-inch cream insertion are set in at the shoulder seams and continue to the waist line at the back, while in front they have the appearance of running down to the hem of the skirt. The long pointed overdress is so shaped as to show these insertions on the skirt, and is edged with white chiffon ruching. A vest of plain chiffon, outlined with tiny ruchings, finishes the waist.

The skirts of the new foulards are so closely from the waist to some little distance below the knees that it is necessary to make the overdress very long, since nothing in the way of brevity or embellishment can be allowed to interfere with the clinging effect. Even if the overdress is well rounded up on one side, as in most of the imported models, it sweeps away well into the hem of the foundation skirt on the other side and behind. The idea of continuity, so marked a feature in the embellishment of spring gowns, leads up to the princess dress, which, in the softer silks, stops short at what we call the princess effect, a far more practical, useful and becoming method. This half princess, half redingote, is being used a good deal in Paris. Around the hem of soft silk dresses, even those designed for rough-and-ready wear, there may be any amount of fulness and fluffy trimmings; so much, as a matter of fact, that the average woman will have to take a good many lessons in the art of walking before she will be able to get about with any degree of safety or grace. For the space of ten or twelve inches you may indulge in as many flounces or plaitings edged with chiffon ruchings or lace or muslin appliques as you have a mind to.

Broad guipure collars, fastened on one side with black velvet loops and crystal buttons trim some of the foulard gowns; others are made exceedingly rich looking by the introduction of bands of embroidered satin on waist and skirt. The bolero, which is in general favor, also has its place on the summer silk, but is usually of heavy lace.

Man often wonders how woman can give her mind so completely to the breezy fantasies of spring, while winter still forces keen east winds and biting frosts on her attention; neither can he understand how she can think of thin summer silks, much less have them made, when the warmth of heavy gowns and furs is still most acceptable. When it comes to the subject of fashion, woman always thinks, talks and plans ahead of time, and this is well, for, as it is, by the soonest dressmakers and tailors will be so overwhelmed with work that everybody will be complaining that no one can get anything to wear. In the meantime it is well for women to be very careful not to turn one way or the other, nor to listen to this, that and the other rumor, and not to pay the least attention to the whims of advocates of extreme styles, but to wear outright for the very latest fashion which Paris sends, and that is the cloth gown. Every woman who desires to be smart has already, or will have this spring, a cloth gown, and every week finds something new, in minor modifications, in cloth models. Very fine cloths in the most delicate colors, as well as the darker shades, are ready to appear. The plain cloth skirt has justified all predictions, for it remains triumphant, having ousted shaped flounces, overdresses and even tunics from the field. This skirt is perfect in fit and does not tolerate one faulty detail. Indeed, the dress appears to be simply moulded to fit the dress, and of the skirt has a very full and graceful flow about the feet. Right here it might be well to say a word about the petticoat, for upon its perfect fit largely depends that of the skirt. Of course, it is gored and closely fitted around the hips; furthermore, the very newest design is absolutely without fulness at the waist line in the back, fastening at the side in front. In color it should bear out some detail of the costume.

White cloth gowns are already being much used for at homes in the Lenten season, and for early spring this material is no way compared with those of soft China silk or foulard in point of grace, comfort or durability. With the present soft, clinging styles, taffeta, unless very soft, is out of the question this season, and perhaps that is just as well, for the new foulards are exquisite in texture, design and coloring. Formerly color was the first consideration in foulard gowns; now it is composition of line, as it is in dresses and waists of every kind. This is a technical term, but every woman readily understands that it means that carrying out of a harmonious line which characterizes every new design. The ornamentation of one's frock, be it a severe tailor-made affair or an afternoon toilet, must be in harmony with the most characteristic lines of the form. The long, flowing lines which distinguish many of the new gowns insure a graceful effect even on a naturally clumsy figure.

In Paris dressmakers are combining foulard with cloth, cashmere and canvas, but here, up to this time, no models of this sort have been shown. Foulard is combined with the transparent fabrics such as chiffon, lace and finely embroidered muslin. In point of color all shades of violet have the preference, though the dozen and one blues are considered quite as good style. While the foulard gown is usually made with a double skirt, it and the bodice from one scheme, for what decorates one decorates the other. The curving or straight line is carried up or down from one into the other, and they are not to be considered apart. This is well illustrated in the first model, which is effective when carried out in national blue silk with a cream figure. Bands of three-inch cream insertion are set in at the shoulder seams and continue to the waist line at the back, while in front they have the appearance of running down to the hem of the skirt. The long pointed overdress is so shaped as to show these insertions on the skirt, and is edged with white chiffon ruching. A vest of plain chiffon, outlined with tiny ruchings, finishes the waist.

The skirts of the new foulards are so closely from the waist to some little distance below the knees that it is necessary to make the overdress very long, since nothing in the way of brevity or embellishment can be allowed to interfere with the clinging effect. Even if the overdress is well rounded up on one side, as in most of the imported models, it sweeps away well into the hem of the foundation skirt on the other side and behind. The idea of continuity, so marked a feature in the embellishment of spring gowns, leads up to the princess dress, which, in the softer silks, stops short at what we call the princess effect, a far more practical, useful and becoming method. This half princess, half redingote, is being used a good deal in Paris. Around the hem of soft silk dresses, even those designed for rough-and-ready wear, there may be any amount of fulness and fluffy trimmings; so much, as a matter of fact, that the average woman will have to take a good many lessons in the art of walking before she will be able to get about with any degree of safety or grace. For the space of ten or twelve inches you may indulge in as many

FASHION HINTS.

Lovely Silks For the Up to Date Woman's Wear.

It would seem that the silken fabrics produced during the winter could not be surpassed for beauty, but certainly some of those just prepared for use appear to excel them. Upon white or delicately tinted grounds are printed antique or grisgris with a woven, self colored figure are thrown printed designs of a chine character of the most exquisite coloring and composition. The designs are floral and seem to be melting into the fabric, so delicate is their coloring. Although the flowers themselves are not very large, they appear in large sprays or garlands, sometimes forming a vague stripe. Of course gowns of such elaborately decorated fabrics require hardly any trimming, as ornamentation would obscure the pattern. They are perfectly cut and fitted and are made preferably in the princess style, that fashion allowing the largest unbroken surface of goods.

The usual navy or Yale blue silk with white designs is seen in more profusion than ever this year. It has been worn for many summers, and, being very serviceable and generally becoming, it seems to enjoy a permanent vogue. The designs are chiefly of an arbitrary character this time—broken lines, curves and geometrical suggestions, placed close enough together so that the ground is well covered.

SILK PETTICOAT.

The picture illustrates a petticoat of pink and white broche silk. It has a deep flounce of white surah, ornamented with lace insertions and ruffle and groups of small tucks. The corset is of pink satin, and the corset cover is a little sleeveless bolero of pink surah, trimmed with lace and insertion and tied in a knot in front.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

SPRING GOWNS.

New Developments For the Coming Season.

A new fancy for covering gowns is the employment of black net over white silk or satin. The net is usually embroidered, and sometimes several thicknesses of mousseline de soie of different shades are used with narrow bands of cloth; again it is worn over a kilt plaited skirt of silk. The most striking of these redingotes, as they are called in Paris, fall in a point at the back. Another item is the trimming of the sides and back of cloth skirts with a series of narrow velvet ribbon ruffles, for about a foot above the hem. The front of such skirts is stitched on in panel effect.

The silk blouse and the cotton shirt waist are receiving much attention just now, for one of the chief of their many uses is to tide their devotees over from one season to another. A number of smart models in silk and wash materials are shown in this group. In silk the pure white waist is the swell thing, provided it is stylishly made and trimmed with marked simplicity. Elaborate embellishment of any sort is no longer tolerated, and all waists must be made with the long line in front. Many of the cotton waists are made of fine lawn, tucked all over in bias or straight up and down tucks, and are finished with small revers and a fancy collar. The sleeves of such waists are not made like the ordinary shirt waist sleeve, but are tucked at the top and finished at the hand with a flaring tufcked cuff. Other white waists show insertions of embroidery, and still others are made of all over Swiss embroidery and Valenciennes lace and are worn over colored silk linings.

Some Stylish Sleeves.

Practical women favor more highly the regulation tailor-made shirt waist, which is fashioned this year of plain or striped madras and figured or satin striped pique. Bayadere stripes are out of favor.

BENGALINE GOWN.

being completed by a bolero of velvet of a darker tone. It comes down to the waist line and opens in front to show a yoke or plastron.

The illustration shows a costume of red bengaline. The skirt has two circular flounces trimmed with bands of black satin. The pointed bodice is ornamented with black embroidery and has revers of black satin, which open over a cravat and jabot of embroidered white tulle. The close sleeves have bands of black satin at the top and wrist. The round hat of black straw is decorated with a long black plume, a bow of red satin and a gold buckle.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

THE WOMAN'S WORLD

Care of the Hands.

A little attention at night before retiring will work wonders with the most neglected hands. Wash them in warm soft water, using plenty of good soap to get them clean. Ivory soap is excellent for toilet purposes, because of its purity. When thoroughly cleansed, anoint with a lotion made as follows: One-half ounce of glycerine, one-half an ounce of bay rum, one-eighth ounce benroin, one-fourth ounce vaseline, one-fourth ounce of borax. Rub this well into the skin and put on a pair of loose gloves to sleep in. This treatment will keep them soft and white.

It is not necessary to pay for the services of a professional manicure, for with a few tools and a little practice you can do the work quite as well yourself. Buy a pair of curved nail scissors, a small file with a handle, a nail polisher, a box of paste and one of polishing powder. After the hands are washed push the skin back from the nails with a pointed stick of hard wood or an instrument made of ivory and sold for that purpose. Trim the nails evenly and smooth the edges with the file. Rub a little paste on each nail, dust with the powder, then rub lightly with the polisher. This should be done once a week, and after the nails are in good condition it will require very little work to keep them so.

The Queen's Maids of Honor.

The duties of Queen Victoria's maids of honor are by no means light. During their period of service, they must be in readiness to appear before her majesty immediately after breakfast. The first task of the day is to read aloud marked passages in a great pile of daily papers. As soon as this reading is over, the maid in attendance has to hurry away and dress herself for a drive with her royal mistress. After lunch there generally comes a leisure space; but even then one cannot leave the palace, as she may be called upon to walk or drive with the queen during the afternoon. If, however, her majesty goes out alone, the maid is free until six o'clock. Then, as a rule, there is more reading. Sometimes the order is changed, and the maid of honor may have a pile of photographs or sketches to arrange; if not, the charity needlework, upon which her majesty spends so much time, is brought out and she works on it until it is time to dress for dinner. The long suffering waiting lady then gets another brief respite, as the queen dines without her. The position needs culture, patience and tact to enable them to discharge their duties successfully.—Puritan.

A Two-Inch Traveling Clock.

The newest traveling clock comes in a leather case only two inches long. It is a decided thing of beauty as well as one of the novelties of the season. The face of the clock is only as large as a ten cent piece, and it forms the center of an enamelled flower.

As far as such appearances go, the new travelling clock might easily be mistaken for a court plaster case. It was made to be carried in the pocket.

When the case is opened an enamelled flower is seen, in the center of which is the timepiece. The case is so arranged that the part which carries the flower may be pulled out and made to stand up, thus forming a unique little desk clock.

These clocks come incased in three spring styles, the close fitting, pointed bodice coming to the front once more in most costumes. The bolero, which had fallen into the background more or less, is again in evidence, many cloth costumes

Cocoa Icing

Cocoa is now much used in the place of chocolate for icing cake. The icing is made by beating the whites of two eggs and mixing with them nearly a cupful of powdered sugar. Add two teaspoonsful of cocoa. An icing that many prefer is made without any eggs. Boil four tablespoonsful of granulated sugar with the same quantity of water for a minute, then add a teaspoonful of vanilla, and two tablespoonsful of cocoa, boil a minute longer, and the icing will be ready to use.

"No," said the man who is careful not to overstate, "I will not say that since I have been learning the wheel I have become a new man, but I can truthfully state that I have been compelled to grow at least ten square inches of new cuticle."—Boston Herald.

CHILDREN'S COSTUMES.

Gowns For the Use of Little and Big Girls.

Large girls are dressed in very much the same fashion as their newly young ladyfied sisters, the difference often consisting solely in the length of the skirt. A girl under 21 is always supposed to dress with simplicity, but the schoolgirl's costume must be as correct and free from vagary as if she were long gowns. With children, on the contrary, something a little fanciful is desirable, lively opposition of color and quaint design being entirely suitable for little people while they are really little. Plainness of design is always in the best taste, and no style of making should be chosen which interfered with the comfort or the free movement of the child. Up to the age of 7 years the Mother Hubbard gown may be worn, although the old fashioned frocks having a skirt and bodice sewed to a belt are now fashionably revived. The soft sash tied at the back is as much in vogue again as ever. Plaids and dotted or flowered goods are used, and there are exquisite corded dimities, with the tiniest possible figures in blue, pink or yellow, which make the daintiest of hot weather frocks, cool and easily laundered. A little child should have many of these, that they may be frequently changed; therefore simplicity of style is essential. They require little trimming, narrow valenciennes lace and tones rather of the same material as the gown being quite enough.

GIRL'S COSTUME.

The picture shows a girl's dress of Scotch plaid in which red predominates. The skirt is trimmed with a band of guipure over red satin. The bodice has red satin revers crossed in front, bordered with tucked tulle and ruffles

The Constitutionalist.

A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.

PUBLISHED AT

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Terms—$2.00 per year.

A. L. Force, Editor and Proprietor

Playing Poker in Plainfield.

According to the decision of the Councilmanic police committee, as told in the news columns of this paper today, these seductive and ubiquitous poker parties, which heretofore have been the cause of numerous and exciting raids by the police, will hereafter go on uninterrupted if the players are sequestered in a private house that is not known or cannot be proven to be a regular gambling house.

The action of the Honorable Councilmen has not been taken with a view of condoning or protecting indiscriminate gambling in poker and sundry games of chance, but the arrival at an understanding with the law. For several years past it has been a practice of the police to make raids on poker parties, etc., in private houses, and to arraign the players, or such of them as had not vamoosed through windows, blind doors and under beds, before the city cadi. Almost invariably a conviction has resulted. In pursuance of this policy the police made a raid of a West End house two weeks ago and gathered in several men whom they charged with gambling in violation of the city ordinances.

When the prisoners were arraigned the officers offered the usual run of testimony, but Judge Runyon declared that the police had not acted as the law directed and he therefore discharged the prisoners, much to the astonishment of the officers.

In view of the gossip over the outcome of the raid and the unfavorable position the involved policemen were placed in, it was decided by the police committee that it would be best to have a strict understanding with the law. And they followed the formal charges made against the officers, which resulted in a little quiet and thorough summing up of the city ordinances. The result was that Judge Runyon's position was found to be perfectly correct.

The decision of the police committee will doubtless have a tendency to make the police more careful in making raids in the future similar to those that have taken place in the past, but because quiet games will be tolerated in private houses it does not mean that Plainfield is going to become a veritable little Monte Carlo. The ordinance is broad and effective enough to prevent Plainfield's name from becoming a reproach to an orderly and respectable community.

Municipal elections will be held Tuesday of next week in Newark, Jersey City, Paterson, Trenton, Hoboken and other North Jersey cities, and much interest is being manifested in the result. Each party is making a most determined effort for victory. The Republicans have strong hopes of carrying Newark, Paterson and Trenton, and reducing the Democratic majority in Jersey City. A Republican triumph would mean an endorsement of the record made by the late Legislature, while a defeat would signify its condemnation. The Democrats, on the other hand, feel confident of a victory in nearly all of the contests.

Josephus Shann, who has been one of the pillars of Union county Democracy for these many years, and is of the old Jeffersonian school, has been prevailed upon to accept the Mayoralty nomination of the party in Rahway. Mr. Shann is one of the old time editors of New Jersey, and for many years was one of the leaders in this section of the State. Mr. Shann merits the confidence of the voters; if he is elected he will be a Democrat, but not one that will ilily consider the needs of the office he has been nominated for.

In years gone by we have heard much about the splendid things that might be expected if the tin plate industry was only fostered under the benign protection of a high tariff One of the splendid results buyers of tinplate are now enjoying is the payment of $4 per box where only $2 85 was demanded six months ago. It is impossible to believe, however, that the tin plate trust has anything to do with the rates, for doesn't our own Governor aver that trusts make products cheaper rather than higher.

Somerville is engaged in a struggle to raise a sufficient sum of money to build a hospital. The endless chain is one of the schemes resorted to, and already it has been productive of much cash. As a rule we look upon the endless chain business as an unmitigated nuisance, but when it is engaged in such an undertaking as seeking to raise funds for hospital it is a noble work that deserves success.

On the Right Tack.

Another newspaper of power and respectability has been added to the ranks of independent Journalism in New Jersey. It is the Newark Daily Advertiser, which for many years was the subservient tool of politicians and other personages who had axes to grind in public channels. But that is of the past; today the Advertiser is a creator and leader in honest journalistic thought.

Newark is now on the threshhold of an exciting and important municipal campaign, but the Advertiser is not at the beck and call of men who would use it only for their personal advancement and aggrandizement. It is independent in action and arrayed for whoever is on the people's side. But it is not niggardly in its professions of devotion to the public weal and therefore it announces that its colums are open to both sides for communications of decent language and reasonable length. That is the idea that has characterised the policy of The Daily Press ever since it has been in existence, and we are in a position to say that it is eminently popular and satisfactory one. The fact The Daily Press leads in the amount of business transacted by local newspapers, and that it is recognized as the most influential paper in Plainfield, demonstrates beyond peradventure that independent journalism is the best

The success of the Advertiser under its present management, both in relation to the business that it does and the influence that it wields, shows that it is on the right tact. If it continues along that line it will continue to prosper and grow

What May Happen.

The North Jersey Enterprise, published at Roselle, indulges in some inside information about Republican politics in Union county, and avers that Assemblyman Squire will not be a candidate for renomination next fall. The Enterprise ascribes his decision to retire to the fact that there is "so much talk about Elizabeth 'hogging' all the offices."

But the Hon. Natie George is not to retire altogether from politics nor is he going to smother his aspirations in other directions. The Enterprise sums it up in this way: "So much bitterness of feeling has been roused over the matter that it is said that Assemblyman George A. Squire, whose home is at Elizabeth, and who is unfortunate in his environments, has about decided not to try to secure a re election this fall. It is said by his friends that he will bow his head before the storm which has been raised, and that he will be content provided he is given a place on the Republican ticket by the next Republican convention as a candidate for some county office instead of being again a candidate for the Legislature."

This leads the Enterprise to say further: "Speaking of 'favorite sons,' what is the matter with James W Hope, of Roselle, as the Republican candidate for the Assembly, to succeed George A. Squire?"

The Cranford Chronicle observes that if some of the tradesmen of that town would follow the example of a Plainfield business man and post a placard on their desks stating that "the credit department is on the roof; take the elevator," the wolf would not poke his nose so persistently through the store doors.

The Philadelphia Record thinks that with wars, rumors of wars and Algerism turning his hair grey, President McKinley appears to be still hunting trouble. He has announced to his Cabinet that he will soon leave a civil service order placing 6,000 offices at the disposal of Republican spoilsmen

---

"Valuable franchises should not be given away gratis, and they should not be allowed to pass out of the hands of the people." Such are the words of Russell Sage—good, sound sense, but surprising from such a man as he. The man who would have prophesied that Russell Sage would have given voice to such an utterance a decade ago would have been considered a fit candidate for inquiry into his mental condition; and yet those who now predict that certain things may transpire in another ten years along the same line that Sage's expressed sentiment, are called the veriest socialists and anarchists.

The Raleigh News and Observer says that "the rising tide of indignation against trusts is not based upon antagonism to wealth legally acquired and honestly employed. It is not shared in alone by the poor, but by all those of moderate fortunes and many of the rich who have no desire to use their wealth to oppress their fellows, to destroy avenues of success to young men or to see the laws against monopoly set at defiance by men who are the outlaws of commerce."

DRINK GRAIN-O

after you have concluded that you ought not to drink coffee. It is not a medicine that does you good but it is a beverage that does good, because it is healthy, invigorating and appetizing. It is made from pure grain—and just as rich and delicious to the taste as the finest grades of coffee and costs about one quarter as much. Children like it and drink it because it is a genuine food drink and contains nothing but cereal honor. Ask your grocer for Grain-O, the new food drink. 15 and 25c.

The Law and Gambling.

As possibly might be expected, Judge Runyon's interpretation of the city ordinances in reference to gambling has caused curious views to be taken outside of Plainfield in that connection, and here is one of them taken from the Paterson Press:

Plainfield's police will make no more raids on private poker parties. The city authorities have decided that the law applies only to regular gambling dens, conducting a revenue either directly or indirectly from the game. For games in private parties, even with money for stakes, still to be subject to interruption by the city's guardians. If this is the right interpretation of the law the way of the men who run poker joints should be easy if they have a modicum of shrewdness. All that is necessary for them to escape punishment is to conduct their business in a place sufficiently equipped with a bed and other furniture to give the appearance of domesticity and to swear that it is a "private" house. The co-ordinance of the dangerous revenue feature should not be difficult. Under the common law gambling is unlawful anywhere and any time, and this fine distinction must remain one of those mysteries that baffle even the men who are learned in the great social science.

The apprehension that The Press exhibits for the welfare and good morals of Plainfield in respect to gambling is scarcely warranted by a knowledge of the situation. While it is a fact that indiscriminate raids of alleged gambling houses by the police and subsequent sentences to the county jail or payment of heavy fines on flimsy evidence is a thing of the past under Judge Runyon's ruling, it is not so that the way of the men who run poker joints should be easy if they have a modicum of shrewdness."

Both the common law and the city ordinances are ample in power to cope with illegal practices, and it is not to be expected that Plainfield is degenerating because Judge Runyon has fitted his work in with the law.

The Fire Department.

Like many other municipal safeguards of life and property the fire department is peculiar. There are times when there is apparently no use for it; and again there are times when it is needed in the very worst way. When the flames threaten the lives of his dear ones and the welfare of his property, the interested citizen begins to realize that funds invested in a good fire department are not thrown away.

While the appropriation in this city for the fire department is larger than heretofore, the increase seems justified by circumstances. It provides for the formation of a partially paid department instead of the old volunteer system, a change that is greatly needed. The ordinance, providing for the change, is now before the Common Council and there seems no doubt but that it will be passed.

The introduction of the "call" system is recommended by the fire committee of the Council. It is a wise measure. The committee makes several other recommendations that are not quite so wise. It proposes to reduce the force in the central part of the city and equip the new house in the West End. Past experience has not shown that there is a bit too much apparatus centrally located.

The city is advised to sell the West Second street engine house and devote the money therefrom to a fund for a new house when necessary. Even if the house is not absolutely needed at present, it is only a question of a comparatively short time before the city will have another house. The engine house could be disposed of for very little while a new site would be decidedly expensive.

A Washington correspondent of the Newark News, who has made a study of the Vice-Presidential situation in the Republican party as affecting Mr. Hobart, declares that the New Jersey man is really desirous of a second term. If Mr. Hobart should not be put tail to the National Republican kite, it is calculated that he would become an active candidate for election as successor to United States Senator Sewell. The news correspondent says that Mr. Hobart does not want to be instrumental in preventing General Sewell from being honored again. The high office of Vice-President, the social surroundings, the business opportunities, and the certainty of being President should Mr McKinley be so unfortunate as to die in office are great temptations to a man of ambition, such as the Vice-President, than to be simply a member of a body that he has presided over.

The more that Alger bears about himself and the army scandals the more determined he seems to face it out. At the proper time he may be kicked out.

The legislative committee appointed to investigate the affairs of New York city will be Mose-backed, but up-to-date at the same time.

The Los Angles Heardl suggests that "the Philippine Islands may yet prove a Philippi to Wm. McKinley."

There are too many men who are only friends of good government when they are part of the consideration.

—Rev Dr. A E Main will teach the Sunday-school next week Monday afternoon before the Primary Teachers' Union. The topic is "Memories of Bethany."

THE AMUSEMENT WORLD

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

Music Hall will take on an unusual degree of interest tomorrow, for it will be transformed into an immense reservoir of "Natural Gas," for the stage hands benefit. It was struck several years ago by H Grattan Donnelly, the author. The comedy is a satire on the "fake speculations" The plot is exceedingly funny. The story is told by unusually brisk, interesting conversation, and the various amusing situations are reached without tiresome explanations, the surprise of their advent adding much to their enjoyableness. "Natural Gas," with Eddie Girard at the head of a very strong cast of funmakers, is sure to prove one of the most enjoyable engagements of the season. Eddie Girard has long been a favorite comedian, and in the deliciously funny role of Policeman Whirlem O'Rourke introduces this season new specialties and many clever bits of character work that have so far created a furore of merriment.

* * * * * *

"In Gay Paree" has opened the spring season at the Casino, in New York, where it seems likely to remain for several weeks, or perhaps until it is time to seek recreation on the roof. For spectacular purposes the anti nuptial adventures of the betrothed young couple are excellent. The oddly advised preliminary honeymoon trip around the suburbs of Paris brings the family party upon scenes of revelry at one place and of rural festivity at another, in the illustration of which the management have gone to an expense extreme with results that are delightful and surprising. The romp and revel at the Cafe Robinson, Act 1, and the Wine-Growers festival at Argenteuil, Act 2, are resplendent achievements and long to be remembered. The magnificence of the pageantry is simply overwhelming.

* * * * * *

The next attraction which will occupy the attention of the patrons of Music Hall Saturday matinee and evening comprises a superb production of Mrs Frances Hodgson Burnett's masterpiece, "Little Lord Fauntleroy" (by special arrangement with Samuel French), with America's greatest little actors, the Smedley children, Masters Ellis and Edwin alternating in the title role. These are the children who, during the past two years have jointly starred in this parsonage domestic drama. Each member of the supporting company of players has been chosen, because of his or her special aptness for the part assigned. The management desires particularly to call the attention of the public to the signal distinction of the Smedley children. They so divide their work, that while one brother is taking his rest, the other is entertaining the audience as the "Little Lord Fauntleroy" and it frequently happens that the brothers alternate in playing the acts of the piece during the performance. The effect of this careful alternating in the title role is to continue the stars in the best of rosey health and spirits all the time.

* * * * * *

Colonel William F. Cody (Buffalo Bill) is always kept busy during the winter months preparing some new illustration of an historical event which would give both old and new an object lesson that would be of more value, educationally, than all the books and writers combined. This year Colonel Cody gives an illustration of the heroic charge on San Juan hill that is startling in its realism.

The entire Wild West company participates, and 1,200 horses and men will be seen in the battle. The real fight lasted for twelve hours, but for the illustration the management has selected only the most desperate movements. Enough is shown, however, to give the auditor a splendid idea of the eventful affair. Real Rough Riders, who served with Col. Roosevelt, take part in the exhibition, as well as Cuban warriors and scouts.

Indians, cowboys, American soldiers, German Cuirassiers, the Queen's own lancers, Cossacks and others are seen in feats of horsemanship and exhibition drills. The season opened in Madison Square Garden, and will continue for two weeks and four days.

Working for Roselle.

H. C. VanEmburgh, of East Second street, has been engaged by the borough of Roselle to take charge of the improvements to be made on Chestnut street there. The work was started today.

Mrs. Elmore D. Moffett, of Orchard place, is visiting relatives out of town.

Charles Stites, of New York, was the guest of friends in the borough Sunday.

Miss Bessie Randolph, of Belleview avenue, is visiting friends in New York.

George F. Coard, of East Ninth street, is spending a few days in New York.

QUEEN WILHELMINA.

STORIES OF HOLLAND'S YOUNG AND POPULAR SOVEREIGN

She Says that She Will Choose Her Own Husband, and that No State Matchmakers Need Apply—She is Intensely Loyal to Her Race.

When Queen Victoria inherited the British throne she was scarcely more popular than is the young Queen of Holland at the present moment. The Dutch simply adore their young sovereign, and take the most intense interest in her coming of age (which will take place next August), and in her possible marriage. Queen Wilhelmina is credited by her people with much force of character. It is thought that she will attempt to rule as well as reign, and her choice of a husband is therefore a matter of utmost importance to the Dutch. The "Wochen Zeitung," Amsterdam, says on this subject:

"The many rumors of the Queen's approaching marriage are premature. More than once she has declared that she would prefer to remain single as long as possible. At any rate, it is certain that the Queen will choose for herself. She will not be railroaded into marriage. Only recently she said: I love my loyal subjects, and hope to please them in every way. But if they believe that they have a voice in the choice of my husband, they are decidedly mistaken. If extreme members should be resorted to against me, I shall be more energetic than ever. I will not be married at all if I am not allowed to have a voice in the matter."

So far the Dutch people are rather pleased with these expressions of independence. They are, however, anxious to have certain legal formalities settled before the Queen comes of age. The "Courant," Rotterdam, writes as follows:

"It will be necessary to define the position of the Queen before the law, to remove the conflict between the Queen's position as head of the state and his wife, and it is best that this should be done before she has chosen a husband. According to the civil code the wife is bound to obey her husband, and the latter has a *right to de*pend that his children should be called by his name. More. The husband can compel his wife to reside in whatever place he thinks fit to choose as his abode. The Queen is not above the law; she must obey it as well as her subjects. The rights of the Prince Consort would therefore clash with the constitution, for the seat of government may not constitutionally be transferred to a foreign country. The Queen's exceptional position should be defined by special legislation while she is yet free."

Although there are many points of similarity between the position of the Queen of England and that of the Queen of Holland, there has sprung up between the two countries an estrangement since Wilhelmina inherited the throne of Holland. For some unaccountable reason the young Queen has a violent aversion of everything English. The British press returns this dislike with interest. "Her figure is ungainly, her lips are bloodless," etc., are things we read of her in "Life" and other English society papers. These descriptions are reported to her and do not assist her in overcoming her dislike of Englishmen. The "Vaderland" relates the following incident:

"During a recent tour abroad the Queen expressed a wish to the Dutch Ambassador accredited to a foreign court to meet his daughters. 'I do so wish to meet some Dutch girls,' she said. 'I am just dying for some one to speak to in my own language. Do send your daughters to me.' 'But my daughters do not speak Hollandish,' replied the unfortunate nobleman. 'My girls are not born in Holland; they only speak English.' Then, for heaven's sake, do not send them to me,' replied Queen Wilhelmina, wrathfully. 'I will have nothing to do with Dutch girls who do not understand their own language!"

Wanted Spices of Variety in Life.

The expression of his face showed that he was easily irritated, and the contractor into whose office he walked braced himself for trouble.

"I wish," said the irritable man, "that you would do me a favor in connection with the work on my house."

"Anything that we can do will be cheerfully attended to," replied the contractor.

"Thank you. I wish you'd send a new man to do the painting."

"But the one we have there is an excellent workman."

"I don't doubt that. But he's been there three days and he hasn't whistled anything but 'Tell Them that You Saw Me.' I'm pretty slow at catching a tune, but I've learned that with all the variations, and if it's just the same to you I'd like to start in on a new one."—Washington Star.

A Wise Precaution.

Mr. Williams: "Wha' yo' doin' dat fo', Mr. Jo'son—puttin' mosquito nets up dis time in de year?"

Mr. Johnson: "Waal, yo' see de doctor he done tole me I'd orter fill of dese yer micro bees; so I's takin' precotions agin gittin' 'em into de house."

A Soft Language.

The Turkish language is said by scholars to be the softest and most musical language of modern times, being better adapted to the purpose of musical notation and recitation than even the Italian.

By washing the clothes at the undertaker's the second wife of a Bangor, Me., man is paying off the bill for the burial of her predecessor.

CLEARING SALE

OF

PIANOS

We are Closing

out a number of of good second hand pianos at extremely low prices, and on easy terms of payment. Now is the time to get a bargain.

7 Octave Square.....$ 40
7⅓ " " 70
7⅓ " Upright..... 150
7⅓ " " 165
7⅓ " Hallett & Davis 190
7⅓ " " 210

ON PAYMENTS $3 to $8 MONTHLY.

Lot of good second-hand Organs at $20 $25 and upward, $4 per month.

A large assortment of elegant new

Hallet & Davis

UPRIGHT PIANOS.

$300 and up, and 3 years' time if you want it. Other makes—Cabinet Grands, all improvements, $225—$7 per month.

Free music and Catalogue for the asking.

THE W. F. TWAY PIANO CO.,

94 Fifth Avenue, New York.

JAS. M. DUNN,

Dealer in

GROCERIES,
PROVISIONS, VEGETABLES,
FRUITS &c

GARDEN SEEDS

fresh and carefully selected.

224 PARK AVENUE,

OPPOSITE NORTH AVENUE.

Everything usually found in a first-class grocery.

Goods delivered free of charge.

Woolston & Buckle,

PAINTERS.

Wall Papers, Painters' Supplies

141-145 North avenue.

GEORGE W. DAY,

General Auctioneer.

Sales of Personal Property solicited P. O. Box 132, Dunellen, N J., or address in care of Constitutionalist. Terms reasonable.

W. R. CODINGTON,

Counsellor-at-Law

Commissioner of Deeds, Master in chancery, Notary Public. Offices Corne of Park avenue and Second street.

HUMPHREYS' VETERINARY SPECIFICS

100 PAGE BOOK MAILED FREE.

CONTENTS:

Part I.—Diseases of Horses.
Part II.—Diseases of Cattle.
Part III.—Diseases of Sheep.
Part IV.—Diseases of Hogs.
Part V.—Diseases of Dogs.
Part VI.—Diseases of Poultry.

Same book in better binding $0 cts. HUMPHREYS' MED. CO., Cor. William & John Sts., New York.

Children cutting Teething

Mrs. Winslow's has been used for over Fifty Soothing Syrup Years by Millions of Mothers for their Children while Teething, with Perfect Success. It Soothes the Child, Softens the Gums, Allays all Pain, Cures Wind Colic, and is the best remedy for Diarrhœa.

Sold by druggists in every part of the world. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup." Twenty-five cents a bottle.

Arrival and Departure of Mails

NEW YORK MAILS.

Arrive—7:30, 8:30, 10:30, 11:30 a. m., 2:00, 4:30, 6:30 p. m.
Close—7:30, 9:15 a. m., 12:30, 2:30, 5:30, 7:30 p.m.

SOMERVILLE & EASTON.

Arrive—8:30 a. m., 2:00 and 6:15 p. m.
Close—7:30 a. m., 12:30 and 4:00 p. m.

PHILADELPHIA—Direct.

Arrive—6:00 and 11:30 a. m., 2:00 and 8:00 p. m.
Close—7:30 and 9:15 a. m., 5:30 p. m.
Through fast mail for West and South, close 8:30 and 7:30 p. m.

WARRENVILLE.

Arrive—12:30 p. m. Close—7:30 a. m.

SUNDAY MAILS.

Office open from 8:30 to 10:30 a. m.
Mail closes at 6:15 p. m.

E. H. BIRD, P. M

Central R. R. of New Jersey

Anthracite Coal Used Exclusively, Insuring Cleanliness and Comfort.

Stations in New York, Foot of Liberty, and South Ferry Whitehall Streets.

TIME TABLE IN EFFECT NOV. 20th, 1898.

PLAINFIELD AND NEW YORK.

Leave Plainfield 3 34, 5 37, 6 37, 7 38, 7 50, 8 37, 9 38, 10 38, 11 38 a. m., 12 38 noon, 1 38, 2 38, 3 38, 4 38, 4 54, 5 37, 6 38, 7 38, 8 38, 9 38, 10 37, 11 38 p. m., 12 38 a. m. Sundays, 3 34, 5 37, 6 37, 7 38, 8 38, 9 38, 10 37, 11 38 a. m., 12 38 noon, 1 38, 2 38, 3 38, 4 38, 5 37, 6 38, 7 38, 8 38, 9 38, 10 37, 11 38 p. m., 12 38 a. m.

Leave New York, foot Liberty St, 6 40, 8 00, 9 00, 10 00, 11 00 a. m., 12 noon, 1 00, 2 00, 3 00, 4 00, 4 30, 5 00, 5 30, 6 00, 6 30, 7 00, 8 00, 9 00, 10 00, 11 00 p. m., 12 00 midnight. Sundays, 8 00, 9 00, 10 00, 11 00 a. m., 12 noon, 1 00, 2 00, 3 00, 4 00, 5 00, 6 00, 7 00, 8 00, 9 00, 10 00, 11 00 p. m., 12 00 midnight.

Leave Plainfield and Netherwood for New York, 5 37, 6 38, 7 38, 8 38, 9 38, 10 37, 11 38 a. m., 12 noon, 1 38, 2 38, 3 38, 4 38, 5 37, 6 38, 7 38, 8 38, 9 38, 10 37, 11 38 p. m., 12 38 a. m. Sundays, 9 38, 10 38, 11 38 a. m., 12 noon, 1 38, 2 38, 3 38, 4 38, 5 37, 6 38, 7 38, 8 38, 9 38, 10 37, 11 38 p. m., 12 38 a. m.

Leave Newark for Elizabeth, 6 15, 7 30, 8 00, 8 30, 9 00, 10 00, 11 00 a. m., 12 noon, 1 00, 2 00, 3 00, 4 00, 4 30, 5 00, 5 30, 6 00, 6 30, 7 00, 8 00, 9 00, 10 00, 11 00 p. m., 12 00 midnight. Sundays, 8 00, 9 00, 10 00, 11 00 a. m., 12 noon, 1 00, 2 00, 3 00, 4 00, 5 00, 6 00, 7 00, 8 00, 9 00, 10 00, 11 00 p. m., 12 00 midnight.

Connections for Newark please change car at Elizabeth

PLAINFIELD AND BOUND BROOK.

Leave Plainfield 6 38, 7 38, 8 38, 9 38, 10 37, 11 38 a. m., 12 noon, 1 38, 2 38, 3 38, 4 38, 5 37, 6 38, 7 38, 8 38, 9 38, 10 37, 11 38 p. m. Sundays, 9 38, 10 38, 11 38 a. m., 12 noon, 1 38, 2 38, 3 38, 4 38, 5 37, 6 38, 7 38, 8 38, 9 38, 10 37, 11 38 p. m.

Leave Bound Brook for Plainfield, 6 15, 7 15, 8 15, 9 15, 10 15, 11 15 a. m., 12 noon, 1 15, 2 15, 3 15, 4 15, 5 15, 6 15, 7 15, 8 15, 9 15, 10 15, 11 15 p. m. Sundays, 8 15, 9 15, 10 15, 11 15 a. m., 12 noon, 1 15, 2 15, 3 15, 4 15, 5 15, 6 15, 7 15, 8 15, 9 15, 10 15, 11 15 p. m.

PLAINFIELD AND SOMERVILLE.

Leave Plainfield 8 38, 9 38, 10 38, 11 38 a. m., 12 noon, 1 38, 2 38, 3 38, 4 38, 5 37, 6 38, 7 38, 8 38, 9 38, 10 37, 11 38 p. m. Sundays, 9 38, 10 38, 11 38 a. m., 12 noon, 1 38, 2 38, 3 38, 4 38, 5 37, 6 38, 7 38, 8 38, 9 38, 10 37, 11 38 p. m.

Leave Somerville for Plainfield, 6 45, 7 45, 8 45, 9 45, 10 45, 11 45 a. m., 12 noon, 1 45, 2 45, 3 45, 4 45, 5 45, 6 45, 7 45, 8 45, 9 45, 10 45, 11 45 p. m. Sundays, 8 45, 9 45, 10 45, 11 45 a. m., 12 noon, 1 45, 2 45, 3 45, 4 45, 5 45, 6 45, 7 45, 8 45, 9 45, 10 45, 11 45 p. m.

WESTWARD CONNECTIONS.

8 38 a. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Allentown, Reading, Harrisburg, Pottsville, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, Wilkesbarre, Upper Lehigh, Wilkesbarre and Scranton.

9 38 a. m.—For Allentown, Bethlehem, connecting for stations on High Bridge Branch, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, Wilkesbarre, Easton, Bangor and Mauch Chunk.

2 38 p. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Allentown, Bethlehem, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, Wilkesbarre, Shamokin, Shenandoah, Mahanoy City, Pottsville, Hazleton, Scranton, Wilkesbarre, Bangor, Portland, Delaware Water Gap, Stroudsburg, Mauch Chunk, Lehighton, Slatington, Allentown and Bethlehem.

4 38 p. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Allentown, Bethlehem, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, Wilkesbarre and Scranton.

5 38 p. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Allentown, Bethlehem, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, Wilkesbarre and Scranton.

6 38 p. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Allentown, Bethlehem, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, Wilkesbarre and Scranton.

7 38 p. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Allentown, Bethlehem, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, Wilkesbarre and Scranton.

8 38 p. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Allentown, Bethlehem, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, Wilkesbarre and Scranton.

9 38 p. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Allentown, Bethlehem, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, Wilkesbarre and Scranton.

10 38 p. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Allentown, Bethlehem, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, Wilkesbarre and Scranton.

11 38 p. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Allentown, Bethlehem, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, Wilkesbarre and Scranton.

12 38 a. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Allentown, Bethlehem, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, Wilkesbarre and Scranton.

1 38 p. m.—For Easton, Bangor and Mauch Chunk.

5 38 p. m.—For Easton, Bangor and Mauch Chunk.

7 38 p. m.—For Easton, Bangor and Mauch Chunk.

9 38 p. m.—For High Bridge for stations on High Bridge Branch.

10 38 p. m.—For Flemington.

11 38 p. m.—For German Valley and Chester.

8 38 a. m.—For Bound Brook, Dunellen, Metuchen, Bonhamtown, Bonhamtown Junction, Bound Brook, Bridgewater, Somerville, Harris Cave and all Junction Points.

1 38 p. m.—For Bound Brook, Dunellen, Metuchen, Bonhamtown, Bonhamtown Junction, Bound Brook, Bridgewater, Somerville, Harris Cave and all Junction Points.

5 38 p. m.—For Bound Brook, Dunellen, Metuchen, Bonhamtown, Bonhamtown Junction, Bound Brook, Bridgewater, Somerville, Harris Cave and all Junction Points.

7 38 p. m.—For Bound Brook, Dunellen, Metuchen, Bonhamtown, Bonhamtown Junction, Bound Brook, Bridgewater, Somerville, Harris Cave and all Junction Points.

10 38 p. m.—For Bound Brook, Dunellen, Metuchen, Bonhamtown, Bonhamtown Junction, Bound Brook, Bridgewater, Somerville, Harris Cave and all Junction Points.

FOR LONG BRANCH AND SEA SHORE RESORTS.

Leave Plainfield as 3 37, 8 38 a. m. (Sea Shore Express for Sea Girt 11 38 a. m., 2 38, 4 38, 8 38 p. m. Sundays, express Ocean Grove, 8 38 a. m., 12 30 p. m.

For Asbury Park, 3 37 a. m., 12 30 p. m.

For Ocean Grove, 3 37 a. m., 12 30 p. m.

For Long Branch, 3 37 a. m., 12 30 p. m.

For Atlantic City, 3 37 a. m., 12 30 p. m.

For Penhold, 11 38 a. m., 2 38, 4 38, 8 38 p. m. Sundays, 8 38 a. m.

For Lakewood, Toms River and Barnegat, 3 37, 8 38 a. m. (Lakewood only 4 38 p. m.), 12 30 p. m. Sundays, 8 38 a. m.

ROYAL BLUE LINE.

Leave Plainfield for Philadelphia, 3 37, 5 38, 6 38, 7 38, 8 38, 9 38 a. m., 12 noon, 1 38, 2 38, 3 38, 4 38, 5 37, 6 38, 7 38, 8 38, 9 38, 10 38, 11 38 p. m., 12 38 a. m. Sundays, 3 37, 5 38, 6 38, 7 38, 8 38, 9 38, 10 38, 11 38 a. m., 12 noon, 1 38, 2 38, 3 38, 4 38, 5 37, 6 38, 7 38, 8 38, 9 38, 10 38, 11 38 p. m., 12 38 a. m.

For Baltimore and Washington at 3 37, 5 38, 6 38, 7 38, 8 38, 9 38 a. m., 2 38, 4 38, 8 38 p. m. Sundays, 3 37, 5 38, 6 38, 7 38, 8 38, 9 38 a. m., 12 noon, 2 38, 4 38, 8 38 p. m.

For Buffalo, Chicago and all points West, 8 38 a. m. and 8 38 p. m. Sundays, 8 38 p. m.

Plainfield passengers by all trains marked) change cars at Bound Brook.

Through tickets to all points at lowest rates. Baggage checked to destination in advance to the ticket agent at the station.

J. R. OLHAUSEN,
General Superintendent.

H. P. BALDWIN,
General Passenger Agent

LEHIGH VALLEY RAILROAD.

Time table in effect Feb. 5, 1899.

LEAVE SOUTH PLAINFIELD, N. J.

WEST WARD.

5 05 p. m. daily, 8 38 a. m., 2 38 p. m. daily except Sundays. Sunday local.

6 38 p. m. Sunday evening local for Mauch Chunk.

9 08 a. m. daily; Express for Buffalo, Niagara Falls and principal intermediate stations.

11 23 a. m., 2 38 and 6 38 p. m. daily except Sunday. Sunday at 9 38 a. m. and 6 38 p. m.

12 23 p. m. daily except Sunday. "Black Diamond Express" for Rochester, Buffalo and Niagara Falls.

3 04 p. m. daily local for Easton and Wilkesbarre.

5 38 p. m. daily except Sunday, express for Wilkesbarre, Scranton, Pittston and principal intermediate stations.

7 08 and 9 05 p. m. daily. Solid vestibule express for Buffalo, Niagara Falls and principal intermediate stations. Sunday at 9 38 a. m. and 6 38 p. m.

10 38 p. m. daily except Sunday. Local for Easton, Bethlehem, Mauch Chunk, Wilkesbarre, Scranton, Pittston, Wyoming, Kingston, Bridge, carries sleeping car passengers only, and no baggage east of Bethlehem.

EASTWARD.

5 38 a. m. New York and Brooklyn local, 6 38, 7 38 and 8 38 a. m., 2 38 and 6 38 p. m. daily except Sunday. 8 38 and 9 38 a. m. Sunday only.

7 08 a. m., 12 30 p. m. and 9 05 p. m. daily except Sunday. Sunday 7 08 a. m. and 9 05 p. m.

8 38 a. m., 2 38 and 6 38 p. m. daily except Sunday. Sunday 7 08 a. m., 8 38 a. m. and 6 38 p. m.

FREIGHT AGENT WANTED.

For Perth Amboy and intermediate stations 7 38 a. m., 4 30 and 6 38 p. m. daily except Sunday. Sunday 10 38 a. m. and 7 08 p. m.

Trains leave Perth Amboy (State street) 7 15 a. m., 4 00 and 6 38 p. m. daily except Sunday. Sunday 10 00 a. m. and 6 45 p. m.

For further information call on or address Ticket Agent, South Plainfield, N. J. Through tickets to all important western points may be purchased at the South Plainfield office.

Col. ROLLIN H. WILBUR,
General Superintendent.
E. Rochesteren, Pa.

CHAS. S. LEE,
General Passenger Agent
26 Cortlandt St., N. Y. City.

NEW YORK TERMINALS—Foot of Cortlandt Desbrosses and West 23d streets.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Makes the food more delicious and wholesome

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

MONEY NEEDED FOR CITY GOVERNMENT.

Annual Budget Made up by the Common Council.

INCREASES WERE VOTED.

CORPORATION COUNSEL MARSH RECEIVED INCREASE IN ISALARY.

An Ordinance Adopted on Second Reading to Reorganize the Fire Department on a Paid Call System—$2,000 Voted for Improvements for the Public Library—Contract for Storm Sewer

The regular April meeting of the Common Council was held last Monday and a great amount of business was transacted in the interest of the city. As stated yesterday, the appropriations were made for the year with an increase in several departments.

An ordinance to reorganize the fire department was adopted on second reading, and the sidewalk ordinance was advanced on its third reading. The sum of $350 was granted the corporation counsel for extra legal sewer work, and $850 for increased duties under the Martin Act proceedings. The contract for building a storm sewer in Park avenue was awarded to Patsy Christmas. The extra sum of $2 000 was voted to the Public Library for improvements stated to be a necessity. These were the important matters considered at the meeting.

Bids for the construction of a storm sewer in Park avenue were received from Patsy Christmas, of this city and A. D. Hamblin, of East Orange, and after the same were considered by the streets and sewer committee the contract was awarded to Patsy Christmas, whose bid in round figures was $1,971 45, which is $170 below the bid of Mr. Hamblin.

As previously advertised, a public hearing was given, pro and con, on the proposed new sidewalk ordinance. There being no one present who desired to speak on the ordinance, it was adopted on its third reading.

Allen P. Eldy, through his lawyer, asked the Council to refund an excessive levied on his property on Muhlenberg place. H. J. Runyon and others petitioned the Council to widen Rahway road ten feet, and the property owners would contribute the necessary land. An anonymous petition was received complaining of the condition of Putnam avenue.

The directors of the Public Library asked the Council for $3,800 for the coming year, also the sum of $2,200 to make alterations and to properly heat and light the Public Library. The matter was referred to the finance committee.

City Judge Runyon reported that 103 cases had been disposed of during the past quarter and $174 had been received in fines. The Judge thanked the Council for the efforts in making the City Jail habitable, and urged that better quarters be provided as soon as possible.

Street Commissioner Gavett reported the granting of thirteen sewer permits, and that fourteen permits were granted by Building Inspector Doane.

Mr. VanHerwerden moved that the sum of $681.45 be appropriated for the use of the Board of Health, and stated that the finance committee did not favor the granting of an additional $318.55 at the present time. The Board asked for the additional amount to make in all $1,000 the amount desired.

Resolutions were offered by Mr VanHerwerden that $3 800 be granted the Public Library, that $1 200 be appropriated for lights and trees, that a tax of $2 be levied on every dog in the city, that Collector Martin be made delinquent tax collector and that City Judge Runyon be authorized to issue the necessary tax warrants.

Mr VanHerwerden stated that the finance committee thought that owing to the increased duties of Corporation Counsel C. A. Marsh, that his salary should be increased. Mr. VanHerwerden then moved that Mr. Marsh's salary for this year be $1,350, and that he receive in addition $750 for his labors in connection with the Martin Act Commissioners. This last named amount is to be paid out of the sum collected under the Martin Act.

Mr. Coriell, of the fire and building committee, presented a report on reorganizing the fire department. It provides for the call system of twenty four men at $25 per year each; that two more full paid men be employed; that the old hook and ladder truck and a hose wagon be placed in the new engine house; that the apparatus in the West Second street house be transferred to fire headquarters; that the steamer, hired team and driver be stationed in the West Second street house. It is the intention to place the grey team, driven to the chemical engine, in the West End house and the Alerta hose team to the chemical engine. To accomplish this the sum of $18 360 is needed and was asked for last evening. Following the above report, Mr. Coriell presented an ordinance which provides for reorganization and for tenure of office. It also provides rules for the government of the department. This ordinance was adopted on the first and second readings.

Mr VanHerwerden offered a resolution to the effect that the sum of $1 000 be appropriated for the directors of the Public Library to make proposed improvements and repairs, provided that the Mayor approves of the same. When the vote was taken it voted in the affirmative except Messrs. Tolles and VanHerwerden.

Mayor Bockfelow approved the additional appropriation of $2 000 for improvements to the Public Library and Art Gallery, and it was incorporated in the budget. The appriation for the year were then submitted by the finance committee as follows:—total amount to be raised $41 000; streets $24 000; lights $12 000; sewer bonds $4 000; interest on obligations $5 000; poor $4 000; Public Library $3 800; improvements for Public Library $2 000; fire department $18,000. The above appropriation were approved by the Council.

Mr. Barrows offered a resolution employing Andrew J Gavett at a salary at $600 to look after the sewer beds for the coming year.

Another resolution by Mr. Barrows awarded the contract for flat-bing crushed stone to the lowest bidder A. J & N B Smalley, and the contract for finishing culvert stones to A Kane Still another resolution by the same member extended the thanks of the Council to Assemblyman Ernest T Murray for his able work at Trenton in behalf of Plainfield.

Mr. Mellick offered a resolution which provides that the Board of Assessors confer with a view of presenting a petition to the proper authorities for an equalization of the tax valuation in Plainfield. The Board will meet on Thursday evening with the Committee on Assessment and Collection of taxes.

After the business of the evening had transacted the Council adjourned to meet again Monday evening, April 17th.

MT. OLIVE'S BAZAAR.

Colored Baptists Endeavoring to Raise Money for Church Work.

Last Tuesday at the Mt. Olive Baptist church there was held an entertainment and bazaar which is to continue tonight and tomorrow evening. The entertainment consisted of piano solos by Fred White. Recitations, vocal and instrumental music by the young people of the church and Sunday-school helped to furnish an evening of pleasure to all.

A feature was a half-hour address by W. J. Pride on the subject of "Solution of the Negro Problem." The main point made by Mr. Pride was that there must be unity among the colored people and particularly in the church.

After the entertainment all present adjourned to the room below, where the bazaar was held. There was on sale ice cream, cake, groceries, useful and fancy articles. This was in charge of Mrs. Dempsey, assisted by the young women of the church.

Death of Mrs. Mundy.

The death of Mrs. Martha A. Mundy, aged 77 years, mother of Mrs Joseph F. Humble, of Somerset street, corner Lincoln place, occurred last evening after a long illness. Mrs. Mundy was the widow of the late Enos Mundy a well known resident in this vicinity. Mrs. Mundy was a woman of Christian character and when able was a faithful attendant at divine worship. The funeral services will be held from the home of Mrs. Humble on Friday afternoon next at 2 o'clock. Relatives and friends are invited to attend.

—Chas. E. Bicknell, the Somerset street fruit dealer, is making a special price on oranges, bananas and apples. He has the largest navel oranges ever sold in this city and at a very low price.

DOES COFFEE AGREE WITH YOU?

If not, drink Grain-O—mad- from pure grain. A lady writes: "The first time I made Grain-O I did not like it, considering it for one week nothing would induce me to go back to coffee." It soon becomes a favorite with all. The children may drink it freely as well. It is the strengthening substance of pure grains. Get a package today from your grocer. Try the difference in taking it and you will have a delicious and healthful table beverage for old and young. 15 and 25c.

WALKED WELL FOR GOLD

CAKE WALK AND BALL OF TWILIGHT SOCIAL CLUB.

Held in Crescent Rink Monday Night—Big Turnout for the Affair—The Higgins' Carried off Honors In Cake-walk.

There were over seven hundred people who turned out for the Twilight ball and cake walk Monday night and thronged the Crescent Rink until sunrise this morning. Some went to dance and others to see the fun. The event of the evening was, of course, the cake walk for $10 in gold. Such prizes are not common in cake walks and it spurred the competitors to great exertions. The walk was not held until midnight, however, and until that hour the time passed rapidly with dancing.

There were five couples in line when the "Georgia Camp-meeting" was struck up by Rogers' orchestra. They each walked to minutes and gave the spectators every conceivable kind of move and step. The couples appeared in the following order:—Jack Kennedy and Miss Annie Sears; Michael Higgins and Miss Mamie Hoagland, of Bound Brook; John G. ff and Miss Mamie Higgins; Michael Higgins and Miss Kate Higgins; Johnston Young and Miss Annie Hatt.

A committee of judges, with Councilman Walter L. Hatfield as chairman decided that the play between G ff and partner and Higgins combination. These two couples tried again and Mr. Higgins received the verdict. They did some wonderful work on the floor. Theo. Smith was floor manager. The other members of the committee were F. S. Moore and E C Searing.

FRIGHT CRAZED HER, NOW A RAVING MANIAC.

RESULT OF RCUGH TREATMENT.

Catharine Shoemaker's Mind Destroyed by Horrible Experiences of Ten Years Ago.

Catharine Shoemaker, of Oak Tree, is in the Middlesex county jail awaiting examination on the charge of being a dangerous maniac. The woman is about forty, and for a number of years has lived with her brother in an old house.

About two years ago roughs from Metuchen and New Brunswick, while on a drunken frolic, broke into the house on a cold night and, though the woman was ill in bed, dragged her out in her night clothing, took her in their wagon, and left her some miles from home, to get back the best way she could. She was found hours afterward, fully five miles from Oak Tree.

Since then her mind has been affected, and it is charged that her present condition is due to her experience on that night.

SECTION BOSS RUN OVER.

Third Man Killed by Trains Near Aldene Within a Week.

Roselle, April 5—John Mullin, aged 55 years, a section boss, was run over and had both legs cut off by a Baltimore and Ohio Railroad train south of Cranford Junction Monday afternoon. He was picked up unconscious and died during the night at the Elizabeth General Hospital. He lived on Fifth avenue, Roselle. He leaves a wife and two children. He is the third man killed at Aldene during the last week.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O.

Sold by Druggists, 75c.

Hall's Family Pills are the best.

Holy Cross Elections.

The annual parish meeting of the Holy Cross R. C. church was held in the parish house last Monday. The election of officers and delegates was held and resulted as follows: Wardens, Dr. J. H. Carman and Horsley Barker; vestrymen, Thomas E. Warman, Arthur T. Gallup, William A. Westphal, John D. James and Clarence L. Murphy; delegates to the Diocesan Convention at Princeton, Dr. John H. Carman, Boardman Wright and Clarence L. Murphy; alternates, Horsley Barker, William A. Westphal and John D. James.

A baby daughter has arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Sherwin, of East Second street.

Charles Hummer, of the borough, has become a member of the choir of the First Presbyterian church.

VESTRYMEN ARE CHOSEN

ANNUAL MEETING OF GRACE P. E. CHURCH HELD

Treasurer's Report showed That Over $9,000 Has been Received and Expended—Change of Date for Meeting.

The annual meeting of Grace P. E. church for the election of two wardens, and seven vestrymen, and the transaction of other business, was held last Monday. The wardens elected were D C Ivins and F. Mnford. The vestrymen were M S Ackerman, E H Both, G J Coe, W T Gough, C. C Howard N. P. Rogers and L G Timpson.

The treasurer's report showed receipts for the year of $9 3073, disbursements $9 2057 leaving a balance of $134 79. A resolution was introduced changing the time of holding the annual meeting from the Monday after Easter to the first Monday following the first Sunday in August. This was opposed by J B Dumont and there was a discussion between members as to the advisability of making the change, but when it was put to a vote the resolution was adopted by a vote of 22 to 10. As the action of the church has to be certified to the city clerk, a ri-ing vote was taken.

J. B. Dumont George S Clay and R Henry Depew were elected delegates and M S Ackerman, George M. Randall and L. G. Timpson alternates to attend the annual convention of the diocese to be held at Princeton in May.

A DISTRICT MEETING

ODD FELLOWS MET IN FRATERNAL FORM MONDAY NIGHT.

After Business Was Finished a Banquet and Entertainment Was Enjoyed Several Lodges Represented.

The district meeting of the Odd Fellows was held Monday night in the room of Plainfield Lodge, No 44 in the Belvidere building, and was followed by a banquet and entertainment in Washington Hall. Representatives from Whitehouse, Milltown, Somerville, Bound Brook and Westfield were present, and after the business of the district was finished, all adjourned to the hall and took part in the festivities.

District Deputy Horton, of this city, was present, and so was Grand Master M B Wood, of Newark. Those consisted of E O Bunting, of Lindhurst, grand warden; Augustus Grossman, of Hoboken, grand representative; E L Rose, of Cape May Court House, grand conductor; H S Pine, of Camden, grand guardian.

The spread was under the direction of Eben Bates and included a varied bill of fare. Professor Burke, the famous slack wire walker, entertained the members with feats of agility, and John Becker recited one of Edgar Allan Poe's unpublished poems, "The Murderer," in a highly tragic style which called forth rounds of applause. B. W. Hand also made a speech, and Professor Carpenter entertained them with piano selections.

The committee of Plainfield Lodge who had charge of the entertainment consisted of John Carson, chairman, Henry Nichwitz, Simon Mantz, Stephen Scudder and John Bowman.

THE SOCIAL SEASON ACTIVELY RESUMED.

SUBSCRIPTION DANCE AT CASINO.

Third of Series of Dances That Have Taken the Place of the Assemblies in This City.

The third of the series of subscription dances at the Casino, which take the place of the Assemblies, this year, was held last Monday. Plainfield society turned out en masse after the quietude of Lent and made the dance one of the most successful of the season. It was largely attended by the local society set and a number of out-of-town guests who are visiting at Plainfield homes.

The Casino was prettily decorated for the occasion while the many beautiful gowns added to the brilliancy of the scene. Dancing was continued without cessation until an early hour this morning with only an interval for refreshments.

The committee in charge was the same that has arranged the previous subscription dances this season, Dr. F C Ard, Francis A Goldsmith, Gifford W. Cadey Clifford A. McGee, Thomas R. VanBuskirk, Orville G. Waring and Edward L. Wilson.

Engagement Announced.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Charlotte Messersmith, of Washington street, to F. Talmage Rose, of the borough.

Drying preparations simply develop dry catarrh; they dry up the secretions which adhere to the membrane and decompose, causing a far more serious trouble than the ordinary form of catarrh. Avoid all drying inhalants and use that which cleanses, soothes and heals. Ely's Cream Balm is such a remedy and will cure catarrh or cold in the head easily and pleasantly. All druggists sell it at 50 cents or it will be mailed by Ely Brothers, 56 Warren street, N. Y.

CITY CARS TO RUN FASTER AT NIGHT.

The Summer Schedule of Local Trolley Cars in Force.

TO RUN LATER HEREAFTER.

WILL CONNECT WITH CARS FOR BOUND BROOK.

Plainfield Street Railway's Cars Will Hereafter Run on Twelve Minute Headway All the Time—New Schedule of Brunswick Traction Company is Announced—Summer Riding Popular.

Trolley car riding is expected to become very popular in this section of Jersey this summer. The traction companies think so, anyway, and are preparing to adapt themselves to circumstances. The local system, controlled by the Plainfield Street Railway Company, has now adopted its summer schedule and the cars in the city are running according to the new orders just issued by Superintendent John Adelmann.

During the winter, the cars ran on twelve minute headway during the day and beginning at 7 o'clock in the evening, ran on fifteen minute headway the rest of the evening. Last summer, the hour for change from twelve to fifteen minutes headway was made at eight instead of seven. The change was thought necessary at one time to prevent too fast running at night in the suburbs. With experience, it is now believed that the twelve minute headway can be continued throughout the evening in safety and give the people the advantage of the better service. The new summer order provides for twelve minute headway between the cars all the time.

As heretofore, the cars will leave the depot at North avenue on the hour and every twelve minutes there after. In the morning, the first car leaves the car house at 5 40. At 6 o'clock, the first car will leave the Netherwood, Monroe avenue and Johnston's Drive terminals of the line. At 6.06 o'clock, the first car will leave the Dunellen terminal.

Every day except Saturday, the last car in the evening will leave Netherwood at 11 48, and make its way to the carhouse via Front street and Grant avenue. The last car will leave the end of the Somerset street branch and proceed direct to the carhouse. At the Monroe avenue terminal, the last car will leave at 11 24. The last car will leave Dunellen terminal at 11 42 and proceed to the North avenue station and thence to the carhouse.

On Saturday evenings, the last cars for the Netherwood and Johnston's Drive terminals will leave at midnight, from the Monroe avenue terminal at 11 36 and from Dunellen at 11 42.

The Brunswick Traction Company has also announced its new timetable between Dunellen and Bound Brook. The Plainfield Street Railway cars will hereafter connect with the Brunswick Company's cars at the Dunellen or Jefferson avenue terminal Brunswick cars will run on 45 minutes' headway instead of an hour headway as heretofore, and are scheduled to make connections at Bound Brook with the other lines without long waits.

According to the new timetable the Brunswick cars will leave the Dunellen terminal as follows: To the morning at 7 07 7 52 8 37, 9 22, 10 07; 10 53, 11 37. In the afternoon and evening at 12 22, 1 07, 1 52, 2 37, 3 22 4 07, 4 52, 5 37 6 22, 7 07, 7 52, 8 37, 9 20, 10 20, 11 20.

As it takes one of the Plainfield cars 18 minutes to make the trip from the North avenue station to the Dunellen terminal, it is easy to calculate the car necessary to take to make connection with the car for Bound Brook.

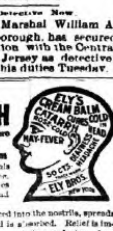
Church of Redeemer.

Monday evening the annual parish meeting of the Church of the Redeemer was held at which time G P. Dupee and James A. Alexander were selected as vestrymen; E. C. Perkins, H. B. Phillips, Thomas Lloyd, George T Rhoades, A. E. Faber, Jr. George P Dupee, James A. Alexander and A. E. Faber, Jr., were chosen delegates to the church convention, and as alternates H. B. Phillips, Thomas Lloyd and George T. Rhoades were selected. No decision was reached regarding the proposed change in holding the church election.

Railroad Detective Now

Former Chief Marshal William A Wilson, of the borough, has secured an excellent position with the Central Railroad of New Jersey as detective He entered upon his duties Tuesday.

Nasal CATARRH



In all its stages there should be cleanliness.

Ely's Cream Balm cleanses, soothes and heals the diseased membrane. It does not irritate nor produce sneezing. Large Size, 50 cents at Druggists or by mail; Trial Size, 10 cents by mail.

ELY BROTHERS, 56 Warren Street, New York.

Dr. Humphreys'

Specifics act directly upon the disease, without exciting disorder in other parts of the system. They Cure the Sick.

NO.	CURES.	PRICE.
1	Fevers, Congestions, Inflammations	.25
2	Worms, Worm Fever, Worm Colic	.25
3	Teething, Colic, Crying, Wakefulness	.25
4	Diarrhea, of Children or Adults	.25
5	Dysentery, Griping, Bilious Colic	.25
6	Cholera, Cholera Morbus, Vomiting	.25
7	Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis	.25
8	Neuralgia, Toothache, Facache	.25
9	Headache, Sick Headache, Vertigo	.25
10	Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Weak Stomach	.25
11	Suppressed or Painful Periods	.25
12	Whites, Too Profuse Periods	.25
13	Croup, Laryngitis, Hoarseness	.25
14	Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Eruptions	.25
15	Rheumatism, Rheumatic Pains	.25
16	Malaria, Chills, Fever and Ague	.25
17	Piles, External or Internal	.25
18	Ophthalmia, Weak or Inflamed Eyes	.25
19	Catarrh, Influenza, Cold in the Head	.25
20	Whooping-Cough	.25
21	Asthma, Difficult Breathing	.25
22	Ear Discharges, Earache	.25
23	Scrofula, Swellings and Ulcers	.25
24	General Debility, Weakness	.25
25	Dropsy, Fluid Accumulations	.25
26	Sea-Sickness, Nausea, Vomiting	.25
27	Kidney Diseases	.25
28	Nervous Debility	1.00
29	Sore Mouth, or Canker	.25
30	Urinary Weakness, Wetting Bed	.25
31	Painful Menses, Scanties	.25
32	Diseases of the Heart, Palpitations	1.00
33	Epilepsy, St. Vitus' Dance	1.00
34	Scarlet Fever, Scarlet Rash	.25
35	Chronic Congestions, Headaches	.25
77	Grip, Hay Fever	.25

Dr. Humphreys' Manual of Diseases at your Druggist's or Mailed Free.

Sold by druggists, or sent prepaid on receipt of price. Humphreys' Med. Co., Cor. William & John Sts., New York.

HUMPHREYS' WITCH HAZEL OIL "THE PILE OINTMENT."

For Piles—External or Internal, Blind or Bleeding; Fissure in Ano; Itching or Protruding of the Rectum. The relief is immediate—the cure certain.

PRICE, 50 CENTS. TRIAL, 25 CTS.

Sold by Druggists, or sent prepaid on receipt of price. HUMPHREYS' MED. CO., 111 & 113 William St., New York.

In Chancery of New Jersey.

Between
SARAH R. ROBINSON, Petitioner, —and—
EMERY H. ROBINSON, Defendant.

On Petition for Divorce.

To Emery H. Robinson:

By virtue of an order of the Court of Chancery of New Jersey made on the day of the date hereof, wherein Sarah R. Robinson is petitioner and you are defendant, you are required to answer the bill of the petitioner's petition on or before the 28th day of April next, or in default such order will be taken as the Chancellor shall think equitable and just; the said petition is filed against you for a divorce on the head of matrimony.

Dated this 27th day of February, Eighteen Hundred and Ninety-Nine.

REED & CODDINGTON,
Solicitors of Petitioner,
Baker's Building,
Plainfield, N. J.

2t5

Notice of Copyright.

Notice is hereby given that certain musical compositions, herein named and described, have been entered for copyright, in accordance with Act of Congress, before the expiration of the first term of twenty-eight years, and that Certificates of Copyright and Deposit for the same have been issued to Rosser Lowry, of Plainfield, New Jersey, bearing date of the day and year set by A. R. Spofford, Acting Librarian of Congress, and Thorvald Solberg, Register of Copyrights, to wit:

1888.

No. of Certificate.

For a period of fourteen years from March 6, 1888.

15,836. Blessed River. Words by Bonar. R. L. Pierce. For a period of fourteen years from March 15, 1888.

15,835. Which Be the Next? Mrs. Annie S. Hawks. R. L.

15,817. Linger no Longer. R. Lowry, 1871. R. L. For a period of fourteen years from April 13, 1888.

15,818. Something for Jesus. Words by Rev. S. D. Phelps, D. D. R. L.

15,819. Closer to Me. Mrs. E. Prentiss. R. L.

15,820. At the Door. Una Lecke. R. L.

15,821. Mountain of the Lord. R. L. 1871. R. L.

15,822. Closer to Me. Mrs. E. Prentiss. R. L.

15,823. Suffer Children, You May Come. Julia A. Matthews. R. L.

15,824. In the Valley. Mrs. Annie S. Hawks. R. L.

15,825. More Am I. Mrs. Annie S. Hawks. R. L.

15,826. Anywhere With Jesus. R. L.

15,827. Come Near to Me. Words by Julia A. Matthews. R. L.

15,828. Pass Under Rods. T. H. R. L.

15,829. Let the Master in. Words by Rev. S. D. Phelps, D. D. R. L.

The above renewals have been granted to the undersigned as authority.

ROBERT LOWRY.

Plainfield, N. J., April 6, 1889. 4 6 5

DIED.

WILSON—At Dunellen, N. J., March 31, 1889, Sarah Wilson, beloved wife of James Y. Wilson, age 48 years, 8 months, 22 days.

STINE—In this city, Thursday, March 30th, 1889, Mrs. Mary Stine, of Boston.

ANGLMAN—In Bayonne, N. J., Sunday, April 7th, 1889, Sarah R. wife of John H. Anglman, aged 38 years, 6 months.

WANTS AND OFFERS

WANTED—50 or 75 bunches of willow or clover hay, for cow feed. Address C. J. Ackerman, Clinton avenue, City. 4 3 2 c

—Some of the United States Express Company's trucks have been treated to a coat of paint.

—The Woman's Christian Temperance Union will-ere to inform the public that all authorized communications to the city papers will be accompanied by an official endorsement.

Board of Health of the Borough.

There was a regular meeting of the Borough Board of Health last Monday but only routine business was considered. The Board expected to be able to do something regarding the appointment of local milk inspectors but the Legislature did not adopt the measure giving this added power to local Boards of Health. The three cases of typhoid fever in the borough were considered by the Board and it was stated that strong efforts are being made to ascertain the cause for the outbreak. As yet the Board has not been able to determine the cause. No other cases of contagion were reported.

Hello, Mr. Mayor.

A telephone has been placed in the office of Mayor Smalley, of the borough, where the Council rooms are located.

CARNEY BROS.,

MADISON AVENUE.

Between Front and Second streets.

Tinners,
Plumbers
Gas Fitters,

Grates and bricks for all kinds of stoves can be found here at Jobbers' prices. Bring your tinware mending to us. The best tinners, the best plumbers, and the best gas-fitters in this section. We use none but the very best of materials, and our work always gives satisfaction. Keys of all kinds are made here. Tinware made to order. Ranges, brick and portable furnaces. Sanitary plumbing.

Sanitary Plumbing,

Brick and Portable Furnace

Gas Fitting, Tin Roofing.

Etc., Etc., Etc.

I am prepared to do any of the above branches in strictly first-class sanitary and workmanship manner.

Having associated myself with the Master Members Association of New York City, I employ none but first class mechanics and non-union men. I believe in every man running his own business at all times and in all cases.

D. W. LITTELL,

No. 112 North Ave., Plainfield, N. J.

ALBERT HEDDEN

Livery & Boarding Stables

FOURTH ST.,

between Watchung and Park avenues.

First-class Livery. Horses boarded by week or month. Telephone call, No. 114.

A. WOLFF,

Manufacturer of

CIGARS.

And dealer in all kinds of Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and smokers' articles, has removed from 231 W. Front street, to 261 West Front street, one door east of Madison avenue and solicits the patronage of his friends and the public generally.

P. P. VanArsdale,

PIANO TUNER.

Instruments put in thorough order. Terms reasonable. Pianos and organs for sale and to let. Orders by postal, P. O. box 260, or left at Wilson's shoe store, No. 107 Park avenue, will receive prompt attention. Residence 301 E. Front street, corner Elm street. 2[illegible]

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGN PATENTS
COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Oldest agency for securing patents. We have a Washington office. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

NEW IN EVERY DETAIL!

My new barber shop at

143 NORTH AVE.

is now open ready for business. All the latest appointments in the tonsorial line.

EDWIN B. MAYNARD.

CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS, COPYRIGHTS.

CAN I OBTAIN A PATENT? For a prompt answer and an honest opinion, write to MUNN & CO., who have had nearly fifty years' experience in the patent business. Communications strictly confidential. A Handbook of Information concerning Patents and how to obtain them sent free. Also a catalogue of mechanical and scientific books sent free.

Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice in the Scientific American, and thus are brought widely before the public without cost to the inventor. This splendid paper, issued weekly, elegantly illustrated, has by far the largest circulation of any scientific work in the world. $3 a year. Sample copies sent free.

Building Edition, monthly, $2.50 a year. Single copies, 25 cents. Every number contains beautiful plates, in colors, and photographs of new houses, with plans, enabling builders to show the latest designs and secure contracts. Address MUNN & CO., NEW YORK, 361 BROADWAY.

Wm. A. Woodruff,

Fire and Life

INSURANCE AGENT,

OFFICE,

corner Front St. and Park Avenue,

Plainfield, N. J.

Real Estate for Sale and Exchange
Money to Loan on Approved Security

GLAD EASTER CAROLS HEARD IN CHURCHES.

Special Services Were the Rule In Christian Circles.

CHILDREN TOOK A PART.

LARGE AUDIENCES PARTICIPATED IN THE COMMEMORATION EVENT.

Beautiful Floral Decorations Added Their Significance to the Day—Elaborate Musical Programme Rendered in Every Church—Gift of Handsome Collection Plates Received by Trinity Society.

The grandest and most auspicious event in evangelical churches is Easter. That day, commemorative of the rising of Christ from the tomb, was celebrated in the Plainfield churches with services bearing out the full significance of the day. Elaborate decorations, special musical programmes and inspiring sermons were heard in every church. The following gives a concise description of the services in this city and borough:

TRINITY REFORMED CHURCH.

Trinity Reformed church was filled with the fragrance of flowers Sunday and the services commemorative of Easter were glad and joyous as befitted the day. At the morning service the pastor, Rev. Cornelius Schenck, Ph. D., delivered an excellent sermon, using as his text "The Lord Is Risen Indeed." The choir also rendered Easter anthems.

In the evening the service was given over to the children in the primary department, who, under the direction of Mrs. J. M. Tier, the superintendent, delighted the congregation with their songs and recitations of Easter Day. At both services the edifice was filled from pulpit to the doors.

The floral display in front of and on the pulpit platform was beautiful, consisting of greens, palms, lilies and cut flowers tastfully arranged. On the organ front the word "Hallelujah" in large white letters, on a background of green, made a prominent and appropriate part of the decorations. A cross of green and white occupied a prominent position to the preacher's right. The decorations altogether pleased all, and the committee from the Ladies' Christian Work and Christian Endeavor Societies deserve thanks for their efforts.

Before the regular morning offering was taken Dr. Schenck gave his congregation a genuine surprise by informing them of the gift to the church from the Whatsoever Circle, King's Daughters, of six new plates for collecting the offerings of the church. Dr. Schenck spoke gratefully of the forethought on the part of these "Daughters of the King," as he called them, and on behalf of the congregation thanked them most heartily. He also said that a good way for the people to show their appreciation of the gift is by keeping the plates full. The plates are handsome blackwalnut ones, with maroon colored velvet cushions. Around the rim, in raised carved letters is a text. Three of them bear this inscription, "The Lord Loveth a Cheerful Giver, and three, "Give Alms of Thy Goods."

As the superintendent, E. E. Anthony is away, Fred E. Smith, assistant superintendent, took charge of the exercises in the evening. The Sunday-school sat in the front pews of the church, while the congregation occupied the seats in the rear. The following programme was rendered by the members of the primary department: "The Date for Easter," Elmer Bohan; "Easter Greeting," Bessie Randall; "Easter," Cornelius Schenck, Jr.; "In the Early Dawning," Anna Bodine and Lillie Luckey; song, (by school,) "A Happy Easter Day;" "An Easter Resolve," Helen Woolley; "Easter Lilies," Rowland Leighton; "Easter-tide," Elsie Dunavan; "Easter Day," Harold Schenck; an Easter object lesson, Anna Boss, Florence Wilson and Hermina Lighthouser; "Easter Lesson," Ida Tier; "Easter Guests," Rose Hook, Elsie Dunavan, Mildred Caleen and Laura Bodine; "Easter Comfort," Edith Caleen; "Easter Bells," John Schofield; song, "Sing a Happy Song of Easter," Bessie Randall and Ida Tier; "Believe We, Christ is Risen," Mary Neal. There were a few closing remarks by the pastor and by Mr. Smith, who also read a letter from Mr. Anthony, who sent greetings.

The singing at both services was by the regular church choir. Mr. Titsworth, the organist, who trained them, was repaid for his labors by the excellent work rendered at both services.

HOPE CHAPEL.

There was an unusual display of Easter lilies, cut flowers and potted plants at Hope chapel Sunday. In the afternoon the Junior Endeavorers sang a few Easter carols and at night there was a special service of song.

ALL SOULS' CHURCH.

A good congregation attended the Easter service at All Souls' church yesterday. The pastor preached a sermon on the "Life of God in the Soul of Man." An Easter anthem was spiritedly given. Two persons united with the church, and were given a right hand of fellowship by the pastor, Mr. Warren B. Travell and Miss Elsie Van Zandt. The decorations were in white and gold against tall palms, the stately Easter lilies comporting well with the mural decorations of this tasteful little church.

WARREN CHAPEL.

Easter Sunday was observed with special exercises in Warren chapel Sunday morning and afternoon. The pastor, Rev. J. O. McKelvey preached an Easter sermon and there was also special music. The decorations were very pretty.

FIRST M. E. CHURCH.

Easter Sunday was observed in the First M. E. church Sunday in proper fashion. The pastor, Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass, preached appropriate sermons at both morning and evening services. The chorus choir, under the direction of Miss Jessie Utter, organist, rendered a number of special Easter anthems. A huge bank of palms, Easter lillies, and other potted plants hid the pulpit and platform.

In the afternoon at 3 o'clock, the Sunday school held a special service in the church. The church choir was present and sang several anthems. There were also carols by the school.

FIRST PRESBYTERI N

This church observed Easter appropriately with special music. The church was prettily decorated. In the morning a programme of vocal music arranged and composed by Fred Schilling, organist, was presented. In the evening the service consisted of an exhibition, for the first time, of Tissot's "Death and Ressurection of Christ.

MT. ZION A. M. E.

Rev. James E. Groves, the pastor of the Mt. Zion A. M. E. church, remembered the day in his sermons, and so did the choir in their choice of music. The flowers were numerous, and well displayed about the pulpit.

GRACE M. E. CHURCH.

The usual Easter services were held at this church. The church decorations were attractive. The afternoon service was of great interest to the large number of people present. Superintendent John Valiant was in charge, and the choir was assisted by Dyckman Wincker, Clarence Hillman, violin, and Walter Serrell, flute.

ST. STEPHEN'S

The rector, Rev. Simpson, officiated at a full choral service at St. Stephen's church Sunday morning. The decorations about the altar were palms, lilies and cut flowers.

PHILMORE AVENUE.

At the Philmore Avenue Baptist church, the pastor preached Easter sermons at both the morning and evening services. There was music appropriate to the day, and a profusion of flowers.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH.

The services at this church were interesting. The decorations were especially beautiful. At the morning service the chorus choir rendered several anthems, one of which was given by the woman of the choir. There were also solos by Miss Harris, G. W. Smith and Wm. Holmes, and P. Ludwig Conde assisted with the violin.

At the afternoon service the Sunday schools of the Home church, East Third Street Mission and Mt. Olive Baptist church assembled and joined in attractive programme.

The annual report of the home school was given by Secretary, W. C. Chapman. It showed that at present there are 432 scholars enrolled with an average attendance of 241

The report of the Mt. Olive Baptist Sunday-school showed a membership of 163 with an average attance of 83.

Superintendent L. W. Randolph, for the East Third Street Mission, reported a membership of 120, an increase of 29 over last year.

ST. MARY'S CHURCH.

The services Sunday were of a character commemorative of the day and were given with a splendor characteristic of the Catholic church. The high altar was beautifully decorated with many potted and cut flowers, while within the sanctuary there was a profusion of palms and other plants. Over the altar stood out prominently the words "He is Risen; Alleluia," and over the tabernacle was a beautiful crystal cross.

The choir had been enlarged for the occasion and reflected great credit on themselves, the solo soprano, Miss May Flanagan, rendering her part of the difficult musical programme in a commendable manner. A feature was the stringed orchestra, which added much to the music. Miss Smith presided at the organ. The responses were sung by a choir of twenty boys. Rev. Father Weckman, curate, celebrated the mass and Rev. Father Smyth, pastor of the church, delivered a sermon on the Resurrection.

GRACE P. E. CHURCH.

Easter was observed in the usual way at Grace P. E. church by a full choral service in the morning and a children's festival in the evening. The organist, Mrs. William Freeman, took particular pains with the choir this year. The full choir was out in the morning. The soloists were Miss Mabelle Smith, Miss Mary E. Collier, Herbert Schutt, Arthur L. Freeman, Fred J Pope, Fred F. Freeman and Harry Messeremith. The evening service consisted of carols and an address by Rev. Floyd Appleton.

ST. JOSEPH'S CHURCH.

The musical programme rendered at St Joseph's church was of more than usual excellence. At the 8:30 o'clock mass in the morning appropriate hymns were sung by the children's choir, under the direction of Mrs. M. A. Reilly. At 10:30 a. m., the regular choir, assisted by Miss Alice Quinn, violinist, rendered Giorza's Second Mass, arranged for violin, organ and choir. The choir, under the direction of J. E. Bailey, surpassed all previous efforts.

MT. OLIVE BAPTIST.

Sunday morning at this church an appropriate sermon was delivered by the pastor and there was some special music. In the afternoon the Lord's Supper was observed, and in the evening a special programme was given by the children and Pastor Jackson gave another interesting sermon. The pastor was very agreeably surprised to receive from the members a handsome purse of money for which he is very thankful.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

Easter Sunday was observed in the Congregational church Sunday morning and afternoon with special services. The floral decorations were unique. In the morning, the pastor, Rev. Charles Lyman Goodrich, preached an Easter sermon on "The Open Door." The special music included a instrumental trios by Mrs. B. T. Barnes, organist; Mrs. M. E. Dwight, pianist, and Anton Gloeckner, cf Elizabeth, violinist, and two soprano solos from "The Messiah," by Miss Kelley, of New York.

The exercises of the afternoon were under the auspices of the Sunday-school. There was singing by the school, several anthems by the Sunday-school quartette. The primary department had its share in the exercises.

CHURCH OF THE HOLY CROSS.

Beautiful music and flowers were the features of the Easter Day celebration at the Church of the Holy Cross Sunday. Large congregations were present at morning and evening prayer and the musical programme, published in Saturday's Daily Press, was well carried out by the large choister choir of the church. George Hosking, the organist, was in charge. He was assisted in the music by Owen Smith, cornetist. The rector, Rev. T. Logan Murphy, preached an appropriate discourse.

CRESCENT AVENUE CHURCH.

Elaborate musical services marked the observation of Easter Sunday at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church Sunday. The floral decorations were magnificent.

Rev. Dr. A V. V Raymond, president of Union College, officiated at both morning and evening services. He preached able sermons appropriate to the season. The musical programme was rendered by the regular church quartette choir, and Frank J. Smith, the organist. The musical programme was very fine.

GERMAN REFORMED CHURCH.

The usual services were held at this church and in addition some special music appropriate to Easter was presented. The pastor, Rev. George Hauser, preached sermons morning and evening that were both interesting and inspiring.

MONROE AVENUE M. E. CHURCH.

The largest Sunday morning congregation in the history of the Monroe Avenue church, gathered there yesterday morning for the Easter morning service and to partake of the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper which was also observed. The following were received on probation at the service:—William McCoome, Lucinda Beekman, Ruth Thompson, Ethel Stryker, Minne Gunzleman, William Fielding, Bruno Tabbert and Albert Tabbert. Miss Lucy Smith united in full membership. Mrs. Cox and her son united by letter. The Sunday-school held its Easter services in the afternoon at three o'clock.

SEVENTH DAY BAPTIST CHURCH.

Eastertide was observed in the Seventh-Day Baptist church, Saturday morning. There was an Easter sermom by the pastor, Rev. A. E. Main, and special anthems by the chorus choir at the morning service. In the afternoon, an Easter service was given by the primary department.

The church was prettily decorated with the Easter lilies and palms, which was banked about the front of the platform.

PARK AVENUE BAPTIST CHURCH.

At the morning and evening services at the Park Avenue Baptist church, the pastor, Rev. J. W. Richardson, preached Easter sermons, and the choir rendered Easter anthems with solos by Thomas A. Cuming. The pulpit was hidden in a wealth of green foliage, lilies and plants. Special exercises for the home department of the Sunday-school were held in the afternoon. Rev. Mr. Richardson made an address, the lessons of the past quarter were reviewed, and a duet was sung by Miss Ada Bunyon and Miss Adelia Bunyon.

CHURCH OF THE REDEEMER.

The services at this church were of the usual Easter kind, and consisted of special music and an appropriate sermon by the rector, Rev. G. M. Downey. There was a large attendance at the morning service and another large attendance at the vesper service. The church was tastily decorated with flowers, all of which added much to the attractiveness of the services.

The music under the direction of Choir Master Sprowl was very choice and ably rendered. The united Easter offering was the largest ever taken up in the parish and amounted to $865, which will be devoted to the building fund for the new church.

CHURCH OF THE HEAVENLY REST.

The Easter services at the Church of the Heavenly Rest were both appropriate and elaborate. The floral decorations were the most beautiful ever seen in the edifice while the congregation was the largest that has gathered there in some time. W. W. and F.G. Moore, lay readers, officiated. The choir did especially fine in the rendition of the musical programme. In the morning a special service was held for the Sunday-school, when W. W. Moore presented each of the scholars with colored eggs, on which was the date and the name of the church.

"DIPLOMACY" TO BE ACTED BY AMATEURS

Sardou's Great Play Will Be Produced for Charity.

FINE TALENT IN THE CAST.

THE DRAMA TO BE PERFORMED IN MUSIC HALL APRIL 29TH.

Rehearsals Have Been Going On For Some Time, and the Details are Having Thorough Attention From the Players—Alfred Young, of New York, is Acting as Coach—Those in Cast.

Sardou's great play, "Dipolmacy," will be given in Music Hall Saturday evening, April 29th, by Plainfield talent for Plainfield charities. All arrangements have been made and the cast is now complete. Rehearsals have been going on for some time past, and the details of the performance are having the thorough attention that characterizes the work of the company producing the play. The former plays produced by the members of the cast were well rendered. All remember "Esmeralda," "Young Mrs. Winthrop" and "The Grey Mare," which were successes. Last year "Caste," a difficult play, which required fine rendition to achieve success, was given in the Casino in aid of Muhlenberg Hospital. The performance brought forth unstinted praise, and by request it was reproduced in Music Hall, where a large audience greeted it with expressed approval. Both performances added a comfort*able sum for the hospitals.*

"Diplomacy" is a choice piece, having an almost unprecedented history both in the talent employed in it and in the number of times which it has been performed. It is constantly being revived by the best people in the profession, and within a short time a company of the highest ability will play it in New York.

When this play was first produced in London and New York it ran continuously for months. The great scene in the third act, known as the "Scene of the Three Men," produced a sensation and is considered one of the greatest scenes in English drama. The memory of it still lives in the minds of those who saw Wallack, Montague and Robinson, who were the "three men" that appeared in it when it was first played in America at Wallack's.

Alfred Young, of New York, is instructing the cast in the various parts. Following is the cast:

Count Orl ff	P. A. Pinsoffs
Baron Stein	W. L. Saunders
Henry Beaunier	D. M. VanVliet
Capt. Julian Beaucleres	Alfred Young
Algie Fairfax	Laurens H. VanBuren
	Harry M. Curtis
Antoine } Sheppard }	Arthur Murphy
Marquise de Rio Zares	Harry M. Curtis
	Miss Lily Gordon Wickersham
Dora	Mrs. W. L. Saunders
Countess Zicka	Miss Grace Wheeler Cooley
Lady Henry Fairfax	Miss Florence Waring
Mion	Miss Hunt gton

The sale of seats begins tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock at Armstrong's drug store.

Grace M. E. Church Finances.

Sunday morning at Grace M. E. church Mr. Valiant, for the trustees, presented a partial report of the financial condition of the church for one year up to date, taking into account the new parsonage just completed. It showed the finances to be in an exceedingly good condition. It was stated that the parsonage would cost about $2,500 completed, and taking in account everything there is an increase in property valuation of about $1,500.

Rev. George Angleman and family, are visiting Mrs. Angleman's parents on West Front street.

J. M. McNaughton and family, of West Front street, spent Sunday in Brooklyn with friends.

WORDS THAT HAVE AND WILL LIVE FOR AGES.

Usual Union Good Friday Services Held Last Week.

SERMONETTES WERE HEARD

MEETING WAS HELD IN THE CRESCENT AVENUE CHURCH.

Seven Pastors Take Up the Words That Jesus Spoke While Being Crucified and Draw Conclusions That are Spiritually Uplifting—Large Audience in Attendance—What the Pastors Said.

According to a well established custom, almost all the Protestant churches in the city joined in holding a union Good Friday service last week. The service was held in the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, and consisted principally of remarks by seven of the pastors of Plainfield churches on the words spoken by Christ while hanging on the cross. These short sermonettes were interspersed with hymns, responsive readings and prayer, but formed that part of the service around which all the rest clung.

The first word, "Father, forgive them, for they know not what to do," was commented upon by Rev. W. C. O'Donnell, of the Monroe Avenue church. He drew as a lesson from it that this prayer showed the consistency of the life of Jesus. The first words from his lips prove that he practiced what he preached.

Rev. C. E. Newell, of Hope chapel, spoke on the second word, "Verily, I say unto thee, today shalt thou be with me in paradise," and called attention to the importance of that day. The same day on which he was condemned and crucified, he was in paradise, and Mr. Newell urged upon his hearers the necessity of some day deciding to follow Him.

"Behold thy son, behold thy mother," was the third word, and Rev. W. C. Snodgrass, of the First Methodist church, pointed out the marvelous sympathy in that exclamation as well as the marvelous self control. Christ had risen to that level, when he gave utterance to those words, when he touched all humanity, and spoke to the whole human race.

Rev. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, called attention to the fourth word, "My God, My God, Why Has Thou Forsaken Me," and asked his hearers to notice that they came after several other expressions, as though Jesus thought of his forsaken condition last.

Rev. Cornelius Schenck, Ph.D., of Trinity Reformed church, said that only once did Christ give way to his personal feelings and that was when he said, "I thirst," after he had prayed for the forgiveness of his enemies and had comforted his mother. Then he thought of himself, and of his sufferings. We today can quench His thirst by ministering to his people, and thus to him.

Rev. Floyd Appleton, of Grace P. E. church, drew his remarks from the sixth word, "It is finished." He said that Christians should not look upon Good Friday as a day of darkness, but in the light of a festival. He said that in the East Christ crucified is not looked upon as a martyr but as a king.

The last word, "Father, into thy hands I command my spirit" was spoken of by Rev. A. E. Main, of the Seventh-Day church. Naturally, his remarks were of a concluding character, leaving some wholesome thoughts to ponder over during tomorrow. He spoke of the fatherhood of God, and how Jesus, all the way to the cross, knew He was the loved of his Father. Jesus, he said, surrendered his life voluntarily. Death may be our conquorer, but Jesus went to grave to rob death of its sting.

The attendance was large, and the offering was made to the Children's Home.

Brought Back a Brown Complexion.

Morris and Clarence Sutphen, of West Second street, returned home on Friday evening from the Bermuda Islands, as brown as berries, where they have been spending a delightful winter. Clarence, who was ill when he left Plainfield, is greatly improved. The young men found a pleasant home with a family at Warwick, East, near Hamilton, and the balmy climate and life in the country awheel, did wonders for both of them.

His Money Went For Rum.

Charles Frang, who says his home is at Weston, near Round Brook, appeared to the police Saturday night for lodgings, as he said he had no money. He was allowed to go early Sunday morning, and immediately procured a quart bottle of whiskey, by night he was drunk, so was arrested and locked up by Sergeant Kiely. Sentence was suspended upon him Monday.

Miss Dunham, of Arlington avenue, is entertaining her cousin from Brooklyn.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Vail, of West Eighth street, who have been at Hamilton, Bermuda Islands, returned home Friday evening, on the Pretoria.

WANT A RECEIVER FOR CARRABELLE COMPANY.

R. F. Brokaw, of Bound Brook, Asks Chancellor for One.

PROPER NOTICE IS SERVED.

CARRABELLE COMPANY INCLUDES MANY LOCAL INVESTORS.

Chancellor McGill Issues a Rule to Show Cause Why a Receiver Should Not Be Appointed for Carrabelle Land and Lumber Company—Mr. Brokaw Claims He Could Not Collect Notes of $2000.

Application was made before Chancellor McGill last week by Richard F. Brokaw, of Bound Brook, for a rule to show cause why a receiver should not be appointed for the Carrabelle Land and Lumber Company, the main office of which incorporation is located at 215 North avenue. Mr. Brokaw alleged that he held notes against the concern to the amount of some $200 which he claims he is unable to collect. He stated that he believed that the company was insolvent and wanted a receiver appointed. Notice was served on the company Saturday. The hearing was set for April 10th.

The Carrabelle Company includes a number of local investors among its stockholders. The officers are all of this city. They are A. D. Thompson, president and general manager; F. S. Bunyon, vice-president; Theodore F. French, secretary and treasurer.

Reporter interviewed the president, A. D. Thompson, Monday morning. He admitted that the application had been made but did not apprehend any serious outcome from it. Senator Charles A. Reed, Mr. Thompson's legal representative, was also interviewed. He knew that the application had been made but was not yet acquainted with the details. He expected that it would be fought.

The Carrabelle Company was organized in this city a number of years ago with a view to develop the timber resources of a tract of woodland near Carrabelle, Florida. The company purchased several hundred acres of forest and erected sawmills at Carrabelle and Appapachicola, Fla. The property of the company lies along the Appapachicola, New and Ocklockonee rivers. The valuable yellow pine and cypress timber was cut down and brought to the saw mills and thence shipped to New York and mottom ports for railroad timbers and ties. A. T. Swartz is the superintendent of the company at Carrabelle.

FIREMEN DID GOOD WORK

BARN HOUSING THE SCOTCH PLAINS STAGE WAS BURNED.

Origin of the Fire is a Mystery—Adjoining Houses and Barns Are Saved Through Active Work of Firemen.

Fire was discovered last Friday at 10:10 o'clock in the barn on Chatham street occupied by Thomas Newman, stage driver, and owned by Abram King. An alarm of fire was sent in from Box 141 by Garrett Kiely, who secured a key at Powers' drug store on Somerset street. The department responded quickly and worked about one hour to extinguish the flames.

The firemen did great work in saving the adjoining barns and houses. A portion of the Newman barn was destroyed, and a shed and one stage was completely destroyed. All of the horses were saved. It was only necessary to use one line of hose.

What caused the fire is a mystery. It started in the old stage and was burning rapidly when discovered by the neighbors. There is an insurance on the property, but the loss is not a heavy one.

The neighbors assisted the firemen in rescuing the horses and other things in the barn and from under the shed before they were burned. The Scotch Plains stage was scorched considerable and it will require a good deal of work to put it in condition to use again.

PASSING COMMENT

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

It wasn't a bet, only an understanding between Mayor N. B. Smalley and Assessor E. M. French before election, that if Smalley lost the Assessor was to wear a silk hat, but if he was elected Mayor he would become the possessor of a gavel. Saturday His Honor received a marble block, bearing the inscription "Mayor" on one side, "N. B. S." on the other, and the date of the election on one end. It was carefully wrapped up and the Mayor thought that he was the victim of an April fool joke. The gavel, which is made of ivory and ebony, came after cards with a little speech by the Assessor.

Andrew Cox, of Liberty street, is detained at home by illness.

Mrs. James Clarkson, of East Second street, has about recovered from the effects of a recent accident when her ankle was sprained.

RUSHED TO DEATH IN BURNING BARN.

Horse, Frantic With Fright, Broke Away From Rescuers.

BIG BARNS DESTROYED.

FARM BUILDINGS OF ALBERT MANNING BURNED.

The Light of the Conflagration Could be Seen for Many Miles—Neighbors Formed Bucket Brigade and Saved the Homestead From the Flames—Loss Will Reach $3,000—Partially Insured.

South Plainfield, April 1.—The large barns belonging to Albert Manning, just north of the South Plainfield pond on the road to Plainfield, were completely destroyed by fire early last evening. One of the horses broke away from its rescuers and dashed back into the burning building where it was cremated.

The fire started in the main barn a few minutes after 6 o'clock. The family and neighbors turned out to save the horses and wagons. Two of the men rushed into the blazing stable and tried to lead the horses out by their halters. One was successfully dragged out. The other horse reached the door, then broke away and was last seen dashing back to its stall.

The building burned very rapidly, and it was only by the greatest exertion that the wagons and part of the farm machinery was saved.

The east wind sent the sparks in the direction of the Manning homestead and soon flames burst forth from the roof of it. The neighbors formed a bucket brigade and finally extinguished the blaze after considerable damage had been done. A shed, to the windward of the fire, escaped destruction.

The loss will reach nearly $3,000, including the barns and their contents and the damage to the house. There were three tons of hay stored in the barn. The light of the fire could be seen for miles.

MASTER LOWE CHRISTENED.

Impressive Easter Even Service for a Youthful Recruit.

The annual Easter Even and Holy Baptism services of the Church of the Holy Redeemer, were held Saturday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock. Among the children baptised was Master E. Franklin Lowe, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest A. Lowe, of Fairview avenue. He was attended by his parents, with Mrs. Frank Anderson, of Brooklyn, and Mrs. J. Myron Hamilton, of Newark, as sponsors. His grandmother, Mrs. Laura F. Burtis, Mrs. Herbert Taylor, of Fairview avenue, his cousins, Miss Elsie Burtis and Master Eric Burtis, of New York, and Master Harold Hamilton, of Newark, were also present. His cousin, Master Willie Burtis, son of Councilman Burtis, being absent on account of illness, being confined to his room with whooping cough.

The usual impressive rites and musical service of the Episcopal church being beautifully rendered under the able supervision of the renowned rector, Master Franklin acting with becoming dignity through out. The Easter decorations of the church, of course, adding to the beauty of the occasion.

FORMER PLAINFIELD WOMAN DEAD.

Mrs. John H. Angleman Succumbs to a Long Illness in Bayonne.

The many friends of Mrs. John H. Angleman, of Bayonne, will be shocked to learn of her sudden death which occurred Sunday morning at her home after an illness of two weeks with pleuro-pneumonia. Mrs. Angleman was a member of the Woman's Relief Corps and two weeks ago she attended a gathering in this city when she contracted a severe cold which resulted in her death.

She was 38 years old, and has resided in Bayonne for five years. She was the daughter of Thomas McClain, of Illinois. She resided in Plainfield for twelve years. She leaves a husband and two children a boy and a girl.

A Plank Road Dinner.

A private party of local business and lodge men enjoyed a genuine plank shad dinner at the Hotel Kensington Saturday night. Proprietor Staats served the dinner in fine shape and won the praise of his guests. Plainfielders who take meals at the Kensington are surprised at the elegance of the cuisine served there.

Miss Mary Brown, of East Fourth street, has received word from her brother in Nebraska that he has about recovered from his critical illness.

Frank Cokefair, of Crescent avenue, is enjoying a visit from his cousin, Abram Albertson, of Bangor, Pa., who was a member of the famous 71st Regiment of New York, that experienced some hard fighting in the recent war at San Juan. Mr. Albertson is looking remarkably well, but he shows in a measure the result of his experience.

FINER GOLF GROUNDS FOR HILLSIDE CLUB

Clubhouse to be Enlarged so as to Have Plenty of Room.

236 ACTIVE MEMBERS NOW.

SUPPORT FROM OTHER THAN GOLFERS IS ANTICIPATED.

Mr. Ivany, Formerly Steward of the Seabright Club, Will be in Charge of the New Restaurant, Which is Expected to be a Popular Feature—The Lay of the Links to be Changed to Make Better Playing

The trustees of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club are planning to carry out some much needed improvements to the clubhouse and golf grounds. The present dining room is but 11 feet by 16 feet and the kitchen but 11 feet by 12 feet. The experience of last season demonstrated that this space was much too limited to accommodate the large number of members who patronized the restaurant. Golfers and others were sometimes obliged to waste much valuable time in waiting to be served with luncheon and this created great dissatisfaction. It is proposed to erect an addition to the clubhouse on the north side as shown in the plan above. The present kitchen will be converted into a private dining room. Adjoining this will be a new dining room of spacious dimensions (16 feet by 39 feet) This room will run entirely through the house from east to west, having windows at either end, which will provide abundance of light and free circulation of air. The present butler's pantry will be converted into a broad hall leading to the main entrance of the new dining room. The rear piazza will be extended and a door will give entrance from thence to the new dining room at the east end.

To the north of this dining room will be the new kitchen, butler's pantry, etc. It has not been decided what disposition will be made of the present dining room. Perhaps it will be devoted to the use of the ladies for a reception room, their present reception room really being needed for additional locker room. In making these improvements no extravagance will be indulged in, but the work will be done in the simple and inexpensive manner which characterizes the present clubhouse. Mr. Ivany, the former steward of the Seabright Club, has been engaged to act in that capacity for the Hillside Club during the coming season. Mr. Ivany will be assisted by his wife, and he will employ a cook and house servant. As the entire time of these four persons will be devoted to catering to the wants of members in the clubhouse, this department will be thoroughly equipped.

The power of the windmill has proved inadequate to pump the large amount of water necessary for the comfort of the members, and a gasoline engine will be erected to act as an auxiliary pump in conjunction with the windmill.

Interested friends have already subscribed about three-quarters of the amount of money necessary to carry out these improvements, and it is confidently expected that the remainder will be obtained shortly. From this fund will be devoted a sufficient amount to enable the golf committee to introduce artificial hazards and other betterments on the golf course, making the links a delight to the ardent golfers of the club. Bonds will probably be issued similar to those issued last year in all respects excepting that these bonds will not carry interest until March 1st, 1902 Thus it will be seen that all these improvements will be obtained without increasing the expenses of the club at all for the next three years. By that time, it is hoped, the club will be upon so firm a basis as to be able to exercise its option to purchase the beautiful property it has secured.

It was feared that a large number of resignations would be tendered in consequence of raising the annual dues from twelve to twenty dollars. That fear has not been realized to any great extent. The active membership is now two hundred and thirty six, being within fourteen of the limit.

The trustees believe that this club will become more popular than ever this year, by reason of the added attractions to the clubhouse and golf course, and they look forward with confidence to having a "waiting list" before the season is far advanced. If the trustees carry out the improvements they contemplate, and furnish a good restaurant as well, the club will receive the support, doubtless, not only of golfers, but of many who drive or ride a wheel.

The clubhouse certainly occupies a beautiful location, commanding an extended view over the valley to the mountains beyond, and its broad piazzas furnish a charming resting place to break the monotony of a drive or ride.

In fact this clubhouse constitutes the only attraction of the kind within easy driving distance of Plainfield, and for this reason, if for no other, this popular club should continue to enjoy the cordial support of the public spirited citizens of our city.

The officers of the club elected to serve during this year are as follows: President, Geo. A. Chapman, 443 Sizile avenue; vice-president, Albert H. Atterbury, 816 West Seventh street; secretary, Josiah Browne, 1225 Watchung avenue; treasurer, Jan VanHerwerden, 1302 South avenue; chairman of the house committee, George P Mellick, 224 LaGrande avenue.

The following named gentlemen composed the golf committee: Lewis E. Waring, chairman; Dr. F. C. Ard, Rutherford M. Shepard, Thomas K VanBoskerck, Henry W. Lowe.

CANDLE LEFT BURNING.

A Serious Fire Narrowly Averted in Dunn's Grocery Store.

A serious fire was averted Thursday in F. W. Dunn's grocery story, corner North and Park avenues. Some of the clerks were putting a shipment of potatoes in the cellar and a candle was used for light. This candle was placed on one of the steps of the cellar stairs. After the potatoes were put in the clerks went away forgetting to take the candle. They were absent some little time, when one of the clerks heard a strange noise. He hastened to the cellar and discovered that the cellar steps were on fire. There was some lively hustling for a short time and by hard work and through the use of plenty of water the fire was extinguished. An examination was made later by Assistant Chief Jennings of the fire department, and everything was found to be all right.

Building Operations Active.

The month of March has seen an increase in the building going on in Plainfield. Sixteen permits have been granted for new houses and additions to houses by Building Inspector T. O. Doane during the month.

AND THE BAND PLAYED ON.

Queen City Players Rendered a Programme at Reform Hall.

The Queen City Band, with Benjamin LaVere as musical director, gave a free concert in Reform Hall Thursday under the auspices of the Reform Club. The entire orchestra of twenty pieces was out and eight or ten selections were played before the end of the programme.

During intermission President Wm. C. Smith and Michael Armstrong made a few remarks on the temperance cause and gave an invitation to signers. There were four who put their names to the pledge. The attendance was large and the concert was enjoyed by everyone.

Three Cases of Typhoid in One Family.

Three cases of typhoid fever have developed in the borough at the home of Edward T. Mundy, where Mr. Mundy's two children as well as himself are confined with the disease. The Board of Health is keeping close watch over the house and will use every means to prevent a spread of the disease. Health Inspector Pangborn is making a close investigation in the hope that he will be able to ascertain the cause for the outbreak of the disease.

NO BANN AGAINST QUIET POKER GAMES

Police Board Supports Judge Runyon's Action.

INVESTIGATED THE RAID.

DECLARED THE JUDGE DID RIGHT IN DISCHARGING PRISONERS.

An Opinion From the Corporation Counsel Put Same Interpretation on City Ordinance as Did Judge—Board Not Finished Case of Police Officers—May Hold a Public Hearing.

A quiet little poker game is per misable under the present city laws. So said City Judge William N. Runyon when he discharged the prisoners captured in the raid on the alleged poker game in the West End several weeks ago. At hearing this the people talked. So said the Mayor and Police Board, Thursday, after hearing an opinion of the Corporation Counsel and looking into the circumstances of the raid.

There was another meeting of the Police Board Thursday. Its principal object was to look more deeply into the facts concerning the raid of the alleged gambling house. The officers who made the raid, Patrolmen Totten and Saffron, were before the Board Other officers who knew something about the trouble were also there. The members of the Board heard what they had to say.

The city ordinances on the subject and an opinion by Corporation Counsel C. A. Marsh, giving his interpretation of the ordinance, were read and discussed. Then the Board decided that the City Judge had done right in discharging the prisoners and they supported his action. They decided that an occasional game of poker in a private house was perfectly legal. The regular den, deriving a revenue either directly or indirectly from the game, was what the law objected to.

No action was taken regarding the officers who were ordered before the Board. There were several minor charges against them. They will come before the Board at some future date unless the Board decides to refer the matter to the Council and have a public hearing in their cases.

The criticism of the City Judge in dismissing the complaints against the prisoners captured in the raid was one of the causes for the investigation. The Board says that the criticism was unjust and that the Judge's course was perfectly proper.

The effect of this decision of the Board will be that raids of alleged "poker joints" in the future are likely to be few and far between. It will be much more difficult to prove that it is other than a private game.

TO PHILADELPHIA BY TROLLEY.

Continuous Line Across This State the Big Scheme of the North Jersey Company.

The papers providing for the leasing of the North Hudson County Railway Company's lines to the North Jersey Street Railway Company are being prepared. This amalgamation, which has been expected for several months, will be one more step towards the formation of a continuous trolley line across New Jersey from the Hudson to Philadelphia. Over connecting trolley roads it will soon be possible to ride from Jersey City west as far as New Brunswick, Middlesex county. In the meantime the trolley roads east of Philadelphia, in New Jersey, are being developed and extended westward to meet the roads from the east. Soon the remaining connection links necessary to complete the cross-state line, will be provided by the construction of a line from Camden to Bordentown and Trenton, from Trenton to Princeton, and from Princeton to New Brunswick.

Prayer for the Collector.

At a meeting of the borough finance committee last Thursday they gave Collector George F. Brown the power to receive money from the assessed property-owners on Watchung avenue at the rate of 6 per cent. The former per cent. was 10, and this was considered too high, so Collector Brown will only charge 6 per cent. As yet very little money has come in for the reason that the property-owners were waiting to ascertain something definite regarding the rate of interest.

He Enjoyed a Sleighride.

David T. Kenney, of the borough, had a novel experience Thursday. Up on the St. Lawrence river he was sleighriding on ice that covered a channel 60 feet deep. Huge snowdrifts were all around and the snow bore him company all the way from Clayton and Round Island to Carthage.

Assistant Superintendent Now.

A. V. Lunger, of Watchung avenue, one of the employees of the Prudential Insurance Company, under Superintendent Bell, at Dover, Morris county, has been promoted to the position of assistant superintendent, and today enters on his duties as such.

BUILDING BOOM BEGINS.

THE WEST END OF THE CITY SEES THE MOST ACTIVITY.

Work Started on a Number of New Residences of Varying Values—Who Are Building and Where Located.

Slowly but surely Plainfield is reaching out, and the open fields of a few years ago are now occupied by many charming residences and homes. This spring sees the steady growth of the building in the outskirts. Judging from the increase, the promised season of prosperity is beginning to make itself felt.

That part of the West End, bounded by Monroe and Grant avenues, West Seventh and West Fourth streets, has been the centre of a strong building movement. The Plainfield Real Estate Company has some six residences nearly arrived at completion and has now just started the erection of another three story frame residence on West Sixth street. A. D. Thompson, president of that company, is personally building an elaborate residence on West Seventh street, near Monroe avenue.

John D. Runyon has also started a handsome new residence on West Sixth street near Monroe avenue.

A. A. Stryker has been busy all winter in that section and six new houses have been the result of his labors. He found ready purchasers for them and has now just started on two new ones on West Sixth street street, near Monroe avenue.

In the eastern end of the city, William H. Bohl is active. He has just started work on three new residence on Kensington avenue, north of Putnam avenue. They will cost $4,000 each.

MET A WATERY GRAVE WHILE ON A FURLOUGH.

FATE OF A UNITED STATES MARINE.

John Daley, a Brother of Mrs. George Schick, of Scotch Plains, is Found Dead.

Mrs. George Schick, of Scotch Plains, has received the sad news of the death of her brother, John Daley, who was serving as a marine in Uncle Sam's navy and was stationed at Norfolk, Va. Mr. Daley's death is shrouded in mystery and all the intelligence the commanding officer was able to write was that the deceased had been granted a ten days' furlough March 13th. When night came he failed to return.

After ten days he was dropped as a deserter, although his record was very high. Several days ago a body was found floating in the river, and from appearances it had been in the water for several weeks. An examination of the clothing revealed the mystery of why John Daley had failed to return when his furlough was up. The commanding officers wrote Mrs. Schick that there was a suspicion of foul play about the case, but there were no signs of such on the body.

The United States authorities will no doubt probe the matter to the end, and in a short time more particulars will be forthcoming. Mr. Daley enlisted in the service at the beginning of the war between the United States and Spain, and was in Cuba through the thickest of the fray.

An Incipient Fire.

Last Saturday evening at 11:20 o'clock Patrolman Welzenried was walking away from the Netherwood Railway Station, when he was informed by some men that Johnson's woodshed on South avenue was on fire. He then sent in an alarm of fire from box No. 28, North and Woodland avenues. The department responded quickly, but on arriving at the scene of the fire they learned that they were not wanted. The fire was very small and was quickly extinguished by the residents on the property.

No Need for Lodge Rooms.

When the Suydam building on East Front street was erected two years ago, the upper or third floor was designed to be used as lodge rooms. As it happened, all the local lodges were provided for and the new quarters were not needed. Carpenters are now at work changing the lodge rooms into flats which will then be placed on the market.

A Pleasant Surprise.

A pleasant surprise party was tendered to Miss Estella Brooks, of the borough, Thursday, when a number of her young friends called on her unawares and spent a most enjoyable time in playing games, dancing, singing and listening to instrumental music. The affair was arranged by Miss Addie Carney and Miss Tiny Voehl.

New Church Organist.

Mr. Miller, of Boston, has secured the position of organist at the First Presbyterian church and will commence his duties next Sunday. Mr. Miller played on trial at the church two weeks ago and by a unanimous vote of the choir he was selected.

Edgar W. Williams, stenographer to the Porto Rican Commission, of which Dr. Carroll is the head, returned Saturday from Washington. He will reside in this city while the report is in preparation.

PRINCIPAL HONORS WON BY CARROLL.

Results of Season at Y. M. C. A. Gymnasium.

ATHLETICS AND GYMNASTICS

RAYMOND B. CARROLL MADE BEST ALL-ROUND SHOWING.

Won All-Round Athletic Contest and Finished First in Dual Meet With Brunswick—Walter L. Long Won Gymnastic Honors—Rapid Development of Eric Moraller—Some Other Winners.

Now that the active season at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium is nearly at an end, it is a matter of interest to know which of the local athletes and gymnasts has, by his work in the various competitions, made the best showing of the year and might properly be entitled to championship honors. To those who have kept in touch with affairs in the local gymnasium, there seems little doubt but that in all-round work, particularly athletics, Raymond B. Carroll stands well in the lead. In gymnastic lines, alone, Walter L. Long has done the best work. Carroll's general excellence in everything, however, makes it eminently proper to place him at the head of the list.

Carroll has to his credit two of the principal victories of the year in athletics that can be won in the local gymnasium. He was easily first in the all-round athletic contest of ten events. Although it was considered a novice event, there was no one else who could have defeated Carroll. In the dual athletic contest with the New Brunswick Association, Carroll was the highest among all the competitors, including his two team mates, as well as the New Brunswick men. F. O. Bristol and George Proctor Smith, who have carried off most of the honors in the two years preceding, have done little during this year except in the dual contest when they were out classed by Carroll.

Most of the indoor records are held by Bristol and Smith, although Carroll broke three this year and came very close to several others.

Walter L. Long has done excellent work in gymnastics during the regular class periods. He won the indoor pentathlon contest and the open contests with bar and dumb-bells. In none of these, however, Carroll participated. It is doubtful whether Long could stand second to Carroll on athletics but in gymnastics, he is the leader of the local men. Frank Marcley would give him a lively tussle for first in gymnastics had he the time to practice. Marcley has taken little or no part in the work in the gymnasium this year owing to pressure of business duties.

Probably the most improvement to be noted is any of the local men can be seen in the work of Eric Moraller. He has now risen to one of the high places in line, winning the novice gymnastic contest, and finishing second in the pentathlon, bar and dumbbell contests. He has done well in both athletic and gymnastic work, but it is particularly noticeable in the latter.

Two entirely new candidates for honors have pushed forward during the year. They are Hervey K. Doane and Wm. Townsend. Townsend had the advantage of a better physique on which to build. He finished second in the all-round athletic contest, a trifle ahead of Doane. Doane was second, however, in the gymnastic contest. This is the first year for both of them and they promise to be winning championship honors in a year or two if the present improvement continues.

Ivan Hardingham could make a good showing if he tried, but he has done little this year. Both Bristol and Smith have taken little part in the work this year and the lack of training and practice threw both back in their usual form when they did occasionally compete. There are a number of others who have made improvement during the year and who promise to step into prominence in the future.

All the contests for this season have been held and the season is nearly up. Thursday evening, April 20th, will see the formal closing of the work of the gymnasium. The leaders will all assist and the first, second and third year's work will all be exploited.

Good Things for Pastor.

Rev. Scott Wallace, of West Front street, pastor of the Calvary Baptist church, was agreeably surprised last Friday by a number of the women members of his church, who brought many good things to the pastor that will be very acceptable. After the arrival of the guests a short thanksgiving service was held.

Judge Bartine Buys in Elkwood.

Judge Bartine, of Somerville, has purchased the Elkwood building on West Second street, and will improve the building with a view of renting offices, etc.

TO GO HIGHER IN COURT.

DISSATISFIED BOROUGHITES TO FIGHT AVENUE ASSESSMENTS.

Thirty Taxpayers Who Have Not Planed With Recent Decision Will Put Up Three Per Cent., More to Pay C. A. March.

It has been learned since Thursday that there are about thirty persons living along the line of Watchung avenue in the borough who have taken exception to the new report recently given regarding the assessments by Judge Gummere, and they propose to fight the thing until they get a decision that they think is right. In the first instance those who objected were assessed five per cent. of the amount of their assessment. This time they will be assessed three per cent. to carry the case to the Supreme Court. Lawyer Craig A. Marsh represents the opposition, and he has been instructed to carry the case up.

One objector to the assessment, who is down for $300, informed a Press representative last evening that if everyone along the line was assessed in proportion to himself he would not kick, but he feels assured that he is paying enough to help some one else out. He contends that the people on the upper part of the avenue are not assessed enough, and thus he claims inequality.

TO CHANGE DWELLINGS AND MAKE STORES.

THE PLANS OF MRS. DURLASH.

Will Improve Valuable Property on Watchung Avenue and Front Street.

The opening through of Watchung avenue and the building of the Watchung avenue bridge is gradually extending the business section of the city in the direction of Watchung avenue and East Front street. The demand has already been felt by one of the principal owners there, Mrs. Durlash, who owns the northeast corner property.

Those who remember the troubles between the city and various property owners in that vicinity will recall the dispute over one of the houses owned by Mrs. Durlash. The plazza of the house now extends over the sidewalk line and it is claimed that the city can, at any time, compel her to tear down or move the building.

Mrs. Durlash is now preparing to make some temporary changes to her houses and convert them into stores. It is proposed to remove the plazzas and old fronts of the houses and put in store fronts with show windows.

DOG STRUCK BY A TRAIN. FELL IN CYCLIST'S PATH.

THRILLING SIGHT ON PARK AVENUE.

Canine Hit by a Blue Liner and Fell to the Same Spot That Cyclist Arrived at.

A peculiar accident occurred to Edgar Brokaw, sexton of the Park Avenue Baptist church, Saturday afternoon, while he was riding his wheel through Park avenue, coming toward the railroad bridge. Just before he reached it a Blue Line flyer came along and buried a good-sized dog from the bridge. He went up in the air a considerable distance and when he came down he landed directly in the centre of Park avenue just as Mr. Brokaw came along. The cyclist and the canine reached the same spot at the same time and the former could not help running over the dog. In coming in contact with the animal Mr. Brokaw was thrown from his wheel and went head-first into the gutter, suffering considerable from shock. Aside from a few bruises and scratches Mr. Brokaw escaped any serious injury. The dog, however, made his escape after such a thrilling experience and he was not injured in the slightest degree. He went down the street like a streak of lighting and has not been seen since.

HIS STEPS WERE UNCERTAIN.

Owen McCarthy Did Not Mind Policeman and Landed in the Roosery.

Owen McCarthy, of this city found a box of shoes, a package and the street cars too much to watch all at once Saturday night, laboring under the disadvantage of being intoxicated, as he was. Patrolman Mattox found him leaning against a building on the corner of Front street and Park avenue, and after ordering him three times to go home and stop stumbling about in the way of pedestrians, locked him up. This morning City Judge Runyon fined McCarthy $3 which he paid.

Hard Fall Off From a Bicycle.

John Dillon, aged 25 years, fell off his wheel at the corner of Seventh street and Plainfield avenue yesterday afternoon and was taken to the hospital. Convulsions followed and the patient is now suffering from a slight concussion of the brain.

Prize Choristers.

Prize choristers of Grace choir for March were Harry Messersmith, Harris Egan, Raymond Cohen, Vincent Miner, Malcolm Davis and the Misses C. Woodword and E. VanDeventer.

PORTO RICAN REFORMS THAT ARE NEEDED.

Commissioner Carroll Returns From His Investigation.

PRAISE FOR ISLANDERS.

HE BELIEVES THEY ARE CAPABLE OF TERRITORIAL GOVERNMENT.

Imperative Reforms are Better Schools, Good Roads, Popular Municipal Government and Cleaner Jails and Prisons—Commerce Should be Unrestricted—Praise for Governor-General Henry.

Dr. H. K. Carroll, of the borough, whom President McKinley appointed as a commissioner to Porto Rico, returned home Thursday accompanied by Mrs. Carroll, his secretary, C. E. Buell, and the stenographer, Edgar W. Williams. Each member of the party looks well and have enjoyed good health while away.

The party arrived in New York on the Steamer Buford after a very delightful voyage. The commission has completed its work and nothing now remains but a compilation of the report to be presented to President McKinley. Headquarters will be established in this city after next week and the work of preparing the report will be started.

Dr. Carroll was seen yesterday afternoon by a Daily Press representative.

In answer to the question as to what are the most urgent reforms that should be undertaken to restore prosperity to the island, Dr. Carroll said: "The first is the construction of good cart roads. Nothing is better fitted to kill prosperity than the lack of a system of roads in the island. It is not surprising that the planter has little or no margin after his crops are harvested. It costs almost as much to transport as it does to produce the crops.

"The second reform of importance is, in my judgment, that of public schools. The late government is responsible for the inadequate system of public system, and nearly everything is to be done. I would recommend competent teachers, suitable buildings erected with regard for hygeneic principles.

"The third reform should be municipal government. About the success of a self-government I cannot say under the present military regime, but it would be practical to allow the people to elect by their suffrage, and thus give them power to conduct their own affairs without referring to everything to the Insular Government.

"Another reform necessary is that pertaining to the jails. Many that I have seen are above criticism, while most of them are a reproach to civilization. It seems to be most important that the people should organize and express public sentiment as regards the various reforms and take steps to improve the present condition of affairs.

"In regard to the establishment of a civil government this step is impossible until Congress meets, which probably will not be very soon, and it is hardly possible that Porto Rico will have its new form of government inside of a year. I think the best form of government for the island is a territorial one. I believe that the people are competent for the measure of self-government that a territory implies, and I believe that it is perfectly safe to make Porto Rico a territory.

"I think that the commerce between the island and the United States should be unrestricted. The natural market of the island is the United States; the natural market for the manufactures of the United States is Porto Rico, and I trust that free trade will be granted. I expect to see the bonds of commerce draw our new possessions close to us and make it what it really aspires to be—an integral part of the United States."

Dr. Carroll was very loud in his praise of Governor General Henry, who has charge of the island. He believes that he is the right man in the right place. He does not believe that the people are restive under his military regime, but on the contrary they recognize in him a true friend.

Commissioner Carroll will go to Washington next Monday to see President McKinley regarding the report of his work in Porto Rico. Upon his return the latter part of the week he will establish an office where his report will be compiled. He will be assisted by Secretary Buell and Stenographer Edgar W. Williams. It will probably take the largest part of a month to complete the report.

Real Estate Movements.

LaRue & Cuming, of North avenue, has rented A. B. Dunlap's house on East Sixth street to J. Warren Brown; H. Elker, house, 10 Craig place to Mr. Crowell, of Rahway; the Elliott property, corner West Eighth street and Clinton avenue, to H. Pew; the Lee farm, near Bound Brook, to M. D. Smalley, of Dunellen; Mrs. DeBaud's house, East Front street to Mrs. J. Pitts, of Jersey City.

FRED MARTIN WINS THE PRESS CONTEST

Final Announcement of Result of Subscription Contest.

ONE CHANGE IN ORDER.

VERY FEW OF THE SUBSCRIBERS HAVE DISCONTINUED.

One Condition of the Contest was That All Subscribers Must Take The Press for Six Month to Count—The Month is Over Now—Revised List of the Leading Contestants Follow—The Prizes.

The Daily Press subscription contest closed a month ago. Monday afternoon Manager of Circulation C. F. Stout announced the final results. Fred Martin was the enterprising young man to finish first in the contest and has now before him a complete course at the Plainfield Business College. P. J. Galbraith is second and goes to the Gregg School of Shorthand. Charles Dean finishes third and wins the Webster's International Dictionary, offered as third prize in the contest. The time they spent in hustling for new subscribers for The Daily Press is now well repaid. They worked hard and have succeeded in the accomplishment of that for which they aimed.

One of the conditions in the contest was that no subscriber was to count on the various lists unless he or she continued to be a subscriber for a month at least. That necessitated the postponement of the final result until a month after the contest closed, in order to see the exact standing of each contestant under the rules of the contest. Of course, there were a few of the subscribers who stopped before the month was over. The percentage was remarkably small, however, considering the circumstances. Of the 388 new subscribers added to the subscription lists by the contest, only seven per cent. have discontinued their paper.

The wait of the month made one change in the order of the contestants. Dean had been second by a lead of one. He fell back to third. The order of the various contestants was published March 23 at the close of the contest. The revised list of the first three contestants is as follows:

	Total number of subscribers he did not take by three leading contestants.	Number of subscribers he did take personally during the last fourth of time to be counted.	Total number of subscribers turned in by the three leaders.
Fred Martin.....92	1	51
P. J. Galbraith..... 91	3	51
Charles Dean.. .86	7	47

AN INCIPIENT FIRE.

Small Ice House Set on Fire by a Spark From a Locomotive.

A small ice house on the south side of the Central railroad tracks below Grant avenue caught fire Tuesday noon at 2 o'clock from a spark from a passing locomotive. An alarm was sent in and the fire department responded, but the flames were under control before they arrived at the scene. The structure was owned by Mrs. Brown. The damage was $25.

While the steamer was passing by Potter's press works one of the horses drawing it fell from exhaustion or some other cause and was dragged for a considerable distance by the momentum of the steamer and its comrade. The animal was badly cut and bruised and may be seriously injured. The driver retained his seat and was not hurt.

Funeral of Mrs. Stine.

The funeral services of the late Mrs. William Stine were held Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the house on West Front street. The attendance of relatives and friends was large. Rev. Dr. Yerkes, pastor of the First Baptist church, officiated and spoke feeling words about the life and character of the departed. He told of her exemplary Christian life and how faithful she had been in serving the Lord. There was an impressive display of floral tributes from friends. The interment took place in Hillside Cemetery.

A Birthday Surprise.

Thirty friends of Mr. and Mrs. Lafayette Rosenstell, of Somerset street, tendered him a birthday surprise Monday, Sunday having been his birthday. The evening was spent in dancing and playing games. One feature of the evening was a cake walk in which Miss Sadie Bilmm and Irving Mills were winners. The party left at midnight.

Leased Music Hall.

Mazo Edwards, manager of Music Hall, has leased that theatre for next year and has already booked a large number of the best attractions for the amusement of Plainfielders next year The theatre will be opened in August by the Kennedy Players. Mr. and Mrs. Edwards will spend the summer in California

Attachment Cases Go Over.

The attachment cases against Mrs. Nancy Furviance, which were to have come up before Justice Nash Tuesday morning, were adjourned for one week.

Veronita.

Since the beginning of the revolution the privileged character has shared the cent of the President and Vice President of the Cuban republic. He is little Venancio Verons, or "Veronita." He is the youngest soldier in the "army of liberty," and has passed through all the dangers, trials and hardships of that awful struggle. A few months after the war broke out a boy not more than 12 years old rode into the insurgent camp in Najassa. He had escaped from the city of Puerto Principe he night before. Halting in front of President Cisneros' headquarters, he said: "I have come to join the 'insurrectos.' The Spaniards have killed my father, and I am the only one left in our family old enough to fight. If I can have a gun I would like as far as possible to take my father's place and fight for Cuba." He got the gun, and with it the love and protection of Salvador Cisneros, that grand old man who gave up all to battle for his country's freedom. A special order was sent to the United States for one light rifle for a young soldier of 12 years. When the gun was placed in Veronita's hands he was undoubtedly the proudest boy in Cuba. The president became very much attached to him, and each night had a pile of sarones (large rugs made of palm leaves) placed under his tent for Veronita's bed. The bond of affection between them grew so be as strong as between father and son. Many times I have seen them, the boy of 12 and the man of 72, asleep in the same hammock. While on the field Veronita rides one of the President's spare horses, and never complains, no matter how fatiguing the journey may be, or how sharp the pangs of hunger.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

The Dandelion.

Just before commencement a class, in which there were a good many little girls were told to write an essay on flowers. One little girl of 8 told her mamma afterward that all the other children picked on such beautiful flowers as they loved best, but that no one thought of the poor little dandelion. Her thoughts of that meek little flower were so sweet, we now give it to other little ones to think over:

"The dandelion did its best to be bright and say all day long; it had a broad, happy, golden face, that was not admired by all who looked at it.

"'Oh, I wonder why nobody loves me!' it said sadly. 'It must be other flowers are better than I. Will anybody ever care for me? Will I close my leaves and die?'

"'No, no,' said the gentle wind, passing o'er. 'Keep hoping.' Just then a busy bee came buzzing o'er the tall meadow grass and rested on the dandelion, for the dandelion had honey in its heart. 'Ah!' said the bee, 'I am so glad I found you. You are so sweet.' The dandelion turned its face to the sun, saying, 'I have not lived in vain.' Each of us can do some good for somebody."

A Queer Pet.

William Simpson, who lives at Pine Castle, Fla., near Lake Marie, has a small boy named Rob, who tamed as alligator and loved him as dearly as if he had been a goat. The 'gator was called "Pete," and proudly sported a copper ring in his head as a civilized 'gator who knows his friends should. One day Pete disappeared, and the stayed for three years. In the meantime Robert received many spankings because he was continually playing with alligators and getting all sorts of scratches and bruises. Now comes the queer part of the story, that recalls the interposition of fairy godmothers. Bob was making overtures to a big alligator one day, and the saurian came at him with his large, open countenance, and the little boy began to say 'sic 'em,' just as he did to the time another 'gator appeared, and the first 'gator had a fight on his hands. When the fight was over Rob discovered that his alligator ally was the long-lost Pete grown indeed, but still wearing his stamped copper ring. This time Pete stayed, and people go for miles to see youngster ride on his back.

A PREACHER'S WIFE.

MRS. HENRY WARD BEECHER GIVES SOME ADVICE REGARDING HER.

Her First Duty, She Says, is Within Her Home, and Other Women With Fewer Cares Should Lead in Mission and Church Work Generally.

In a recent issue of the New York World, Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher writes entertainingly on the duties of clergymen's wives:

Is not the first and most important work for all wives a faithful discharge of such home duties as should make home next to the very gates of heaven? If this work is kept constantly in mind—as the first duty—has a minister's wife may, with clear conscience, use the few square moments in each day in such work in her husband's church, and elsewhere if needed, as may bring all those over whom she has influence into closer union with each other, and promote and encourage active labor in every good work.

But I think few realize how much the home labors of a minister's wife can "strengthen his hands and encourage his heart." No man needs so much the help his wife can give him at home as a clergyman. Especially is this the case in large cities, where he is liable to be called upon to give much time and labor to outside work not absolutely connected with his church. People don't reflect that under such circumstances he needs more of his wife's help than other professional men.

If the wife is expected to take an active part or be held in parish work and all the charitable and benevolent associations that are connected with the church, what time can she have for such home service as can save her husband from constant interruption? Who but the wife can be ever ready to relieve him from the numerous and often important calls, and frequently be able to give such answers to these calls as will be satisfactory without any interruption to his studies? Who but the wife can take charge of the numerous letters brought by the daily mails and answer most of them, without his studies or labors being disturbed by them?

The help and relief that a clergyman's wife can give her husband, in these and many other ways, will enable him to do tenfold more good in his parish than he could possibly do if she presided over every missionary or charitable society connected with the church.

There are always many good, capable women in every church, even better fitted to take charge of all such societies than their pastor's wife is. But they could not take her place and give him the help and relief she can bring him at home. I don't mean that a minister's wife should not be interested in and appreciative of the work these women are actively engaged in and ready to assist them, giving every moment they can to work with them lovingly. But I do not believe she should be expected to make this her first duty.

Equal to the Emergency.

The Louisville Post is credited with a story of a city gentleman of simple tastes, some of which are not shared by his wife. He likes to do things that he used to do when he was a happy country boy.

The other day, according to his own account of the matter, he was sitting on the back porch shelling a big dish of peas. It was the servant's work of course, but he was doing it for pleasure, as his wife, meantime, was entertaining some stylish callers. Suddenly the man heard one of the ladies say:

"Oh, I must see your pretty back yard. I have heard so much about it."

The next moment a window was opened, and out popped two pretty bonnets. The man was in a strait. His wife would be terribly mortified, he knew. With great self-possession he turned his head away and continued his work. His wife was not a whit behind him in quickness of course.

"Patrick," said she, "you mustn't forget to mow that grass before Mr.—comes home."

"Yis, ma'am," answered the peasheller, with his best brogue, and the crisis was passed in safety.

Health Indications by Dreams.

Lively dreams are a sign of the excitement of nervous action.

Frightful dreams are a sign of determination of blood to the head.

Dreams in which one imagines pain or injury to any part of the body indicate disease of that part.

Dreams of distorted forms are a sign of obstruction or disease of the liver.

To dream of fainting indicates a weak action of the heart.

Gentle pleasant dreams, are a sign of a healthful action of the head, but in nervous fevers often indicate the approach of a favorable crisis.

Dreaming is an experience common to humanity, though it varies widely in different individuals, and in a few exceptional cases is absolutely unknown.

Behind a Wall Within a Wall.

The Emperor of China, Kuang Hsu, cannot appear in public. He lives in a great palace surrounded by a wall. He was kept in the strictest seclusion throughout his youth, the Dowager Empress acting as Regent. He had in his palace yards miniature models of men-of-war, a train of cars which was an exact model of the first railway train run in China, and every toy that science could invent or money procure. But he has never seen one of his own men-of-war or ridden in a real railway carriage.

"GLAMING" IS THE LATEST FAD.

Milk, Sun-bathed Air and Happy Thoughts Used in Combination.

Glaming is the latest occupation of women who devote themselves to the pursuit of health and beauty, says the New York Sunday Journal. Glame is a raw word, which represents the chief object of these disciples of physical culture. Those who seek it are said to be glaming, and are denominated glamers.

Some of the essential rules of glaming may be briefly stated for the benefit of inquirers. They are:

To drink milk fresh from the cow at a temperature of ninety-eight degrees. To inflate the lungs at regular intervals, close the eyes and let the mind dwell on one of the pleasantest prospects in life. To repose at regular periods during the day in air which has recently been in motion and on which the sun has shone. To have the skin kneaded daily with sweet oil. Glaming, it is claimed, retards indefinitely the wrinkles, gray hair and all the other signs of old age; beautifies the complexion, gives the eye wonderful powers of fascination, keeps the figure youthful and elastic, and preserves the powers of the mind.

The aim of the glamer's diet is to prevent the production of and to keep the deposit of calcareous or mineral matter in the heart, brain and arteries. This deposit is the cause of old age. Physiologically one may become old at thirty as well as at sixty.

To guard against this ossification, it is necessary to prevent or dissolve the osseous deposits. One or two pints of distilled water daily are of great benefit. The diet should include apples, pears, grapes, orange juice, cherries, plums, peaches and berries.

As animal food, fish, poultry and young mutton are recommended, because they contain less earthly salts than other meats. Phosphorous is necessary for the nourishment of the brain, and this is to be found in lean meats, fish, cheese, whole wheat, oatmeal, almond paste, white cornmeal, beans, peas, figs and prunes.

As glame in the system becomes more abundant the pulse will become firmer, the skin take on a healthier hue, the eye grow brighter, the step more elastic and day by day life will be better worth living.

Glame enters the body with the oxygen we breathe and passes out with very exhalation. The following rule of glaming is intended for the benefit of the lungs:

Sit or stand perfectly still in some place where the air is in motion, or has been recently, and upon which the sun has shone. It it not necessary to sit in the sun. Fill the lungs to their utmost capacity and hold the breath long enough to count three or more. The time should be about fifteen seconds. Let the breath escape very slowly. Repeat by drawing in the breath very gradually and hold for five seconds. Always inhale through the nose if possible.

This is the first of four rules. The next directs the glamer to take a gentle breath very calmly. When the lungs are easily full, but not crowded, she closes the hand so tightly that the most delicate pressure is felt. Then she is to think of the happiest prospect possible. A glimpse of ocean will be so plainly felt that its presence will teem with vitality.

Watches are Small.

Watches are worn smaller than ever and although an effort was made last season to revive the watch chain, the effort met with no response, for watches are still fastened to the bodice with a jewelled brooch, and the chain alone proudly holds its own. In Paris and New York the latest fad is to have a watch in the form of a ball, thickly encrusted with emeralds or enamelled with glistening green. Another watch, in fashion of a beetle, has a body of dull gold shining with gems. Yet another has wings and the wings open as if to fly, disclosing a peep of the time o'day. Among other items of new jewelry are the Russian girdles and belts of white or colored enamels, tricked out with gems either false or real, according to the price one can afford.

About Wedding Rings.

The associations called up by a wedding-ring are very touching, and it is the last thing that even the poorest wife will part with. If it ever was considered a badge of servitude, it now is much more suggestive of queenship and sovereignty. An old Latin writer thus describes the ring: It is circular, because the mutual love and hearty affection of matrimony should be forever, their continuity remaining as unbroken as the circlet itself. It is an old—and, exploded—notion that the ring is placed upon the fourth finger because a small artery connects with the heart. The real reason probably is that the left hand is not used as much as the right, and the fourth finger less than the other fingers.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

Some girls can't talk to you an hour without asking you if you don't think it's so silly to be romantic.

If a woman knew when she would fall out of a window and catch by her heels, I wonder what kind of clothes she would put on.

A girl will tell you you may call her by her first name with the same tone she would use if she were giving you a set of diamond shirt buttons.—New York Press.

COLLEGE MEN SANG WELL

SUCCESSFUL CONCERT BY RUTGERS COLLEGE GLEE CLUB.

Was for Benefit of Athletic Associations of the High School—Programme Was Well Rendered and Much Enjoyed.

The glee club from Rutgers College entertained a large audience at Y. M. C. A last Monday for the benefit of the Girls' Athletic Association, of the Plainfield High School, and the Plainfield High School Athletic Association. The programme was largely musical and was rendered to the satisfaction of the audience.

It was the first appearance of the Rutgers Glee Club in this city for several years and the college boys made very favorable impression. The members of the club were all arrayed in the cap and gown. The programme included choruses by the club, solos by George W. Wilmot and Harold Thomas Edgar, a quartette by Messrs. Wilmot, Fisher, Richters and Edgar, and recitations by Orville Earl Fisher.

The selections were all good, but "The Continuous Show" and "Chestnuts" found special favor. Fisher's recitations were particularly pleasing.

The concert was a complete success, and the athletic associations netted a good balance as a result of it.

TAKING SCHOOL CENSUS.

ENUMERATORS APPOINTED BY THE BOARD OF EDUCATION.

Meeting of the Board Held at the House of a Sick Member—Proposed Alterations in Whittier Building Secretly Discussed

Owing to the ill health of Leander N. Lovell, one of the members of the Board of Education, the regular monthly meeting was held at his home on Crescent avenue Monday. There was just a quorum present, Dr. J. B. Prosser, Messrs. Lounsbury and Lovell.

The meeting was a short one. From the record of the proceedings of the last meeting it seems that the Board met on that evening to examine plans for changing the class rooms in the second story of the Whittier School building. What action was taken that night was not made public, and at the executive session, which followed last night's meeting, it is likely that the matter was discussed again at length.

The tax collectors's report showed that $1,058 89 had been collected during the past month, for the years '89, '94, '95 '96, '97 '98. This including $94 36 interests.

The necessity of appointing four men to take the annual school census this year was brought to the attention of the board by a communication from P. N. Kline, of East Sixth street, who applied for the position. The board then appointed E. J. Oleson for the first ward; P. N Kline, second; and Abraham Angleman, fourth, leaving the third vacant.

Mr. Lounsbury moved that an advertisement be inserted in the newspapers for bids for coal to be delivered at the convenience of the board. The bids are to be presented at the next regular meeting.

The medical inspectors, Doctors Tomlinson and Murray, reported that during March 340 pupils have been vaccinated, and that there were 65 ordinary examinations made. The board then went into executive session.

NEW STONE ROADWAY FOR FRANKLIN PLACE.

MACADAMIZING HAS NOW BEGUN.

It is a Much Needed Improvement and Will Be Greatly Appreciated By the Residents

Work was begun Monday morning preparatory to the macadamizing of Franklin place, between East Fifth street and LaGrande avenue. A gang of men are now at work removing the earth from the middle of the roadway, where the macadam is to be put.

The improvement is a needed one and will be appreciated throughout the city as well as in that neighborhood. The remainder of Franklin place is in good condition, but that section becomes almost impassable at every heavy rain. It will be generally used by horsemen and wheelmen as a short cut to South avenue, now that Richmond street has the trolley and is in such poor condition.

See picture of Alfred Speer in another column, the original wine grower in the United States, whose wines have become famous over the world; also his * * * Climax Grape Brandy.

See What a President Says on Brandy for Sickness.

The President of the Baltimore Medical College, who has thoroughly tested Speer's wines and brandy, says:

"Speer's Climax Brandy is a pure and valuable article in all cases of disease in which a reliable stimulant is required. I regard its superior to most French brandies."

Officers Installed.

The newly elected officers of Howell Division, Sons of Temperance, were installed Monday night. The work was done by Mrs. Sarah A. Mattox, district deputy.

A Prominent Physician.

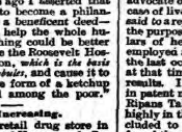
A prominent New York physician in discussing the merits of Ripans Tabules with a brother M. D. said: "Several years ago I asserted that if one wished to become a philanthopist, and do a beneficent deed—one that would help the whole human race—nothing could be better than to procure the Roosevelt Hospital prescription, which is the basis of the Ripans Tabules, and cause it to be put up in the form of a ketchup and distributed among the poor."

Sales Increasing.

The largest retail drug store in America is that of Hegeman & Co. on Broadway in New York City. A reporter who went there to learn how Ripans Tabules were selling bought a five-cent carton and asked: "Do you have much call for this?"

He was referred to a gentleman who proved to be the head of the department. He said:

"The sale of Ripans Tabules is constant and is increasing, due especially to the influential character of the testimonials in the daily press, and growing out of these, through the recommendation of friend to friend. Satisfaction with them is very general. When once they are begun I notice that a permanent customer for them is made. This, I believe, is through the intrinsic merit, which proves the bona fide character of the advertising. I think them especially useful in the general run of stomach troubles."



An Elderly Lady.

An elderly lady living at Fordham Heights, a part of New York City, and who was known to be a warm advocate of Ripans Tabules for any case of liver trouble or indigestion, said to a reporter who visited her for the purpose of learning the particulars of her case, that she had always employed a physician and did so on the last occasion I had for one, but at that time obtained no beneficial results. I had never had any faith in patent medicines, but having seen Ripans Tabules recommended very highly in the New York Herald concluded to give them a trial, and found they were just what my case demanded. I have never employed a physician since, and that means a saving of $50 a call. A dollar's worth of Ripans Tabules lasts me a month, and I would not be without them now if it were my last dollar. At the time of this interview there were present two daughters, who specially objected to their mother giving a testimonial which should parade her name in the newspapers, but to do this the elder lady argued "There may be other cases just like mine, and I am sure I take great pleasure in recommending the Tabules to any one afflicted as I was." The telling about my case in the papers enables some other person similarly afflicted to be as greatly benefited as I have been, is no objection." The daughters, knowing how earnestly she felt about the benefit she had received, decided she was quite right.

A new style product containing ten ripans tabules packed in a paper carton, flattened sheet to pass conveniently into the vest pocket, is now on sale at many druggists. It is intended to supply the demand for a low priced preparation. One dozen of the five cent cartons (5 x 1 inches) can be had by mail by sending forty-eight cents to the Ripans Chemical Co., 10 Spruce St., New York City. Ripans Tabules may also be had of druggists. (THE TABULE will be sent for five cents. Ripans Tabules may always be had of druggists. Ripans Tabules are sold by druggists, or by mail if the price (60 cents a dozen) is sent to the Ripans Chemical Co., New York.)

ALFRED SPEER,
THE ORIGINAL
Port Grape Wine Producer in America.

The first native wine sold and used in San Francisco and Sacramento was from Speer's Passaic, N. J., vineyards, was shipped around Cape Horn before there was any railroad to California, and are now being used by physicians and first families there as the richest and best wine to be had

The juice of the Portugal Port Wine grape grown in N. J. is thick and rich same as the juice of pears and other fruits grown here. From California pears you can squeeze water as from a sponge; so with all fruits grown in California; while those grown in New Jersey are solid in substance—less juice but thick and richer. The New Jersey apple for instance, make a cider that was always popular the world over. If you want a wine for sickness or for entertainments don't take cheap, watery wines but choose a first class old, full bodied, high grade wine from Speer's Passaic vineyards. Sold by Druggists.

Everything for the Garden

Sweet Peas the choicest,
Fancy Lawn Grass Seeds
and odorless Lawn Dressing

Telephone Call, 6.

A. M. GRIFFEN'S,

119 East Front st.

FARMERS' WIVES

or any other ladies who wish to work

Can Earn Lots of Money

working for us in spare time at home on our cloth. We offer you a good chance to make plenty of spending money easily, in leisure hours. Send 12c. for cloth and full directions for work, and commence at once. Cloth sent anywhere. Address

WINOOSKET CO. (225 C) Boston, Mass. Mfg. Dept.

VICK'S SEEDS

Bulbs and Plants have gone to thousands of households for half a century and we celebrate the 50th year in business. We have issued a Special Golden Wedding Edition of which is a work of art. It has 24 pages lithographed in colors, 4 pages souvenir, and nearly 100 pages filled with the finest half-tone engravings of Flowers, Vegetables, Plants, Fruits, etc., elegantly bound in white and gold. It is a complete encyclopedia of information on all subjects pertaining to the garden, with more for the amateur and florist than any book published, and is desirable. It is too expensive to give away indiscriminately, but we want everyone interested in a good Guide to have a copy, therefore we will send the Guide with a DUE BILL for 25 cents worth of flower and vegetable seeds 15 cts

Vick's Garden and Floral Guide

It tells how credit is given for full amount of purchase to buy other goods.

Vick's Little Gem Catalogue.

A perfect little gem of a book. Size, 3½ x 5 inches. Both the Guide mentioned, finely illustrated, FREE and this little book sent for only enlarged, improved, and up to date on all subjects relating to Gardening, Horticulture, etc. Keeps her subscription price 50 cents a year.

Vicks Monthly Magazine,

Special 1899 offer—the Magazine one year and Vick's Garden and Floral Guide, for 50 cents.

OUR NEW PLAN of selling Vegetable Seeds gives you more for your money than any other seed house in America.

JAMES VICK SONS,

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

Quality Rather Than Quantity.

President Eliot of Harvard, says: "The International is a wonderfully compact storehouse of accurate information."

WEBSTER'S INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY

Best for the Household.

Words are easily found. Pronunciation is easily ascertained. Meanings are easily learned. The growth of words is easily traced, and excellence of quality rather than superfluity of quantity characterizes its every department.

Specimen pages sent on application to G. & C. MERRIAM CO., Publishers, Springfield, Mass.

DIME

Savings Institution,

Of Plainfield, N. J.,

Is now receiving deposits payable on demand, with interest, allowed on all sums from $5 to $3,000.

J. FRANK HUBBARD, President,
GEO. W. BOCKFELLOW, Vice-Pres.
J. C. POPE, Treasurer.

Money deposited on or before January tenth will draw interest from the first.

SEEDS ... FOR THE ... Garden and Farm

Vegetable and Flower Seeds. All the newest and best varieties, quality unsurpassed. Illustrated Catalogue FREE.

WEEBER & DON Seed Merchants and Growers, 114 Chambers St., New York City.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

VOL. XXXII. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, APRIL 13, 1899. NO. 15.

"Support the Constitution, Which is the Cement of the Union, as Well in Its Limitations as in Its Authorities."—Madison.

MISSIONARY WORK AMONG THE CHINESE.

Miss Cunningham Related Interesting Experiences.

APPEARED IN NATIVE DRESS

REV. G. F. PENTERCOST MADE AN APPEAL FOR MORE FUNDS.

He Said That Foreign Missions Were Not Supported as They Should be—He Has Been Working in India and Knows the Difficulties of Missionary Work—Annual Election of Officers was Held.

The afternoon session of the annual meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Presbytery of Elizabeth, in the Crescent Avenue church Tuesday, included two addresses upon missionary topics. One was delivered by Miss Cunningham, of Ningpo, China. Miss Cunningham has spent several years in work among the Chinese, and the experiences which she related were interesting.

Miss Cunningham was sent out years ago by the Presbyterian Board, and, with an occasional visit to America, manages to live a happy life among her uncouth surroundings. Her work is mostly in the street ways, along which she and her party will in a house-boat, preaching and talking to the women as they meet them about their daily toil. Miss Cunningham appeared in the native costume when she spoke.

The second speaker was Rev. G. F. Pentercost, D. D., of Yonkers. Dr. Pentercost has also been a missionary, and spent much of his time on the field in India. He urged his hearers to give liberally, and thus help the board to creep out of the financial difficulties which hard times and added calls in their treasury have caused. Dr. Pentercost cited statistics to prove the millions in money which we Americans have been spending in other ways this past year, while the missionary board is put to its wits ends to find means to meet obligations.

The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Mrs. J. T. Kerr, Elizabeth; vice-presidents, Mrs. C. H. Langdon, Elizabeth; Mrs. J. G. Mason, Metuchen; Mrs. S. E. Lewis, Rahway; Mrs. S. J Bowland, Clinton; Mrs. S. Milliken, Plainfield; Mrs. F. H. Pierson, Elizabeth; Mrs. V. O. Burtis, Westfield; Mrs. William Scribner, Plainfield; Mrs. John Gillespe, Elizabeth; Mrs. M. D. Vernon, Springfield.

Corresponding secretary, Mrs. Wilson W. Smith, Plainfield; recording secretary, Miss E. M. Colton, Elizabeth; young people's secretary, Miss L. B. Allen, Elizabeth; secretary of literature, Miss J. J. Smith, Elizabeth; treasurer, Mrs. E. P. Taney, Roselle; assistant treasurer, Mrs. W. F. Stevenson, Roselle. The next place of meeting will be Perty Amboy.

DEATH MAY RESULT FROM RUNAWAY

Somerville Man in a Critical Condition by Being Thrown Into the Road.

Somerville, April 12.—Fred Bacon, a local fish dealer living on High street, was thrown from a horse yesterday afternoon and received injuries that may result fatally. He was driving his horse through Main street when the animal was taken with a fit and began to kick and plunge. In his efforts to gain possession of one of the reins, which he had lost, he climbed out on the horse's back. He was thrown headforemost into a heap of stones and was picked up insensible.

The horse began to run and plunged right into the entrance of the Ten Eyck House, on Main street, where it was caught. Bacon was carried into the hotel and then taken home in a carriage. He was badly cut and sustained injuries to his skull which may result fatally.

Played Euchre at Park Club.

The usual large number of people attended the weekly progressive euchre party at the Park Club Tuesday evening and everyone enjoyed themselves to the fullest extent. The affair was arranged and given under the direction of Mrs. B. A. Hegeman, Jr., and Mrs. F. H. Ball, and everything possible was done to make the evening one of pleasure to all.

Miss Brooks as Hostess.

Miss Estella Brooks, of Duer street, entertained the T. C. D. C. club last Tuesday. The evening was passed in playing games, and before leaving refreshments were served to the guests.

Former Mayor Charles Place, of Grove street, has returned from a business trip to Philadelphia.

Mrs. Welsh, of New York State, has been visiting her brother, Henry A. McGee, of Washington Park.

Miss Gertrude Snodgrass, of Central avenue, has returned to her studies at the Women's College, Baltimore.

EDITOR RUNYON WON FROM THE BARD CO.

JUSTICE MOSHER GIVES A DECISION.

Decides That Mr. Runyon's Claim is Just and Therefore Allows Him Judgment for $74.

Justice Mosher Tuesday handed down his decision in the case of the Bard Company against A. L. C. Marsh and F. W. Runyon, and as the case was a difficult one to decide, and contained some points that needed care ful attention, the decision is of more than ordinary interest.

The case against Marsh was nonsuited. In the case against Runyon the court decided that no cause of action was proven by the plaintiff. But the defendant, Runyon, filed a set off against the plaintiff for advertising, and as the actual advertisements were proven and also the assumption of the debt, the court therefore gave judgment against the plaintiff for $74 and costs of the suit. W. S. Angleman was for Runyon and G. W. V. Moy for Marsh. Murphy & Blatz represented the company.

BRIDE AND GROOM WERE NOT LONG TOGETHER.

SICKNESS MADE SUDDEN PARTING.

Groom Received News of His Brother's Serious Illness—Miss Kister was the Bride.

A quiet wedding took place Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock, when Miss Amelia F. Kister, of Harmony street, was united in marriage to Joseph M. Bowman, of Charlottesville, Va. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Joseph McKelvey, of Warren chapel.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Carrie M. Kister, and the best man was Werner Heidelolf. After the ceremony all sat down to a wedding supper.

Mr. Bowman is an actor of some note, and is professionally known as George O. MacLean. He was late leading man of the Irene Taylor Company.

Just prior to the wedding the groom received a telegram telling him of the serious illness of his brother in Charlottesville, and he was obliged to leave on a late train for that place, hoping to reach his brother's bedside before the latter died. The bride will remain here until next Saturday, when she will join her husband in Chambersburg, Pa.

OLD LANDMARKS GONE.

March of Improvements at Somerset Park in Washington Valley.

The passing of time and the march of improvements make many changes in the topography of places, but few more so than at Washingtonville. The Somerset Real Estate Company having purchased the Spencer farm, and have a large force of men and teams grading the grounds and opening streets, thus placing on the market one of the finest villa sites and building plots in this section of the State.

From some points portions of Plainfield, with the Highlands of Navesink in the background, greet the eye. Lying as it does south of the Watchung Mountains, it is protected from the cold blasts of winter, and pure spring water abounds everywhere.

The cider mill and still house, which for more than a century made cider and apple-jack for farmers for more than three generations, are torn down to make room for the widening of the avenue leading to Passaic Valley.

An old gum barrel, hollowed out of a gum tree, was found, with a date showing that it had been dug out in 1710. It was in the Oakley family 14 years and in the Wilcox family 94 years, when it came into possession of Wm. F. Spencer, the former owner, to whom it was given by his maternal grandmother as a family relic of the times when gum barrels were the only kind to be had and wheels were sawed out of butts of logs, making solid wheels.

With the advent of the trolley and a new county road connecting Plainfield with Bernardsville and Morristown leading past the place, Somerset Park, as the site is now known, will offer inducements to home seekers such as are seldom presented

An Insurance Superintendent.

James E. Bailey, of the borough, has been given the position of superintendent of the Metropolitan Insurance Company at Westfield, and entered upon his duties yesterday. Mr. Bailey has been associated with the company in this city for sometime past and is highly thought of by the company.

How Youngsters Would Manage.

The entertainment to be given by the children of the Loyal Temperance Legion Saturday afternoon will endeavor to show how much better homes they could have if our city and nation were managed according to their plan

—The front of John Powers' drug store on Somerset street is being painted an attractive color.

VARYING RESULTS IN LOCAL ELECTIONS.

Jersey City Goes Democratic With a Big Majority.

ELIZABETH IS REPUBLICAN.

RAHWAY AND NEW BRUNSWICK ALSO IN G. O. P. COLUMN.

Mayor Hoos, of Jersey City, Re-elected by Between 6,000 and 7,000—Elizabeth Board of Aldermen Will Stand Nine Republicans and Four Democrats—Bayonne is Also Democratic Jersey City, April 12.—Jersey City's election resulted in a complete Democratic victory. Mayor Edward S. Hoos was re-elected by a majority of between 6 000 and 7,000 out of a total vote of 25,331. This is the largest majority ever received by a candidate for any office in the city. Two years ago Mayor Hoos had a majority of 3,600 over J. Herbert Potts. His opponent at yesterday's election was Edward M. Watson.

Election in Elizabeth

Elizabeth, April 12—There was a very light vote in Elizabeth yesterday, the election being in only six of the twelve wards. The principal candidates voted for were Aldermen and School Commissioners.

The first returns came from the Eleventh ward Republican stronghold, where Joseph L. Benedict, ex-Alderman, received 165 majority over Jacob W. Sheppard, School Commissioner; Peter L. Servis, Rep., 152 majority over Thomas W. Puece, Dem. The First ward elected Jeremiah O'Leary, Independent, Alderman over W. Flynn, regular Dem., by 181 majority; Patrick J. McGurnin, Dem., was elected School Commissioner over Timothy E. Hawley, regular Dem., by 178 majority. Third ward: John J. Corrigen, Dem., Alderman, Thomas G. Bye, Rep., School Commissioner. Fifth ward: George W. Horre, Rep., was elected Alderman, and Joseph G. Coleman. Rep., School Commissioner. Seventh ward: Paul Noll, Dem., elected Alderman, and William H. Reibel, Dem., School Commissioner. Ninth ward: Frances Engel. Dem., elected Alderman by 145 majority; Wickliffe B Sayre, Dem., School Commissioner, 178 majority. The next Board of Aldermen will stand, Democrats, 4; Republicans 9; Board of Education: Democrats, 6; Republicans, 6. Republican gain of two.

Mayor Williamson Re-Elected.

New Brunswick, April 12.—The charter election in New Brunswick was one of the most exciting and closely contested that has been held in that city for years. In several wards there were bitter factional fights. The re-election of Nicholas Williamson, the Republican Mayor, was certain, the Democrats having no opposition candidate The Democrats had nominated William S. Strong, but he declined.

Democrats Carry Bayonne.

Bayonne, April 12.—The figures in Bayonne last night showed Egbert Seymore (Democrat) re-elected Mayor over former Mayor William C. Farr (Independent.)

Rahway Goes Republican.

Rahway, April 12.—The election returns from Rahway came in slowly last night, owing to numerous cutting in all the wards From indications a Republican Mayor, Water Commissioner, School Commissioner and Councilman-at-Large will be elected. The next Council will be Republican by a safe working majority.

A Pleasant Surprise Party.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Runyon, of Somerset street, arranged and gave a complete and enjoyable surprise to William Henry, brother of Mrs. Runyon, last Tuesday. It was attended by about twenty-five friends. The evening was passed in dancing and playing all sorts of games. It was about 3 o'clock this morning when the affair broke up and the guests departed for home. When it came time for refreshments the surprisers were more surprised than the host had been, for while they were merry making in the parlor, some one had gone in the back way and made off with a part of the eatables.

Music for Music.

The teachers and scholars of the Borough Public School deserve liberal patronage for the concert to be given in the school this evening. A fine programme has been prepared, and the proceeds will be devoted to purchasing new music for the High School.

Mrs. Chas. Whitall and Miss Lillian Whitall, of East Second street, has returned from a visit with relatives at Somerville.

PRINTS FIND FAVOR.

GOOD ATTENDANCE AT CAMERA CLUB EXHIBIT.

No Decrease in Interest or Attendance so Far in Print Exhibition—Professional Work Shown, Too—To be Continued

There was no decrease in the attendance or interest shown at the annual photographic print exhibition of the Plainfield Camera Club, which is being held in the club gallery in the Babcock building. During the afternoon and evening of Tuesday there was a stream of visitors in and out to see the exhibits.

The exhibit of Miss Julia M. Garman, which carried off the silver medal for the best display by any woman, has attracted much attention. Some of the views are of local subjects and there are also several excellent ones of Central Park. The prints all have the carbon or gull finish, and are finished up in a particularly pleasing way.

One of the most elaborate of the prints is a view of a printing press, made by William Harsel, which received first award in the mechanical class. After the photograph was taken Mr. Harsel went over it with a sharp knife and removed all the film from the glass except just the parts of the press itself so, when printed, the picture shows the press on a perfectly black background. The care and skill needed to follow all the little curves and turns to the press are great, and Mr. Harsel has successfully accomplished a difficult feat.

Among the prints shown for exhibition only is a large collection by C. T. Coon, which includes the set of views of the great railroad disaster on the Lehigh Valley at West Dunellen. John, the big Easton photographer, also has a fine display of portraits.

WHIPPED HORSES CRUELLY.

A Disgusting Exhibition on the Part of a Driver is Witnessed.

An exhibition of cruelty to animals was witnessed yesterday as the car-driver of Fifth street and Watchung avenue, and if the driver had been seriously injured he alone would have been responsible. The man was driving one of Capt. Hand's handsome teams that was hauling a large and heavy base for a monument. When near the corner of Fifth street and Watchung avenue the team shied a little at a trolley car. The driver immediately applied the whip in a vigorous manner, causing the animals to plunge. The result was that a heavy piece of culvert stone was wrecked on the corner and two shoes were pulled from the horses feet. The only thing that saved the driver and the team from serious injury was the heavy load on the wagon. It was the opinion of all who saw the accident that the driver was not fit to have charge of horses.

DEATH DUE TO A CANCER.

After a Long and Painful Illness Mrs. Phebe A. Johnson Passes Away.

After a long and painful illness the death of Phebe A. Johnson, aged seventy-one years, wife of Former Collector John Johnson, of East Second street, occurred yesterday. Death was due to a cancerous growth. Recently an operation was attempted to remove the growth, but the physicians decided that if it was removed it would cause death, otherwise she might live for some little time.

Mrs. Johnson has resided in this city for a number of years, where she had a large acquaintance. She leaves a husband and two children, Charles Johnson and Mrs. Andrew Love, Jr. The funeral will be private.

New Kind of Macadamizing.

At present Park avenue between Fourth and Seventh streets is being treated to a macadam that is new in its introduction in this city. The street is being macadamized entirely with stone, not a particle of clay, sand or dirt being used. The work is being done under the direction of David Bowden and he hopes to give Plainfield one of the best streets they have ever had.

Catholic Club to Entertain

The Plainfield Catholic Club has arranged an enjoyable entertainment and dance to be held in its clubhouse this evening. An entertaining programme has been provided for the members and their friends.

A Fair Editor From Plainfield.

Miss Mabelle Phillips, of Madison avenue, now a Junior at Wellesley College, has been chosen editor of the principal literary magazine at the college and will be in charge of the paper for a year.

Y. M. C. A. WHEELMEN WILL REORGANIZE

Meeting of Y. M. C. A. Cyclers Friday Night.

WILL ARRANGE THE RUNS

SHORT TOURS FOR MEMBERS DURING THE SUMMER.

Physical Director C. E. A. Heywood Will Print Small Parties Through the Hudson and Connecticut Valleys—Election of Officers to Take Place Friday Night—Will Not Join League.

The cycling season is at hand and the wheelmen of the local Y. M. C. A. are beginning to think about getting together once more to plan for the summer. A meeting of the Y. M. C. A. Cycle Club has been called for Friday evening at the Y. M. C. A. building, when that organization will be reorganized and an active campaign prepared.

This year the local club will be entirely independent of any outside organization. The membership in the Y. M. C. A. Cyclist League of Northern New Jersey will be dropped and the club will go forward independent of all other similar organization. It is the intention this year to arrange a series of independent runs, sometimes visiting other associations which will be duly warned of the visit. Other associations will be also invited to visit Plainfield.

The novel feature of this year's campaign along cycling lines will be the series of short tours, lasting from one day to a week, which Physical Director C. E. A. Heywood is preparing. They will be personally conducted by him and the members will be encouraged to take advantage of them. These tours will probably be up the Hudson and Connecticut valleys.

At the meeting Friday night the election of officers will be held. A committee on runs will probably be appointed to draw up a schedule for the season. Other matters of interest to the Y. M. C. A. cyclists will be acted upon at the meeting.

SPARK SET FIRE TO HAY.

A Lively Blaze Caused $600 Damage in Dunellen.

Dunellen, April 12—Fire broke out in T. C. Bodine's workshop at 7:45 o'clock this morning, and in half an hour the shop and barn were in ruins. There was $600 insurance on the shop, but the loss is estimated to be more that that.

Mr. Bodine built a fire in the stove in one corner of the shop this morning, and a spark must have fallen in the haymow over the stable, separated from the shop by a partition. When he entered the shop a few minutes afterwards the hay was all ablaze.

Mr. Bodine rescued his horse, and as the wagon and buggy were not in the barn they, too, were saved. Everything else, including tools, patterns, etc., was destroyed. Mr. Bodine puts up heaters and furnaces, and as he has several large contracts on hand the fire will discommode him greatly.

An alarm was sent in and the fire department responded, but not in time to save the shop. Water was thrown on the fences and outhouses around, and they were saved.

GAVE A WRONG NAME.

Despicable Act of a Prisoner Arraigned in Police Court.

The young woman who appeared in City Court Tuesday morning and gave her name as Bertha Schlick was not Miss Bertha Schlick at all. Miss Bertha Schlick resides on West Third street and is a highly respectable young woman, who never has and never intends to figure in the police court.

The name of the young woman who was in court is alleged to be Bertha Schlick. Miss Schlick is rightly indignant at the use of her name, and believes that the name was given with spiteful intent.

Lewis Taken to Jail.

Marshal Campbell, of the borough, took George Lewis, colored, to Somerville last Tuesday to await the action of the Grand Jury which meets next week Thursday. Lewis is the man charged with stealing a wheel owned by Harvey Apgar, of this city.

Night Ticket Agent Shirts, of Huntsdon county, who officiates at the North Avenue station, is now doing day duty while Edward Nelson, the regular day man, is ill.

Miss Ellen Osgood, of Myrtle avenue, returned today to Smith College after spending her vacation at home.

—The Naylor Paint Works on West Front street are in operation.

DR. CARROLL GOES TO TALK WITH M'KINLEY.

TO DISCUSS PORTO RICAN NEEDS.

The Commissioner Has Recovered His Good Health—To Attend a Dinner in New York.

Dr. H. K. Carroll, President McKinley's special commissioner to Porto Rico, has sufficiently recovered from his illness to be out again. Tuesday he went to Newark and made a short address before the M. E. church conference, where he was well received.

Yesterday the doctor left for Washington, where he will confer with the President regarding the report he is to make. He will return Friday in time to attend a University dinner to be given in New York.

Dr Carroll shows very much his recent illness through the loss of considerable avoirdupois. He is, however, feeling much stronger and now hopes to regain his full strength before commencing the work of compiling his report.

MURDERER STARTED A FIRE IN THE JAIL.

HE SAID HE WAS FEELING COLD.

Albert Shoemaker Caused a Lively Blaze in His Cell, But Prisoners Extinguished It.

New Brunswick, April 13—Albert Shoemaker, of Menlo Park, who is in the county jail here charged with having murdered his state-in-law at their cabin near Oak Tree, caused a panic in the jail Monday night by setting fire to the bedding in his cell. The fire was not noticed at once, and it was not until it had gained considerable headway and had filled all the cells on the upper tier with smoke that the prisoners realized their danger.

Deputy Sheriff Wesner was on duty at the time, and he at once started a bucket brigade of prisoners at work putting out the fire. All the time Shoemaker was shouting and yelling in high glee.

After the fire had been put out Shoemaker was placed in close confinement, after being searched to see that he had no more matches.

"What was all the trouble about?" he asked. "I was just cold, and built that fire to warm myself."

It is supposed that the present Grand Jury will bring an indictment in against Shoemaker for murder. When he is arraigned it will give an opportunity for the presenting of the report of the commission of doctors who recently examined it as to his sanity. It is understood that the report states that he is of unsound mind. He will probably be sent to the insane asylum at Trenton.

MRS. PURVIANCE MUST PAY.

She is Held Responsible for Goods Bought at Woodhull & Martine.

The first case to be tried as the outcome of the attachments against Mrs. Nancy Purviance, of Crescent avenue, came up before Justice Nash and a jury Tuesday afternoon. Woodhull & Martin were the plaintiffs, and claimed that Mrs. Purviance purchased goods of them to the value of $32 71.

There was no denial on the part of Mrs. Purviance that the goods had been purchased, but she said that the goods were purchased by her daughter, Miss Clara. The case hung on who purchased the goods.

The case was given to a jury composed of George R. Bockafellow, John Gettleson, Charles Ross, M. Winn, O. T. Baker and M. Coyne, who after a little deliberation decided the case against Mrs. Purviance. W. S. Angleman appeared for the plaintiff and Councilman Hetfield for the defendant.

LITTLE FELLOW OPERATED ON.

Abscess Removed From Jaw Bone and Wound is Healing Nicely.

Several weeks ago Raymond Mosher, aged 4 years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Mosher, underwent an operation for the purpose of having an abscess removed from under the jaw bone. The growth started some time ago, and under a prescribed treatment it did not get well. The parents finally decided to have an operation and Dr Marc Clawson was engaged. Dr. Hedges was called to assist. The abscess was eating into the bone and was rapidly making inroads into the child's system. The abscess was removed and the laceration necessitated by the operation has healed nicely, and the boy is now thought to be out of danger. The operation was a very difficult one, but was in every way successful.

—The Philadelphia Ledger says: "Mr. Livingston Barbour personated thirteen distinct characters with marvelous fidelity to living types." He will appear in the Y. M. C. A. Star Course Monday evening.

METHODISTS NAME PASTORS FOR A YEAR.

Annual Conference Closes by Making Appointments.

NO CHANGE IN THIS CITY.

REV. MR. OPDYKE IS NOT RETURNED TO MT. HOREB.

Names of the Ministers Appointed to Minister in This Section—Presiding Elder Krantz, of the Paterson District, Expressed His Lack of Faith in the Efficacy of Revivals—Closing Session.

Newark, April 12.—The annual conference of the Methodist Episcopal church was brought to a close yesterday with the most important proceedings of the session—the appointment of ministers to the various parishes in the district. All the Plainfield pastors were returned for another year. Rev. Mr. Opdyke, whose troubles with the Mt. Horeb congregation, were told of in Monday's Press, has been succeeded by S. D. Harris. The appointments of interest to Plainfield are as follows:

Elizabeth District—Presiding elder, G. W. Smith, Plainfield; Bound Brook, A. L. Wilson; Cranford, H. C. Thompson; Dunellen, E. S Jamison; East Millstone, S. B D. Prickitt; Elizabeth Fulton Street, J. H. Howard; Park church, F. S. Simmons; St. James', G. C. Wilding; Flemington, Wesley Martin; Gladstone, W. S Cooyman; Glen Gardner, F. J. Tomlinson; High Bridge, Albert Cain; Junction, George Angleman; Lebanon, S. B D Prickitt; Linden and Aiden (supply); Metuchen, Albert Cain; Mount Horeb (postoffice, Martinsville), S. D. Harris; New Germantown, M. N. Smith; Perth Amboy, W. M. Trumbower; Plainfield, First church, W. C. Snodgrass; Grace church, G. W. Gardner; Monroe Avenue, W. C. O'Donnell; Rahway, First church, F. C. Mooney; Trinity, W. H. Gallaway; Raritan, J. C. Trumbell; Roselle, T. W. Filliott; Scotch Plains (supply), C. C. Woodruff; Somerville, J. B. Bryan; Staten Island, N. Y., Asbury (New Springville), John McMurray; Westfield, C. M. Anderson; Whitehouse, E. E. Roberson; Woodbridge, E. N. Orasto.

Presiding Elder John Krantz, of the Paterson district, read his annual report, in which he expressed his lack of faith in the efficacy of revivals, and said that in future the best and largest number of conversions will be the result of personal work throughout the year. The statistics of the district showed about seven hundred conversions and six hundred and fifty persons on probation. There was a slight decrease in benevolences. Pastors salaries are small, and many were paid in dribiets. "In too many places," said the Presiding Elder, "the idea is that ministers should receive no more support than a day laborer. In some districts the pay is actually less. It is a burning shame that God's ministers should be thus treated." There are in this district 100 Sunday-schools, with 1,400 teachers and 14,000 pupils. There are 53 Epworth League chapters and 33 junior chapters

The report of the Committee on Church Extension showed $73,006.03 in collections and $17,962.16 from gifts.

The Centenary Fund and Preachers Aid Society reported $8,074.49 of net receipts from investments. The total assets are $178,111.11.

The Committee on the State of the Country recommended an earnest effort to evangelize the new possessions obtained by the war. This committee offered a resolution, which was adopted, memorializing Congress against the admission of Brigham H. Roberts, an avowed polygamist.

MAYOR SMALLEY IN A COLLISION.

His Rig Badly Damaged by Coming in Contact With Delivery Wagon.

Mayor Smalley's rig, driven by His Honor, and a delivery wagon of J. F. MacDonald met in a collision on Somerset street, in front of the public school building, yesterday and the Mayor's vehicle was badly wrecked. Mr. Smalley was thrown out into the roadway, but not injured. His horse started to run away, but was caught before going far. The delivery rig was not damaged.

A Benefit Concert.

The members of Stone Square Lodge, F. and A. M., have arranged a concert and entertainment to be held in Washington Hall Thursday evening. It will be for the benefit of James Walker.

House to House Inspection.

Borough Health Inspector William Pangborn is just now making a house to house inspection in the borough. Thus far only four cases of contagion have been discovered.

WHAT IS WORN.

Attractive Novelties For the Warm Weather Season.

Satin cloth still enjoys great favor for costumes of moderate elegance. There are also new varieties of cloth, prepared for warmer weather, which are very light, fine and beautiful. Light tones predominate, and all shades of gray are to be fashionable, as well as red, fawn and tobacco brown.

Capes and wraps of the tailor made style are trimmed almost exclusively with stitching, and the stitching is usually of a contrasting shade. It not only heads the circular flounces which are the finish of most wraps and re-enforces the collar, but designs in silk and ornamental formetrefoils, Greek borders, etc.—on the goods. Mauve stitching on purple cloth and straw on copper may be cited as examples of this mode.

CLOTH BODICE.

Little shirred toques of mousseline de soie or tulle are charmingly trimmed with flowers—geraniums, violets, roses pinks, etc. They are lifted high at the side, and the flowers are placed next the hair.

Among the most exquisite of new fabrics for evening wear are rather heavy but transparent gauzes, woven with a thick silk border along one edge and a fringe beyond that. The border is enriched by designs in the oriental style and is about three inches wide. These gauzes are seen in all delicate colors.

An illustration is given which depicts a bodice notable for a spring walking gown. It is of gray satin cloth and is tight fitting, with a short, rounded basque. The yoke and collar are of garnet velvet, and bands of the velvet cross the front in military style. The top of the gray cloth sleeves is cut away to show garnet velvet shoulder pieces, and the sleeves are additionally trimmed with bands of velvet and steel buttons. The pelerine is composed of four small, flat ruffles of cloth, with velvet at the edges. The collar is lined with gray cloth and flares over at the top.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

THE FASHIONS.

Attractive Novelties For the Season-able Wardrobe.

The little vests worn with Louis Quinze coats are appropriately adorned with embroidered pocket flaps and are closed with small but elegant buttons, placed close together.

The princess form of the tunic costume promises to be the favorite for warm weather street costumes to be worn without a wrap. It is as yet impossible to tell definitely whether the trailing skirt is to be retained.

TUNIC COSTUME.

Collars and revers of shirred satin, in white or light shades, are increasingly used on gowns of cloth, wool or dark silk.

The long cape, or mantle, closely defining the shoulders and bust, has completely displaced the fluffy cape so long in favor and so universally becoming. The new wraps are far less voluminously trimmed, but not less richly, the embroidery and flat applications employed being often of extravagant cost. It is likely that silk wraps of the same clinging description, but much lighter and thinner than those of cloth, will be worn during the summer.

The picture shows a charming costume, consisting of princess redingote or tunic of gray cloth over a plaited skirt of lettuce green taffeta. The redingote has a train and is embroidered with applications of gray cloth and black velvet, mingled with silver. It fastens at the side with silver buttons and has embroidered sleeve caps. The single revers is of white Richelieu lace, and the lower part of the sleeves is covered with the same decoration. The collar is of green taffeta. The color combination is new and extremely attractive.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

NEW MILLINERY.

Hats and Bonnets For the Theater and the Street.

White is much seen in spring hats, especially as trimming. Flowers are as largely used as they were last year, and water lilies, camellias, gardenias and magnolias are among fashion's floral favorites. The violet is not abandoned, however, and small clusters are tucked into the diaphanous trimmings of hats and bonnets and interspersed in fancy boas and muffs made of lace and chiffon. Even the entire for-skins, with head and tail, which are still worn across the shoulders, are decorated with a bunch of violets fastened near the open mouth of the beast.

SUMMER COSTUME.

For the theater little hats entirely of flowers are made. Some are of primroses, others of violets, still others of lilacs. Toques of feathers are seen for street wear and are trimmed with flowers.

Hats of mousseline de soie, puffed and shirred, are adorned with tulle, which composes a full lining for the brim—always of another color than that of the mousseline de soie—and an aigret trimming for the outside, mingled with flowers. For example, a hat of finely shirred black mousseline de soie is trimmed with white tulle and mauve orchids.

Bonnets of jet, gold, steel and colored spangles are still seen and are particularly pleasing for elderly women who consider floral bonnets too juvenile. Real lace, velvet, trimmings and feathers are all appropriate decorations.

All the richest applied embroidery is outlined with fine chenille, which gives a high relief, yet an effect of softness.

The picture illustrates an attractive gown which has two graduated skirts of accordion plaited pink voile. The bodice is of pink liberty satin, closely fitting at the back and forming a flat plait in front, delicately embroidered. The square guimpe is plaited. The tops of the sleeves are embroidered, and the belt and bow are of pink satin. The embroidered collar likewise has a pink satin bow. The little toque is of green straw, is almost covered with clouds of pink taffeta and is additionally trimmed with black feathers.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

NEW MILLINERY.

Developments Seen at the Numerous "Spring Openings."

Wired ribbons and wired mousseline de soie serve a variety of purposes in millinery. Not only do they compose alert looking bows, but they are twisted into the resemblance to large flowers—roses, hollyhocks, dahlias and even gigantic pansies. The resemblance to the floral originals is sometimes conventional, but nevertheless perceptible, and such decorations often given a very smart effect.

NOVEL TOQUE.

A novel bow is made of points, or "ears," as they are called, of taffeta, finished at the edges with a tubular hem, which gives them stiffness. These are grouped together in a full ruche, like overlapping petals, with longer ones at the ends, where two jeweled buckles appear.

Veils of lace, both white and black, are much employed as a trimming upon summer hats, being often draped over flowers or choux of mousseline de soie. Sometimes short ends of the veil are allowed to droop upon the hair at the back.

A lovely light, clear pink is largely used in models for warm weather millinery, and sometimes entire hats are made of it. It is more effective, however, when combined with white or black or both together.

Hats with an inlet panel of different material or color are again in vogue, and bands of embroidery thus used are very effective. Guipure over a silk or satin lining is used in the same way.

The picture illustrates a novel toque of russet yellow straw. A cream lace veil, bordered with a ruche, is draped around the crown, the ends being tied at the back, so as to rest upon the hair. In front are a pheasant's head and breast, with the crest, and around them are arranged points of turquoise velvet, with a knot of the same material. The collar is also of turquoise velvet and is trimmed with cream lace.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

WHAT WOMEN WEAR.

Timely Chat About New Shirt Waists, New Hats and New Wraps.

Between shirt waists, hats and new wraps the heart of the fashion writer balances. When you see the millinery, you think nothing else worth bothering about. Then you see the shirt waists in more colors than one can imagine and after awhile the eyes, wearied with them, fall restfully upon the more sober tints in the outdoor garments.

Some of the golf and handsome promenade capes are made fairly stiff with stitching. The sprung flounce is completely covered by the rows of stitching, and sometimes there are six or seven rows above that on the edge of the cape proper.

THE NEWEST WRAPS FOR SPRING.

A very handsome and stylish cape of this kind had a pinked ruffle of silk all around the under part. The cape was of chocolate brown cloth, and this silk was of myrtle green. The silk ruffle was set up very high at the neck, making a beautiful leaflike surrounding for the flowerlike face. Some of the capes have very narrow soutache braid sewed on closely until the whole thing is stiff. Some of the golf capes are entirely of shawl plaid, and others have the upper part of cloth with a serpentine flounce of plaid below and a hood of plaid.

The pretty jackets are beyond description, because there are too many varieties, shapes and colors. But they are all very short, reaching but little below the waist, even the reefer shapes. There are a few that are about three inches too fine to see. Nearly all those made of drab, biscuit and tan are strap seamed. Those made to match suits are stitched and pressed open and made perfectly smooth. Some where these are full suits are a variety of trimmings, with braid or satin milliner's folds.

Stitching is always applied as an ornament to all tailored suits, but the really fine tailor suits are made absolutely without trimming of any sort, their chief beauty being the quality of the material and the perfection of finish.

The newest ribbons are calculated to render one culpable of the sin of envy, for no one can look at them without wanting the whole lot, each having a quality of its own to make it desirable. The wide sash ribbons are like soft pictures of delicately colored flowers on a pale tinted ground. The trimming ribbons have several very novel features. One of them is the furnishing of the two kinds of ribbon for use at the same time. For instance, there is a four inch taffeta in pinhead checks of deep red and white, with a red cord edge. The other is the same width, of the same shade of red, but all in one solid color, with a white cord for an edge. These two ribbons are then used, one as backing for the other and arranged so that the two designs are in plain sight. The effect is really artistic. Naturally this idea is carried out in several different colors.

There are other ribbons with a moire ground, with satin stripes of white, on which are woven the daintiest flowers imaginable. Full blown roses as perfect as painting are no larger than a good sized, plump pea, and are all in very light tints. There are many ribbons with many satin stripes over faille weave or moire. These two are all in delicate color. Straw and white are lovely.

There are dozens of novelties with fringed edges, and somewhere one side has fringe and the other a cord that can be drawn up, making of the ribbon a fringed ruffle. There is much maize color and canary yellow intermingled with white, and very delicate and dainty it is. A ribbon specially adapted for fan or ruffled trimmings has one half plain and the other edge bordered with natural colored flowers, the outline of the roses scalloped out. In fact, I saw no other flower but roses used on this ribbon, and they were a little conventionized so as to afford a regular scallop. They were daintily shaded and had green leaves.

Persian and mosaic patterns in hundreds of tints and colors in taffeta are shown, and many different rich shades of dark blue in heavy satin ribbon. There are lighter shades also. Shades of green massed together are seen in abundance and also of brown. Then, too, there are gauze ribbons in Persian designs with feathered edges and metal threads.

Speaking of metallic luster reminds me of the fearful and wonderful petticoats of pink, blue and green and red cambric with gilt stripes printed on them. These are made up in the accepted umbrella shape run with pipings of coraline. What on earth they are intended for is beyond my comprehension. It does not seem possible that any lady having her sense would ever look at one without a shudder, much less put one on.

The shirt waists are in for a greater degree of popularity than ever. The white ones are the daintiest. Tucks and fine lace ornament them. The silk ones are corded, tucked and ruffled and trimmed in every way one can imagine.

HENRIETTE ROUSSEAU.

TRIMMING AND ACCESSORIES

Elaborate Embroidery Still the Favorite Decoration.

Open embroidery is more worn than ever. It appears in cotton as well as other fabrics, and there are extremely attractive decorations in blue, pink, yellow and linen colored wash materials in this style, with borderings to match. There are also checked silks and cottons in which the large squares are formed by open bands of valenciennes lace, which cross the fabric at right angles.

The new bolero, which comes down to the waist and is tight, is often adorned with open embroidery, being usually lined with white, which shows through the spaces. Sometimes only the upper part is embroidered. Detached flowers and leaves of cloth are a novel trimming. They are applied where desired and embroidered down in the goods.

Where belts are worn at all—and they are less seen now than the pointed bodice is coming in—they are very narrow, often of the same stuff as the gown.

Narrow folds of satin are still employed on costumes of the tailor style, the entire bodice being sometimes striped with such folds.

GIRL'S COAT.

The coat illustrated is for a girl 8 years old and is of mastic cloth. It is loose at the back and front, but slightly curved to the figure under the arms. A circular flounce finishes the back, and the coat is trimmed with stitched cloth straps. The pelerine is bordered with two circular ruffles and revers of French blue velvet. The straight collar is of cloth, with tabs of blue velvet. There are also blue velvet cuffs. The hat of mastic straw is trimmed with blue velvet.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

FRESH FASHIONS.

Some of the Paris Novelties For the Coming Season.

Another 1840 fashion has been revived—the fashion of scarfs. They are of mousseline de soie, taffeta or crepe de chine, bordered with a silk fringe.

Petticoats are worn under gowns are long. They follow the shape of the gown skirt and are profusely trimmed below the knee, while being perfectly flat and plain above it. Brocade silk, taffeta with tiny lines, striped silks and especially prettily harmonized plaids are chiefly used and are trimmed with circular flounces, plaited ruffles, accordion plaitings, vandykes or tabs of silk and plaitings, flounces and ruchings of mousseline de soie. For example, a petticoat of gray brocade silk, with a thistle design in blue, gray satin, pink, is adorned with seven circular ruffles, four of plain gray silk and three of plain pink, placed alternately. These are veiled with a flounce of pale gray mousseline de soie. The flounces are headed by ruches of silk or mousseline de soie or by a ribbon of satin or velvet, which may be of the same shade as the petticoat or may form a sharp contrast. Black is often thus introduced among light colors. The most fairylike of petticoats is, however, to be found among the models for warm weather. It is of mousseline de soie, with broche pongeaune designs, and is lined with the thinnest and lightest of silk.

BENGALINE GOWN.

The picture shows a costume of mauve bengaline. The skirt has a slight train, and a pointed tablier is outlined by a circular flounce, headed by a band of applications of violet velvet and gold. The close bodice is also decorated with applications and is cut in corselet form in front, showing a lace plastron which opens at the top over a point of plaited mauve bengaline. The sleeves have a plaited V at the top and circular ruffles of violet velvet at the wrists and are trimmed with applications.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

ALL ABOUT WOMEN.

A Singer's Lost Voice and How She Has Recovered It.

Every one who has read Du Maurier's delightful story of "Trilby" will remember how that young lady suddenly lost her ability to sing, to the consternation of the audience which had gathered to hear her. The case is a strange one, but it has actually occurred under different circumstances in real life.

A little over a year ago M. du Vivier, the Parisian maestro who now teaches singing in Chicago, counted among his favorite and most promising pupils Miss Frances Perce, the beautiful daughter of Colonel Le Grand Perce, well known in political and financial circles in Chicago. Miss Perce was possessed of a pure and powerful soprano voice, and Du Vivier proudly watched her successful debut into the musical world, prophesying a remarkable career for his favorite pupil.

But in the very midst of her first conquests Miss Perce suddenly lost her voice, absolutely and completely. Engagements were canceled, a contemplated course of study on the continent was given up, and Du Vivier was even more heartbroken than the singer herself.

MISS FRANCES CORD PERCE.

The case puzzled all of Miss Perce's friends, and it was not until after several specialists were consulted that it was found that she was suffering from paralysis of the chords of the throat. Further examination revealed the fact that this had been brought about by the administration of a too powerful drug by a physician to relieve some temporary bronchial congestion. This gave hope for the return of the singer's voice, so the young lady passed from the hands of her singing master into those of a throat specialist.

It has taken a year of complete rest and careful medical treatment to bring the lost voice back, but Miss Perce is again studying with Du Vivier, and several times has made public appearances in Chicago. Her voice has returned with all its old time purity and strength, and next season this promising young soprano will make her appearance in New York. But she will always be remembered as the singer who lost her voice for one complete year.

Miss Josephine Walton, a reader who has attracted much attention, is a typical southern woman and comes of colonial stock, being a descendant of one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence.

A New York woman is the proprietor and manager of the second largest brewery in the east, owns more saloons than any other woman in the world and resides in a palatial residence on Fifth avenue.

The happy ending of a pretty literary romance was the recent marriage of Donna Magda Stuart Sindici, the Italian authoress, and her London publisher, William Heinmann.

Four smart German girls have made four snug little fortunes in Dawson City by washing, not gold from the placer diggings, but miners' shirts.

Miss Beasie Potter, a woman sculptor who is quite the rage in Chicago, has lately produced a statuette of Susan B. Anthony, which is pronounced by critics the best portrait of the great suffragist extant.

At a recent meeting of women in New York to protest against the encroachments of a railroad company upon the public highway one of the most effective and eloquent speakers was Mrs. Harriet Stanton Blatch, daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Cady Stanton.

So often do publishers reject the manuscripts of books of real merit from unknown authors that an exception is notable. Such an exception was the case of Miss Mary Johnston of Alabama, who, heretofore unknown, submitted her "Prisoners of Hope" to the publishers, by whom it was accepted purely on its merits, and the subsequent popularity of the book showed the accuracy of their judgment.

Boston is to have a handsome new hotel, to be known as Hemestead Court, for the exclusive use of women wage earners.

Mrs. William McKinley, who delights in dainty and beautiful laces, of which she has a large and rare collection, has lately received from Mme. Aceval, wife of the president of Paraguay, as "a little token of esteem and admiration," several pieces of exquisite lace wrought by Paraguayan women.

Miss Christine Bradley, daughter of Kentucky's governor, is studying law with the purpose of assisting her father in his law practice when he retires from the governorship.

Ranavalona III, the deposed queen of Madagascar, is well nigh heartbroken because the French authorities have sent her into exile in Algiers without giving her an opportunity to see the glories of Paris.

The next royal marriage is likely to be that of Princess Victoria, second daughter of the Prince of Wales, and Prince George, the second son of King George of Greece.

HERE AND THERE.

One-third of the people who go mad are said to recover their senses.

In some parts of Berlin there are special public houses for women.

Elephants are fond of gin, but, it is said, will not touch champagne.

A large paper house, with sixteen rooms, has been erected by a Russian gentleman at his country seat.

Ulm's cathedral spire, which is 531 feet high and the loftiest structure in the world, is to be used for a meteorological station.

It is calculated that 10,000,000 photographs of the Queen and the Princess of Wales are produced annually, and find a ready sale all over the world.

An army officer at Washington has made the very "point" remark that "General Otis' jurisdiction in the Philippines extends 1,900 yards beyond the outposts, with sights up."

The late Dr. Campbell Black, of Glasgow, eminent as a physician and clinical lecturer, was fond of saying that "medicine is no more an exact science than millinery."

A modification of the church fair idea is a plan of a Methodist Episcopal church in Chester county, Pa., to have an auction of farm stock and implements, the animals and goods to be solicited.

In Sullivan county, last fall, more than a hundred men were engaged in digging sinseng root for exportation to China. They traveled from fifteen to twenty miles daily, and earned from $1 to $4 a day. The root is becoming scarcer every year.

An artificial volcano is to be one of the attractions at the Paris exposition. It will be 150 meters high and 150 in diameter, its outside surface will be sodded and planted with trees, and the summit will be crowned with bona fide flames and molten lava.

"Classical music," said the ecstatic young woman, "leaves me in a transport." "Well," said the young man, "that's the reason I naturally avoid it. I was in the army, and I don't feel like taking chances in transports of any kind."—Washington Star.

A Chicago syndicate owns a ranch in Texas which contains 5,000 square miles. Its herds of cattle aggregate 120,000 head, besides 1,500 horses, and the calf crop branded in 1897 exceeded 21,000. Surprising as it may seem, all the work on the ranch is done by 125 men, one man to every 24,000 acres.

The city building of Philadelphia is the largest building in America, not excepting the capitol at Washington, being 486½ feet in length north and south, and 470 in width east and west, covering an area of 4½ acres, exclusive of a courtyard in the centre of 400 feet square. Around the whole is a grand avenue 205 feet wide on the northern front and 135 feet on the others. It contains some 500 rooms for the offices of the city government. Surmounting the structure is a central tower, which rises to an altitude of 537 1-2 feet, and terminates in a colossal statue of William Penn, which is 36 feet in height.

NOTE OF NO TABLES.

Joel Chandler Harris is said to be the richest newspaper writer in the United States. His charities are in proportion to his means.

Both President and Mrs. McKinley are extremely fond of young people and more has been done at the White House for the pleasure of the younger members of society than since General Grant was President.

Jacob Gould Schurman, president of Cornell, who has just been made chairman of the Philippine commission, began life as a country grocery clerk received $30 a year and board. He saved money and worked his way through college.

The British are indeed a grateful people. On recommendation of A. J. Balfour, Dr. Joseph Wright has been granted a pension on the civil list of $1,000 per anum. Dr. Wright has been editor of the English dialect dictionary, and it is possible, says Literature, that his honorarium of $1,000 a year is the tribute of a grateful nation to one who has enabled it to understand the subtleties of recent English fiction, in which the authors have, as far as possible, avoided the use of the English language.

President Jordan of Stanford University has returned from a five weeks' tour in Mexico. He was the head of a party of fourteen college professors and their wives, and had unusual opportunities for studying the social and economic problems of the country. He spoke highly of President Diaz, and characterized him as "without question the greatest ruler of any nation, who has given to his country during his twenty years at the head of its government, nearly everything it possesses of real stability."

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

Time heals all wounds. Money is also a great healer.

Mercy to the guilty is often cruelty to the innocent.

Woman may be the weak vessel, but man is often broke.

There can be no course of true love if true love never dies.

You can't prevent the sun from setting by closing your clock.

Man is the only animal with a chronic longing for the unattainable.

It's well to begin at the top of the ladder and go down—in case of fire.

The theorist is all right until it is time to make a practical demonstration.

Every husband hears a good deal about the saintlike actions of other husbands.

FOR BOYS AND GIRLS.

TALE OF A PRODIGAL.

How a Waif of the Metropolis Rose Through the Woodyard.

A letter just received by the Charity Organization Society adds the concluding chapter to the history of one benefaction that must be pleasant for those concerned to look back upon. The record of this benefaction might well bear the inscription: "Saved Through the Woodyard." As set forth on the Society's books, it is a plain tale of what the gospel of honest work, when illuminated by sincere human interest, can do for man. Whenever the subject of this narrative was very hard up, the society gave him a woodyard ticket, and he worked out the price of a bed and a breakfast at the Wayfarers' Lodge.

This man applied for aid early in January of the present year. He was the worse for drink and for a fight, in which one eye had been blackened. He gave three references, and he got a woodyard ticket. His references were investigated, and it was found that he told the truth; that he was a good fellow and a clever workman, whose one weakness was drink. The society wrote to his home, which he had left fifteen years ago. They found that his father and brother were still living there; that they were still interested in him, but had lost track of him. Then the man was urged to write his family himself, and ask if they would receive him. Finally he assented, and a reply came inviting him to come back, and enclosing a ticket. He left the city, and was placed by a brother in a sanitarium for the drink habit. All these incidents occurred in January, and the man passed out of view of the society.

The letter just received here from his brother is the epilogue to this plain tale of a prodigal. It said in part: "My brother is entirely a new man now, and a good citizen in the city of his childhood. He says he would not change places with the mayor of Cleveland. The change has lifted a load off the hearts of my father and mother, and it will brighten their old age and comfort them as no words of mine can tell you."

THEY MUST BE LARGE.

Men on Jupiter Should be Over Sixty Feet High.

Although we must admit that the true facts in relation to the size and bodily formation of the beings on the planets will, perhaps, ever remain a mystery to mankind, nevertheless it is interesting to draw imaginary pictures of such creatures, even though their existence cannot certainly be proven. We cannot imagine an intelligent, responsible being that does not present the form and features of humanity, and, even though it be the lord of a planet 100 times larger than our own. This being the case, let us figure on the proportions of the giant planets—providing, of course, that such creatures exist. Man being the standard we have to work from, we will use our own bodies and the diameters of this and other worlds as a basis for our calculations, and always suppose the length and size of the planetary man bear the same ratio to the world he lives in that we do to ours. We all know the diameter of the earth and the average height of man, but who would believe that, if figured from the same basis, an inhabitant of Jupiter must be sixty feet in height and thirty-five feet around the chest under the arms? Such a creature would have a skull that would hold a wagon load of brains and each of his teeth would be larger than a tomato can!

The Tower Ravens.

I had long heard of the Tower ravens, says a London correspondent. They were there in 1780, and George Cruikshank, when he made his sketching visit in 1840, made drawings of them. Knowing the longevity of ravens I fondly imagined the present birds must be the original pair. Alas! my fancy was doomed to be shattered. "Jack" and "Sir William" have only been in these historic purlieus a few years, and they succeeded a pair of Essex ravens, whose unclipped wings soon suggested flight.

"They flew to St. Paul's," said General Millman, "and haunted the dome for months. As they were only seen on moonlight nights they occasioned a good deal of superstition. But nothing would induce them to return to the Tower, or their favorite feeding spot, which, by the by, was the site of the scaffold."

Where are the Pennies?

There are 119,000,000 old copper pennies somewhere. Nobody knows what has become of them, except once in a while a single specimen turns up in change. A few years ago 4,500,000 bronze 2-cent pieces were set afloat. Three million of these are still outstanding. Three million 3-cent nickel pieces are scattered over the United States, but it is very rarely that one is seen.—Boston Budget.

A Reasonable Query.

Mrs. Crimsonbeak—It is said that the ear of the cat is very sensitive; that it can hear a sound a long distance.

Mr. Crimsonbeak—Why in thunder, then, do they have to make so much noise at night when talking to one another?—Yonkers Statesman.

Not Needed.

Pat—Phot be yez doin'?

Mike—Buildin' a fince 'round the cimetery.

Pat—An' whot's the use of it Oi don't know, fer ther's no wan inside thot can get out an' no wan outside thot wants to get in!—New York Herald.

CURIOUS CONDENSATIONS.

Senator Morrill was the only member of the present Senate who wrote with a quill pen.

Hyenas always fight kneeling, the forefeet being the most vulnerable part of their body.

An ordinance providing for all-night street cars in Baltimore was recently rejected by the City Council.

Australian newspapers report the complete disappearance of Metis Island, which as late as 1880 projected 150 feet above the ocean.

While the wedding service is proceeding in Japan, the bride kindles a torch and the bridegroom lights a fire from it and burns the wife's playthings.

More than a century ago a meeting house was erected at the head of the Tuckahoe river, near Tuckahoe, N. J., and it was painted for the first time three weeks ago. Red was the color.

In every city or town in the Netherlands you will find a Rosemary street. In olden days only undertakers lived in them, the rosemary being, in the language of flowers, specially dedicated to the dead.

An Anglesea, (N. J.) gunner killed a duck a few days ago and attached to one of the duck's feet was a large clam. The duck had evidently been wading in shallow water and had stepped on a feeding bivalve.

Hunters at South Seaville, N. J., have exhausted all their ingenuity in trying to capture a white crow that for more than a year has been living in the woods adjacent to the town with several hundred of its black companions.

A Belfast (Me.) citizen reports himself as the champion absent-minded man. He got the fire in the kitchen stove running nicely the other morning; then he went to the well, drew a pail of water, brought the water in and poured it into the stove.

Jake Horn, of Corson's Inlet, N. J., who is known as the "eel king" of South Jersey, has caught, with the use of a spear, more than 100,000 eels during the past 30 years. Their aggregate length was more than 60 miles, and their combined weight was more than fifty tons.

At the recent annual meeting of the Egyptian exploration fund, Sir E. Maunde Thompson declared that it would not be surprising if whole books of the New Testament dating from the second century should be found among the papyri now being discovered in Central Egypt.

John Logan, one of the oldest postmasters in the United States, is dead at his home at Crossroads, says a York, Pa., dispatch. He was appointed postmaster by the administration of President Van Buren, in 1837, and filled the same office continuously up to the time of his death. Mr. Logan was 88 years old.

Elisha Hunt, of Hawley, Mass., has two cords of wood, stove length, which has been in his shed thirty years, which he is burning this winter, sound and in as good condition as the day it was put in the shed. He also has two piles of fence rails, about two cords each; one pile has been in forty years and the other fifty-two years. He has no wood on his own farm, and has to buy all he uses.

The setting of plaster of Paris may be retarded by the addition of two to four per cent of powdered alum stone. This addition not only retards the hardening of the plaster, but also enables it to be cut, filed, sawed and turned. An addition of eight per cent retards the complete setting of the plaster for about an hour, so that the mass may be used for any purpose, where it is to remain plastic during at least a portion of that time.

Maurice Corson, a Palermo, N. J., storekeeper, who died a few days ago, bought a insanity-o'-calico during the Civil War, paying 50 cents a yard for it. When the price fell to eight cents after the war Corson declared he would not sell a yard of his goods unless he realized a sum equivalent to the price he had paid for it. The goods remained on the shelves in Corson's store for thirty-eight years, and were sold last week for two and three cents a yard.

Chickens are sold by the piece in Buenos Ayres. They are dressed before being offered for sale, the only feathers being left upon them being those of the tail. The same custom prevails in China as to dogs, where a bit of the dog's hair is always left on the end of the tail, even when the animal is cooked. But this is because the Chinese consider the flesh of black dogs the best, and most certain to put a brave spirit into the body of the eater.

A physician quoted by the Richmond Dispatch says that snow is healthful, and that there is now less sickness in that city than usual. "The amount has been very appreciably reduced within the past ten days, or during the prevalence of the snow and ice," he says. "I cannot imagine anything purer than fresh snow, or the air blowing over it. Not only this, but a hard winter is always followed by a summer in which there is little sickness. Green winters make fat graveyards, you know."

The Chilean coal mines, opened in 1855, seem to be nice places to work in. The seams of coal run from the shore under the waters of the Pacific ocean, and the tunnels are so clean that you could walk through them in a dress suit without making yourself dirty. They are lighted by electricity, and you can have a ride for a mile under the ocean on an electric car at a speed of twenty miles an hour. The mines form quite a catacomb of well-lighted passages under the water. The output of coal is now 1,000 tons a day, and 750 miners are employed in them.

SCIENCE NOTES.

The sewers of Paris are now being searched for treasures, owing to the recent discovery by workmen of a bundle containing $120,000 in securities.

The latest American idea for the sheathing of vessels to prevent fouling and corrosion is to sheath them with glass plates, which is said to be entirely feasible." The above item is from The Engineer, of London. While this may be true, we have heard nothing about it, and it sounds suspiciously like paper bicycles and other things of like order, which seem to exist only in the minds of newspaper reporters.

The British Eastern Australasian and China Telegraph company filed a claim with the State Department of the United States for $26,000 damages for cutting its cable by Admiral Dewey at Manila last May. The United States Attorney-General has now rendered a decision finding that, according to international law, there was no ground for a claim for indemnity where a military commander cuts a cable within the territorial waters of an enemy.

Petit Bleu, of Brussels, recently had a curious experience in which it was shown that no remedy is indispensable in this world. The compositors having struck, the text accompanying the illustrations was written out on the typewriter; then the typewritten sheets and the copy for the pictures were pasted on large sheets of cardboard and the whole was reduced by photography to the required size. From this negative a photo-engraving was made from which the paper was printed.

The authorities of the Southern Metropolitan Gas company, an English corporation, have added workingmen directors to the board of the company. The report stated that the profit sharing system, which was introduced in 1889, continues to justify its existence, as it induces a generally intelligent interest in the welfare of the company on the part of its officers and men. Two of the workmen were elected by the workmen shareholders to sit on the board, and the result so far has proved very satisfactory.

According to The Medical Sentinel, it has been ascertained by careful observation that consumptive families in a village of St. Dizier, France, enjoy absolute immunity from tuberculosis. They are gardeners of excellent habits who intermarry among themselves and keep apart from the immigrant laborers. The latter suffer severely from the disease. It is considered probable that hygienic conditions are not the sole cause of the difference, but that by a kind of natural selection a race immune from tuberculosis has been developed.

Caisson disease, or compressed air disease, is a malady which is often contracted by those who are engaged in engineering work in positions where they are subjected to great air pressure. Dr. Thomas Oliver has observed several cases of this kind, and he has arrived at the conclusion that the symptoms are best explained by the theory that the malady is due to increased solubility in the blood of the gases met with it in compressed air and the liberation of these gases during decompression. The increased solution of the gases is due, of course, to the greater pressure upon the person of the caisson worker.

The old "Physic Garden," at Chelsea which was leased to the "Apothecaries' Company" in 1673, and presented to them by Sir Hans Sloane in 1722, is to be placed under a Committee of Society and the garden is to be maintained for promoting the study of botany with special regard to the requirements of general education, scientific investigation, and research in systematic botany, vegetable physiology, and instruction in pharmacy, as concerns the culture of medicinal plants. New offices, lecture rooms, and laboratories are to be provided. The old "Physic Garden" was one of the oldest, if not the oldest, botanical gardens in the world, and is of considerable historical importance.

NOTES OF NOTABLES

Colonel Edmond Bainbridge, the Superintendent of the Royal Laboratory at Woolwich, who has been made head of the ordnance factories, entered the Royal Artillery in 1860, and has been associated with Woolwich in various capacities for many years.

M. Ernest Legouvs has completed his ninety-second year. He is the senior member of the French Academy, both by election and by age. Crowned for the first time in 1829, he was elected in 1856, after only a few days ago received the "Prix Jean Reynaud."

The request made to Mr. Ruskin that Mr. Holman Hunt should paint his portrait has received a negative. His present state of health, say those who know him best, would not permit him to face the fatigue of sitting to so laborious and conscientious a painter as Mr. Holman Hunt.

Lady Georgiana Grey, daughter of Earl Grey, the famous English statesman, has just celebrated the ninety-first anniversary of her birth. Lady Georgiana is the oldest resident of Hampton Court Palace, where for some years she has occupied a suite of apartments. Considering her age she enjoys remarkable health, and takes drives almost daily.

Fraulein Elsa Neumann was "promoted" to her degree of Doctor of Philosophy in Berlin University the other day, the first woman to be so honored. She obtained it in the studies of chemistry and mathematics, which she had pursued at Gottingen and finished at Berlin. The hall where the ceremony took place was crowded to suffocation, and the young woman received great praises from the general public and the students present.

BRIC-A-BRAC

In Germany a clock has been made that is warranted to go for 9,000 years.

Australian rabbit skins are being converted into sealskins for the American market.

Since 1841 the cultivated area of Ireland has dwindled from about 4,000,000 acres to 2,000,000.

The per capita money circulation of the United States is $2,542, the highest in the history of the nation.

Secretary Alger's middle initial A. may stand for Asbestos, and perhaps signifies he is not afraid of being fired.

There are now 15 beet sugar factories in the United States. Germany has 400 in the Magdeburg district. The beet sugar of Germany equals in amount the product of cane sugar in all the rest of the world.

The most costly leather in the world is that used in the trade as piano leather. The secrecy of making this leather is known only to a family of tanners in Germany, though the skins from which it is tanned comes almost entirely from America.

The French mint coined last year $68,300,000 in new money. Of this $43,165,200 was in French coin, $4,965,000 was silver and bronze for Indo-China, $4,000,000 silver coin for Russia, and $600,000 gold coin for Tunic. Small amounts were coined for Ethiopia, Morocco and Lichtenstein.

Labouchere, of London Truth, in his latest attack on the House of Lords divides its members into the "mentals," the "ornamentals," and the "dettentials," which latter is short for the liver two classes were dispensed with room might be found for the "mentals" in the House of Commons.

British "brewery shares" have declined heavily in recent months. In February, the ordinary stock of Allsopp fell about 30 points below the price of a year ago, and 39 points below that of 1896. Guinness & Co. ordinary shares showed loss of 20 points from 1898, and of 114 points from 1896.

Foreign securities in France are free from tax, which they have paid as dividend or interest in two years; but the minister of finance has lately decreed that in order to enjoy the immunity, security-holders must produce balance sheets, inventories and minutes of the general meetings of the company, certified by French diplomatic agents.

The military commander of Paris has ordered that placards illustrating the evil effects of alcohol shall be placed on all of the barracks in that city. These cards, which are to bring in conspicuous places, show on one side the interior organs of a drunkard, and on the other those of a temperate man. Beneath is a brief explanation of the physical and moral effects of the abuse of alcohol.

According to the laws of good society in China, young widows should not remarry. Widowhood is therefore held in the highest esteem, and the older the widow grows the more agreeable she becomes. Should she reach 50 years she may, by applying to the Emperor, get a sum of money with which to buy a tablet, on which her virtues are named. The tablet is placed in the floor at the principal entrance of her house.

Officers of the regular army are greatly disturbed over a clause in the army bill. It provides that "no officer ... shall be detailed as a bartender" in connection with canteens. It is said that the military affairs committee of the Senate was urged to strike out the word "bartender" on the ground that it was an insult to officers to intimate that they would serve in that capacity. Now that the objectionable phrase has been enacted into law, there is much indignation.

The British Home Office report for 1897 shows that the serious crimes tend to diminish in England, there is a great increase of minor offenses. By far the larger number of criminals convicted during the year have been convicted of some crime before—a fact that led the Home Office to conclude "that neither penal servitude nor imprisonment serves to deter the habitual offender from reverting to crime, and it is the habitual offenders who form the bulk of the prison population."

ODD MENTION

Some wealthy merchants of to-day might not have been so had there been no such word as fail.

The total amount received by the Red Cross Society as the result of the endless tea-chain started during the summer by Miss Natalie Schenck, of Babylon, L. I., is $20,000. She still receives an occasional letter.

An enormous pipe has just been made for President Krueger by a Dublin firm. The bowl is of the finest briar root, the stem of cut vulcanite, and the case of leather lined with chamois. On the front of the bowl and carved into the wood is the Transvaal coat of arms.

Dr. Negro, of Turin, has succeeded in curing 100 out of 113 cases of sciatica by digital pressure over the painful part. The pressure is applied with all possible force for fifteen or twenty seconds, and is repeated for some length of time after an interval of a few minutes. In many cases six treatments are all that is necessary.

Through an error in the bill providing a code of laws for Alaska, Albert D. Elliott, clerk of the District Court of Alaska, whose salary is fixed by statute, will receive in fees sufficient to make his total remuneration between $20,000 and $25,000 a year. This will make the office the best paid of any in the United States Government with the exception of that of the President.

RANDOM COMMENT.

Bob Burdette is to marry a California widow. Even a humorist at times is forced to take life seriously.

Probably the original sin was the invention of a new diversion for Lent that would pass as a pious charity.

In Frankfort a man has named his twin children Incidence and Coincidence, because they happened together.

Bovee: Woman's love, like lichens on a rock, will still grow where even charity can find no soil to nurture it.—Saturday Night.

"Why doesn't young Fressleigh marry Miss Sweet?" "Why, her father objected." "Oh, I see, the reason is a parent."

George Eliot: It is generally a feminine eye that first detects the moral deficiency hidden under the "dear devil's" mask.

In the vagaries of the English language when you beat a man he gets the worst of it, and you worst him when you get the best of it.

A woman has a perfect right to love her pet dog, remarks the Feminine Observer, but she ought to be and he will stick to you even when your last season's hat is on crooked.

Jean Paul Richter: If the lovingclosed heart of a good woman were to open before a man, how much controlled tenderness, how many veiled ascensions of love would be found!

President W. H. Council of the College for Negroes at Normal, Ala., is the only negro college president born in slavery and self-educated. He was 21 years old before he learned the alphabet.

One of the cub "great descriptive writers" on the Pittsburg Dispatch has found spring coming in on a bicycle. This is the opening spasm:

With every soft-driven, light-winged zephyr that comes across her pathway she thrilled with sweet joy.

Walker Rhoades had just finished a fairly good meal and arose with his tattered hat in hand to go. "But," protested the housewife, "you said you would saw wood." "It pains me to torture the grammar of such a charitable lady," said Rhoades, in leaving. "I said on coming in that I saw wood, and I did. Good day, madam."

An enterprising American firm in Manila has struck off a number of badges commemorative of Dewey's victory on May 1, 1898, and thousands of them have been sold to our soldiers. The ribbon of the badge is a piece of red, white and blue silk. The pendant is a bronze medal, on one side of which is a winged woman, inscription: "Dewey's Victory, Manila Bay," and on the other side is a picture of the Olympia.

The flags of death were flying in the eyes of the kind and indulgent husband. "Dearest, I have a dying wish to make." The woman's eyes all smeared with weeping said simply: "I promise." "You can marry again if you wish, all my property is yours without clause or hindrance, but—" Shivered the gasping man, "should she reach 50 years she may, by applying to the Emperor, get a sum of money with which to buy a tablet, on which her virtues are named. The tablet is placed in the floor at the principal entrance of her house.

A well known American writer at present residing in England, who has done some notable work as special correspondent, recently received, according to the Bookman, a startling offer from a well known New York journal. He was to proceed at once to Devil's island, rescue Dreyfus and bring him to New York. The payment was fixed at $5,000, to be increased to $15,000 if the expedition were successful, and $25,000 expenses. The offer was refused.

In his eulogy of the late Mr. Dingley, Representative Dockery spoke of the great changes in the House since it met at the opening of the Forty-eighth Congress. Of the 854 members who were then sworn in, only seventeen are still there, and in the next session there will be only fifteen, namely Bingham, Ermentrout and Harmer, of Pennsylvania; Bell and Lewis, of Georgia; Campbell and Hitt, of Illinois; Payne, Ray and Wadsworth, of New York; Henderson and Hepburn, of Iowa; Bland, of Missouri; Steele, of Indiana, and Lanham, of Texas.

At one of our commercial hotels a stout, red-faced gentleman in a white beaver, blue coat and buff vest, offered to wager a $5 bill that he would close his eyes and simply by taste name any kind of liquor in the house. The bet was taken and the process of winning or losing was commenced forthwith. "That is genuine brandy," said the fat gentleman, tasting from a wineglass; "and this—this is whiskey," and so on. At length a waf poured out a glass of water, which he handed to the connoisseur. "This is —ah—ah—this is," said he, tasting it again: "By thunder, gentlemen! I lose the bet! I never tasted this liquor before."—Syracuse Standard.

As she drank in the bounteous ozone and caught occasional glimpses of the glorious sun through the drifting clouds which swept up from the steel and metal mills her cheeks glowed with the rush of fresh blood and her eyes flashed forth the spirit to be found only in exulting joyous life. She had a form which, in chiseled outline, and placed upon a marble pedestal, would lend great grace to the sculptor's art. No soft autumnal sunset could exceed the richness of her golden hair. And still she rolled about, and in the glorious ecstacy of a new born existence almost cried aloud with sheer enjoyment. Even the cab drivers, most calloused and material of beings, looked upon her, and were shocked by a few and startling feeling. It was envy. She was the first harbinger of spring.

A FEW SAYINGS.

The gambler's life is an ideal one.

Life's harvest is best when the ground is rocky.

Loneliness is the greatest foe a woman has to fight.

Every field of labor seems more fertile than our own.

We seldom have any illusions in our second childhood.

The cruelest thing a woman can do to us men is to marry us.

The piano next door must answer for a good many of our sins.

We always reap more than we sow; that is when we sow tares.

The hardest thing in the world is to endeavor to be brilliant to order.

The fragrance of fresh flowers is the nearest thing in nature to a caress.

A diplomat is one who can lie and look right into your face when he does it.

The very thing that we wish to see most in the newspapers is the item we are apt to overlook.

The person most suspicious regarding another's actions is generally the one most in need of watching.

A single man's ambition is to get married; a married man's ambition is to make the most of a poor job.

Man has his true affinity, but he never really finds it out until he is married and can't have it.

If Love would only light the kitchen fires as well as he does those of passions, life would run smoother.

The best tonic in the world for a sick man is to go around to his house and let him win your money at poker.

Whenever a wife wishes to make her husband feel cheap she lugs out some of his old love letters and reads them to him.

The longest day is generally the one when you get ready in the morning for something that doesn't occur until night.

It isn't always the girl who wears the biggest bunch of roses and violets at the game who knows the most about football.

There may be some people so imbued with anglomania that they can see something beautiful in a fog, but their name is not legion.

The fragrance of a flower or a long forgotten piece of music has the power to paint a mental picture for us that we thought had faded into oblivion.

PRECIOUS STONES.

All precious stones are purified by a bath in honey, according to an old idea. Many curious notions are current in regard to gems.

Amber is a cure for sore throat and glandular swellings.

Cat's eye is a charm against witchcraft.

Coral is a talisman against thunder and evils by flood and field.

Diamonds produce somnambulism and spiritual ecstasy.

Emeralds, friendship and constancy. Garnets preserve health and joy.

The onyx is apt to cause terror to the wearer as well as ugly dreams.

Opals are fatal to love and bring discord to giver and receiver.

Sapphires impel the wearer to all good works.

The topaz is said to be a preventive to lung trouble and imparts strength.

It is said that the agate quenches thirst, and if put into the mouth allays fever.

APHORISMS.

Novelty is a great parent of pleasure.—South.

It is the motive alone that gives character to the actions of men.—Bruyere.

Obstinacy and vehemency in opinion are the surest proofs of stupidity.—Barton.

No man doth safely rule but he that hath learned gladly to obey.—Thomas a'Kempis.

Nature has made occupation a necessity to us; society makes it a duty; habit makes it a pleasure.

If there be aught surpassing human deed or word or thought it is a mother's love.—Archbishop Spalders.

The true grandeur of humanity is in moral elevation, sustained, enlightened and decorated by the intellect of man.—C. Sumner.

There is a vast difference in one's respect for the man who has made himself and the man who has only made his money.—Mulock.

SOME NEEDED INVENTIONS

A book-shelf that won't fall down.

An ice-pick that will break the ice where you jab it.

An angler's scales that will do all the lying for the fisherman.

A servant's alarm clock that won't wake up the members of the family.

A safety catch in a passenger elevator that will work when there is an accident.

An automatic peach basket that will make all the small peaches come to the top.

A piano that will sound the same to the girl playing it as it does to the neighbors.

A palatable health food that your children will eat without being forced to do so with a stick.

An adjustable ring that will fit the usual number of girls you become engaged to during the summer.

An ambulance surgeon who can tell the difference between a drunken man and one with a fractured skull.

A GRAND ALTAR RAIL

THE GEM OF ART THAT GRACES A BROOKLYN CHURCH.

It is a Wondrous Creation of Rich Marbles and Mosaics and Is the Most Beautiful Piece of Architecture of Its Kind in America.

The most magnificent and costly altar rail in America has been put in place in the Church of St. Mary Star of the Sea, Court and Luquer streets, Brooklyn, of which the Rev. Mgr. O'Connell is rector. It arrived recently from Genoa. It was designed by Colombani and executed in his ateliers at Carrara, Italy.

The rail is three feet high and 60 feet long. Two steps leading to it are of marble taken from the historic quarry at Venice which supplied the marble for the Cathedral of St. Mark and the palaces of the doges. It is of cream color and very rare. The base of the rail is of Breccia marble, quarried near Carrara. The columns are of marble of a rich gray color. Under each pillar is a vase of red Verona marble. The caps of the columns are of the finest statuary marble from Mount Altissimo. The cap running on top of the rail along its entire length, where the communicants rest their hands, is of yellow Siena marble.

The unique feature of the rail is that between the columns there are panels of Venetian mosaic—the finest in the world—each panel symbolic. The Venetian mosaic differs materially from the Roman mosaic. In the latter the crevices between the pieces of mosaic are filled in with paste, which makes it look almost like a painting, while the Venetian mosaic is left rough and is in every way more artistic.

The background of the panels is of burnished gold, and the figures are colored. There are 12 panels in all, four of them being doors.

The first panel represents St. Anne, mother of the Blessed Virgin, standing and holding the Virgin as a little girl by the hand. The latter second is a pictoral scene. This is to typify the relation that St. Anne bears to the Christian religion, being the mother of the mother of Christ.

The third panel typifies the Assumption. It represents the Blessed Virgin as she is described in the Apocalypse, chapter 12, "clothed with the sun and the moon under her feet, and on her head a crown with 12 stars."

The fourth panel typifies the relation of St. Joseph to the Catholic religion. It represents the death of St. Joseph, with Mary kneeling and holding his hand and Christ supporting his head.

The fourth panel is the queen of the Holy Rosary. It shows the Secret of the Blessed Virgin standing in the clouds, that are laden with roses, and an angel kneeling at her side, gathering them up and weaving a crown for the queen. She holds in her hand a scroll. The roses typify the "Hail Marys" which the faithful recite in the devotion to the rosary.

The fifth panel typifies the sacrament of penance. It is of a woman kneeling in confession. The penitent's hands are folded and are bound with chains. Directly above it is the Sacred Heart of Jesus, from which blood is dropping on the chains, typifying the washing away of sins by the blood of Christ.

The sixth panel represents the apparition of the Saviour to blessed Margaret Mary in the chapel of the visitation at Paray-le-Monial, France, on June 16, 1675, when he asked her to institute the devotion of the Sacred Heart. Lights are shining from the wounds in his heart and hands.

The seventh panel shows Blessed Margaret Mary holding in her hands a painting of the Sacred Heart of the vision.

The eighth panel represents the seal of Divine love.

The four gates are made of bronze. The figures are statuettes of silver, with rays of gold radiating from each.

The gate on the Court street side has a statue of St. Joseph, protector of the universal church. On the face of the altar of the Blessed Virgin has a statuette of the Sacred Heart of Mary, placed there in exact fulfillment of the prophecy of Simeon.

There is a double gate in front of the high altar. One has a figure typifying the Holy Eucharist and the Sacred Heart. Under the feet of Christ water is flowing and two deer and two doves are drinking. On the other gate is a figure of Christ as the Sacred Heart King. He holds a scepter in one hand and a sword in the other. Rays of light radiate from his heart.

Mgr. O'Connell is authority for the statement that there is nothing in this country like the rail. It is said to have cost $10,000. The gate was admitted by the customs officials as a work of art.

The church of St. Mary of the Star enjoys the extraordinary privilege of being affiliated with the Holy House of Loretto. The same spiritual privileges and indulgences which reward the pious pilgrim to Loretto may be gained by a visit to the Star of the Sea. The main altar is a privileged altar. The crucifix over the main altar was made in Rome and contains a relic of the true cross. The indulgence of the Portiuncula is one of the many privileges conferred on the Star of the Sea.—New York Letter.

The Eucharistic League.

According to the third annual report of the People's Eucharistic league, there are 83 centers or branches in the United States. The total membership is over 10,000. Many centers have a membership of 1,000. The associates are divided into bands of 12, and the head of each band is called a zelatrice. The object of the league is the adoration of the Holy Eucharist. Bands of adorers take turns in adoring the Eucharist, each spending half an hour before the Blessed Sacrament.

HOLY MARY, MOTHER OF GOD

She is the Mediatrix Between Sinful Men and Their Saviour.

The incarnation of our Lord Jesus Christ is the fundamental doctrine of Christianity, for upon it is based the whole structure of Christian faith. This great mystery was accomplished by the power of God, through the co-operation of his handmaid, the virgin of Nazareth.

Being predestined to the glorious dignity of mother of God, Mary was endowed with the highest graces in the gift of which the power of the mother of his Son. All her excellence and her glory and her power are due solely to her Son and her Saviour. As his creature Mary is infinitely less than God, but incomparably greater than any other creature. God alone is the object of our adoration, and Christ is the only mediator between man and his Creator.

The power ascribed by Catholics to the Blessed Virgin Mary is that of intercession only and is based upon the texts of Scripture, the teaching of the fathers of the church and the practice of Christians from the earliest times. Devotion to Mary is as old and as universal as the church itself.

In the stable at Bethlehem mother revealed the light of the world to the Hebrew shepherds and the gentile magi. At Mary's intercession Christ performed his first miracle at Cana, and at the foot of the cross Mary was bequeathed to all men in the person of John.

The decree of the council of Ephesus which affirmed the true doctrine of the incarnation and proclaimed the highest dignity of Mary was received by the people with public demonstrations of the greatest joy. The earliest Christian art also bears witness to the faith and devotion of the people. Filial love for and devotion to Mary are inseparable from a true faith in Jesus Christ.

Mary is the mediatrix between sinful men and their Saviour. She pleads with their brother, in whom they see also their judge. It is lawful and profitable to ask the prayers of our fellow men.

No creature is holier or nearer to Christ than Mary, his mother. As he was obedient to her on earth, so now he listens to her pleadings for us, his brethren. Through Mary we received Christ. Through Mary we hope to attain to his glory.—Catholic Study Club.

THE DIVINE CURE.

Matthew Arnold's Glowing Tribute to the Glories of Catholicism.

Matthew Arnold has this to say of our holy church and its noble influence:

Catholicism is that form of Christianity which is the oldest, the largest and most popular. It has been the great popular religion of Christendom. What the great popular religion of Christendom is they are seen in Catholic churches? Catholicism envelops human life, and Catholics in general feel themselves to have drawn not only their religion from the church; they feel themselves to have drawn from it also their culture and poetry and culture. Her hierarchy, originally stamped with the character of a beneficent and orderly authority springing up amid anarchy, appeared to them the source where all worth was disregarded and merit regarded, and the things of the mind and soul were honored in the midst of the iron feudal age, which worshiped solely birth and force. And if there is a saying especially often to religion it is diversity. If there is a thing especially native to religion, it is peace and union; hence the original attraction toward unity in Rome, and hence the great charm and power the idea of unity in the church has when once attained. All these spells for the heart and imagination has Catholicism for Catholics, in addition to the consciousness of a divine cure for vice and misery.

Miss Livingston a Catholic.

Miss Elizabeth K. Livingston has just been received into the Catholic church in New York city. Miss Livingston is a descendant of Colonel Van Brugh Livingston, whose wife was Mary Alexander, sister of the Earl of Sterling. Peter was the son of Philip, second son of the lord of the manor of Livingston, who was president of the first provincial congress of New York. An elder brother of Peter was one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, and another brother was a governor of New Jersey.

Miss Livingston was born in Baltimore. Her parents and only sister died a year ago, and she has since lived with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Van Brugh Livingston, who are also her guardians, in New York city. During her early life Miss Livingston was a Baptist, but later she joined the Episcopal church. Her aunt and uncle are Catholics.

She is well known in New York society, is a member of the Colonial Dames and is interested in charitable work. She is heiress to a large estate.

The Church in Denmark.

Slowly but surely the Catholic church is gaining her way in the northern Scandinavian kingdoms. In Denmark two religious orders, the Redemptorists and the Clerks Regular of St. Camillus of Lellis, have lately obtained a permanent footing. The Nordish Ugeblad tells us that the Fathers Hermann Schmiderer and Peter Damian Steindl, C. SS. R., of the Redemptorist house at Mantern in Styria, have settled at Odense, where they have taken charge of the church dedicated to St. Mary, while the Camillian fathers have purchased a fine villa belonging to the bank director Jacobsen, with a large plot of land at Aalborg, where they will erect a church and hospital.

The Jubilee For 1900.

It is announced that the holy father, following the example of his predecessors, will announce the jubilee or holy year for 1900. The last celebration of this kind was held in 1875 under Pope Pius IX.

The Constitutionalist.

A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.

PUBLISHED AT

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Terms—$2.00 per year.

A. L. Force, Editor and Proprietor

Mr. Place Views the Situation.

In a letter written to the editor of the Somerville Unionist-Gazette, Former Mayor Charles Place, of North Plainfield, says that he can see no good reason why Vice President Hobart should not receive a renomination on the National ticket next year.

After discussing G. O. P. changes Mr. Place indulges in a little prognostication for the Democrats, and says that Bryan is likely to be the next nominee for President because "he is even more popular with the silver element than he was three years ago." But the North Plainfield gentleman ends his pleasant reference to Bryan by saying that he cannot win, and thereby takes all the sweet out of it for the Democrats, or those who like the great silver champion.

Considering the chances that Governor Roosevelt or any other eastern Republican might have for getting into the White House, Mr. Place significantly says "if any rising young statesman in the east gets the Presidential bee in his bonnet the only thing for him to do is to take Horace Greeley's advise, and go as far west beyond the Ohio river as his judgment dictates."

A Severe Law.

In future any man who is imprisoned in New Jersey for debt may remain in jail for life unless some special law is passed by Congress to release him. Judge Blair of the Hudson County Court of Sessions has so decided, in a decision rendered in the case of Joseph Schnitzer, a furniture dealer of Jersey City, who sought to take advantage of the insolvent debtor act of New Jersey. Judge Blair says that the United States bankruptcy act supersedes the New Jersey insolvency act, and that forfeited bonds entail imprisonment.

Judge Blair, when interrogated regarding his decision, said: "I base my decision on recent decision of the United States Court. It is true that under the decision it will be impossible to get any person who is imprisoned for debt out of jail unless the bankruptcy law is amended. There is no provision in the law at present for getting a person imprisoned for debt released from custody."

New York is again sounding high the praises of a policeman who performed heroic work in saving human lives at the Andrews fire the other day. As a rule the New York policeman is regarded as a great man when he is considered by himself, but when he is looked as part of the guardian force of the metropolis there is nothing too sarcastic and villainous for the populace to give voice to. There are hundreds of New York policemen who are made up of the same heroic material as this man—Murray is his name—who won the commendation of the whole world for his bravery at the fire that killed the unlucky thirteen, but they have never had the opportunity to show their stamina and courage. Yet in the abstract forth they do not receive the credit they actally deserve.

Uncle Russell Sage, he of the tall lions, is said to have had his boots blackened at the same stand in New York for the past twenty years, and has never varied a minute in the time of his arrival there. And yet Uncle Russell always uses the elevated railroad service in going to business every morning. Tell us something that we can believe easier.

There is more truth than fiction in the Atchison Globe's tart comment that "if a wedding notice occupies fifty lines forty-seven are devoted to a description of the dress, beauty, social prominence, etc., of the princess bride, and the remaining three lines to telling that the man she married clerks in a grocery store."

It is one of the many mysteries of the human brain that an injury to one section of it may make a man insane, while a blow on another part may convert a dull man into a genius. The risk, however, is too great to make it desirable to fall on one's head as a means of cultivating genius.

Gov. Voorhees allowed his partisan feelings to take a back seat long enough yesterday to appoint David Harvey, Jr., Judge of the District Court of Asbury Park. Harvey is a Democrat and was recommended by leading men of both parties.

GIVE THE CHILDREN A DRINK

called Grain-O. It is a delicious, appetizing, nourishing food drink to take the place of coffee. Sold by a grocer and liked by all who have used it because when properly prepared it tastes like the finest coffee but is free from all its injurious properties. Grain-O aids digestion and strengthens the nerves. It is not a stimulant but a health builder, and children, as well as adults, can drink it with great benefit. Costs about ¼ as much as coffee 15 and 25c.

The Poll Tax.

Though the law providing for the raising of the bodies of delinquent poll and personal taxpayers has been on the statute books for these many years, it has been so seldom resorted to that the intention of the borough authorities to invoke its provisions to replenish the treasury of that place makes it an unusual and curious phase of municipal life. The theory of the poll tax is that every man should share to some extent in the burdens of local government, even though he be without personal or real property, and the law calling for the payment of or the privilege of exercising the right to cast a vote at the polls finds its existence in this view.

Once upon a time nearly every State in the Union had its poll tax, but in this day and age most of them have repealed the law or else allowed it to remain subject to either enforcement or not, as the officials of the various taxing districts see fit to construe its provisions.

There are thousands of men who decline to pay the poll tax out of principle. They insist that it is obnoxious and in keeping with the spirit of a republican form of government. Now and then we hear of delinquents of this kind who are lying in jail because they refuse to concede the right of the poll tax to be levied on their person.

According to the resolution of the North Plainfield officials it is evident that they are thoroughly in earnest in their intention to enforce the collection of poll and personal taxes, but whether or not their proceedings will go so far as to commit to jail those who are unable or refuse to pay up, remains a question that will keep the interested ones on the anxious bench until they find out the exact situation.

While all the improvements in municipal life are being contemplated by Plainfield's enterprising Common Council, let us suggest that a small appropriation be made for the purchase of signs to be put at the corners of streets carrying the name of the thoroughfares. In the minds of those who are acquainted with the topography of the city this matter may seem of slight importance but it is not. There are scores of people who visit various sections of the city and are put to great inconvenience and, oftentimes, embarrassment by the lack of street signs. The cost of putting up these signs would be silent, but there is nothing that would be more conducive to the peace of mind of visitors, to whom they would furnish useful information. By all means let the Council make a small appropriation to provide for a reasonable number of street signs

The Massachusetts Senate is in favor of weeding out some of the luxuriant verbiage in real estate conveyances. What is intended is shown in the provisions to substitute the word "grant" for the formula "give, grant, bargain, sell, and convey"; making "release" or "quitclaim" serve for "convey, release, release, and for ever quitclaim"; abbreviating "assign, transfer, and set over" to "assign," and to permit the four words "statutory power of sale" to do the work of nearly four hundred. Many other legal documents might be thus edited to advantage.

Mayor Jones, who was elected in Toledo, O., over the candidates of both of the old political parties, announces a municipal programme in which he proposes other things, the establishment of a city plant for making fuel gas; the city control of the electric lighting plant; civil service in all municipal departments; city home rule; no grant or extension of franchises to private companies without the approval of the people, and substitution of the referendum for the veto power.

There are said to be over a million men employed on the street railways of this country. This does not include the people who stand on the sidewalks and wave their hands frantically while the cars speed by at a ten miles an hour gait.

The invention of a cenair by an Ohio man that can be put in 1,000 different positions leads a Chicago paragrapher to suggest that it should be dedicated to the small boy who goes to church.

The Passaic News observes that "in the shuffle of the last cards in the legislature it did not seem to occur to anybody that the proposed Dollar Gas bill was never passed."

The men employed on the borough streets are in a position to appreciate, in reference to their pay, the full meaning of "work done while you wait."

The most important of New Jersey cities are holding their municipal elections today. Hot fights for the votes are the rule.

The attempt to form a jewelers' trust has failed. The oatmeal trust is in a flourishing condition, however.

With three banks and ten loan associations in Plainfield, the city is not without its objects of interest.

Results of Spring Elections.

Even though this is what is politically known as an "off" year, the elections held in various New Jersey cities were not without surprises.

In Union county there were only two places that held elections. These were Elizabeth and Rahway. The outcome in the county seat is considerable of a surprise, inasmuch as by the results of yesterday's contest the Republicans will gain control of the majority of the Board of Aldermen. At present the Democrats have six out of the fourteen members, but when the new members take their seats the result will be reversed exactly. The Elizabeth Democrats were confident of holding the majority of the Aldermen, but perhaps they were too confident. General Apathy and Over Confidence sometimes do wonders. It is evident that the Elizabeth Democrats are afflicted with these characters.

In Rahway the Democrats scarcely expected to win, though they had a worthy ticket headed by the old Jeffersonian Democrat and veteran editor, Josephus Shann. Mayor Williamson had a clear field for re-election in New Brunswick, but inasmuch as the Democrats decided not to oppose his election, the Republicans are unable to extract much partisan advantage from the result. The Middlesex Board of Freeholders, however, will remain Democratic.

Jersey City went Democratic overwhelmingly. Now, of course, will follow the usual stories of monumental fraud. This seems to be the perpetual war whoop of the Republicans in Jersey City every day in the year. Newark, however, affords solace to the G. O. P, inasmuch as they won a victory in that city.

The results in the other smaller cities and towns were varying, and are of small consequence to the State at large.

Doubtless Governor Voorhees will be called upon to select a young lady to christen the battleship New Jersey when the vessel is launched. The Governor will find that a delicate job inasmuch as he is bachelor.

Albert Glazier, of Elizabeth, is a prospective candidate for the nomination of Sheriff on the Democratic ticket in Union county this fall.

Considering the raking over the coals which Chief Devery is receiving at the hands of Mr. Moss, the former is keeping remarkably cool.

Rakes and overalls instead of snow shovels and high-top boots now fill the long felt want of the suburban resident.

It seems to be harder for young Croker to tell why he got it than it is for the elder to tell how he got it.

Both political parties are claiming that this was an "off" year wherever they were beaten yesterday.

Uncle Sam is doing his share in running Aguinaldo's government—that is, in running it to earth.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

F. M. Bacon is now at Council Bluffs, Ia., and writes an interesting letter regarding that flourishing city. He went to the city of Chicago by the Lehigh Valley Railroad and is high in his praise of that line. He arrived in Chicago just one minute and 38 seconds behind time. The cause of this delay was peculiar. Mr. Bacon tells that when the train was going at full speed, the conductor and passengers were horror-struck to here a young woman scream "man off." The train was slowed up and the conductor investigated and found that one of the large feather's in the young woman's hat had blown out of the open window and so frightened her that she was under the impression that someone had fallen off the train.

* * * * * * *

One of the old Dutch curiousities, shown at the "Feast of All Nations," held recently at Trinity Reformed church, was the tall hall clock, of the kind commonly known as "Grandfather's clock." It was the property of J. C. VanDyke, of East Front street, who loaned it for the occasion. Its physician was Charles Vail, who has looked after the health of the clock for many years. The following was prepared by Mr. VanDyke: Grandfathers age bid in the mists of the past is a little uncertain Those that knew him best, are of the belief that he was born in Holland 150 years ago. He came from near Brass Castle, Warren county, N. J., where he lived with a family of Willevers, until they died. In their house he stood proclaiming the hours in one position for just half of his reputed life, 75 years. He came to Plainfield a good number of years ago. His conduct has been exemplary. Old as he is he is not too old to go to the church, so with his face washed he visits Trinity's Feast of All Nations He had to be brought in wagon as he cannot walk.

Howard T. Lewis, of Alfred University, has returned to his studies after a visit at the home of his aunt Mrs. George H. Babcock, of West Eighth street.

ALL SORTS.

Forty-four muscles are called into play in the production of the human voice.

On an average of 200 carrier pigeons are officially kept in every German fortress.

Powdered rice is said to be of great efficacy in checking bleeding from cuts and bruises.

Germans are the most prone to suicide; the Irish and negroes rarely resort to self-destruction.

A man in Tennessee boasts that Dewey is his cousin and Hobson is his nephew. Such is fame.

The cemeteries around London cover 2,000 acres, and the land they occupy represents a capital of $100,000,000.

The Louisiana supreme court has appointed a committee to have charge of admissions to the bar and disbarments.

The highest masts of sailing vessels are from 160 to 180 feet high, and spread from 60,000 to 100,000 square feet of canvas.

The title of "majesty" was first given to Louis XI. of France. Before that time sovereigns were usually styled "highness."

The production of soap in England is about 45,000 tons per week, of which between 3,000 and 4,000 tons are made in London.

Scientists say that the whole human body is full of microbes, and that a person is healthy as long as the microbes are in good condition.

An inch of rain falling upon an area of one square mile is equivalent to nearly 17,500,000 gallons, weighing 145,250,000 pounds, or 64,844 tons.

In Egypt washing is done mostly by men, who stand naked on the banks of the Nile and pound the wet clothes on the smooth stones at the river's brink till the dirt is forced from them. French women pound the clothes with paddles in the same way as the Egyptians upon the stones beside a river.

In Russia no one knows how rich are the Demidoffs or the Yousoupoffs, because their fortunes are in the shape of vast domains containing gold and silver mines of incalculable value. These have not yet been developed, but they are but two of the millionaire families, and there are hundreds of others in the empire of the White Tsar.

The hardest worked laundresses in the world are, no doubt, the Koreans. As their husbands generally give them about a dozen dresses to wash and every man wears hugely baggy pantaloons, which come up to his neck, like those of the clown, they have plenty to do. Generally the washing is done in cold water and very often in a stream or river.

With a view of proving that bombardments are not very fatal to human life, it is stated that in 1870-71, at the bombardment of Belfort, which lasted seventy-three days, 99,453 projectiles thrown resulted in only sixty deaths. At Strasburg, during thirty-eight days, the Germans fired 193,722 shells, the number of victims being 300, while at the bombardment of Paris, which lasted twenty-three days, 10,000 shells resulted in 107 persons killed and wounded.

Governor Leedy's aggregation of Kansas volunteers are still subject to the ridicule of their comrades from other states, because of the cheap character of their equipment. "One of the standing jokes in the camp," writes a soldier from San Francisco, "is about the poor uniforms, and a common question when one soldier meets another is: 'What is the color of my pants this morning?' I have seen a soldier on parade with pants that were colored the line leg a light blue and in the other a red green. Both legs won't fade alike and it makes us look like circus clowns."

The surprisingly bad marksmanship of the Spanish gunners has brought to light some interesting facts concerning the relative skill of the Anglo-Saxon and Latin races. It is said by those who know that a dark eyed race never makes good marksmen, and many instances are cited. It has become a proverb in England that no dark eyed man ever goes on the target for the Elcho shield. A case in point is that of a family of eleven men, all grey eyed and all good riflemen, with the exception of one, dark eyed, who himself admits that he could not shoot a barn, and if put inside and blindfolded would send his bullet through the only knothole.

A traveler tells of treasure chambers in Bagdad that rival the tales of the "Arabian Nights." Among these multimillionaires are the Sassoons, whose banking firm exercises the functions of a great power throughout Asia Some members of this family have become Europeanized, having establishes themselves in London, and one of them is married to a Rothschild. A passport signed Sasoon is a safe conduct throughout the widest regions of the Himalayas, through Afghanistan or Persia or Thibet. They deal with the chiefs of all the wandering tribes, such transactions being mostly on honor The idea of calling the Sassoons is entertained with as much dread and horror as death.

OF INTEREST.

A Berlin watchmaker has invented an instrument which will measure time to the thousandth part of a second.

The value of the average annual production of the earth has been estimated at $10,000,000,000.

Lemon baths are popular in the West Indies. Three or four lemons are cut up and left to soak in the water half an hour. The bath is very refreshing.

Since 1893 more than 8,000 houses have been fumigated and closed in Dublin on account of their unsanitary condition.

CURIOUS CONDENSATIONS.

There are 9,000 cells in a square foot of honeycomb.

Byra, a town in Africa, is built entirely of zinc. The public buildings and residents did not cost more than $20,000.

A scientist has calculated that the eyelids of the average man open and shut no fewer than 4,000,000 times in the course of a single year of his existence.

The messages between Milan and Switzerland, by way of Simplon pass, pass over a telegraph line with stone poles of gray granite about ten inches square and twenty-five feet high.

"Is it not time for a 'congress of fathers?" asked the Montgomery Advertiser. "Or are they supposed to know their business without holding powwows about it?"

A Viennese meteorologist has proved by experiments that rainbows are conditioned by the size of the raindrops, and that, while we ordinarily see only two rainbows side by side, there are often as many as twelve.

Hawks have been seen to follow in the wake of a moving railway train, to swoop down on small birds that were suddenly disturbed and frightened by the noise, and therefore for the moment were off their guard.

A missouri paper says that "the pictures in the Kansas City papers show that decollete gowns in Kansas City only go down three knobs on the backbone, while a woman cannot get into New York society unless her dress reaches the sixth knob. Kansas City is very, very mossy."

The London Bookman says that a well known American writer at present in England, who has done some notable work as special correspondent, recently received an offer from a well known New York Journal to proceed at once to Devil's island, rescue Dreyfus and bring him to New York. The payment was fixed at $5,000, to be increased to $15,000 if the expedition were successful, and $25,000 expenses. The offer was refused.

Owing to a rate war which is in progress among the transatlantic transportation companies the Hamburg-American and Cunard companies in French and Red Star lines have followed the lead of the White Star, American and cunard companies in cutting cabin fares. It is said that the action of the White Star line in inaugurating the way was due to the aggressive course pursued by the Allan line and the Dominion line, both operating from Canada.

"Embalmed" milk as well as "embalmed" beef is the subject of a crusade. The health officers of Kansas City has found that an extensive adulteration of milk is being carried on by the addition of artificial butterfat and a chemical preservative to skim milk, the whole being then sold as pure milk. The preservative on analysis was found to be formaldehyde colored with a little aniline dye. If a sufficient quantity of the stuff be used the milk will keep fresh for weeks, and the fluid will be actually embalmed as in a body treated with the same preservative.

In the ballet of the Vienna court opera six "ladies" have started out to purify their profession, and have formed a league—women always start these things by "forming a league"—known as the "Tugendbund," the "Association of Virtue." The name is borrowed from that instituted by Frederick Wilhelm III, in which each dancer got a cross of brilliants from the moral monarch, and which, owing of course, to the rarity and possible the weight of the crosses, was not blessed with a long life. Be that as it may, every member of the new band pledges herself "to live only by her wage as a danceer and to receive from no gentleman any attentions save such as are fair and honest." It is needless to add that the former adjective applies equally to the man and his attentions.

The English royal marriage act is one of the time-honored absurdities which survive in spite of common sense and enlightened public opinion. By this matrimonial choice of the English princes is practically restricted to the swarms of "the German hive," and the proverbially handsome English women are forbidden. This legal prohibition was enacted in 1772, at the personal command of George III, he "being thereunto incited." first, by the marriage in 1776 of his brother, the Duke of Gloster, to the Countess Waldegrave (Maria Walpole), and, second, by the taking to wife by a younger brother, the Duke of Cumberland, in 1771, of the widow of Col. Christopher Horton. The first provision of the act forbids to the descendants of George II. matrimony without the consent of the crown under the great seal, necessary exception being made to cover the marriages of princesses abroad. The second provision has been the especial mark of raillery. It enables marriage by one above the age of twenty-five against the will of the crown, under certain conditions.

A FEW SAYINGS.

To keep your secret is wisdom; but to expect others to keep it is folly.—Holtzo.

Truth is too simple for us; we do not like those who unmask our illusions.—Emerson.

O banish the tears of Children! Continual rains upon the blossoms are hurtful.—Lavater.

The utmost that severity can do is to make men hypocrites; it can never make them converts.

If you have good health you have nineteenths of all that Nature has ever given to any man.

Truth is the most powerful thing in the world, since fiction can only please us by its resemblance to it.

CLEARING SALE

OF

PIANOS

We are Closing

out a number of of good second-hand pianos at extremely low prices, and on easy terms of payment. Now is the time to get a bargain.

7	Octave Square	$ 40
7⅓	"	70
7⅓	Upright	150
7⅓	"	165
7⅓	Hallett & Davis	190
7⅓	"	210

ON PAYMENTS $3 to $8 MONTHLY.

Lot of good second-hand Organs at $20, $25 and upward, $4 per month.

A large assortment of elegant new,

Hallet & Davis

UPRIGHT PIANOS.

$300 and up, and 2 years' time if you want it. Other makes—Cabinet Grands, all improvements. $225—$7 per month.

Free music and Catalogue for the asking.

THE W. F. TWAY PIANO CO.,

94 Fifth Avenue, New York.

JAS. M. DUNN,

Dealer in

GROCERIES, PROVISIONS, VEGETABLES, FRUITS &c

GARDEN SEEDS

fresh and carefully selected.

224 PARK AVENUE,

OPPOSITE NORTH AVENUE.

Everything usually found in a first-class grocery.

Goods delivered free of charge.

Woolston & Buckle,

PAINTERS.

Wall Papers, Painters' Supplies

141-145 North avenue.

GEORGE W. DAY,

General Auctioneer.

Sales of Personal Property solicited P. O. Box 132, Dunellen, N. J., or address Care of Constitutionalist. Terms reasonable.

W. R. CODINGTON,

Counsellor-at-Law

Commissioner of Deeds, Master-in-chancery, Notary Public. Offices Corne of Park avenue and Second street.

HUMPHREYS' VETERINARY SPECIFICS

100 PAGE BOOK MAILED FREE.

CONTENTS:

Part I.—Diseases of Horses.
Part II.—Diseases of Cattle.
Part III.—Diseases of Sheep.
Part IV.—Diseases of Hogs.
Part V.—Diseases of Dogs.
Part VI.—Diseases of Poultry.

Same book in better binding 50 cts. HUMPHREYS' MED. CO., Cor. William & John Sts., New York.

Children cry for Teething

Mrs. Winslow's has been used for over Fifty Years by Millions of Mothers for their Children while Teething, with Perfect Success. It Soothes the Child, Softens the Gums, Allays all Pain, Cures Wind Colic, and is the best remedy for Diarrhœa. Sold by druggists in every part of the world. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

Arrival and Departure of Mails

NEW YORK MAILS.

Arrive—7:20, 8:20, 11:30 a. m., 3:00, 5, 6:00 p. m. Close—7:30, 9:15 a. m., 12:30, 3:00, 6:00, 7:30 p.m.

SOMERVILLE and EASTON.

Arrive—8:40 a. m., 3:00 and 6:15 p. m. Close—7:30 a. m., 12:30 and 4:30 p. m.

PHILADELPHIA—Direct.

Arrive—8:40 and 11:30 a. m., 1:00 and 8:00 p. m Close—7:30 and 9:15 a. m., 4:00 p. m.

Through fast mail for West and South, close 4:00 and 7:30 p. m.

GARRETTSVILLE.

Arrive—12:30 p. m. Close—2:30 a. m.

SUNDAY MAILS.

Office open from 8:30 to 10:30 a. m.
Mail closes at 4:15 p. m.

E. R. BIRD, P. M

Central R. R. of New Jersey

Anthracite Coal Used Exclusively, Insuring Cleanliness and Comfort.

Between New York, Foot of Liberty, and South Ferry Whitehall Streets.

TIME TABLE IN EFFECT NOV. 20th, 1898.

PLAINFIELD AND NEW YORK.

Leave Plainfield 2 14, 2 57, 5 37, 6 38, 7 00, 7 35, 8 17, 8 42, 9 05, 9 53, 10 35, 11 30 a. m., 12 05, 12 30, 1 05, 1 30, 2 05, 2 30, 3 05, 3 30, 4 05, 4 30, 5 05, 5 30, 6 05, 6 30, 7 05, 7 30, 8 05, 8 30, 9 05, 9 30, 10 05, 10 30, 11 30 p. m. Sunday, 2 14, 2 57, 5 37, 6 38, 7 00, 7 35, 8 17, 8 42, 9 05, 9 53, 10 35, 11 30 a. m., 12 05, 12 30, 1 05, 1 30, 2 05, 2 30, 3 05, 3 30, 4 05, 4 30, 5 05, 5 30, 6 05, 6 30, 7 05, 7 30, 8 05, 8 30, 9 05, 9 30, 10 05, 10 30, 11 30 p. m.

Leave New York, foot Liberty St., at 4 00, 4 45, 5 30, 6 00, 6 30, 7 00, 7 30, 8 00, 8 30, 9 00, 9 30, 10 00, 10 30, 11 00, 11 30 a. m., 12 00, 12 30, 1 00, 1 30, 2 00, 2 30, 3 00, 3 30, 4 00, 4 30, 5 00, 5 30, 6 00, 6 30, 7 00, 7 30, 8 00, 8 30, 9 00, 9 30, 10 00, 10 30, 11 30 p. m. Sunday, 4 00, 4 45, 5 30, 6 00, 6 30, 7 00, 7 30, 8 00, 8 30, 9 00, 9 30, 10 00, 10 30, 11 00, 11 30 a. m., 12 00, 12 30, 1 00, 1 30, 2 00, 2 30, 3 00, 3 30, 4 00, 4 30, 5 00, 5 30, 6 00, 6 30, 7 00, 7 30, 8 00, 8 30, 9 00, 9 30, 10 00, 10 30, 11 30 p. m.

Leave New York from South Ferry foot Whitehall st. at 7 15, 8 00, 8 30, 9 00, 9 30, 10 00, 10 30, 11 00, 11 30 a. m., 12 00, 12 30, 1 00, 1 30, 2 00, 2 30, 3 00, 3 30, 4 00, 4 30, 5 00, 5 30, 6 00, 6 30, 7 00, 7 30, 8 00, 8 30, 9 00, 9 30, 10 00, 10 30, 11 30 p. m. Sunday, 7 15, 8 00, 8 30, 9 00, 9 30, 10 00, 10 30, 11 00, 11 30 a. m., 12 00, 12 30, 1 00, 1 30, 2 00, 2 30, 3 00, 3 30, 4 00, 4 30, 5 00, 5 30, 6 00, 6 30, 7 00, 7 30, 8 00, 8 30, 9 00, 9 30, 10 00, 10 30, 11 30 p. m.

Trains leave Newark one hour earlier than leaving Elizabeth.

PLAINFIELD AND SOMERVILLE.

Leave Plainfield 8 15, 7 15, 8 15, 9 45, 11 00 a. m., 2 00, 3 45, 5 15, 6 30, 8 00, 9 30, 11 30 p. m. Sunday 8 45, 9 45, 11 00 a. m., 2 00, 3 45, 5 15, 6 30, 8 00, 9 30, 11 30 p. m.

Leave Easton at 6 05, 7 05, 8 35, A. 22 12 05, 1 35, 3 10, 4 40, 6 10, 7 40, 9 10, 10 40 p. m. Sunday at 7 10, 11 00 a. m., 12 05, 1 35, 3 10, 4 40, 6 10, 7 40, 9 10, 10 40 p. m.

PLAINFIELD AND LAKE HOPATCONG.

Leave Plainfield at 8 00 a. m.

WESTWARD CONNECTIONS.

8 15 a. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Allentown, Reading, Harrisburg, Pottsville, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, Sunbury, Shamokin, Upper Lehigh, Wilkesbarre and Scranton.

9 45 a. m.—For stations on High Bridge branch connecting for stations on High Bridge branch.

11 00 a. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Reading, Harrisburg, Pottsville, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, Sunbury, Shamokin, Wilkesbarre and Scranton.

2 00 p. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Reading, Harrisburg, Pottsville, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, Sunbury, Shamokin, Wilkesbarre and Scranton.

3 45 p. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Reading, Harrisburg, Pottsville, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, Sunbury, Shamokin, Wilkesbarre and Scranton.

5 15 p. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Reading, Harrisburg, Pottsville, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, Sunbury, Shamokin, Wilkesbarre and Scranton.

6 30 p. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Reading, Harrisburg, Pottsville, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, Sunbury, Shamokin, Wilkesbarre and Scranton.

8 00 p. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Reading, Harrisburg, Pottsville, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, Sunbury, Shamokin, Wilkesbarre and Scranton.

9 30 p. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Reading, Harrisburg, Pottsville, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, Sunbury, Shamokin, Wilkesbarre and Scranton.

11 30 p. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Reading, Harrisburg, Pottsville, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, Sunbury, Shamokin, Wilkesbarre and Scranton.

Sunday 8 45 a. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Reading, Harrisburg, Pottsville, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, Sunbury, Shamokin, Wilkesbarre and Scranton.

9 45 a. m.—For stations on High Bridge branch connecting for stations on High Bridge branch.

11 00 a. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Reading, Harrisburg, Pottsville, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, Sunbury, Shamokin, Wilkesbarre and Scranton.

2 00 p. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Reading, Harrisburg, Pottsville, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, Sunbury, Shamokin, Wilkesbarre and Scranton.

3 45 p. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Reading, Harrisburg, Pottsville, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, Sunbury, Shamokin, Wilkesbarre and Scranton.

5 15 p. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Reading, Harrisburg, Pottsville, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, Sunbury, Shamokin, Wilkesbarre and Scranton.

6 30 p. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Reading, Harrisburg, Pottsville, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, Sunbury, Shamokin, Wilkesbarre and Scranton.

8 00 p. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Reading, Harrisburg, Pottsville, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, Sunbury, Shamokin, Wilkesbarre and Scranton.

9 30 p. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Reading, Harrisburg, Pottsville, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, Sunbury, Shamokin, Wilkesbarre and Scranton.

11 30 p. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Reading, Harrisburg, Pottsville, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, Sunbury, Shamokin, Wilkesbarre and Scranton.

FOR SOMERVILLE AND FLEMINGTON.

Leave Plainfield at 7 00, 10 00 for Somerville and Flemington. 11 30 a. m., 2 00, 4 05 p. m. Sundays, 10 00 a. m. For Somerville only, 5 30 p. m. Sundays, 4 05 p. m. For Flemington only, 8 30 p. m. Sundays, 5 30 p. m.

For Bound Brook, 7 00, 10 00 a. m., 2 00, 4 05, 5 30 p. m. Sundays, 10 00 a. m., 4 05, 5 30 p. m.

For Dunellen, 7 00, 8 30, 10 00 a. m., 2 00, 4 05, 5 30, 8 30 p. m. Sundays, 10 00 a. m., 4 05, 5 30, 8 30 p. m.

For Metuchen, 7 00, 8 30, 10 00 a. m., 2 00, 4 05, 5 30, 8 30 p. m. Sundays, 10 00 a. m., 4 05, 5 30, 8 30 p. m.

For Menlo Park, 7 00, 8 30, 10 00 a. m., 2 00, 4 05, 5 30, 8 30 p. m. Sundays, 10 00 a. m., 4 05, 5 30, 8 30 p. m.

For Metropolitan Junction, 7 00, 8 30, 10 00 a. m., 2 00, 4 05, 5 30, 8 30 p. m. Sundays, 10 00 a. m., 4 05, 5 30, 8 30 p. m.

For Jamesburg, 7 00, 8 30, 10 00 a. m., 2 00, 4 05, 5 30, 8 30 p. m. Sundays, 10 00 a. m., 4 05, 5 30, 8 30 p. m.

For Monmouth Junction, 7 00, 8 30, 10 00 a. m., 2 00, 4 05, 5 30, 8 30 p. m. Sundays, 10 00 a. m., 4 05, 5 30, 8 30 p. m.

For Princeton, 7 00, 8 30, 10 00 a. m., 2 00, 4 05, 5 30, 8 30 p. m. Sundays, 10 00 a. m., 4 05, 5 30, 8 30 p. m.

For Trenton, 7 00, 8 30, 10 00 a. m., 2 00, 4 05, 5 30, 8 30 p. m. Sundays, 10 00 a. m., 4 05, 5 30, 8 30 p. m.

For Bordentown, 7 00, 8 30, 10 00 a. m., 2 00, 4 05, 5 30, 8 30 p. m. Sundays, 10 00 a. m., 4 05, 5 30, 8 30 p. m.

For Burlington, 7 00, 8 30, 10 00 a. m., 2 00, 4 05, 5 30, 8 30 p. m. Sundays, 10 00 a. m., 4 05, 5 30, 8 30 p. m.

For Camden, 7 00, 8 30, 10 00 a. m., 2 00, 4 05, 5 30, 8 30 p. m. Sundays, 10 00 a. m., 4 05, 5 30, 8 30 p. m.

For Philadelphia, 7 00, 8 30, 10 00 a. m., 2 00, 4 05, 5 30, 8 30 p. m. Sundays, 10 00 a. m., 4 05, 5 30, 8 30 p. m.

For Atlantic City, 9 00 a. m., 11 30 p. m. Sundays, 9 00 a. m., 11 30 p. m.

For Cape May, 9 00 a. m., 11 30 p. m. Sundays, 9 00 a. m., 11 30 p. m.

For Glassboro, Tome River and Barnegat (Lakewood only) 9 00 a. m., 1 15, 5 00 p. m. Sundays 9 00 a. m.

ROYAL BLUE LINE.

Leave Plainfield for Philadelphia, 8 15, 9 45, 11 00 a. m., 2 00, 3 45, 5 15, 6 30, 8 00, 9 30, 11 30 p. m. Sundays, 8 45, 9 45, 11 00 a. m., 2 00, 3 45, 5 15, 6 30, 8 00, 9 30, 11 30 p. m.

Leave New York for Philadelphia, 8 30, 9 00, 10 00, 10 30, 11 00 a. m., 12 00 noon, 1 00, 2 00, 3 00, 4 00, 4 30, 5 00, 5 30, 6 00, 6 30, 7 00, 8 00, 9 00, 10 00, 11 00 p. m. Sundays, 8 30, 9 00, 10 00, 10 30, 11 00 a. m., 12 00 noon, 1 00, 2 00, 3 00, 4 00, 4 30, 5 00, 5 30, 6 00, 6 30, 7 00, 8 00, 9 00, 10 00, 11 00 p. m.

Leave Trenton for Philadelphia, 6 15, 7 00, 7 30, 8 00, 8 30, 9 00, 9 30, 10 00, 10 30, 11 00, 11 30 a. m., 12 00 noon, 12 30, 1 00, 1 30, 2 00, 2 30, 3 00, 3 30, 4 00, 4 30, 5 00, 5 30, 6 00, 6 30, 7 00, 7 30, 8 00, 8 30, 9 00, 9 30, 10 00, 10 30, 11 00, 11 30 p. m. Sundays, 6 15, 7 00, 7 30, 8 00, 8 30, 9 00, 9 30, 10 00, 10 30, 11 00, 11 30 a. m., 12 00 noon, 12 30, 1 00, 1 30, 2 00, 2 30, 3 00, 3 30, 4 00, 4 30, 5 00, 5 30, 6 00, 6 30, 7 00, 7 30, 8 00, 8 30, 9 00, 9 30, 10 00, 10 30, 11 00, 11 30 p. m.

Leave Philadelphia for New York, 6 00, 7 00, 8 00, 9 00, 10 00, 11 00 a. m., 12 00 noon, 1 00, 2 00, 3 00, 4 00, 4 30, 5 00, 5 30, 6 00, 6 30, 7 00, 8 00, 9 00, 10 00, 11 00 p. m. Sundays, 6 00, 7 00, 8 00, 9 00, 10 00, 11 00 a. m., 12 00 noon, 1 00, 2 00, 3 00, 4 00, 4 30, 5 00, 5 30, 6 00, 6 30, 7 00, 8 00, 9 00, 10 00, 11 00 p. m.

Leave Philadelphia for Trenton, 6 00, 6 30, 7 00, 7 30, 8 00, 8 30, 9 00, 9 30, 10 00, 10 30, 11 00, 11 30 a. m., 12 00 noon, 12 30, 1 00, 1 30, 2 00, 2 30, 3 00, 3 30, 4 00, 4 30, 5 00, 5 30, 6 00, 6 30, 7 00, 7 30, 8 00, 8 30, 9 00, 9 30, 10 00, 10 30, 11 00, 11 30 p. m. Sundays, 6 00, 6 30, 7 00, 7 30, 8 00, 8 30, 9 00, 9 30, 10 00, 10 30, 11 00, 11 30 a. m., 12 00 noon, 12 30, 1 00, 1 30, 2 00, 2 30, 3 00, 3 30, 4 00, 4 30, 5 00, 5 30, 6 00, 6 30, 7 00, 7 30, 8 00, 8 30, 9 00, 9 30, 10 00, 10 30, 11 00, 11 30 p. m.

Leave Camden for Atlantic City, 8 00 a. m., 4 00 p. m. Sundays, 8 00 a. m., 4 00 p. m.

Leave Camden for Cape May, 8 00 a. m., 4 00 p. m. Sundays, 8 00 a. m., 4 00 p. m.

Leave Camden for Glassboro, Tome River and Barnegat (Lakewood only) 8 00 a. m., 4 00 p. m. Sundays, 8 00 a. m.

Leave Camden for Bridgeton, 8 00 a. m., 4 00 p. m. Sundays, 8 00 a. m., 4 00 p. m.

Leave Camden for Millville, 8 00 a. m., 4 00 p. m. Sundays, 8 00 a. m., 4 00 p. m.

Leave Camden for Vineland, 8 00 a. m., 4 00 p. m. Sundays, 8 00 a. m., 4 00 p. m.

Leave Camden for Woodbury, 8 00 a. m., 4 00 p. m. Sundays, 8 00 a. m., 4 00 p. m.

Leave Camden for Salem, 8 00 a. m., 4 00 p. m. Sundays, 8 00 a. m., 4 00 p. m.

Leave Camden for Swedesboro, 8 00 a. m., 4 00 p. m. Sundays, 8 00 a. m., 4 00 p. m.

Leave Camden for Wo

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Makes the food more delicious and wholesome

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

PLEASANT EASTER TEA.

SOCIAL EVENTS OF PASSING NOTE IN LOCAL SOCIETY.

Miss Helen R. Clark Acted as Host in Honor of Mrs. Howard Wade Beebe —Tea Also Given by Misses Tracy.

Among the Easter teas Saturday afternoon was the very charming one given by Miss Helen R. Clark, daughter of E. B. Clark, at her home 131 Crescent avenue, in honor of Mrs. Howard Wade Beebe, of Stelle avenue. The house was tastefully decorated with roses and jonquils, while in the dining room pink roses were used exclusively. The artistic table, with pick-shaded candles and a profusion of pink roses, was presided over by Mrs. Marion S. Ackerman, Mrs. Hallock and Mrs. Arthur Masters, assisted by Miss Annie and Mary Miller, Mary and Jessie Bushnell, Harriet and May Shreve, Caroline Vail, Edith Gilbert, May Rodman, Effaer Strong, Anna Miller, Mrs. Harry Johnson, Mrs. Eugene Moore, the Misses Haviland, of New York; Mrs. Samuel Porter Williams and Miss Williams, of Hartford, Conn.

THE MISSES TRACY'S AFFAIR.

A Tea and Reception Given—125 Guests Were Present.

The Misses Tracy, of West Eighth street, entertained the younger set at a tea Saturday afternoon. There were about 125 present, mostly of Plainfield.

The Misses Tracy were assisted in receiving by their mother, Mrs. J. Evarts Tracy. In the dining room were Mrs. Howard Tracy, Mrs. Evarts Tracy, Mrs. Daniel F. Gunn, Miss Whiton, Misses Haviland, Miss Annie Cook, Misses Louise and Mary Bush nell, Miss Maud VanBoskerck, and Miss Emma Wadsworth, of New York.

The decorations were of cut flowers and plants. The table was in pink.

FUN GALORE FOUND AT THE RED MEN'S FAIR.

CAKEWALKS SEEM TO BE POPULAR.

1,000 Persons in Attendance Saturday Night—A Fine Programme For Tonight.

Saturday night witnessed the biggest crowd yet at the Red Men's fair, fully 1,000 people being in the hall between the hours of 9 and 12 o'clock. The principal attraction was the cakewalk, in which two couples took part, Miss Anna Seals, of Somerville, and John Kennedy, and Miss Hogan and Michael Higgins.

The judges meant to give the prize to the latter couple, but in the announcement made a mistake and declared Kennedy and Miss Seals the winners. Wm Newcorn, who presented the cakes, made everything all right by handing each couple a cake.

Other features of the evening were piano solos by Miss Laura Badin, vocal solos by John Moran, and buck and wing dancing by Springer and Lusardi.

DISCUSSED A MOMENTOUS SUBJECT.

First Meeting of Y. M. C. A. Debaters Consider Philippine Islands.

The Y. M. C. A. Literary Society held its first debate Monday night, and considered the subject of the policy of the United States in holding the Philipine Islands. O. S. Rogers Harvey Linbarger and Robert W. Davis spoke in favor of it, while the negative side was taken by Charles Doliver, Clarence Rogers and Charles Sprague. No judges were appointed, so the debate was not decided.

In addition to the debate readings were given by Carl E. Drange and Robert W. Davis, and an oration was delivered by T. Henry Stafford. A. B. Meredith, the critic, also reported.

A word to the wise is sufficient.

Ely's Cream Balm has completely cured me of catarrh when everything else failed.—Alfred W. Stevens, Caldwell, Ohio.

Ely's Cream Balm works like a charm; it has cured me of the most obstinate case of cold in the head. I would not be without it.—Fred'k Fries, 283 Hart St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

The Balm does not irritate or cause sneezing. Price 50 cents at druggists or by mail. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren St., N. Y.

Presided at the Organ.

Herbert J. Harold, of East Fifth street, presided at the organ in Trinity Reformed church Sunday during the absence of A. L. Titsworth, who was suddenly called to Philadelphia.

GRAIN-O BRINGS RELIEF

to the coffee drinker. Coffee drinking is a habit that if universally indulge in ruins digestion, nerves and health. Have you tried Grain-O? It is almost like coffee but the effects are just the opposite. Coffee up sets the stomach, ruins the digestion, affects the heart and disturbs the whole nervous system. Grain-O tones up the stomach, aids digestion and strengthens the nerves. Grain-O is nothing but nourishment in Grain-O. It can't be otherwise. 15 and 25c. per package.

NEGROES IN PORTO RICO.

DR. CARROLL GIVES THE COLORED MEN A HIGH CHARACTER.

The President's Commissioner Says They Form the Best Part of Mechanics—Practical and Hard Headed Thinkers

Dr. H. K. Carroll, of Westervelt avenue, the President's special commissioner to examine into the political and social conditions in Porto Rico, was much impressed by the high character of the negro population there. The most capable builders, carpenters, bricklayers, masons, printers, plumbers and artisans generally are negroes, he said. They mingle with the white workmen on terms of perfect equality, and so far as Dr. Carroll could find, there is no color line. When he held public hearings in the different towns in the island to get at the public sentiment, representatives of the artisans' guilds or gremios came before him. More than half of the delegates selected by the gremios to meet him were negroes. He found them, he says, practical and hard headed thinkers.

Dr. Carroll's report on the general conditions in Porto Rico, points out in a part of his report the primary and final importance of good roads as follows:

"Bad roads also reduce the profits to planters and raise the prices of the necessaries of life in the interior. It is idle to talk of prosperity, good schools and good government until the means of transportation are provided. With this advantage, Porto Rico has a brilliant prospect."

A GREAT DRAMATIC SCENE.

"Diplomacy" Possesses That Which Thrills the Audience.

The great scene in the second act of "Diplomacy," known as the "Scene of the Three Men," is considered one of the greatest in the English drama. The three parts are Henry and Julian Beauclere and Count Orloff, taken for the performance in Music Hall April 29th, by D. M. VanVliet, Alfred Young and P. H. Pinecffs—all of Plainfield except Mr. Young. Mr Van Vliet is said by those who have seen the rehearsals to give a graceful, dignified and intelligence interpretation of the difficult part of Henry Beauclere. Mr. Pinecff, with a natural grace and ease, is said to impressive Orloff and Alfred Young in Julian is equal to anything ever on the professional stage. Mr. Young is a pupil of Belasco, who has made Mrs. Leslie Carter famous.

New York Too Big for Him.

John Waldron, a lad employed by Collector George F. Brown, made his first trip to New York Sunday in company with a fellow-employe at Mr. Brown's. The boy had never seen the Brooklyn bridge, and it was a great sight to him. While near the bridge he became somewhat entangled and lost his partner. The crowd was large and for a little while he was lost. He was about to approach a policeman to inquire the way home, when his companion appeared and escorted him out of the crowd. The boy was much frightened for a time, but was overcome with joy to see his friend again. He declares that New York is a big town and that he does not want to go there again.

A Bad Bicycle Fall.

Edgar I. Serrell, of Myrtle avenue, who is acting as superintendent for his uncle, L. W. Serrell, Jr., in the construction of the trolley line at Garwood and Cranford, met with an accident Monday morning while on his way to work on his wheel. He was handing on his gloves and had both hands off the handle bars when he struck a stone and was thrown to the ground. He broke one of the small bones in his hand and now carries it in a sling.

Miss Lord to Appear.

Next week a musical and literary entertainment will be given in All Souls' church for the benefit of the Plainfield Relief Association. Miss Elizabeth Lord, of the Emerson School of Oratory, of Boston, will appear at the entertainment. The date for the affair will be announced in a few days.

—The annual seed catalogue of Messrs. Weeber & Don, whose advertisement is appearing in our paper, is now ready for distribution. It is handsomely illustrated and contains 80 pages of interesting matter. It will be sent free on receipt of postal, their address is No. 114 Chambers street, N. Y. City.

Out of the Hospital.

John LaMaire, of Jackson avenue, who has been at the hospital, where he underwent an operation, has been discharged cured. He appreciates very much what the physicians and nurses have done for him.

HOW TO ESCAPE FROM A BURNING BUILDING.

Chief Doane Tells a Press Reporter the Best Method.

HE DOESN'T FAVOR A ROPE.

NONE BUT ATHLETES CAN USE IT SUCCESSFULLY.

He Favors a Movable Iron Ladder Or a Friction Pulley as the Best Way —A Rope is Better Than Nothing— Every House Should Have Some Means of Exit Besides Stairways.

The two great fires in New York during the last month, with the accompanying loss of life, has set people to thinking all over the country. In a number of Plainfield households rope fire escapes have been procured and the members of the families have turned out for fire drills. In most of the homes in this city and the borough there is no provision at all for fire. A Press reporter interviewed Chief T. O. Doane, of the fire department, Monday afternoon, regarding the need of preparation and the best methods to be adopted.

"Well," said the Chief, "every house in Plainfield of more than one story should be provided with some means of exit beside the stairways. Most people, however, never think of such things until a fire in the immediate vicinity brings the facts nearer to home."

The trouble with a plain rope, the Chief said, was that very few, unless they were athletically inclined, could descend hand over hand in safety. It is difficult to successfully wrap the rope about one leg and thus slacken the rapidity of the descent. With a woman, it was next to impossible. He told of the old way where the rope was wrapped about the body under the arms and crossed and held in front, thus using it as a brake to slacken speed.

The Chief favored either a patent movable iron ladder that is built to be fastened inside a window and is hidden until the required time by being covered with a wooden window seat or a friction pulley, a patent device, which prevents the rope slipping through the pulley except very slowly. This pulley works both ways. A woman or sick person may be lowered with the rope and then another person left in the upper room may take the other end of the rope and descend in safety as the pulley is reversable.

In the Chief's opinion every house should be fitted with fire extinguishers. The trouble with most of these was that they would not keep their usefulness a great length of time but there are some successful ones that are not expensive.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and the tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75c. Hall's Family Pills are the best.

Somerset County Fair.

A statement has just been issued to the stockholders of the Somerset County Fair showing the receipts last fall to be $5,302.67 and the disbursements $4 399 93, leaving a balance on hand of $902 94 to be distributed among the stockholders. The directors say they would have made a profit but it not been for the stormy Thursday. The stockholders will receive $2 38 for each five dollar share they subscribed.

Hope Chapel Enthusiasm.

The evangelistic meetings, under the care of F. E Taylor, at Hope chapel, commenced Sunday night with a large turnout and much interest. A good-sized choir has been organized by W. N. Runyon, and the singing is quite a feature. The meetings will be conducted every night, except Saturday, and they seem to promise great results.

See picture of Alfred Speer in another column, the original wine grower in the United States, whose wines have become famous over the world; also his * * * Climax Grape Brandy.

Also Absolutely Pure Grape Juice.

Speer's Unfermented Grape Juice is perfectly divested of all fermenting principle by electricity and fumigation. His Port Burgundy and Claret beat the world for excellence, both as family and medicinal wines.

Beautiful Flowers

The display of crocuses in the yard adjoining the residence of Former Mayor Charles J. Fisk, on West Seventh street, in a very beautiful one, attracting the attention and admiration of passersby.

Dr. Carroll Improved.

Dr. H. K. Carroll, of Westervelt avenue, is reported as being improved from his severe illness, and he hopes in the course of a short time to be able to go to Washington.

Chance to Work for Uncle Sam.

Advertisements for bids for sites for the $100,000 postoffice building in New Brunswick have been published. A number of sites will probably be offered the Government.

Entertained Their Friends.

Misses Osgood, of Myrtle avenue, entertained a number of their friends at their home last Monday. The time passed very enjoyably with games and music.

YOUNG VETS ORGANIZE.

SOLDIERS AND SAILORS TO PARTICIPATE IN DECORATION DAY.

Memorial Committee Appointed to Confer With the G. A. R.—The Young Fellows to Turn Out in Full Uniform.

A meeting of the soldiers and sailors of the last war, who are interested in some part in the Memorial Day celebrations, was held at the Boys' Club Sunday to make a few plans. The meeting was called to order by Chas A. Peterson, and Comrade Stewart was made chairman. C A Peterson was appointed secretary and a memorial committee, consisting of Comrades Mair, Davis and King, was chosen to confer with the memorial committee from the G A R. As soon as this conference is held, another meeting of the boys will take place.

It is the intention of the boys to turn out in uniform, and an invitation is extended to any sailor or soldier, who enlisted last spring or summer, to join the movement.

ANXIOUS FOR UNIVERSAL PEACE

Society of Friends Approve of the International Peace Conference.

There was a meeting of the philanthropic committee of the Plainfield Monthly Meeting of the Friends Society of Friends last Sunday and great satisfaction was expressed that by appointment of the President this country is to be ably represented at an international peace conference to be held next month at the Hague, at the invitation of the Czar of Russia, to promote disarmment.

At the same meeting the members adopted a paper to be sent to President McKinley deploring the recent official interpretation by the Attorney-General, of the law act of Congress concerning the sale of intoxicating liquors in army canteens, and earnestly appealing for an execution of the law in accordance with its obvious intent for the entire suppression of liquor in the Army

FUNERAL OF MRS. RANDOLPH

Drs. Lewis and Nash Officiated—Large Attendance of Friends.

The funeral of Mrs. Rachel L Randolph was held Monday afternoon from the house of her daughter, Mrs. Jane L Dunham, of West Fifth street. Rev. A H Lewis, D D, officiated, assisted by Rev. A. E Main, of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, who offered prayer.

There was singing by a quartette composed of Miss Ernestine Smith Miss Mamie Randolph, Elmer E Runyon, and David E. Titsworth. The pallbearers were all relatives of the deceased, sons or sons-in-law, David L. Randolph, William M. Randolph, Charles H Dunham, Frank M. Dunham, I N. VanSickle and J. F. Hubbard. Interment was in Hillside.

Dandruff Cannot be Cured

with any cosmetic, as they only clog the pores and do more harm than good. To cure dandruff you must kill the microbe that produces it. There is only one preparation that will do this, viz: Newbro's Herpicide. Destroys the dandruff microbe, stops falling hair, cures scalp diseases, and produces a luxuriant growth of hair. Sold by druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

RUNAWAY SENDS ONE VICTIM TO HOSPITAL.

George H. Kenyon Thrown Out On His Head.

FRIGHTENED AT TRUCK.

RAN OUT EAST FOURTH STREET TO RICHMOND STREET.

Three Collided With Some Work on Rail road Embankment and Upset Wagon —Kenyon and Boyd Thrown Out—Kenyon Was Unconscious—Taken to Hospital, But Sent Home Monday Night—Is Improving.

George H. Kenyon paid a visit to Muhlenberg Hospital Monday afternoon as the result of the misbehavior of his horse. The horse became frightened at a truck on East Fourth street, ran away and wound up by colliding with a stone embankment to the railroad at the corner of East Fourth and Richmond streets. Kenyon and his companion were thrown out and both injured.

Mr Kenyon runs a piano and bicycle store on West Front street. He also represents a sewing machine company. A man by the name of Boyd acts as his agent for the latter. Monday afternoon Kenyon and Boyd went out on a business errand in Kenyon's wagon. As they were going out East Fourth street they passed a truck and the horse shied. The curb bit wouldn't work and the horse went out Fourth street along the railroad at a mad gallop.

At Richmond street the earth embankment of the railroad is walled up with stone. The horse made a leap at it, upset the wagon and spilled the occupants out on their heads. There was a rush of the passers-by to the spot, where they found Kenyon senseless and Boyd badly dazed. Both were cut and bruised.

The ambulance was summoned and Kenyon was taken to Muhlenberg Hospital where he recovered consciousness after a time. His shoulder was badly bruised and he received injuries to the back of his head. He was taken to his home on West Front street late in the afternoon, where he is at present. Dr. Buchanan is attending him. He is much improved today.

Boyd was bruised and cut about the wrists and legs but is out today as usual.

The wagon was wrecked by the runaway. The horse was caught a short distance from where the accident occurred.

PIONEER BICYCLE COMPANY.

F. L. C. Martin Company Commences Their Eleventh Year.

With the beginning of this season commences the eleventh year of business for the F. L. C. Martin Cycle Company. This hustling firm are the pioneer bicycle dealers of the State. Their new easy-payment system enables everyone of moderate means to own a wheel.

The b cycles handled by them this year are the Cleveland, Crescent, Barnes and Featherstone. A full line of sundries and golf goods and other features, and these are sold at reasonable prices. Another feature is the storage of commuters' wheels. The facilities for keeping and protecting them cannot be eclipsed. Every wheel left on storage for repairs is fully covered by fire and burglary insurance.

Repair care and attention has been devoted to the repair department, where all makes of wheels will be promptly looked after. The shop is equipped with the latest improved tools and machinery, and is in charge of men who thoroughly understand their business.

The stores are up to date in every particular, and the long and honorable career of this company has secured the confidence of the public. In their new location, on East Fourth street, they are as sure of as much patronage as in the past. F. L. C. Martin, president of the company, devotes every other day to the Newark store, and G. M. McIntyre, manager of the company, is always looking after the interests of the Plainfield house.

New Industry for Elizabeth.

Elizabeth, April 12.—Articles of incorporation of the Lewis Berger & Son Company have been filed with the Clerk of Union county. The capital of the company is $250,000 divided into 25,000 shares. The company will manufacture paints and oils. The concern is a branch of the same company in Hammerdon, England. Their manufactory will be in Elizabeth, and 2,000 persons will be employed as soon as the company is full under way. The incorporators are Carlton John Lambert, J. A. Mackmetkan, W. W. H. Hudson, J. S Bloomfield, J. W. Garson, W. F. Stillman and Chas. Oakes —Union Gospel services will be held in the room of the W. C. T. U. Thursday evening at 8 o'clock.

—Monday evening the singing societies of the Gesang and Turu Verein will give a grand concert in their hall on Somerset street.

Dr. Humphreys'

Specifics act directly upon the disease, without exciting disorder in other parts of the system. They Cure the Sick.

No.	Diseases	Prices.
1	Fevers, Congestions, Inflammations	.25
2	Worms, Worm Fever, Worm Colic	.25
3	Teething, Colic, Crying, Wakefulness	.25
4	Diarrhea, of Children or Adults	.25
5	Dysentery, Griping, Bilious Colic	.25
6	Cholera, Cholera Morbus, Vomiting	.25
7	Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis	.25
8	Neuralgia, Toothache, Faceache	.25
9	Headache, Sick Headache, Vertigo	.25
10	Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Weak Stomach	.25
11	Suppressed or Painful Periods	.25
12	Whites, Too Profuse Periods	.25
13	Croup, Laryngitis, Hoarseness	.25
14	Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Eruptions	.25
15	Rheumatism, Rheumatic Pains	.25
16	Malaria, Chills, Fever and Ague	.25
17	Piles, External or Internal	.25
18	Ophthalmia, Sore or Inflamed Eyes	.25
19	Catarrh, Influenza, Cold in the Head	.25
20	Whooping-Cough	.25
21	Asthma, Difficult Breathing	.25
22	Ear Discharges, Impaired Hearing	.25
23	Scrofula, Swellings and Ulcers	.25
24	General Debility, Weakness	.25
25	Dropsy, Fluid Accumulations	.50
26	Sea-Sickness, Nausea, Vomiting	.25
27	Kidney Diseases	.25
28	Nervous Debility	1.00
29	Sore Mouth, or Canker	.25
30	Urinary Weakness, Wetting Bed	.25
31	Painful Menses, Prettiest	.25
32	Diseases of the Heart, Palpitations	1.00
33	Epilepsy, St. Vitus' Dance	1.00
34	Sore Throat, Quinsy, Diphtheria	.25
35	Scarlet Congestions, Headaches	.25
77	Grip, Hay Fever	.25

Dr. Humphreys' Manual of all Diseases at your Druggists, or sent free on receipt of price. HUMPHREYS' MED. CO., 111 & 113 William St., Cor. Ann, New York.

HUMPHREYS' WITCH HAZEL OIL "THE PILE OINTMENT."

For Piles—External or Internal, Blind or Bleeding; Fissure in Ano; Itching or Bleeding of the Nostrils; The relief is Instant. Cures Guaranteed.

PRICE, 50 CTS. TRIAL SIZE, 25 CTS.

Sold by Druggists, or sent post-paid on receipt of price. HUMPHREYS' MED. CO., 111 & 113 William St., Cor. Ann, New York.

In Chancery of New Jersey.

Between SARAH R. ROBINSON, Petitioner, —and— EMERY H. ROBINSON, Defendant. On Petition for Divorce.

To Emery H. Robinson:

By virtue of an order of the Court of Chancery of New Jersey made on the day of the date hereof, wherein Sarah R. Robinson is petitioner and you are defendant, you are required to appear and answer the petitioner's petition on before the 8th day of April next, or in default such order will be taken against you as the Chancellor shall think equitable and just; the said petition is filed against you for a divorce from the bond of matrimony.

Dated this 27th day of February, Eighteen Hundred and Ninety-Nine.

REED & CODDINGTON, Solicitors of Petitioner, Babcock Building, Plainfield, N. J.

3 25

Notice of Copyright.

Notice is hereby given that certain musical compositions, herein named and described, have secured the benefit of copyright, according to Act of Congress before the expiration of the first term of twenty-eight years, and that Certificates of Copyright and receipts for deposit have been given to Robert W. Davis, Plainfield, New Jersey, dated February 28, 1899, and signed by A. R. Spofford, Acting Librarian of Congress, and Thorvald Solberg, Register of Copyrights, to wit:

1899.

No. of Certificate.

15,816. Blessed Home. Words by Bonar. R. L. For a period of fourteen years from March 6, 1899.

15,835. Who'll Be the Next? Mrs. Annie S. Hawks. R. L.

15,837. Linger no Longer. R. Lowry, 1871. R. L. For a period of fourteen years from April 11, 1899.

15,838. Something for Jesus. Words by Rev. S. D. Phelps, D. D. R. L.

15,839 Closer to Me. Mrs. E. Prentiss. R. L.

15,840. Jesus, I Come. Words by Rev. S. D. Phelps, D. D. R. L.

15,841. Mountain of the Lord. R. L. 1871. R. L.

15,842. Jesus, I Come. Words by S. D. Phelps, D. D. R. L.

15,843. Little Children, You May Come. Julia A Mathews. R. L.

15,844. In the Valley. Mrs. Annie S. Hawks. R. L.

15,845. Here Am I. Mrs. Annie S. Hawks. R. L.

15,846. Anywhere With Jesus. R. L.

15,847. Come Near Me, Jesus. Words by Julia A Mathews. R. L.

15,848. Tempted and Tried. T. H. R. L.

15,849. Let the Master In. Words by Rev. S. D. Phelps. R. L.

The above renewals have been granted to the undersigned as author.

ROBERT LOWRY.

Plainfield, N. J., April 4, 1899. 4 8 5

DIED.

CAMPBELL—In North Plainfield, Friday, April 7, 1899, Ann, wife of the late Firman Campbell, in her 84th year.

RANDOLPH—In this city, Saturday, April 8, 1899, Rachel P. Randolph, aged 94 years.

MUNDY—In North Plainfield, Wednesday, April 12, 1899, Mrs. Martha A. Mundy, widow of Enos Mundy, aged 77 years.

STALVEY—In this city, Monday, April 10th, 1899, Hannah, wife of the late Cornelius Stealy, in her 80th year.

Always on the Lookout for Bargains.

M. Hochberger, the West Front street clothier, has made the largest purchase of fine knee pants ever known in Plainfield and is selling them rapidly at astonishing low prices. Mothers will do well by taking advantage of this great chance to dress up their youngsters.

Macadamizing Franklin Place.

The work of macadamizing Franklin place is progressing rapidly. Several layers of crushed stone stone have already been put on and rolled down. Work has also begun on East Sixth street, east from Franklin place.

—Try City Steam and Hand Laundry, 19 Somerset street, and you will be convinced that they are up to date Wagons go to all parts of the city.

Nasal CATARRH

In all its stages there should be cleanliness.

Ely's Cream Balm cleanses, soothes and heals the diseased membrane. It cures catarrh and drives away a cold in the head quickly.

Cream Balm is placed into the nostrils, spreads over the membrane and is absorbed. Relief is immediate and a cure follows. It is not drying—does not produce sneezing. Large Size, 50 cents at Druggists or by mail; Trial Size, 10 cents by mail.

ELY BROTHERS, 56 Warren Street, New York.

ELY'S CREAM BALM CATARRH CURE HAY-FEVER 50 CTS. ELY BROS.

CARNEY BROS.,

MADISON AVENUE,

Between Front and Second streets.

Tinners,

Plumbers

Gas Fitters,

Grates and bricks for all kinds of stoves can be found here at Jobbers' prices. Bring your tinware mending to us. The best tinners, the best plumbers, and the best gas-fitters in this section. We use none but the very best of materials, and our work always gives satisfaction. Keys of all kinds are made here. Tinware made to order. Ranges, brick and portable furnaces. Sanitary plumbing.

Sanitary Plumbing,

Brick and Portable Furnace

Gas Fitting, Tin Roofing,

Etc., Etc., Etc.

I am prepared to do any of the above branches in strictly first-class sanitary and workmanship manner.

Having associated myself with the Master Plumbers Association of New York City, I employ none but first class mechanics and non-union men. I believe in every man running his own business at all times and in all cases.

D. W. LITTELL,

No. 113 North Ave., Plainfield, N. J.

ALBERT HEDDEN

Livery & Boarding Stables

FOURTH ST.,

between Watchung and Park avenues.

First-class Livery. Horses boarded by week or month. Telephone call, No. 114.

A. WOLFF,

Manufacturer of

CIGARS.

And dealer in all kinds of Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and smokers' articles, has removed from 893 W. Front street, to 261 West Front street, one door east of Madison avenue and solicits the patronage of his friends and the public generally.

P. P. VanArsdale,

PIANO TUNER.

Instruments put in thorough order. Terms reasonable. Pianos and organs for sale and to let. Orders by postal P. O. box 100, or left at Willett's shoe store, No. 107 Park avenue, will receive prompt attention. Residence 301 E. Front street, corner Elm street. 6 9 1y

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS

DESIGN PATENTS

COPYRIGHTS &C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook of Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York

Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

NEW IN EVERY DETAIL!

My new barber shop at

143 NORTH AVE.

is now open ready for business. All the latest appointments in the tonsorial line.

EDWIN B. MAYNARD.

PATENTS

CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS COPYRIGHTS.

CAN I OBTAIN A PATENT? For a prompt answer and an honest opinion, write to MUNN & CO., who have had nearly fifty years' experience in the patent business. Communications strictly confidential. A Handbook of Information concerning Patents and how to obtain them sent free. Also a catalogue of mechanical and scientific books sent free.

Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice in the Scientific American, and thus are brought widely before the public without cost to the inventor. This splendid paper, issued weekly, elegantly illustrated, has by far the largest circulation of any scientific work in the world. $3 a year. Sample copies sent free. Building Edition, monthly, $2.50 a year. Single copies, 25 cents. Every number contains beautiful plates, in colors, and photographs of new houses, with plans, enabling builders to show the latest designs and secure contracts. Address, MUNN & CO., NEW YORK, 361 BROADWAY.

Wm. A. Woodruff,

Fire and Life

INSURANCE AGENT,

OFFICE,

corner Front St. and Park Avenue,

Plainfield, N. J.

Real Estate for Sale and Exchange Money to Loan on Approve Security

1350 PERSONS UNDER CARE OF ONE CHURCH.

Interesting Reports About Crescent Avenue Presbyterians.

EVERYTHING FLOURISHING.

TIME OF HOLDING THE NNUALA MEETING IS CHANGED.

H. C. Squires, L. M. Lovell and Dr. E. W. Hedges Were Chosen Elders and Dr. W. H. Murray Deacon—Hope Chapel Reports—Prospects of a New Edifice for Their Society—Finances are Good.

The annual meeting of the Crescent Avenue Church was held April 5th. The session was a long one owing to the number of reports presented, and a unique way of nominating officers, which required to be done by ballot. The election resulted in the choice of H. C. Squires, L. M. Lovell, and Dr. E. W. Hedges for elders, and Dr. W. H. Murray as deacon.

A vast amount of figuring was necessary to bring the affairs of the church and its chapels to a basis easily understood by all, but the statements showed that the Crescent Avenue church and its chapels had raised during the past year over $33,000 for benevolent and general purposes.

To begin with the chapels: Bethel chapel reported a membership of 215, with an average attendance of 128. The sum of $484.45 has been raised during the year, of which all has been expended.

Hope Chapel Sunday school now has a membership of 612. The following is a statement of the financial condition of the several societies connected with it. The missionary fund has $55.95 to its credit, having raised $141.55 and disposed of the balance. The sum $603.62 was raised for the general fund, and all but $45.18 expended.

The church has a membership of 370. All the committees and societies connected with the chapel are in a flourishing condition. Land has been broken for the new building which is to be built with $5,000 bequest of Mrs. VanDeventer, and it will soon be completed. This new edifice will be used for church services only. The sum of $572.29 is the amount raised for the general fund, all of which has been expended.

Warren chapel has a membership of 136. There is a balance of $49.10 in the treasury and the expenses have been paid, and a balance in the poor fund of $63 91. Other societies are in a flourishing condition.

The Sunday-school has a membership of 444, including teachers and officers. The receipts for the year were $899.31; expenditures $874.69, leaving a balance of $42.92. The Y. P. S. C. E. and the Junior Endeavorers are also increasing in membership and interest.

The membership of the Crescent Avenue church numbers 909, an increase of 19 over last year. Adding to that the membership of the chapels, 1,350 persons are under the care of that one church.

The board of deacons reported that they had relieved 30 individuals during the past year. They have also received $907.88 and expended $867.09 of that, leaving a balance of $40.79.

The last item of business was that the time of the annual meeting be changed from the first Wednesday in April to the second Wednesday. This is so as to give the officers more time in which to prepare their reports, and was carried.

Rev. Kennedy Nowell acted as chairman of the meeting, and Dr. F. W. Hedges secretary.

ENGINE COMPANY NO. 2 NOMINATE.

Members in Arrears Must Pay Up or be Expelled.

The nomination of officers was the only important business done at the meeting of No. 2 Engine Company last Thursday. The following were nominated: Foreman, Frank Hand; first assistant foreman, William Chamberlain; second assistant foreman, E. D. Eick and Harry Connett; secretary, Adolph Kahrman; financial secretary, James Dawe; treasurer, Frank Schuck; engineer, Frank Schuck; first assistant engineer, A. Kahrman; second assistant engineer, C. W. Smith; representatives to the Relief Association, C. J. Newman and William Townley.

A resolution was passed declaring that all members in arrears who did not pay up by April 27th would be expelled from membership under the by-laws. The meeting then adjourned to the 27th when the property of the company will probably be disposed of.

Telephone Company Working Fast.

The New York and New Jersey Telephone Company is loosing no time in preparing its system to connect with the cables in the underground conduits. The turret-like boxes are placed on the distributing poles and the poles are now being connected with the conduits. In a short time, the work of stringing the wires from the boxes to connect with the present lines will be started.

RELIGIOUS DEVOTION AT THE CONFERENCE.

The Attending Clergymen Filled Pulpits in Local Churches.

NEW DEACONS AND ELDERS

ANNIVERSARIES OF SUNDAY-SCHOOL UNION AND TRACT SOCIETY.

Rev. W. C. Snodgrass, of Plainfield, Occupied the Pulpit in Calvary Church in Orange—The Report of Presiding Elder Smith, of the Elizabeth District, Showed a Prosperous Condition.

Newark, April 10.—Yesterday was one of quiet religious devotion at the Methodist Episcopal conference, the attending clergymen taking part in the services of the various churches of the city and suburbs. In Calvary church in Orange yesterday morning Rev. W. C. Snodgrass, of Plainfield, occupied the pulpit and delivered the sermon.

Rev. Dr. R VanHorne conducted a conference love feast in the Halsey Street church at 9 o'clock yesterday morning. At 10:30 o'clock Bishop Fowler preached an appropriate and eloquent sermon. The church was crowded to the doors.

Bishop Fowler, with simple but impressive ceremony, ordained in the afternoon the following deacons and elders:

Deacons—Chester J. Hoyt, George Main, Merle N. Smith, Charles H. Cookman, Hedding B. Leech, Wilbur W. C. Walker, Edward M. Furman, William Reberger, Howard L. Andrews, Edward McMillan and Wilber Westcott.

Elders—Charles L. Mead, Clyde W. Demmings, Warren R. Neff, Joseph E. Appley, Abel C. McCrea, Wallace B. Fleming, Andrew J. Turner, Ralph B. Urmy, Christopher H. Vonglon, Charles E. Scudder, Floyd J. Seaman, David M. M. Houghtailing and Thomas F. Alexander.

Rev. W. S. Bobinson preached a missionary sermon in the Halsey Street church in the evening, and special exercies were held in St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal church in celebration of the anniversaries of the Sunday-school Union and Tract Society. Addresses were made by Rev. G. C. D. Wilding and Rev. Dr. T. I. Coultas.

The report of Presiding Elder G. W. Smith, of the Elizabeth district, was read. It was in part as follows:

"The Elizabeth district contains fifty-nine charges, ten of which are in the borough of Brooklyn of Greater New York, and the others are in that charming section of New Jersey, extending from the plains of Succasunna, on the north to the Raritan on the south, and from the Delaware on the west to the Kill von Kull on the east.

The work has been manned by fifty-nine pastors, more than 1,000 official members, and about 1,300 Sunday-school officers and teachers.

Dr. Smith said the Elizabeth district churches had been busy all the year paying off debts, building parsonages and improving property. For these purposes $40,000 had been raised.

"The uncompromising foe of the Church," said Dr. Smith, "is the liquor saloon. In but one community in the district have we known of instances where members have so far forgotten their vows as to sign applications for licenses, and they were so speedily brought by the church to account that they acknowledged their wrong-doing and promised to reform their ways.

"It is sometimes said," remarked Dr. Smith, in conclusion, "that ministers are not practical business men, but I wish to say that the enterprises which have been named, resulting in freeing of the churches from crushing debts, and carrying forward important improvements have all been led by the pastors. It is sometimes hinted that if the pastors would do thus and so, great things would be accomplished, for this and that cause. It is but just to say that the causes themselves could not live were it not for the loyalty and devotion of the pastors, many of whom subject themselves to great self-denial."

Preached to Soldiers' Wives.

Rev. W. H. McKane, pastor of the Christian church, preached a special sermon to the members of the Woman's Relief Corps Sunday. There was a large delegation present, and also several G. A. R. men with their wives. Among them was W.O Smith, department commander. Mr. McKane chose the Civil War as the subject of his discourse, and related reminiscences of the great struggle.

A Delicate Operation.

Charles Schipper, of West Seventh street, underwent an operation Saturday for appendicitis. Dr. Endicott performed the operation which was very successful. The chances are that Mr. Schipper will recover nicely from his illness.

A Large Collection.

The Easter collection taken up in St. Mary's church, this city, amounted to $870.

TRYING TO RETIRE A PASTOR AT MT. HOREB

Rev. H. D. Oppyke Not Liked by Some of His Congregation.

BUT HE HAS DEFIED THEM.

ALSO A SCHOOL TRUSTEE AND OVERSEER OF ROADS.

A Committee of Dissatisfied Members Appealed to Bishop Fowler and Tried to Prevent His Reappointment by the Conference — Charged With Sanning Political Picnics and Other Matters.

Rev. H. D. Oppyke is pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church at Mt. Horeb, with subordinate charges at Springdale and Martinville. This charge he has held for four years. During that time there has been troubles of all kinds to upset the progress of religion. Now the people have arisen in their indignation and have appeared before Bishop Fowler, who presides over the conferece now being held in Newark, and have asked to have Rev. Mr. Opdyke removed from the charge. The pastor has by good management succeeded in keeping his place for four years, much against the will, it is said, of a large majority of the parishoners, but with a majority of the board of trustees with him he has remained.

Last year the pastor had the quarterly conference called three weeks earlier than usual and thus managed to keep his place for another year. The Presiding Elder, G. W. Smith, formerly of this city, but now of Staten Island, has been called a number of times to the church to settle difficulties. The opposing faction sent a committee to Newark to see the Bishop. They laid the troubles before him and told him how the church was suffering and how the support was being taken away.

When confronted with charges Mr. Opdyke denies them all. Among some of things that has grieved the people are the picnics that are held from time to time in Morris and Hunterdon counties. These picnics, the people say, are political gatherings. On one occasion Senator Daly attended and a number of political addresses were made, in which Pastor Opdyke took part. The pastor is also overseer of roads and a member of the school board, while his daughter teaches the school. Miss Opdyke, it is said, is not liked and an effort has been made to remove her, but her father succeeds in having the other members of the board stand by him.

The pastor gets his strength from a majority of the trustees in the church, among whom are Nelson Saulter, Thomas Clark, George Davis, William Vactor, Wm. Quick and Eli Doty. A committee composed of Manning Coddinton, Frank Elliot, Lemuel Tunison, J. VanNest and Wm. Smith, went before Bishop Fowler and complained of their pastor and asked to have him removed.

Today a committee of the pastor's friends went to Newark for the purpose of presenting their story and having the pastor returned to Mt. Horeb. Tomorrow the appointments are to be made.

Yesterday Pastor Opdyke returned from the conference and after service he called a meeting of the board of trustees. He told them that he understood that they had been falsifying about him. To this question some of the members stood by what they had said and talked plainly to the pastor.

The pastor receives a salary of about $700, of which amount Mt. Horeb gives $400, Springdale $150 and Martindale about 125.

INDOOR CYCLING AT AN END.

Society Awheel for the Last Time in the Rink.

The Plainfield society people were awheel again at the rink Saturday night, probably for the last time this season. A pleasant evening was spent, and the only regret is that these indoor rides were not begun earlier in the winter. The affair, like those in the past, was managed by the F. L. C. Martin Cycle Co.

A feature of the evening was the trick riding by John Keefe, formerly with the F. L. C. Martin Cycle Co, but now with a theatrical troupe. The patronesses were Mrs. J. W. Reinhart, Mrs. Samuel Huntington and Mrs. Joseph M. Myers. Miss Andrews and Mr. Weed led the drill, music for which was furnished by N. H. Guttman. There were about fifty present.

Time for Trailing Arbutus.

The time for the appearance of the trailing arbutus in the vicinity of Bonhamtown has arrived. There were a number who wheeled or drove there Saturday afternoon and Sunday, but they found very few flowers, indeed. There were plenty of buds, however, and a warm rain followed by the sun will bring out a profusion of them. There is said to be more this year than for a long time. The sand hills, where they are found, have not been burnt over this year so the arbutus has not suffered in that way.

DID COP JERRY DO THE GRACEFUL ACT?

Or, How Was the Trolley Car Boarded by Two Men?

STORY HEARD IN COURT.

JUDGE RUNYON REGALED WITH TALES THAT WERE DIFFERENT.

Officer Cash Claims That He Found Two Intoxicated Men Lying in the Gutter and Penned a Trolley Car Into Service as a Patrol Wagon—The Prisoners Say Nay—Conductor to be Heard.

While Patrolman Jerry Cash doesn't pretend to be a musician of marked ability, he has an ear that can distinguish a sweet harmony from a confusion of sounds. According to his statement given in city court Monday morning, he was riding townward on a trolley car from Netherwood Sunday afternoon when the air in his vicinity was rent asunder by hideous noises that caused his flesh to creep and which quite outraged his musical sense.

When the policeman heard these sounds he says he ordered the bum of the trolley to cease for the time being and he investigated the cause thereof. The sounds, he says, emnated from the vocal cords of two men who sat in the gutter on LaGrande avenue. Furthermore, he insists, they were decidedly under the influence of strong drink.

Jerry says he carted these two individuals to the trolley car and bolsted them on board and conveyed them to the lockup for the night. But here a difference of opinion exists. The men were William Waldron, of 30 Harmony street, and Herman Schneerman, of 148 East Fifth street. They say that they did not try to sing and that they climbed on board the car in a decent and orderly manner and that when they arrived there, they were informed by Jerry that they were under arrest.

Both men told the same story. There was testimony that they were drunk but the testimony disagreed as to whether they were arrested before or after their advent in the trolley car. Judge Runyon thought it over and adjourned the case until the conductor of the trolley car can tell his little tale.

STRANGER HAS GONE, CHECKS ARE NO GOOD.

M. V. Andrews, of Williamsport, is Not in Town Anymore.

PLAINFIELDERS WANT HIM.

LEFT WORTHLESS CHECKS BEHIND HIM AMOUNTING TO $500.

He Was Boarding at McVey's Hotel All Winter and Made Several Acquaintances—They Kindly Cashed Checks for Him—He Was a Traveling Insurance Agent, He Said—Now He's Disappeared.

For the past few months a well-dressed elderly man has been stopping at McVey's Hotel. He gave his name as M. V. Andrews, of Williamsport, Pa., and claimed to be a traveling agent for the Equitable Life Insurance Company, of New York. He made several acquaintances here and finally asked some of his new-made friends to cash some checks for him. Last week several hundred dollars' worth of these checks came back from the Williamsport National Bank. The bank had refused to honor them.

There are how several Plainfielders who feel quite anxious to interview Andrews personally. Among them is Dr. R. J. Shaw, whose pharmacy is on East Front street. He is said to have lost $130 by cashing worthless checks. F. J. Krauss, manager of the Grand Union Tea Company, is alleged to be out $140 by the same means.

J. H. McVey hasn't received pay for two weeks board. N. H. Saxton, manager of Rheume's lumber yard, is a loser to the amount of $40. Then there are others for smaller amounts. He is also said to have tried his schemes on others but without success.

Last week Andrews was in town from Thursday to Saturday, but the holders of the worthless checks didn't get a chance to meet him. Monday Mr. Krausse received a letter from Andrews, post marked Mauch Chunk, in which he said that he would make the checks good.

Fun at Mock Trial.

Lawyer S. S. Swechammer, of the borough, was in Whitehouse, Saturday, where he acted as counsel for a party in a mock trial. The case was a breach of promise suit, and was held in Stillwell Hall for the benefit of the Star Social Club, of that place. Fred Pope, of the firm of Pope & Runyon, was the opposing counsel. The trial was a lively one, and made fun for a ball full of visitors for several hours.

Herbert Randolph, of Mt. Pleasant, has taken up his residence in this city.

MAYOR SMALLEY WON BY HIS OWN VOTE

A Good Natured Tiff Between Him and Mr. Rogers.

THE VOTE WAS A TIE ONE.

IT WAS OVER COUNCILMAN SWACKHAMER'S HONORS.

Mr. Rogers Urged That the Lone Democrat Had Not Been Accorded Enough Recognition on the Committees—Poll and Personal Tax Must be Paid or Delinquents Must Go to Jail

The second and regular April meeting of the Borough Council held last Friday was one of the longest sessions held in many a day, and there was a considerable amount of friction evidenced before the close of it. Mayor Smalley and all the members were present and everyone took a lively interest in the business introduced. Clerk Frank Bowley presided for the first time and took charge of the business in his department. On the Mayor's desk was the handsome gavel stone and ivory gavel presented to His Honor by Assessor Elston M. French. In opening the session Mayor Smalley, with emphasis, called the meeting with a vigorous rap of the gavel.

The first evidence of friction was shown when Mr. Rogers took exception to the fact that Mr. Swackhamer was a member of only two committees while Mr. Coddington held membership in four. He desired an equalization of the appointments by having the Democratic member placed on another committee.

The Mayor thought the committees all right and he appointed them with a view to obtaining the best results. Mr. Swackhamer said that he was left off of another committee at his own request. Mr. Burtis thought the same as Mr. Rogers, after much discussion the matter was laid on the table. Later in the evening Mr. Rogers attempted to take the motion from the table, but Mr. Valiant objected on the ground that he had been opposed to tabling the motion.

Finally, to expidite matters, Mr. Valiant called for the motion and on the vote Messrs. Clark, Swackhamer and Valiant voted to leave the motion on the table, while Messrs. Coddington, Burtis and Rogers voted the other way. This made a tie vote and the Mayor voted no, thus leaving the motion on the table. In the discussion considerable was talked about the right of taking the motion from the table. When Mr. Valiant objected, and the Mayor decided in favor of this member, Mr. Rogers appealed from the decision of the chair, finally the advice of Counsel Reed was asked for, and he related the custom of the Senate and Congress. In the general discussion considerable amusement was afforded the spectators.

The reception of a petition from objectors to the present assessment on the Watchung avenue improvement objecting and offering to compromise matters by being willing to pay one-half of the amount of the total assessment, called forth a long and exhaustive debate, in which Counsel Reed rehearsed the whole proceedings for the benefit of the new members.

Mayor Smalley was the only one who openly declared himself in favor of compromising, while every other member was in favor of collecting the several assessments. Mr. Valiant strongly defended the position of the borough and urged that the matter be decided once for all and that the amounts be collected as soon as possible. He introduced a resolution that notices be served on those owing assessments by the Clerk, and that those who settled before June 1st next could do so by paying six per cent. interest, which is four per cent. below that which the borough can charge. This resolution was adopted unanimously and thus the matter rests. One concession made was that the interest would be charged from January 15th, ninety days after the confirmation of the report.

C. T. Pond and others petitioned the Council to macadamize Willow avenue. They agreed to pay 15 per cent. for the work. A. I. Smalley petitioned for the privilege of laying a drain for surface water through the upper part of the borough. E. M. French, for Mrs. E. E. Marshall, asked the Council to return to her the amount of tax paid by her late husband on property in the borough which had been paid on the property owned by Mary Leland. The members of West End Hose Company petitioned for the confirmation of Louis Bimble as a member, and Warren Engine Company asked the Council to confirm the election of L. B. Bodine and Wm. Rickets as members, and the resignation of John Emmons. They also asked that Louis Feiring and H. G. Adams be granted exemption papers to which they are entitled. All of these petitions took the usual course and were referred to the proper committees.

Mr. Clark, for the street committee, presented a short report in which he stated that the committee had decided not to macadamize any more streets until the front is out of the ground.

The collector's report showed that during the month of March the sum of $618.78 had been collected, and that there is now a balance of $930 43 on hand. The sum of $10 was also reported as having been received from Recorder Long for fines.

Mayor Smalley referred to the fact that he noticed the names of several persons on the pay rolls of the borough who owed tax, and he stated that hereafter he would not sign a single warrant for anyone who is indebted to the borough for tax. This action was commended by the members.

Mr Valiant offered a resolution providing for the borrowing of $1,600 to meet a note of $1, 964. He offered another resolution which provides that the collector must furnish a bond in the sum of $15,000, $10,000 of which must be security bond, and $5,000 that of a freeholder.

Mr. Clark secured for the street committee authority to secure bids for furnishing crushed stone and crosswalks for the coming year and awarded the contract to the lowest bidder, and by a resolution Frank J. Hubbard and H. C. VanKleeburgh were appointed borough engineers. The former will look after the west side and the latter after the east side.

A very important move made by the council was through a resolution offered by Mr Rogers. It provides that Collector Brown shall proceed immediately to collect all personal and poll tax and where the money is not forthcoming the delinquent shall be put in jail. To assist Mr. Brown in this performance Justice Crossley was designated as the one to issue the warrants. If they fail to carry out the law they will have to suffer the consequences, but there is no doubt but what the law will be enforced to the letter.

A resolution offered by Mr. Swackhamer provides that the collector issue tax warrants for the collection of 1897 taxes on delinquent lands, and another resolution by the same member provided for the erasure of certain names from the delinquent list, the same not being collectable.

Mayor Smalley appointed George Gunther, Richard McDonald and Fred Coverly as special marshals.

What seems to be an unjust law in the borough was brought up at the meeting by Mr. Clark with a view of having it amended. It is that which refers to the payment of the men who work on the streets. Mr. Clark, on behalf of the laborer, desired to have the law changed so that the men could receive their pay every week, but Mr. Valiant took exception on the ground that the borough would not have warrants for receipts. He thought that the present rule worked well and saw no reason for a change. He advised, however, that the Mayor could advance the money if necessary, but His Honor said that he had been doing so and the men get their money every week. After much discussion on the subject the law was left in its present form.

After deciding that the next meeting would allow for proper time to fix the tax budget, the meeting adjourned.

BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARY.

Howard VanArsdale Celebrated His Fifth Birthday Saturday.

A very pleasant time was had Saturday afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard VanArsdale, of Orchard place, the occasion being the celebration of the fifth birthday of their son, Howard. The little guests enjoyed themselves with singing, recitations and the playing of games. The youthful host was not forgotten by his young friends, as the number of presents received amply testified. Refreshments were served, to which all did justice, and the affair ended by those present declaring they had had a splendid time and wishing Master VanArsdale many happy returns of the day.

Those present were Dorothy Lynn, Marie Lynn, Helen Wooley, Lena Green, Ethel Searing, Stella Hoffman, Mabelle Koch, Earl Lynn, Russell Miller, Joe Carty, Jay Hoffman, Clifford Vail, Arthur Thorn, Ernest Conover, Howard VanArsdale, Mr. and Mrs. McGuire, Frank VanArsdale, of Old Bridge.

Mrs. VanArsdale was assisted in serving the refreshments and entertaining the young guests by Mrs. McGuire and Miss Anna Searing.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL COMMITTEES.

Special Workers to Raise Funds to Pay for Excursion.

At the session of the Sunday school of the First Baptist church Sunday afternoon, announcement was made of several committees. W. O. Chapman was named as chairman of the excursion committee, and he will select the other members of that committee. A contingent fund committee, to assist the excursion committee, was announced, and J. Herbert Case is the chairman. This committee will attempt to raise funds for the purpose of helping out on the expenses for the annual excursion. Announcement was also made of the finance committee as follows: George F. Brown, chairman; J. Herbert Case, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Batchelor, Mrs. George F. Brown.

IN ONE OFFICE FOR THIRTY-THREE YEARS.

Proud Record That Executive Clerk Fox Holds.

UNDISTURBED BY POLITICS.

THE FAVORITE OF EVERY GOVERNOR SINCE MARCUS L. WARD.

It is One of the Most Respectable and Important Offices Under the State Government — Ward's Attention was First Called to Fox as a Drummer Boy on Battlefields in the Civil War.

To hold an important political office for thirty-three years is nothing uncommon, but to occupy such a place for that period under constantly changing governments is a record rarely met with. Col. Edward D. Fox, Executive Clerk of New Jersey, although a Democrat in politics, has consecutively served fourteen Governors belonging to both of the two great political parties. His politics made but little difference to Col. Fox, who has held one of the most responsible and important offices under the State government without interruption since 1865. Col. Fox's long service in his office, which is an appointive one, has been mainly due to his efficiency and thorough knowledge of the business of the executive department. In fact, so familiar has he become with the affairs of the Governor's office that he is practically deputy private secretary to the Governor, discharging the duties of the private secretary whenever that officer is absent.

Col. Fox is said to be the oldest Executive clerk in the United States in point of service. When Marcus L. Ward was Governor of New Jersey the civil war was in progress, and the Governor spent much of his time on the battle fields. He often acted as a messenger between the boys in the blue and their friends at home. On several occasions the Governor noticed Fox, who was a drummer in the 8th New Jersey Regiment. He was only fifteen years old, but was remarkably clever in handling the sticks.

Gov. Ward spoke to him, and learned that he was a Trenton boy. When the Governor left the drummer handed him a $20 gold piece to take home to his parents. After that the Governor frequently saw the boy, and made occasional trips to the Fox home in this city.

In 1865 Gov. Ward tendered a place in his office to Fox, who was then 18 years old. The young man accepted it. Gov. Ward's successor found him such a valuable acquisition to the Executive Department that he decided to continue him in the capacity of executive clerk, notwithstanding a strong pressure brought to bear upon them to have some one else appointed. Since then each succeeding Governor has refused to remove him.

Col. Fox's duties require his presence at the State House the year round. All documents and letters addressed to the Governor pass through his hands.

Col. Fox carries a watch presented to him by Governors Ward, Randolph, Bedle, Parker, McClellan and Ludlow.

LAST OF THE STAR COURSE.

The Bradford Trio Gave One of the Best Entertainments of the Season.

The last entertainment in the Y. M. C. A. Star Course series was given Saturday evening by the Cecelia Bradford Trio, of New York, before a good-sized appreciative audience. The entertainment was one of the best in the series and those who attended felt well repaid for coming out. The artists were Miss Cecelia Bradford, violin soloist; Miss Charlotte Bradford, elocutionist, violinist and vocalist; John Bradford, flute virtuoso, and James Bradford, pianist. Each one is an artist of ability, but Miss Cecelia Bradford won notable distinction by her playing on the violin. Her work was equal to any that has been given in Plainfield and her renditions were exquisite. Miss Charlotte Bradford, as an elocutionist, won merited applause for her fine work, and the flute selections by John Bradford were thoroughly enjoyable. James Bradford at the piano performed his work perfectly.

The programme rendered was a classic one and every number was a gem. Those present hope to have another opportunity of hearing these artists and it is to be hoped that they will have a larger patronage.

Death of Mrs. Staats.

The death of Mrs. Staats, of West Second street, occurred Monday forenoon after a long illness. She was 87 years of age and one of Plainfield's best known residents. She has resided here for a great many years. She was an attendant at Trinity Reformed church. Among those who survive her is a son, Stephen Staats, with whom she lived.

Fred Leland, of Central avenue, who is detained at a hospital in the south is reported as being no better. His relatives are exceedingly anxious as to his recovery.

TRINITY GOOD FOLK FEASTED BY NATIONS

Many Countries Represented By Booths.

HELD IN AID OF MISSIONS.

SUCCESSFUL AFFAIR CONDUCTED BY YOUNG WOMEN'S MISSION BAND.

Lecture Room of Trinity Reformed Church Was Transformed for the Occasion—Everything From White Rats in the Chinese Pagoda to Baked Beans in a New England Kitchen.

It was an international incident. All the nationalities that are reached by the Reformed denomination were represented at the "Feast of All Nations," held in the lecture room of Trinity Reformed church last Thursday by the Young Women's Mission Band of the church. The fact that some of the representatives of the different countries had strangely familiar faces, only added to the interest in the "feast."

The lecture room was practically transformed. The ceiling and pillars were hung with bunting while strange appearing booths characteristic of the various nations, were scattered about the sides. At the end was the platform, fairly buried beneath a profusion of the national colors in various forms, principally flags and bunting.

The affair was given by the mission band to add to their donations to missions. Each country where the Reformed church is working, was supposed to be represented. The doors were opened at six o'clock and from that time on until a late hour, the room was thronged with guests. Tables were arranged in the centre of the room where the guests were served with the good things from the different booths. An informal musical programme was rendered during the evening.

The parlor on the right of the entrance was converted into a Holland room where a valuable collection of Dutch curios was displayed. There was an old volume, "The Vindication of Christianity Against Paganism," printed in 1683, and now the property of George L. VanEmburgh, and also an old Bible, dated 1744, the property of A. V. D. Honeyman. An old Dutch dresser, some rare china, an acient clock and spinning wheel were also included.

The room was in charge of Mrs. Frank Woodruff, chairman; Miss Mabel Woodruff, Miss Minnie Wyman, Miss Cora Huff, Miss Lillian A. Force, and Miss Haiman. They were all attired in quaint Dutch costumes, with huge skirts, black bodices and white guimps, and wore white Dutch handkerchiefs and caps. From this room were served frankfurters, Swiss cheese sandwiches and cold ham.

The Arebian booth was in one of the alcoves on the right. It was hung with Bagdad curtains while a luxurious divan occupied a prominent place. Miss Emma Gilliem was chairman with Miss Minnie Williams, Miss Buelah Waters and Miss Bessie Martin as assistants. They wore Arabian costumes of brown with red girdis and head dress. Miss Grace Nevius, in a red flowing gown of the fashion worn in India, also occupied a place in the booth. Here were sold curry and rice, preserved ginger, bananas, figs and dates.

The American booth was the most conspicuous and elaborate of all. It occupied the platform. Flags and tricolored bunting were lavishly used in the decoration. The sides were gowned in white with aprons and caps of the national colors. The committee was Mrs. Will F. Williams, Miss Mary VanFleet, Miss Jeanette Simpson, Miss Josie Kissam, Miss Sadie Holmes, Miss Bogert, Miss Josephine Fritts and Miss Cora Leire.

Miss Maude VanDyke and little Miss Margaret Leggett represented the aborigines of the land and wore Indian costume. Tables were arranged in the booth and ice cream, cake, candy and lemonade were served there.

A pink and light blue Chinese pagoda, surmounted by a huge Chinese umbrella, loomed up to the left of the national headquarters. A cage of white rats, pets of Dr. Browning, served to keep meddlers away. There was a lively trade, however, in peanut dolls, dry rice, tea, incense and lichi-nuts. The committee, all costumed like the young women of the Celestial Empire, was composed of Miss Etta Krymer, chairman; Miss Ada Chandler, Miss Emma Line and Miss Adelaide Baxter.

A Japanese booth on the left was decorated with Japanese hangings, fans and paper screens. A rattan chair and several other articles from Japan were shown. The young women in Japanese costume were Mrs. William Startup, chairman; Mrs. A. J. Moore, Miss Grace Emmons and Miss Emma Line. They sold tea, Japanese boxes, cups and saucers and various other bric-a-brac.

Areal New England kitchen was established on the left of the entrance. It contained dried appies and an assortment of the products of the field such as would usually be found in such a place. The primly dressed young women, with lace caps and kerchiefs, were Miss Grace Smith, chairman; Miss Mabel Wilson, Miss Anna Searing, Miss Gertrude Tier, Miss Abbie VanCleef, Miss Lillian Remsen and the Misses Bertha and Louise Fischer. Baked beans and sundry other preparations were in demand there.

The whole affair was under the superintendence of a committee composed of Mrs. H. W. Marshall, Mrs. Wm. Startup, Miss Lillian A. Force Miss Cora Laire and Mrs. Frank Wikoff. The decorating was done by by the various committees, who were greatly assisted by Mr. Beader.

The fireplace in the New England kitchen and the chimney in the Holland room were designed by William Olmstead.

Mr. and Mrs. William Townsend gave selections on mandolin and piano during the evening.

DANCED THE NIGHT AWAY

EVEN THE ELDER PARKITES FELT THE ENTHUSIASM.

Great Success of Formal Dance at the Park Club Last Friday—Ninety Present—House Committee is All Right.

There was a wealth of beauty and grace at the Park Club house Friday night. It was the formal dance of the club and one of the most successful on record. Even the staid old war horses of the club forgot the weight of advancing age and thought they were young again. They assembled, as usual, to bowl and play pool and billiards but the fascination of the whirl of gaiety up in the ball room was too much for them.

The dance was largely attended, some ninety members and guests being present. It marked one of the closing events of the activity of Easter week at the Park Club and was enjoyed to the utmost. The music by Isler, of Newark, was particularly good.

The patronesses were Mrs. James T. Scott, Mrs. B. Arrowsmith Hegeman, Jr., Mrs. Wm. J. Roome, Mrs. Wm. L. Saunders, Mrs. Samuel Townsend and Mrs. S. St. John McCutchen.

The dance was arranged by the house committee which, by the way, has endeared itself to all the members by the successful management of the club this winter. The members of the committee were seen everywhere Friday, aiding and abetting in the good time.

PLEASURE AT THE PARK CLUB.

Informal Entertainment of Which Music Formed a Feature.

An informal entertainment took the place of the usual weekly card party at the Park Club Thursday, those taking part being Miss Addie Parker Dodson, John and Fred VanEps, Professor William E. MacClymont. Miss Jackson recited, John VanEps rendered zither music, Fred VanEps performed on the banjo, and Professor MacClymont accompanied the two last named on the piano.

The entertainment was given under the direction of the house committee, of which Elston M. French, Henry D. Hibbard and Edward T. Wilson are the members. The Messrs. VanEps rendered zither and banjo solos, and also played together several times. The music was unique, and their selections were well received. Miss Jackson recited some of her brightest pieces and all four artists received several encores. After the programme was finished an informal dance was held.

NEARLY A CENTURY OLD.

Mrs. Rachel Randolph Passed Away in Her 94th Year.

Mrs. Rachel Randolph, an aged Plainfielder, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Jane L. Dunham, of West Fifth street, Saturday. Mrs. Randolph was born on the William Cordell farm on West Front street, and was ninety-four years of age when she died.

She has always lived in this vicinity and for the past thirty years has made her home with Mrs. Dunham. Mrs. Randolph leaves five children; Mrs. J. Frank Hubbard, Mrs. Jane L. Dunham, Mrs. Harry Lewis, of New York state, David Randolph and William Randolph, the latter living at Asbury Park. She has been a widow fifty nine years.

Children Wanted to See a Fire.

Some small children wanted to see the fire department turn out Thursday afternoon. So they poured a little kerosine on a heap of barrels and lumber, near Seaman Williams barn, between North avenue and East Second street, near Watchung avenue. Then they lit a match and the fire soon threatened the barn. George J. Tobin, the plumber, saw the fire and notified the fire department. The No. 2 hose wagon responded. Then one of the clerks in Mailison's Pharmacy sent in an alarm from box 21. The blaze was soon extinguished.

YOUNG WOMAN SHOT DOWN IN THE ROAD.

Phœbe Shoemaker Slain by Her Brother-in-law.

THOUGHT TO BE INSANE.

CRIME WAS COMMITTED IN THE VICINITY OF OAK TREE.

Albert Shoemaker, the Murderer, Had Been Acting Queerly for Several Days Past—Apparently Upset by Prospect of Not Having a Permanent Home—Admitted Killing the Woman—Sent to Jail.

Phœbe Elizabeth Shoemaker, aged 23 years, wife of Charles Shoemaker, was shot dead by her brother-in-law, Albert Shoemaker, shortly before 1 o'clock Thursday afternoon upon the road between Oak Tree and Iselin Charles Cooper of Iselin discovered the body of Mrs. Shoemaker lying in a ditch while driving to his home about 1 o'clock. He found Shoemaker working in a field, and returned with him and others and carried the body home.

Suspicion was at once turned to Albert Shoemaker, 26 years old, brother of Charles, who had often quarrelled with Mrs. Shoemaker. He is eccentric. He had attacked three persons during the morning for no cause that could be ascertained. Word was sent to Metuchen, two miles distance, and Constables Gedney and Keenan found Albert Shoemaker wandering about near the railway station. He was handcuffed and taken to the office of Justice of the Peace Moss in Metuchen, where he was held while Prosecutor John S. Voorhees was notified.

Coroner Charles Moke, of New Brunswick, viewed the body of the woman. He found that she had been shot in the back and that the bullet had penetrated her left lung. Shoemaker admitted that he had killed his sister in law, and said that he did it because she and her husband were trying to do him out of some property which belonged to him. He said he went to his sister in-law in order to renew the subject of his living with them again. He had failed more than once to secure this privilege, and he became very angry when Mrs. Shoemaker firmly declined to permit him to live in her house. He then smashed an old family chest, and followed this up by flourishing a revolver and threatening Mrs. Shoemaker. She fled out of the house and Mr. Shoemaker followed her. Four hundred yards away at the top of a hill he overtook her and shot her in the back. After the shooting, he told the Coroner, he returned to his brother's house, went up stairs and left his revolver on the floor near the chest which he had smashed. The Coroner found that three chambers of the revolver had been emptied. Justice Moss committed Shoemaker to the County Jail in New Brunswick on a charge of murder. People in Metuchen and Menlo Park have often called him queer. A close relative, Kate Shoemaker, is at present in the Middlesex County Jail pending an examination into her sanity. The dead woman was the daughter of Charles Fisher, of Springfield, this State. She had been married five years. Prosecutor Voorhees believes that Shoemaker is mentally unbalanced.

The murderer lived with the late Ellis Noe for about fifteen years, when he was considered as one of the family. After Mr. Noe died, and it was decided to sell the old homestead and the other farm property, Shoemaker does not seem to have been himself. An auction sale of the Noe effects was held Tuesday, and several of those who attended noticed that the young man was acting strangely, but nothing was thought of it at the time

PAYING FOR AN ELECTION JOKE.

Bill for Hauling Fire Engine to Fires Started in Honor of Mayor's Election.

At Friday night's Borough Council meeting a bill was presented for hauling the fire apparatus to fires on last election day. Mr. Rogers spoke on the matter and desired an explanation. One fire was caused by some mischievously-inclined people who set fire to the small building on Somerset street, corner of Park place, in honor of the election of Mayor Smalley, and another fire was reported on Vine street. Mr. Rogers took exception to paying to have the apparatus hauled out for such a fire, and mentioned a similar incident where the perpetrators were brought before the officials and properly "spanked" for the offence. The matter was explained, however, and the bill went through.

Resigned as Treasurer.

Dr. L. S. Pocock has resigned his position as local treasurer of the Plainfield branch of the State Mutual Building and Loan Association, and William A. Woodruff, corner of Park avenue and Front street, has been elected as the successor.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. LaRue, of Jackson avenue, have moved to the Thorn flats on Somerset street.

WEDDED WHERE ORANGE TREES WERE IN BLOOM

Washington Park Home the Scene of a Pretty Marriage.

MISS FABER WAS THE BRIDE.

THE DECORATIONS OF THE HOUSE WERE BEAUTIFUL.

Edmund Rushmore Was the Groom—Ceremony Performed by Rev. William Montgomery Downey in the Presence of Admiring and Congratulating Guests—A Reception Followed.

The home of Alexander Edward Faber, 38 Rockview avenue, was the scene Friday afternoon April 5th of a brilliant event, when his daughter, Miss Cornelia Faber, was united in marriage to Edmund Rushmore, also a resident of Washington Park. It was one of the prettiest home weddings yet seen, and it was marked by many unique features.

The ceremony was performed at 4 o'clock by Rev. William Montgomery Downey, pastor of the Church of the Redeemer, in the presence of a large assemblage of society folks both from this city and borough, as well as from distant points. The house was beautifully decorated with the rarest of flowers. The feature of the decorations was the presence of two handsome orange trees in full bloom and these were so arranged that the bridal party stood close by. The effect of this decoration was charming. The trees were from Mr. Faber's private conservatory. The prevailing colors in decoration were pink and white.

The bride entered the room, where the marriage was performed, leaning on the arm of her father, who gave her away in marriage. She was preceded by the bridesmaids, Miss Marion Henderson, formerly of Washington Park, but now of New York, and Miss Marquerite Henschel, also of New York. They met at the floral altar the groom and his best man, David Rushmore, a brother.

The beautiful marriage ceremony of the Episcopal church was used, and the responses were exceedingly clear and distinct.

The bride was gowned in white organdie over white taffeta, and carried a beautiful bouquet of bridal roses. Her attendants, the bridesmaids, were gowned in white silk and also carried bouquets of roses.

Following the ceremony congratulations were cordially extended to the happy and popular couple. They held a reception from 4:30 until 6 o'clock, during which time a wedding supper was served to the guests. After the reception the bride and groom left for a honeymoon, after which they will for the present take up their residence at the home of the bride's father.

Those who acted as ushers at the wedding were Charles E. Faber and William R. Faber, brothers of the bride.

The many costly and handsome gifts received by Mr. and Mrs. Rushmore give expression to the popularity and esteem in which they are held by their many friends

THIRTY-THREE YEARS IN FIRE DEPARTMENT.

GAZELLE COMPANY'S OLDEST MEMBER

A. H. Martin Has Been a Volunteer Many Years—Engine Company Nominate Officers.

Gazelle Engine Company, of the Plainfield volunteer fire department, held a regular meeting April 5th and nominated the following officers: Foreman, L. M. Dunavan; first assistant foreman, William Addis; second assistant foreman, D. S. Dunavan; secretary, J. E. Huntington; treasurer, L. J. Spicer; representatives to the Relief Association, W. T. Neuman and J. A. Hubbard.

The election will be held on the first Monday in May. At that meeting action will be taken to dispose of the property of the company, preparatory to going out of active service.

The meeting April 5th marked the thirty-third anniversary of A. H. Martin's connection with the Gazelle Company. The only fireman who has been in the service longer is Chief Doane, who outranks Mr. Martin in the department by six months.

Aged Plainfielder Dead

Peter Langarbam, aged 75 years, died Thursday at his home on Cottage place. He came to Plainfield forty years ago and worked for Rudoph Oerstreich. He also worked for Schwed Bros. He was a member of the First Presbyterian church, where he attended regularly all the stated meetings. A number of children, grandchildren and other relatives survive him.

Caught His Hand on Car Door.

John Sherman Hobbs, of Pearl street, is suffering from a badly lacerated hand, the result of an accident he had while getting off a railroad train in Newark Thursday morning. His hand caught in the door at one end of the car and before he could take it out the door went shut smashing three fingers.

HOW THE CALL SYSTEM IS GOING TO WORK

Provisions of the New Fire Department Ordinance.

NOW BEFORE THE COUNCIL.

FIVE COMPANIES TO BE ORGANIZED ON ITS PASSAGE.

But There Are Only Enough Men Provided by Budget for Four Companies—Department Will Be Free From Politics—Pay for the Different Officers and Men—Fines for Call Men.

The opening of the new enginehouse in the West End, the probable adoption of the "call" system and the various recommendations of the fire committee of the Common Council promises to make a considerable change in the Plainfield Fire Department. The change will be in the arrangement rather than in the personel.

Much interest has been shown in the details of the new "call" system provided for by the new ordinance that was introduced into the Council last Monday evening. The fire committee prepared the ordinance and presented it as their solution for the present state of affairs in the department. Most of the other Councilmen have expressed themselves as being in favor of the "call" system, so there is little doubt but that the ordinance will be passed.

According to the new ordinance the officers of the department will be the same as ever—one chief engineer and two assistants and a veterinary surgeon. Then there will be the permanent drivers and tillermen. The remainder of the force will be composed of "call" men, six to a company. By the ordinance the following companies are to be organized immediately after the passage of the ordinance—Hose Company No. 1, Hose Company No. 2, Hose Company No. 3, Hook and Ladder Company No. 1, and Engine Company No. 1.

It is generally understood, however, that the Engine Company, which is expected to look after the chemical engine, will not be organized at present, but that the engine will be looked after entirely by the paid men at the house. Provision has only been made for four companies, that is, twenty-four men.

The department is to be out of politics entirely. There will be a simple examination for new candidates for positions. The members of the department will remain in their positions then during good behavior and efficiency.

The pay of the firemen is fixed as follows: Chief, $700 per annum; first assistant, $150 per annum; second assistant, $600 per annum who devotes his entire time to the department, otherwise, $100; veterinary surgeon, $150 per annum; engineer of steamer, $75 per annum; hosemen and laddermen, on call, $25 per annum.

The drivers and tillermen are divided into four classes with a sliding scale of wages. The first class is composed of those who have served in the department continuously for a period greater than five years. The second class is made up of those who have served more than three years and less than five years. The third class is composed of those who have served more than six months and less than three years. And the fourth class includes those who have served less than six months. The pay for the various classes is as follows: First class, $60 a month; second class, $55 a month; third class, $50 a month; fourth class, $40 a month.

The call men are all expected to respond to every alarm of fire in their district. Failure to do so will result in a fine of $1 for each absence, except in case of illness or death in family or absence from the city with permission. If, however, the firemen fined performs seventy-five per cent of duty, his fines are remitted at the end of the year.

The ordinance also dwells on various matters relating to the fire department which do not pertain to the "call" system. It is declared an offence, liable of a fine from $5 to $30, to injury or destroy any property of the fire department. There is a fine of $10 against anyone outside of the department driving any of the apparatus Another fine of $10 is announced for wilfully hindering a fireman in the performance of his duty. Any one sending in a false alarm intentionally is liable to a fine of $10.

One of the last sections of the ordinance provides for the turning over of the property of the old companies of the volunteer department to the new companies that are to be organized. Hose Company No. 1, is to fall heir to the property of the old Gazelle Company. Hose Company No. 2 gets what once was under the care of the old No. 2 Engine Company. Hose Company No. 3 is the successor of the Alert Hose Company. The Hook and Ladder Company No. 1 follows in the footsteps of the old Zephyr Company. The Engine Company No. 1 hasn't any predecessor but looks after the chemical engine. This last company, by the way, does not seem likely to exist at the start for there isn't any appropriation to pay the salary for its "call" men. It will probably be under the charge of the regular paid men in headquarters.

QUIET HOME WEDDING

AND AFTER THE MARRIAGE A BAPTISM WAS PERFORMED.

Miss Maude Myra Lowrie Becomes the Bride of a Springfield Man—Youthful Lowrie Was Afterwards Baptized

A very quiet home wedding was celebrated April 5th, at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Henry H. Lowrie, of Park avenue, when their daughter, Miss Maud Myra Lowrie, was united in marriage to Julian S. Deane, secretary of the Hampden Corundum Wheel Company, of Springfield, Mass. The ceremony took place at 4 o'clock in the presence of the immediate family and relatives, and was performed by Rev. Cornelius G. Bristol, of Hartford, Conn., who is a brother-in-law of the bride. Laura Bristol and Gardner Bristol, children of Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Bristol, attended the bride and groom and were dressed as pages.

The bride wore a gown of white silk, trimmed with lace and ribbons, and carried a bouquet of white roses. Following the ceremony congratulations were offered to the happy couple, after which a wedding supper was partaken of.

Mr. and Mrs. Deane will travel west on their honeymoon, after which they will probably reside at Springfield. They were the recipients of a large collection of elegant and costly presents from their friends and relatives.

In connection with the wedding there was another event of equal interest, that of the baptism of Helen Myra Lowrie, young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lowrie, of Camden. This ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Bristol, and was very pretty.

Rev. J. P. Taylor and Rev. Floyd Appleton, of this city, were present to witness the ceremony, and among the others present were Dr. and Mrs. Henry H. Lowrie, parents of the bride, Dr. Frank R. Searles and wife, of Catskill, N. Y.; Rev. Cornelius G. Bristol and family, of Hartford, Conn.; Harry Lowrie and family, of Camden.

EULOGIZED AS A CHRISTIAN WOMAN

Funeral Services of the Late Mrs. John Angleman Held.

The funeral services of the late Mrs. John Angleman were held April 5th, from the residence of I. L. DeVoy, East Front street, and were largely attended by relatives and friends. The members of Winfield Scott Relief Corps, No. 10, auxiliary to Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., of which the departed was a member and officer, attended the services in a body and offered a beautiful floral gift in the shape of a pillow of roses, bearing an appropriate inscription. There were many other floral tributes of equal beauty.

During the service Miss Etta Raybert sang two favorite hymns of the deceased.

The services were conducted by Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church. He spoke tender words of comfort to the bereaved husband and the two children left early in life. He also spoke of the Christian character of Mrs. Angleman and what a good woman she was.

The interment took place in the Methodist cemetery, where appropriate services were held.

Librarian's Report for March, 1900.

Vols. on Accession-Book, Feb. 28, 1900.... 16,079
" purchased.... 12
" added by Gift.... 3
" now in Library.... 16,094
" in Babcock Collection, Feb. 28, 1900... 1,178
" now in Babcock Collection.... 1,174

Total number in Library.... 17,268
Number of card holders, March 31, registered during the month.... 29
Total number of reg. borrowers.... 6,447

HOME CIRCULATION.

Fiction	1,302
Juvenile	727
Biography	71
Philosophy	11
Religion, etc.	30
Sociology	80
History	60
Natural Science	126
Useful Arts	63
Fine Arts	14
Literature	366
910-919 Geography, Travel	201
History	246
000 Generalia, Periodicals, etc.	39
Total circulation	4,174

Of the above number there were circulated through Delivery Stations:

Machine Tool Works	10
Potter Press Works	66
Scott Press Works	53
	129

Delivery Stations.

Y. M. C. A.	28
" W. C. A.	36
	64

Special Collections, Circulation, Babcock.... 174
Number of Circulating Days.... 26
Largest Circulation on any Day.... 271
Smallest.... 60
Daily Average Circulation.... 164.3
Number of Visitors to the Building.... 4,784
Sunday Visitors, included in above.... 111

EMMA L. ADAMS,
Librarian.

Keeping Track of Borough Property.

Robert Clark, jr., chairman of Borough Council street committee, is to be commended for the great interest he is taking in the department. He has had all the tools of the borough collected, properly branded and placed in charge of William Emmons, who will keep track of them under the direction of Superintendent of Highways Thomas Doud.

"BELSHAZZAR" SUNG BY A CHURCH CHOIR.

A Musicale of More Than Passing Note at the Casino.

MANY PRETTY SOLO PARTS.

GIVEN UNDER THE DIRECTION OF MRS. WILLIAM A. FREEMAN.

J. A. Butterfield's Beautiful Cantata Was Rendered Before an Appreciative Audience—Reading by Rev. Floyd Appleton Was Entertaining—Elmer E. Runyon Heard—Names of Those in the Cast.

A musical event of more than passing note was that of Thursday when the cantata of "Belshazzar," by J. A. Butterfield, was given in the casino by Grace P. E. Church choir. The work is one of the best of the kind and the music is very inspiring. The solo parts give wide range for the voice, and the trio, duet and quartette parts were very pretty. All of the parts were given last evening in a highly commendable manner under the direction of Mrs. William A. Freeman, organist, whose untiring efforts have been devoted to the production. It would be unfair to attempt to criticise any individual work, but suffice it to say that all did well. With D. Stuart Pope, at the piano, assisted by an orchestra, the cantata was given in a satisfactory manner. Rev. Floyd Appleton, curate of Grace church, assisted by reading the various parts assigned to him. During the rendition of the cantata he provoked much laughter. Miss Mabel Smith, soprano, rendered a beautiful solo, and it was so well received that an encore was given, although not responded to. The next part being taken by Mr. Appleton, he read in true style the words; "No more! My royal words brooks no reproof! It suits my will, and that is law when'er Belshazzar speaks!" The words seemed to fit the occasion and all joined in a hearty laugh.

The part of Zerubbabel was assigned to Herbert Schitt, but owing to a throat affection and acting under the advice of a physician, he was unable to appear and sing. The part was taken by Elmer E. Runyon, whose voice was heard with a great deal of pleasure. The audience was very generous in its applause.

Below will be found the complete caste and the names of those who furnished the music:

Belshazzar, King of Babylon	Arthur F. Freeman
Zerubbabel, Governor of the Jews	Elmer E. Runyon
Daniel, Prophet of Israel	Frederick J. Pope
Cyrus, King of Persia
Nemuel, Lord Chamberlain	Lahrens H. VanBuren
Kitnetis, Queen Regent	Miss Mabelle B. Smith
Shelomith, wife of Zerubbabel	Miss Mary Evans Collier
Angel, Zorlina, Lady of Court	Miss Charlotte Messersmith
Jewish Princess, Azalia, Lady of Court	Miss Pearl Kinney
Ladies of Court	Miss Clara Woodward, Miss Eleanor VanDeventer
Magi, Wise Men of Babylon	William B. Cook, Frederick Freeman, Henry B. Drake
Astonis, Queen of Belshazzar	Master Harry Messersmith
Child of Zerubbabel	Master Vincent Miner
Rev. Floyd Appleton	Reader
Gentlemen of the orchestra	Martin A. Korff, Master A. Andaler, Arthur R. Mabie, Bennet Higbee, Garrett T. Dunham, Claude Wallender, Frank Young, Frank Manchester, D. Stuart Pope, piano.

HEAVY VAN WENT OVER HIS LEG.

Chris. Rasmussen Tried to Climb to Driver's Seat and Fell.

Christian Rasmussen, of East Second street, a Dane employed by Captain William Hand and Son, met with an accident Thursday that will lay him up for some time. He was driving one of Hand's big vans near Elizabeth, when he dismounted from his seat on Hand's van, and walked back to one of T. J. Carey's vans, following, and attempted to climb up on the seat with the driver.

Carey's vans are not built just like Hand's, and as Chris was climbing up he put out his hand to seize hold of a hand guide just as he always did when mounting one of his employer's vans. But on this occasion he was no hand guide, as he lost his balance and fell directly under the wheels of the heavily loaded wagon. One wheel passed over his leg before the horses could be stopped. He was brought home and an examination of his injuries made. Strange to say, the leg was not broken, but the bone was so bruised that it will be a week before the man can use it again.

BROKE HIS LEG WRESTLING.

Unfortunate Outcome of a Friendly Contest in Dunellen.

A. E. Nelson, owner of Nelson's Hotel in New Market, and well-known throughout this section, was brought to the Muhlenberg Hospital at midnight last Thursday suffering with a fracture of one of his legs. The injury was sustained while he was wrestling in a friendly way with another man in a hotel in Dunellen. He will be confined to the hospital for six weeks.

WHAT'S TO BE SEEN AT PRINT EXHIBIT.

Amateur Work of a High Class Shown.

SUCCESSFUL OPENING.

EXHIBIT WILL BE CONTINUED ALL THIS WEEK.

J. Harvey Doane Has a Remarkable Collection of Carbon Transfers to Etching Paper—Louis Forsum's Exhibit Includes Some Excellent Ones of Naval Parade—Many See the Exhibit.

Last Monday marked a very successful opening for the annual photographic print exhibition of the Plainfield Camara Club, which is now being held in the club gallery in the Babcock building. There was a good attendance and the exhibits were properly admired by all. The exhibition will be continued every afternoon and evening this week.

Considering the fact that almost all of the work was done by amateurs, the exhibition was remarkable indeed. One noticeable fact was that nearly all the prints had the dull or carbon finish. Many different kinds of paper were used. Probably the most difficult to successfully make were the carbon prints on etching paper that comprised the principal part of the exhibit of J. Harvey Doane, winner of the silver medal for the best men's collection. These prints were first made on the original carbon paper and were then transferred in different tints to the rough etching paper. They were novel and the effect was precisely like that of an etching.

One of the exhibits that attracted much attention was that of Louis Borsum, of Woodland avenue. It was the winner of the club award for the best collection. It included a number of large photographs of the different war ships, taken at the time of the naval parade. They were very handsome views and perfect in every detail. An interior of Mr. Borsum's home was one of the best prints shown in the exhibition, the details being remarkably clear. Mr. Borsum's photographs were all taken with a very large camera.

RED MEN'S FAIR CLOSED.

AS NEARLY AS CAN BE ESTIMATED THE PROFITS ARE $700.

Last Night Possessed Many Attractions for the Visitors—An Indian Duel—Those Who Won the Prizes There.

After six successful nights the Red Men's fair closed Monday night $700 ahead, as near as can be judged.

Monday night the attendance was as large as ever. A short programme was rendered. George Thatcher, the comedian, was there, and the Kennon sisters sang and appeared in a dialogue. The Indian scene of Wednesday night was re-enacted, and a genuine camp exhibition was given.

In one of the scenes William Newcorn and William Westphal in full Indian costume fought a duel to the death, which amused the spectators very much, "and ended in Mr. Newcorn's coming out victor and lifting the other's scalp in a realistic way.

The prizes awarded Monday were as follows: The dinner set went to Mrs Edward Bowman; the toilet set to Robert Clark; the Red Men's pin to Johnston Wilson; cigar ornament Harry Dreier; cushion, Eden Boice; lamp, Mrs. Jules Stephany; wheel, Miss Ada Westphal; diamond ring, Mrs. Charles Holstein; and the doll, Fred Huff.

WHERE IS BRIGGS?

Was Employed in the Central Railroad Office in New York.

Frank E. Briggs, of 837 Richmond street, left home over a week ago and has not been seen since. Briggs was employed in the Central Railroad building at 143 Liberty street, New York, and was also a member of the firm of Hartney & Briggs, insurance agents, of this city.

He has a wife and family, and Mrs. Briggs is greatly worried over the disappearance of her husband.

Mr. Randolph Led.

The Endeavor prayer meeting in Trinity Reformed church last Monday under the excellent leadership of L. W. Randolph, was spiritually refreshing to the large number of persons present. During the offertory Miss Krymer sang a solo, "Consider the Lillies," to the delight of all.

Important Meeting of Branch Alliance.

At the May meeting of the Branch Alliance, Mrs. Henry Bell, of Rutherford, who is director for this state, will be present and make an address. Officers will also be elected and a programme for the coming season will be prepared and adopted.

To Explain the Project.

The soldiers' monument committee will in a few days issue the circular which they have had prepared. They will be sent to every person in the city so far as possible and a liberal response is hoped for.

NOTES OF NOTABLES.

A movement has been started for the erection of a granite monument to Noah Webster in West Hartford, Ct., his birthplace.

Archbishop Ireland has a collection of rare old ecclesiastical manuscripts, to which he will probably add during his sojourn in Europe.

J. Pierpont Morgan is said to be greatly displeased that the fact has been made public that he gave $75,000 for the electric lighting of St. Paul's cathedral, London.

Harry Labouchere, in his latest attack on the House of Lords, divides the members of that body into three classes —the "mentals," the "ornamentals," and the "detrimentals."

Olga Nethersole, in a recent lecture before the University of Chicago's graduate club, said of Rudyard Kipling that he was, "as Ian MacLaren had declared, the poet laureate of the whole world."

Bishop Huntington (Episcopal), of Syracuse, has vetoed the proposed celebration of the completion of the thirtieth year of his episcopal service, on the ground that the money is more needed by the church.

Prince Ludwig of Lowenstein, son-in-law of the Earl of Mexborough, whose mysterious disappearance some weeks ago excited London, is reported by a Paris society paper to have turned up in Manila, where he has been an actor in recent events.

Emperor William has ordered that henceforth all game shot by himself or by his guests on the imperial preserves will be sent to Berlin, where consumption shall be sold, instead of given away, as hitherto. Thus it happens that large quantities of game adorned with wreaths and placarded: "Shot by his majesty, Emperor William II," are exhibited for sale in the Berlin Central market.

The Rev. William Colenso, F. R. S., who died recently at Wellington, New Zealand, at the advanced age of eighty-seven, was a first cousin of the famous Bishop of Natal. He learned printing and bookbinding, and after being engaged in work for the British and Foreign Bible society he was sent out by the Church Missionary society to New Zealand in the double capacity of evangelist and printer. He had a wide reputation as a man of science, and there was no greater authority on Maori antiquities and myths, or on the natural history of New Zealand. He was a fellow of the Royal society and of the Linnaean society.

Mayor Quincy of Boston has been presented with several petitions urging him to organize an aggressive crusade against the imported finch, or what is known to the general public as the English sparrow. It is proposed that the feathered pests shall be driven away by destroying their nests and eggs in the city parks, by snaring them in traps and mercifully putting them to death, and by placing poisoned food in sections of the city where such a course would not be a source of danger to domestic animals or to human beings.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

Locomotive firemen are practical heaters.

Laziness is the decayed fruit of philosophy.

Every man is more or less of a hero to himself.

The best way to beat a poor carpet is to buy a good one.

Eternal vigilance may create a demand for spectacles.

An eccentric man is merely a fool with a bank balance.

Pugilistically speaking, the tongue is mightier than the glove.

When trouble drives a man to drink that is usually the trouble.

Every time the weather has a cold it takes a drop of mercury for it.

If the tongue could kill, but few people would ever die of old age.

Some women may not earn their salt but Mr. Lot's wife certainly did.

There is a vast difference between jewels that flash and flash jewels.

It's hard to convince some people that honesty is the best politics.

This is the season when he is most in fashion who has most to sigh for.

A man may be worth a lot of money and still be a very poor sort of man.

Speaking of art, the Chicago river is a water color in a class all by itself.

But few statements are ever made that will not bear a qualifying phrase.

The gas meter practically confirms the old adage about a person being golden.

We meet men every day whose only mission on earth seems to be to take up room.

It's a great misfortune not to have judgment enough to keep silent at the proper time.

Many an orator with anti-trust proclivities would kick like a mule if his tailor held similar views.

It's better late than never, but the man who buys a summer suit in March is rather early than late.

The moralizer considers life but a dream until the demoralizer comes along and wakes him up.

Arctic icebergs often last more than 200 years, so in fashion society three score and ten is the recognized limit.

This is the season of sackcloth and ashes, but when the tennis season opens it will be sack coats and sashes.

Some people find as much pleasure in whining about their misfortunes as others do in boasting of their good luck.—Chicago News.

If a man lets his beard grow people say he is too stingy to patronize a barber, and if he shaves daily they say it is because he is getting gray.

FOREIGN NOTES.

An international congress of writers will meet at Rome this spring. The Sicilian Press Association has made arrangements for taking the foreign guests on a free excursion to Palermo and the points of interest in Sicily.

August Schmidt, of Wolgast, in Pomerania, now 105 years of age, is believed to be the last survivor of the Prussian war of liberation of 1813-15. Kaiser Wilhelm sent him a photograph of the old Emperor and a telegram of congratulation on his birthday.

After the ball given by the Paris Municipal Council to their electors and friends at the Hotel de Ville, it was found that six dozen silver spoons and 686 other articles, such as plates, mustard pots and flower vases, had been taken away, while many of the dancers had helped themselves to bottles of champagne for home consumption.

When Lord Kitchener went to Cambridge University to receive his degree of Doctor of Laws the undergraduates celebrated the occasion with bonfires and a good deal of rowdyism. The vice-chancellor recently now recommended that a rule be passed that henceforth no undergraduate shall take part in the public proceedings of the university.

At Cape Grisnez, on the French coast of the British Channel, a new lighthouse has been erected. The light is of 1,000,000-candle power—ten ordinary times, but of 2,000,000-candle power in thick weather, and can be seen forty-eight miles off on a clear night. It sends five successive white flashes and then a three white followed by a red of the old light.

John Ruskin's entering on his eighty-first year has called forth many kind notices in England. They cannot disguise, however, the sad fact that his mental powers are already gone. He is described as sitting for hours at his window looking at the hills, as rarely going out of doors, even into his garden, and as keeping silent, even when spoken to. A proposal to have his portrait painted by Holman Hunt has been vetoed by his family on the ground that he is too feeble to sit.

Don Lorenzo Perosi, the priest composer, is more sensitive than Lieut. Hobson. Milan went wild over him after the performance of his "Resurrection of Lazarus" in the church of Sant' Ambrogio, and the Lombardia, in describing the scene, stated that a number of ladies of the aristocracy made a rush at the composer and kissed him. This statement Perosi declares to be false and an offense to his dignity as a priest. He has therefore brought suit against the Lombardia for libel.

Vienna has opened its new municipal saloon, the Rattiskeller, in the basement of the City Hall. The place has been decorated by the foremost artists of the city and in it only the vintages of Austria proper will be sold, foreign and even Hungarian wines being excluded. The Rattiskeller is conducted by the municipal authorities; its establishment has roused the wrath of the restaurant keepers of the city, who have been among the most useful supporters of the present anti-Semitic mayor, Dr. Lueger.

Bonn on the Rhine has been investigated by the liquor-drinking habits of its small school children. Out of 247 children, seven or eight years of age, in the primary schools, there was not one that had not tasted beer or wine, and but a quarter of them had not tasted brandy. Beer or wine was drunk regularly every day by 25 per cent. of the children, while 8 per cent. including more girls than boys, received a daily glass of cognac from their parents to make them strong, and 16 per cent. would not drink milk because it had no taste.

Biddenden, a quiet country village in Kent, was recently the scene of a remarkable murder. The rector's daughter, a middle-aged spinster, had quarrelled with several parishioners and wrote to six of them to meet her at church on a certain Sunday, as she wished to make up. It happened to rain, so that only one of the persons addressed, a Sunday school teacher, attended church. After the communion, of which both partook, the woman invited him into the vestry and asked the curate to be a witness to the reconciliation. She then drew a revolver and shot the teacher dead. She had several spare cartridges on her person, so it is inferred that she had intended to shoot all the persons to whom she had written. She was perfectly calm after her act and has kept silent about it.

HERE AND THERE.

Cincinnati claims to make 20,000 hog cages, 25,000 rat traps, 120,000 fly traps, and 300,000 sleeves out of wire annually.

In the twenty weeks Richard Mansfield has played "Cyrano de Bergerac" this season he is said to have made $120,000 as his share of the receipts.

Francesco de Cunign, a resident of New York city, went home so merry at a party in a friend's house that in an uproarious fit of laughter he bit off his tongue.

Rev. Charles Wesley, rector of Grosmont Church, London, has been fined $75 because disputing a bill presented by a workman he assaulted the latter and broke some of his ribs.

In one small township in North Carolina, Southern Pines, 4,000,000 pounds of fruit were shipped to Northern markets in 1898. It was all raised by invalids living there for their health.

Professor Henry A. Rowland, of Johns Hopkins University, by a recent invention, has simplified the art of telegraphy so that it is no longer necessary for operators to learn the Morse system. Any one who can work a typewriter can send a dispatch.

MEN AND WOMEN.

Nebraska's Populist senator, William V. Allen, who now retires from Congress, will be chiefly remembered for his famous fifteen hour continuous speech in the Senate, and for the invocation of making a valedictory address to his colleagues.

Dr. Frank A. Fenks, a professor in Butler College, Indianapolis, has been chosen as the first president of the University of Indianapolis, which has been constituted by a union of Butler College, the Medical College of Indiana, the Indiana Law School and the Indiana Dental College. Mr. Jenkins was educated at Yale and Harvard.

Mrs. J. E. B. Stuart, widow of the Confederate cavalryman, has just tendered her resignation of the position of principal of the Virginia Female Institute at Staunton, the diocesan school of the two Virginia dioceses. She has occupied this position for many years.

M. Anatole Deibler, the new public executioner of Paris, who while his father held the place moved in society and was well received, finds now that he has taken up his father's work many doors are closed against him. He has even found it necessary to resign from his bicycle club.

The late Senator Morrill, of Vermont, was as careful of the public property as if he bought and paid for it out of his private purse. He always carefully untied and saved the piece of red tape that came around his mail, in consequence of which his was the only committee room that never made a requisition for tape.

Nuber Pasha is said to have left a fortune of more than 4,000,000 pounds. The foundation of this wealth was the very large inheritance of Madame Nubar, who was the daughter and heiress of the richest Armenian banker at Constantinople. Nubar owned a splendid hotel in Paris, a more magnificent chateau at Boulak, and a villa at Alexandria, with the most beautiful gardens in Egypt.

The Lalande prize of the French Academy of Sciences has been conferred upon Professor S. C. Chandler, of Cambridge, Mass., in recognition of "the splendor, the importance and the variety" of his astronomical work. The Damoiseau prize has been conferred upon Dr. George William Hill, of Washington, for his researches in mathematic and astronomy, and the Henry Wilde prize upon Dr. Charles A. Schott, of Washington, for his researches in terrestial magnetism.

RELIGIOUS NOTES.

Two of the five chancel windows to be placed in the new Holy Trinity Episcopal church, New York, have arrived from Munich. Each window is said to have cost $5,000.

A thanksgiving service because of the banishment of alcoholic liquors from the army and navy was conducted at one of the leading Baptist churches in New York last Sunday.

A retired clergyman in Philadelphia has advertised that, for a consideration, he will attend to marriages, baptisms, and funerals in families not associated with any church.

All the Protestant ministers of New Brunswick, N. J., have formed an organization to defeat the war lottery, "No Sunday funerals." They argue that the usual Sunday duties demand all their time and strength.

Services were started recently and will be held every Sunday hereafter in Temple Beth-El, New York. It is announced that the purpose of holding these services is to reach the young, but that there is no intention to weaken the regard for the traditional Jewish Sabbath.

Miss Ida Hayes, for six years a missionary of the foreign mission board of the Southern Baptist convention at Sattillo, Mex., has been appointed by the American Baptist Home Missionary society to work in Porto Rico.

The most conspicuous Protestant evangelizing work in Spain is said to be that of a woman society, under the direction of Pastor Fritz Fliedner. This society has in Madrid, besides the chapel, schools for boys and girls and smaller children, a kindergarten, boys' and girls' orphanages, and a higher school with three classes.

The American Swedenborg society, with headquarters in New York, is mailing to ministers and theological students copies of Swedenborg's "The Heaven of Arcana," translated into English. This work is an explication of the first eleven chapters of Genesis, and is claimed to throw much light on the other world and the life after death. The society has also had photographed some of the most important of the Swedenborg manuscripts. It is printing these from plates upon sheepskin, binding them, and presenting them to public libraries and to libraries of colleges.

HIGH LIGHTS.

As soon as a boy quits being rocked to sleep he begins to fall in love.

War is no picnic; but people always come home from picnics looking as if they had been to war.

A man who travels never takes along clothes enough; the woman who travels always takes too many.

No man can serve two masters; but many a one has to obey his mother, his wife and three daughters.

When a woman picks out an ice chest she invariably chooses one that isn't big enough to hold a watermelon.

When a man can't sleep at night he hates to admit it; but a woman who can't sleep goes around next day bragging about it.—Chicago Record.

COLLEGE GIRLS TALKED.

PLEASANT AFTERNOON ARRANGED BY THE BRANCH ALLIANCE.

Various Phases of College Life Discussed in an Interesting Manner—Tea Served and Chat Enjoyed at Close.

The regular meeting of the Branch Alliance was held at the Unitarian church Monday afternoon. The feature of the meeting was that it was given up to several young women in this city who are graduates of some of the leading American colleges, and through the reading of several papers the objects, aims, ideals, influences intellectual, social and religious opportunities, were related in an entertaining manner. The several colleges represented were Bryn Mawr, Vassar, Badeliff, Framingham Normal School, Pratt Institute and Smith. An interesting feature was a paper telling of student life in Paris among the American girls.

The papers treated of many pleasing features in student life among young women, of the social clubs, societies, etc., and of the plan of self-government adopted by several colleges. After the reading of the papers an informal discussion was enjoyed *by all present, and many points of ad*vantage were brought out.

After the meeting a tea and social time was enjoyed by all. Miss Conklin gave the tea, assisted by several of the young women.

WAS BICYCLE STOLEN?

GEORGE LEWIS WILL HAVE TO ANSWER TO GRAND JURY.

Harvey Apgar Accuses Colored Man of Committing the Theft—Lewis Says He Found the Wheel in His Yard.

A somewhat complicated case was given a hearing last Monday before Justice Mattison, of the borough, wherein George Lewis, colored, who has served a term in State Prison, was arraigned on a charge of stealing a bicycle owned by Harvey Apgar, of this city. On the evidence produced the Justice held Lewis for the Grand Jury.

It appears that Tuesday, April 4th, Harvey Apgar was working for Michael Whelan at the latter's home on Brook avenue. He rode his wheel to his place of employment, and when he completed his task and went to look for his wheel it was not to be found. The next morning Lewis was seen riding down Somerset street toward Front street on the wheel. At the corner of Chatham street Lewis met Whelan, who eyed him suspiciously. The latter asked Whelan if he recognized the wheel.

Whelan said that it belonged to Harvey Apgar. Lewis immediately gave up the wheel to Whelan who put it in Zoller's store until his return from work that night.

Lewis says that he was on his way to the home of Marshal Campbell to tell him about the wheel. When arranged last evening Lewis said that he found the wheel by the back door of his house on Manning avenue, and that he was looking for the owner.

PAY YOUR TAXES OR YOU WILL BE SENT TO JAIL.

BOROUGH OFFICIALS DETERMINED.

All Poll and Personal Tax Delinquents to be Notified to Settle Immediately.

Collector George F. Brown, of the borough, will start in sometime this week to serve notices on persons owing personal and poll tax. If they do not settle they will be arrested on a warrant to be issued by Justice Crossley. This move is made according to the action of the Mayor and Council at the last meeting, when Mr. Rogers introduced a resolution authorizing the collection of these taxes under the law which empowers the officials to collect or arrest. There are between two and three hundred people in the borough who owe such taxes, and no doubt there will be some excitement before all the money is collected.

A Heavy Judgment.

Monday before Justice Mattison, of the borough, N. P. Walters, of Cook county, Illinois, secured judgment against S. B. Corby, of North Plainfield, for $145.13, the full amount claimed. Lawyer Whitfield A. Anglemman represented the plaintiff. The defendant did not put in an appearance.

Public Schools Open Again.

The sessions in the Plainfield Public Schools were resumed Monday after the spring vacation. There was a good attendance reported at all the schools. The regular routine of work was resumed at once.

An Informal Tea.

Mrs. John Clapp, of Mercer avenue, gave an informal tea Monday afternoon, in honor of her guest, Mrs. Griswold, of Wicksford, Mass She was assisted by a number of friends from Washington Park.

Plainfielders at Atlantic City.

Among the guests registered at Haddon Hall, Atlantic City, are the following from Plainfield: A. S. Patterson and family, Mr. and Mrs. St. John McCutchen and R.V. Lindabury and wife, of Elizabeth.

A Prominent Physician.

A prominent New York physician in discussing the merits of Ripans Tabules with a brother M. D. said: "Several years ago I asserted that if one wished to become a philanthopist, and do a beneficent deed—one that would help the whole human race—nothing could be better than to procure the Roosevelt Hospital prescription, which is the basis of the Ripans Tabules, and cause to be put up in the form of a lozenge and distributed among the poor."

Sales Increasing.

The largest retail drug store in America is that of Hegeman & Co. on Broadway in New York City. A reporter who went there to learn how Ripans Tabules were selling bought a five-cent carton and asked:

"Do you have much call for these?"

He was referred to a gentleman who proved to be the head of the department.

He said:

"The sale of Ripans Tabules is constant and is increasing, due mostly to the influence of the reports of the testimonials in the daily press, and growing out of these, through the recommendation of friend to friend. Satisfaction with them is very general. When once they are begun I notice that a permanent customer for them is made. This, I believe, is through their intrinsic merit, which proves the bona fide character of the advertising. I think them specially useful in the general run of stomach troubles."

TEN FOR FIVE CENTS. R·I·P·A·N·S ONE GIVES RELIEF

An Elderly Lady.

An elderly lady living at Fordham Heights, a part of New York City, and who was known to be a warm advocate of Ripans Tabules for any case of liver trouble or indigestion, said to a reporter who visited her for the purpose of learning the particulars of her case that "I had always employed a physician and did so on the last occasion I had for one, but at that time obtained no beneficial results. I had grown to have my faith in patent medicines, but having seen Ripans Tabules recommended very highly in the New York Herald concluded to give them a trial, and found they were just what my case demanded. I have never employed a physician since, and find the item a saving of $2 a call. A dollar's worth of Ripans Tabules lasts me a month, and I would not be without them now if it were my last dollar." And at the time of this interview there were present two daughters who specially objected to their mother giving a testimonial which should parade her name in the newspapers, but in the this the elder lady replied: "There may be other cases just like mine, and I am sure I take great pleasure in recommending the Tabules to any one afflicted as I was. If the telling about my case in the papers enables some other person similarly affected to be as greatly benefited as I have been, I see no objection." The daughters, knowing how earnestly she felt about the benefit she had received, decided she was quite right.

A new style package containing five RIPANS TABULES has just been placed on the market. This is intended to supply the demand for a low priced preparation. One dozen of the five cent packets (12 tabules) can be had by mail by sending forty-eight cents (four cents extra for postage) to the Ripans Chemical Co., No. 10 Spruce street, New York. Ripans Tabules may also be had of some druggists. The five cent packet may be had of druggists generally. Ten cents will be sent for the twelve cent packet, as mentioned above.

VICK SEEDS

Bulbs and Plants have proved to thousands of satisfied customers that Vick's Seeds grow. To celebrate the 50th year in business we have issued a Special Golden Wedding Edition of which is a work of art. It has 24 pages lithographed in colors, a paper unusually fine, and nearly 100 pages filled with handsome illustrations of Flowers, Vegetables, Plants, Fruits, etc., elegantly bound in white and gold. A special Catalogue relating to everything in our specialty on all subjects pertaining to the garden, with cuts for the above, will be sent free to all who write for it, if a card is desirable. It is too expensive to give away indiscriminately. Send 15 cents for the Guide and you will have a good garden to have a copy, therefore we will send the Guide with a DUE BILL for 25 cents worth of flower or garden seeds, for 15cts

Vick's Garden and Floral Guide

It tells how credit is given for full amount of purchase to buy other seeds. . . . . .

Vick's Little Gem Catalogue

A perfect little gem of a price list. It is simply the Guide condensed, finely illustrated, FREE and in small space. . . . . .

Vicks Monthly Magazine,

enlarged, improved, and up to date as all subjects relating to Gardening, Horticulture, etc. Regular subscription, 50 cents a year.

Special 1899 offer—the Magazine one year and Vick's Garden and Floral Guides, for 25 cents.

OUR NEW PLAN of selling Vegetable Seeds gives you more for your . . . money than any other seed house in America.

JAMES VICKS SONS, ROCHESTER, N. Y.

Everything for the Garden

Sweet Peas the choicest,
Fancy Lawn Grass Seeds
and odorless Lawn Dressing.

Telephone Call, 6.

A. M. GRIFFEN'S,

119 East Front st.

FARMERS' WIVES

or any other ladies who wish to work

Can Earn Lots of Money

working for us in spare time at home on our cloths. We offer you a good chance to make plenty of spending money easily, in leisure hours. Send 12c. for cloth and full directions for work, and commence at once. Cloth sent anywhere. Address

WINOOSKET CO. (225 C) Boston, Mass. Mfg. Dept.

ALFRED SPEER,
THE ORIGINAL
Port Grape Wine Producer in America.

The first native wine sold and used in San Francisco and Sacramento was from Speer's Passaic, N. J., vineyards. It was shipped around Cape Horn before there was any railroad to California, and *are now being used by physi*cians and first families there as the richest and best wine to be had

The juice of the Portugal Port Wine grape grown in N. J. is thick and rich same as the juice of pears and other fruits grown here. From California pears you can squeeze water as from a sponge; so with all fruits grown in California while those grown in New Jersey are solid in substance—less juice but thick and richer. The New Jersey apples, for instance, make a cider that was always popular the world over. If you want a wine for sickness or for entertainments don't take cheap, watery wines but choose a first class old, full bodied, high grade wine from Speer's Passaic vineyards. Sold by Druggists.

WEBSTER'S INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY

Best for the Household.

Words are easily found. Pronunciation is easily ascertained. Meanings are easily learned. The growth of words is easily traced, and preference of quality rather than superfluity of quantity characterizes its every department.

Specimen pages sent on application to G. & C. MERRIAM CO., Publishers, Springfield, Mass.

DIME

Savings Institution,

Of Plainfield, N. J.,

Is now receiving deposits payable on demand, and interest, allowed on all sums from $5 to $3,000.

J. FRANK HUBBARD, President,
GEO. W. ROCKFELLOW, Vice-Pres.
J. C. POPE, Treasurer.

Money deposited on or before January 10th will draw interest from the 1st first.

SEEDS ... FOR THE ... Garden and Farm

Vegetable and Flower Seeds. All the newest and best varieties—quality unsurpassed. Illustrated Catalogue FREE.

WEEBER & DON, Seed Merchants and Growers,
114 Chambers St., New York City.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

VOL. XXXII. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, APRIL 20, 1899. NO. 16.

"Support the Constitution, Which is the Cement of the Union, as Well in Its Limitations as in Its Authorities."—Madison.

MINISTERS SHOULD NOT WED DIVORCED PERSONS

So Committee Reported to Presbytery of Elizabeth.

A DISCUSSION YESTERDAY.

SESSION OF THE PRESBYTERY CONTINUED HERE YESTERDAY.

Pabell Meeting Held Tuesday Night—Work in the New Possessions Described—What is Being Done in Northwest—Licenses to Preach Granted to Two Candidates—Routine Matters Discussed

At 2 o'clock Tuesday the afternoon session of the Presbytery of Elizabeth came to order in the First Presbyterian church for the transaction of business. The narrative of the state of religion, showing the spiritual condition of the various churches in the Presbytery, was read, and showed that Elizabeth and Rahway were the only churches making much special effort along the lines alluded to.

All the churches seem to be giving statedly and systematically to the various boards of the church. An obituary notice on the death of Rev. John Gilleskie, of Elizabeth, who died February 16th, was read by Rev. John T. Kerr, who was appointed to draw it up.

The committee appointed to report on ministers marrying divorced persons of either sex, read their report in which they condemned the practice, but the discussion on this subject was laid over until the morning session.

The delegates were entertained at supper, and a few who remained over night were taken care of by the members of the First Presbyterian church.

The evening service was a public one and was addressed by two men interested in missions, Rev. Dr. John Fox, the newly elected secretary of the American Bible Society, and Rev. Mr. Dilworth, a home missionary.

Dr. Fox spoke of the work of the society in America, and told something of the work being done in our new possessions, Cuba, Porto Rico, and the Philippine Islands. Rev. A. J. McKee is now in Porto Rico, and during the few months he has been there two churches have been founded and three Sunday-schools established. Mr. McKee was formerly in Cuba and did good work there.

The Bible has been translated into several of the languages used by the natives in the Philippines, and there is an agent all ready to sail for those Islands to preach the Gospel. Soon after the war the Chinese agent, Rev. John B. Hykes, took a trip to the Philippines, and published his report in a little pamplet, which Dr. Fox had with him Tuesday night.

Mr. Hykes says that Spanish priests virtually rule the people. The friars are impure and evil to a frightful extent, and compel the islanders to obey their whims and caprices altogether. While at Manilla the agent had talks with Admiral Dewey, General Otis and also with Aguinaldo, and all express themselves, the report says, in favor of the missionaries.

Mr. Hykes goes on to say that "it would be monstrous to turn the Philippine Islands back to Spain. It would be a great blunder to grant them independence. The only thing for the United States to do is to keep the whole archipelago, and grant the people good government and religious liberty."

Mr. Dilworth has been a missionary in Oregon, and lived for some time among the woods and along the shores of Puget Sound, in that state. He described the missionary's life in that country, and had such a humorous way of telling his story, and told things that Eastern people never dreamed of happening to a missionary, that his address was one of the best addresses on that subject that could have been given. He was a second Mark Twain in his stories of Western life, and running through all he said was a touch of sadness, for his faithful man of God lost his health, his contact with cultured people, and even his family in his work for the master.

The business transacted yesterday was of a routine nature, and the discussion on the divorce question did not come up. The meeting closed yesterday afternoon, and some time before adjournment the matter will be considered.

James E. Lowe, of Dunellen, complained to the Presbytery because the session of the church there refused to accept the resignation to an elective office, and a committee was given this matter to consider. They concluded it would be best to lay it over until the fall meeting.

William B. Hamilton, of Elizabeth, and John F. Dobbs, of Liberty Corner,

CONTINUED ON PAGE 5

TO PAY WAGES IN CALICO

INDUSTRIAL PROJECT OF MR. AND MRS. BOOTH, MISSIONARIES.

They Propose to Start a Coffee Plantation in Africa in Connection With Evangelizing the Natives There.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Booth sailed yesterday en route for Africa, on the American liner City of Paris. Mr. and Mrs. Booth are being sent out as missionaries by the Sabbath Evangelizing and Industrial Association, which has headquarters in this city.

It is the intention of Mr. and Mrs. Booth to purchase 500 acres of land in the Dark Continent and start a coffee plantation. They have taken along $500 worth of calico with which to pay the natives for their labor, and soon expect to make the plantation self-supporting.

The evangelical work among the natives will be done at the same time, and in this way they hope to do good work. The colony will be a Seventh Day Baptist one and will observe the seventh day of the week as their Sabbath, just as the members of the denomination here do.

FUNERAL OF MRS. FOX.

Held Tuesday Afternoon — Interment was at Scotch Plains.

The funeral services of the late Mrs. Phebe Fox, aged ninety-five years, who died Saturday evening last, were held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Gray, Elmwood place, and were well attended by relatives, friends and neighbors.

Rev. Mr. Shotts, pastor of the Scotch Plains Baptist church, where the departed was a member, officiated. He dwelt at some length upon the exemplary Christian life and character of the departed. In the course of his remarks he stated that a strange coincidence was that the first funeral service he had in New York was that of a relative of Mrs. Fox, and the first service he held since coming to this locality was that of Mrs. Fox.

There was a beautiful display of flowers from relatives and friends. The interment was in the Baptist cemetery at Scotch Plains, and those who served as bearers were Amos Gray, Herbert Overbaugh, Walter Overbaugh, of this city, and Mr. Dow, of Elizabeth.

Results of Benefit.

The efforts of the members of Stone Squar Lodge, F. and A. M., to aid their fellow Mason, James Walker, who has been in the Muhlenberg Hospital so long, have met with success. At the benefit, held in Washington Hall, last week, the gross receipts were $72.15. The expenses were $32.15, leaving a balance of $40. A donation of $11 was made for the same object by the Mt. Olive Baptist church. The total sum of $51 will be turned over to Mr. Walker at once.

To Buy Their Own Property.

The Independent Shooting Club are tired of leasing grounds to be used for range shooting, and have decided to purchase a piece of property for their own use. A committee was appointed at the last meeting of the club with instructions to look about for a suitable piece of ground, and open negotiations to purchase it. The committee have the option on a piece of property in Washington Valley, which will probably suit them, and a report will be made upon it at the next meeting.

A Solitary Offender.

There was a solitary offender before City Judge Runyon yesterday. He gave his name as Michael Fields and was arrested by Patrolman Higgins last night for being drunk and disorderly. He explained to the Judge that he had met a friend whom he had not seen before for eight years and they celebrated the reunion by a too frequent visit to the cups. As he was usually a peaceful citizen, the Judge suspended sentence.

Child in Nest of Snakes.

Bound Brook, April 19—Mary Dufour, 3 years old, while playing in a field near her house yesterday, accidentally stepped into a nest of copperhead snakes. Not knowing what they were, she called her mother, who saw many of the poisonous reptiles crawling around, partly in a dormant state, in which they had been all winter. Help was called and nineteen of them were killed.

To Attend a Smoker.

At the meeting of John Hand Camp, No. 28, Sons of Veterans, held last Tuesday, an invitation was received and accepted to attend a smoker to be given by the Sons of Veterans of New Brunswick next week. A report of progress was received from the soldiers' monument committee.

—Housekeepers should take advantage of the reduction of fifteen per cent in the prices of all high-grade canned goods at Neuman Brothers.

ENJOYED A SOCIAL TIME.

PROTECTIVE CONCLAVE, ORDER OF HEPTASOPHS, HAD A GOOD TIME.

William A. Westphal in Charge of Correspondence—Supreme Lodge Officers Unable to be There—There Were Other Speakers.

Protective Conclave, No. 505, Improved Order of Heptasophs, entertained their friends last Tuesday by giving a social entertainment in their rooms in Exempt Firemen's Hall on Park avenue. There was a good-sized audience present, including a large number of women. William A. Westphal, as chairman of the affair, was in charge. He welcomed the guests in a neat speech, and announced that he regretted very much to say that Messrs. Jones and Hipp, Supreme Lodge officers, could not be present on account of illness, but that there were officers of the home lodge present who would have something to say regarding the objects of the order.

The programme opened with several selections on a phonograph given by Fred Sebring, and during the evening this formed an appreciative feature of the affair. There were remarks by V. W. Nash, F. C. Lounsbury and Wm. Newcorn, in which they set forth the excellent objects of the Heptasophs, and told of the many advantages to be derived in being a member. Other features of the programme were recitations by Ada Westphal and Nellie LaRue, while Ethel Reynolds gave a pleasing vocal solo.

After the presentation of the programme the committee in charge served refreshments. The affair was of the best and the hospitality of the members of the lodge was greatly appreciated by the guests who accepted of it.

RECEPTION TO THE PASTOR.

Informal Affair In Vincent Chapel in Honor of Return of Rev. Dr. Snodgrass.

Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass will continue in charge of his flock at the First M. E. church for another year. Last Tuesday, there was a rallying of the members of the congregation for a general hand-shaking and congratulation over his return. It took the form of an informal reception, held in Vincent chapel, last evening, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society.

The announcement was only given out Sunday, and, as it happened to be rainy, there were many who did not know of the reception. Consequently, the attendance was not as large as it would have otherwise been. There was quite a crowd out, however, Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Snodgrass, Miss Persis Snodgrass, Miss Lillian Snodgrass and Rev. Orrin W. Snodgrass, of Westbrook, Conn., were all present, the other members of the family being absent from the city.

There was no programme. Miss Mulford, of East Orange, sang several solos, and refreshments were served by the members of the Ladies' Aid Society.

JUBILEE SINGERS ENTERTAINED.

Successful Entertainment at the Monroe Avenue Church Tuesday Evening.

The Jubilee Singers, four colored women and a little colored child, gave very enjoyable musical programme at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church last Tuesday. The affair was the first entertainment held by the circle of King's Daughters at the church. The programme included solos and choruses and included a number of the famous old jubilee songs. They were well rendered and much enjoyed by the audience.

CHANGE ON THE CENTRAL.

Carpenter Shops to Be Moved From Jersey City to Somerville.

The Central Railroad Company has decided to remove their carpenter shops from Jersey City to Somerville, using a part of the long building opposite the station for their workshop and office, and the adjoining ground for their lumber yard. Their present superintendent, G. Q. Dolliver, will be retained and continue to serve the company as in the past.

The Sword for Sampson Not Chosen.

Trenton, April 19.—There is friction between the members of the commission appointed by the Legislature to buy a sword for presentation to Rear-Admiral Sampson. Governor Voorhees and Senator Ketcham dislike the design of the sword furnished by a Philadelphia house, and favor a design submitted by Tiffany & Co., of New York. The commission met today, and there was a deadlock on the award of the contract. The commission will meet again next week and try to settle the matter. The sword chosen will cost $2,000.

To Assist Relief Association.

Friday evening a literary and musical entertainment will be given in All Souls church, Park avenue, for the benefit of the Plainfield Relief Association

THE LOST IS FOUND; PASTOR WILL MARRY.

His Affianced Bride Went to His Sister's Home.

AND DIDN'T NOTIFY PASTOR.

GEORGE VOEHL FOUND HER THERE TUESDAY AFTERNOON.

This Afternoon Mark Pastor and His Bride, Miss Georgina Mongionetto, Just Arrived From Italy, Were Wedded in New York—Great Rejoicing When the Missing Young Woman Was Found

Mark Pastor's hopes are now realized. Unless some sudden obstacle intervenes he will be married to the young woman of his choice this afternoon. They would have been married Monday only the young woman mysteriously disappeared and was not found until Tuesday night.

The circumstances of Pastor's hopes and the disappearance of his affianced bride was related exclusively in Tuesday's Daily Press. Pastor is a driver for George Voehl, the West Front street baker, and was expecting Georgina Mongionetto on the French liner La Touraine. She reached the harbor in safety but in his attempt to meet her at the immigrant depot at Ellis Island, they were separated in the rush and hurry and she left without meeting him.

Before departing she had told the agent that she was going to Plainfield. So he told Pastor when the latter inquired for his expected bride. But she didn't come to Plainfield and Pastor hunted for her in vain.

Tuesday afternoon, Pastor and his group yet went to New York with the intention of informing the authorities there. Now Pastor has a married sister who lives in East Orange. Miss Mongionetto knew her and where she lived. Mr. Voehl suggested that it would be well to look there before reporting the matter. He went to East Orange Tuesday afternoon and there, sure enough, was the young woman, wondering why Pastor was so slow in coming to meet her.

There was a time of great rejoicing when Pastor found that the young woman was not lost in the wilds of New York or Hoboken.

PAID FARE WITH HIS LIFE

TRAMP KILLED IN A WRECK ON THE CENTRAL.

Train Broke In Two Near Lebanon and When Two Sections Came Together the Cars Were Badly Wrecked and Strewn.

A wreck occurred on the Central Railroad at Lebanon Monday night about 11 o'clock, which delayed travel on the freight and coal tracks for a few hours. An East bound coal train, drawn by engine No. 322, and in charge of Conductor Stewart McBurth, of Phillipsburg, and Engineer George B. Martin, broke in two just west of the station, because of a bad axle, and piled up the wreckage in a great heap on the outside tracks.

Just east of the station the rear end of the train came crashing into the forward end, and piled up some more cars. It was several hours before the debris was cleared away.

Three tramps were riding in one of the cars, and one of them was instantly killed. He was apparently a German, although he was so mangled and crushed that his features could scarcely be seen. From one of the others it was learned that he was about twenty-one years of age, and had only been in this country a few months. The remains were turned over to the county, and buried yesterday.

BOY RETURNED HOME.

Little Oliver Peel Agrees to Go to His Mother.

Little Oliver Peel, the ten-year-old boy who ran away from home and was subsequently turned over to the police and brought before City Judge Runyon Monday morning, has returned to his home once more. When the case was brought to the attention of City Judge Runyon he put it in the hands of Overseer of the Poor Hansen. The latter found a home for the lad, where he was to go Tuesday.

Meanwhile the mother of the child saw the authorities and the lad expressed a willingness to return to his home again and resume his old duties. Deeming home the best place for him Judge Runyon sent the boy there.

Bishop to Officiate.

Right Rev. John Scarborough, the Bishop of the diocese, will officiate in the Church of the Heavenly Rest Monday evening next at 8 o'clock.

—Work has been started on Councilman Henry Leifke's new barn in the rear of Trinity Reformed church.

RAILROADED TO ASYLUM

NEW BRUNSWICK MAN'S PLIGHT AROUSES INDIGNATION.

Suddenly Taken From His Business and Sent to Asylum—Friends Believe He is Sane—An Investigation to be Made.

New Brunswick, April 19.—Peter Jones, a fish dealer, of Easton avenue, has been taken into custody by Constable Townsend on a warrant or commitment of Judge Strong and taken to the insane asylum at Trenton. The case has aroused the most intense excitement among the residents of the vicinity, and strenuous efforts are to be made to secure the release of Jones. His friends declare that he is sane, and that there are no grounds whatever for his commitment to the insane asylum.

A number of prominent people of the city who have been customers of Jones have interested themselves in the matter and the affair will be brought to the attention of the courts and of the management of the asylum. Jones is a man of middle age and has been considered somewhat eccentric. It is claimed that this was due to domestic trouble.

He was at work in his shop when the constable entered, placed handcuffs on his wrists and took him to Trenton on the next train. Jones protested loudly and created a scene. Investigation of the matter discloses the fact that Freeholder Michael McFadden indorsed the application for a commission of physicians. The application was made by relatives of the man. Drs. Skillman and Meacham examined him and on their evidence Jones was committed by Judge Strong.

Dr. Meacham said that the examination had been brief and that the commitment was a probationary one. While Jones is at the asylum an expert examination will be made, and at the end of ten days he will be either released or permanently committed. Dr. Atkinson, of Hardenbergh street, has interested himself in the matter, and he and a number of others are working to have Jones released.

FIRST WEDDING ANNIVERSARY.

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Martell and Friends Had a Pleasant Time.

A pleasant event occurred in the borough Tuesday when Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Martell, of Cedar place, celebrated the first anniversary of their marriage. The house was appropriately decorated for the occasion with choice spring flowers and roses.

A happy diversion from social chat was the appearance of John H. Carney, who entertained the guests with some of his best selections. Another feature was the instrumental music by Wm. Smith, of Connecticut.

Mr. and Mrs. Martell were well remembered by their relatives and friends, who brought them many handsome and useful presents as reminders of the happy event. There were present guests from New York, Brooklyn, Connecticut, Plainfield and the borough.

SUCCESSFUL REVIVAL

Evangelist Taylor Closed His Meetings at Hope Chapel.

With Tuesday's service the evangelistic meetings in Hope chapel closed. Yesterday Evangelist Taylor leaves for Newark, and later for Colgate University, where he will finish his studies. The ten days' meetings have left an impression upon all those who have attended them, and more work has been done in a quiet way than is really known about.

Over fifty young and middle-aged have risen for an interest in the prayers of the evangelist and the pastor, and there are many more who are feeling deeply on the subject of their soul's salvation. It is said by the officers of the chapel that this has been the most successful revival ever held there, and the results are looked for in the future.

NO INDICTMENT AGAINST LEHIGH.

Grand Jury Takes No Action on the West Dunellen Wreck.

New Brunswick, April 19—The Middlesex county Grand Jury of the April term ended its session and handed in its indictments yesterday afternoon.

It is understood that no indictment was found against any of the employes or officials of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, and no presentment was made relative to the fatal wreck on that road at West Dunellen in January last.

Visited the Raleigh.

Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Randolph, of Washington Park, were guests aboard the U. S. S. Raleigh at Tompkinsville last Monday, and enjoyed their trip very much.

Mrs. Winter, of East Fifth street, has recovered from a recent illness.

SUICIDE AT SOMERVILLE.

FRANK GOERNER SHOOTS HIMSELF IN HIS BROTHER-IN-LAW'S CAFE.

His Wife Had Supper Waiting for Him When Told of the Desperate Act—Employed as a Special Insurance Agent.

(Special to The Daily Press)

Somerville, April 19—Frank Goerner, aged fifty, a well-known resident, committed suicide at Kuhn's Waldorf Cafe last night by shooting himself. Mr. Goerner arrived from New York on the 6:05 train and went immediately to the Waldorf, which is kept by his brother-in-law, Lenus Kuhn. He went to a rear room, and a moment later the bartender heard a shot. He found Goerner sitting upright with a revolver in his right hand. The bullet had penetrated his right temple and had killed him instantly. Financial difficulties had led to it.

Goerner was formerly connected with the Appleton Publishing Company, in New York, but had recently been a special agent for the Prudential Insurance Company, of Newark, with headquarters at Elizabeth. When his wife was informed she had the supper table set for him.

NO TRACE OF I.R. TRACY.

He Did Not Go to the Summer Lodge in Canada, as Was Supposed.

Dr. Robert S. Tracy, the missing son of J. Evarts Tracy, of this city, has not yet been found. It will be remembered that he disappeared from a sanitarium at Saranac Lake, N. Y., last week Wednesday. A telegram was received yesterday stating that he had been seen near a cabin on the road to Lake Placid, and the searching parties hastened to that place to ascertain if he was there. Investigation disclosed the fact that the story was untrue. There was also a telegram received from Toronto, which gives the family assurance that the missing young man has not been to the summer lodge owned by his father and located in Canada.

E. C. Perkins, of this city, a member of the searching party, is expected to return home this evening, and it is to be hoped that he will have some news. Outside of this there are no new developments in the case.

SUMMIT RETURNS CORRECTED.

Board of Elections Revised Figures, But Made No Change in Result.

Elizabeth, April 19—The County Board of Elections met at the Court house this day. The Board of Registry from the Second ward of Summit was summoned before the county board. The Registry Board then revised and corrected the returns from that ward as previously sent by them to the County Board of Election. This leaves the result the same as canvassed by the election officers of the ward at the close of the voting last Tuesday, and makes no change in the election. Had it not been for this revision two school commissioners rightfully elected would have appeared on the face of the returns as defeated.

An Interesting Evening.

"An Evening of Reading and Music," to be given at All Souls' Unitarian church Friday, April 21st, promises to be an entertainment full of interest. The elocutionist, Miss Elizabeth Lord, of the Emerson School of Oratory in Boston, will be heard for the first time in Plainfield, and the programme will include also songs of Miss Caroline Minturn Hall's charming French recitations, and vocal and violin music by Plainfield musicians who are rarely induced to appear in public. The proceeds of the entertainment will be used for the benevolent work of the Women's Alliance, which is at present interested in aiding one of the charitable societies of the city in some practical details of its work.

Pay Up or Go to Jail.

New Market, April 18.—At the last meeting of the Township Committee, Robert L. Pierce was appointed delinquent tax collector, and has already started out among the delinquents to collect what is due the township. So far he has met with good success, and yesterday collected a number of what were considered worthless claims. Mr. Pierce tells them what the alternative is, either to pay up their personal taxes or go to jail.

To Compile Their Report.

In a short time Dr. Carroll, special commissioner to Porto Rico, assisted by the other members of the Commission, will commence the work of compiling his report to be presented to President McKinley.

Mr. Drake Manager Again.

Lincoln, April 19.—At a meeting of the stockholders of the New Jersey Realty Company, Silas D. Drake was re-elected General Manager of the company.

TROUBLE IN PAYING STATE VOLUNTEERS.

Quartermaster-General Donnelly is Kept Busy.

DIFFICULTY OF SAILORS.

NAVAL RESERVES' PAPERS ARE DELAYED AT WASHINGTON.

No Way Has Been Devised by Which the Sailors Will be Able to Draw State Pay Until They Can Present Their Discharges—A Great Deal of Work Before the Many Checks Can be Sent Out.

Trenton, April 19—Quartermaster-General Donnelly, acting as Paymaster General for the payment of the extra compensation of the New Jersey volunteers, is having his own troubles these days with the demands for money which are pouring in on him by every mail. The General has a force of clerks at work and has occasional help from the office of the Adjutant-General, and they all find enough to keep time from hanging on their hands.

Despite the published announcements, many of the former soldiers seem to think that they should receive their money without delay now that the money has been set aside for the payment. Every mail brings to the General requests by the dozen for the money, and only a few of the men comply with the requirements that their discharges shall accompany the letters.

Meantime the clerks in the General's office are busy looking up the record of the claimants and figuring out the amount that is due to each. When this work shall have been finished the checks will be made out and forwarded to the addresses given in the letters. It will probably be well on toward the end of the week before the checks shall be sent out, even to those of the soldiers whose discharges were sent in early.

The matter of paying the members of the Naval Reserve presents a rather more difficult problem, owing to the fact that the sailor men sent their discharges to Washington several weeks ago in order that they might receive the two months' extra or furlough pay allowed by the National Government for their services in the late war. Until the discharges are returned from the National capital the blue-jackets will be unable to comply with the requirements of the State authorities in the matter of filing their discharges with Gen. Donnelly.

The General is in receipt of a number of letters from the sailors asking him to devise some way in which they can get their money without having to wait for the National authorities to return the documents, but up to date the acting paymaster has been unable to solve the problem, and the sailormen are likely to wait until they can furnish the official evidence of their services in the late war.

TO APPRAISE LAND VALUE.

Trouble Between Rahway Men and Pennsylvania Railroad.

Former County Clerk John L. Crowell and Receiver of Taxes Charles E. Reed, of Rahway, together with former City Treasurer John W. Whelan, of Elizabeth, have been appointed a commission by Judge VanSyckel to determine the value of a piece of land on Irving street, Rahway, belonging to D. B. Dunham, a carriage manufacturer, and which the Pennsylvania Railroad took possession of in 1892 for its fourth track, and would not relinquish claim to it until beaten by Mr. Dunham in an ejectment suit brought by him against the railroad in the Union county court. Surveyor Clark, of Rahway, who died Tuesday, was the chief witness for Mr. Dunham, and his testimony decided the case against the railroad company. The commission will meet next Monday morning at the Hotel Wilson and assess the damages.

Death of Rahway's City Surveyor.

Rahway, April 19.—City Surveyor William E. Clark, of this city, died Monday afternoon at his home on Grant street. Mr. Clark was born in Rahway and was in his fifty-fifth year. He served two terms on the Union County Board of Freeholders, was a former assistant chief engineer of the Rahway Fire Department and a member of the Exempt Firemen's Association. He had been City Surveyor of Rahway about ten years.

VanEmbergh & Son

Are showing a fine line of shirt waists at 49c. A beautiful white pique waist for 98c. Children's Nazareth waists, 25c. Leather belts, 10c., 15c., and 25c. Dressmakers' furnishings, all grades. Table felt, extra heavy, 65c.

PRINCESS GOWNS.

They Are Employed For Weddings and Other Festal Wear.

Princess gowns are not to be worn by very plump or very slender women. A tall, well rounded figure is required for them and a graceful carriage. Without these accessories the princess gown loses its charm and is decidedly unbecoming. Wedding gowns are made in this style whenever the figure of the bride warrants it, and the lining, like the outside, must have no seam at the waist line, but extend unbroken from top to foot. Faille or taffeta is the usual lining chosen, as a the outside material is of but moderate quality an interlining of thin flannel is used to give richness.

RED COSTUME.

Where the princess gown is draped is front it is always easy to arrange the fastening, which may be concealed by the decoration or closed under the left arm. If the trimming does not admit of this, the fastening may be in the middle of the back by means of lacings or buttons and buttonholes. The latter method is the newest. The row of buttons is not carried up to the collar, a yoke, chemisette or fichu being so arranged as to break the line of buttons before it reaches the top.

Today's illustration shows a costume of bright red cloth. The tight skirt is entirely plain. The coat bodice has long, square tabs or basques descending to the foot of the skirt and bordered with flat bands of velvet. Similar bands decorate the bodice, mingled with black velvet buttons. The bodice opens over a blouse front of red cloth, the pointed opening at the top of the blouse being bordered with black velvet bands. The collar and plastron are of white silk. The sleeves are trimmed with velvet and buttons at the top and at the wrists. The hat of black chip is trimmed with black plumes and a knot of red velvet fastened by a gold buckle.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

SPRING STYLES.

The Fancy For Long Neck Chains Still Prevails.

Accordion plaited skirts, although not the rule, are nevertheless sanctioned by fashion, and especially the flounces which now usually encircles the foot of the skirt may be accordion plaited with green propriety. Radiating or sun plaiting, as it is called, is the preferred kind and requires, of course, that the goods should be cut in a curved form.

Long neck chains continue to be much worn, and the fashionable woman has a number of them, of varying styles, to go with different costumes. Those of gold, with infrequent studding of turquoises, diamonds and other precious stones, are less new, although more delicate than ropes of beads arranged like a rosary. Cut crystals and amethysts are favorites. A simple chain is worn with a plain gown, the richer ones being reserved to accompany visiting and theater costumes and even ball gowns, for the chain may support a fan, a watch, a lorgnette or a fan, as occasion demands. When the purse hangs loose and is in sight, it should be of an ornamental character. Pretty ones are made of gold, silver or steel links, with a round, jeweled top.

CLOTH COSTUME.

The picture shows a charming gown of mastic cloth. The skirt is long and opens in redingote style over a horizontally plaited taffeta. The redingote is bordered with applications of white guipure. The tight bolero opens over a vest of white cloth, which has a short basque. There are double revers of white cloth trimmed with applications of guipure, and between them is a plaited plastron matching the taffeta. Fancy silver buttons adorn the front of the bolero. The sleeves are plaited horizontally at the top and ornamented with guipure applications at the wrists. The hat of mat fine straw is trimmed with gray plumes.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

A POET'S HELPMEET.

HOW MRS. RUDYARD KIPLING SMOOTHS THE PATH TO FAME.

She Deals With the Clamoring Publishers and Supplies a Business Balance Wheel For the Engine of Genius—Was a Vermont Girl.

The heroism and strength of character of Mrs. Rudyard Kipling has recently been put to the test. She has shown herself to be a woman of most unusual courage and fortitude, as well as delicacy of feeling and tenderness of heart.

Mrs. Kipling is to her talented husband a helpmeet in the truest sense and is heartily in sympathy with him in his work, while performing with womanly grace and devotion the offices of wife and mother. While not in the accepted sense a literary woman, having no inclinations and ambitions for herself in that direction, she takes great interest in the productions of her husband's brain and pen and at least on one occasion was a better judge of the merit of his work than was the author himself.

But for her the literature of the world would never have been enriched with "The Recessional," which many regard as Kipling's greatest poem. The Recessional" was written, as the world knows, in London in the spring of 1897, when all England was stirred over the great imperialistic celebration in honor of Queen Victoria, but which was really an expression of national exaltation over Anglo-Saxon "dominion over palm and pine." Kipling's patriotic emotions were strongly stirred, and he sought to write worthily of the event. He was dissatisfied with what he had written, believing it to be unworthy of the greatness of the occasion and threw it into the wastebasket. Mrs. Kipling, recognizing the merit of the lines, rescued them from their place of consignment and saved the world a loss for which she is entitled to the world's gratitude.

Mrs. Kipling shares her husband's dislike of personal notoriety. Like him, she steadfastly refuses to be lionized and is little known to the public. It is said that she is practically his business manager and looks after money matters with the skill and shrewdness of a trained financier. It is intimated that she is quite competent to negotiate successfully with the sharpest of publishers and knows as well as they the value of products in the literary market.

She is quick to see the value of her husband's work as judged from a purely business point of view. If Mr. Kipling produces a dollar story she says Mrs. Kipling knows it and knows better than he how to convince the publisher of its value. If it is a $3 a word production, she recognizes its value and is pretty apt to convince the publisher that it is worth that figure.

When a publisher wishes to negotiate for a Kipling story or poem, he must confront the shrewd and coolly calculating, but dignified and courteous, Mrs. Kipling, or the correspondence therefor must be conducted through her. She is said to be an expert bookkeeper and keeps accurate account of the earnings of his various productions. She looks carefully after the royalties, the copyrights and the thousand and one details of the extensive "Kipling literary plant."

Mrs. Kipling, who was formerly Miss Balestier, comes of old New England stock, the families of both her father and mother having long been prominent in Vermont. Her father, Wolcott Balestier, is a son of Joseph Navarro Balestier, who was for a time a successful real estate lawyer in New York and a man of many social charms and accomplishments. He was a great connoisseur in wines and one of the biggest importing houses in New York used to send him rare brands and vintages to sample that they might have his judgment upon their merits. He bought large blocks of real estate in and around Brattleboro, which have greatly increased in value.

MRS. RUDYARD KIPLING.

Mrs. Kipling is also one of the heirs of the large estate of the late Judge Peshine Smith, her mother's father, who was in many respects a most remarkable man. William H. Seward once said of him that he possessed a profounder knowledge of international law than any man then living. Upon Seward's recommendation the mikado of Japan employed Judge Smith to draft commercial treaties between that country and the great nations of the world. He remained six years in Japan and completed the commercial negotiations between that country and the United States as well as with other nations.

Mr. and Mrs. Kipling, whose domestic life is extremely felicitous, have two children, Elsie and John, their eldest daughter, Josephine, to whom they were wont to playfully call their "international baby," having died during the time of Mr. Kipling's dangerous illness.

SAMUEL H. COON.

SUMMER NOVELTIES.

What Fashion Provides For Summer Wardrobes.

There are many attractive novelties in wash fabrics for shemisettes, bodices, the fronts of shirt waists and trimming purposes. These goods, which are sold by the yard, are of the finest nainsook or lawn, combined with valenciennes lace in various ways. In one case there are bands of finely tucked nainsook separated by bands of valenciennes insertion, beading or embroidery. In another the tucked bands are replaced by puffings; in another little frills of lace are sewed on the goods between the tucks. Colored batiste is sometimes used instead of white goods, and narrow strips of trimming of the same character are also shown. Embroidered swiss muslin trimmings are revived from the days of our grandmothers, and are as attractive as they are fragile.

After a season of retirement in favor of dark tan leather and kid, light tan shoes are again coming in the front and are to be worn with dark gowns of the same tint.

FOULARD GOWN.

Besides the usual laced low shoe, with a moderately heavy extension sole and a round toe, there are very attractive slippers with high heels, thin soles, a flat which comes over the top of the foot and a big, dull gold buckle. These are cool for summer wear and highly becoming to a pretty foot, although it is an open question whether tan or black stockings look better with them. There is a momentary fancy for tan openwork hosiery of fine lisle thread or silk.

The foulard gown illustrated has a skirt draped as the left side under three gored box plaits. The edge is bordered with russet guipure. The bodice has a yoke of russet guipure over violet taffeta, and is tight fitting, while in front it is draped at the left side with a crystal buckle. The coquilles of the drapery are lined with violet taffeta and bordered with guipure. The collar is lined with puffings of white mousseline de soie. The tight sleeves have wrist frills of guipure, and the pointed bels is of violet taffeta. The hat of mauve straw is trimmed with a chou of tulle and a curling plume, the brim being lined with tulle ruches.

JUDIC CHOLLET

FASHION HINTS.

Ruches, Bows and Other Attractive Novelties.

Neck ruches of flowers alone or of flowers mingled with gauze and ribbons are worn, and it is considered desirable to have the flowers match those in the hat, or be at least of the same color. Parma violets or the very dark ones, whole roses or petals of roses, camellias and large pinks, are the favorite flowers, and the ends of the bow are of plaited silk or mousseline de soie and bows of ribbon. Feather boas of mingled light and dark plumage are also much liked—some of the combinations being rose and brown, dark blue and light blue, red and white and gray and white.

A spring novelty for the neck consists of a vitos collar lined with shirred silk or mousseline de soie and bordered with a fine garland or cord of flowers.

The employment of mousseline de soie is extensive. The messy little ruches made of it which have been so much seen during the winter as a trimming for silk, satin and velvet, have now extended to woolen garments, and capes of heavy cloth are actually adorned with motifs designed of this perishable and fragile looking decoration.

NOVEL BODICE.

The bodice illustrated is of turquoise broche silk and is very tight fitting. It has a high, pointed corselet of black velvet, from the top of which bands of black velvet are carried obliquely across the bust and shoulders. These bands are fastened at the ends by steel buttons. The sleeves are of black velvet nearly to the shoulder, the upper part and a band at the waist being of the turquoise silk, crossed by velvet bands. The black velvet collar has flaring scallops at the top, and there is a black velvet cravat. Flaring cuffs of turquoise silk finish the wrists.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

THE SUPREME PONTIFFS.

There Have Been 263. With an Average Reign of Seven Years.

Leo XIII entered upon the nineteenth year of his reign March 3 and the twenty-second of his supreme pontificate Feb. 20. Two hundred and sixty-two pontiffs have preceded Leo XIII, but of these only seven have occupied it for 21 years.

The average length of a papal reign is but little more than seven years. Ten popes died within a month after their election, and the shortest reign in the history of the papacy is that of St. Stephen II, which lasted only three days.

Of the 262 popes who preceded Leo XIII 88 have been canonized or beatified. Twelve popes have borne the name of Leo, and of the Leos five have been canonized as saints.

Leo X, the patron of Michael Angelo and Raphael and the great promoter of the revival of learning, was the youngest pontiff elected during the last 500 years, having been only 38 years of age, whereas the average age of popes at their election—at least during this period—has been about 60 years.

Of the 57 cardinals living 31 are Italian, 7 French, 5 Spanish, 4 Austrian-Hungarian, 3 German, 1 Pole, 1 American, 1 Belgian, 1 Irish, 1 English, 1 Swiss and 1 Australian.

Pope Leo has created 117 cardinals, and during his pontificate 133 cardinals have passed away. Not a solitary member of the sacred college to which he was admitted by Pius IX, 46 years ago, is now living.—Freeman's Journal.

HERMITS OF ST. AUGUSTINE.

A Branch of the Ancient Order Established in New York.

Archbishop Corrigan has granted permission to the order of Hermits of St. Augustine of the Catholic Church to establish a branch in New York, and early in May the order will take formal possession of their convent at New Brighton, N. Y., which was built by the Sisters of the Visitation, but proved unsatisfactory for their purposes.

Mgr. Martinelli, until his appointment as nuncio, delegate to the United States, was general of the Augustinians. The order is of great antiquity and was founded by St. Augustine, bishop of Hippo. Martin Luther was a member of their community. In the sixteenth century the Augustinians had 600 friaries, with 30,000 friars. In England their most celebrated house was at Oxford. It was the home of Erasmus when he visited the university.

They were the first missionaries in our new possessions in the Philippines, where their friars are the numerical rivals of the Franciscans.

The first foundation of the order in the United States was made in Philadelphia in 1796 by Father Matthew Carr and Father John Rossetti. They commenced the erection of St. Augustine's church in September of that year. Among the subscribers to the building fund were George Washington and Stephen Girard. A member of the order, the Rev. Philip Larkey, according to the Catholic Almanac, celebrated the first mass in what is now the borough of Brooklyn.

A New Church In Rome.

The Dominican fathers in Rome, aided by the great and princely charity of the sovereign pontiff, are building a new Church of the Rosary in one of those extensive and rising suburbs of the Eternal City where priests and churches are few and the people sunk in the extreme poverty and wretchedness brought about by the grinding taxation and mad extravagance of the present usurping Italian government.—London Catholic News.

The Cell of St. Vincent.

The Lazare prison in Paris is not to be destroyed, as has been reported. Instead, it is being "restored" to preserve its ancient character as far as consistent with daily use. The prison was formerly a monastery. The cell in which St. Vincent de Paul passed the last 28 years of his life is still preserved as a chapel by the sisters of the Congregation de Marie Joseph.

Don't Blame God.

It is wrong to suggest that God is responsible for one's cheerfulness or despondency. God has given enough to every person to make him glad hearted if he will look at the things he has for which he ought to be grateful.

PERSONAL.

Bishop Wigger of Newark, N. J., is in poor health and has gone to Bermuda, where he will remain until April.

The Rev. Mother Digby, the mother general of the Society of the Sacred Heart, is now in America visiting the convents of the Sacred Heart in the United States and Canada.

The Rev. John W. Shanahan of Philadelphia, whom the pope has just designated bishop of Harrisburg, to succeed his brother, has for a long time been superintendent of the parochial school system of the archdiocese.

The Rev. Alexander V. Aschberg, S. J., of the Church of the Holy Trinity, Boston, has just been made the recipient of a medal from the emperor of Germany for faithful devotion to duty in the France-Prussian war of 1870.

Prince Maximilian of Saxony has been appointed curate in the chief Catholic church of Nuremberg, and, having put aside his title, will be known as Dr. Wettin. This is the surname of the family which has filled a throne in Saxon times and the nineteenth century.

The Rev. Father Thomas P. McLoughlin, the "singer priest" of the Church of the Transfiguration in Mott street, New York city, has set out to reclaim the unfortunate women of Chinatown.

Rev. Dr. Morrissey, president of the University of Notre Dame, Wisconsin, is on a visit to Rome.

ADVICE TO PARENTS.

INSPIRE YOUR CHILDREN WITH A LOVE OF VIRTUE.

Impress Upon Their Young Minds That This Life Is Not the End, but Only a Means by Which to Win Eternal Happiness In Heaven.

It were in vain that we endeavor to regulate the temper of children without the powerful aid of religion, which gives us just views of the objects around us and inspires dispositions corresponding to those views. The misfortune is that men are misled by false estimates; hence they discern not things as they really are, but suffer themselves to be imposed upon by the outward appearances. The best rule that parents can give to direct the judgment of their children is to impress on their minds this important truth; that we are here in this world only for a short time; that in the next we shall live forever, either happy in heaven or miserable in hell, and, therefore, whatever securely conducts to heaven is to be esteemed good, but whatever turns us from it and leads us to hell is evil and to be avoided in like manner; whatever puts us in danger of losing heaven, whatever makes the way to it more difficult, is not valued nor eagerly sought after.

If children were taught to bring all worldly objects to this test, they would then, make a true judgment of their value. But if, on the contrary, they consult only the world instead of the gospel, their judgment of things will be just the reverse, and they will consider the objects of pleasure, of avarice and of pride as alone worthy of their esteem and pursuit.

In order to elevate the minds of children above sensual objects parents and instructors should often recall their attention to the following great principles of religion:

You believe in a God infinitely powerful, but do you pay him that respect and obedience which you owe him?

You believe God to be infinitely just and that he hateth sin. How, then, can you expect that your sinful actions will escape his terrible vengeance and indignation?

You believe God to be infinitely good. But what do you do to testify a grateful sense of the love toward you and induce him to bestow on you new favors and blessings?

You allow that you would not be a Christian if you doubted the mystery of the incarnation—that is, the mystery of God the Son being made man?

You believe that his infinite love brought him down from heaven to suffer and die on the cross in order to cleanse us from sin, to deliver us from hell and to open to the kingdom of heaven. Can you, then, be ashamed or afraid to make any profession of faith in the same divine faith likewise teaches that we must humble ourselves and deny ourselves and carry our cross after the example of our crucified Lord. And how, then, can we flatter ourselves that we are truly his disciples if we are so afraid of the least humiliation and suffering and so impatient under them?

By what means can you hope to partake of the merits of Christ's precious blood if you profane it by remaining in sin and neglect those holy sacraments which he ordained for the sanctification of our souls?

You wish to go to heaven. But how can you expect to gain that glorious kingdom if instead of loving God you suffer your heart to be enslaved by brutal passions and lusts?

When you do good actions, are diligent in Christian exercises, are sober, modest, etc., all this is highly praiseworthy and entitles you to the esteem and applause of men. But must this be the only or chief motive of such like actions? No, certainly, for in this case you would receive your recompense in this world. The practice only is Christian, which proceeds from Christian motives. Wherefore, a good Christian should always raise his views higher and perform his actions with the intention of pleasing God, his Creator. If you do so, God will accept your good actions as done for himself and will reward them accordingly.

In order to inspire children with a love of virtue the parent should endeavor to describe it in all its charms, and, on the contrary, paint in lively colors the ugliness and deformity of vice and the terrible judgment of God which will sooner or later fall upon the guilty sinner. Finally let parents often pray to God to give their children a teachable and good disposition, without which all their instructions will be to no purpose. Except the Lord build the house they labor in vain that build it.

Crowned With Golden Roses.

In St. Louis, on Jan. 31, the golden anniversary of Sister Vincentia's entrance into the Order of the Visitation was celebrated in the chapel of the Visitation convent. A solemn pontifical mass was sung by Archbishop Kain. After the mass Sister Vincentia was crowned with a wreath of golden roses by Archbishop Kain, who pronounced these words: "May this occasion be a day unto you of salvation and an hour of unceasing happiness."

After the ceremonies a procession was formed, headed by the class of '99. Next came a dozen girls and then Sister Vincentia, who wore her golden crown. Next came Archbishop Kain, followed by visiting priests. The procession proceeded to the dining room, where dinner was served.

What the Other Ones Were.

At one end of a long street in a west of England town stands the parish church, and at the other end is a Roman Catholic chapel. The character of the services in the parish church is decidedly "high"—indeed ultra ritualistic—and on a resident asking the Roman Catholic priest wherein the difference between the churches lay he replied. "We are papists, and they are apists."—London News.

TRAINED SKIRTS.

The Manner of Making and Finishing Them.

Ceremonious costumes are made with a train, which is more or less long according to circumstances. A bridal gown, for example, has a more extensive train than any other toilet, but its length varies according to the richness of the material employed, the most costly goods permitting the longest train. If the wedding gown is of plain satin, the train is lined with the same fabric as the gown itself, but if it is of brocho material the lining is still plain satin. No stiffening of any kind is used in the train. Where the lining is satin of a superior quality no frill is required inside the hem of the train, but otherwise a ruffle or accordion plaiting of silk, pinked at both edges, is placed at the inside of the edge.

PRINCESS COSTUME.

In the case of a wedding costume it is necessary to have everything of the same tone of white—stockings, shoes, gloves, veil and petticoat must be exact if the gown is cream, dead white if the gown is dead white. The prayer book need not necessarily be cream or white; it may be of pale green, lavender, pink or coral morocco.

The illustration shows a reception gown in which the foundation is ruby velours, with rich incrustations of white cloth. The princess tunic of white cloth forms a sort of corselet, the velours with its applications appearing as a yoke and also forming the sleeves. The velvet collar has cloth tabs, and the belt of ruby satin is passed through cuts in the tunic and tied in a bow at the back.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

FASHION NOTES.

Items With Regard to Prevailing Styles.

Wedding veils are arranged in mantilla fashion if they are of lace and are kept at the back of the head. If they are of tulle, however, they fall over the face. The hair is plaited at the top of the head, the little crown of orange blossoms passing around it, the veil lying over all. After the manner of tulle is properly arranged it is sometimes necessary to trim off the points with scissors to prevent them from overpassing the edge of the round train.

Precisely in harmony has but five ribs instead of seven, the usual number. This makes the breadths wider at the outer edge and therefore increases the curve of this edge when the parasol is expanded. As a consequence it assumes the shape of a five pointed star and looks odd to unaccustomed eyes. These parasols are shown in solid colored silks of bright hues and also in silks with wide, contrasting stripes, which run from the center outward and form V's at the ribs.

GIRL'S COAT.

Not merely toques, but large, round hats, are entirely formed of flower beads set close together. Violets, cowslips and hyacinth bells are thus employed, being arranged upon the wire frame so that the shape is perfectly distinct. Of course the trimming of such hats is very light and consists chiefly of gauze, tulle and flowers, lace veiling or spangled net.

The girl's coat illustrated is of mastic cloth. It hangs straight at the back and in front, but is curved slightly under the arms. The trimming consists of stitched bands of cloth a shade darker, which outline a yoke, pass down each side of the front, around the lower part of the coat and up the back at each side. The revers and turnover collar are outlined by similar bands. The same trimming is arranged at the top and wrists of the sleeves and around the pockets.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

NOW, LOOK PLEASANT.

THAT IS THE WAY TO DISCOURAGE THE WRINKLES.

How to Smooth Out the Crow's Feet and Keep the Years From Leaving Footprints on Your Face—Any One Can Do It.

[Copyright, 1899, by American Press Association.]

No one really wants wrinkles. We would all prefer to put off their arrival until the latest possible moment, but most of us are not aware that anything can be done to that end by one who has not an unlimited supply of money.

The fact is we have not yet outgrown the prejudices of our Puritan forefathers, who believed it to be a sin to try to look as well as one could. We are yet struggling to appear resigned to every mark of old age, no matter how premature may be its arrival, and we think we show great wisdom, fine discipline and beautiful Christianity by when we have brought ourselves to a point where we don't care how we look.

It is all utter nonsense. We ought to care. God did not intend we should be ugly, and if we are so it is only because of the sins of the fathers which have been visited upon the children for many generations. It is our duty to keep the soul's tenement as attractive as we possibly can without neglecting duties of greater importance.

It is easier to prevent wrinkles from coming than to get rid of them after they have appeared. One of the best methods is to get into the habit of straightening the face several times a day and of always going to sleep with it straight.

The majority of people go to sleep making up faces. They would hardly believe it, but it is a fact nevertheless, and when you have begun to think to straighten your face occasionally you will see that you, too, had a habit of going to sleep with it wrinkled.

Get into the better habit of straightening it every night before falling asleep and you can keep off the wrinkles for many, many years. To straighten it, try to make it lifeless and without expression. It will not take you long to get into the habit.

During the day get away by yourself for a moment if you can, throw yourself on a couch or in an easy chair, close your eyes and straighten out your face. If you can only keep it so for three minutes at a time, it will do you good, and it will rest you wonderfully.

You have heard of people so ugly that their faces ached. Well, when you have learned how to straighten your face you will think that you must have been one of that class, although you had become so accustomed to contorting the face until it ached that you didn't know you were doing it. Straighten it out and let it rest and you will soon see the difference.

If you can't see without squinting your eyes, go to a good oculist and let him fit you with glasses or you'll be sure to have crow's feet. Worse than that, you'll have the fine wrinkles beneath the eyes that always make one look old. But perhaps you squint your eyes more than you need to. It is one of the unconscious habits very easily acquired, and is not often acquired by using the eyes in a bad light.

LOOKING FOR WRINKLES.

When you have succeeded in straightening your face so that you feel there is not a line in it, open your eyes and look about you. You will probably catch yourself squinting the first thing, but nine times out of ten it will be without reason. Then you may know you have formed a habit of which you can and should break yourself. It is the same with frowning.

You have heard of the girl who had been blind all her life and who was cured when a young lady. She exclaimed upon first looking about her, "Oh, how ugly and cross everybody looks!" Of course she was shocked to her core, but she had imagined that every one would be as beautiful as the flowers.

Look at the people you meet next time you go out walking and try to imagine that you have never before seen them, in the majority of the faces will look scowling, anxious and preoccupied. You will easily understand how the young girl felt, and when you stop to consider that you yourself are one of the multitude you will have learned a most helpful lesson.

For a little while you will form your face into pleasant lines, but only for a little while. New thoughts will come, and you will soon be looking as ugly as before. The lesson will help you, however, for you will straighten your face more and more frequently, and thus the skin will become pliable and less apt to wrinkle.

EFFIE W. MERRIMAN.

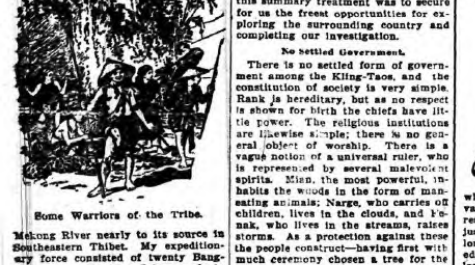
KLING TAOS OF SIAM.

A STRANGE HALF CIVILIZED PEOPLE IN AN UNTRODDEN REGION.

Some of Them Worship Snakes—Possess Some Agricultural Skill—A Brave and Fearless People—Magicians Possess the Most Influence in the Tribe.

In the course of my explorations in Asia a portion of my route carried me through the wilds of Annam and Northern Siam, a land covered for its greater extent with well nigh impenetrable forests and miasmal swamps. Little has been written about this almost unknown country, and yet it is one of the most strange and interesting regions of the earth. Of all the mixed communities of the much-mixed East the country about the headwaters of the Mekong River offers a more varied object lesson in interracial complications than probably any other locality of its size in the world.

Firmly convinced that nothing save a speedy, determined, even impetuous, advance would enable me to succeed where others had repeatedly failed, my journey into this untrodden region was made by following the course of the



Some Warriors of the Tribe.

Mekong River nearly to its source in Southeastern Thibet. My expedition-ary force consisted of twenty Bangkok coolies. Leaving Saigon early in the year, by midsummer we had successfully overcome the dangers which menaced us from the fierce Lao tribes and had penetrated to the heart of the Chiao Plain, a region occupied by one of the strangest races in the world, the Kling-Taos, an important branch of the great Lao race of Siam. For several months we remained among this strange people, thoroughly exploring their country.

Character of the Race.

The Kling-Taos, although generally recognized as a distinct race, are in reality the issue of an amalgamation of races entirely alien in their general characteristics and differing widely in appearance and language. The level of civilization varies, but seldom reaches even the average standard of Southern Asia. The people are of medium height, of fleshy rather than muscular frame; in color a sooty brown, with high but rather narrow and retreating forehead, thick lips and high cheek bones. The hair is in the very balance in hair, some having it long and straight, as in the Mongolian races, while among others it is black and frizzly, as in a full-blooded negro.

Most of these tribes are migratory. There are but few villages of solid structure even of the most miserable kind. The houses are one-storied affairs, constructed of wicker and bamboo with a covering of clay and raised on piles to a height of five or six feet from the ground. Among the more savage Kling-Taos it is the practice to build dwellings in trees. This is done to safeguard the dwellers against enemies and evil spirits.

An Improvident People.

Albeit these tribes show considerable agricultural skill, but in spite of the fertility and natural richness of the country they are singularly improvident, and during an especially trying season they die by hundreds of starvation. When this occurs whole tribes migrate to the south and raid and make war upon the more civilized natives of central and southern Siam. The Kling-Taos, being bold and warlike, are really the "bogies" of Southwestern Asia, and the ferocious characterizing these periodical forays and the dread which they inspire among their more peaceful neighbors have hitherto saved them from retaliatory punishment.

My acquaintance with the Kling-Taos was not confined to meeting marauding parties of warriors or trading bands. I visited and studied these remarkable people in their own country. We camped one day by the side of a tiny rivulet in the country of the Kazyios, one of the proudest tribes of this race, and knowing the savage nature of our surroundings we had built a strong "zareba," or stockade, of thorn trees, which afforded us protection from attack. The camp was in an open plain, and on our way thither we had been made aware of the interest we created among the inhabitants by the glimpses we got of Kling-Taos who were intently watching our movements from little eminences off to the west. Sometimes when we could not see the warriors their presence would be revealed by the glint of the sun on their big, bright spears, or on the "senge" ornaments of the women. "Senge" is the Siamese name for a thick iron wire, which answers the purpose of money among these people.

Arrival of the White Men.

Hardly had we settled in our "kzo" when [illegible] of warriors, followed by women and children, came streaming into camp. The news of the arrival of a white man's caravan was the signal for a general mustering of the population of the entire surrounding country. They wished to see what we were, to trade with us and to demand tribute for the privilege of passing through their country. Boldness and impudence are not attractive qualities among civilized beings, and in a savage they become intolerable. We soon discovered that traits predominated for every ti[illegible] children were bold, insolent and aggressive. They were afraid to take liberties with the mysterious white-faced leaders of the party, but they seemed to be at great pains to impress our coolies that they considered them no better than animals. Our men for several months past had stalked about among the weak tribes previously encountered in a boastful, bullying manner; but now the case was quite different, and otherwise, and it was laughable to see the tables turned on our men so completely and so suddenly.

Treatment of Travelers.

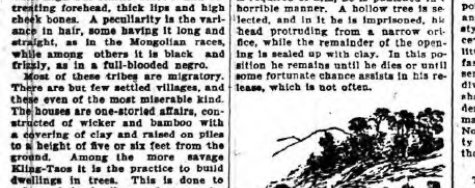
The head-man of the district was a pompous old warrior, who announced his intention of preventing passage through the country unless we submitted to the exorbitant charges for the privileges which he demanded. We promptly seized upon his person, threatening the most dire punishment should he attempt to put his threat into execution. Then his insolence vanished, and, finding that we were not to be cowed by threats, he became more gracious. The Kling-Taos being brave and fearless themselves, admire these traits in others, and the effect of this summary treatment was to secure for us the freest opportunities for exploring the surrounding country and completing our investigation.

No Settled Government.

There is no settled form of government among the Kling-Taos, and the constitution of society is very simple. Rank is hereditary, but as no respect is shown for birth the chiefs have little power. The religious institutions are likewise simple; there is no general object of worship. There is a vague notion of a universal ruler, who is represented by several malevolent spirits. Mien, the most powerful, inhabits the woods in the form of man-eating animals; Nargye, who carries off children, lives in the clouds, and Nenak, who lives in the streams, raises storms. As a protection against these the people construct—having first with much ceremony chosen a tree for the purpose—certain rude images called kwars, each representing a recently dead progenitor, whose spirit is then invoked to occupy the image and protect them against their enemies and give success to their undertakings. The kwars is about a foot high, with head disproportionately large; the male figures are sometimes represented with a spear and shield, the female holding a snake. Omens are observed before starting on any expedition; if they are unfavorable the person threatened retires, another day is chosen and the process repeated.

Magicians and Rainmakers.

The most influential members of the tribe are the magicians and rainmakers, whose business it is to regulate the weather and to whom is intrusted the process of ordeal to discover crime. The desirability of this position is open to question, for, should the unfortunate magician fail to provide what is required of him, he is punished in a horrible manner. A hollow tree is selected, and in it he is imprisoned, his head protruding from a narrow orifice, while the remainder of the opening is sealed up with clay. In this position he remains until he dies or until some fortunate chance assists in his release, which is not often.



Some of the Traders.

The position of woman among the Kling-Taos is very low, and the trader cannot fail to be struck by the [illegible] with which she is treated. Although a woman is looked upon as valuable commodity, she is treated the utmost contempt, and her existence is infinitely worse than that of the animals of her lord and master. Polygyny is widely practiced, and in addition the more powerful chiefs maintain concubines. I have known of a man who possessed at one time fourteen wives and nearly twice as many concubines. On the death of a man's property is transferred to his relatives, but the women of his household are looked upon as common property and may be seized by the first who comes along and who is able to uphold his claim by combat.

Among nearly all savage races a certain affection is manifested by parents for their offspring. Among the Kling-Taos such a moral quality is unknown.

Knives Made by Prisoners.

It is announced that an entirely new method for the manufacture of table cutlery is being introduced into Sheffield, England, and is exciting much interest. A round bar of steel is placed in a machine, and by means of hydraulic pressure the table knife is formed—blade, bolster and handle. The "fash" is taken off, and it is subsequently ground and polished by machinery. One such machine is capable, it is stated, of producing 5,000 of these all steel knives per day, a comparatively small cost in labor. The machines are capable of dealing with any kind of cutlery or tools.

OUR FASHION LETTER

REVIVAL OF THE MARIE ANTOINETTE UNDERSLEEVE.

New Gowns Fit Still More Closely Around Hips—Tinted-colored Suitings Appear—Gray and Fawn Are Popular Colors—Novelties in Flowers.

This beautiful gown is on exhibition at a fashionable Fifth avenue modiste's. It is so simple that it could be easily copied at home. It's a princess dress of tan-colored cashmere, with a scalloped overskirt opening over a front of pale ecru satin, corsage is trimmed on either side with guipure lace in a deep shade of cream with insertions of white satin. The dainty collarette is turned back with pale pink revers, showing a suspicion of white lisse, and is encircled by a cravat of golden brown velvet, which rests on a lace-trimmed pink collar just reaching to the top of the narrow long sleeves, and scalloped at the edges. The sheaf-like skirt is cut long and just a suspicion of the wood-brown velvet at the waist-line gives a dainty finish.

At an exhibition of French dress models more than half of the evening toilets and tailor costumes of cloth Vienna, crepon, carmelite, drap d'ete bengaline, or silk-warp mohair were of gray or fawn color in one or the other of the delicate shades so much the fashion this season. The decorations for these gowns were either white lace appliques, cream-colored chenille embroideries with designs in braiding, gray fallie milliners' folds bands, and special pieces in ecru Renaissance insertion, or gray or brown silk soutache trimmings en applique. Tiny gold-washed buttons are oddly used by French stellers on toilets of ceremony, those in white lace, white net, and crepe de Chine showing these little buttons put on the bodice and sleeves in rows dwindling to points, or squares, oblongs, or in single shapes, some of the dull gold styles having a French brilliant in the centre of each button. The shapely little mutton-leg sleeve, so easily fashioned and so graceful in its present modified style, still continues to divide honors with the close coat shapes, open or slashed on the shoulders, tucked, strap-finished, and with many other fanciful arrangements. Novel and varied styles in these pretty sleeves appear upon almost all of the dressy tailor-gowns.

The display in the fancy jewelry departments of various importing houses of belt-slides, buckles, brooches, and new hat-ornaments is varied and costly. Very odd Egyptian devices take a prominent place. They are in dull lustreless old silver, set with ruby, emerald, and onyx stones. There are also triangles of pale rose-colored and topaz mock jewels, and large clusters of violet blossoms in enamel, sprinkled with French brilliants to simulate dew. This ornament is to be set upon a tulle-trimmed hat, amid a front or side cluster of airy loops in lieu of a genuine bunch of natural violets.

In studying the French novelties in dress and dress accessories, one cannot but take special notice of the decided reminiscence this season of the appliques in countless different patterns and effects, arranged upon garments of every sort, both for day and evening wear. Parasols are covered with Venetian lace; gowns, tunics, coats fancy jackets and capes, overskirts are bordered with it. Webs of dainty tulle or net, draping expensive hats and toques, show Honiton, Flemish, and Renaissance lace. French dress models of nuns'-grai drap royal veiling, chiffon, or bengaline, have special designs on potat de Ventse, arranged upon the gown from collar to skirt hem; and fairy summer crops of draped and plaited ornamente de soie over silk or satin foundations, show deep, spreading collarettes of Vandyke points of Chantilly, Duchesse, or Renaissance lace. Touches of this beautiful trimming are even seen on the airy vests of handsome tailor costumes. Expensive underwear is enriched with it, and at any of the importing houses may now be found collarette and silk bolery, with a delicate tracery of real lace en applique on the instep.

A very old-time fashion is revived by adding to half-length dress-sleeves of silk, satin, brocade, etc., Marie Antoinette undersleeves of embroidered chiffon, net, or lisse, finished with little turn-back cuffs or falling ruffles of the embroidery. At a recent view of French pattern gowns these dainty feminine accessories appeared, and were greatly admired by the fashionable rising generation of young women who had never seen them save in pictures of by-gone fashions. The returned buyer of one importing-house affirms that not only will these white under-sleeves be worn with full and demi-dress toilets, but they will form a novel and picturesque addition to every-day dresses of French organdie, veiling, pique, dotted Swiss muslin, zephyr goods, etc.

Machine-stitching continues to be a favorite mode of finishing tailor costumes of every sort. Not only is it used to complete the hems and edges of the gown, but entire circular skirts are covered with machine-stitching—for example, a fawn-colored vicuna costume is silk-stitched from belt to skirt edge in straight rows of seven in cluster alternating with stitched straps of the vicuna. The open-fronted jacket—short at the back but rounding down from the hips on the front is finished with stitched straps in applique devices. The turn-down collar and rather large revers are covered with pale old-rose moire, and there is a full chiffon vest in cream-color shirred over pale rose-colored silk.

Eudora is much used by French and American dressmakers in the preparation of handsome mourning gowns and costumes. This fabric, much like an ideal Henrietta cloth, is made of silk-warp wool with a smooth surface that is the perfection of modern weaving. It is manufactured in two shades—a raven black, to match black crepe for deepest mourning, and a shade off the jet to give it a slight brightness for general uses. Plain black camel's hair, mohair, and black cheviots in great variety will be much worn this and next season.

Some of the newest French gowns are made still more closely fitting around the hips by the use of a yoke about three-eights of a yard deep in front, and rounding up nearly to the waist at the back. The deeply curved lower portion of the skirt is added to this yoke, its joining seam covered by a tiny line of ribbon or chiffon ruching, braid, embroidery, or other trimming. The pointed peplums or overskirts do not invariably match the underskirts, as heretofore, can be made of different material, introducing some of this fabric on the sleeves, yoke, collar, etc., of the bodice; therefore, if the style finds favor, it may prove desirable for remodelling gowns for the spring and summer. The doe-colored and tan covert suitings appear among the season's new models in tailor costumes to be worn throughout the spring and until duck, Holland, pique, etc., are in order. Vests very often accompany these suits, one of striped or dotted silk, the other a more dressy affair in mousseline de sole over taffeta or China silk. Darker costumes in brown or laurel green have vests of ecru or pink taffeta, covered with silk appliques the color of the costume. Some of the vests are single-breasted, and button up over the chest, with a standing collar and a four-in-hand tie, while others are double-breasted, with a tucked chemisette and neckband, a dainty turn-over embroidered collar, and a silk string-tie.

Some novelties in flowers have appeared. A large-sized pansy, with six or eight upper petals, in prettily gauffred silk or velvet, and petals of velvet, variously marked, has met with immense success. It is one of the latest creations of Mlle. Staub, who, besides exercising her profession of premiere to a wholesale house, directs two manufactories, where the art of making artificial flowers is taught in all its branches. This flower is reproduced in no less than seventy different tints and combinations, mostly violets, mauves, purples, whites, crimsons, dahlia tints, and yellows. The same house has also brought out a large double poppy, very full blown, with silk petals, that milliners are ordering freely.

Both these are used in couples, the two set back to back, but as many as four of the pansies, with as many buds, may be grouped together. Other additions to the list of fashionable flowers are of a more artificial character, such, for instance, as roses with large damask blooms, the petals of which are made of white or black tulle, to which firmness is given by an edging of very fine wire concealed beneath a bordering of black or steel spangles, whereas others again are close imitations of nature, and include various vetches and other small wild flowers, besides some of the spray orchids, which replace advantageously paradise and other aigrette.

An Easter Hat.

Some milliners are evincing a great taste for small pompon roses, several mounted together on one stalk, while others prefer larger blooms, arranged with very pale leaves of velvet, some being so pale as to be almost white. For the rest, the flowers most in favor are primroses, asemones, wild hyacinths, lilac, forget-me-nots, and blue cornflowers.

NATIONAL CAPITAL.

A MEETING BETWEEN THE PRESIDENT AND SPEAKER REED.

Work on New York Harbor Defenses—Situation at Manila—Talking of the Vice-Presidency—The Per Capita—Increased Consumption.

The meeting at Jekyl Island in Georgia of President McKinley and Speaker Reed was an interesting one, and is taken to mean that there is to be no Republican opposition to the re-election of Mr. Reed. The friends of both gentlemen persist in the statement that there is no political significance to this meeting of the two most influential officials of the nation. The meeting was arranged, it is said, with the idea of bringing about a cordial relations between Mr. Reed and the President. When Mr. McKinley passed through Brunswick he was greeted by a crowd of three thousand persons, who cheered him enthusiastically until the Colfax pulled out into the stream. At Valdosta and Waycross also the President was enthusiastically greeted by large crowds.

Proved Untrue.

The announcement of the death of John Sherman was not very much of a surprise to those who have known of his increasing infirmities. He went to Cuba on an excursion which took a large number of sightseers to the Island on the steamer Paris, and was taken seriously ill in Santiago harbor.

Ex-Secretary John Sherman.

Happily the news of his death proved untrue, and at this writing there is some hope of his recovery. Mr. Sherman is one of the very few men who have served in public life during the civil war, and until a year ago he retained his great influence as a public man, especially in his own State of Ohio. Few men have been more in the public gaze than Mr. Sherman has, and none that we recall have had a more varied and successful public career.

System of Defenses.

If at any time during or previous to the Spanish-American war a hostile fleet had attempted to enter Gravesend-New York and Brooklyn it would have found easy access through the eastern end of Long Island Sound. Now, however, such a fleet would meet with a hot reception. At last awakened to the importance of the Sound as a gateway, the government has designed a system of defences which makes it practically impossible for an enemy to force his way through the channels.

The first line of defence for entering New York is now nearly completed. Plum, Gull and Fisher's islands, until now desolate, barren stretches of rock and sand, have been made a breastwork at the Sound approach. The forts on these islands, at the last three important strategical position, has protected the most vulnerable entrance upon the metropolis, and the War Department defies an enemy, no matter how well equipped, to pass through the fire which can be trained from these three narrow strips of land.

It is generally agreed in the military world that had the United States been at war with England or with France instead of having Spain to contend with, a fleet would have swept through the narrow passage at the eastern end of Connecticut and laid under contribution all points as far, surely, as Throgg's Neck. New Rochelle and Bridgeport, where are manufactured all manner or ordnance, would have been rich prey.

Many Obstacles Overcome.

The laying of emplacements in the rock and sand and gravel of these three islands, has required all the skill and patience at the command of Major Leach and his assistants. Many obstacles have been encountered and overcome. When the war with Spain began, orders came to proceed uninterruptedly and with all possible haste with the mounting of the big guns. In one instance, there was no time or opportunity to erect a protecting sea wall so great was the pressure from Washington; and even now there remains one gap to be filled in of the bulwark against the water raised after peace was declared.

From Manila.

The information from Manilla is to the effect that the living prices both on Panay and Luzon give promise of success. There is apparently a steadily growing inclination on the part of the natives to cease fighting and become amenable to American authority, and their spirit is kept alive by Aguinaldo and his immediate following and by a party of filibusters, who regard peace as a check to all freebooting. The natives under arms are insubordinate, being without pay, on very short rations and uninspired by love of glory or country. They are being kindly treated by our forces whenever taken or surrendered, and such good will is having as beneficial an effect as the force of our arms. It seems, then, that the situation in the Philippines is slowly but surely improving.

The Per Capita.

The "Statistical Abstract of the United States," with its interesting and impressive per capita deductions for 1898, has appeared. It gives the population for 1898 as 74,090,164. In 1868 the population was 36,973,000. The amount of money in existence in the United States by the latest official compilation is $23.28 for each inhabitant, an increase of $2.14 per capita in twelve months. In 1868 the money of the country was $20.28 for each person. There has been but one year in the thirty when the country has made any retrogression in population. That was 1879, when the per capita was $20.21. The money now in actual circulation, $24.71, exceeds the proportion of any previous year in the history of the country. The public debt, per capita, reached a low-water mark in the last year of the Harrison administration, when it was reduced to $12.96. The short Cleveland administration put [illegible] to protect the gold reserve by the present administration increased the debt further [illegible] debt, until now the per capita is $17.43. The interest on the public debt costs 77 cents for each person. In 1868 it was $3.43.

Notwithstanding all that has been said about extravagance in pensions, the amount in proportion to the population is not burdensome. It is now $1.98, considerably less than it was five years ago and about what it has been for three years past. Pension expenditures increased much more rapidly than the population up to ten years ago. It was 65 cents in 1865 and $1.33 in 1885.

Increased Consumption.

Increased consumption follows increased ability to consume. It is a good index of prosperity. The United States patronage of the post offices was greater last year than ever before. It reached $1.20 for each person. In 1868 it was 60 cents. Consumption of raw cotton reached 25.26 pounds; wheat and wheat flour, 4.21 bushels; corn and corn meal, 22.73 bushels; sugar, 61.1 pounds; coffee, 11.45 pounds; tea, .81 pounds, whiskey, 1.10 gallons; beer, 15.64 gallons; wine, .28 gallons; wool, 5.34 pounds. In 1868 the per capita consumption ran about one-half of these amounts in sugar and coffee and cotton goods. The consumption of foreign goods by Americans has increased very notably, while the consumption of wheat in proportion to population has decreased. Free trade is a dead issue. The tariff now averages $1.96 per person. That is lower than at any time since the war, save only during the first year of the Gorman-Wilson law, when it was $1.90. In 1868 the tariff amounted to $4.34 per capita. The significant fact is that the people paid a smaller per capita of tariff in the first year of the Dingley law than during the two years preceding of the Gorman-Wilson law. Taxes on liquors and tobacco last year amounted to $2.30 per person. In 1868 the average was $5.17.

Talking of Roosevelt.

Senator William E. Chandler, of New Hampshire, made one of the most significant statements that have thus far touched upon the Republican campaign of 1900. It was to the effect that Governor Roosevelt might be nominated for second place on the ticket. "There is serious talk in Washington," he said, "about the advisability of running Governor Roosevelt for the Republican presidential ticket. For second place, I mean, because, of course, there is no possibility that President McKinley will not be renominated."

"How about Hobart for renomination?" Mr. Chandler was asked.

"Every Senator is thoroughly pleased with the Vice-President," was the reply. "There is the highest regard for him. But, the point about choosing Governor Roosevelt in his stead is that, with Roosevelt on the ticket, there would be every probability of carrying the city of New York and even the State. Roosevelt, many believe, would greatly strengthen the ticket."

A Disappearing Gun.

As to trusts, the Senator also had something to say.

"The remedy for trusts," he said, "is in the legislatures of the various States. To prohibit combinations of business of the same kind when such combinations would be injurious to the public good, all that would be necessary would be for State legislatures to tax them. Tax their capital stock, tax their bonds, and above all tax franchises. If such a course were adopted trusts could not exist. I do not mean to tax them unfairly. With a reasonable tax properly levied they would soon cease to exist."

The new Madrid cabinet finds it necessary to economize in every direction in order to make up for the mistakes of the Spanish army and navy in firing in every direction.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

It seems to be felt in Paris that the forthcoming exposition will exert a strong influence toward the suppression of revolutionary projects. Until the year 1900 is ended it will give the Parisians something as amusing as a revolution.—Chicago Record.

WOMEN OF OLD SPAIN

TYPES REPRESENTING VARIOUS PROVINCES OF THE COUNTRY.

Some Are Brave, Tender and True—Some Lazy and Fair-Skinned Beauties, Hereditary Daughters of the Goth Invaders—No Longer About Them.

The Spanish woman, whether she has Gothic, Andalusian or Moorish ancestry, she has none of the creole languor of the Spanish descended women of Cuba, Mexico and the tropical parts of the Americas. These in vim and force in the native-born Spaniard, and she is usually a better type than the man of her race.

Spain, it has been said, is five Irelands, all mutually distributed hostile and critical one of the other. The Spanish women of hard-working, frugal Galicia, hence come the hewers of wood and drawers of water for the Spanish cities, are used to toil and show it. They will correspond to the Nova Scotia women of the working classes in their employment in the United States; they are accustomed to work, and their backs are fitted for the heavy burdens of life. And they are good women, who look out on life with straightforward eyes. The women of Asturias, Navarra and Arragon correspond to the general northern type; they know what cold winters are and what toil it is to wrest a living from an ungrateful soil, for their portion of Spain is poor and about what it has been for three years past. Pension expenditures increased much more rapidly than the population up to ten years ago. It was 65 cents in 1865 and $1.33 in 1885.

Increased Consumption.

Increased consumption follows increased ability to consume. It is a good index of prosperity. The United States patronage of the post offices was greater last year than ever before. It reached $1.20 for each person. In 1868 it was 60 cents. Consumption of raw cotton reached 25.26 pounds; wheat and wheat flour, 4.21 bushels; corn and corn meal, 22.73 bushels; sugar, 61.1 pounds; coffee, 11.45 pounds; tea, .81 pounds, whiskey, 1.10 gallons; beer, 15.64 gallons; wine, .28 gallons; wool, 5.34 pounds. In 1868 the per capita consumption ran about one-half of these amounts in sugar and coffee and cotton goods. The consumption of foreign goods by Americans has increased very notably, while the consumption of wheat in proportion to population has decreased. Free trade is a dead issue. The tariff now averages $1.96 per person. That is lower than at any time since the war, save only during the first year of the Gorman-Wilson law, when it was $1.90. In 1868 the tariff amounted to $4.34 per capita. The significant fact is that the people paid a smaller per capita of tariff in the first year of the Dingley law than during the two years preceding of the Gorman-Wilson law. Taxes on liquors and tobacco last year amounted to $2.30 per person. In 1868 the average was $5.17.

Talking of Roosevelt.

Senator William E. Chandler, of New Hampshire, made one of the most significant statements that have thus far touched upon the Republican campaign of 1900. It was to the effect that Governor Roosevelt might be nominated for second place on the ticket. "There is serious talk in Washington," he said, "about the advisability of running Governor Roosevelt for the Republican presidential ticket. For second place, I mean, because, of course, there is no possibility that President McKinley will not be renominated."

"How about Hobart for renomination?" Mr. Chandler was asked.

"Every Senator is thoroughly pleased with the Vice-President," was the reply. "There is the highest regard for him. But, the point about choosing Governor Roosevelt in his stead is that, with Roosevelt on the ticket, there would be every probability of carrying the city of New York and even the State. Roosevelt, many believe, would greatly strengthen the ticket."

A Disappearing Gun.

As to trusts, the Senator also had something to say.

"The remedy for trusts," he said, "is in the legislatures of the various States. To prohibit combinations of business of the same kind when such combinations would be injurious to the public good, all that would be necessary would be for State legislatures to tax them. Tax their capital stock, tax their bonds, and above all tax franchises. If such a course were adopted trusts could not exist. I do not mean to tax them unfairly. With a reasonable tax properly levied they would soon cease to exist."

The new Madrid cabinet finds it necessary to economize in every direction in order to make up for the mistakes of the Spanish army and navy in firing in every direction.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

It seems to be felt in Paris that the forthcoming exposition will exert a strong influence toward the suppression of revolutionary projects. Until the year 1900 is ended it will give the Parisians something as amusing as a revolution.—Chicago Record.

The Constitutionalist.

A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.

PUBLISHED AT

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Terms—$2.00 per year.

A. L. Force, Editor and Proprietor

Elizabeth the Hope of Democrats.

The outcome of the city election in Elizabeth Tuesday, when the six odd numbered wards elected Aldermen and members of the Board of Education, was a victory for the Democrats inasmuch as they elected four of the six members chosen at that time for each board.

Though Elizabeth has had a Republican Mayor for the past few years nearly all the rest of her municipal offices have been filled with Democrats, and the members of the latter party hold rosy views of keeping the administrative departments of the city in their grasp if they do not the executive.

Under such conditions Elizabeth must be accounted in the Democratic column. In sharp county and State elections, however, the results are usually rather close, but with an aggressive organization such as the Democrats are now securing through the efforts of Captain D. F. Collins, chairman of the city executive committee, the party is better able to stand the onslaught of the G. O. P. than in some time before.

Outside of Elizabeth, however, the Democrats are wofully in lack of organization while their political opponents are in splendid condition in that respect. In Plainfield, for instance, the Democrats are absolutely without organization, but the Republicans possesses a machine that seems to be particularly active and effective in all campaigns and rolls up majorities that has put Union county in the Republican column.

Kean's Trolley Operations.

The difference of opinion between the Board of Aldermen of Elizabeth and Senator John Kean as to the stipulations which the latter should agree to in return for the granting of a valuable franchise for the operation of an electric street railway in that city, is of contemporaneous interest to Plainfield and every town between this city and the county seat. It is so because Mr. Kean's project of building a trolley road on the proposed county boulevard depends to a great extent upon his operations in Elizabeth in converting the old dilapidated green horse-car line into a modern electric railway.

In this antiquated transit line Mr. Kean owns a perpetual franchise that is of no earthly value unless the municipal government of Elizabeth is willing to permit the motive power to be changed and other improvements carried out. Both Mr. Kean and the Aldermen hold positions of certain advantages, but without unity as to future plans that will be of benefit to both the former and the people of the city the practical worth of their respective positions is nothing.

Mr. Kean has agreed to improve the streets along which his line runs which would cost him between $50,000 and $60,000. At a prolonged session of the Board of Aldermen Saturday night amendments to the ordinance, granting him the necessary rights, were proposed which keeps important details in the control of the people. From a cursory view of the situation it looks as though Mr. Kean is not being asked to concede too much—that of committing to the people the power to make certain changes if the circumstances warrant it for public service in the future.

But Mr. Kean says that he will not accept the new amendments, and as a consequence many Elizabethians are frowning and worrying because they fear the projected plans will come to naught. After having gone through very much the same experience in Plainfield the past winter we do not apprehend that Mr. Kean is going to throw up the scheme so easily. When the Plainfield Street Railway Company wanted to extend its road to Scotch Plains it made a proposition to the Council which was not thought to be best for the city by a majority of people. In the excited agitation that accompanied the negotiations the trolley capitalists declared that they would never submit to the terms that were proposed. But after many threats of giving Plainfield the go-by and doing various other disagreeable things the Street Railway Company finally agreed to the very stipulations which they at first declined to touch "with a ten thousand foot pole." But this was only after they had seen that the people were determined.

In their methods of securing franchises all capitalists pursue very much the same tactics. If the officials of Elizabeth are resolute in their purposes to protect the people's interests we do not imagine that Mr. Kean's announced purpose of quitting the project will last forever.

Algor sticks well.

Richard Croker's Power.

Richard Croker has long been one of the most interesting men of this country—a man in a class all by himself. Students of human nature and of public life have marveled at the great power that he has been able to exercise without a vestige of any of the things that are considered essential attributes to influence and prestige with other men who hold sway in public matters. All acknowledge his power in shaping the local affairs of the greatest city in the United States, but what gives him that position as simply a man among men is an enigma that not even the most acute observers and students of public life can explain in logic and doctrine.

Friday Mr. Croker was the star witness before the Legislative committee that was appointed to investigate the affairs of New York. He faced the searching inquiries of one of the brightest and most informed lawyers on such matters in the city. Taking his answers to the questions put to him as a whole he showed up remarkably well. Apparen ly he was frank and straightforward and easily held his own with Mr. Moss. He admitted his leadership and explained to some extent the political tenets which he believes and which he practices. They are exactly those which his resolute acts have shown for years.

But with all the questions and the artifices of legal talent Mr. Moss did not bring out how the Tammany chieftan obtained the power—the absolute power in certain cirles—that is his. Croker is nothing more than what he deiights to call himself frequently—a private citizen with no more rights than any other citizen. He is surrounded by scores of supporters and friends that are his equal —in some cases his superior—in mental equipment and in the qualities that go to make up men. Yet he practically admitted that all bowed to his will—as it would have been useless to deny because of events too fresh to divert the public mind from the practical truth.

And yet through it all he is but plain Richard Croker. But he is the practical ruler of the second city of the world. He admits it, his friends concede it, and everyone who knows anything about New York municipal affairs acknowledges it. By what peculiar tact, precept or whatever you may like to call it, he does this, however, is a great mystery.

Governor Lind, of Minnesota, is urging the Legislature of that State to take some action looking to the return of the Minnesota troops from the Philippines, and the same sort of demands are coming from other western States. On the other hand Governor McKinley is in Washington urging the President to allow Jerseyman the opportunity to enlist for service in the war with the Filipinos It is the difference of opinion and desires that even up things and makes this the greatest country on top of the earth.

It is a good thing for Elizabeth that it has a set of officials who do not propose to give away an inestimable valuable public franchise for a mere song. All that is asked in the matter of low fares and the control of the transfer system as public convenience and protection calls for in the future, and against which John Kean is holding out against in threatening mood to drop all negotiations, is right and just. The day when valuable franchises can be had for the asking and the payment of a nominal sum of money, is passed.

Elizabeth is looking toward a paid fire department, and as a step in that direction the City Council has adopted an ordinance providing for the election of a Chief Engineer who shall devote his whole time to the department and receive a liberal salary. From the facts gleaned during a discussion pro and con as to this move in the Council, it is evident that though Elizabeth is three times as large as Plainfield her fire department is not dressed for as liberally as the one is in this city.

The Brunswick Traction Company seems to have got Dunellen on its ear as the result of the neglectful manner in which the trolley cars are run in that borough. There is a public interest in the trouble between the municipality and the trolley company officials if for nothing else than in the fact that it is the first time that such a corporation has been called to account in a vigorous manner in this section.

An Elizabeth woman has brought suit for a divorce against her husband because he sold a bicycle to buy a pair of trousers with. Well, well, the time will come, we suppose, when bicycles will be sacrificed to provide bread and butter. It is surprising what unnatural things are done in the guise of necessity.

DRINK GRAIN-O

after you have concluded that you ought not to drink coffee. It is not a medicine but does cure it if, because it is health in beverage and appetizing. It is made from pure grains and has that rich seal brown color and tastes like the finest grades of coffee and costs about as much. Children like it and thrive on it because it is a genuine food drink containing nothing but food ingredients. Ask your grocer for Grain-O, the new food drink. 15 and 25c.

No Dearth of Candidates.

Although the term of Charles D. Deshler, the Postmaster of New Brunswick, does not expire until March, 1900, the Republican politicians are getting into a snarl over the appointment of his successor. A month ago there were fifteen candidates, but the fight has narrowed down to about four or five, of whom the leaders are Charles W. Russell, a local dealer, and Henry Banker, a wholesale grocer. Russell is a Republican leader in the Sixth ward, and Banker in the Third ward politics. Both wards have returned Democratic majorities for the past four or five years. O. O. Stillman and A. L. Mundy, business men who are less actively identified with politics, are possibilities mentioned. By a curious coincidence Theodore Strong and Robert Carson, the leaders of the Republican party in New Brunswick, who have heretofore been at one upon all matters, have become identified each with a different candidate. Strong is working for Banker, while the Carson influence is exerted in favor of Russell. There is not a Republican in New Brunswick who hadn't his name upon one petition or another.

No Need Of It.

James Sisser has applied to the Somerset county court for a saloon license to be put in operation in the vacant store on the Somerset street bridge. The proposed location of this new saloon is ten feet inside the county line. With proper judgment and discretion Judge Bartine laid the matter of granting or refusing it over for a few days in order to learn the sentiment of the residents in the vicinity in reference to the matter.

Inasmuch as there are already two licenses operating within fifty feet of the location of the proposed saloon—one in the city and one in the borough—it is obvious to those who know the situation that another one is not needed. In fact, it would be decidedly bad policy to have a saloon established in this vacant store for several reasons.

There is no need of another saloon in the borough, and especially at this particular point. Judge Bartine will do well to refuse the application.

According to the Bound Brook State Centre, "the Democratic leaders figure on capturing a majority of the counties next Fall. Senators will be elected in eight. They are Essex, Monmouth, Union, Somerset, Gloucester, Salem and Camden, represented by Republicans, and Warren, represented by a Democrat. The Democratic leader believe it is possible to capture Essex, Monmouth, Somerset and Salem from the Republicans. That will give the control of the Senate. With the Essex Senator will go the eleven members; that gives them the house. At the next session of the Legislature a State comptroller and a State treasurer are to be elected. The present incumbents seek another term. The Democrats understand that to capture the Legislature gives them these two offices, which are the most desirable of all in the State House from a political point of view."

The Philadelphia Record has the following to say of the auxiliary cruiser Badger, on which the New Jersey Naval Reserves, including several Plainfielders, served during the war with Spain:

The auxiliary cruiser Badger, which brought the body of Rear Admiral Sports from the Falkland Islands to SanFrancisco made the 14,000-mile voyage from Hampton Roads to Honolulu in 23 days—rather a noteworthy achievement for a single screw steamer with engines of only 2,200 indicated horse power. Like the Oregon, the Badger has evidently a large reserve of power over and above the calculations of naval engineers and constructors.

People doing business in the borough that require a license are reminded that on Saturday last all licenses expired and unless the license is renewed at once they cannot do business in that place. Clerk Frank Bowley is the man to see to secure a license or a renewal.

The cost of running the city of New Brunswick for the coming year will be $93,000, which includes a special appropriation of $10,000 for street improvement. That is a far greater sum in proportion than it costs Plainfield to run its local government.

It is always the unexpected that happens. In the midst of all the talk in Newark about the unhealthy city water one of the biggest breweries of the city has to go into the hands of a receiver.

Chicago is to be investigated by a committee of Illinois legislators. Chicago is too late. New York holds the front seat, and besides the "windy city" hasn't got a Croker.

The first Common Council of Summit under the new city charter has been organized with a Republican majority, who named Councilman-at-large Charles S. Day for president. That makes Day a bigger man, for he will be a year there.

When it comes down to a fine point there is not a city in the country that could show an absolutely clean hand if it underwent the Mazeting process

Need of More Carriers.

There is no public institution which has such direct and constant dealings with everyone in the community as the postoffice and therefore it is little wonder that complaint is heard frequently as to the postal service. The use of the mails is closely linked to both the commercial and social worlds, and is so important and essential an adjunct that any deviation from the ideas of what one person thinks should be maintained immediately causes a grumbling disposition from those effected. As a rule every person looks at the postal service as it concerns their personal needs and convenience, but the officials in charge can scarcely consider it from that standpoint. They must administer in the application of axiom "the greatest good for the greatest number" with the facilities at hand. And it is in this spirit that Postmaster Bird is conducting the local postoffice. Mr. Bird, however, is frank to acknowledge that the service is not such as Plainfield should have. He recognizes that one of the important needs of the local office is a larger staff of carriers.

But Mr. Bird is grappling with this difficulty in the best manner that is possible. As stated in the Daily Press Monday he visited Washington in company with Congressman Fowler and had a long personal interview with the official who has charge of the carrier force of the service. According to the ratio of carriers allowed to population Plainfield has its quota, but in some instances it is not right to hold too closely to an established rule, and this is one of them. Mr. Bird pointed out the defects of this system as applied to Plainfield. The city and borough, both of which are served from the one postoffice, is spread over a vast amount of ground—much greater, in fact, than the cities with about the same population. The Department figures that every carrier should serve 2 000 people, but considering the topography of Plainfield it is impossible for the local carriers to do this successfully.

What is needed in Plainfield is the formation of three or more new districts, and the appointment of that many more carriers to serve them. That would allow a reduction in the size of the biggest routes now and would result in giving Plainfield the postal service that has long been desired.

Mr. Bird is doing his best to bring about such a change and it is to be hoped that his efforts will be crowned with success.

Here is a pointer for the officials of Plainfield: The city of Manchester, England, has added to the numerous other enterprises conducted under municipal direction for the benefit of taxpayers, manufactories of soap, tallow, oil glue and fertilizer. These industries are operated in connection with the garbage and sewerage departments.

"Only the Faithful Few"—that describes the attendance at the last meeting of the Board of Trade. What a pity it is that Plainfield cannot maintain a live Board of Trade? There is not another city in New Jersey that presents more natural advantages for increasing in size and importance, commercially, than Plainfield.

Mr. Croker has taken considerable force out of the work of the investigating committee of the New York legislature by suggesting that Senator Platt would make an interesting witness in replying to the same line of questions which have been applied to him.

If necessity requires it all Jerseymen will be glad to think there is a regiment of State soldiers who are ready to go to the Philippines to fight for their country, but it would be much better for all concerned if the necessity does not present itself.

Mr. Croker can hardly be expected to stop to have his right arm cut off while he is engaged in washing his hands of the charges made against him.

The position which Gov. Voorhees has assumed in reference to State aid and protection to trusts shows that he is a political trimmer of the first class.

The Newark Advertiser speaks of Governor Voorhees as a "trust-ridden Governor." Perhaps it may be a case of trust-bidden.

Chronic Nasal catarrh poisons every breath that is drawn into the lungs. There is procurable from any druggist the remedy for the cure of this trouble. A small quantity of Ely's Cream Balm placed into the nostrils spreads over an inflamed and angry surface, relieving immediately the painful inflamation, cleanses, heals and cures. A cold in the head vanishes immediately Sold by druggists or will be mailed for 50 cents by Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York.

J. K. Arnold, Jr., of Manning ave nue, has secured an excellent position with the Plainfield Electric Light Company at their offices on West Second street.

FARMHOUSE INDUSTRIES.

There are in many parts of our country existing industries which need only a wider outlook to bring their products into demand, and to place the producer at the same time in touch with the world.

The "Blue and White Industry" of Deerfield, Mass., is an instance of the kind. This industry is a reproduction upon homespun linen of the old Crewel embroideries of colonial times, and has given the farmer's wife an occupation for her winter days.

Without speaking of the pleasure derived by her from such work, it brings her profit where profits are small and hardly earned. Although the "Blue and White" embroideries have not been forced upon the attention of the public, their sale is constant and sustained.

In furtherance of this project, such an organization has been formed for the state of Illinois and incorporated under the name of the League of Farmhouse Industries and Domestic Manufactures. Its location is at Chicago. It appeals to the women of Illinois for their active aid and co-operation.

There is in the handiwork of individuals an interest and attraction not found in mechanical manufactures. It is this interest which induces us to buy the carvings of Switzerland, the scarfs of Rome, the shawls of Italy and the homespun and embroidered linens of Russia, Sweden and Hungary.

The farmhouses of our own country are scattered over a vast area, having every variety of soil and climate, and the opportunities we possess for varied and extensive domestic manufactures are very great. The fostering and directing of such industries become, therefore, of interest and concern to every progressive American woman.

If organizations were to be formed in *each city and community of the differ*ent states, whose purposes were to create home industries, adapted to the locality, as well as to perfect any existing industry, and cultivate its scope, it would be making a practical use by their members of the knowledge gained through travel and selfculture.

A method should be devised for bringing experience, taste and art to bear upon inexperienced work so as to make it attractive to the public. This and the intercourse between the producers and the buyers would create an ever-increasing demand for home-made manufacturers. In this way the flax, wool, cotton and even the silk, raised in small quantities by farm families, could be worked into products of surprising value.

OUT OF THE ORDINARY.

The way to watch is to work.

There are always 1,200,000 people afloat on the ocean world.

A millionaire who died in Boston a few days ago directed in his will that no one owing him less than $3,000 be required to pay.

A man in the Palouse country lost his ranch in a contest case because a nest containing a large family of mice was found in his bed, says the Morning Oregonian. It proved conclusively that he had not occupied the ranch according to law.

The management of the largest and newest hotel in Boston has just decided to exclude "drummers" or traveling salesmen from the house on the ground that he does not wish the lobby turned into a business office.

The profession of "glove cvutter" in France and Belgium is a lucrative one. An expert is able to command an even higher salary than the cutters of the most fashionable tailors. Glove-cutting is an exceedingly difficult art.

The chief piece of furniture in a Russian cottage is the stove, which often fills a third of the interior of the largest room. During the day it is used for cooking and for drying clothes, while at night it forms the bed of the entire family.

All boys in the Malagasy schools are enrolled as spearmen when they have passed a certain standard. They are so adept with this weapon that at close quarters they are more to be feared than the regular troops, armed with rifles and bayonets.

The oldest tree on earth with an authentic history is the great Bhoo tree of Burmah. For twenty centuries it has been held sacred to Buddha, and no person is allowed to touch the trunk. When the leaves fall they are carried away as relics by pilgrims.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

An unwelcome guest is one of the best things going.

Paradoxical as it may seem, silence speaks for itself.

The queen of the tea table not only reigns but she pours.

The occasion is always around somewhere when it is required.

Marriage isn't spelled m-i-r-a-g-e, but that is often what it is.

For every consulate there are many disconsolates, says an office seeker.

A little child can discover more stray sunbeams than a grown person can.

Our own faults always look small in comparison with those we see in others.

The man who dwells in other people's memories has to pay exorbitant rent.

The hunter who is chased by a bear is lucky if he comes out ahead of the game.

A woman confers upon herself a doubtful honor when she reforms a man by marrying him.

"The stars are peeping," says a poet. Well, that's what the peepaole in the drop curtain is for.

CLEARING SALE
OF PIANOS

We are Closing

out a number of good second-hand pianos at extremely low prices, and on easy terms of payment. Now is the time to get a bargain.

7	Octave Square	$ 40
7¼	"	70
7¼	" Upright	150
7	"	165
7¼	" Hallett & Davis	190
7	" "	210

ON PAYMENTS $3 to $8 MONTHLY.

Lot of good second-hand Organs at $20. $25 and upward, $4 per month.

A large assortment of elegant new

Hallet & Davis

UPRIGHT PIANOS.

$200 and up, and 3 years' time if you want it. Other makes—Cabinet Grands, all improvements. $725—$1 per month.

Free music and Catalogue for the asking.

THE W. F. TWAY PIANO CO.,
94 Fifth Avenue, New York.

JAS. M. DUNN,
Dealer in
GROCERIES,
PROVISIONS, VEGETABLES,
FRUITS &c
GARDEN SEEDS
fresh and carefully selected.
224 PARK AVENUE,
OPPOSITE NORTH AVENUE.
Everything usually found in a first-class grocery.
Goods delivered free of charge.

Woolston & Buckle,
PAINTERS.
Wall Papers, Painters' Supplies
141-145 North avenue.

GEORGE W. DAY,
General Auctioneer.
Sales of Personal Property solicited P. O. Box 139, Dunellen, N J., or address in care of Constitutionalist. Terms reasonable.

W. B. CODINGTON,
Counsellor-at-Law
Commissioner of Deeds, Master-in-chancery, Notary Public. Offices Corne of Park avenue and Second street.

HUMPHREYS' VETERINARY SPECIFICS
500 PAGE BOOK MAILED FREE.
CONTENTS:
Part I.—Diseases of Horses.
Part II.—Diseases of Cattle.
Part III.—Diseases of Sheep.
Part IV.—Diseases of Hogs.
Part V.—Diseases of Dogs.
Part VI.—Diseases of Poultry.
Same book in better binding 50 cts.
HUMPHREYS' MED. CO., Cor. William & John Sts., New York.

Children cry for Teething
Mrs. Winslow's has been used for over Fifty Years by Millions of Mothers for their Children while Teething, with Perfect Success. It Soothes the Child, Softens the Gums, Allays all Pain, Cures Wind Colic, and is the best remedy for Diarrhœa.
Sold by druggists in every part of the world.
Twenty-five cents a bottle.

Arrival and Departure of Mails

NEW YORK MAILS.
Arrive—7:20, 8:30, 11:30 a. m., 2:00, 5:30, 9:30 p. m.
Close—7:30, 9:15 a. m., 12:30, 3:00, 5:00, 7:30 p. m.

SOMERVILLE and EASTON.
Arrive—7:40 a. m., 12:30 and 4:30 p. m.
Close—7:30 a. m., 12:30 and 4:30 p. m.

PHILADELPHIA—Direct.
Arrive—8:40 and 11:30 a. m., 2:00 and 8:00 p. m
Close—7:30 and 9:15 a. m., 5:00 p. m.
Through fast mail for West and South, close 8:30 and 7:30 p. m.

WARRENVILLE.
Arrive—12:30 p. m. Close—9:30 a. m.

SUNDAY MAILS.
Office open from 9:30 to 10:30 a. m.
Mail closes at 6:15 p. m.

E. H. BIRD, P. M

Central R. R. of New Jersey

...ocheapside Coal Used Exclusively, Insuring Cleanliness and Comfort.

...ections in New York, Point of Liberty, and Bound Brook Routes with all points.

TIME TABLE IN EFFECT NOV. 20th, 1898.

STRAIGHTWAY AND NEWARK.

Leave Plainfield 5 54, 7 07, 8 27, 9 30, 7 00, 7 30, 10 47, 11 43, 12 53, 2 13, 3 13, 4 08, 5 08, 6 00, 10 27, 11 32 p. m. Sundays 8 00 a. m.

Leave New York, foot Liberty St., at 4 00, 4 30, 5 00, 5 30, 6 00, 6 30, 7 00, 7 30, 8 00, 8 30, 9 00, 9 30, 10 00, 10 30, 11 00, 11 30 a. m., 12 00 m., 12 30, 1 00, 1 30, 2 00, 2 30, 3 00, 3 30, 4 00, 4 30, 5 00, 5 30, 6 00, 6 30, 7 00, 8 00, 9 00, 10 00, 11 00 p. m. Sundays at 8 00, 8 30, 9 00, 9 30, 10 00, 10 30, 11 00, 11 30 a. m., 12 00 m., 12 30, 1 00, 1 30, 2 00, 2 30, 3 00, 3 30, 4 00, 4 30, 5 00, 5 30, 6 00, 6 30, 7 00, 8 00, 9 00, 10 00, 11 00 p. m.

Leave New York South Ferry from Whitehall at 7 30, 8 30, 9 30, 10 30, 11 30 a. m., 12 30, 1 30, 2 30, 3 30, 4 30, 5 30, 6 30, 7 30, 8 30, 9 30, 10 30, 11 30 p. m. Sundays at 8 30, 9 30, 10 30, 11 30 a. m., 12 30, 1 30, 2 30, 3 30, 4 30, 5 30, 6 30, 7 30, 8 30, 9 30, 10 30, 11 30 p. m.

Passengers for Newark please change cars at Elizabeth.

PLAINFIELD AND SOMERVILLE.

Leave Plainfield 5 58, 7 13, 8 10, 9 46, 11 00 a. m., 12 13, 1 23, 3 58, 5 13, 6 36, 8 04, 9 07, 9 51, 11 05 p. m. Sundays 9 46 a. m., 12 13, 1 23, 3 58, 5 13, 6 36, 8 04, 9 07, 9 51, 11 05 p. m.

Leave Somerville at 6 05, 7 20, 8 09, 9 55, 11 10 a. m., 12 23, 1 33, 4 08, 5 23, 6 46, 8 14, 9 17, 10 01, 11 15 p. m. Sundays 9 55 a. m., 12 23, 1 33, 4 08, 5 23, 6 46, 8 14, 9 17, 10 01, 11 15 p. m.

Passengers for Somerville will change cars at Elizabeth.

PLAINFIELD AND SOMERVILLE.

Leave Plainfield 6 45, 8 15, 9 56 a. m., 1 03, 2 30, 4 06, 5 20, 6 43, 8 21, 9 24, 10 08, 11 22 p. m. Sundays 9 56 a. m., 1 03, 2 30, 4 06, 5 20, 6 43, 8 21, 9 24, 10 08, 11 22 p. m.

Leave Somerville at 7 01, 9 15, a. m., 12 36, 1 46, 3 18, 4 43, 5 57, 7 17, p. m. Sundays at 7 15, 11 32 a. m., 6 57 p. m.

Passengers for Somerville will change cars at Elizabeth.

PLAINFIELD AND LAKE HOPATCONG.

Leave Plainfield 7 13 a. m.; 5 56 p. m.

WESTWARD CONNECTIONS.

6 32 a. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Allentown, Bethlehem, Mauch Chunk, Harrisburg, Canandaigua, Rochester, Buffalo, Williamsport, Tunkhannock, Canandaigua, Corning, Elmira, Waverly, Towanda and Sayre.

Connects for Lebanon Valley and Chester Valley Branches at Bound Brook for stations on High Bridge Branch.

11 a. m.—For stations on High Bridge Branch and for stations on Lehigh Valley Railroad between Phillipsburg and Manunka Chunk.

1 05 p. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Bethlehem, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Harrisburg, Williamsport, Sunbury, Wilkesbarre, Scranton, Binghamton, Owego, Ithaca, Auburn, Geneva, Canandaigua, Rochester, Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Suspension Bridge, Elmira, Waverly, Towanda and Sayre.

1 05 p. m.—Sundays only—For Easton, Bethlehem, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Harrisburg, Williamsport, Sunbury, Wilkesbarre, Scranton, Binghamton, Owego, Ithaca, Auburn, Geneva, Canandaigua, Rochester, Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Suspension Bridge, Elmira, Waverly, Towanda and Sayre.

5 05 p. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Bethlehem, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Harrisburg, Williamsport, Sunbury, Wilkesbarre, Scranton, Binghamton, Owego, Ithaca, Auburn, Geneva, Canandaigua, Rochester, Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Suspension Bridge, Elmira, Waverly, Towanda and Sayre.

5 05 p. m.—Sundays only—For Easton, Bethlehem, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Harrisburg, Williamsport, Sunbury, Wilkesbarre, Scranton, Binghamton, Owego, Ithaca, Auburn, Geneva, Canandaigua, Rochester, Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Suspension Bridge, Elmira, Waverly, Towanda and Sayre.

6 05 p. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Bethlehem, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Harrisburg, Williamsport, Sunbury, Wilkesbarre, Scranton, Binghamton, Owego, Ithaca, Auburn, Geneva, Canandaigua, Rochester, Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Suspension Bridge, Elmira, Waverly, Towanda and Sayre.

6 05 p. m.—Sundays only—For Easton, Bethlehem, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Harrisburg, Williamsport, Sunbury, Wilkesbarre, Scranton, Binghamton, Owego, Ithaca, Auburn, Geneva, Canandaigua, Rochester, Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Suspension Bridge, Elmira, Waverly, Towanda and Sayre.

ROYAL BLUE LINE.

Leave Plainfield for Philadelphia 4 32, 6 40, 8 00, 9 00, 10 00, 11 00 a. m., 12 00 m., 1 17, 2 00, 3 00, 4 00, 5 00, 6 00, 7 00, 8 00, 9 00, 10 00, 11 00 p. m. Sundays 4 32, 6 40, 8 00, 9 00, 10 00, 11 00 a. m., 12 00 m., 1 17, 2 00, 3 00, 4 00, 5 00, 6 00, 7 00, 8 00, 9 00, 10 00, 11 00 p. m.

Leave Philadelphia for Plainfield 2 15, 3 45, 4 45, 5 45, 6 45, 7 45, 8 45, 9 45, 10 45, 11 45 a. m., 12 45, 1 45, 2 45, 3 45, 4 45, 5 45, 6 45, 7 45, 8 45, 9 45, 10 45, 11 45 p. m. Sundays 2 15, 3 45, 4 45, 5 45, 6 45, 7 45, 8 45, 9 45, 10 45, 11 45 a. m., 12 45, 1 45, 2 45, 3 45, 4 45, 5 45, 6 45, 7 45, 8 45, 9 45, 10 45, 11 45 p. m.

Leave Plainfield for Bound Brook, Somerville, Bridgewater, Raritan, Flemington, Lambertville, Trenton and principal intermediate stations, 6 32 a. m., 1 05 p. m. Sundays 6 32 a. m., 5 05 p. m.

Leave Bound Brook, Somerville, Bridgewater, Raritan, Flemington, Lambertville, Trenton and principal intermediate stations, 8 30 a. m., 6 00 p. m. Sundays 8 00 a. m.

ROYAL BLUE LINE.

Leave Plainfield for Philadelphia 4 32, 6 40, 8 00, 9 00, 10 00, 11 00 a. m., 12 00 m., 1 17, 2 00, 3 00, 4 00, 5 00, 6 00, 7 00, 8 00, 9 00, 10 00, 11 00 p. m. Sundays 4 32, 6 40, 8 00, 9 00, 10 00, 11 00 a. m., 12 00 m., 1 17, 2 00, 3 00, 4 00, 5 00, 6 00, 7 00, 8 00, 9 00, 10 00, 11 00 p. m.

Leave Philadelphia for Plainfield 2 15, 3 45, 4 45, 5 45, 6 45, 7 45, 8 45, 9 45, 10 45, 11 45 a. m., 12 45, 1 45, 2 45, 3 45, 4 45, 5 45, 6 45, 7 45, 8 45, 9 45, 10 45, 11 45 p. m. Sundays 2 15, 3 45, 4 45, 5 45, 6 45, 7 45, 8 45, 9 45, 10 45, 11 45 a. m., 12 45, 1 45, 2 45, 3 45, 4 45, 5 45, 6 45, 7 45, 8 45, 9 45, 10 45, 11 45 p. m.

Leave Plainfield for Bound Brook, Somerville, Bridgewater, Raritan, Flemington, Lambertville, Trenton and principal intermediate stations, 6 32 a. m., 1 05 p. m. Sundays 6 32 a. m., 5 05 p. m.

Leave Bound Brook, Somerville, Bridgewater, Raritan, Flemington, Lambertville, Trenton and principal intermediate stations, 8 30 a. m., 6 00 p. m. Sundays 8 00 a. m.

For Buffalo, Chicago and all points West, 9 00 a. m. daily except Sunday. For Niagara Falls, Buffalo and Detroit, 1 05 p. m. daily except Sunday.

For Buffalo, Chicago and all points West, 9 00 a. m. daily except Sunday, and 5 04 p. m. daily. Sundays 5 04 p. m.

Plainfield passengers by trains marked "Chicago express" will arrive Chicago 10 45 next morning. Excursion tickets at lowest rates may be had on application in advance to the ticket agent at the station.

J. H. OLMSTED,
General Superintendent.
H.P. BALDWIN,
General Passenger Agent

LEHIGH VALLEY RAILROAD.

Time table in effect Feb. 6, 1899.

LEAVE SOUTH PLAINFIELD, N. J.

WEST WARD.

5 05 p. m. daily, 5 29 p. m. daily except Sunday, 10 p. m. daily except Sunday.

6 32 p. m. Sunday evening local for Manchester.

8 00 a. m. daily; Express for Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Chicago and principal intermediate points.

11 00 a. m., 6 00 and 9 40 p. m. daily except Sunday. Local for Bound Brook.

12 20 p. m. daily except Sunday. Week days for Manchester. Sundays for Buffalo and Niagara Falls.

2 06 p. m. daily local for Easton and Wilkesbarre.

4 55 p. m. daily except Sunday, express for Philadelphia, Bethlehem, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, L. V. R. Junction and principal intermediate points.

7 05 and 8 05 p. m. daily, solid vestibule express for Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Chicago and principal intermediate points.

8 20 p. m. Daily express for Easton, Bethlehem, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Wilkesbarre, Scranton, Binghamton, Buffalo, Niagara Falls and Suspension Bridge. Sleeping cars to Wilkesbarre only, and no baggage east of Buffalo.

EASTWARD.

For New York and Brooklyn local 5 40, 7 40 and 10 40 a. m., 1 40 and 3 40 p. m. Express 6 40, 8 40 and 10 40 a. m., 12 40 noon, 2 40, 4 40, 6 40, 8 40 and 10 40 p. m. Sundays 7 40 and 10 40 a. m., 2 40 and 7 40 p. m.

SOUTH AMBOY BRANCH.

For Perth Amboy and intermediate stations 7 12 10 00 a. m., 2 22 and 7 32 p. m. Sunday accommodation, Sunday 10 30 a. m. and 4 05 p. m.

Trains leave South Amboy (State street) 7 15 8 05, 9 30, 11 30 a. m., 2 30, 4 30, 6 30, 8 30 p. m. Sunday, Sunday 7:15 a. m. and 4 40 p. m.

For further information call on or address Ticket Agent, Plainfield station, or Through tickets to all important western points may be purchased at the South Plainfield office.

Col. ROLLIN H. WILBUR,
General Superintendent,
S. Bethlehem, Pa.

CHAS. S. LEE,
General Passenger Agent
26 Cortlandt St., N. Y. City.

NEW YORK TERMINALS—Foot of Cortlandt Desbrosses and West 23d streets.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Makes the food more delicious and wholesome

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

WANT VOTES OF WOMEN.

ROSELLE EDUCATORS EXPECT TO CARRY THEIR POINT.

They Want to Erect a New School Building and Are Urging Women to Turn Out and Help Them to Carry the Election.

Roselle, April 17.—The members of the borough Board of Education at this place are determined that a new school house shall be erected. The board brought the matter before the people at the annual school meeting held in March, at which time they asked the voters to appropriate $30,000 for the erection of a new school. The people voted against the proposition at the rate of four to one.

However, the Board of Education intends to get the new school if possible and has therefore called a special school meeting to be held at the Borough Hall, Saturday, April 29. Polls will be kept open from 3 until 8:30 p. m., in order that every voter and woman in the borough will get a chance to vote for the new school. The Board anticipates getting out a large vote of the ladies of Roselle and thus carry the day.

AMERICAN WOMEN SCULPTURE.

Miss Effie Stillman, Well-known in Plainfield, Is Highly Complimented

A recent number of Harper's Bazar contains an article on "American Women Sculpture," among whom is Miss Effie Stillman the daughter of the distinguished critic, William E Stillman and a cousin of Mrs J Kirtland Myers, of East Seventh street, for whom an informal reception was given last month. The Bazar says of Miss Stillman "though she has always lived abroad she most loyally insists upon being considered an American.

"Think that, unless for erection in public places, there is small demand for large pieces of sculpture, Miss Stillman usually confines herself to small medallion portraits, her first success being a likeness of Mrs Anne Thackeray Ritchie. This was so highly considered that shortly afterward, when Miss Stillman settled permanently in a London studio, she received a most important commission for a portrait in little. The order came from the Society of Americans in London for a bust and medallion of Mr. Bayard. Modelled life size, the bust was to be reduced to about an inch to ornament the top of the silver loving cup presented to the Minister by the society of his loving England. When completed, the bust was so successful, that it was presented to him the original size in bronze as well as in the silver reduction. The medallion was given to the subscribers for the cup. It was inscribed: 'Thomas F. Bayard, U. S. Ambassador at St. James, 1893-1897. Honor et Justitia.' Miss Stillman is making her first visit to her fatherland this winter, and among a number of portraits of prominent people she has just completed one of Professor Charles Eliot Norton."

The Bazar article is accompanied with an illustration of the medallion of Professor Norton.

SURPRISED LAWYER AND WIFE.

Pleasant Unexpected Visitation to Mr and Mrs. H. C Runyon.

Furman Long and Irving Mills have been busy for the past few days arranging for a surprise party for Mr. and Mrs Harry C. Runyon, of the Babcock Building. The party was given them Monday night, and as the guests hoped, was a surprise in every sense of the word.

About thirty-five young people met at Mr. Long's and at the main entrance to the building, and went up to Mr. Runyon's apartments in a body. The lawyer and his wife soon recovered from their amazement, and made every one welcome. Dancing was the order of the evening.

The company did not leave until three o'clock, but in the meantime had sat down to a sumptuous repast which they brought with them in baskets and bags.

Death of David Runyon.

The death of David Runyon, formerly a resident of this city, occurred Monday in New York from consumption. His remains were brought to this city. The funeral was yesterday. He leaves a sister, Miss Runyon, a teacher in the High School, this city, and a brother, Albert Runyon, of the borough.

Discussed Street Work.

A meeting of the street committee of the Borough Council was held last Monday. A number of bills were passed on and the committee discussed the work that will be necessary this summer and the best methods of reaching the desired ends.

CENTRAL'S NEW ROUTE.

SAVES TEN MILES BETWEEN NEW YORK AND PHILADELPHIA.

It Steals a March on the Pennsylvania Railroad by Putting Princeton on its Route—Large Force at Work

The Central Railroad of New Jersey has hundreds of men employed in building a new line which will shorten its main line between Philadelphia and Jersey City by ten miles, and will at the same time precipitate a competition between it and the Pennsylvania Railroad for the traffic between Princeton and points north and south.

The new road will place Princeton on the Royal Blue Line of the Central Railroad between Philadelphia and New York, and will, in all probability cut the Pennsylvania lines out of the most profitable bit of railroad in its great system, that of three miles between Princeton and Princeton Junction, where a connection is made with the main line. The Central worked so quietly that the Pennsylvania line authorities were caught napping.

MANY NEW TELEPHONES.

Names of New Subscribers to Local Telephone Exchange.

Manager Charles W. Runyon, of the local exchange of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company, says that he will not be satisfied until there is a telephone in every house in the city and borough. The last few weeks has seen a number of additions made to the local exchange, among which are the following:—Mrs. W. A. Woodruff, residence, East Second street; Elston M. French, residence, Somerset street; Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company, West Front street; James B. Joy, residence, Myrtle avenue; Gen. J. S Negley, residence, West Seventh street; N Pendleton Smith, residence, East Front street; J. H. Green, Jr., residence, Verdon street; M. Armstrong, plumber, Park avenue; A. F. Naylor, carpet cleaning, Somerset street; Mrs. John F. Hamilton, residence, Verdon street; Wm. A. Wheeler, Jr., residence, La-Grande avenue; Cloos & Richardson, tailors, West Front street; Dr. O. M Luckey, dentist, East Front street; H. E. Warman, residence, Grove street; Rev. M. E. Dwight, residence, Rockview avenue; A. E. Dunsman, laundry, Park avenue; Mrs V. N. Talmage, residence, Central avenue; Buckman Bros., South Second street; Love Brothers, grocers, West Front street; New Jersey Bottling Association, Somerset street; P. H. Zimmer, machinist, East Fourth street.

NEWS FROM MISSION FIELDS.

Normal Meeting Held by Ends vor Society of Trinity Church.

The Christian Endeavor Society meeting at Trinity Reformed church Monday evening was a very novel one It was a missionary meeting and Miss Sadie Searing was in charge. It was arranged that letters from six missionaries working in foreign fields should be received and read. To accomplish this idea Hiram Humes, attired in a letter-carrier's uniform, made his appearance. Before he entered the room he gave the customary blow of the whistle, after which he entered and gave Miss Searing six letters coming from the missionaries.

Miss Searing then distributed the letters, after which they were read by the ones receiving them. They proved to be of unusual interest, and everyone thoroughly enjoyed the innovation. During the evening Miss Nettie Kriesting presided at the piano and the music was a pleasant feature.

See picture of Alfred Speer in another column, the original wine grower in the United States, whose wines have become famous over the world; also his "Climax Grape Brandy.

See What a President Says on Brandy for Sickness.

The President of the Baltimore Medical College, who has thoroughly tested Speer's wines and brandy, says: "Speer's Climax Brandy is a pure and valuable article in all cases of disease in which a reliable stimulant is required. I regard it superior to most French brandies."

Councilman Buckle Was Ill

Owing to a slight illness Councilman Buckle was unable to attend the meeting of the council last Monday, hence the setting of the date for the trial against Patrolmen Totten and Saffron was adjourned to a later date.

DOES COFFEE AGREE WITH YOU?

"If not, drink Grain-O—mad from pure grain. A lady writes: "The first time I made Grain-O I did not like it but after using it for one week nothing would induce me to go back to coffee." If nourishes and feeds it strengthens. The entire family can drink it freely with great benefit. It is the strengthening substitute for coffee. 15 cts. and 25 cts. per package today from your grocer. Follow the directions in making and you will have a delicious and healthful table beverage for old and young. 15 and 25c.

SIGNIFICANCE OF SPRING ELECTIONS.

A Quartette of Successful Mayors To the Fore.

RACE FOR STATE HONORS.

LOCAL ELECTIONS SUMMED UP FROM PARTISAN STANDPOINT.

Democrats are Full of Glee Over the Results and the Republicans Smile Confidently When They Look into the Future—Mayor Seymour, of Newark, May be the Next Democratic Nominee

Trenton, April 18—The result of the municipal elections last week does not show much change in public sentiment, with the exception of the Republican city of Paterson, where Mayor Hinchliffe, a Democrat, made a most phenomenal run for re-election. Jersey City went Democratic by an increased majority, as had been expected. Mayor Hoos was re elected by nearly 7,000 majority, the largest ever given a candidate for that office since the city was incorporated, and not only that, but the Democrats elected all of the Aldermen with but one exception. Truly this great Democratic victory in Jersey City has placed Leader "Bob" Davis higher up in the councils of his party than he ever had reached before. He will now wield great influence in State politics and in future will probably run the State machine of his party.

What effect the general result will have on State politics is a question of much moment to the leaders of both parties. The inference is deduced that the Democrats are gaining in strength, and that two years hence they may nominate a winning candidate for Governor. It it conceded that New Jersey is a Democratic State and that it has changed its politics during the past five or six years only on account of dissensions in the organization of the party over the financial question. But the Democratic party is fast becoming a thing of the past, and the prospect is that both wings of the party will again flap together during the next important campaign. In State campaigns, at any rate, there is a strong hope felt among the Democrats that their party will again be united.

Four full-fledged Democratic candidates for Governor are mentioned as the outcome of the recent elections. And they are all Mayors as that—Hoos, of Jersey City; Seymour, of Newark; Hinchliffe, of Paterson, and Fagan, of Hoboken. Should their friends persist in booming their candidacy there will be a merry scramble all around. Of course, Democratic Leaders James-Smith, Edward F. C. Young, Allen McDermott, "Bob" Davis, Johnston Cornish and William B. Guurley will have all to say about the matter. Before the Democratic convention meets they will have ample time to compare notes and ascertain who would be the strongest candidate. Should Mayor Seymour be re-elected in Newark next spring, he would undoubtedly make about the most available candidate of them all. Again should "Bob" Davis insist upon the nomination of Mayor Hoos, his associate leaders of his party might be prevailed upon to accede to his desire.

The Republicans do not feel dismayed at all over the piling up of the big majorities in the Democratic cities. On the contrary they feel as confident as ever being able to maintain their grip on State affairs and electing a successor to Governor Voorhees. Already three candidates are mentioned for the office on their side—Pitney, Watkins and Fort. But when the time comes to make a nomination, perhaps Essex on account of its unswerving loyalty to the party may demand the honor by naming Franklin Murphy, who has done such effective work during his long service as chairman of the Republican State Committee.

PRESBYTERY SESSION

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1.

applied for licenses to preach, and after an examination upon the necessary topics, were granted them. Lewis G. Leary, of Elizabeth, was also taken under the care of the Presbytery and will soon apply for license.

Rev. Charles E. Herring and Rev. Joseph McKeefrey were the ministers appointed as delegates to the National Assembly which meets in Minneapolis this June, and John A. Poweleon, of Pluckamin, and William E. Wells, of Rahway, were the elders chosen.

The temperance committee recommended that Temperance Day be observed in November, and that the church take up a collection for this cause. This was carried. The Presbytery also decided to endorse the Twentieth century movement, and recommended it to the churches and Sabbath schools in the district This is a movement to obtain 1,000,000 new Sunday-school pupils before the beginning of the new century.

Miss Grace Smith, of Park avenue, has returned from a visit with New York relatives.

CAN NOW CLAIM TO BE FULL-FLEDGED CYCLIST.

MET THE BANE OF THE PROFESSION.

Which is a Nasty Dog—Canine Knew How to Bite—A J. Leader the Victim

Albert J. Leader, of Duer street, last Monday added another chapter to his chain of accidents that have occurred while he has been riding a wheel Mr. Leader has met with all sorts of accidents, but not until last evening had he encountered a dog.

It was about 8:30 o'clock that he was passing in front of J. E Arnold's grocery on Somerset street, and a small dog ran into the road and attacked Mr. Leader whilenn his wheel. The dog made a grab for the rider's leg and succeeded in getting a hold. The trousers were ruined and the flesh on the leg was broken. Mr. Leader fell off his wheel and sustained a few bruises.

He was assisted to his feet and a little later he went to the home of Dr Buchanan, who cauterized the wound. No serious results are feared, but Mr. Leader instructed Marshal Campbell, who was near when the accident occurred, to shoot the dog, which will be done today. The owner of the animal is not known.

VOLUNTEER'S STATE PAY NOT YET QUITE READY.

SENDING OF CHECKS DELAYED.

General Donnelly Announces That Money for Volunteers Will Not be Forthcoming Yet.

Trenton, April 18.—Quartermaster-General R. A. Donnelly has made an official announcement to the effect that the checks for the soldiers' State pay would not be ready for several days.

"I do so," said General Donnelly, in speaking of the announcement, "because some newspapers evidently misconstrued the purport of the circular issued from this department last week, and announced that the money was ready That led many of our volunteers to suppose that their pay would be forthcoming at once, something quite impossible because of the legal formalities that have to be complied with.

"We have done everything possible to expedite the payment, and for that reason issued the circular requesting the volunteers to send their discharge papers to this office. When that is done we will make out the warrants and vouchers and have the checks forwarded. All this will occupy considerable time, and for that reason we do not want the volunteers to be laboring under the impression that their allowance may be expected by almost any mail."

PRISONER'S HONOR WAS NOT GOOD KIND OF BAIL.

FOR HE NEVER APPEARED IN COURT.

Arrested Saturday Night and Promised to Appear in Court Monday, But Did Not.

A case of miscalculation occurred late last Saturday evening and the experience will no doubt have a good effect on the officials of the borough, under whose rule the affair happened. A stranger from New York found his way into the borough and during the evening imbibed pretty freely. In consequence he became somewhat fractious, so much so that one of the marshals took him in charge, and was about to lock up the non-resident.

Just about that time Mayor Smalley happened along and through some means the man was released to appear for trial Monday morning. The man went away and has not been seen since. The failure of the stranger to put in appearance has caused the Mayor to decide that hereafter no one will be released to appear unless bonds are furnished.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O.

Sold by Druggists, 75c.

Hall's Family Pills are the best.

Beautifying His Grounds.

Thomas Minford is having his beautiful grounds on Putnam, Watchung and Woodland avenues, graded. H. O. VanEmburgh, civil engineer, has the work in charge of surveying the grounds.

—The Game Club will hold a dance in the Camera Club rooms in the Babcock building Friday evening.

GAS JET FOUND OPEN; CAUSED HER OWN END

Mrs. Hattie Elliott's Death Was a Voluntary Act.

HAD BEEN A LONG SUFFERER

SUICIDE WAS CAUSED BY TEMPORARY ABERATION OF MIND.

She Lived With Her Sister, Mrs. Charles Lister, Who, When No Answers Was Heard to Call, Sent for Her Husband—Later —Broke in Door and Found Mrs. Elliott's Body Lying Dead in Bed

Mrs Hattie Elliott, youngest daughter of Mr and Mrs Lewis Putnam, of West Second street, was found dead in bed Tuesday morning in the home of her sister, Mrs Charles Lister, of Watchung avenue and East Second street. There was a strong odor of gas in the room when opened by force, and as the gas jet was found open it is supposed that death was caused by Mrs. Elliott's voluntary act.

For a long time past Mrs. Elliott has been a great sufferer. At times her mind has been affected to the extent that she did not know any one. Last evening she retired as usual and nothing especially strange was noted in her condition. Tuesday morning about 7 o'clock Mrs. Lister went to the latter's room for the purpose of calling her. When she found the door locked and no re-ponse was forthcoming to her repeated calls, she began to think strange of it.

Mrs. Lister sent for her husband about 8 o'clock. He effected an entrance to the room by breaking the lock on the door. He was startled to find that there was a very strong odor of gas in the room, and upon examination learned that Mrs. Elliott was dead in bed. She had every appearance of being asleep. The body was then cold. Dr. Long was then sent for, after which County Physician Westcott was summoned. After an examination the cause of death was given as suicide

The supposition is that during the night Mrs Elliott arose from her bed to take medicine and that after lighting the gas and turning it out again, she turned it on again while under a temporary aberration of mind. Of late she had experienced similar spells, when she would fail to recognize her own mother and other members of the family, which was due to the intense suffering she experienced

Mrs Elliott had a host of friends in this city who will mourn her death. She had a lovable disposition and was liked by all who knew her. A husband and two children survive her.

MINISTER IS OPPOSED.

Rev. Mr. Dorward Against the Granting of a License.

New Brunswick, April 19—The application of Michael Heary for a license to sell liquor at the track of the New Brunswick Driving Association is bitterly opposed. Monday when the application was considered in court Rev. W. T. Dorward, a Stelton minister, appeared to oppose it He is the president of the county Christian Endeavor Union.

He catechized Judge Strong as to the names of the men who had signed the application, what their standing was and similar questions. Judge Strong answered them all gravely. He finally adjourned the matter for two weeks.

When Heary's counsel, Robert Arafo, remarked that Mr. Dorward made a queer showing in court, Judge Strong remarked that the reverend gentleman did quite as well in court as Mr. Adrain would do in the pulpit.

SUCCESSFUL SHOWING.

Annual Meeting of Home Building and Loan Association.

The annual meeting of the Home Building and Loan Association was held last Monday. The semi-annual statement showed that the first series will close in August, after continuing 137 months. The interest earned in this series has been equal to one half the amount paid in.

The annual election of officers was held and resulted as follows: President, Isaac W. Rushmore; vice president George H. Batchelor; secretary, S. S. Struthers; treasurer, William F. Arnold; attorney, William M. Still man; directors for three years, L. M. French, W. A. Freeman, W. H. Sampson and J. A. Haynes; director for two years, F. W. Viewig; auditor for two years, D. M. Runyon.

Jersey Letter-Carriers Organizing.

Jersey City, April 19.—An attempt was made at a meeting of letter carriers yesterday to organize a State association, William J. Heeb, of Newark, was elected temporary chairman, and James V. Hogan, of Jersey City, temporary secretary. After a long discussion, a committee was appointed, consisting of Messrs. Heeb and Kleinknick, of Newark; Coleman and Sherman, of Jersey City, and Rowe, of Paterson, who will hold a conference with the Executive Board of the State Association, composed of carriers from second-class cities at Newark, Sunday afternoon, April 30.

Dr. Humphreys'

Specifics act directly upon the diseases, without exciting disorder in other parts of the system. They Cure the Sick.

NO.	CURES.	PRICE.
1	Fevers, Congestions, Inflammations.	.25
2	Worms, Worm Fever, Worm Colic...	.25
3	Teething, Colic, Crying, Wakefulness	.25
4	Diarrhea, of Children or Adults.....	.25
5	Dysentery, Griping, Bilious Colic...	.25
6	Cholera, Cholera Morbus, Vomiting.	.25
7	Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis.....	.25
8	Neuralgia, Toothache, Facache....	.25
9	Headache, Sick Headache, Vertigo...	.25
10	Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Weak Stomach	.25
11	Suppressed or Painful Periods.....	.25
12	Whites, Too Profuse Periods.....	.25
13	Croup, Laryngitis, Hoarseness.....	.25
14	Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Eruptions.	.25
15	Rheumatism, Rheumatic Pains.....	.25
16	Malaria, Chills, Fever and Ague	.25
17	Piles, External or Internal	.25
18	Ophthalmia, Weak or Inflamed Eyes	.25
19	Catarrh, Influenza, Cold in the Head	.25
20	Whooping-Cough	.25
21	Asthma, Difficult Breathing.....	.25
22	Ear Discharges, Earache.....	.25
23	Scrofula, Swellings and Ulcers.....	.25
24	General Debility, Weakness.....	.25
25	Dropsy, Fluid Accumulations.....	.25
26	Sea-Sickness, Nausea, Vomiting	.25
27	Kidney Diseases	.25
28	Nervous Debility	1.00
29	Sore Mouth, or Canker.....	.25
30	Urinary Weakness, Wetting Bed...	.25
31	Painful Menses, Spasms.....	.25
32	Diseases of the Heart, Palpitation.	1.00
33	Epilepsy, St. Vitus' Dance.....	1.00
34	Sore Throat, Quinsy, Diphtheria...	.25
35	Chronic Congestions, Headaches...	.25
77	Grip, Hay Fever.....	.25

Dr. Humphreys' Manual of all Diseases at your Druggists or mailed free.

Humphreys' Med. Co., Cor. William & John Sts., New York.

HUMPHREYS' WITCH HAZEL OIL "THE PILE OINTMENT."

For Piles—External or Internal, Blind or Bleeding Itching in Any Holding or Bleeding of the Rectum. The relief is certain. Cures the worst cases.

PRICE, 50 CTS. TRIAL SIZE, 25 CTS.

Sold by Druggists, or sent by mail on receipt of price.

HUMPHREYS' MED. CO., 111 & 113 William St., New York.

In Chancery of New Jersey.

Between SARAH R. ROBINSON, —Petitioner, —and— EMERY H. ROBINSON, —Defendant.

On Petition for Divorce.

To Emery H. Robinson:

By virtue of an order of the Court of Chancery of New Jersey made on the day of the date hereof, wherein Sarah R. Robinson is petitioner, and you are defendant, you are required to appear and answer the petitioner's petition on or before the 20th day of April next, or in default such order will be taken against you as the Chancellor shall think equitable and just; the said petition is filed to obtain a decree for a divorce from the bond of matrimony.

Dated the 27th day of February, Eighteen Hundred and Ninety-Nine.

REED & CODDINGTON, Solicitors of Petitioner, Babcock Building, Plainfield, N. J.

295

Avoid drying inhalants and use the balm that heals and cleanses and heal the membrane.

Ely's Cream Balm is such a remedy, cures and is a pleasant. Contains no mercury or any other injurious drug. It is quickly absorbed. Gives Relief at once. It opens and cleanses the Nasal Passages. Allays Inflammation. Heals and Protects the Membrane. Restores the Senses of Taste and Smell. HAY FEVER. A particle is applied into each nostril and is agreeable. Price 50 cents at Druggists or by mail. ELY BROTHERS, 56 Warren Street, New York.

CATARRH

ELY'S CREAM BALM CATARRH COLD in HEAD

Notice of Copyright.

Notice is hereby given that certain musical compositions, herein named and described, have been deposited in the office of copyright, according to Act of Congress, before the expiration of the first term of twenty-eight years; and that Certificates of Copyright and duplicate deposit have been given to Robert Lovell of Plainfield, N. J., bearing dated February 28, 1899, and signed by A. R. Spofford, Librarian of Congress, and Thorvald Solberg, Register of Copyrights, to wit:

1899.

No. of Certificate.

15,816. Blessed River. Words by Boner. R. L. For a period of fourteen years from April 28, 1899.

15,815. Would He the Next? Mrs. Annie S. Hawks. R. L.

15,817. Linger no Longer, R. Lowry, 1871. R. L. For a period of fourteen years from April 28, 1899.

15,818. Something for Jesus. Words by Rev. S. D. Phelps, D. D. R. L.

15,819. Come to Me. Mrs. E. Prentiss. R. L.

15,820. Mountain of the Lord. M. L. 1871. R. L.

15,821. Blessed Jesus, Hear Me. D. D. Phelps, D. D. R. L.

15,822. Little Children, You May Come. Julia A. Mathews. R. L.

15,824. In the Valley. Mrs. Annie S. Hawks. R. L.

15,825. Rise Am I. Mrs. Annie S. Hawks. R. L.

15,826. Anywhere With Jesus. R. L.

15,827. Consider Your Ways. Words by Julia A. Mathews. R. L.

15,828. Let the Lower Lights Be Burning. R. L.

15,829. Let the Master in. Words by Rev. S. D. Phelps, D. D. R. L.

The above renewals have been granted to the undersigned as author.

ROBERT LOWRY.

Plainfield, N. J., April 8, 1899. 14 5

DIED.

JOHNSON—In this city, Wednesday, April 12, 1899, Phebe A., wife of John Johnson, in her 71st year.

DRYDEN—Entered into rest at midnight, April 15th, Edwin Sewell Dryden, in his 58th year.

SMALLEY—In this city, Friday, April 14th, 1899, Sarah A., wife of Isaac Smalley, aged 73 years, 11 months, 14 days.

FOX—In this city, April 18th, 1899, Phebe, widow of the late Henry Fox, in her 101st year.

ANDERSON—At North Plainfield, April 18th, 1899, Mrs. Betsy Anderson, age 86 years.

BENTON—At Newark, Sunday, April 16th, David Runyon, formerly of this city, in his 54th year.

SPENCER—In North Plainfield, Tuesday, April 18, 1899, William F. Spencer, aged 59 years.

KELLOGG—In this city, Tuesday, April 18, 1899, Hattie T. Elliott, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis C. Putnam.

KELLOGG—In this city, Wednesday, April 19, 1899, Eliza Scudder, wife of the late Rev. Samuel Kellogg, in her 93d year.

MARRIED.

BEETMAN—CAVE. On Saturday, April 15th, Margaret Weaver, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Cave, on Sandford avenue, to Frederick Edward Beetman.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Lopez and son, of Orange, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. George W. Beighton, of Park avenue.

CARNEY BROS.,

MADISON AVENUE,

Between Front and Second streets.

Tinners,

Plumbers

Gas Fitters,

Grates and bricks for all kinds of stoves can be found here at Jobbers' prices. Bring your tinware mending to us. The best tinners, the best plumbers, and the best gas-fitters in this section. We use none but the very best of materials, and our work always gives satisfaction. Keys of all kinds are made here. Tinware made to order. Ranges, brick and portable furnaces. Sanitary plumbing.

Sanitary Plumbing,

Brick and Portable Furnace

Gas Fitting, Tin Roofing,

Etc., Etc., Etc.

I am prepared to do any of the above branches in strictly first-class sanitary and workmanship manner.

Having associated myself with the Master Plumbers Association of New York City, I employ none but first-class mechanics and non-union men. I believe in every man running s own business, at all times and in cases.

D. W. LITTELL,

No. 112 North Ave., Plainfield, N. J.

ALBERT HEDDEN

Livery & Boarding Stables

FOURTH ST.,

between Watchung and Park avenues.

First-class Livery. Horses boarded by week or month. Telephone call, No. 114.

A. WOLFF.

Manufacturer of

CIGARS.

And dealer in all kinds of Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and smokers' articles, has removed from 202 W. Front street, to 203 West Front street, one door east of Madison avenue and solicits the patronage of his friends and the public generally.

P. P. VanArsdale,

PIANO TUNER.

Instruments put in thorough order. Terms reasonable. Pianos and organs for sale and to let. Orders by postal, P. O. box 180, or left at Willett's shoe store, No. 107 Park avenue, will receive prompt attention. Residence, 203 E. Front street, corner Elm street. 9[yr

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS DESIGNS COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York

Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

NEW IN EVERY DETAIL!

My new barber shop at

143 NORTH AVE.

is now open ready for business. All the latest appointments in the tonsorial line.

EDWIN B. HAYNARD.

CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS COPYRIGHTS &c.

CAN I OBTAIN A PATENT? For a prompt answer and an honest opinion, write to MUNN & CO., who have had nearly fifty years' experience in the patent business. Communications strictly confidential. A Handbook of Information concerning Patents and how to obtain them sent free. Also a catalogue of mechanical and scientific books sent free.

Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice in the Scientific American, and thus are brought widely before the public without cost to the inventor. This splendid paper, issued weekly, elegantly illustrated, has by far the largest circulation of any scientific work in the world. $3 a year. Sample copies sent free. Building Edition, monthly, $2.50 a year. Single copies, 25 cents. Every number contains beautiful plates, in colors, and photographs of new houses, with plans, enabling builders to show the latest designs and secure contracts. Address, MUNN & CO., NEW YORK, 361 BROADWAY.

Wm. A. Woodruff,

Fire and Life

INSURANCE AGENT,

OFFICE,

Corner Front St. and Park Avenue,

Plainfield, N. J.

Real Estate for Sale and Exchange Money to Loan on Approve Security

STRIVING TO SECURE MORE MAIL-CARRIERS.

Postmaster Bird Visits Washington For That Purpose.

ACCOMPANIED BY FOWLER.

AN INSPECTOR TO VISIT HERE WITHIN A FEW DAYS.

Mr. Bird Has an Interesting Interview With Chief Clerk Machen and Brings Strong Arguments to Bear Out the Claim for the Appointment of More Carriers to Deliver Mail in Plainfield.

Postmaster Bird has been working diligently for sometime past to secure more carriers for the local office, and in connection with this effort he visited Washington, Saturday, in company with Congressman Fowler, of Elizabeth, City Clerk MacMurray and Andrew McArdle, the fourth Ward Republican leader. Mr. Bird went cocked and primed to make a forcible argument with the Postoffice Department.

In company with Congressman Fowler the Plainfielders visited the Department and secured an interview with Chief Clerk Machen, of the carrier service. Mr. Bird explained that the Plainfield office had but eleven carriers, which was not sufficient to serve the patrons in a satisfactory manner. The trouble with Plainfield, he stated, was that it was scattered over such an amount of territory that each carrier had to serve a district much larger than the Department calculates on. Each carrier in the service is supposed to deliver mail to at least 2,000 people, but where they are scattered to the extent that they are in this city it is a difficult job and is the cause of many complaints.

Chief Clerk Machen recognized the fact that there is much dissatisfaction with the service in Plainfield, though Postmaster Bird is doing the best that is possible with the facilities that are put at his disposal. Mr. Bird made an earnest plea for at least two more carriers, and with the facts and figures which he had prepared for the interview, he was able to convince the department officials that his appeal was not without its merits. But as Plain field is only one out of some 40,000 postoffices in the country, and each one is constantly urging that it be treated more liberally, the department is sorely perplexed to give to each one the things that are desired and needed.

Postmaster Bird urged especially that the department detail an inspector to visit this city and go over the territory and see for himself the difficulties which the eleven carriers have in covering their routes satisfactorily to the residents. It was finally agreed that an inspector would be sent here in a few days and would make a thorough inspection of the local conditions and make such recommendations as he thought necessary.

No change, however, can be made till the first of July, when the fiscal year commences and the new appropriation comes into use. In the meantime Postmaster Bird hopes to bring influences and arguments to bear on the department so that the additional carriers will be allowed. Congressman Fowler has personally interested himself in the matter and is doing all that he can to aid Mr. Bird in improving the local postal service.

CHASED INTO BOROUGH; CHASED BACK AGAIN.

THE HOLMES' HAD SOME TROUBLE.

Finally Landed in Jail and Made Disparaging Remarks About Chief and Officers—Fined This Morning.

Merton Holmes and Oliver Holmes made all sorts of trouble for the police Sunday afternoon. First, Chief Grant and Special Officer Mattox chased them around. Then Mrs. Jose Carboone put them out of her husband's store on North avenue. Patrolman Flannagan chased them into the borough and Marshal Campbell chased them back. Finally the Chief and Flannagan locked them up.

In the jail Merton Holmes abused the Chief and said that they would have no more like him on the force. Oliver Holmes told Flannagan that that officer was drunk and that he could lick him. Monday Oliver was sentenced to a $4 fine or ten days in jail and Merton to $8 fine and 20 days in jail.

Loyal Temperance Legion Entertained.

The Loyal Temperance Legion entertained a number of its friends, Saturday afternoon, with a pleasing programme of recitations and songs at the W. C. T. U. rooms on East Front street. There were piano solos by Mrs. J. B. Goendyke, soprano solos with auto-harp accompaniment by Miss M. G. Morse. The address of welcome was given by Dora Wilson. Recitations were given by Phillip Leichenritt, Clarence Snell, Charles Post, May Raymond, Edward Honeyman and Alexander Galloway. The programme also included temperance songs by the Legion and several dialogues and songs in which a number of the children participated.

TALKED WITH MR. BRYAN

JAMES E MARTINE A GUEST AT THE GREAT DINNER.

Had a Personal Chat With the Great Silver Leader in His Apartments at the Hotel Bartholdi, in the Afternoon.

James E. Martine, of this city, known throughout the State as the "Farmer Orator," was among the conspicious State leaders who attended the banquet given in the Grand Central Palace in New York, Saturday night.

Late in the afternoon Mr. Martine had a pleasant personal chat of considerable length with William Jennings Bryan at the latter's apartments in the Hotel Bartholdi. Mr. Martine has met the great Free Silverite several times before and is an ardent admirer of the Nebraska man. Mr. Martine says that Mr. Bryan is looking healty and is in fine mettle for the coming National political contest.

At the dinner Mr. Martin and several other Jerseymen were among the guests who were honored with a seat on the platform from which Mr. Bryan made his address.

MORE TIME IS ALLOWED

DUNELLEN HOT AFTER BRUNSWICK TRACTION COMANY.

Meeting of the Council Held Saturday Night and the Company Given Two Weeks More to Comply With Agreement.

Dunellen, N. J., April 17.—A special meeting of the Council was held Saturday night to take some action in regard to the running of the trolley cars by the Brunswick Traction Company. The residents have been complaining for two months at the unsatisfactory way in which the service is given. The Council at a recent meeting gave the company until Saturday last to arrange to comply with the franchise, which sets forth that cars are to be run every half hour. As there was no change in the the schedule on that date, the Council met to take some action upon it.

The chamber where the Council met was crowded, for it was expected that some stringent means would be proposed by which to compel the railroad magnates to come to terms. But the listeners were doomed to disappointment. A representative of the company was present, and asked for another two weeks in which to comply with the ordinance, giving as an excuse for not doing so before that they find it impossible to secure cars enough to use on their Bound Brook route.

Upon their faithful promise to put on an extra car by May 1st, no further action was taken, and the matter hangs in abeyance until the first of the month.

FELL BENEATH WHEELS BUT MANAGED TO ESCAPE.

NARROW ESCAPE AT THE STATION.

Commuter Tried to Board Moving Train—Was Thrown Down and Under Wheels—Miraculous Escape.

It's only a question of time before one of the commuters, who daily run for the train at the North Avenue station, will be killed or badly injured by a fall beneath the wheels of one of the trains. Last Monday the crowd at the station thought the time had come.

A young man arrived at the station just as the 7:55 express was pulling out. He caught the hand-rail to one of the platforms but lost his footing, stumbled along and fell. Just as the front trucks of the car passed, both of his legs landed right across the rail. By a great effort he swung them to one side just in time to avoid the hind truck. The crowd held their breath, but a great sigh of relief went up when it was seen that the young man had escaped.

FOR THE LITTLE FOLKS.

Entertainment Arranged for Young Members of St. Stephen's Church.

The little folks of St. Stephen's church were treated to an entertainment Saturday afternoon in the small hall of the Y. M. C. A. The entertainment was free, and consisted of Punch and Judy show by A. Brown, of New York.

The entertainment was followed by a sale of fancy articles, made by little folks themselves, which showed much skill on their part. Ice cream and cake were served at the close, and all departed happy.

Improved Residences in the Borough.

The removal of the front and side fences from Mrs. Sanford's place, corner of Washington avenue and Park place, exposes more fully to view the fine lawn and pleasant grounds. The residence of Thomas Loyd and his sisters the Misses Loyd, of Washington avenue, has been recently improved by the addition of a conservatory to the southwest corner.

Made Addresses in Sing Sing.

F. H. Martin, of West Front street, addressed the Y. M. C. A. in Sing Sing Sunday afternoon, and also spoke in the Broadway mission in that city in the evening.

ALMOST A CENTENARIAN.

MRS. PHEBE FOX DIES AT THE AGE OF NINETY-FIVE.

For the Past Year She Has Been Blind—Always Lived in This Vicinity—Leaves a Large Number of Descendants.

Mrs. Phebe Fox, aged ninety-five years, widow of the late Henry Fox, died Saturday evening at the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. Amos Gray, 118 Elmwood place, with whom she had lived for some time past. For a year past Mrs. Fox had been blind and during the past two weeks she was confined to her bed.

Mrs. Fox was born near Basking Ridge, and has been a resident of Plainfield about thirty years. She also lived at Scotch Plains at one time, where she was a member of the Baptist church. She was a woman of rare Christian character and lived in the faith to the last.

Among those who survive her are Mrs. Amos Gray, Herbert Overbaugh, Walter Overbaugh, of this city; Mrs. Dow, of Elizabeth; Charles Overbaugh, of New York, all of whom are grandchildren. There are also two grandchildren living in Newhatoom, Wash., and another one living in the west. Among the great-grandchildren are Mr. and Mrs. Gray's four children, Walter Overbaugh's child, while there are three living in the west and two in New York.

RAN AWAY FROM HOME

LITTLE OLIVER PEEL DIDN'T LIKE TO KEEP HOUSE.

Told City Judge Runyon He Couldn't Keep House and go to School Too—So He Ran Away to Escape Punishment.

City Judge William N. Runyon made a new acquaintance Monday The regular batch of prisoners had been arraigned and the court was preparing to depart.

"By the way," remarked Chief Grant, "There's a little boy in there who was brought down from Scotch Plains Saturday night." Then Patrolman Flannagan went into the cell and brought out the little prisoner, a boy of ten years. Little Oliver Peel was a bright looking boy, with a frowsy head of curly hair that sadly needed a brush and comb and very dirty hands and face. He was a little afraid of the Judge at first and his lower lip trembled as he tried to keep back the tears. But the kindly voice of the Judge soon encouraged the little fellow and told his story.

He had lived with his mother in Netherwood, he said. His father had run away four years ago and now his mother worked in the carpet factory. It was his duty to wash the dishes, sweep the floor, feed the chickens, chop the wood, carry the coal and get his own lunch. He was also expected to go to school. He couldn't do them all, he told the Judge, so his mother licked him with the end of a horse whip.

He didn't think his mother cared for him anymore so he ran away five days ago. Since then he has slept in houses, under stoops and in the fields. He had wandered up to Scotch Plains where he was playing with the boys when he was taken back to Plainfield and turned over to the police. The Judge promised to look into the case.

FARMER GORED BY A MAD HOLSTEIN BULL.

HIS INJURIES MAY PROVE FATAL.

William Dunn Knocked Down and Gored by Mad Brute—Animal Clubbed to Face.

William Dunn, employed by George Vane, a farmer, living about a mile south of Bound Brook, while milking Sunday was attacked by a large Holstein bull, knocked down, and gored and pawed. His screams attracted the attention of Mr. Vane, who seized a pitchfork and tried to drive the beast away. He succeeded in doing so by clubbing the animal in the face.

Mr. Dunn was terribly bruised and lacerated, and after a number of cuts were sewed up by Dr. Garretson he was removed to his home in Franklin Park. The doctor has small hope of his recovery, as he is badly hurt internally.

This is the second time the bull has attacked one of the farmhands, and his owner has decided to kill him.

Death of Mrs. Anderson.

Mrs. Edey Anderson, aged 63 years, mother of James E. Martine, of 184 Duer street, died Saturday last after a long illness of grip and gastritis. She was under the treatment of Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan, and all that was possible was done to save life. The funeral services will be held this evening from the residence, 184 Duer street, at 7:30 o'clock. Interment at Princeton at the convenience of the family.

Pipes are Delayed.

The pipes for the Park avenue storm sewer have not arrived. They were expected last week, and the work cannot be started until they arrive.

All Y. M. C. A. Men.

It is an interesting fact to know that every cadet at the West Point Military Academy is a member of the Y. M. C. A. there.

KEAN'S TROLLEY PLAN STRIKES A BAD SNAG

Elizabeth's Council Not to Act As the Senator Desires.

COMPANY MAY NOT ACCEPT.

CHANCES FOR LINE FROM ELIZABETH TO PLAINFIELD LESSENED.

Officials Want to Make a Five Cent Fare from Staten Island Ferry to Cranford and Also Hold the Right to Change the Transfer System in the Future—Concessions are Liberal.

Elizabeth, April 17.—Elizabeth's City Council was in session until 1 o'clock Sunday morning, trying to agree on the features of an ordinance which is intended to give Senator John Kean the privilege to change the motive power of his street railway in Elizabeth from horses to electricity, and also to extend the road to Cranford township.

The Council adjourned without passing the ordinance, as it would not be lawful to take such action on Sunday. In its amended form the ordinance will not be accepted by Senator Kean, and the proposed trolley line will not be constructed this summer.

The clauses in the granting of the franchise that Mr. Kean's company will not submit to are a five cent fare from the Elizabethport and Staten Island Ferry to Cranford, and the right of the City Council at any future time to make such an arrangement as it sees fit for the exchange of transfers between the Elizabeth Street Railway Company and its rival, the North New Jersey Traction Company.

Senator Kean's company thinks it has made a liberal concession to Elizabeth, when it agrees to spend $65,000 for paving streets which the proposed electric line is to traverse, when the North Jersey Traction Company was given a much more reasonable franchise for nothing.

It is intimated that the opposition to Senator Kean's proposed trolley line is largely inspired by the North New Jersey Traction Company, which, it is alleged, is interested in the electric railway which is being constructed from Plainfield and Westfield to Elizabeth.

ST. JOSEPH'S FAIR ENDS.

PRIZES AWARDED TO SUCCESSFUL COMPETITORS SATURDAY NIGHT.

The Event Was a Great Success as Conducted by the Women, and Will Put a Tidy Sum in the Treasury.

The bazaar held under the auspices of the Rosary Society and Children of Mary in Sangerbund Hall four evenings last week, came to a close Saturday evening and St. Joseph's church, for whose benefit it was held, will receive a large sum of profit therefrom. There was a good attendance the last evening and most everything was disposed of to good advantage. There were also several contests decided and this furnished plenty of enthusiasm. The persons in charge of the bazaar worked hard and faithful to make a success of the affair and they succeeded far beyond their expectation. They were liberally patronized by friends and members of the church and they are gratified with the result.

Among the contests and events decided Saturday evening was the chiffonier which was won by A. E. LaPorte. A fifteen-pound live rooster donated by Mrs. B. A. Boyce was won by Jeremian Calahan, Joseph Blatz, Jr., was the winner of the boy's silver watch, while James Kane was successful in winning the ton of coal.

One of the greatest contests was that on Father Brennan's picture. Mrs. DeChane was the winner of it, and the contest brought in almost as much as that one for Father Miller's picture. Mrs. B. A. Boyce secured the handsome banquet lamp, and Mr. Berhead got the album. There were chances on a $6 gold piece and the winner of it is a resident of New York. There were a few things left and those will be disposed of this week in one way and another.

During the evening those present enjoyed a visit from Father Miller, who just returned from South Amboy, where he has been visiting his parents. Father Brennan was also present, and a reception was given to Father Miller. He congratulated all on their earnest efforts and was surprised to learn that all had done so well.

The bazaar closed about 11:30 o'clock and everyone went away feeling that they had helped a good cause along so successfully. The financial result of the bazaar will be announced in the course of a short time.

Father Miller Returns.

The congregation of St. Joseph's church welcomed their pastor, Father Miller, back to church yesterday morning, and had the pleasure of hearing him preach a fine sermon. Rev. Father Brennan had charge of the service, and there was a very large attendance at the church.

HOW TO DRAW STATE PAY

A CIRCULAR OF INTELLIGENCE ISSUED TO VOLUNTEERS.

There is Considerable Red Tape to be Gone Through With in Order to Secure the Money the State Will Pay.

Trenton, April 17.—General R. A. Donnelly, Paymaster-General of the Natural Guard of New Jersey, has issued a circular giving directions how volunteers should proceed to secure their pay from the State. The circular says:

"Bring or mail your discharge to this office accompanied by your present postoffice address. If payment is desired to be made to any other person than yourself, please designate the name of such person, with his or her postoffice address.

"Upon receipt of the discharge, an abstract of the same, together with instructions, will be sent to you for the execution of proper receipts.

"After proper affidavit has been made and the receipt signed, return the same to this office. If payment is to be made to another person, such person must also sign a receipt provided for on the abstract.

"Upon such return to this office, with receipt properly executed, a check for the amount of your claim, together with your original discharge, will be mailed to you or to the person designated by you."

OFF TO CENTRAL AFRICA

FAREWELL RECEPTION TO MR. AND MRS. JOSEPH BOOTH.

Given by Sabbath Evangelizing and Industrial Association—Will Start an Industrial Mission in Nyasea Land.

There was a gathering in the Seventh-Day Baptist church Saturday evening when the members of the congregations of the Plainfield, New Market and New York Seventh Day Baptist churches met to bid farewell to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Booth, who start shortly to resume their mission work in Central Africa. The meeting was held under the auspices of the Sabbath Evangelizing and Industrial Association, of which Mr. Booth is field secretary. They sailed Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock on the steamer, "Paris," and go to Nyasea Land, British Central Africa, where they will establish an industrial mission under the control of the association.

The meeting Saturday night was held in the chapel of the church and was presided over by D. E. Titsworth, president of the association. There was a good attendance. Mr. Titsworth made the introductory remarks after the meeting had been opened with prayer by Rev. Mr. Stadall, the new preacher at the New Market church. Mr. and Mrs. Booth both spoke. They have, on previous occasions, described their work of the past and the proposed methods for the new industrial mission. They thanked their friends and spoke words of encouragement and cheer.

Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, editor of the Sabbath Recorder, made a short address on the need of the mission work and the great good that might come from it. Rev. A. E. Main, pastor of the church, also made a few remarks along the same line.

Prof. Henry M. Maxson presented the departing missionaries with a handsome American flag in the name of the Association. The flag they will carry with them and it will float over their home in the other continet. The meeting closed with prayer by Dr. Lewis.

After the meeting, an informal reception was held when the friends gathered around Mr. and Mrs. Booth, gave them a hearty grasp of the hand and bade them "God-speed." Refreshments were served by the women of the church.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

The team record at the Park Club alleys was completely shattered Saturday evening in the second of the series of games between the Plainfield and North Plainfield bowlers. Plainfield won two out of the three games rolled, winning the first by the phenominal score of 972, the highest ever rolled on the alleys.

The score by games was as follows:

NORTH PLAINFIELD.	1st.	2d.	3d.
Douglass	143	199	208
Wyeth	161	178	196
McQuade	151	173	199
F. H. Ball	168	161	189
Dr. Thiers	141	190	180
	764	861	972
PLAINFIELD.	1st.	2d.	3d.
Randolph	186	199	173
Brown	194	162	146
Detroit	179	199	195
Hibbard	179	178	162
VanBuren	139	159	199
	873	897	875

Aged Woman Stricken With Paralysis.

Mrs. Kellogg, mother of E. P. Kellogg, of Park avenue, was stricken with paralysis Saturday night, and now lies at her home near death's door. She is not expected to live. Mrs. Kellogg is nearly 93 years of age.

Miss Grace Crane, of East Second street, who has been visiting Philadelphia friends, has returned home.

Y. M. C. A. CYCLISTS MEET.

THEY ELECTED OFFICERS AND PLANNED SEASON'S RUNS.

Will Hold Club Runs Every Two Weeks Thursday Nights—E. Berry Egan Was Elected the Captain.

There was a fair attendance of interested wheelmen in the parlors of the Y. M. C. A. building, last Friday, for the purpose of reorganizing the Y. M. C. A. Cyclers for the coming summer. The meeting was called to order by L. I. VanAlstyne, of the physical work committee.

The most important work of the meeting was the election of officers which resulted as follows: Captain, E. Berry Egan; sub-captain, Frank Marcley; secretary and treasurer, Louis L. VanAlstyne. The lieutenants will be appointed later. A commitee on runs will also be appointed.

It was decided to hold club runs every other Thursday evening, weather permitting. The first will be held May 11th. In case of rain the run will be held the following Friday night. If not Friday night the run will be held Saturday night or else given up for the week. There was a general discussion as to the best places for destinations of the runs, but definite arrangements will be left with the captain and runs committee when appointed.

A constitution and by laws were adopted which had been prepared by Physical Diaector C. E. A. Howwood. There was also a discussion on the proposed several day tours this summer. No action was taken, however, and the matter will be left to the judgment of the captain and runs committee.

CAREFUL STREET WORK.

Commissioner Gavett Being Particular With Park Avenue Improvement.

The steam roller has undergone extensive repairs this spring, and in a week will be ready for use again. The large wheels were worn so thin that they had to be fitted out with new tires. When it is finished the roller will look like new, with its coat of fresh paint.

Street Commissioner Gavett says that Park avenue will probably not be finished for a week or so yet, and not until the steam roller is ready for use anyway. Mr. Gavett is being very particular with the two blocks he is doing now, because when the asphalt or brick pavement is laid, it will join the macadam, and he does not want too great a difference between the two kinds of pavement.

DEATH ON THE RAILS.

Three Men, Two Employed on Trains, Killed Near Elizabeth.

Michael Casey, a breakman on the Jersey Central, was fatally crushed in the company's yard at Elizabeth yesterday while coupling cars.

Joseph Schwartz, of 1012 Grand street, Jersey City, was beheaded by a freight engine in the yard of the P. and O. Railroad Company at Cranford Junction. Schwartz was a Jersey Central brakeman. He went to Cranford to see friends, and it is supposed laid down on the tracks and fell asleep.

An unidentified body, probably that of a tramp, was found on the elevated tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad near the Elizabeth station, early Friday. It is thought he fell from a train.

ENDEAVOR SOCIETY ELECT.

S. R. Voorhees Chosen President of Crescent Avenue Church Society.

The Christian Endeavorers of the Crescent Avenue church held their annual meeting Friday and elected officers for the coming year. S. R. Voorhees was made president; Miss Sarah I. Brown, vice-president; Miss Marie Newman, corresponding secretary; Miss Clara Long, recording secretary, and Clarence Sutphen treasurer.

The society is in a good healthy condition spiritually as well as financially. They have done an excellent year's work among the missions and here at home. The society now numbers 45 active, 24 associate and 20 honorary members.

A Goat's Misfortune.

The little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Corby, of Washington Valley, owned a goat which she and her little friends used to drive to a tiny sulkey. Thursday afternoon she went out driving with the daughter of Mr. Podilious. The goat was kept at a lively pace and resented it by running away and throwing the children out. Neither were injured. When the goat tried to escape it met with disaster and become entangled in the sulkey. A broken leg was the result and the poor steed had to be shot.

Print Exhibition a Success.

The annual photographic print exhibition of the Plainfield Camera Club closed Saturday evening. It was the most satisfactory exhibit of its kind ever held in this city. The committee was much pleased with the fine display and the last attendance. There is some talk of having the pictures on exhibition at the Y. M. C. A. for a time.

UNABLE TO LOCATE DR. ROBERT TRACY.

He Has Been Missing From Saranac Lake Five Days.

THOROUGH SEARCH MADE.

NO REASON GIVEN FOR HIS UNEXPLAINED ABSENCE

He Was Formerly House Physician at New York Hospital and Has Been Recuperating His Health for Sometime—His Brother Howard and R. C. Perkins Hunting Him—Family Worried

The sudden disappearance of Dr. Robert Tracy, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Evarts Tracy, of West Eighth street, has occasioned some fears among the family in this city. Dr. Tracy has been stopping for sometime at Saranac Lake, where he made many friends, and Wednesday of last week he left that place and has not been seen since. Every effort is being made to learn of his whereabouts but thus far all have failed.

Until five months ago Dr. Tracy was a house physician at the New York Hospital. He had completed his term of service, which had been very hard one, and he decided to give himself complete rest from all duties. He then went to Saranac Lake, where he remained until last Wednesday. It was reported that he had been seen on the following day but this statement cannot be verified.

Since Dr. Tracy has been at Saranac Lake his father received a letter from him in which the son inquired of the summer camp owned by Mr. Tracy and located in Canada. Mr. Tracy is inclined to think that his son may have gone to the camp to remain for a time.

Regarding the report that Dr. Tracy had much money with him, the father states that he did not have a great deal of money, and he places no faith in the report circulated that there may have been foul play. The river at Saranac Lake has been dragged, but no trace of the young man could be found at all.

The family is very much worried about the disappearance. Howard Tracy, a brother of the doctor, in company with R. C. Perkins, of this city, have gone in search of the missing young man. The doctor is about 27 years of age, and has always been of a quiet turn of mind.

PILOT COVERED WITH BLOOD.

An Investigation Showed That a Large Dog Had Been Killed.

The employes of the Jersey Central railroad in the vicinity of the Grant avenue station, were thrown into a state of excitement last Friday shortly after six o'clock by a supposed fatality on the railroad.

When train No. 15, which leaves New York every evening at 5:45, stopping at Plainfield at 6:36, reached Grant avenue last Friday, the pilot of the locomotive was found to be splattered with blood. The side of one of the coaches on the east bound P. and B. train, when it passed at Grant avenue, was also reported to be marked with blood.

The section gang and other employes of the railroad hurried out and looked along the tracks in the neighborhood to find some trace of the victim. It was at last found and proved to be a large white bird dog.

DEATH OF MRS. SMALLEY.

Mrs. Isaac Smalley Succumbs to Completion of Disease.

Mrs. Isaac Smalley, an old resident of East Front street, died Friday afternoon after a lingering illness lasting over a period of two years. She leaves a husband and several children, Charles Smalley, of East Orange; Mrs. John Dayton, of Elm place; Edward and William Smalley, of New Brunswick; Isaac S. Smalley, of Philadelphia; Mrs. W. S. Runyon, of St. Paul, and Miss Laura A. Smalley, of East Front street.

Mrs. Smalley has lived here for fourteen years. Death was due to a complication of diseases.

Exchanged Pulpits

Rev. Frank Fletcher, pastor of the Baptist church at New Market, exchanged pulpits Sunday morning with Rev. Dr. Schenck, of Trinity Reformed church, and delivered a most excellent sermon, from the text, "He taketh away the first, that he may establish the second," Heb. 10-9. Considering the stormy condition of the weather, a good-sized congregation was present and the earnest words of the preacher were attentively listened to and well received.

What Mr. Carr Spoke About.

"Come see a man who told me all things that ever I did," was the text that W. G. Carr spoke upon at the Y. M. C. A. rally Sunday afternoon. The words were those used by the woman of Samaria to the men of the city after her meeting with Christ by the well. Mr. Carr also spoke at Warren chapel in the evening upon the "Marks of a Bible Christian."

FINE MUSIC WAS HEARD

SUCCESSFUL ENTERTAINMENT IN BOROUGH PUBLIC SCHOOL.

Last Part of the Programme Was Devoted to a Japanese Scene—Musical Instructor Lewis Was in Charge.

One of the best entertainments ever given in the North Plainfield Public High School took place last Thursday under the direction of Charles B. Lewis, musical instructor in the school. Those who took part in the entertainment were scholars in the school and their efforts were most creditable.

The programme was most all of a musical character. Part first was devoted to the rendition of several well-known songs by the scholars in the High School. The songs given were "Hail, Columbia," "Upidee," "The Happy Miller," "Quarrelles," "Kentucky Babe," "Sylphs' Dance," and a Recessional. Every song was well rendered and elicited hearty applause from all.

The programme in part second was as follows: Recitation, "Aunt Melissie," Miss Isabel Milne; song, "Here we Come with a Hop," Frank Emmons, Clarence Hand, Frank Whitely; song with violin obligato, "Spring," Miss Agnes LaBoyteax, George Smith; song, "Polliwog," Miss Millie Giese; piano solo, Miss May Conroy. There was also a milkmaid's drill in part second, which was given by older scholars. Each number in this part was very well received and many encores were given.

The last part was devoted to a Japanese scene. The selections, mostly musical, were pretty, some of them being from the opera "The Mikado." The platform was arranged in Japanese style, and the young women and girls were attired in Japanese dress.

The programme opened with a selection by the entire chorus of girls, then followed a selection, "Three Little Maids," by the Misses Isabel Milne, Aimee Emmons and Rita Pond. The next number was a song "Lady Picking Mulberries," by Miss Bessie Martin, and a pleasing selection was the "Mikado and Katisha," by Frank Bach; Ben Schuck and Edna Bowers. This was followed with a very pretty parasol drill by the girls, after which Miss Bessie Martin sang with good effect "Braid the Raven Hair." A number that made a decided hit was the singing of "Two Little Japanese Dolls," by Clyde MacDonald and Marion Mager, two little tots, who were obliged to encore the song.

The next number was the singing of "He's Going to Marry Yum Yum," by Miss Aimee Emmons, assisted by the chorus. This was greatly enjoyed. The last selection was the "Good Night Chorus" by the entire chorus.

Credit is due Miss FanFleet, who presided at the piano, and to Mr. Lewis, for their efforts to make the affair a success, also to all who took part for their untiring efforts. The proceeds will be devoted to purchasing new music for the High School and there is no doubt now but what it will be secured.

ADULT CLASSES ENTERTAINED.

Hope Chapel Women Acted as Hosts for Older Sunday-school Scholars.

Thursday at Warren chapel an enjoyable event took place when the Ladies' Aid Society gave a supper and reception to the adult classes of the Sunday-school. The chapel looked very attractive. While supper was being served a music box furnished by Miss Lovell discoursed sweet music which gave added pleasure. There were in all ninety persons present. The affair was in charge of Mrs. A. V. D. Honeyman, as president of the society and assisting her were Mrs. J. A. Gavett, Mrs. Edward Taylor, Mrs. J. O. McKelvey, Mrs. Robert Cook, Mrs. J. Sutton, Mrs. Stiglitz while the teachers of the various classes acted as waitresses.

During the reception these present joined in the singing of familiar hymns, while short and appropriate speeches were made by Joseph W. Gavett, Rev. J. O McKelvey, Robert Cook and Mr. Strong. A vein of humor was evidenced by all. Instrumental music was also furnished by Mrs. J. O. McKelvey.

To Make Application for License

James Loughlin, of this city, has made application to the Somerset County Courts for a license to sell spirituous and fermented liquous in North Plainfield Township at the place where he ran a dancing platform last season, and the people living in the vicinity are preparing a strong remonstrance to present to the court asking them not to grant the license.

Received His Commission

Walter E. Stewart, Jr., of West Seventh street, having passed his examination successfully, has received his commission as second lieutenant in the regular army.

Miss Lillian Newman, of the State Normal school, is visiting her parents Mr. and Mrs. H. O Newman, of West Fifth street.

Miss Thorn, of East Third street, who sometime ago went to New York State for her health, is reported as being improved.

BAKED HIS BREAD IN BLAZING BAKERY WAGON.

LIVELY FIRE IN THE BOROUGH.

Henry Voehl's Wagon Nearly all Destroyed by Fire—Horses Rescued.

Henry Voehl, the Somerset street baker, has been very careful about a fire in his shop. The thought of a fire in his baker wagon, however, never occurred to him until Thursday. Then it was practically demonstrated. He still has the running gear and bottom of his wagon, but that's all. The rest went up in flames last Thursday.

Voehl's bakery wagon stood on Codding Ave., near Somerset street, Thursday night at ten o'clock. There were two horses attached. Exactly how the fire started nobody knows. It probably originated from a lantern or a cigar. At any rate, the flames were first seen blazing away at the rear of the wagon.

Otto Neber was passing by and rescued the horses from their position which began to grow uncomfortable. Then Voehl and several other men tried to form a bucket brigade with a pan but their efforts were not very successful, and the top and sides of the wagon were destroyed.

SUCCESSFUL BENEFIT.

Colored Masons Raised Money by Giving Entertainment and Dance.

A benefit for James Walker was held in Washington Hall Thursday by the members of Stone Square Lodge, F. and A. M., which proved very successful. The colored folk of town turned out in goodly numbers and enjoyed themselves.

A number of selections on the phonograph were first rendered. Then followed a programme including solos and choruses by local talent. The Martin Brothers Quartette made its appearance and assisted in the entertainment. Prof. Walker, of Brooklyn, gave an exibition of sleight-of-hand performances.

The rest of the evening was devoted to dancing. The grand march was led by W. J. Douglass and his daughter.

EUCHRE AND FARM WAGON.

Thursday Night Euchre Club Hospitably Entertained in the Borough.

The members of the Thursday Night Euchre Club gathered at the home of Will Tier on Bank place, Thursday. There they encountered a farm wagon which conveyed them to the home of Miss Bertha Wheeler, of Mountain avenue, where the regular club meeting was held.

The usual euchre was the order of the evening. Miss Etta Neuman and Miss Etta Krymer were winners of first and second prizers among the fair contestants. Theodore Mantz and Edward O Clark were the other prize winners.

A social time followed the euchre, interspersed with music and singing. Then the farm wagon came around again and the members were taken home.

THINK SCHEME FRAUDULENT.

Postal Inspectors Seeking Projectors of So-Called Home for Children.

Two United States postal inspectors are at work in Newark in an endeavor to locate the perpetrators of what is believed to be a fraud which is being worked through the mails. Just who the promoters of the scheme are is unknown, but they are seeking ostensibly to raise money for the erection of a home for children at Bernardsville. The purported treasurer of the scheme is "Rev. F. P. Meeker," and the secretary "James H. Mullen." No trace of them has yet been found. Among the papers sent to those asked to contribute is an acknowledgment of alleged gifts of about $30,000 already received.

Two Ministers Officiated.

Thursday afternoon the funeral services of the late Mrs. Hannah Staats were held from the house on West Second street. Rev. Dr. Schenck, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, assisted by Rev. H. W. McKane, of the Christian church, had charge. During the services appropriate hymns were rendered by Messrs. J. Gavett, Mrs. E. H. Bird and E. E. Runyon. There were several pretty floral offerings from relatives and friends. Interment was in the North Plainfield cemetery and those who served as pall bearers were William H. Shotwell, J. B. Coward, John Long, Andrew J. Gavett.

Funeral of Mrs. Johnson.

The funeral of Mrs. Phebe Johnson, wife of John Johnson, were held Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the house on East Second street, and were private. Rev. Dr. Schenck officiated and he spoke words of comfort to the bereaved ones. The interment took place in the North Plainfield cemetery. Those who served as pall-bearers were U. B. Crane, W. A. Woodruff, A. D. Findlay and J. E. Flannery.

Gift of $50 to Calvary Church

The members of the Calvary Baptist church have just been made happy by the gift of $50 from a man of means in this city. The pastor and congregation desires to thank the donor for the generous gift.

LOVE LEFT THE ATTIC, BUT GOT NO DIVORCE.

Chancellor McGill Denies the Petition of Edwin Jacquin.

QUITE A ROMANTIC STORY.

WHEN HUSBAND ROSE IN THE WORLD HE LEFT HIS WIFE.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacquin Married in Youthful Years and Lived Happily in a Tenement House Till the Husband Became an Inventor—Chancellor Held That Jacquin's Residence Here Was Not Good.

Chancellor McGill has just handed down his decision in a divorce case, testimony in which was taken in the year 1898. The parties are Edwin Jacquin and Kate Jacquin. The application was made by the husband in 1897. The Chancellor reviewed the evidence, and declined to grant the application.

There is a pretty little romance connected with this change of feeling on the part of the husband. The couple were married under the legal age in 1879. They both lived in New York, and went to housekeeping in a humble part of Greenwich street in that city. Jacquin was a machinist by trade, and the two lived happily together until the husband invented a patent gas and electric light fixture, and found himself on the road to wealth.

Then, the wife says, with his new position in life, Jacquin had no further use for the companion he had taken in his youth, and deserted her. Coming to Plainfield he hired a room in Blimm's Hotel, and claimed this city as his residence. This was in 1893.

Jacquin's reason for deserting his wife was that she grew insolent, refused to cook his meals for him, and was ugly and cross when he was around, and also that she refused to live with him.

Jacquin employed Gen. E. L. Bullard, of New York, William Douglass Moore, of Jersey City and Gallagher & Richards, of Newark as his counsel. Mrs. Jacquin was represented by Harry C. Runyon, of this city.

The Chancellor said in his reply to the application, that such a residence as Jacquin maintained in this city was not such a one as the law required. He rented an attic room, put some clothing, which he never wore, in it, then went on about his business here and traveled around the country. He paid one $1 a month for the room, but when he did come to Plainfield it was shown that he never occupied it.

SPELLING OUT NAMES.

A New and Entertaining Game Played at the Congregational Church.

The members of the Congregational church spent a pleasant evening last Friday in their chapel at one of the sociables given under the auspices of the Woman's Association. The evening was spent in playing games. For refreshments Boston baked beans, brown bread and coffee were served.

A new game called the "telegram" was introduced, and every one found much fun in this. Slips of paper were passed around, on which were written the initials of different persons, and the young folks were expected to spell out a name or word with these letters.

To the two who showed themselves particularly adept in this, prizes were awarded. Mrs. C. L. Goodrich and Mrs. F. F. Clark were the lucky ones. Other games played were the games of buzz and hunting the bean.

Mrs. A. C. LaBoyteaux, chairman of the Woman's Association, had charge of the sociable, and Mrs. E. Messersmith looked after the refreshments.

BREAK IN TROLLEY WIRE.

Street Car System Disarranged for Sometime by the Accident.

The trolley wire on East Front street, just west of Washington avenue, snapped Friday evening at 8:45 o'clock and generally disarranged the entire street car system of the city. The repairs were not completed until early this morning.

A car from the Front street line had just gone east when the wire snapped close to one of the supports and the long loose and twisted and squirmed about the street. The two west bound cars were returning, but were stopped in time by some of the passersby who had seen the accident. Patrolman Mattox notified the carhouse of the trouble and the repair wagon was sent to the scene on the run. Meantime the cars became mixed up and the schedule was not followed. The passengers were finally transferred around the break and traffic was resumed.

Investigating About Bottles

The Police Committee of Cranford Township Committee has about completed its investigation concerning the bottles of powder found in the coat in the new schoolhouse. The committee has not been able to positively fasten the responsibility for the mischief on any one.

Prof. John Leal, who has been very ill with appendicitis, is rapidly recovering and he hopes to be at his school next Monday.

THE LATEST TRUST ONE OF BACHELORS.

Composed of Politicians Prominent in New Jersey.

AFTER ALL OF THE OFFICES.

SENATOR JOHN KEAN IS THE HIGH MOGUL OF THEM ALL.

An Imposing Array of Incorporators, But the Aggregation is Limited to Members of the G. O. P.—Its Financial Ability is Unquestioned, for Many Can Write Their Checks for Thousands.

New Jersey has a world-wide reputation as the maket of trusts. Each day a dozen or more go to her credit, but the latest proposed trust will be the oldest. It must go into history as the most novel aggregation of forces ever attempted. It might be called by some other name, but truth urges that it be designated as "A Bachelor Trust." It has the double purpose of creating a boom in celibacy and of controlling all the offices in the State. The secret of the formation of the trust leaked out in this way: Senator Stokes, of Cumberland county, is one of the Republican leaders on the floor of the Senate. Senator Pitney, of Morris, is another. The latter is said to have a very lively ambition to be the next Governor of New Jersey. "Say, Senator Pitney," said Senator Stokes one day, "you may as well give up that idea of being the next Governor, for you are not in it. Don't you know that we bachelors have formed a trust to control all the offices in this State for the next quarter of a century?" This, although said jocularly, made the Senator from Morris county reflect.

A light came over his face as if he saw the army of bachelors, headed by Senator John Kean, marching through the corridors in time, laying hold of all the pleasant berths and soft snaps that were in sight. "Yes, Senator, it looks very much as if you had," he said, and he was not long in finding corroboration of this remarkable statement. The incorporation of the trust is the matter of a few days now, it is believed. The list of incorporators is given as follows: John Kean, United States Senator; Foster M. Voorhees, Governor; Barker Gummere, Mercer county leader; David O. Watkins, Speaker; William Hancock, State Comptroller; Edward C Stokes, Cumberland county leader; Hobart Tuttle, Secretary to Governor; Frederick Evans, Secretary to Vice-president. The company is limited, not in relation to its capital but to its politics, as it is distinctively Republican corporation. As to its financial ability, there are only three men on the list who are unable to write or five figures on a check. They are, of course, all bachelors. John Kean, United States Senator, was one day asked why it was that a man of his wealth and associations should remain single. He gave an unsatisfactory reply.

Governor Voorhees about a year ago was getting a trifle lonesome, but then the war with Spain started, and he had to go and be a war Governor. He has not yet recovered from the excitement. State Comptroller Hancock has been too busy in many fields of activity to consider the matter, and now he is afraid it is too late. Fitzgerald's State Manual, which is particularly useful for finding out the age of eminent Jerseymen, says he was born in 1854. Speaker David O. Watkins, who was Acting Governor last year, and, according to the newspapers, is being urged to be a candidate for election, has been so busy making his mark in the world that he neglected matrimonial matters entirely and is now a confirmed bachelor. Barker Gummere, County Clerk of Mercer and active in State politics has no excuse to offer, but says that bachelorship is more consistent with statesmanship.

Senator Edward C. Stokes, of Cumberland county, is very close to the Governor and, as they have been moving along together on the road to political success, their neglect of marriage has probably the same excuse. Hobart Tuttle, the Governor's private secretary, is also a brother-in-law of Vice-President Hobart. He is active in society in New Jersey and Washington. How long he will remain in the Bachelor Trust is now a matter of considerable conjecture. Frederick Evans, the private secretary of Vice-President Hobart, is considerable of a club man. He lives in Newark, but is at home in New York and Washington, so that, like a rolling stone, he has not gathered much moss in the matrimonial land. There are many other Republican bachelors of prominence in New Jersey. They are not in the trust, but are gathering political strength to get there."

Couldn't Drill in the Dark.

The Plainfield High School cadets met at the Crescent Rink Thursday evening for drill. Owing to a defect in the lighting system, the electric lights wouldn't burn and the cadets had to give up most of their drill owing to the lack of lights.

OTIS IS NOT FEARED LIKE ADMIRAL DEWEY.

Capt. Morrison Writes of the War in the Philippines.

EYE-WITNESS OF A BATTLE.

THRILLING AND GRAPHIC LETTER RECEIVED IN PLAINFIELD.

Captain Morrison Writes to E. H. Holmes —He Says the Filipinos are Treacherous and Need to Be Thoroughly Licked—High Praise for the Conduct of the American Soldiers—Their Deadly Aim.

Early in December of last year Captain George D. Morrison, of Plainfield avenue, accompanied by his daughter, Miss Agnes Morrison, sailed from Philadelphia with a load of coal which was to be taken to Manila for Admiral Dewey. Since arriving at Manila Mr. Morrison has seen many interesting things and in a letter written to his personal friend, E. H. Holmes, of East Front street, he relates something of what has taken place. Lack of space forbids the publication of the entire letter, but the following extract will prove interesting reading. The letter was received a few days ago by Mr. Holmes.

"I don't know where to begin to tell you about the things that have transpired since our arrival on December 26th last. It has been a history-making time. Just three weeks ago today the first great battle between our forces and the insurgents was fought. We were then lying at Cavite, about six miles distant. But we came to Manila about 10 a. m., and went aboard the British bark "Wildwood," from the deck of which we reviewed the great fight. Just then the Cruiser Charleston steamed by close, going to take up a position south of Manila, near a suburb named Milate. She had been to the north of the city shelling the insurgents' trenches. Then began a general all along the line from north to south, it being the intention of the enemy to take Manila, a feat they boasted easy to do. The fact is the Filipinos had been decidedly hostile ever since our arrrival here; but after the publication of President McKinley's proclamation by Gen. Otis it became much more pronounced.

"To resume the story. Our ship enfiladed the insurgents trenches, which at Malate were piled full of insurgents. The slaughter was awful. About noon the firing to the north had ceased excepting an occasional volley. At 2:30 p. m. a party of us, including my daughter, Agnes, who seems interested in blood-curdling adventures, went on shore to get the news—news that day was at a premium. A launch took us up the Pasig river to the Captain of the ports' landing. We walked—a carriage of any kind could not be had—to the general hospital, where the wounded were being brought in. We saw and talked with a company of soldiers covered with dust and mud from the trenches just in from the front. They all had long knives captured from dead insurgents. One said his musket gave out and he took one from a dead comrade. Another said he preferred his Springfield rifle to any other. Going into the hospital we saw from fifty to seventy-five wounded. Some were on the surgeon's table and the rest in halls were waiting their turn. The surgeons looked more like butchers, though professional gentlemen. The sights were awful. I cannot describe them. One big fellow, who had both eyes shot out, was lying on a table. The poor fellow wanted the bandage removed so he could see. He died two weeks later. In a court, just outside the surgical wards, were fifteen insurgent wounded being attended by nurses and physicians. Among them was an officer, a mere boy of eighteen years, and a Tagala, a mountaineer, with long hair to his waist. About fifty of these had been killed after being taken prisoners. They used bows and arrows. We wended our way back with the thought that war is a horrible thing; and yet there is in spite of sentimentalism a 'must needs be' about it all. "The sword, the famine and the pestilence' are God's agents to clear the atmosphere of this world, and peace societies will not avert the inevitable consequences of the sin that is in the world.

"On the streets the guards were tripled, and they searched every Filipino for concealed weapons. Carriages were stopped and street cars boarded and searched. It was thought by conservative heads that 5,000 would cover the loss by death in that day's battle.

"Last Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock two fires were started in the city by insurgent sympathizers, and they soon became a conflagration endangering the whole city. The object was to burn the commissary. But while much damage was done to the native bamboo huts and substantial stone structures, they completely failed in their purpose. From the ship the sight was grand, if we may use that word to express such fiendish work. The flames surged and rolled and darted up long tongues to the smoky clouds. The fire company, such as it is, got to work, assisted by our soldiers, to extinguish the fire. A Filipino cut one of the hose and a soldier shot him dead. Citizens fled from their homes, women and children huddled together, and with the crackling of burning bamboo and the firing of musketry in the streets it resembled pandemonium. The Filipinos were either shot or driven into the flames. The next morning my daughter, two captains and myself went to the scene of the fire. 'John China' was everywhere carrying off 'loot.'

"These Filipinos are bad; they are a treacherous and murderous set, and expansion or no expansion, they need licking from one end of Luzon to the other, and the sooner the American people at home understand this the better. A conciliatory policy is construed to indicate weakness. The people fear and respect Dewey, for he smashed everything to pieces, but I assure you they have no such regard for General Otis. They need the same kind of medicine Spain received.

"I wish again to speak of our men. There never was a finer lot of men of any clime or nation who went to war than those who came from the western States. They policed this city, worked in the custom house and do all sorts of things. They are courteous when spoken to. As fighters in the field they are all "Rough Riders." Their aim is deadly in the extreme. They lie night and day in the trenches, exposed to heat and mosquitoes, liable to be called out at any moment."

A QUIET WEDDING.

Miss Elizabeth C. Cashmen Becomes Mrs. Peter M. Christiansen.

Miss Elizabeth C. Cashmen, of Lynan place, and Peter M. Christiansen, were married Thursday at 7 o'clock by Rev. Joseph McKelvey, pastor of Warren chapel. The ceremony was witnessed only by the members of the two families.

Miss Juliet Grisly acted as bridesmaid, and Thomas Brown as best man. The bride wore a traveling dress of a light grey color, and carried a bunch of pink roses. The bride maid was dressed in pink flowered silk, and also carried pink roses.

After the ceremony a wedding supper was served. The happy couple left the city on a late train to spend their honeymoon. Upon their return they will occupy a house on West Third street, which the groom has furnished throughout. The groom is an employe of the Plainfield Street Railway.

The couple received many handsome presents, including the usual assortment of silverware, china and other household articles.

SOCIAL LIFE AT CATHOLIC CLUB.

First of a Series of Informal Entertainments and Dances.

The first of a series of informal entertainments and dances, that are to form part of the social life of the Plainfield Catholic Club this spring, was held in the clubhouse Thursday and was remarkably well attended. The first part of the evening was spent in enjoying the excellent selections on Father Westman's gramophone. The records were very loud and clear and included a fine collection. There were also solos by Miss Annie Daly.

Dancing occupied the latter part of the evening and was followed by refreshments. There was nearly 100 present during the evening. The next affair of the kind will be held Thursday evening, April 27th.

More Gas for Somerville.

The Somerset Lighting Company, of Somerville, is laying pipes on its new mains. The new receiver, located on on the east end of the ball grounds, is now in use and gives a capacity for 65,000 cubic feet of gas where the capacity was limited to 15,000 before. The new machines for making gas are in full operation and old machines are still in place to provide against any possible breakdown.

Commencement Honors.

The honors for the Commencement at the Plainfield High School this year have been decided upon by the pupils of class of '99. The class was allowed to select the valedictorian and salutatorian from among those eligible to the places by their high rank in studies during the four years. Miss Helen Hall will be valedictorian and Wm. A. Fisher salutatorian.

Apportionment of School Tax.

The State Board of Education has completed the apportionment to the counties of the school fund for the year 1899. Somerset's apportionment is $55,568.09. She will pay out $1,250. Her per capita census is $7.30; per capita enrollment, $9 92; amount per teacher, $427.44.

New Central Engines Cause Changes.

The large new freight engines lately placed in service on the Central Railroad have made it necessary to move many poles and signals along the road, and in several instances alter depot platforms. The width of the engines is greater than that of the old ones.

GETTING THE PRIZES.

RESULTS OF CONTESTS AT ST. JOSEPH'S BAZAAR.

Father Miller's Picture Won by Miss McMahon, Who Turned in $114—Balance of the Prizes Will be Awarded Tonight.

The attendance last Friday at the bazaar given in Sangerbund Hall by the women of St. Joseph's church was large. The chief interest was in deciding several contests. The most contest of the evening, that for Rev. Father Miller's picture in a handsome painting, was secured by Miss McMahon, who turned in $114 Her opponent, Miss Regan, collected $107. The lucky ticket, 62-C, for the handsome set of china, was held by Miss Nellie Angleman, of East Fourth street. This contest brought in about $30.

In the contest for the gold ring Vincent Meaney was the successful contestant. His opponent was Robert Hamilton, and about $35 was raised therefrom. The doll contest brought in $25 and Miss Kittie Conshea won the prize. Her opponent was Miss Mamie Watson, who turned in almost as much money.

In the contest for the Japanese urn between Miss Kittie Cooley and Miss Lida Boice, the former was successful. The Liberty wheel contested for by Miss Margaret Daly and Miss Kittie Wieland was won by the former who turned in $60.60, while her opponent turned in $34.45. Miss Mary Keaney won the gold watch contest, turning in $75.10 against $33.05 which Miss Maria Caffery, collected. Lawrence McCann was awarded the gold cuff buttons, and David Kenney was given his choice of a year's subscription for either of the Plainfield papers, The Daily Press or News. Mr. Kenney decided to take The Press. Rev. Father Brennan had charge of the contests and announced the winners.

CAVE'S NEW JOB.

Mr. Carney Expected to Have Associated Himself With a Great Project.

David J. Carney, the well-known Democratic politician of this county, has accepted a confidential position with the syndicate who are to build the Nicaragua Canal. The Hon. David is eminently qualified to fill any position, as he is mentally equipped above the average by his long years of newspaper training and natural acquaintance with many friends in every hamlet and at every cross-roads in this county wish him all kinds of success.—Somerville Democrat.

David J. Carney, whose interesting articles have frequently appeared in these columns signed "A Tilden Democrat," has accepted a position of a confidential nature with a syndicate who are to build the Nicaragua Canal. Mr. Carney will remain in the east for a few months, when he will probably locate somewhere on the Pacific slope. Every Democratic and Republican politician in the county will wish him success, as few men are so well known and admired for their thorough independence in the cause of party success as is the jolly, rotund Democrat from North Plainfield.—Bound Brook State Centre.

A RELIGIOUS LECTURE.

Inspiring Lecture Given Before an Appreciative Audience.

Warren chapel was filled with a large and appreciative audience last Friday when Rev. Garret Conover, of Nyack, N. Y., gave his highly interesting illustrated lecture entitled "The Life of Jesus in Picture and Song." The pictures were thrown and gave a history of Jesus from his birth to his resurrection As the pictures were thrown on the screen Mr. Conover recited the story in his interesting manner, and at intervals he and Mrs. Conover sang several very pretty duets which increased the interest very much. In conclusion Mr. Conover displayed the beautiful and celebrated "Book of Ages" series, and before the affair came to an end a collection was taken to defray expenses.

They are Not Willing to Wait.

Elizabeth, April 15.—By his will Joseph Woodruff provided that none of his property, either real or personal, should be touched for twenty-five years, by which time it would not be of much benefit to any but his grandchildren, of which he has several. He leaves a widow, two sons and three daughters, who will contest the will.

Babies Saved From Burning Bed.

A slight fire broke out in a dwelling in the rear of the old Orphan Asylum at Elizabeth Friday. Julius Copeland's two children were asleep in the room. The bed was on fire under them when the neighbors rushed in and rescued them. Both were almost suffocated.

Pipes to Carry Water.

Pipes arrived Friday which will be used to carry water from the standpipe of the Plainfield Water Supply Company to the proposed new standpipe on the mountains. The work of laying the pipes will be started in a short time.

Arthur Boone and family, formerly of this city, but now of Montclair, will soon return to Plainfield and reside on West Sixth street.

CITY FATHERS HAD BUT LITTLE TO DO.

Adjourned Meeting of the Common Council Monday.

PETITIONS ARE RECEIVED.

MONEY VOTED FOR OBSERVANCE OF MEMORIAL DAY.

Residents of Putnam Avenue Want That Thoroughfare Improved — Watchung Water Company May Lay Pipes From Dunellen into the City—Taxes Refunded —To Receive Bids for Macadamizing.

The amount of business before the Common Council at the adjourned meeting last Monday was of no special importance and it did not require much time to consider it. In the absence of President Andrews the chair was filled by Councilman Hetfield. Mr. Buckle was also absent from the meeting.

The Council received a petition from J. A. Smith & Brother, grocers, in which they asked for permission to erect an iron frame in front of their place of business for an awning, and agreeing to remove the present frame structure. The request was placed in the hands of the fire and building committee, they to act according to their best judgment in the matter.

Frank B. Clark filed an application for the position of driver in the fire department. J. P. Emmons asked the Council to remit the sum of $2.42 assessed and paid through an error on his property at 309 Filmore avenue. The petition had the signature of Assessor H. C. VanEmburgh as being correct and that the amount was due Mr. Emmons. The request was granted by the Council. Residents of South avenue asked to have a fire hydrant located at their avenue between Leland avenue and Terrill road, and this was granted by resolution. In accordance with a request from Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., the Council granted the usual appropriation of $100 to be used in observing Memorial Day.

James Craig and other residents of West Front street, near the city line, asked the Council for several fire hydrants, one of which would be located inside of the line of Dunellen. Mr. Cortell stated by way of explanation that Charles Sebring, of the Watchung Water Company, had informed him that his company would be willing to place pipe across Jefferson avenue and a hydrant at the corner of West Front street and Jefferson avenue and furnish water if they were given permission. This proposition was considered with favor, and the matter was referred to the fire and building committee. After the meeting an obstacle to this proposition appeared. The Council learned that they would first have to secure the consent of the Plainfield Water Supply Company to have another company loosen it in the city where they have a franchise. No doubt the matter will be adjusted satisfactorily to all concerned.

A petition, signed by a host of persons residents on and in the vicinity of Putnam avenue, complaining of the condition of that avenue, was received. Mr. Barrows stated the Council had the improvement of the avenue under advisement and he moved that the petition be received and filed. It is proposed by the Council to improve Putnam avenue and give the residents what they want.

A communication was received from P. Ballentine & Sons, of Newark, asking the Council to transfer the saloon license held by Martin Kane, of West Third street, to Hugo Kurzhals, as a transfer in business had been made. The matter was referred to the license committee and finally on a motion was laid on the table until the next meeting.

Albert Hedden, of East Fourth street, petitioned the Council for permission to erect an addition to his present place of business to be used for the storage of carriages. The petition was referred with power.

Mr. Mellick, from the committee on assessment and collection of taxes, moved that the sum of $27.83 be returned to Messrs. Welsh, owners of property on Third street, as they had requested at a previous meeting, as it had been learned that the amount had been charged through an error. He also moved that an adjustment be effected with Mrs. Eddy, of Muhlenberg place, who rightfully claimed a return of certain money assessed on more property than she owned. The exact amount due Mrs. Eddy will be ascertained and returned to her.

On a motion offered by Mr. Barrows Monday evening, May 15th, was set as the time when the Council will meet to receive bids for macadamizing West Third and West Fourth street west of New streets. The usual two weeks official notification in the local papers will be given.

As it will be necessary to have a proper and suitable driveway with pavement in front of the new West End engine house, Mr. Cortell offered a resolution awarding the contract to David Bowden, who agrees to do the work for the sum of $224.20. Another resolution offered by Mr. Cortell provided that inasmuch as the Alert Hose Company was about to disband that the sum of $300 be offered for the company's hose carriage and equipage. This concluded the business for the evening and the Council adjourned.

WAITER WITH A RECORD

FORMER VIRGINIA LEGISLATOR NOW A WAITER IN A RESTAURANT.

Hon. Horace Ash, who is Employed Six Months a Year as a School Teacher, is Filling in His Vacation in McVey's Hotel.

It is not very often that a local restaurant is able to employ as waiter an ex-member of a Legislature, but this is a fact in the establishment of J. H. McVey, the North avenue hotel keeper. Mr. McVey's new waiter is Hon. Horace Ash, of Lowden County, Virginia, and is a well educated man, with refined manners. He is principal of a school at his home in the south, whose sessions continue for six months in the year. During the balance of the year, which is during the warmest weather, Mr. Ash generally comes north and seeks employment to keep himself and wife, for he can scarcely live twelve months on a salary of $35 a month for half a year, hence his employment in this city.

Mr. Ash was born in slavery, his father dying when he was but two years old and his mother pressing away when he was about 8 years of age. At this early age he was obliged to get out and hustle for himself. When he was old enough he secured admission to the Normal School at Hampton Roads, and it was there that he completed his education that was to fit him for serving his state in an official way.

Mr. Ash engaged somewhat in politics in 1881, when he announced himself a candidate for the county clerkship on the Republican ticket. He soon learned that he would not secure the place, and immediately gave way to his opponent. The following year he was nominated for Member of Assembly, and much to his surprise his opponent in the election the year previous turned in and helped him, and through his efforts he had no opposition. He secured the place with a handsome majority, and together with six other colored men served their constituents for a term, two years, in the lower House.

For three months Mr. Ash was a butler in the home of former Secretary of Treasury Carlisle at Washington, and has seen a great deal of public life in his travels.

RALPH VOORHEES' LIBERALITY.

Governor's Uncle Makes Gifts of $35,000 to Church Institutions.

Clinton, April 18—Ralph Voorhees, of this place, has drawn upon his bank account for benevolent purposes to the extent of $35,000 during the past two weeks. One of his checks was for $10,000, which was presented to the American Bible Society, of New York City. Another for the same amount was sent to the Board of Foreign Missions of the Reformed Church, and one for $5,000 to the Board of Education. These are the largest gifts ever given to similar societies by residents of Hunterdon County Bible Society.

Governor Voorhees is a nephew of this philanthropist. A year ago last Christmas the Governor was included in the list of relatives who received from this source $40,000 for distribution. Mr. Voorhees has been blind for a great many years, but can travel about any of of the streets of Clinton without a guide, and with such confidence that an ordinary observer would not perceive that he is sightless. He lives in a quiet manner in a house which cost less than $1,500. He is married, but has no children.

RUNAWAY DID THE TOWN.

Horse Ran Around for a While, Then Went Home, Leaving Wagon Behind.

Edward Moore, of Smalleytown, tied his horse at the corner of Front and Somerset streets, last Tuesday.

At 1:30 o'clock, a troley car passed and frightened the horse. The animal plunged and the bridle gave way Then the horse with the road wagon attached, ran out Park avenue to West Fifth street, thence to Plainfield avenue and to West Front street.

The horse ran down West Front street to Somerset street and started homeward, having successfully passed all the vehicles in the streets. Near Craig place the wagon collided with Rickett's truck and was somewhat damaged. The horse went home leaving the wagon behind.

In Honor of Mrs. Adelman's Birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Adelman, of this city, entertained about sixty friends at their home last Monday in honor of the anniversary of Mrs. Adelman's birthday. The evening was passed in dancing and in listening to vocal and instrumental music. Mrs. Adelman received a large number of very handsome presents from her friends. At midnight a bountiful supper was served to the guests. Music for dancing was furnished by Samuel Frazee.

—Marshal Kiefner, of the borough, is now patroling the Somerset street beat.

GOLDEN THOUGHTS.

When birds sleep on the wing they use feather beds.

Unless the hotel guests put up the landlord must shut up.

An apt quotation is sometimes better than an original remark.

Codfish balls are not barred in Chicago social circles during Lent.

The bicyclist gets there with both pedals.

The little green apple is always ripe enough for mischief.

Poets are born, but some of them manage to live it down.

It's a mean man that isn't a hero in the eyes of his dog.

The man who hesitates is lost, but the woman who hesitates is won.

Angel-food is the proper diet for those who dwell in air-circles.

The man who makes hay while the sun shines is liable to get sun-struck.

The quick action of the little wasp is responsible for many a loud word.

The person who leaves fly paper on a chair is never the one who sits down on it.

A woman prefers a husband taller than herself, so she can pretend to look up to him.

Some men go to the front and engage in battle and others stay at home and get married.

You never hear the poor man who has lost a fortune say anything about riches being a curse.

A poet and a stove form a practical example of the manufacturer and consumer.

Probably the weather has something to do with the madness of the March hare.

Women are foolish if they believe the fool things men say when they are in love.

It takes a genius to compel himself to like the disagreeable tasks he has to perform.

From an actor's standpoint an encore indicates that one goods turn deserves another.

Happiness may resemble either a mountain or a molehill. It depends on the distance you are from it.

There are lots of bold bad men in the world who never even tried to purchase a seat in the United States senate.

We are told that nothing in the universe is wasted; yet about nine-tenths of the efforts spent in literary work are unaccounted for.

In union there is strength, but the unknown husband of a prominent woman doesn't believe it is equally distributed.

More women would be interested in the female suffrage movement if it was something that could be decorated with ribbons and hung up over the mantel.

OUT OF THE ORDINARY.

A Water Gap, Pa., woman buried her pet dog in a specially made casket, at an expense of $150. The fool-killer was busy else where.

Speaking of Mr. Choate, the London Daily News says: "Really, our luck in American ambassadors seems inexhaustible."

The British cousins expect that Ambassador Choate will be another link in the international alliance.—Boston Traveler.

When statesmen come to appreciate the difference between an elocutionist and an orator things will be different. —St Paul Dispatch.

We again call attention to the swift way Alger is not introducing sanitation into Cuba.—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

Admitting the appropriations of Congress are something stupendous, some may say the size of the American eagle presupposes a big bill.—Philadelphia Times.

Was there ever anything more ridiculous than the report of Inquiry's latest performance in placing various specimens of canned beef before witnesses, and challenging them to identify the rotten kind? Hardly.—Boston Herald.

The Rainy Daisies have settled the style or raiment for the stormy months of March and April. Skirts must end not less than four nor more than six inches from the ground. When the floods come deeper than these measurements the Rainy Daisies will stay at home.—Philadelphia Ledger.

SOME SUPERSTITIONS.

If the cat washes her face it will soon rain.

If a hen crows, bad luck is coming. Sell the hen to a pedler.

If you find a pipe of tobacco, don't bring it home or some one will die.

If you sweep dirt out of the house, you sweep out your luck. Burn the dirt.

If you turn a chair around on one leg, or if you turn a loaf upside down, there will be a quarrel in the house..

If you give away a cat, or one goes away, don't let it come back, or a cow or horse will die.

Don't turn back when once started on a journey or bad luck will follow you.

Don't put your left stocking or shoe on first when dressing in the morning or you will put your foot in it some way during the day.

If you don't put a horseshoe—one that has been worn by a two-year-old filly—in the churn, the witches will take the butter.

If a chair falls as you rise from it, you will not marry within a year. If the housewife sweeps under your feet you will not marry within seven years

ODD MENTION

As it looks from this distance, Italy demands an apology from China for refusing to be held up.—Chicago Tribune.

It is becoming more and more evident that the German position in Samoa is utterly without support in justice and reason.—New York Mail and Express.

The fact that Emperor William is his letter to Kipling spoke of "the deeds of our great common race" is worth pasting in the hat.—Syracuse Post-Standard.

Ambassador Choate and Mrs. Choate have been presented to Queen Victoria but not in the sense of "Give a thing give a thing, never take it back again!" —Boston Globe.

They have flocked up President Loubet's belongings and find that he is worth 600,000 francs. That is just about what his salary amounts to per annum now.—Boston Herald.

It has come to pass that the European ruler who has not secured a ninety-nine-year lease of some portions of Chinese territory imagines that he is not in the swim.—Pittsburg Times.

It is both as a naval and a mercantile power that Japan is making progress and she is getting to be a nation that all nations will need to respect and heed.—Syracuse Herald.

Italy thinks she has been insulted by China. When last she had an experience of this kind it was due to a mix up regarding Italy in Africa, and it will be remembered that she got over it.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

It seems to be felt in Paris that the forthcoming exposition will exert a strong influence toward the suppression of revolutionary projects. Until the year 1900 is ended it will give the Parisians something as amusing as a revolution.—Chicago Record.

RECENT INVENTIONS.

Two Western men have patented a seat for cleaning the outside of windows, which has a shelf at the bottom to rest on the sill, with clamps to engage the sides of the window frame and hold the chains which support the shelf, guide rails being provided to prevent the person from falling.

Printing presses are stopped automatically as soon as the paper breaks or the tension changes, by means of a pivoted roller which rests on the moving sheet, and is lifted up by the tension to close a switch in the electric wire which operates the motor, the switch opening as soon as the roller falls.

In a newly designed angling device a wire frame carries a pin which springs across a loop and impales the bait, the end of the pin resting against the side of the loop to prevent the bait from slipping off, while the bottom of the loop supports two hooks pivoted at right angles with the line to hook the fish.

A bottle-stopper, invented by a New Jersey woman, is made of an elastic cap, which fits over the neck of the bottle and has a tilck section at the end, with indentations showing where it is to be cut to open the bottle, the rubber tips closing automatically as soon as the pressure of the liquid is removed.

Wooden wagon tires can be easily tightened by a new device consisting of a water receptacle to be placed on the fire with a slot through which the wire may be immersed in the boiling water, after which it is dipped in a bath of boiling oil, impregnated with gum-arabic and resin, which fills the pores of the wood and prevents contraction.

A Pennsylvania inventor has designed a pneumatic switch-operating device, which consists of a cylinder, in which is a piston which is operated by forcing air from a tank on the engine through automatic couplings to the cylinder carrying the piston, the valve on the engine being closed by the engineer to prevent passage of air when the switch is not to be turned.

RANDOM COMMENT.

Belgium, with 7,000,000 people, has 220,000 saloons.

Henry Reeman and Mary Randall were inmates of the Osborne county, Kansas, poorhouse, up to last Saturday when they eloped, leaving behind a notice to the superintendent that they had "gone out into the gardens of hope to sip of the flowers of love."

Of all the Congressmen who accepted army appointments for the recent war General Wheeler is the only one who did not draw Congressional salary during military service. Before joining his forces General Wheeler had his name taken off the Congressional pay roll, and his salary was turned into the surplus.

Mella has been writing her autobiography for a London weekly, and her native city has taken exception to some of the statements made therein. It is cynically said in Melbourne that the "town residences" of which the prima donna speaks in so large a way was a "wooden cottage at the bottom of Simpson's road, Richmond"—a very plebeian quarter, indeed. It is also said that the "country place" that figures in the memoirs was "only a bush hut."

A Russian shopkeeper recently posted the following announcement in front of his place of business: "The reason why I have hitherto been able to sell my goods so much cheaper than anybody else is that I am a bachelor, and do not need to make a profit for the maintenance of a wife and children.

It is now my duty to inform the public that this advantage will shortly be withdrawn from them, as I am about to be married. They will, therefore, do well to make their purchases at once at the old rate."

GOVERNOR VOORHEES DEFENDS THE TRUSTS.

Replies to the Recent Alusion of Governor Pingree.

NEW INDUSTRIAL STATUS.

SAYS THE STATE WILL GET $1,000,000 IN FEES THIS YEAR

Declares That the Trusts Organized in New Jersey are Not Obnoxious and That Their Chief Purpose is to Bring About Economy in Production—A Few Hurt, But That Cannot be Helped.

The attention of Foster M. Voorhees, Governor of New Jersey, was called to Gov. Pingree's recent allusion to the desirability of having New Jersey secede from the Union on account of the protection which her laws give to Trusts.

"I ought not," said Gov. Voorhees, "to criticise a brother executive, but may be pardoned for saying that this clamor is largely demagogical. Our State has acted liberally towards corporations, but the highest English legal authority has commanded our law and three sister States have passed unchallenged decisions. No charters for fake or fraudulent concerns are granted with us. Our law is stringent on this point, and and only bona fide corporations can get recognition. The license fees are high, and from this source alone our State treasury will get almost a million dollars this year.

"The combinations of capital which lately attract so much public notice are hardly Trusts in the obnoxious sense of that term. The old-style Trust, which was in reality a monopoly, sought to enhance the price of the commodity it handled. In this selfish purpose it failed oftener than it succeeded, witness the Cordage Trust, the Pottery Trust, and scores of others, but in the concentration of interests now going on, the chief purpose is to bring about economy in production. The low prices at which oil and sugar sell are pretty good evidence that the public does not suffer from these gigantic combinations. In the modern evolution of business associated capital does what was formerly left to men in their single capacity. In this changed order of things a few will get hurt, but this is an inevitable result of all modern progress."

ONLY THE FAITHFUL FEW

NO MEETING OF BOARD OF TRADE FOR LACK OF QUORUM.

Those Who Did Attend Discussed the Present Situation and the Needs of Plainfield—Went Through Trolley Cars.

There was no meeting of the Board of Trade last Monday. It was the time set for the regular monthly meeting and a faithful few turned out to gether in the board room and chat until a quorum should gather and the meeting be called to order. But the quorum never came. After the faithful few had waited nearly two hours in vain, they bid each other good night and departed.

While there was no meeting, the members of the Board discussed the situation in Plainfield at the present day. It was generally agreed that while Plainfield was not any worse off than most of the other suburban towns, the healthy growth that should exist here, was not in evidence.

The need of a reduced rate transportation was remarked on and several expressed an opinion that the advent of the through trolley lines would materially reduce the railroad fares in the near future. The was also a discussion on the many advantages to both city and interested trolley companies if through cars were run from Plainfield to New Brunswick and return without the present trouble at Dunellen between the Plainfield and Brunswick companies.

LAST OF STAR COURSE.

Professor Barbour Proved to be an Interesting Entertainer.

The last of the Star Course entertainments at the Y. M. C. A. was given Monday night. This closes the series, which will be begun again next year.

Professor Livingston Barbour, of New Brunswick, was the entertainer, and recited Charles Dickens' "Christmas Carol." The rendition of this piece took up the entire evening, with a few intermissions of two minutes each.

The characters were well represented, especially "Old Scrooge," and also his nephew. Mr. Barbour's specialty seems to be the impersonating of such characters as Scrooge, and he makes a success of it.

Primary Teachers' Met.

The Primary Teachers' Union met Monday afternoon in the Y. M. C. A. building. The Sunday-school lesson for next Sunday, "Jesus the Way and the Truth and the Life," was taught by Miss Rowley, while Miss Beeching taught the topic on the subject of "New Music." There was a large attendance and much interest was manifested.

A Prominent Physician.

A prominent New York physician in discussing the merits of Ripans Tabules with a brother M. D. said: "Several years ago I asserted that if one wished to become a philanthopist, and do a beneficent deed—one that would help the whole human race—nothing could be better than to procure the Roosevelt Hospital prescription, which is the basis of the Ripans Tabules, and cause it to be put up in the form of a ketchup and distributed among the poor."

Sales Increasing.

The largest retail drug store in America is that of Hegeman & Co. on Broadway in New York City. A reporter who went there to learn how Ripans Tabules were selling, bought a five-cent carton and asked:

"Do you have much call for these?"

He was referred to a gentleman who proved to be the head of the department. He said:

"The sale of Ripans Tabules is constantly and largely increasing, due especially to the influential character of the testimonials in the daily press, and growing out of these, through the recommendation of friend to friend. Satisfaction with them is very general. When once they are begun, I notice that a permanent customer for them is made. This, I believe, is through their intrinsic merit, which proves the bona fide character of the advertising. I think them specially useful in the general run of stomach troubles."

TEN FOR FIVE CENTS
RIPANS
ONE GIVES RELIEF

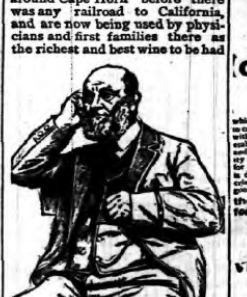
An Elderly Lady.

An elderly lady living at Fordham Heights, a part of New York City, and who was known to be a warm advocate of Ripans Tabules for any case of liver trouble or indigestion, said to a reporter who visited her for the purpose of learning the particulars of her case: "I had always employed a physician and did so on the last occasion I had for one, but at that time obtained no beneficial results. I had never had any faith in patent medicines, but having seen Ripans Tabules recommended very highly in the New York Herald concluded to give them a trial, and found they were just what my case demanded. I have never employed a physician since, and that means a saving of $2 a call. A dollar's worth of Ripans Tabules lasts me a month, and I would not be without them now if it were my last dollar." At the time of this interview I chanced to present two daughters who specially objected to their mother giving a testimonial which should parade her name in the newspapers, but to do this the elder lady argued: "There may be others who, like myself, and I am sure I take great pleasure in recommending the Tabules to any one afflicted as I was. If the telling about my case may be the means of some other person similarly affected to be as greatly benefited as I have been, I see no objection." The daughters, however, objected, so the full story about the benefit she had received, decided she was quite right.

A box of twelve packets (containing five dozen Ripans Tabules) may be purchased for a dollar (the price fixed by law) at any druggist's who sells patent medicines. A single packet may be had for five cents. This low-priced sort is intended for the poor and the economical, who buy in quantity. Ripans Tabules are sold by druggists generally. The five-cent packets may be had at most druggists' in the United States, or by sending to the Ripans Chemical Company, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York—or a single packet will be sent for four cents. Ripans Tabules may be ordered through any druggist. Those Tabules will be sent for five cents. RIPANS TABULES may be had of druggists. One gives relief.

ALFRED SPEER,
THE ORIGINAL
Port Grape Wine Producer in America.

The first native wine sold and used in San Francisco and Sacramento was from Speer's Passaic, N. J., vineyards, was shipped around Cape Horn before there was any railroad to California, and are now being used by physicians and first families there as the richest and best wine to be had



The juice of the Portugal Port Wine grape grown in N. J. is thick and rich same as the juice of pears and other fruits grown here. From California pears you can squeeze water as from a sponge; so with all fruits grown in California; while those grown in New Jersey are solid in substance—less juice but thick and richer. The New Jersey apples, for instance, make a cider that was always popular the world over. If you want a wine for sickness or for entertainments don't take cheap, watery wines but choose a first class old, full bodied, high grade wine from Speer's Passaic vineyards. Sold by Druggists.

Everything for the Garden

Sweet Peas the choicest,
Fancy Lawn Grass Seeds
and odorless Lawn Dressing

Telephone Call, 6.

A. M. GRIFFEN'S,

119 East Front st.

FARMERS' WIVES

or any other ladies who wish to work

Can Earn Lots of Money

working for us in spare time at home on our cloths. We offer you a good chance to make plenty of spending money easily, in leisure hours. Send 12c. for cloth and full direction for work, and commence at once. Cloth sent anywhere. Address

WINOOSKET CO. (225-C) Boston, Mass. Mfg. Dept.

VICK SEEDS

Bulbs and Plants have gone to thousands of satisfied Customers for a half century and to introduce them to a million more we will send a Special Golden Wedding Edition of which is a work of art. It has 72 pages Enlarged in colors, a paper souvenir, and nearly 500 pictures with handsome half-tone illustrations of Flowers, Vegetables, Plants, Bulbs, Grains, Grasses, Fruits, Rare and Gold. A marvel in Catalogue making; an authority on all matters pertaining to Gardening; a safe guide for the same, and a descriptive catalogue of all the best Seeds, Bulbs, Plants, etc., that grow, given correctly, but we want everyone interested in a Garden to have a copy of this book and will send the Guide with a DUE BILL, for 25 cents worth of flower and vegetable seeds . . . . . 15 cts

Vick's Garden and Floral Guide

It tells how credit is given, the full amount to be purchased to be other goods. . . . . .

Vick's Little Gem Catalogue
A perfect little gem of a price list. It is simply the Garden and Floral Guide condensed. FREE, and as handy shape for reference.

Vicks Monthly Magazine,
enlarged, improved, and up to date on all subjects relating to Gardening, Flowers and Fruits. Only by subscription price 50 cents a year.

Special Offer Send 15 cents for the Magazine one year and Vick's Garden and Floral Guide, for 25 cents.

OUR NEW PLAN of selling Vegetable Seeds allows you more for your money than any other seed house in America.

JAMES VICKS SONS,
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

Quality Rather Than Quantity.

President Eliot of Harvard, says: "The International is a wonderfully compact storehouse of accurate information."

WEBSTER'S INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY

Best for the Household.

Words are easily found, Pronunciation is easily ascertained, Meanings are easily learned. The growth of words is easily traced, and excellence of quality rather than superfluity of quantity characterizes the entire work.

Specimen pages sent on application to G. & C. MERRIAM CO., Publishers, Springfield, Mass.

DIME
Savings Institution,
Of Plainfield, N. J.,

Is now receiving deposits payable on demand, with interest, allowed on all sums from $5 to $3,000.

J. FRANK HUBBARD, President,
GEO. W. ROCKFELLOW, Vice-Pres.
J. C. POPE, Treasurer.

Money deposited on or before January tenth will draw interest from the first.

SEEDS ... FOR THE ... Garden and Farm
Vegetable and Flower Seeds. All the newest and best varieties of merit, not surpassed. Illustrated Catalogue FREE.
WEEBER & DON, Seedsmen and Growers,
114 Chambers St., New York City.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

VOL. XXXII. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, APRIL 27, 1899. NO. 17.

"Support the Constitution, Which is the Cement of the Union, as Well in Its Limitations as in Its Authorities."—Madison.

VICE-PRESIDENT HOBART'S PLANS

Has Not Said He Will Take a Second Term.

NO POLITICS DISCUSSED.

PHYSICIANS PRECLUDED SUCH TALK IN THE SICK ROOM.

It is Said That It is Well-known That He Wishes a Renomination on the Republican National Ticket—He Will Consult With the Party Leaders [and Take the Advice of McKinley—Getting Better.

Washington, April 26.—It can be said upon an authority second only to that of Vice-President Hobart, that he has not in any manner whatever intimated that he is considering the advisability of withdrawing from the candidacy for a second term.

The question of Mr. Hobart's candidacy remains now in the precise condition that it did when the violent attack of grip and indigestion sent him to the sick bed, and it will remain just the same for a long time to come. No one in Washington believes that Mr. Hobart will withdraw from the race, and all expect to see him active in the preparations to insure his renomination.

As soon as he is possessed of his full strength he will, it is understood here, give the matter of renomination the serious and careful attention it deserves, consult with members of the National Committee and other leaders in the Bedublican party, and then make known his intentions. It may be said, however, that it is considered certain that he will be a candidate for renomination unless President McKinley personally requests him to withdraw.

The friendship that exists between Mr. McKinley and Mr. Hobart is of such a steadfast character that it would be hard to find in Washington a man who will say he believes that the President will make such a request, and on the other hand, no one doubts but that Mr. Hobart would immediately relinquish his claims to further recognition by his party if the President intimated that the ticket would be stronger without Mr. Hobart.

The question of trusts and their bearing on the next campaign was very thoroughly canvassed during the conference in Georgia, and it is understood that the President openly expressed his opinion to the effect that such an issue would not injure the chances of Republican success because Mr. Hobart occupied the second place on the ticket.

It was generally agreed that the hue and cry of trusts and monopolies which has been raised against New Jersey cannot be made against the Vice-President personally, although he is widely known to be a corporation man, for no one holds him responsible for the creation of trusts under the laws of New Jersey.

It is known for a certainty that Mr. McKinley would rather have Mr. Hobart on the ticket with him than any one else, and it is believed that the wishes of the President will be respected, and that Mr. Hobart will declare his candidacy later, when the time which appears the most opportune arrives.

The Vice-President denies himself to all interviewers on the advice of his physicians, and none but the closest friends of the family are permitted to see him, and when this privilege is accorded the conversation is not permitted to turn on politics. When Mr. Hobart is able to travel so great a distance, he may go to the St. Lawrence River and remain there until he entirely regains his strength. His cough is still bothersome but its severity has departed.

New Water and Light Company.

Elizabeth, April 26.—The Essex-Union Water and Light Company filed articles of incorporation Monday afternoon with the Clerk of Union county. The company is to capitalized at $500,000, of which $100,000 is paid in. The corporators are Carroll L. Bassett, of Summit, 949 shares; Fred B. Drake, of Easton, Pa., 50 shares; Frederick K. Green, of Summit, one share. The shares of stock are $100 each. The main office will be at Summit.

Object to Disbanding.

The Trenton Division of the Naval Reserve is entering some objection to the plan of reorganization of the State National Guard, which provides for that division disbanding. Many of its members saw service on the Resolute at the destruction of the Spanish fleet at Santiago.

—Union gospel services will be held in the rooms of the W. C. T. U. Thursday night at 8 o'clock.

USE THEIR JUDGMENT.

BOARD OF ASSESSORS DECIDE HOW THEY WILL WORK.

Important Conference of City Officials Last Night—Assessors to be Guided Entirely by Their Own Discretion.

An important conference was held in the Mayor's office, Tuesday p. m. preparatory to the work of the Board of Assessors in fixing the valuations in the city. There were present at the conference Mayor Bockfellow, the members of the Board of Assessors and the Commissioner of Appeal.

The question that was principally considered was the action that the Assessors should take regarding the decisions of the Commissioners of Appeal last year. Whether they should rate properties at the value set by the Commissioners if such value should not seem the true one to them or else place the values according to their best judgment, without regard for any past action on the subject.

It was decided that the Assessors were to go about their duties unprejudiced by any previous action by the Commissioners of Appeal and place the valuations at such figures as were, in their opinion, the true and honest values of the properties.

BECAUSE ROAD WAS BAD.

ALL FANWOOD TOWNSHIP THREATENED WITH ARREST.

William C. Stansbery Was Not Far Being Made An Example of—All Cyclists Take the Sidewalk In Scotch Plains.

The roads of Fanwood township were originally intended for riding and driving. The poor condition of some of them, however, has led a good share of the inhabitants of the township to prefer the sidewalk. As a result, the arrest of nearly half the people of Fanwood is threatened. This exciting situation nearly came to pass Tuesday when Constable Trainor considered the advisibility of making an example of one of the number.

The trouble is chiefly with Park avenue, the thoroughfare connecting Fanwood borough and Scotch Plains, between the Meadow bridge and the fur mill. The road is very stony and many complaints have been made regarding it. Foremen claim that the large loose stones are dangers to drive over and lame the horses. Cyclists growl softly and then take to the sidewalk.

Now, according to the theory of those who made the laws prohibiting the riding on sidewalks, it was understood that if the road was not suitable then the wheelmen might walk. Every day sees a long procession of wheelmen and wheelwomen who think differently. They include many of the prominent officials of Fanwood township and their families.

A Plainfield man was walking on the sidewalk in question, Monday, when he met Wm. C. Stansbery riding his wheel on the sidewalk. He afterwards complained to Constable Trainor. Tuesday a rumor began to gain circulation to the effect that Justice Clark, of Scotch Plains, had issued a warrant for Mr. Stansbery's arrest on the charge of riding on the sidewalk. Mr. Stansbery met the constable Tuesday afternoon and inquired concerning the rumor. The constable admitted that he was thinking of it.

Mr. Stansbery wanted to know why he had been singled out of all the offenders. The constable said that somebody must be made an example of. Mr. Stansbery admitted his guilt but remarked that if he was arrested he would immediately swear out warrants for all the others, township officials included, who daily ride over the sidewalk on Park avenue. The warrant hasn't yet been served, and the cyclists still continue to use the sidewalk as they can't ride in the road.

CONFIRMED A CLASS.

Bishop Scarborough Visited St. Stephen's Church.

Bishop Scarborough visited St. Stephen's Episcopal church at Netherwood Tuesday, and confirmed a class of three young people, two young ladies and one young man. The Bishop made an excellent address, in which he gave the newly made church members some good advice. The church was filled, and the Bishop was thus encouraged by a good attendance at the service. He was assisted by the rector, Rev. S. P Simpson.

Talked Club Affairs.

Last Monday afternoon the members of the Parliamentary Club enjoyed an informal reception in one of the rooms at the Y. M C. A. building. During the reception there was an informal talk over the club's affairs and the prospects for next season. The affair was well attended and before the members departed light refreshments were served.

ROUGH ROAD FOR TRUE LOVE TO GO

Cupid And An Irate Father Clash in Scotch Plains.

BEAU KEPT LATE HOURS.

THE LAUGHTER FORBIDDEN TO RETURN TO HER HOME.

Charles Messler Ejected Harry Ball, His Daughter's Sweetheart, From the Premises—Latter Retaliates With Assault and Battery Charge, And the Father Was Held for the Grand Jury.

Scotch Plains, April 26.—The old saying that true love never runs smooth was again in evidence last evening when Charles Messler appeared before Judge Clark's court to answer to a charge of assault and battery upon his daughter Alida, seventeen years of age, and her young friend, Harry Ball, of Mountainside.

It seems that Harry and Alida have been keeping company for sometime past, and there seemed to be no objection to their little love affair so long as Harry knew when to go home. But of late he has been lingering later and later each evening. The climax, however, came Monday evening when Mr. Messler put in a strong objection to the late hours being kept by the young people. So he gave Harry to understand about 11:30 o'clock Monday evening that it was pretty near time for him to be home. The young man differed in opinion and lingered on. About 12 o'clock the young lady's father arose from his bed and dressing hastily proceeded to the parlor and ordered the young man off the premises.

Now here is where the real trouble started. The stories do not agree. Mr. Messler claims that Ball was slow in making up his mind to go and the daughter did not seem to want the interview interrupted. He then proceeded, he says, to use force to eject him from the premises.

Ball alleges that his prospective father-in-law followed him out into the highway and did strike and abuse him, both with his fists and tongue, and that he also assaulted the daughter by striking her over the head with a chair and forbidding her to return to the parents roof again.

The young couple wandered out into the night alone and it was decided during those weary hours to have Messler arrested. Mr. Ball appeared befor Justice Clark yesterday asking for a warrant for assault and battery.

As Mr. Messler pleaded guilty to the charge of assault Judge Clark held him under $100 bail to appear before the grand jury. Constable Traynor went Mr. Messler's bond and that side of the case was settled for a short time.

After it was all over Mr. Messler asked for a warrant for Ball's arrest, charging him with being a nuisance and trespassing upon his property. The Judge decided that an action for damages was the way to cover this charge and promised Mr. Messler that a summons would be issued today if he wished. Mr. Messler replied that he did and the end is not yet.

Like all love stories it will be continued in our next.

LOST MUCH BLOOD.

Small Blood Vessel Ruptured Under the Brain of George Gayle.

George Gayle, of the borough, was awakened about 4 o'clock Monday morning by a profuse bleeding at the nose. Remedies were applied that temporarily stopped the bleeding and Mr. Gayle went to work as usual, but about 8 o'clock another and more violent attack came on and he was taken to his home, 18 Vine street. Dr. Long was summoned, and the second attack was also stopped, but not until he had lost a large amount of blood. The cause is supposed to be the rupturing of a small blood vessel near the brain, and had the blood not found its way out by the nostrils and mouth Mr. Gayle would probably have been attacked with apoplexy. After a few days quiet rest Mr. Gayle will be able to resume work.

Improvements in a Livery Stable.

Adam Blair, proprietor of the West Sixth street livery stables, has begun some improvements about them which, when completed, will make the stables among the most commodious in the city. The entire front of the building is being taken out, widened and raised up to the height of the rear. The front door will be placed in the centre, which will make it handier to get the carriages in and out. Albert Pope, of Park avenue, owns the building.

Y. M. C. A. MUST PAY TAX LEVIED BY CITY.

State Board of Taxation Dismisses Their Appeal.

AN IMPORTANT DECISION.

QUESTION AS TO SOURCE OF INCOME NOT PASSED ON.

The Rental of Stores in the Building Was the Basis For the Board's Decision Against the Association, Which Will Now Have to Pay Taxes on an Assessed Valuation of $18,000 Made by City.

Trenton, April 26.—A meeting of the State Board of Taxation was held yesterday at which the dismissal of appeal of the Young Men's Christian Association of Plainfield from the assessment made against its building came up for discussion. A part of the building is rented out for stores, and this fact was the basis of the board's decision against the Y. M. C. A. The question as to whether an exemption would be allowed the Y. M. C. A. in case no part of its building was used as a source of income, was not passed upon.

In discussing the case the board had quite an argument over the opinion recently rendered by Justice Depue in the case of the Cooper Hospital, of Camden. This hospital was endowed by Isaac Cooper, and the Camden taxing authorities assessed a great deal of property, the revenue from which maintains the hospital. In setting aside the assessment, Justice Depue held that no taxes ought to be paid on the property the revenue from which goes to the maintenance of the hospital. The source to which the revenue is applicable and not that from which it is derived, the Court in substance said should govern the tax authorities.

It will be remembered that W. D. Murray, former president of the Y. M. C. A., appeared before the State Board of Taxation at Newark last week and made an argument for a reduction in the amount of assessment on the property of the association on the ground that it was a religious and charitable society. Corporation Counsel Marsh appeared for the city and in an argument sustained the action of the Board of Assessors. The property is assessed $18,000, which is considered about one-third of its worth.

GAVE THE FLAG OF ERIN.

PRESENTED TO THE HIBERNIANS BY THE LADIES.

Pleasant Incident of a Reception and Ball Given in Washington Hall Tuesday Night—Growth of the Local Order.

The Ancient Order of Hibernians, the well-known Irish society, gave a reception and ball in Washington Hall Tuesday night. The Ladies' Auxiliary met with them, and the two organizations passed a pleasant evening together. A programme of music and recitations was first presented, then supper was served and dancing kept until about 1 o'clock.

Patrick Casey was chairman of the meeting which preceded the entertainment. In a brief address he made some remarks about the growth of the order during the twenty-four years it has been in existence. April 9th was the twenty-fourth anniversary of the order. Of the charter members who organized the lodge, Patrick Casey and Edward Conners are still on the roll.

The most interesting part of the programme was the presentation by the Ladies' Auxiliary of a beautiful Irish flag to the Hibernians. The presentation was made by three little girls, the Misses Young and Ryan. The gift was received in behalf of the society by Edward Ryan, the president, who, in a short address, thanked the ladies for their kindness.

There were other features of the programme. The Ladies' Chorus sang several patriotic pieces, and there were solos by Miss Maggie Beville, Miss Alice Kelly, Miss Lizzie Gannon, Miss Delia Gannon and John Moran. Addresses were also made by Rev. Fathers Smythe, Miller and Westman.

Of a Musical Nature.

One of the most delightful informal entertainments that have been arranged by the House committee of the Park Club was held in the club house last Tuesday. The programme was entirely of a musical character. It included baritone solos by Alfred E. Holmes and piano selections by Mrs. Harry F. Johnson. Both rendered their selections in a finished manner and to the great satisfaction of the members and their families who were present. They were called upon for several encores.

WOMEN WOULD SETTLE THE DUST QUESTION.

They Think Sprinkling Should be Paid for by Taxing.

PLAN FOR PLAY GROUNDS.

TOWN IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION FULL OF VIGOR.

Annual Meeting Held Tuesday Afternoon and Mrs. Pierre Malli Chosen President—Park Improvement Discussed — Mrs. Malli's Gift of a Fountain Cannot be Accepted—Other Interesting Things.

The annual meeting of the Town Improvement Association was held Tuesday afternoon in the Y. M. C. A. A good part of the time was taken up with a discussion of plans for getting the Council to look after the sprinkling of the streets. If the women could have it their way every thoroughfare in the city would be watered several times a day to the comfort of everyone who lives in the limits.

Mrs. W. Palmer Smith, of Netherwood, is chairman of the committee on street, and it was finally left to her to find out the best way to bring this matter to the Council, with a view to having an ordinance passed giving the city the power to sprinkle the streets and add it to the tax bills. The ladies thought that it would be such a small amount added that no one would find fault with it, and several cited incidents where their neighbors refused to do their share of paying for the service, and as a consequence parts of the streets are watered, while other parts are not, and the result is almost as bad as before.

Mrs. J. K. Myers and Mrs. C. A Marsh were particularly active in agitating this question of watering the streets, and Mrs. Smith is to report the result of her inquiries at the next executive meeting.

As Mrs. Pierre Malli, the president, was not able to be present, Mrs. Charles Ryder occupied the chair. The treasurer's report for the year showed that $347.23 were the receipts. All but $38.31 has been spent, the greater part of it on the park, where new benches have been placed, and other new features added.

The committee on trees and parks reported that the Council had donated $100 to be spent in the care of the park. Mrs. Malli found that the fountain she promised to donate could not be used, so there will be no fountain there for the present. Mrs. Charles Hyde, Mrs. W. Palmer Smith, Mrs. Lawrence Myers, Mrs. Alexander Gilbert, Mrs. Talmage, Mrs. Malli and Mrs. O. T. Waring have given plants which have been placed in the centre of the park, and make a pretty sight.

Mrs. Henrietta B. Herring, chairman of the committee on cruelty to animals, said that there has been only one case brought to her attention. Mrs. Marla Eaton, who has been urging the Central Railroad Company to provide benches at the stations, so that ladies will not have to take such long steps to mount the cars, reported also that she has been trying to induce the company to issue fifty trip New York tickets to sell for $9 instead of $18.

Officers were elected as follows: President, Mrs. Pierre Malli; first vice-president, Mrs. Charles Hyde; second vice-president, Mrs. L. V. F. Randolph; recording secretary, Mrs. S. R. Krom; corresponding secretary, Miss Annie Stewart; treasurer, Mrs. Alexander Gilbert.

Mrs. S. R. Krom, Mrs. Carman Parse and Mrs. Maria Eaton were elected delegates to the spring meeting of the State Federation of Women's Clubs which meets at Rutherford May 11th.

The subject of play grounds was also brought up. The ladies have tried to procure the vacant lot at the corner Plainfield avenue and West Fourth street and also the ground on which the old tenement known as "Battle Row" once stood, before it was burned down, but the owners will not rent the ground. If the ladies could get hold of some kind of a play ground in that quarter of the city, fit it up as a park, with trees, sand banks for the little ones to play in, it would fill a long felt want.

Not Enough Farm Hands.

Much of the help that has been necessary for farmers in South Jersey to secure in Philadelphia has become tired of farm life and left, placing the farmers in a predicament. In many instances higher wages has been paid to old hands to keep them.

Placing the Valuations.

On May 20th Elston French, assessor for the borough, will start out on his annual work, and he will be kept busy for awhile.

WANTS SALE SET ASIDE.

MR. BROWER ALLEGED TO HAVE BOUGHT PROPERTY TOO LOW.

Senator Reed, of This City, Made Application Before Vice-Chancellor Stevens—The Application was Granted Yesterday.

Newark, April 26.—Vice-Chancellor Stevens, on application of State Senator Reed, granted a rule to show cause why a Sheriff's sale of property in Plainfield should not be set aside. The application was made on behalf of Henry M. Demorest, who with his step-mother, Mrs. Elizabeth E. Demorest, was an executor of the estate of his father, David Demorest. The annulment of the sale is sought on the ground that the price derived was less than half the value of the property.

Mrs. Demorest held a mortgage for $13,000 on the property. After the death of her husband, a year ago, foreclosure proceedings were begun and the property was bought in by Charles D. H. Brower for $6,000. It is alleged that he was the only bidder, the sale, it is asserted, not having been properly advertised. It is also asserted that Brower acted merely as agent for Mrs. Demorest, who thus practically secured title to the property and still holds a claim against the estate for $7,000, the balance of the mortgage.

HONORED ITS 10TH YEAR.

DECENNIAL TEA OF MISSIONARY SOCIETY WAS A SUCCESS.

Women's Missionary Society of First M. E. Church Celebrated Its Tenth Anniversary in the Chapel Tuesday.

An excellent supper was the principal part in the celebration of the tenth anniversary of the formation of the Women's Home Missionary Society of the First M. E. church, held in Vincent chapel, last Tuesday. A decennial tea was the title given it. It was altogether a very satisfactory affair, and the members of the congregation, who turned out to attend it, were given a fine repast and a pleasant time.

At the head of the committee in charge of the supper was Mrs. L. M. Freeman. Those presiding at the tables were Mrs. C. C. Cokefair, Mrs. J. W. Jackson, Mrs. Henry A. McGee, Mrs. O. L. Jenkins, Mrs. J. C. Peck, Mrs. J. H. McNaughton and Mrs. John Lewis. The other members of the committee who assisted included Mrs. J. P. Homan, Mrs. N. W. Pike, Mrs. I. L. McVoy and others.

The waitresses were the Misses Mildred Terrill, Florence Rugg, Elsie Horne, Persis Snodgrass, Bertha H. Lewis, Estelle Palmer Davis, Cora Scull, Flora Tainor and Carrie Mulford and Mrs. May Johnston.

After supper was over, exercises were held at which Rev. Dr. Whitney presided. There were several well rendered solos by Miss Etta Raybert. The annual report, which also summed up the work of the society during the ten years of its existence, was read by J. W. Jackson.

The exercises closed with an address by Mrs. Boswell, of Newark, on the work of the Home Missionary Society. She gave a brief sketch of the various fields of work in the United States and told of the great good that had been already accomplished and the opportunities that still existed.

Ice cream and cake were then served at the tables and a social hour was enjoyed by those who had remained.

Handsome in Every Way.

Those who happened downtown this morning found Bonn's, the new ladies' outfitting store at 140 West Front street, open and ready for business. L. H. Bonn, the proprietor, has had twenty years experience in New York city, and is thoroughly acquainted with the details of the business. The store is handsomely fitted up and contains a large and excellent assortment in the lines that are included. Hats, flowers, ribbons, veilings, belts, waists, skirts, corsets, underwear and wrappers have all received attention. What Mr. Bonn especially wishes to impress on the Plainfield public is that he carries all grades and at all prices.

To Dedicate a Church.

The new Episcopal church of the Holy Comforter, in Rahway, will be dedicated by Bishop Scarborough on Ascension day, May 11th. The first service will be held in the edifice on Sunday, May 7th. There will be a supper held in the church on the evening of May 3d and 4th, and the proceeds will go toward defraying the cost of fitting up the interior of the new church.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Nolan, of East Front street, is brightened by the arrival of a baby girl. The young daughter arrived Monday last.

MORE MONEY FOR THE SOLDIERS' MONUMENT

Old Committee Has $200 Which Will be Turned Over.

MANY SUBSCRIPTIONS, TOO.

AN ENTERTAINMENT TO BE GIVEN TO RAISE FUNDS.

Encouraging Reports Made at the Meeting of the Special Committee Last Night—Defunct Association Secured Pledge for $2,500 and an Effort Will be Made to Renew Subscriptions.

There was an important meeting of the soldiers' monument committee last Tuesday. The interest in the project was advanced considerable. W. C. O'Donnell, president of the committee, reported that he had communicated with members of the defunct Soldiers' Monument Association, regarding the possibility of securing for the new movement such money and subscriptions as were sometime ago given for the then proposed monument.

Mr. O'Donnell stated that he was informed that about $200 had been given in case, and about $2,500 subscribed toward the project. Col. Mason W. Tyler, a member of the old committee, suggested that Nelson Runyon, secretary for the old committee, be asked to call a meeting of the committee and that some means be adopted whereby the money and subscriptions could be turned over to the new committee. This idea was thought to be a good one and Mr. O'Donnell saw Mr. Runyon, who said he would call a meeting of the old committee for the purpose mentioned.

Another matter considered favorably at meeting was the proposition of Dr. Simpson, of this city, who offered to exhibit at a slight expense a large number of snap-shot views taken in the recent war with Cuba. The pictures are valuable and cannot be obtained in this locality. The Camera Club, for this purpose, decided Monday evening to allow their rooms in the Babcock building to be used free of expense for the exhibition, and the entertainment will probably be given Saturday evening, May 6th. In addition to the exhibition of pictures there will probably be a musical programme, and the committee hope to have the hearty co-operation of all patriotic citizens in making the affair a success.

The interest and enthusiasm in the proposed monument still increases and this week sometime the announcements prepared by the committee will be sent out. An effort will be made to reach if possible every person in this city, and it is hoped that the blank will be filled out and returned to Treasurer J. F. Buckle. The committee will be pleased to receive any amount, and a ready response will be appreciated.

THE YOUNG VETERANS.

Spanish-American Volunteers to Act on a United Movement for Memorial Day.

A meeting of the soldiers who were in the U. S. army during the Spanish-American war will be held in the G. A. R. rooms this evening. Final action will then be taken regarding a united movement to turn out Memorial Day. The soldiers will also consider plans for uniting with some of the veteran associations that have sprung up after the war, and also for forming a militia company in Plainfield.

MUSIC MADE MONEY.

Pleasing Entertainment Given for the Benefit of Piano Fund.

Last Tuesday in the lecture room of the First Baptist church a pleasing entertainment was given for the benefit of the fund which was started for the purchase of a new piano for the Sunday-school. There was a good attendance and the programme was enjoyed. Lindley Hillman had charge of a phonograph and gave about a dozen of the best selections. Other features of the programme were the singing by Mrs. Ward, contralto, and Wm. Holmes, baritone, and their selections interspersed the phonograph selections. The artists were generous and responded to several encores during the entertainment. The receipts were gratifying to the committee in charge, of which Harold Serrell was the chairman.

Held for the Grand Jury.

Robert Morley, eighteen years old, coachman for Editor F. W. Runyon, was brought before Justice Nash yesterday charged with petty larceny. It was alleged that he had stolen $15 from his employer. He was held under $100 bonds for his appearance before the Grand Jury.

BRAVE FIREMEN TO THRILLING RESCUES

Fighting Fire Under Difficulties in Bound Brook.

CHILD'S LIFE WAS SAVED.

STAIRS GAVE WAY AND THREW GALLANT CHIEF INTO CELLAR.

Veritable Tinder Boxes and Fire Traps Became Ignited and Made Hard Work for the Volunteer Firemen—One Man Seriously Hurt—Fire Supposed to Have Been Incendiary Work.

Bound Brook, April 24.—Bound Brook was startled at 2 o'clock yesterday morning by an alarm of fire. It came from two old houses, regular tinder boxes, which lately belonged to Adolph Stokem, but fell into the hands of the town for non-payment of taxes. They were situated on Main street in the east end of the town, and were soon to be removed, as the Borough Council at its last meeting decided to raze them, but the matter was laid over for one month.

One house was occupied by Mrs. Ellen Vousden and four children, who are supported by the town. The structures were in the business portion of the town. The Hotel Bound Brook is across the street, with the house of Hose Company No. 1 to the east and Maulbeck's bakery and ice cream parlor to the west.

The wind was west and the house of Hose Company No. 1 was threatened, and a line was laid from its cart to the plug by being carried over the truck. The members started in at once to save their building, and while so doing Assistant Foreman Fred W. Miller, of the hose company, was seriously injured by a falling chimney. Miller was soon dug out of the heap of bricks and, although dazed, at once started to work again by grabbing the hose and pitching in and directing the work. Dr. Fisher ordered him to be taken away, but Miller refused to go and had to be carried away. It is feared he is injured internally. He became unconscious soon after. Andrew Heffner, a member of the same company, had his shoulder dislocated by the fall of the same chimney.

Assistant Chief Cody made a gallant rescue of a child from the third story. The child was heard to scream, and Cody at once started to save it. He found the child, but as no ladders could be used he had to come down through the building. He reached the second story and as he was coming down the stairs between the second and first floors they gave way, throwing Cody and his burden to the cellar. After a few minutes of anxiety Cody appeared, with the child, nearly suffocated by smoke.

After an hour's work the fire was under control and what was left of the building was torn down. The fire is believed to be the work of an incendiary, as this is the fourth time in less than a year that the place has been on fire. Mrs. Vousden succeeded in saving only a bed tick, a trunk and a coal scuttle.

HE LIKED IT AFTER ALL.

Charles Schermerhorn Surprised on His Birthday

Saturday being the anniversary of Charles H. Schermerhorn's birthday, the genial Western Union telegraph operator was treated to a genuine surprise party by his wife. Mr. Schermerhorn was not in the secret, and being decidedly outspoken in his detest for surprises in general he suspected not what was going on around him.

Returning from his evening stroll about 9 o'clock Saturday night Mr. Schermerhorn found his apartments invaded by a host of friends from Dunellen, headed by Fred Dickerson. The evening was spent pleasantly, and it is needless to say that Mr Schermerhorn made a charming host for all his dislike for parties.

Fire on the Mountains.

A bright reflection illuminated the sky last Sunday in the direction of Johnston's drive, and several persons who saw it were led to believe that Mrs. Emerson's house was destroyed by fire. Inquiries were made, but the report proved to be false. So far as can be learned no dwelling was burned, but it is thought that the fire was occasioned by the burning of a quantity of brush on the mountains.

Counterfeit Ten Cent Pieces.

Same one has been flooding New Brunswick with counterfeit 10 cent pieces. A number of storekeepers have been victimized by the coins, which are all dated 1898, and are excellent imitations. They ring and seem to be up to weight, but are too soft.

Chamber Music Concert.

A chamber music concert will be given in the Casino, Monday evening, May 1st, under the direction of Ward Stephens. The artists will be the Kaltenborn String Quartette, Miss Marcellina Gonzalez, soprano, and Ward Stephens, pianist.

HANDLING THE CADDIES

BOYS WHO WORK ON GOLF LINKS MUST HAVE PARENTS' PERMIT.

Olaf Saugstad Put in Charge of the Department — Forty Caddies Employed, Eight of Whom will be Regular.

At a recent meeting of the golf committee of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club, Olaf Saugstad, a member of that committee, was made manager of the caddies. There are forty of the caddies and it has been a problem heretofore how to manage them.

Many complaints have come from school teachers and parents because the boys play truant and work at the golf grounds instead of going to school. Mr. Saugstad will require a written permit from the parent or guardian hereafter before he will allow any boy to serve as caddy on school days, so as to be certain that the lad is not doing something to which his parents will object.

There has been no system in the management of the boys, and this Mr. Saugstad will introduce. A man whose duty it will be to manage the caddies will be employed, and each caddy will be obliged to carry a card which will have to be filled out, so as the manager can see just what the boy has been doing. There are eight caddies who will serve on school days, and thirty-two more will be on hand Saturdays and holidays.

FRESH AIR CAMP GONE.

FOREST FIRES DESTRUCTIVE WORK ON THE MOUNTAINS.

Flames Supposed to Have Been Started by Boys—No One There to Prevent the Flames From Doing Any Damage.

All that remains of the Fresh Air Camp for Children of the King's Daughters, which was located on the mountains, along Johnston's drive, is a heap of smouldering embers. The fires which have raged on the mountains for the past few weeks swept that section Saturday and utterly destroyed the little summer home on the mountain.

Owing to the lack of rain for the past month the wood lands have become very dry. Fires have been burning on the Watchung Mountains for some time. Until Saturday, however, the King's Daughters little place escaped. The fire of Saturday is supposed to have been started by some boys.

The camp was a neat little wooden structure that was well equipped for the purpose for which it was intended, that of taking sick babies to the camp for the day so that they might have the advantage of the bracing air. It was built and conducted by the Local Union of King's Daughters, several years ago. In it was stored the furniture, dishes and other articles used in the camp.

As no one was watching the destruction of the camp was not known until yesterday. As the trees stand very close to the building it would have been nearly impossible to save it without great labor, even if the fire had been discovered in time.

AN OMNIBUS CHARTER

UNION COUNTY CORPORATION WITH A GREAT FIELD

Capitalized at $125,000, With its New Jersey Office in Plainfield — May Increase Stock to $1,000,000 if Desired.

Elizabeth, April 24—Articles of incorporation were filed at Elizabeth Saturday by the Ocean Navigation and Construction Company, of New York, which was organized to construct, hire, purchase and run steamships and other vessels, to establish regular lines of steamships and to carry on a general business as shipowners. The company can also purchase and work coal and iron mines and do a general mining business, construct railroads and run them outside of this State.

The capital stock is $125,000, divided into 1,250 shares of $100 each, 500 of which are preferred. The preferred stock is to bear interest at the rate of 6 per cent. The business of the company is to be transacted by a board of five directors, and they shall have power to increase the capital stock to any sum less than $1,000,000.

The incorporators are James R. O'Beirne, of, 32 Broadway, New York; Charles G. West, of Greenwich, Conn.; George E. Waldo, of 1 Nassau street, New York; Robert E Waldo, of Plainfield, and Joseph G. Robin, of 32 Broadway, New York.

The New Jersey office of the concern is at 824 East Sixth street, Plainfield.

Talked Of the Conference.

Rev. Charles L. Goodrich at the morning service in the Congregational church Sunday, gave a short address on the conference of Congregational churches at Washington, D. C., from which he has just returned.

Movement For Good Road.

A movement is on foot to have the road leading from Park avenue to the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club grounds macadamized. There is a great demand for this improvement and it should be made.

FATHER SMYTH TALKS OF THE CIDER JOINTS.

Declares They Are a Disgrace to West End of the City.

